I Hope the Prudence of America will not decline, or the noble Spirit ſubſide in conſequence of the flimſy Promiſes of a w----d Adminiſtration, who favor your liberties no farther than Neceſſity obliges them.---You may look upon the Troubles and grievances of this Country to be ſo many Symtoms of relief for America, which muſt finally riſe with the recovered Liberties of England, or prove a happy Aſylum for every virtuous Man who lives to ſee Slavery abſolutely triumphant.---There are ſtill many independent men here who will ſtruggle hard to ſave this glorious Country, and the Society of the Bill of Rights Men are too ſeriouſly engaged, and too reſpectable to be treated with neglect by Friends or Enemies. Nothing has ſo terrified Adminiſtration as our Plan for Aſſociations through every County, and Induſtry to bring about a Reformation through the whole kingdom, puzzles thoſe wretched State Sycophants moſt inextricably.----Your Friends expreſs the higheſt approbation of your ſpirited conduct, and wiſh you may not recede from your noble purpoſes till your grievances are totally removed, and your Conſtitution, tho' now broken, irrecoverably fixed and firmly ſecured.---Let not Promiſes and Flattery ſtop your Progreſs; for your firmneſs may perhaps not only ſave you but Great-Britain alſo.

HARTFORD, Auguſt 14.

On Tueſday laſt week about 2 o'Clock P. M. came up a very heavy ſhower of Rain, which without intermiſſion continued for ſeveral hours, attended with ſeveral hard claps of Thunder; during which the dwelling houſe of Mr. Jacob Seymour of this town was ſtruck with Lightning but no perſon hurt. And,

We hear from the Weſt-Diviſion of this Town that the rain fell there in ſuch great quantities, that (as 'tis tho't) more than 100 tons of Hay has been ſwept off in the conſequent Flood, in low lands.

'Tis remarkable that after the ſhower was over, in the ſtreet near Capt. Daniel Goodwin's (which, before the ſhower, was quite dry and hard) there appeared great numbers of living animals, nearly reſembling the fiſh kind, tho' not exactly ſimilar to any particular ſort that has ever been obſerved in theſe parts; they were in length about 2 or 3 inches, and otherwiſe proportionable.—This may be received as an undoubted matter of fact as it is atteſted by a great number of perſons of unqueſtionable veracity, who had ocular demonſtration thereof—but how to account for a production of this ſort upon principles of philoſophy is left as a ſubject of ſpeculative amuſement for the curious.

We alſo hear that a barn belonging to one ——— Caſe, of Simſbury being ſtruck with lightning, took fire, and with all its contents was conſumed in the Flames.

STrayed from the ſubſcriber in Hartford to Windſor Goſhen, about two months ſince, a ſorrel Mare Colt, branded with A. on the near ſhoulder, ſome white feet, trots and paces, aged two years old. Whoever will take up ſaid colt, and ſecure her in paſture and ſend word to the Subſcriber ſhall have Five Shillings reward and all neceſſary charges paid by me.

Lemuel Eaſton.

Hartford, Aug 13, 1769.

HARTFORD:
Printed by GREEN & WATSON,
near the Great Bridge.

New York, March 9, 1769.

PROPOSALS,

For PRINTING by SUBSCRIPTION,

ESSAYS

ON The Origin, Hiſtory, Language, Religion, and religious Rites, Prieſts or Magi, Cuſtoms, Civil Policy, Methods of declaring and carrying on War and of making Peace, Military Laws, Agriculture, Buildings, Exerciſes, Sports, Marriage and Funeral Ceremonies, Habits, Diet, Temper, Manners, &c. Of the INDIANS on the Continent of North-America. Particularly of the ſeveral Nations or Tribes of Catawbas, Cherokees, Creeks, Chickeſaws, and Choctaws, habiting the Weſtern Parts of the Colonies of Virginia North and South Carolina, and Georgia.

A L S O.

Some account of the Deſcription of uncommon Animals, &c.

Interſperſed with Uſeful Obſervations relating to the Advantages ariſing to Britain from her Trade with thoſe Indians; of the beſt Methods of managing them, and of conciliating their affections, and thereby extending the ſaid Trade: Alſo ſeveral intereſting Anecdotes. Collected in a Reſidence of the greater Part of 33 Years among the Indians themſelves.

By JAMES ADAIR,

CONDITIONS:

The Work, will be compriſed in two Octavo Vols. and be put to the Preſs in London as ſoon as ſufficient Number of Subſcriptions are obtained, and will be printed on a good Paper, with a Letter entirely new.

The Price to Subſcribers will be two Spaniſh Dollars, to be paid at the Delivery of the Books ſewed in blue Paper.

Subſcriptions are taken in at the Printing-Office in Hartford.

Jonathan Brown,

COACH and Harneſs maker, takes this opportunity to inform the Public, that he is much obliged to them for thoſe kindneſſes ſhown him, on account of his former Advertiſement, and as he has a compleat ſet of hands, calculated, for the different branches of his buſineſs, is able to afford equal ſatisfaction to thoſe gentlemen who are kind enough to continue their cuſtom, and will diſpoſe of his Carriages on theſe terms, viz. Neat plain Chairs, at £ 17 10 0 ditto with tops, at £ 22-0-0 and all other Carriages in proportion, at his ſhop near the Great-Bridge in Hartford.

Caſh given for good

FAT CATTLE, by the Subſcriber, who may be found at the Wid. MARY NEVINS, in Hartford till the firſt of September next.

ELIPht. FLINT.

BROKE out of the County Goal in Hartford, laſt night, the following perſons, committed for debt viz. David Colbern of Stafford, John Karr & Noadiah Bivens, of Chatham, Richard Allwright, of Middletown, and Hezekiah Blin, of Weathersfield. Alſo Michael Sutliff, a tranſient perſon, ſent from Suffield, committed for ſome criminal conduct. Whoever ſhall take up either of the above-mentioned perſons, and return them to the keeper of the Goal in Hartford, ſhall have TWENTY-SHILLINGS Lawful Money Reward, for each, and all neceſſary Charges paid, by.

EZEKIEL WILLIAMS, Sheriff.

Hartford, Auguſt 9. 1769.

STRAYED away from me the ſubſcriber in Suffield, a large ſorrel MARE about 12 or 14 years old, hip't on the left ſide, had on a pair of iron fetters, alſo a black Horſe Colt, two years old, has a ſmall ſtar in his forehead, his head ſomething grayiſh. Whoſoever ſhall take up ſaid Horſes and ſend me word, or bring them to me in Suffield or to Lieut. MARTIN KELLOGG, in Newington ſhall be well rewarded for their trouble, and all neceſſary charges paid by me.

ELIJAH KENT.

Suffield, Auguſt 2d, 1769.

LATHROP & SMITH,

DRUGGISTS and APOTHECARIES in Hartford.

HAVE juſt received from London a freſh aſſortment of Drugs and Medicines among which are moſt of the Patented Medicines (imported directly from the original Patentees or their aſſignees) genuine Terra Foliata Tartari—the famous Hoffmans Neutral Salt—All ſorts of Spices and other articles belonging to their profeſſion. All which are to be ſold upon reaſonable terms.

Caſh and Weſt-India Goods to be given for Pot-Aſh, that is merchantable and good by ſaid Lathrop & Smith.

Hartford, 7th Auguſt, 1769. 6m

JAMES JEPSON,

Tin-Plate Worker, at his Shop oppoſite the North-End of the Court-Houſe in Hartford,

MAKES and ſells all Kinds of Work in that Way, at the cheapeſt Rates.——Any Trader, or Shop Keeper, that will take their Supplies of him, he will charge them as low as can be procured in New York or Boſton.

☞ Said JEPSON has to diſpoſe of an excellent Pair of Pot-Aſh Kettles, that contain each about 65 Gallons, very low, for Caſh or Produce. np

Auguſt 7. 1769.

NICHOLAS BROWN,

Chaiſe Maker, near the North Meeting-Houſe in Hartford, makes and ſells all ſorts of Chaiſes, and other riding Carriages, in the neweſt and beſt faſhion, viz.

HANDSOME plain chairs, at £.13 10 0 ditto with tops, at £.15 10 0. And all other ſorts of Carriages in the ſame proportion, which is cheaper than Carriages of the like goodneſs can be purchaſed in Boſton or New York; and will receive his pay in money, or in produce, at money price.

Alſo, ſaid Brown hath on hand, and which he will diſpoſe of very cheap, for the ſame pay, three ſecond Hand Chairs with tops, and one new Sulkey, which is very convenient for a ſingle man to ride in. Any gentlemen that will be ſo good as to favour him with their Cuſtom, may depend on being uſed well, and having their work done in the beſt manner, and with the greateſt diſpatch.

Joſeph Maken, jun.

HEREBY informs his cuſtomers and others, that he has removed from Middletown to Eaſt Hartford, where he has juſt received a freſh aſſortment of DRUGGS and MEDICINS, which he will ſell as uſual, upon the moſt reaſonable terms. Likewiſe an aſſortment of patented Medicins, among which are,

BATEMAN's drops, Turlington's Balſam of life, Godfrey's Cordial, Hill's Balſam of Honey, Hooper's female pills, Anderſon's ditto, Britiſh Oil, &c. &c. &c.

Alſo, Spices, ſuch as cinamon, mace, cloves, Nutmegs, &c. &c. &c.

To be Sold Cheap by

WENSLEY HOBBY;

at Middletown,

TWO CHAISE's and Harneſs compleat, both new, made in Boſton by one of the beſt workmen there and finiſhed off in the beſt manner.

To be Sold by

George Wm. Willis,

At his ſhop in Middletown, a neat aſſortment of DRUGGS and MEDICINES, on reaſonable terms. Likewiſe an aſſortment of Patented Medicines among which are

HILLS pectoral Balſom Honey, Squires grand Elixer, Turlington's Balſom of Life.—Bateman's Drops—Lockyers and Andersons Pills—Britiſh Oil, &c. &c. &c.

Alſo Spices of all kinds.

To be ſold on generous Terms,

About 30 Acres of improved Land in Goſhen, adjoining the north line of Litchfield & Albany Road, whereon is a fine Orchard, and a large Houſe and Barn, a good Well, &c lately improved by Lieut. Ebenezer Hill, whereof a good Title, and immediate Poſſeſſion may be had of

JEDEDIAH STRONG.

Litchfield, March 22, 1769.

J. Morton,

At his Store in Hartford, on the North ſide the Green in the Houſe of Mrs. Sarah Edwards,

HAS a good Aſſortment of Dry Goods, Iron-Mongery, Earthen Ware, Glaſs Ware, and beſt London Pewter, blown and Rock Salt

N. B. Said Morton intending for Europe, in the Fall, will ſell off what goods he has on hand, very low for Caſh or Produce.

Selling at firſt Coſt.

A general aſſortment of Dry Goods amongſt which are,

CALICO's, Chintz, Iriſh-Holland, Strip't dit. Cotton Checks, Check'd Handkerchiefs, Painted dit. Silk dit. Plain ⅞ Lawns Strip'd dit. Cambricks, Silk Gauze and Catgut, Taffaty, Pelong, Modes and other Silks, Gloves and Mitts, Sewing Silk, Twiſt, Buttons, Garters, &c. Broad Cloth's, Sagathee, German Serges, Wilton Cloths, Coating's, White Flanel, Shalloons, Durants, Tamy's, Callicoes, Bordetts, and other ſtuffs for Waiſtcoats, Breeches Patterns, Men's and Womens worſted, cotton, and thread Hoſe, Silk and Worſted bindings, Gartering, &c. &c.

Alſo a quantity of extraordinary Salt.—Tea, Pepper, Nails, Pipes, Tea Kettles, Braſs Pans, with ſundry articles to be ſold by next the Town-Houſe Middletown, for Caſh or Produce.

Cookſon Atkinſon,

WHEREAS the Sub-

ſcriber did give to Matthias Kelſey, of Saliſbury three notes of hand bearing date April 3d, 1769, 1 note vallue £. 18 Lawful Money, 2 notes £. 11 3 notes £. 10 ſome ſhillings, which notes was given upon certain conditions which are void. THESE are therefore to forbid all perſons from purchaſing ſaid notes as I utterly refuſe the payment of any of them, as witneſs my hand, July 27 1769.

4m P HARMANUS KNICKERBACKER.

MONDAY, AUG. 28, 1769

THE

Connecticut COURANT.

Numb. 245.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

From the Gazetteer & New Daily Advertiſer, of June 26.

A ſhort and full anſwer to all the writers, who have, in the public papers, attempted to defend the preſent a——n.

TO enter upon a detail of the ſophiſtical efforts to blind and delude the people, by the letter writers and eſſayiſts in the public papers, would be endleſs. And eſpecially the numerous pamphlets, as well as letters, upon the American taxation, werein the coercive meaſures have been repreſented as proofs of the great ability, and ever to be admired firmneſs and fortitude of the firſt M——r. Whereas, let any man only read the inſtructions of the Committee at Boſton, dated May 11th, and in your daily paper of June 20 he will, if he has any eyes, ſee enough to convince him of the avowed deſpotiſm of the meaſures taken with a moſt valuable part of the Britiſh people, I mean the ſubjects of its government.

When I read them over, my breaſt glowed with compaſſion for my Fellow ſubjects, which are only oppreſſed becauſe of their being the firſt friends of the Hanover ſucceſſion, the people formed upon revolution principles, and who have ever ſhewn the moſt loyalty to his preſent Majeſty. They have been traduced and reproached as rebels, and menaced with ſome thouſands of armed men, whom they are able to eat up at a mouthful. They have been inſulted by a G——r, who has the confidence to put on all the airs of deſpotiſm, and provoked by every poſſible meaſure, in order to alienate their affections, and fill them with enmity towards their mother-country. Numerous are the oppreſſions under which they labour, one of which, we have reaſon to conclude, they would never have known, had they been ſuch ſubjects as the Canadians and Grenadians. But, becauſe they have not that Scottizing, Jacobite, or Frenchified complexion, have been uſed with ſo much ſeverity!

The firmneſs of their attachment to the principles of civil and religious liberty, appears illuſtrious in thoſe inſtructions. The ſpirit they diſcover, undiſmayed by the iron hand of power, the determinations they have made not to be enſlaved, gives them a firſt place in the departments of men upon the face of this habitable globe. And there is no reaſon of doubt, but they will ſucceed. in ſpite of all the efforts of deſpotiſm, to their immortal honour.

They have been repreſented as a people of looſe principles, and as deſtitute of virtue and religion, but they give evidence, that, in the human family, they have any equals, they have none ſuperior to them in true magnanimity.

Were I in the a——n, and had been either a principal or an acceſſary to their oppreſſions, of which they ſo loudly and juſtly complain, I ſhould never be able to forgive myſelf the ſhare I had in the guilt, and be aſhamed any more to look in the face of man.

N E V I L L E.

P H I L A D E L P H I A, Auguſt 10.

Extract of a letter from Fort Chartres, April 24.

"Some few Weeks ago, a boat belonging to the Company, was attacked on the Ouabache, by the Indians of that river: The famous Indian called Silver-Heels, was on board the boat, who with his crew killed five of their fellow ſavages, with the loſs of only one man. Silver Heels diſpatched four to his own ſhare. There is great reaſon to fear thoſe ſavages, with their neighbouring nations, will do miſchief on the Ohio."

We hear that Silver Heels has ſince returned to Fort Pitt having come alone through the country, where he was purſued two days by ſome of the Indian tribes he paſſed, but happily eſcaped.

Extract of another letter from Fort Chartres, May 18.

"Six days ago a houſe about thirty yards diſtance from mine, where only one ſoldier and his wife were, was attacked by ſix Indians; the man and woman were tomahawked and ſcalped the woman killed on the ſpot, and the man, whoſe ſcull was broke, has been trepaned, but it is ſuppoſed will follow his mate. I was at a neighbour's at ſupper when we heard the woman ſcream, but before we could turn out with our guns, they were gone off with their ſcalps. We villagers keep a guard of ſix men from the fort, two nights to ſleep and one to watch, and whoſe fate it may be next no one knows. If they mean a general attack, I hope they will give us time to remove our effects into the fort, where, if we be all penned up in the hot ſeaſon, a peſtilence is much to be feared."

We are aſſured, that about the middle of April laſt, Pondiac, the great Indian chief, the bittereſt and moſt miſchievous enemy the Engliſh had, with forty of his chiefs, being at the Illinois, the Indians of that country reſenting the ill treatment he had given the Engliſh, fell on him and killed him; ſince which ſome of the Illinois Indians have been killed by perſons unknown, but ſuppoſed to be by Pondiac's chiefs.

Extract of a letter from Fort Pitt, July 15.

"The Indians have been very troubleſome here, having killed two men, one Burbridge near Ligonier, and one Dalton, within half a mile of this fort————————killed a number of cattle and hogs, ſtole a great many horſes, and behave as uſual in the beginning of their former wars; they have terrified the inhabitants round the place, who have brought in their wives and children. Some of our knowing people pretend to ſay, they have no miſchief in their heads; at beſt they are, but bad neighbours.———ſome again ſuppoſe they will break out when the Indian corn is fit for roaſting, and the inhabitants have provided them plentiful crops in this part of the country. God only knows what will happen.

Extract of a letter from Ontario, July 7.

"The Indians at preſent ſeem quiet, but won't, I think, long remain ſo; their famous chief Pondiac was killed in a drunken frolic at the Illinois."

By Capt. Haſtie from Newfoundland, we learn, that the Antelope man of war, was arrived there, from England with commodore Byron on board, who is appointed to the command of that ſtation, in the room of Governor Palliſer.

Extract of a letter from Fort Pitt, dated the 15th of July, 1769.

"Silver Heels arrived here, the 13th, from Fort Chartres. The ſecond day he was ſo cloſely purſued that he was obliged to throw away every Thing, except the Packets and the Clothes upon his Back. He had a Skirmiſh with the Villains at Port Vincent, being in the Boat which was plundered upon the Wabaſh. We now learn that only one white Man was killed, and likewiſe five Indians, before they compelled Silver Heels, and the nine Men to leave the Boat.———Pondiack is certainly killed by two Kaſkaſkias, as he was going from the Fort to his Camp; none of his Men were killed with him, but they have ſcalped one Steel of the Royal Iriſh, who is likely to recover, and have killed and ſcalped his Wife. There is Reaſon to ſuppoſe the Lake Indians will make Repriſals on the Engliſh, for the Murder of Pondiack as the French at the Illinois, immediately after the act diſpatched a Meſſenger, with a Belt to his Nation, acquitting themſelves and Indians, and throwing all the Blame upon the Engliſh.

"The Seneca Warriors have ſtruck ſuch a Terror in the Country People, that many women and Children are already come into the Fort. One Michael, who has a ſwelled Cheek, and ſpeaks tolerable Engliſh, has two or three Times attempted to ſhoot William Elliot. They have killed a Number of Cattle, Hogs and Horſes, and carried off ſeveral Horſes. Part of the Cherokees, inſtead of going to the Northward, have returned to the Shawaneſe Towns. All Weſtern Indians ſeem jealous of the Peace between the Six Nations and the Cherokees, and I heartily wiſh they may quarrel among themſelves, which will probably keep them off us."

P. S. I forgot to tell you that theſe Misfortunes may be attributed in a great Meaſure, to that fatal and profligate Cuſtom of intoxicating the Indians; for one of them being drunk in the Fort, and, what is generally the Conſequence, miſbehaving, was ſecured and flogged. As ſoon as releaſed, it is ſaid, he went among his Countrymen, and has excited them to reſent the Treatment he met with. It is highly to be wiſhed an effectual Method could be taken to prevent the Indians drinking to Exceſs, while amongſt White People."

Yeſterday a young Man bathing in the River Delaware, not knowing how to ſwim, was carried away by the tide, and was unfortunately drowned.

N E W Y O R K, Auguſt 27.

Laſt Saturday Night the Harriot Packet, lying at one of our Wharfs, was robbed of ſundry wearing Apparel, and about £. 60 in Caſh. The ſame Night ſome other Effects were ſtolen from on board another Snow in the Harbour, and in all Probability by the ſame ſet of Villains.

The following Letter is from a Gentleman in Albany, to his Friend in New York, dated July 26 1769.

SIR,

"I, with many other of the Importers, who have ſigned in Articles of Non Importation of Goods, excepted in your articles, have heard that [illegible] four of the Gentlemen who ſigned with [illegible] them Liberty to import Indian Goods, [illegible] have done this without being thereunto requeſted by the body, neither are they appointed a Committee. At the Time of our ſigning the articles, there was talking of excepting Indian goods, but a large Majority would not, for Reaſon that the Indian goods are all manufactured in England; ſuch as Blankets, Strouds, Penniſtones, Gimps, Linen, Vermillions, and Braſs Kettles. all which we ought not to ſend for, as the above Articles employ as many People in England as any Branch whatever; therefore I. with a great Majority, proteſted againſt their Letter and are determined, if they, or any, ſhould get any of the above articles before there is a general Importation, that we ſhall ſtop them, or requeſt the Friends to Liberty in New-York, to ſtop them for us This I think is the Senſe of a large Majority of the Friends of Liberty in Albany. Should we clothe the Indians with Woolens, who have been uſed to be clothed with Skins; and we wear Skins, that have been uſed to Woollens?—I think not. To ſtop the Indian Goods is the ſpeedieſt Method to get the Duty act repealed; if the Indians were only debared one twelve Months from Goods, they wou'd demand the Reaſon:—if ſo, we ſhould tell them that there was a Set of People in England who told our Maſter that his Children on this Side the Water muſt pay Duties for the goods, over and above their Worth, to pay Soldiers and great Officers on that Side the Water, to watch over you and us;—what would be their Anſwer? We don't want them amongſt us, we can always agree better without them; let every Country keep their own People, and pay them as much as they pleaſe; then we ſhall live in Peace as we uſed to do. This, Sir, from a Lover of this Country, and a true Friend to Liberty."

ANNAPOLIS, Auguſt 3.

On Sunday evening laſt, a very black cloud aroſe, from the weſtward, which broke in the neighbourhood of this city, at Mr. Heſſelius's, and from thence to London-town: A great quantity of hail ſtones fell, or rather cakes of ice, as they were flat and oblong, ſome of them 5 or 6 inches in circumference. Every pane of glaſs on the weſt ſide, and upper ſtory of Mr. Heſſelius's houſe, were beat in, and many windows in London-town greatly damaged. On ſeveral plantations the corn was cut, ſo that it is now withering away. Numbers of dunghill fowls, partridges, doves, and other ſmaller birds, have been ſince found dead in the fields and woods. In this city we had only a hard wind, with a ſhower of rain, which ſcarcely wet the ſurface of the ground an inch deep, though we have not had before, at any one time, ſo much ſince the beginning of June. The graſs and herbage has the appearance of winter. We are informed, that in many parts of the province they have ſcarcely had a drop of rain ſince May, ſo that the inhabitants have a miſerable proſpect of crops, both of corn and tobacco.

LONDON, June 7.

Yeſterday's mails confirm the account of the victory gained over the Turkes, as mentioned in yeſterday's Ledger, and add as follows: "The Ruſſians had only a few wounded in the engagement, among whom was Major Prince Dolgorouki.

Copy of a letter written by Prince Galitzin, Commader in Chief of the Ruſſian Army to the Empreſs his Miſtreſs, informing her Majeſty of the advantages obtained by him over the Turkiſh troops.

"Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

"I have the honour of ſending your Imperial Majeſty advice, by this letter written in haſte, of a ſignal victory gained by us, this day, over the enemy by the aid of the Moſt High, and the good Fortune which attends your Majeſty's arms. The Turkiſh army, commanded by Caraman Paca, who arrived here lately, in ſpite of its advantageous poſition under the cannon of the fortreſs of Choczim, has been attacked, defeated and driven part of it into the town, and part into the country. All their Camp is taken. I ſhall not fail ſoon to ſend your Majeſty an exact detail of this glorious day.

"I am, with the moſt profound reſpect,

"Your Majeſty's moſt devoted Subject,

"Prince Alexander Galitzin."

Camp at Choczim,

19 April, Old Style, 1769.

Prince Galitzin, after ſinging Te Deum for his late victory, put in march the 2d of May, to re occupy the Camp of Calus, and refreſh his troops. The ſame day the Pacha of Natolia, having collected ſome of the run aways, and maſſacred the Jews and Chriſtians whom the Pacha of Choczim had turned out of that city as uſeleſs moths, advanced and attacked the Ruſſians in their march, but they only took about ten empty waggons the Captain who covered the train with 80 men, keeping them off for four hours without loſing a ſingle man. In the mean time Prince Prozorofski was detached to engage the Pacha of Natolia, which he did with ſuch courage and conduct, that the enemies ſoon give way, and were purſued as far as Pruth. The Turks left 300 men on the place; ſeveral camels and mules fell into the hands of the Ruſſians, who alſo took on this occaſion four more flags, a pair of kettle drums, and the military cheſt valued at 40,000 crowns.

We are told from Warſaw, that while Prince Galitzin, with the other Ruſſian Generals, is penetrating into the Turkiſh Territories, General Olitz, with a conſiderable corps under his command, remains behind, in Poland, to protect their Magazines there, againſt the incurſions of the Tartars, and the Confederates of Bar.

Letters from Paris inform, that the Commander of one of the French Forts in Africa, has been ordered home in irons, accuſed of high crimes againſt the State.

It is rumoured that the laſt American diſpatches brought over ſome ſecret intelligence reſpecting the apparent deſigns of a certain power to diſturb the tranquility of the Britiſh provinces on that continent.

Commodore Byron, who ſailed on Monday from Portſmouth for his ſtation at Newfoundland, has carried over ſeveral valuable preſents for the Indian Chiefs in the nighbourhood of St. John's, and in the country of Labrador, to attach them more firmly to the Britiſh intereſt.

INTELLIGENCE EXTRAORDINARY

WANTED immediately a journeyman F—e M—r, who is acquainted with and ready to do all the dirty work in that ſtation. He muſt underſtand how to ſuppreſs petitions, promote addreſſes from venal and S—tch boroughs, to ſlice penſions, and ſubdivide places; to give ſpecious anſwers to ſelf evident and incontrovertible agrements; to enhance the value of a loan, prefix the raiſe and fall of ſtocks, ſecure an—j—ty in both h——s, and prove by the rule of three inverſe, that two are more than five. He muſt cringe and fawn to Eng—d's natural rivals and conſtant foes; and bully, threaten, and deceive his M——'s liege ſubjects.

For farther particulars enquire at the ſign of the D— of ——'s head, near Arlington-Street. If he be a Scotchman the more agreeable.

N. B. He will be engaged for at leaſt a month certain, on account of the honey moon.

To the Printers of the Connecticut Courant.

Pleaſe to give the following a Place in your next Courant, and you will oblige,

A conſtant Cuſtomer.

HOW muſt an upright by-ſtander think, and reaſon with himſelf, when he looks round, and views the ſituation and conduct of Great-Britain, and her colonies! That there ſhould be uproars, confuſions, and animoſities, between a mother and her children! to ſee G. B. which is become, the wonder of the world, the terror of nations, and the ſeat of wealth and proſperity, running headlong, into the war of contention and diſorder, with her offſpring. What nearer connection can there be in ſociety, than has always ſubſiſted between the colonies, and their mother country? How fond have the coloniſts always been, of maintaining and ſupporting an unalienable union and friendſhip? How have they gloried, in being reckon'd amongſt the number of thoſe that call themſelves, Engliſhmen? How have they reſign'd their lives and fortunes to enlarge the borders, of King George's empire? And on the other hand, Great Britain, has been as fond of her colonies, ſhe has nurſt them, fed and guarded them. Battles have been fought; many valuable and precious lives loſt, with the addition of vaſt ſums of money, time and labour, and all this for the ſecurity and welfare of America. While things went on thus; harmony was in good repair, and no embroiling, diſpute about right of government, taxation, or whatever aroſe, but as ſoon as peace with other nations was made, new miniſters aroſe; thoſe that had ſav'd their blood, in defence of their country were now engag'd, to ſpill it in the deſtruction of it by ſudes, inteſtine broils, and civil war, and to make a moſt frightful brandiſh, of their malevolent ſwords, they ſhook it over America, and faſten'd the cruel Stamp-Act, which had ſo many thorns of diſtreſs, attending it, that all America could, not ſwallow it. But thro' the clemency, of our ſovereign, it was taken off, and like two body's parted by hetrogenious particles unite, when they are purify'd, ſo Great Britain and her colonies once more embrac'd each other. But as Volcanos diſcharge not all their ſulfer at a blaſt; but by continual exploſion; ſo poor America, ſoon met another fate, as cruel almoſt as the firſt, from her ſecret enemies at home, and this burden was gently handle'd, to faſten it the firmer upon our ſhoulders, and ſo like boys at hot cockles if they gueſs not the perſon that ſtruck them, they muſt bear another blow. This was term'd a revenue act, calculated for the peace and happineſs of both mother and children; to aſſiſt in diſburdening the nation of a heavy and grevious debt; no doubt their ſchemes were anſwer'd; ſince they have appointed their creditors, both collectors, and treaſurers; and who more fit to ſettle the national debt, than they? And now, while America groans under the burden of taxation, there is no prudent, meaſures but what are come into, mobbing outrages are diſgarded, and whatever might favor rebellion is univerſally condemn'd. United petitions, for redreſs, are often made to our gracious ſovereign, but what ſucceſs have they had? what better ends have they affected, than only to embitter more and more, the breaſts of our enemy's, and conſtru'd in ſuch a light, that his M—y abhors the ſight of them? and it is to be fear'd that there is ſomething, beſide a great gulf bewixt us and his M——y. I hardly, think that ſhould have ſuch ſlight reaſons for not repealing the act ſo long harp'd upon, were it not that blindneſs in part has happened to our Iſrael.——For here is the grand obſtacle of our freedom & liberty; that as the P——t, have took ſuch and ſuch meaſures, it is degrading to go back, altho' every thing of a political nature calls for it; how abſurd and ſtrange this appears! do our M——y, whole to infallibility, and becauſe it is ſaid the king cannot err; that from thence they conclude that they can't be miſtaken; nor take one wrong ſtep in public affairs? I rather believe that it is neither of theſe; but that they are convinc'd, that the act was impolitic; but they very highly reſent it, that poor America ſhall tell them of it, and rather than take conviction, from the ſpeaking aſs, they will ruſh upon the angels ſword, this appears ſo ſimple, that it is like a maſter, whoſe wealth and proſperity, depends very much upon the ſervants he keeps, and becauſe they don't increaſe his fortune, equal to his avaricious temper, he impoſes an unſupportable taſk up on them; and becauſe the feeling diſtreſs, of the ſervants firſt manifeſt the unreaſonableneſs of the treatment; the maſter is greatly diſguſted, and rather than wound his honor; by hearing reaſon from his ſervants; he will, inſtead of lighting their burden increaſe it, till they both periſh, in one common ruin; and all to make his ſervants know, that they have no right to call their maſter's conduct into queſtion, but aught things ſo to be becauſe a man is intruſted with public welfare? ſurely no, for reaſon never deſtroys the public good, and a ſpark of reaſon, in the breaſt of an African, is in its kind as valuable, as that of the greateſt nobleman in Europe. Mankind ought not to be made fools, that ſome may be tho't wiſe. Poor is honour that comes from ignorant admirers. Hercules with his lion ſkin and club, may attempt to awe the brutal world into obedience, but a fig for the honour of it. What greater honor has a prince, than to have the love and eſteem of his ſubjects? on the other hand how poor and mean the honor that is deriv'd from the crowd of ignorant fawning vaſſals? Mankind, in the proper exerciſe of reaſon, don't run to flocks of herds, for acclamation of praiſe and honours. Unenvi'd, I hope, in the lot of thoſe lunar grandees, who in themſelves are opake and ſhine with borrow'd beams, from their circumſtances and ſtation, when tis the ignorance and darken'd underſtanding of their fawning favorites, that give them leave to ſhine.

Your's CONNECTICUT.

NEW-YORK, Aug. 24.

Extract of a letter to a gentleman in this town, dated at Detroit, 4th July, 1769.

"The Puttawattames of St. Joſeph, brought in here a few days ago, two of their nation that killed an Engliſhman and Woman at the Illenois, laſt Spring; they were brought here in conſequence of an Anſwer I ſent them to a ſpeech they ſent me to beg forgiveneſs, but as my office was at an end, and I did not act for ſome few days before their Arrival, I ordered them to deliver the priſoners to the commanding officer, who immediately put them in cloſe confinement."

On Thurſday morning laſt, the Britannia was launched in the preſence of five thouſand delighted Spectators: She glided elegantly from the ſtocks, uninterrupted by any Accident. Her Burthen about 333 Tons, dimenſions 81 Feet 9 inches whole Keel, 28 Feet Beam, 12 Feet Hold, 5 feet 4 inches between decks; and to the permanent reputation of Meſſrs. Totton and Croſsfield, ſhe will be the moſt complete and beautiful Ship ever conſtructed in our Yards. She is built for the London Trade. Her head is a buſt of Britannia, ſupported on the right by America, & by Hibernia on her left: Expreſſive of our invariable affection for, and indiſſoluble Union with, the chief of nations.

Extract of two letters from Genoa

May 29. "We have juſt received the melancholly News from Leghorn, that Corſica was in Poſſeſſion of the French, and that poor Gen. Paoli was retired into the Mountains with 5000 Men."

June 5. "The French have almoſt ſubdued Corſica—except a few ſtraggling parties who are retired to the Mountains. It is generally ſaid de Paoli is got over to Sardinai with ſeveral of his moſt intimate Friends."

Capt. Albouy in the ſloop Charlotte, from Jamaica, brings Account of the Arrival of a Man of War in a very ſhort Paſſage from England, who reports, that the French have taken Fort St. George, in the Eaſt-Indies. As ſoon as the Account came to the Admiral, he immediately put to Sea; and in ten Days was ſeen at anchor in Cape Nichola Mole on Hiſpaniola. A French War was thought inevitable, and daily expected.

By Letters from Fort Bedford, it ſeems an Indian War is inevitable, and is actually begun on the Part of the Indians, and the white Inhabitants above the Allegany in general have fled from their habitations.

BOSTON, Auguſt 24.

Laſt Saturday General Mackay ſailed for London in the Brigantine commanded by Capt. Bartlett—Though the ſending the troops in this Town, conſidering the Errand they came on, was a Meaſure not founded in Reaſon, and as diſguſtful as unreaſonable: Juſtice however requires us to ſay, That General Mackay's Command of the troops has given univerſal Satisfaction; and with Pleaſure we take this Opportunity to acknowledge his Merit, both as a Gentleman and an Officer:—He was ſaluted from Caſtle-William with thirteen Guns.

In Capt. Bartlett alſo went Paſſengers Lieut. Col. Roberts, of the 65th, and ſeveral other Officers---The Command of the Troops now in this Town devolves upon Lieut Colonel Dalrymple.

Laſt Friday Trial was made of the Brigantine, RISING LIBERTY, belonging to JOHN HANCOCK, Eſq; and lately built by Mr. Walker, of this town.---At the Invitation of Mr. Hancock, a Number of Gentlemen, among whom were ſeveral of Diſtinction from the Southern colonies, embark'd early in the Morning in a Party of Pleaſure on board the Brig. On her Departure ſhe diſcharg'd a Round of Cannon, which was anſwered by three full cheers from a great Number of reſpectable Perſons on the Wharff---As they paſs'd the caſtle ſhe paid a Salute by another Diſcharge of cannon, which was genteely return'd; and the captain of the caſtle joining the Gentlemen on Board, ſhe preceeded into the Bay---An elegant Entertainment was ordered by Mr. Hancock; and the company having ſpent the Day in the moſt agreeable Scences of ſocial Pleaſure, which is ever diffuſive in ſuch a circle of warm Friends to LIBERTY, in the evening they return'd to town.---At their Landing, the cannon on board were again diſcharg'd, as a Mark of reſpect to the town; and a numerous croud of Spectators, with three hearty cheers, ſhouted a Welcome to the Gentlemen on ſhore—The Brig is juſt 92 tons burthen, is eſteemed a prime Sailer and in every reſpect does honor to the builder.

HARTFORD, Auguſt 28.

Laſt Wedneſday the Rev'd Mr. James Eells, Son to the Rev'd Mr. Eells of Middletown, was ordained to the paſtoral Office, over the Church and Congregation in Eaſtbury. The Rev. Mr. Nath'. Eells of Stonington began with Prayer; the Rev. Edward Elles of Middletown preached a Sermon ſuitable to the Occaſion, from Prov. xi 30. "He that winneth Souls is wiſe." The Rev. Mr. Lockwood of Weathersfield prayed before the Charge; the Rev. Mr. Little of Colcheſter gave the Charge; the Rev. Mr. Norton of Chatham prayed after the Charge; and the Rev. Mr. Lockwood of Andover gave the Right Hand of Fellowſhip.—The whole was conducted with Decency and Propriety, in Preſence of a very numerous aſſembly convened on the Occaſion.

TO BE SOLD.

(Lying between the weſtern Branch of the River Delaware, and the eaſtermoſt Branch of the Suſquehannah)

20,000 Acres of Land

well proportioned with plow, meadow and paſture Land, with a Variety of Streams running through it, very commodious for the erecting Mills, &c. within about eight Miles of Schoharrey, 40 of Albany, and 40 of the Kaats Kills. Any Perſon inclining to ſettle on the above Lands, may apply to the Subſcriber in Eaſt Windſor (who intends ſoon to remove and ſettle on the ſame) who will ſell on the moſt reaſonable Terms, and give good Warrantee Deeds to the Purchaſers.

JOHN HARPER, jun.

Eaſt Windſor, Auguſt 26, 1769. 7w45

Next Wedneſday will be publiſhed by the Printers hereof,

A PLAN of Exerciſe, ordered by the general aſſembly of this Colony in May laſt to be uſed by the Militia of the Colony of Connecticut, extracted from the plan of Diſcipline for the Norfolk Militia.

To be Sold by

George Wm Willis,

At his ſhop in Middletown, a [illegible] Aſſortment of DRUGGS and MEDICINES, [illegible] reaſonable terms. Likewiſe an aſſortment of Patented Medicines among which are

HILLS pectoral Balſom Honey, Squires grand Elixer, Turlington's Balſom of Life.—Bateman's Drops—Lockyers and Anderſons Pills—Britiſh Oil, &c. &c &c.

Alſo Spices of all kinds.

To be ſold on generous Terms,

About 30 Acres of improved Land in Goſhen, adjoining the north line of Litchfield & Albany Road, whereon is a fine Orchard, and a large Houſe and Barn, a good Well, &c lately improved by Lieut. Ebenezer Hill, whereof a good Title, and immediate Poſſeſſion may be had of

JEDEDIAH STRONG.

Litchfield, March 22, 1769.

J. Morton,

At his Store in Hartford, on the North ſide the Green in the Houſe of Mrs. Sarah Edwards,

HAS a good Aſſortment of Dry Goods, Iron-Mongery, Earthen Ware, Glaſs Ware, and beſt London Pewter, blown and Rock Salt.

N. B. Said Morton intending for Europe, in the Fall, will ſell off what goods he has on hand, very low for Caſh or Produce.

WHEREAS the Subſcriber did give to Matthias Kelſey, of Saliſbury three notes of hand bearing date April 3d, 1769. 1 note value £. 18 Lawful Money, 2 notes £. 11 3, notes £. 10 ſome ſhillings, which notes was given upon certain conditions which are void. THESE are therefore to forbid all perſons from purchaſing ſaid notes as I utterly refuſe the payment of any of them, as witneſs my hand. July 27 1769.

4 p HARMANUS KNICKERBACKER.

New York, March 69 17 9.

PROPOSALS,

For PRINTING by SUBSCRIPTION,

ESSAYS

ON The Origin, Hiſtory, Language, Religion, and religious Rites, Prieſts or Magi, Cuſtoms Civil Policy, Methods of declaring and carrying on War and of making Peace, Military Laws, Agriculture, Buildings, Exerciſes, Sports, Marriage and Funeral Ceremonies, Habits Diet, Temper, Manners &c. Of the INDIANS on the Continent of North-America. Particularly of the ſeveral Nations or Tribes of Catawbas Cherokees, Creeks, Chickeſaws, and Choctaws, habiting the, Weſtern Parts of the Colonies of Virginia North and South Carolina, and Georgia.

ALSO

Some account of the Deſcription of uncommon Animals, &c.

Interſperſed with Uſeful Obſervations relating to the Advantages ariſing to Britain from her Trade with thoſe Indians; of the beſt Methods of managing them, and of conciliating their affections and thereby extending the ſaid Trade: Alſo ſeveral intereſting Anecdotes. Collected in a Reſidence of the greater Part of 33 Years among the Indians themſelves.

By JAMES ADAIR,

CONDITIONS:

The Work will be comprifed in two Octavo Vols. and be put to the Preſs in London as ſoon as ſufficient Number of Subſcriptions are obtained, and will be printed on a good Paper, with a Letter entirely new.

The Price to Subſcribers will be two Spaniſh Dollars, to be paid at the Delivery of the Books, ſewed in blue Paper.

Subſcriptions are taken in at the Printing-Office in Hartford.

Jonathan Brown,

COACH and Harneſs maker, takes this opportunity to inform the Public, that he is much obliged to them for thoſe kindneſſes ſhown him, on account of his former Advertiſement, and as he has a compleat ſet of hands, calculated, for the different branches of his buſineſs, is able to afford equal ſatiſfaction to thoſe gentlemen who are kind enough to continue their cuſtom, and will diſpoſe of his Carriages on theſe terms, viz Neat plain Chairs, at £. 17 10 0 ditto with tops, at £. 22 0 0 and all other Carriages in proportion, at his ſhop near the Great-Bridge in Hartford.

LATHROP & SMITH,

DRUGGISTS and APOTHECARIES in Hartford.

HAVE juſt received from London a freſh aſſortment of Drugs and Medicines among which are moſt of the Patented Medicines (imported directly from the original Patentees or their aſſignees) genuine Terra Foliata Tartari—the famous Hoffmans Neutral Salt—All ſorts of Spices and other articles belonging to their profeſſion. All which are to be ſold upon reaſonable terms

Caſh and Weſt-India Goods to be given for Pot-Aſh that is merchantable and good by ſaid Lathrop & Smith

Hartford, 7th Auguſt, 1769 6 m

JAMES JEPSON,

Tin-Plate Worker, at his Shop oppoſite the North-End of the Court-Houſe in Hartford,

MAKES and ſells all Kinds of Work in that Way, at the cheapeſt Rates —— Any Trader, or Shop Keeper, that will take their Supplies of him, he will charge them as low as can be procured in New York or Boſton.

☞ Said JEPSON has to diſpoſe of an excellent Pair of Pot-Aſh Kettles, that contain each about 65 Gallons, very low, for Caſh or Produce np

Auguſt 7 1769

NICHOLAS BROWN,

Chaiſe Maker, near the North Meeting-Houſe in Hartford, makes and ſells all ſorts of Chaiſes, and other riding Carriages, in the neweſt and beſt faſhion, viz.

HANDSOME plain chairs, at £. 13 10 0 ditto with tops, at £. 15 10 0 And all other ſorts of Carriages in the ſame proportion, which is cheaper than Carriages of the like goodneſs can be purchaſed in Boſton or New York; and will receive the pay in money, or in produce, at money price.

Alſo, ſaid Brown hath on hand, and which he will diſpoſe of very cheap, for the ſame pay, three ſecond Hand Chairs with tops and one new Sulkey which is very convenient for a ſingle man to ride in. Any gentlemen that will be ſo good as to favour him with their Cuſtom, may depend on being uſed well, and having their work done in the beſt manner, and with the greateſt diſpatch

HARTFORD:

Printed by GREEN & WATSON,

BROKE out of the County Goal in Hartford, laſt night, the following perſons, committed for debt viz. David Colburn of Stafford, John Karr & Noadiah Bivens, of Chatham, Richard Allwright, of Middletown, and Hezekiah Blin, of Weathersfield. Alſo Michael Sutliff a tranſient perſon, laſt from Suffield, committed for ſome criminal conduct. Whoever ſhall take up either of the abovementioned perſons, and return them to the keeper of the Goal in Hartford, ſhall have TWENTY SHILLINGS Lawful Money Reward, for each, and all neceſſary Charges paid, by

EZEKIEL WILLIAMS, Sheriff.

Hartford, Auguſt 9. 1769.

CHARLES-TOWN, S Carolina, June 29.

We are informed that Governor Pownal, lately moved the Houſe of Commons to appoint an early Day for going into a Committee to conſider of the late act for impoſing Duties on Paper &c mentioning that he had certain reſolutions to offer in the Committee, if his motion was agreed to, the purport of which were. "That the ſaid Duties tended "to obſtruct the vent of Britiſh Manufactures "in the Colonies and to render them leſs "uſeful and beneficial to Great Britain; That "the Intent of the ſaid act, being to raiſe a "Revenue, had not been found to anſwer, "and therefore, that ſo much of the ſaid act "as impoſed the ſeveral Duties therein mentioned ought to be repealed upon commercial Principles alone." That on all Sides of the Houſe it was thought too late in the Seſſion, to agitate the Queſtion of a Repeal of any part of that act and ſeemed very much the Senſe of the Houſe to be improper to go upon it in the preſent Exigency of affairs. And that therefore, as it might tend much to heal and quiet the Minds of the People in America, General Conway propoſed to the Conſideration of the Houſe coming into a Reſolution, declaring, that it might be proper to go into a Committee in the next Seſſion of Parliament, to reviſe and conſider the ſaid acts; by which America would ſee, that the Houſe was diſpoſed to attend to the Complaints of the Colonies when coming before them unaccompanied with Circumſtances either of Intimidation from Reſolutions of not importing Britiſh Manufactures or Oppoſition and Obſtructions to the Officers of Government there. That this ſeemed to expreſs the Opinions of ſome miniſteral Gentlemen; but the reſt of the Miniſtry would not bind themſelves, and therefore declined coming into ſuch a Reſolution. That, upon the Principle of that Suppoſition, as it was thought it might be of ſome ſervice to be underſtood in America, that (if no material Circumſtances ſhould in the mean Time occur to render it improper) the houſe would be moved to take up the Conſideration of the ſaid Act: And that Sir William Meredith had declared, that he would certainly trouble the Houſe with ſuch a Motion, in the next Seſſion of Parliament, in which Manner the Debates went off, upon Mr Pownall's Motion.

July 6. Upon examining the Imports of NEGROES, from the Year 1756 to 1766, it appears, that 23 744 were brought into this Province in that Period; the Medium of which is 2374 a Year; but in the laſt of thoſe Year I taken off (when 0701 were poured in upon us, on account of the high Duty that was to take Place the Year followig, and which did put an entire Stop to the Importation till laſt January) the Medium is then only 1894. From the 1ſt of Jaunary laſt to the 1ſt Inſtant, no leſs then 4233 have been imported, and near as many more hear, are expected, before the cloſe of the Year, notwithſtanding ſeveral Veſſels that were intended here, have met, and will meet with orders in the Weſt Indies, to ſell there

---

MONDAY, SEPT. 4, 1769. Numb. 246.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign, and Domeſtick.

B O S T O N, JULY 8.

JOURNAL of OCCURRENCES, continued.

WE have frequently had Occaſion to obſerve and point out the Impolicy, not to ſay Injuſtice of the late acts for raiſing a Revenue in America; when this is diſcerned by thoſe who have the Lead in Adminiſtration, it may perhaps be too late to apply a Remedy for a cure of thoſe Diſorders which their Raſhneſs has occaſioned.——The Duties laid upon Paper, by the late Revenue acts, has ſerved as a Bounty to encourage our Paper Manufactures; thoſe rags and Materials of which Paper is compoſed, are now carefully ſaved from the Fire and Dunghill,—the Period cannot be very diſtant, when we ſhall have little Occaſion to import that Manufacture, as we at preſent have thoſe of Sithes and other Implements of Husbandry, which are now made uſe of in preference to thoſe made in England.

A tax upon Painter's Colours, has ſet a whole Continent to explore their hills and Mountains in Conſequence of which we have diſcovered, and now actually make uſe of a red and yellow Ocre, ſuperior in Quality to what was imported from England.—Oil is extracted from our Flax-Seed, not only for our own Conſumption, but for Exports: white lead ſo neceſſary for the Painters, which it was imagined could not be obtained, has been made in Boſton, equal in goodneſs to the Britiſh; and if the faireſt proſpect ſhould not deceive, a mine of Lead, not far from Water Carriage, owned by a Gentleman of Property will quickly be worked to ſuch Advantage as to afford a full Supply of that article for all the Painters in America. Manufactures of Pipes, Delph Glaſs, Linen and Woolenwares are ſet and ſetting up in this Town, and while the Miniſters of the Britiſh Court are poſtponing a Repeal of the Revenue Acts and a redreſs of Grievances, until as they ſay it can be done conſiſtent with the Dignity of Government, and ſo as not to weaken the Supreme Authority of Parliament; Americans are laying a moſt ſolid Foundation for their future Grandeur & Felicity, by greatly increaſing their Growth of Hemp and Flax, and multiplying their Flocks of Sheep; Spining Schools are opened and filled with Learners in Boſton and other Parts of the Province. &c.——

JULY 17. We are informed that two Veſſels have lately arrived at Falmouth from Scotland, the Deſign of the Owners was to purchaſe their Cargo of Lumber, with Britiſh Manufactures, as had been uſually done but the Inhabitants of that Town, having came into the Agreement relative to Non importation of foreign Merchandize; The Loading of thoſe Veſſels could not be procured with any Thing but the Money.——The Colonies can ſupply themſelves with almoſt every neceſſary for wearing Apparel, the large Sums which Britain has annually drawn from us, ſhould be placed to the Account of our Luxury and Extravagance, rather than to our wants: were we but wiſe and frugal, Silver and Gold would ſoon flow in upon us, as pay for our Fiſh Oil, Lumber, and other Commodities, required at European Markets

From a late London Paper.

Extract of a letter form Boſton, Feb. 17.

"IN your laſt letter you ſeem to doubt of the number of people in the four provinces of N. England; I ſhall now endeavour to make it fully appear. The year before laſt, every town ſent in the numbers of their males from ſixteen years to ſixty, in order to be taxed, and the returns were eighty-five thouſand ſeven hundered, and there were fifty two towns that did not ſend in any account, becauſe they were not incorporated, ſome of which towns have one hundered, and others not more than fifty families, and many who were incorporated did not ſend in their full numbers, ſome families were ſo crafty in many towns they ſaved one forth part. Thoſe that are beſt acquainted with our numbers, ſay that we have more than 1 hundred & twenty thouſand from ſixteen to ſixty, and in the year 1732, we had in this province forty ſeven thouſand, by that rule we now muſt have that number. As for Connecticut, I heard ten years ago they had ſixty five thouſand. If you remember, in the time of the Stamp act, there were no Courts of Juſtice open for want of ſtamp-paper, then the people in the counties in Connecticut were numbered and entered into an aſſociation to keep good order, and there were more than ſeventy thouſand. I went to Caſco Bay the laſt Summer, and ſtopt at Portſmouth. I then made enquiry into the numbers, and found they exceeded 30,000; when I returned home, I went up to Londonderry, and made a further enquiry, and found they muſt exceed thirty-five thouſand; and it is allowed by all, that they have in Rode-Iſland government ſixteen thouſand.

The Maſſachuſetts, I ſet down no more than	100,000
New-Hampſhire	32 000
Connecticut	70 000
Rhode Iſland	16,000
	218 000
multiplied by	6
	1 308 000

You will ſee I have only multiplied the number of males, by ſix, I think they ſhould be multiplied by ſix and a half, or ſeven, in this healthy country. I was greatly ſurprized when I went to the weſtward the laſt fall, as far as Connecticut, and rode one hundred miles up the banks of the river, to find they encreaſed as faſt to the weſtward, as I found they did to the eaſtward. A great number of the towns that I paſſed thro' have one, but many two, three, four, and ſome five, pariſh churches; moſt families, after they have been married from ſixteen to twenty years, have from eight to twelve children. They Generally marry as ſoon as they are 21 years of age, and almoſt all before they are 25; the parents generally provide for them by purchaſing, or grants from Government. They give them a cow or two, a horſe, a yoke of oxen, and ſome ſwine. It is remarked, that thoſe who are induſtrious, provide themſelves with proviſions after the firſt year. Connecticut river, according to my obſervation, is parallel to the ſea coaſt about 100 miles from the entrance. It will ſoon be filled up, between that and the ſea, we have ſettled within 20 milies of Albany, beyond the river. They are carrying on large ſettlements on the eaſt ſide of Lake George and Champlain, and I am ſure it will ſurprize you when I ſay we are ſettled as far to the Eaſtward as St. Croix. The Captain of fort Pownal, who lives at Penobſcot ſays they have two thouſand men to the eaſtward of the fort; it fills very faſt from Caſco Bay to Penobſcott.

"We have hired two companies to lay out fiftytwo miles further to the northwards, one company goes to the eaſt, the other to the weſt ſide of the river. You will think it ſtrange, that the vegetation is fourteen days ſooner, eighty miles from the ſea, owing to a ridge of mountains to the north, and the goodneſs of ſoil. We had no more than 400 families ſixteen years ago on all our Kennebeck tract, and now it is made into a county, by the name of Lincoln; and by the laſt accounts, there are more than 10,000 men, from ſixteen to ſixty, including 2000 to the Eaſt of Penobſcott. This number is not all from natural encreaſe; there is a great number goes down every year from this and the neighbouring governments of New England. By this account you can form ſome idea of the growth of this country, and in thirty years you may hear of its being fully ſettled from Albany and the eaſt of the lakes to our ſea-coaſt. Thoſe that are ſettled in the neighbourhood of the lakes, the communication with Great Britain will be by St. Lawrence River. I wrote you word, that before 100 years were expired, we ſhould have as many people in the four governments of New-England, as you have in all Great Britain, and I believe you may put Ireland into the ſcale, and then it would be a ballance. I have made obſervations of our encreaſe, from the natural growth, and found in many towns they have doubled their own number in fourteen years: It is the opinion of many gentlemen in Connecticut, that they double in this time. However the calculation I made for you, ſuppoſes that they double once in eighteen years. I think his Majeſty and miniſters have been miſinformed, with regard to Connecticut river: they ſuppoſe it runs North, and have bounded New-York as far Eaſt as Connecticut River: the river runs eighty miles further than Caſcobay. When I was at Falmouth the laſt ſummer, they told me they propoſed cutting a road from their frontiers to Connecticut river. If New-York was bounded Eaſt by a north line, to begin at a particular ſpot, where it ſhall be moſt advantageous to this province, New-Hampſhire and New-York, and the bounds were juſtly aſcertained, it would prevent diſputes and ſhedding of blood, which was the caſe but a little while ago."

Juſt publiſhed, and to be ſold at the P. Office.

A PLAN of Exerciſe, ordered by the general aſſembly of this Colony in May laſt to be uſed by the Militia of the Colony of Connecticut, extracted from the plan of Diſcipline for the Norfolk Militia.

LONDON, June 6.

AMERICAN GRIEVANCES.

THE Middleſex petition having mentioned that grievances, ſimilar to thoſe of which this country complains, have been extended to America, ſuffer me, Sir, to ſpecify thoſe grievances to the public. You may depend on their being real, the facts on which they are grounded, with a full comment, ſhall ſoon be laid before the public.

Their Grievances are,

1. Raiſing a perpetual revenue, without the conſent of the people, or of their Repreſentatives, is violation of the ſacred and vitally-conſtitutional right of Repreſetation.

2. General Warrants, under which any officer or Servant in the Cuſtoms, may break open a man's houſe, cloſet, cheſt, &c. at his pleaſure.

3. Eſtabliſhing the arbitrary and oppreſſive powers of Exciſe in the Cuſtoms, by the appointment of Judges, during pleaſure, to try all revenue cauſes, without jury.

4. Compelling his Majeſty's ſubjects to trial, in all revenue matters, out of the reſpective Colonies.

5. A Secretary of State ſending a requiſition to the Aſſembly at Boſton, with threats, tending to force their determinations, which by the Conſtitution ought to be free.

6. Threatening & puniſhing the American Aſſemblies for attempting to petition the King, tho' the act of Settlement expreſsly ſecures this right, unlimited, to the ſubject.

7. Raiſing a revenue by prerogative, with other arbitrary impoſitions; being another violation of an expreſs article in the act of Settlement.

8. Miſapplication of the permanent revenue granted by ſeveral Aſſemblies in America for the ſupport of Government, and of the revenue granted by Act of Parliament.

9. Impowering the Crown to ſeize and ſend over to Britain, the American ſubject, without any legal indictment or bill found by jury.

10. Suſpending the legiſlative power of the Aſſembly of New-York, ſo as to deſtroy that freedom of debate & determination, which is a neceſſary, unalienable, and conſtitutional right of ſuch aſſemblies.

11. Quartering ſoldiers by violence in the town of Boſton, in defiance of an act of Parliament.

These, Sir, form the principal grievances under which America labours; grievances ſo atrocious, that to any one impreſſed with the leaſt ſenſe of liberty, they need only to be mentioned, that they may be felt and abhorred. At preſent I have this only to add, that they who have counſelled theſe oppreſſive meaſures may well tremble for the event, when they are reminded of its being an article in the impeachment of my Lord Clarendon, "That he had introduced an arbitrary government into his Majeſty's ſeveral plantations."

C. L.

PHILADELPHIA, Auguſt 17.

Extract of a Letter from St. Croix, June 8.

"The Packet from Copenhagen has bro't the worſt Decrees and Reſolves from thence that could be, both for North-Americans and the Inhabitants of this Iſland; they have prohibited the following articles being brought in any Engliſh Bottom, viz. Mahogony Ware of all Kinds, building and temper Lime, Iron Hoops and Hinges, Madeira Wine, Bermuda building ſtone, Tar, Pitch, Turpentine, all Kind of Chaiſes, Carts and Cart Wheels Salt, Oats, and Peas Chairs, Beds and Bedſteds, Cider, Skins, Cordage, Candles, Soap & Tallow, Horſe Beans, Medicines, Grotts of all Sorts, Twine, Lead, Oil, Vinegar, White Lead, and all ſorts of Paint, Grindſtones, Train Oil, Tongues and Ship Bread; ſo that you may ſee we have a Right to bring nothing here but Flour, Lumber, Fiſh, Pork, and Beef; on the two latter of which Article the Duty is 25 per Cent. And what is ſtill worſe, they have ſtopt all Permiſſions, unleſs it goes back by the ſame Bottom, and it is very ſeldom we can be able to do that; then, if we cannot take Rum, we have no way, but by Bills, to get our effects from hence; 'tis a very impolitic Act, as well as a very great Impoſition, and is done chiefly with a deſign of procuring Freight for their own Veſſels. It ſeems here juſt now, as it is in America, the Inhabitants, complaining in the ſame Manner we do; but they are worſe off yet, for if theſe Reſtrictions are carried into Execution, they cannot ſubſiſt, for without America they cannot live."

NEW-YORK, Auguſt 17.

Extract of a Letter from a gentleman in Philadelphia, to his Friend in this City, dated Auguſt 6.

"There was a very dreadfull Fire in this City laſt Night in Walnut Street, which burnt with the greateſt Fury I ever ſaw: It burnt quite through into Dock Street, and down to Second-Street: Five Houſes were intirely burnt down, and ſeveral others much damaged;——the houſes on the oppoſite Side of Walnut Street, were ſeveral times on Fire, but directly extinguiſhed:——The Wind blew a little freſh, and ſome of the Flakes were carried to the Maſons Lodge, which ſet it on Fire, but it was put out without damage. It happened at Low-water, ſo that there was no Water in Dock Street; and I really wonder that the whole City was not burnt down: for tho' there was many Engines, yet they could not work a great Part of the Time for want of Water, ſo that when they had played on it ſome Time, and got the Fire under, they would be obliged to ſtand ſtill a conſiderable Time for want of water, and then it would get up again as fierce as ever. If it had happened at York, under the ſame Circumſtances, I don't believe a ſecond Houſe would have been burnt; I really believe there were thouſands of People round the Fire, gaping at it, yet tho' an Attempt was made to ſupply the Engines from the River, for which End a Line was formed down Walnut Street, and People got into the River to dip Water, yet the d——'d unfeeling Wretches cou'd not be brought to form a ſecond Line, and half that Line which was compoſed of Women; and I really expected nothing leſs than to ſee the Four corners of the Streets on Fire together; but Providence favoured them, not their Aſſiduity. One Occurence I can't help mentioning, there was a little Wooden Houſe or Shed, the corner of Walnut and Second Street, upon which I dare ſay there were at leaſt Fifty Men had taken Seats, as orderly as at a play, it being an excellent Seat for Sight, their brethren below envying their Situation, begun to avail themſelves of ſuch a convenient Seat, and accordingly it was ſoon entirely covered, but they ſtill kept crowding upon it, till it tumbled in with them, and I was very ſorry that none of them broke their Necks. —I have been very particular in the account, as I ſuppoſe the next News-Papers will conclude the account with, "but owing to the "Expertneſs of the Firemen, and the Aſſiduity of the inhabitants, it was happily got "under, without further Damage;" and to give the Firemen their Due, they behav'd with the greateſt Reſolution and Dexterity. It was happily got under by about 2 o'clock, but the Engines were kept there till about 9 o'clock this Morning."

HARTFORD, Sep. 4.

Some few Obſervations, made in this Town, reſpecting the COMET lately appearing in our Hemiſphere, as far as could be, conſiſtent with the Impediment of intervening Clouds and Miſts, are here offer'd to the Public for the preſent; with hopes of ſome fairer Opportunity for more accurate Obſervations, viz.

On Wedneſday, Aug. 30, 3 o'Clock Morning.
Comets Long. 2° Deg. in Gemini.
——— Lat. 9° South.
———Right-Aſcention, 61°
———Declination, 12° North.
—Time of Culmination 5 H. 32M.
—Meridian Altitude, 59°
About 15 Deg. from the Pleiades, or 7*'s and 5 from Aldebaran, or the Bull's left Eye.

Thurſday, Aug. 31, 1 o'Clock Mor.
———Long. 5° in Gemini.
———Lat. 11° 30 Min.
——Right-Aſcention, 66°
——Declination 9. Deg 30M. Nor.
—Time of Culmination 5 H. 44 M.
—Meridian Altitude 57° 30 Min.

The Parts of the Earth to which it is vertical in its diurnal Courſe, are the Philippine Iſlands and the ſouth Border of the Moguls Empire in Aſia; Ethiopian and Guinea in Africa; and near Panama, in the Iſthmus of Mexico in America.

To be Sold by

George Wm. Willis,

At his ſhop in Middletown, a neat aſſortment of DRUGGS and MEDICINES, on reaſonable terms. Likewiſe an aſſortment of Patented Medicines among which are

HILLS pectoral Balſom Honey, Squires grand Elixer, Turlington's Balſom of Life.—Bateman's Drops—Lockyers and Andersons Pills—British Oil, &c. &c. &c.

Alſo Spices of all kinds.

To be ſold on generous Terms,

About 30 Acres of improved Land in Goſhen, adjoining the north line of Litchfield & Albany Road, whereon is a fine Orchard, and a large Houſe and Barn, a good Well, &c lately improved by Lieut. Ebenezer Hill, whereof a good Title, and immediate Poſſeſſion may be had of

JEDEDIAH STRONG.

Litchſield, March 22. 1769.

J. Morton,

At his Store in Hartford, on the North ſide the Green in the Houſe of Mrs. Sarah Edwards,

HAS a good Aſſortment of Dry Goods, Iron-Mongery, Earthen Ware, Glaſs Ware, and beſt London Pewter, blown and Rock Salt

N. B. Said Morton intending for Europe, in the Fall, will ſell off what goods he has on hand, very low for Caſh or Produce.

LATHROP, & SMITH,

DRUGGISTS and APOTHECARIES in Hartford.

HAVE juſt received from London a freſh aſſortment of Drugs and Medicines among which are moſt of the Patented Medicines (imported directly from the original Patentees or their aſſignees) genuine Terra Foliata Tartari—the famous Hoffmans Neutral Salt—All ſorts of Spices and other articles belonging to their profeſſion. All which are to be ſold upon reaſonable terms.

Caſh and Weſt-India Goods to be given for Pot-Aſh that is merchantable and good by ſaid Lathrop & Smith

Hartford, 7th Auguſt, 1769. 6m

New Advertiſements.

Pet. Verſtille,

(At his Store in Weathersfield)

Has juſt received a Quantity of GOODS and will ſell them at the very lowest prices for Caſh only VIZ.

- BROAD Cloths,
- Ratteens,
- Coatings,
- Duffles,
- Kerſeys,
- Half Thicks,
- Serges,
- Sagathy's,
- Duroys,
- Bozes,
- Shalloons,
- Tammy's,
- Durants & Calamancos
- Camblets,
- Plain & figur'd Cambleteens,
- Dorſeteens,
- Hungarian Stuffs
- Poplins
- Miffinets
- Dreſdinets
- Grezetts
- Green Blue Brown & Yallow Brollines
- Black Silk
- Crapes
- Black Bombazines
- Black and Cloth colour'd Drawboys
- Brown and Olive colour'd Fuſtians
- Brown and white Stay Buckrams
- Black figur'd Laſtings
- Cotton Checks of all widths
- Red & white & blue & white ſtript Hollands
- Pelong Sattins of moſt colours
- Saſinetts ſorted colours
- Sheer & thick Muſlins
- Cambricks
- Lawns
- Black and white Catgut
- Black and white Parſenetts
- Black and white plain gauze
- Black & white figur'd ditto
- Black and Crimſon Capuchine Silks
- Mens and Womens leather Gloves and Mittens of all colours
- Womens Silk & worſted Gloves & Mitts
- 3 4 & 7 8 bed ticking
- A fine aſſortment of Chints & Callicoes
- Black and colour'd Barcelona handkerchiefs
- Gauze Linnin & Silk ditto
- Black Cravatts
- Black and ſcarlet Snail Trimmings
- Head flowers
- Neclaces & Ribbons
- Silver tipits & turbands
- Cap Wiers Velvet Maſks
- Sattin hats & bonnets
- Black cloth colours & changeable luteſtrings
- Black & cloth colour'd Taffity's
- Martinico luteſtrings
- Silk & cotton dit.
- Paddleſticks & other fans
- Damaſcus & Soſeas for waiſtcoats
- Black & white Laces
- Silk ſtay ditto
- Mens hemp gloves
- Dowlas Garlix and Hollands
- Beſt Warranted Linnen ſhoes
- Ruſſia linnins & Diapers
- White figur'd Dimothy's
- Mens and Womens thread cotton and worſted hoſe
- Black blue purple & cloth colour'd breeches Patterns
- Mens and boys caſtor and felt Hats
- Flower'd lawn & Kenting Handkerchiefs
- Ferrits & Galloons
- Shoe & quality binding
- Horn Mettle & Twiſt Buttons
- Sewing ſilk cruels & ſilk twiſt
- Horn & Ivory Combs
- Tapes Pins Needles
- Writing & preſs paper
- Paper hangings for rooms
- Looking Glaſſes
- Chaiſe and hunting whips
- Muffs and Tippitts
- Beſt G. B. wool cards
- Cotton wool
- Pewter & Braſs
- Knives & Forks
- Shoe and knee buckles
- Penknives Bellows
- Nails
- with an aſſortment of Hard Ware
- Beſt of Kippens and Tillocks Snuff
- Beſt Bohea Tea
- Coffe
- Chocolate
- Pepper Allſpice
- Nutmegs Cloves
- Cinnamon
- Ginger Allum
- Coperas Brimſtone
- Redwood Logwood
- Rice, &c. &c &c.

TOMLINSON AND HUNTINGTON,

of Woodbury,

Have juſt imported from LONDON, a general aſſortment of Drugs and Medicines, among which are,

BALſom of Gilead Liquid, Storax, many of the Patented Medicines, ſpices. Sago, &c. &c. which will be ſold on good terms to the purchaſer.

Aug. 29 1769.

Strayed or STOLEN

From the ſubſcriber of Weathersfield, the 24 Aug. laſt, a Sorrel Mare, about 13 hands high both paces and trots, branded with W. on the left ſhoulder, and A. on her left thigh, very thick ſet a white ſtar in her face whoever ſhall take up ſaid Mare and return her to the owner or ſecure her ſo that he may have her again ſhall be reaſonably rewarded and if ſtole, and the thief taken and bro't to juſtice Five Dollars Reward will be given and all reaſonable charges paid by

JOSEPH RICHARDS, jun.

Weathersfield, Sept. 1. 1769.

To be ſold at Public

Vendue the 2d day of Octo. next, at the houſe of Capt. Timothy Seymour of Weſt-Hartford, at two o'Clock afternoon (or at private ſale any time before)

A Farm of Land containing about 60 acres, all under good improvements about 25 acres of choice Mowing land, the reſt well proportion'd into plow and paſturing Land, with a good orchard and butting on a river, whereon is now ſtanding a good new dwelling houſe about 40 feet long and 30 feet wide well finiſhed with a good barn and out houſes and a good well, within 3 quarters of a mile of the meeting houſe.

LIkewiſe to be ſold at the ſame time and place a dwelling houſe, barn and outhouſes, and about 9 acres of good land with a good orchard half a mile from the Meeting houſe very convenient for a tradeſman—for terms of ſale enquire of

EZEKIEL WILLIAMS.

Hartford Sept. 4 1769

Eaſt-Hartford, Sept. 4 1769.

Stolen from the Subſcriber

of Eaſt-Hartford, on the night after the 26th inſt. a ſmal Silver Watch, with a china face, and a ſteel chain, and ſeal, the perſon who ſtole it, was one Stephen Burnham born in Eaſt Hartford about 5 feet 10 inches high, ſwarthy complexion, thin face, wears his own curl'd dark buſhy hair, had on a blue waiſtcoat with ſleves, and a brown veſt longer, than the outſide jacket, check'd linnen ſhirt, white thread ſtockings the feet worn out, new calf ſkin ſhoes bound round the top, round pinchback buckles, and an old caſtor hat. Whoever will take up the above thief, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's goals, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice, and the watch recover'd ſhall have Two Dollars reward and all neceſſary charges paid by.

JOHN RAYNOLDS.

NEW-YORK, Aug. 31.

We hear his Excellency our governor has been pleaſed to pardon John Hennesy, the unhappy criminal, who was to have been executed laſt Wedneſday, for Robbing St. Paul's Church, in this City.——John Jubeart, for making and paſſing counterfeit Dollars, who was reſpited, is, we hear, to be executed on Wedneſday the 6th Inſt.

We hear from Shrewſbury, that about a Fortnight ago, one Carrol, of that Place, a Silver-Smith, was committed to Goal and ſtill remains there, for debauching his own Daughter, a Girl not 15 Years of age who has ſworn that ſhe is with child by him, & that this deteſtable commerce has ſubſiſted for above two Years.

On Monday night laſt,——Colliſon, one of the Albany Poſt Riders, coming late to his Lodgings, at the Houſe of Mr. Johnſon, Tavern-Keeper, near the Friend's Meeting Houſe in this city, and ſuppoſed to be in drink, after going to an upper Room, attempted to go down again and fell from the Top to the Bottom of the Stairs, whereby he was ſo much hurt that he died in an Hour or two, without ſpeaking a word; ſeveral Doctors and Surgeons were called to his Aſſiſtance immediately after the Accident.

On Sunday Night, and not before that we have heard, was diſcover'd a very remarkable Comet, about 10 Degrees from, and to the S. E. of the 7 Stars. The Sky here has been ſomewhat hazy ever ſince, ſo that we have not yet had a clear View of it, tho' it has been obſerved each Night ſince. The Body of the Comet appear'd as if involved in a Miſt, ſo that it could not be diſtinctly ſeen, but appear'd to be about as large as a Star of the third Magnitude; the Tail, which pointed W. by S. ſeem'd a pale thin Vapour, almoſt tranſparent, and extending a faint light above 10 Deg. in length, being an extent of ſky about as much as a ſtick of 12 inches, held at arms length would hide from the eye. This being it is tho't the greateſt Comet that has appear'd for near an hundred years paſt, will be an object of great Curioſity, & we hope ſhortly to have full and accurate accounts of it.

BOSTON, Auguſt 31.

We hear that a perſon in Salem wrote to one of the importers in this town for ſix cheſts of Tea, with particular Directions to order the Coaſter by whom they were ſhipped to land them at Salem in the Night time. Application was accordingly made, but the Coaſter nobly diſdain'd being the Inſtrument of ſuch villainy. It is hoped our brethren in Salem will exert themſelves to prevent the patriotic Agreement of the Merchants being eluded by ſuch infamous Methods.

From the GENERAL EVENING POST.

AS I have generally had the reputation of being uſeful and benificial wherever I have been admitted, and ſuffered to exert my influence; give me leave, Sir, thro' your paper (where I appear as often as in any other) to propoſe myſelf a candidate for ſeat in Parliament. The reaſon of my thus publicly ſoliciting for it is, becauſe I have privately applied for an Employment in the Adminiſtration in vain.

Many of thoſe to whom I have occaſionally communicated my intentions, received me with a diſtant, ſhy kind of compliaiſence, and told me they had not the honour of knowing me. They alſo indicated that I was generally looked at as a queer, old faſhioned fellow, and that my appearance was too ruſtic for a Court; that I muſt ſubmit to be new modelled, and bear a nearer reſemblance to the French nation before I ſhould meet with any encouragement from thoſe who had the diſpoſal of ſuch places. I told them, I had been particularly intimate with his late Majeſty, during his reign, and filled many ſtations of great truſt and importance, to the general ſatisfaction of all ranks in the Kingdom. To this they anſwered, that it might be ſo, but as moſt of thoſe who had been intimate with me were either dead or had ſince been diſcharged from public employments, there was very little probability of my ſucceſs at preſent. I then informed them I was well known to his ———, who had given me a very kind reception on his——to the—, 'till a northern enemy of mine endeavoured to prejudice him againſt me; and that I doubted not but he would gladly ſee me re eſtabliſhed in my former employments. To this they replied, that my intimacy with——— would tend to overturn and fruſtrate many ſchemes, which they had been long forming, and leſſen themſelves in the — —— eſtimation. Therefore they adviſed me to think no more of my viſionary ſchemes, but by all means to keep out of the palace, and retire quietly to ſome of my eſtates in the country, leſt I ſhould be apprehended by a general warrant, and ſent to the King's Bench priſon; for they thought me a very improper perſon to be employed in the preſent Adminiſtration. They further added, that if, in oppoſition to their advice, I ſhould attempt to gain a ſeat in the H——e of Commons, they would oppoſe me with all the weight of miniſterial influence; and if, notwithſtanding this, I ſhould be choſe by a large majority of voices, they would expel me thence, as one diſqualified to ſit in the great Council of the nation.

On receiving this unexpected reception at C—t, I went to Hayes, intending to pay a viſit to my intimate friend and brother, Mr. P—t, but on my arrival, was told that he was dead, and that his death was occaſioned by taking too large a doſe of the Aurum Potabile, about four years ſince; and the houſe was now inhabited by one L——d C——m. I then ſent in my name by the footman, and requeſted his Lordſhip would give me admittance. The fellow ſoon returned and told me, with a ſarcaſtic grin, that his Lordſhip neither knew me, nor would have any thing to do with me. Chagrined at this inſult, I departed, and reſolving never to enter his houſe again, I retired to my lodgings at Mile-End, under ſome diſcompoſure of mind? What, ſaid I, muſt I be diſcarded by all, at a ſeaſon when my aſſiſtance would be of the greateſt ſervice to my country? Muſt I leave my paternal, and retire to my friends in America! or ſhall I once more endeavour to reinſtate myſelf in a land, where I have always been revered 'till the preſent time? I will yet make another effort to ſave this ſinking country, and ſee whether the influence of my avowed enemies, is able to exterminate me from the lower ranks of the people.

With this reſolution I take the liberty of thus addreſſing my country-men, and requeſt, for their own ſakes, that at the next vacancy I may be ſupported and elected a Member of the Houſe of Commons; there I truſt I ſhall find who will liſten to my propoſals and ſupport my meaſures. If you are ſo fortunate as to chuſe me, it ſhall be my unceaſing care to propoſe and enforce ſuch meaſures as will effectually reſtore that happineſs and unanimity, which for want of my aſſiſtance, you have been too long deprived of. I have a potent ſpecific to apply for every public grievance; which (tho' it may be looked upon as an antiquated noſtrum by the new State Empirics) will prove more beneficial than all the modern quackery that has procured ſo many titles ſinecures, and ſuch immenſe fortunes, to numbers with whom I am not in the leaſt acquainted.

To ſum up all in a few words, I can reſtrain the graſp of Arbitrary Power, and defeat its ends—quench the flame of faction, and huſh the voice of ſlander and diſcontent into ſilence—relieve the oppreſſed —reſtore juſtice to her ancient ſeat, and gradually pay off the national debt without oppreſſing the ſubject.————All theſe things I give my word and honor to effect, if I am admitted to have a ſhare and influence in public employment. Poſſeſſed of theſe powers, is it not aſtoniſhing that I have been ſo long neglected? Will it not be ſtill more aſtoniſhing, if I am not now called into action?

I am Sir,
Your old friend and acquaintance,
COMMON SENSE.

Extract of the NORTH-BRITAIN, Numb. CVIII. publiſhed May 20. 1769. which contains ſome curious remarks upon a late ſpeech;—that part which relates to North-America is here inſerted for the entertainment of our readers——

"AN abſolute Prince always ſpeaks his own ſentiments; a limitted Prince, the ſentiments of his miniſters. It has ever been held a maxim in the Engliſh conſtitution that the King can do no wrong; and it ought equally to be held a maxim, that he can aſſert no falſhoods. Whatever falſhoods therefore, may happen to find a peace in ſpeeches from the throne, they ought, in all conſcience, to be charged upon the miniſter. There is no act of Government, I mean of the executive part of the government, for which the miniſter may not be called to account; and it ſhould ſeem to follow, by parity of reaſon, that there is no word, which the Sovereign utters in his public capacity, for which the miniſter is not as juſtly accountable, I ſhall therefore conſider a late famous ſpeech, not as the ſpeech of the miniſter. I will indeed allow, that every part of this ſpeech is ſtrictly true, ſo far as it relates to the Prince, but I will at the ſame time be bold to affirm, that many parts are abſolutely falſe, ſo far as they relate to the miniſter.——— In this ſpeech it is ſaid.

"The meaſures, which I had taken regard-" ing the late unhappy diſturbances in North-" America have been already laid before you." Theſe diſturbances owe their riſe to the miniſtry, not to the Americans. The meaſures that have been taken to oppoſe them are but too well known. The Americans are now groaning under all the horors of a military government; and nothing but the terrors of ſuch a government could oblige them to ſubmit to the unconſtitutional taxes we have impoſed upon them: And to talk of tranquillity being reſtored in America, is juſt as good ſenſe as it would be to talk of an angry man's being pacified, when his mouth was gagged, and his feet and hands ſhackled.— " They" (that is, theſe meaſures) " have received your approbation." It matters not whoſe approbation they have received. The approbation of no man, nor of no body of men, can ever alter the nature of things, or render thoſe ſteps wiſe or ſalutary, which are evidently weak or pernicious.—" And aſſured " me of your firm ſupport in the proſecution of them." They would have done better, had they adviſed the miniſter to deſiſt from the proſecution of them, as, ſhould he perſiſt in it, we ſhall certainly loſe entirely, as we have already conſiderably alienated, the affections of our American colonies; by which means we ſhall not only be deprived of a branch of trade, equal, perhaps, to all the other branches of it put together; but ſhall likewiſe be expoſed to the additional calamity of being obliged to maintain a military force to keep thoſe people in awe, who, inſtead of contributing to alleviate our burthens, will hang like a dead weight upon us, and will greedily lay hold of the firſt favourable opportunity to throw off their dependence.—" Nothing, in my opini-" on, could be more likely to enable the well " diſpoſed among My ſubjects, in that part " of the world, effectually to diſcourage and " defeat the deſigns of the factions and ſedi-" tions," &c. Ecce iterum Criſpinus! Facious and ſeditious! The very words, which one of your correſpondents noted and condemned in the ſpeech delivered at the opening of the ſeſſion. Theſe words, I am afraid, will henceforth become as peculiarly appropriated to ſpeeches from the throne, as the words moſt gracious uſed formerly to be.

But nothing ſure can be more impolitic than ſuch a conduct. It can never be the intereſt of a Prince, whatever it may of a miniſter, to ſtigmatize any of his ſubjects with opprobrious names. Hard words will rather exaſperate than ſoften thoſe, who are already diſſatisfied. If animoſities and diviſions prevail in the Kingdom, concerning the management of public affairs, or the conduct of miniſters, a Prince ſhould never ſuffer himſelf to be made a party in them, or ſuppoſe himſelf affected by them; but endeavour to conciliate the minds of all his people by gentle expreſſions, and an outward appearance, at leaſt, of neutrality. Much leſs can it ever be conſiſtent with the maxims of prudence to drop the moſt diſtant hint that he looks on a great part of his ſubjects as diſaffected to his perſon and government. But our preſent miniſters, like ſome of their predeceſſors, make no ſcruple of ſacrificing the intereſt of their Prince to their own private advantage.

What influence ſuch ſpeeches have upon the minds of the people, is more eaſily conceived than expreſſed. King Charles the firſt delivered ſuch a ſpeech on diſſolving the parliament in 1628; and the fatal effects, with which it was attended, are known to every one in the leaſt acquanted with hiſtory.—

TO BE SOLD.
(Lying between the weſtern Branch of the River Delaware, and the eaſtermoſt Branch of the Suſquehannah)

20,000 Acres of Land

well proportioned with plow, meadow and paſture Land, with a Variety of Streams running through it, very commodious for the erecting Mills, &c. within about eight Miles of Schoharrey, 40 of Albany, and 40 of the Koats Kills. Any Perſon inclining to ſettle on the above Lands, may apply to the Subſcriber in Eaſt-Windſor (who intends ſoon to remove and ſettle on the ſame) who will ſell on the moſt reaſonable Terms, and give good Warrantee Deeds to the Purchaſers.

JOHN HARPER, jun.
Eaſt-Windſor, Auguſt 26. 1769. 7w45

HARTFORD:
Printed by GREEN & WATSON.

MONDAY, Sept. 11, 1769.

Numb. 247.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

HARTFORD, Sept. 11.

Obſervations reſpecting the COMET, continued.

Monday Sep. 4. 1 o'Clock Morn.

	Deg.	Min.
Comets Long. in Gemini.	18	00
——Latitude South.	16	30
——Right-Aſcention.	77	00
——Declination North.	6	15
——Time of Culmin^{n}.	6 H.	34
——Meridian Altitude.	54	00

It's Poſition is nearly ½ Deg. from the Star in Orions left Shoulder, & about 8 Deg. from that in his right; with which and the uppermoſt of the three in his Girdle compleating a Triangle nearly Equilateral.

The NUCLEUS or body of the Comet appears in bigneſs about equal to that of a Star of the 3d Magnitude.

The Tail (which in all Comets are in a Direction nearly oppoſite to the Sun) intercepts an Arch of the Hemiſphere of about 26 Degrees.

Tueſday Sept. 5, 1 o'Clock Morn.

	Deg.	Min.
——Long. in Gemini.	22	30
——Lat. South.	18	30
——Declination North.	4	50
——Time of Culminat.	6 h.	38 m.
——Meridian Altitude.	52	50

Wedneſday Sep. 6, 1 o'Clock Mor.

	Deg.	Min.
——Long. in Gemini.	25	45
——Lat. South.	19	15
——Right-Aſcention.	86	00
——Declination North.	3	45
——Time of Culminat.	6 h.	46 m.
——Meridian Altitude.	51	45
——Angle of Elongation from the Sun about	90	00
——Aſcentional-Difference of the Comet and Sun	79	00

Which Aſcentional difference being reduced to time is equal to 5 hours and 16 min. So that the Sun is behind the Comet 79 Deg. or 5 h. 16 m. (i. e.) comes to the Meridian ſo much later.

The alterations diſcoverable for ſeveral nights paſt in the PHASES, either of the Nucleus or its tail ſeem to have been no other than what might be occaſioned by the different ſtate of our Atmoſphere, or of the Medium through which they have been view'd.

REMARKS, &c.

BY reaſon that the firſt diſcovery of this Comet did not happen till ſome time after its Deſcending Node, or till after it had croſ'd the Ecliptic from a Northern to a Southern Latitude (which might be owing to nothing more than the great profuſion of Lunar Rays into which it being then immers'd, it's more feeble and diſtinguiſhing luſtre was not diſcernable) it is much more difficult to aſcertain with preciſion either, the time of the node; the point of interſection; or the Angle it forms with the Ecliptic. 'Tis pretty certain, however, from its late apparent courſe, that this happened about the 25 or 26 of Auguſt; and that this point of interſection was ſomewhere in TAURUS, perhaps not far diſtant from about the middle of that ſign[]; & that the Angle it makes with the Ecliptic, in its apparent* Geocentric courſe, or its trajectory track over the ball of this earth contains nearly about 30 Deg 'Tis obſervable that the apparent courſe it has generally purſued ſince its leaving the Node has been nearly rectilineal; tho' during the laſt 24 hours has ſeem'd to recline ſomething to the left hand & run more parallel with the Equator.

'Tis evident from the above Obſervations, that it is now near the Equinoctial, and that if it ſhould continue to perſevere in the ſame apparent Direction it has generally purſued ſince it croſ'd the Ecliptic, it would in a ſhort time interſect the Equator, making therewith an Angle perhaps of about 35 Deg. increaſing in its right Aſcention, and its Declination ſouth, in ſuch a Manner, that to thoſe to whom it is vertical, dwelling in the Zenith of a Hemiſphere rightly poſited, or in recta poſitione, (which can agree to none but thoſe who dwell on the Equator) it would in its trajectory paſs over the ſtarry Concave, appear to move in a line of Direction perhaps from about N W by W. to S E by E. and with ſuch an apparent Velocity, as in the Space of 24 hours to alter its place in the Heavens (along upon the arch of a great circle it ſeems there to deſcribe) about 4 and half Deg or about 1-6 part of the length of its tail At the rate it has moved for ſeveral days paſt.

Further obſervations might conduce to a more perfect and accurate acquaintance with its courſe, as well as to correct ſome errors which for want of longer opportunity and better conveniences for making more nice and critical obſervations may have happened in the above account,——as well as further prepared the way for inveſtigating ſome more entertaining more curious and intereſting diſcoveries that have or may happen from the Advent of this rare celeſtial viſitant in its acceſs receſs, &c. in its HELIOCENTRIC orbit, as namely, its Perihelion diſtance from the Sun, periodical time, proximity to the earth, &c. &c. of which we are expecting ſome more particular and entertaining exhibitions from the improvements of gentlemen of aſtronomical profeſſion from abroad.

Cœtera Animalia cum prona Humumq; repetant,
Os Homini Sublime dedit Cœlumque Tueri
Alta petens, Sidera, atque arrectos attolere Vultus.

N. S.

---

[] A point of the Heavens which is upon the Horizon, about 16 Deg ſouthwardly of the 7's when they riſe, and comes to the Meridian, about 40 Min. before them, 6 Deg. more South, from which the Comet has mov'd ſince about the 26th of Auguſt.

LONDON, June 20.

A letter from Warſaw ſays, "Our Court has received from that of Peterſburgh, ſome declarations ſigned by the Vice Chancellor Galitzin, requiring the well-diſpoſed Poles to join the Ruſſians, and to act in conjunction with them againſt the Confederates, the Turks, and the Tartars. General Rooiker, who was ſent into Nithurnia to engage the Nobleſſe to take this ſtep, has been ſo ill received there, that, according to ſome accounts, he is wounded, and others actually ſay that he is killed."

It is reported that upwards of two thouſand artizans, hitherto employed in the manufacture of Britiſh goods exported to North-America have actually been diſcharged, in different parts of the county, within the laſt ſix weeks, for want of employment, there being at preſent, no ſort of demand for theſe articles, nor is it known when there will be.

June 20. A letter from Florence, dated June 1, after lamenting the fate of the brave Corſicans and their General Paoli, on account of that iſland having (as the writer ſays) become a province of French, adds, "It is not certainly known where Paoli is, ſome ſay he is in the mountains with 4000 men, others that he is gone to England. In the firſt attack the French were ſucceſsful; in the ſecond the Corſicans had the advantage; in the third the latter were beaten and a general rout and maſſacre enſued. During the action one of the Corſican chiefs quitted his General with 800 men, whoſe arms were afterwards turned againſt their countrymen; upon which the Corſicans laid down their arms; part of them ſurrendered, and the reſt fled. It is all over with them! eight or ten chiefs landed yeſterday at Leghorn.

It is ſaid that there is a deſign to propoſe a change in the government of our North-American colonies, and form an union of the whole on a new model. In this plan, the incorporated provinces are not to be ſubject to the Britiſh Parliament, but to remain dependant on the crown, in the ſame manner as Ireland; having a parliament of their own, and being governed, with reſpect to the crown prerogative, by a Viceroy or Lord Lieutenant.

It is imagined, that were the above plan to be propoſed, none would come into it with ſo much warmth as they have long endured the tyranny of little arbitrary governors, whoſe continuance in office depended on executing the opp eſſive diſtates of bad M———rs.

It is ſaid, that a certain lady of quality much attached to a certain enthuſiaſtic ſect, intends to uſe all her intereſt, to have a certain celebrated preacher, who is looked upon as the pope of it, appointed the firſt biſhop in America, in caſe the government ſhould think proper to eſtabliſh epiſcopacy in that part of the world

We can aſſure the public, that a great perſonage has never declared the leaſt reſentment againſt the Middleſex petition. The father of his people muſt always be pleaſed to ſee his loyal children dutifu ly laying their grievances before him, in a legal and conſtitutional manner; he will be glad to be the man of his people; and to know their real ſentiments, muſt be always pleaſing to a good K——g. The livery of London, amongſt whom there are many of the beſt and worthieſt of the Common Council, are the greateſt capital in the world. The Black Liſt, and the tools of corrupt and venal A———n, are trying every ſiniſter art to defeat the intended petition, by early crowding the hall with ſuch as have no right to be there next Saturday, and by noiſy clamour and faction, to endeavour to diſturb the quiet and order of the brave and uncorrupt livery; who ſo unanimouſly agreed to the ſtrong inſtructions given to their members ſome months ago, for the redreſs of grievances. There is not a man in the city but is well acquainted with the real motive of the conduct of the A———n, who uſed Sir Mathew Blackiſton in ſo baſe and ſcandalous a manner.———They are afraid of any new Alderman being elected, who will conſult the real intereſt and proſperity of the city of London; and cannot be bribed Mr. Shakſpeare's ſtanding neuter does not do him great honour, ſince at this moſt critical and alarming juncture" "thoſe who are not for us, are againſt us." The whole kingdom wait to follow and applaud the Livery of London.

The iſland of Corſica is known to abound in ſuch prodigious quantities of timber, proper for building ſhips, that whatever naval power ſhall poſſeſs that iſland, may expect in a few years to rule the ocean.

The late impoſitions of taxes in the colonies, will, in all probability, be attended with as ruinous conſequences to this county, as Mr. George Grenville's eſtabliſhment of cutters in the Weſt Indies, to prevent our taking any of the Spaniſh gold and ſilver, proved to the trade of theſe iſlands, and like to turn out equally irremediable; for though, afterwards, theſe cutters were recalled, the Spaniſh money had found its way to the French and Dutch ſettlements, where it ſtill continues to be carried, notwithſtanding all our endeavours to recover that loſt trade. In like manner the American eyes are opened; they have got ſome of our beſt workmen among them, and have eſtabliſhed many kinds of manufactures, which they will not be fools enough to give up ſhould we even reſtore them to all the priveleges of their anceſtors.

Tranſlation of a letter from Paris, dated June 7. 1769

"At laſt, my dear friend, the Count de Vaux has determined the fate of Corſica, and thoſe brave iſlanders have loſt in one day their brave general, their property, their country, and what is ſtill more precious, their liberty; thanks to the generoſity of your Engliſh Miniſters! All the world here complain of the fatal event, as the invaſion of Corſica was a meaſure odious to every honeſt Frenchman, as well in the court, as in the capital; and every body here knows, if Lord Rochford's warm repreſentation, which they ſay was tranſmitted to him, by the advice of Lord Chatham and by Lord Shelburne, then ſecretary of ſtate, had been well ſupported, or, indeed, not deſtroyed by your miniſters, the Duke of Choiſeuil, who had alone undertaken to ſeize and deſtroy the brave Corſicans, with their liberties, would have infallibly been forced to withdraw the French forces from that iſland, and likewiſe to quit his employ, which alone could ſecure the peace of Europe for any time.

We muſt agree, that the Engliſh, during the late war, had the courage of lions, but ſince the peace they ſeem to be as timorous as deer. In a little time I will ſend you an exact relation of Count de Vaux's operations. For the preſent, ſhall only ſay, that Paoli being driven out from all his faſtneſſes, was obliged to fly for ſafety to Leghorn. All his papers, his ſecretary and treaſurer, with his five great dogs, which guarded him day and night, are in the poſſeſſion of the French, with 30 pieces of cannon, and ſome ſpecie given him by the Engliſh.

"The Count de Vaux has taken 9000 Corſicans, with 300 French deſerters, which Paoli had placed in the rear troops, with orders to fire upon them in caſe they attempted to retire. He has ordered theſe laſt to be hanged immediately; this act of ſeverity is of a piece with his practice at Gottingen in the laſt war—There are only 100 men remaining of the marine regiment, which is compoſed of four battalions, and of Bulkeley's Iriſh regiment, who made the firſt attack upon the Corſicans, with the point of their bayonets; they defended themſelves, for a long time, with incredible bravery; but being aſſailed on all ſides with ſuperior and irreſiſtable force, they were obliged to ſubmit. It is ſaid, that our loſs amounts to 1900 men, and that of the Corſicans to 2500"

By letters from Rochfort, there is advice of the loſs of a rich French ſhip from Cape Francois, wherein the Merchants of Bourdeaux were concerned, to the amount of upwards of 100,000 crowns.

June 27. A joke paſſes amongſt the politicians at the Weſt end of the town——They ſay the ſheriffs elect for London and Middleſex will be compelled to attend the burning of two petitions which they have been ſo active in procuring; as it is expected the parliament will vote them treaſonable and ſeditious.

As ſoon as the news arrived at St. James of Meſſieurs Townſhend and Sawbridge being elected Sheriffs, and that the intended petition of the Livery had been approved; expreſſes have been ſent down to ſeveral abſent members in adminiſtration whoſe preſence is required in town on buſineſs of importance.

June 29. John Sawbridge, Eſq; one of the Sheriffs elect, is the only candidate for Alderman of Langbourn ward, in the room of Sir Joſeph Hankey, Knt. deceaſed.

We hear that a courier is lately arrived from our Ambaſſador at Coſtantinople, ſince which 'tis whiſpered that the Grand Seignor has deſired the meditation of Great-Britain, in order to accommodate the differences which unhappily ſubſiſt between Ruſſia and the Porte.

June 29. We are informed that an expreſs arrived early this morning with very diſagreeable advices from North America. Report ſays, that ſome diſturbances have ariſen between the inhabitants and the military.

July 1. We have authority to contradict the article inſerted in an evening paper of laſt night, and re printed in ſome of the morning publications this day, relating to the Ruſſian Ambaſſador's having received an account of a battle being gained by the Turks and Tartars over her imperial Majeſty's troops, in which 8000 of the latter were ſaid to be loſt; his Excellency having received no intelligence of that kind, and there being the greateſt reaſon to believe no ſuch victory has been obtained.

The Magdalen Schooner, commanded by Lieut. Calder, is arrived at Spithead, from North-America, with diſpatches from Lord Bottetourt, for the Secretary of State.

It is now the general talk of the whole kingdom, that in conſequence of the infinite number of petitions expected from all parts of England the freeholders of the ſeveral counties of this kingdom, will abſolutely inſiſt upon an annual parliament, that being one of their moſt valuable chartered rights. And it is ſaid, the freeholders are reſolute in this conſtitutional demand, there is no miniſter will be hardy or weak enough to dare to oppoſe ſo juſt, and now ſo neceſſary a meaſure.

The merchants at Boſton have created a fund, in order to erect a manufactory for making guns and ſmall arms, under the plauſible pretence, as it is given out, to ſupply the inhabitants with that very lucrative branch of trade.

Meſſ. GREEN & WATSON,

GENTLEMEN,

As Britiſh America ſeems now to be all in diſtreſs under fearful apprehenſions of having our rights and liberties wreſted out of our hands, and every one willing to put in a helping hand to the removal of the general evil—and as your paper does not at preſent ſeem to be crowded with news, I tho't to do the ſame in ſeveral numbers, if you think it worthy of the public notice: ſome bringing to mind what ought to be done by us, & for us in a religious ſence, in a civil and political; which are ſubmitted to your diſpoſal, when they ſhall come to hand, whether they ſhall be publiſhed, or be ſuppreſſed.

Your's MEMORATOR.

MEMORATOR. N°. I.

THough I muſt confeſs my full perſuaſion that the Britiſh parliament ought not in any manner upon principles of Britiſh government to TAX his Majeſty's ſubjects in his Britiſh colonies for the raiſing a revenue, as all taxes are to be granted, by the repreſentatives of the people, who are ſuppoſed as well to know the abilities of thoſe they repreſent, as to be inſtructed by their conſtituents, how and in what manner they can and will ſupport government, and defray the charges of the State, that the colonies have not ever been nor can in any ſence, be repreſented in the Britiſh Parliament, I think have been, by many hands, demonſtrated in the public papers, both in Britain and in the colonies, & that therefore were the colonies now intire ſtrangers to the Britiſh government, and to be taken in and in the moſt reaſonable manner connected with it, it would but be reaſonable they ſhould have the priviledge of taxing themſelves in ſome manner that might be deviſed in diſtinction from the Britiſh parliament, which may be afterward conſidered; Yet I think we in the colonies, have much forgot our great ſtrength, while we have been crying out againſt, and finding fault with G———e G—n——e, and the E—l of H—ſb——h, inſtead whereof we ought to have found fault with ourſelves, repented of our ſins the procuring cauſe of thoſe evils: which our fathers and we have always found to be the beſt expedients ſome of which are not beyon'd our own Memory; have we not from the greateſt to the leaſt, been finding fault with inſtruments (the pulpit not excepted) inſtead of humbling ourſelves? not faſting and praying to the King of Heaven (as tho' he regarded not, nor ruled in the kingdoms of men) yet by whom kings reign, and princes decree juſtice. While our agents were preſenting our petitions to the throne, as Mordicai and the reſt of the Jews were, while Queen Eſther was preſenting their cauſe before Ahaſuerus: is there not enough to repent of in rulers, miniſters and people, and to pray for, that we might be ſaved from bondage? and had we ſo been found, who knows but before now, our fears might have been removed; which expedient I muſt believe muſt be more generally tried, before they are.

May I not therefore humbly intreat governors and rulers of the people of theſe colonies, as well as miniſters of religion, to lead therein and influence the people thereto; and who knows but the all wiſe Governor of the Univerſe, may return to us, when we return to him—cauſe a happy union to be brought about between Great Britain and the Britiſh colonies in America—reſtore harmony between them, and make us a free and happy people throughout all generations

---

BOSTON, Septem. 4.

We hear from Marblehead, that laſt Friday night a Veſſel arrived there in 40 days from Gibralter, the Maſter of which informs, that the Governor of that place, two days before he ſailed, received authentic Advice by letters, that the brave General PAOLI had gained a compleat Victory over a large Body of the French Troops in the Mountains at Corſica, where he had been obliged to retire, and had killed upwards of 3000, and taken between 50 and 60 of the French Officers priſoners:——This News the Captain further ſays was fully credited at Gibaralter and occaſioned great rejoicings there.

The Baron't of NETTLEHAM among other high encomiums on the Cabal, has given a very exalted character of his Lieut. upon whoſe reſolution and firmneſs he aſſures the world he can as much depend as upon his own---in Effect, that he is at leaſt altogether ſuch an one as himſelf.

On Friday laſt ſet out for Portſmouth in the province of New-Hampſhire, John Hughes, late Stampmaſter for Philadelphia, who we hear is appointed collector of his Majeſty's cuſtoms for that Port—without doubt a reward for his extraordinary merit—It is very humiliating to this Province that nothing is yet done for Brother O---r.

Sep. 7. Laſt Friday arrived here in Diſtreſs, having ſprang a Leak, the Ship Le Fort, John Michell, Maſter, burthen 360 Tons, from St. Domingo for Nantz, in France, laden with Sugar, Coffee, Hides, Mahogany, Sweet Meats, Clarified Syrup, Goldſmith's Cinders, Cotton, &c. She is to proceed on her Voyage as ſoon as her damage is repaired.

We hear from Harvard-College, That the Senior Claſs ſtill retain a Spirit of Patriotiſm, in unanimouſly reſolving to receive their Degrees next Commencement, in black cloth of this Country Manufacture.

Early on Tueſday Evening laſt, a difference aroſe at the Britiſh Coffee-Houſe in this Town, between James Otis, Eſq; and John Robinſon, Eſq; the latter demanding Satiſfaction for certain expreſſions in a Publication ſigned by Mr. Otis in the Boſton Gazette of Monday laſt,—After a Propoſal on the part of Mr. Otis to decide this Controvercy by themſelves in a ſeparate Room, which was conſented to by Mr. Robinſon, very unexpectedly to Mr. Otis, and while he was riſing, Mr. Robinſon in the preſence of the public company in the Coffee-Room attempted to pull him by the noſe; and failing in the attempt, he immediately ſtruck at him with his cane, againſt which Mr. Otis defended himſelf, and returned the compliment. A cloſe engagement then enſued, and Mr. Otis having diſarmed his antagoniſt, ſeveral perſons in the room fell upon Mr. Otis, ſome of whom held him while others ſtruck with Cutlaſſes, canes and other Weapons, and the general cry was, Kill him! Kill him!----A young Gentleman, Mr. John Gridley, paſſing by the room, and ſeeing Mr. Otis treated in ſo ungentleman-like and barbarous a manner and without a friend near him, preſs'd in, and endeavouring to interpoſe, was alſo attacked in the manner Mr. Otis was, by as many as could come near him, and after a reſolute and manly defence of himſelf, was at length overpowered, as Mr. Otis had been, by Numbers.----By this Time ſeveral others had got into the Room, whereupon Mr. Robinſon and thoſe who were with him, retired through the back door of the Coffee-Houſe.---Mr. Otis and Mr. Gridley were carried off much wounded, and it is tho't had not the people come in to their aſſiſtance the conſequence of this ungenerous aſſault would have been fatal.----The company in the room when Mr. Otis was firſt attacked conſiſted chiefly of the officers of the army and the revenue, and it is allowed without contradiction that both Mr. Otis and Mr. Gridley acquitted themſelves with a Spirit & Reſolution becoming Gentlemen & Men of Honor.

NEW-YORK, Sept. 7.

The Statues of his Majeſty, and Mr. Pitt, it is reported will be ſhipt on board Capt. Millar.

Yeſterday John Jubeart, late of Staten-Iſland, was executed at the Gallows near this City, for paſſing counterfeit Dollars. He died with great Appearance of Penitence and denied having had any Accomplices

The whole City ſeems anxiouſly concern'd on Account of his Excellency Sir Henry Moore our Governor, who lies dangerouſly ill, and almoſt paſt Hope of Recovery.

We hear alſo that the Hon. Daniil Horſmanden, Chief Judge of this Province, is dangerouſly ill.

By reaſon of the hurry of the preſs, ſeveral errors have in a few papers of this impreſſion paſs'd unnoticed in the account of the Comet in the firſt Page; the moſt material are in the following Errata.

Col. 1, line 13, read the Star in Orions, &c.
Line 26 from Bot. againſt Time of Culmination, for 30 m. read 38 m.
Col. 2 L. 12 from Bot. for 5, read 4.

* * The Petition of the Livery of the City of London, preſented to his Majeſty, together with other Articles of Intelligence, brought by the Duke of Cumberland Packet, Capt. Goodrich, arrived at New-York on Friday the 1ſt inſt. will be in our next

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by
FISHER GAY, of Farmington,
WILLIAM STANTON of Litchfield
KNIGHT SEXTON, and
GREEN & WATSON of Hartford,
A PLAN of

EXERCISE,

ORDERED by the General Aſſembly of the Colony of Connecticut, in May laſt to be uſed by the Militia of this Colony—extracted from the Plan of Diſcipline for the NORFOLK MILITIA.

Likewiſe juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the above place,

Brief REMARKS,

On a Number of FALSE PROPOSITIONS and DANGEROUS ERRORS, which are ſpreading in the Country; collected out of ſundry Diſcourſes lately publiſhed, wrote by Dr. Whitaker and Mr. Hopkins. Written by Way of DIALOGUE.

By WILLIAM HART,
Paſtor of the firſt Church of Chriſt in Saybrook.

TO BE SOLD.

(Lying between the weſtern Branch of the River Delaware, and the eaſtermoſt Branch of the Suſquehannah)

20,000 Acres of Land

well proportioned with plow, meadow and paſture Land, with a Variety of Streams running through it, very commodious for the erecting Mills, &c. within about eight Miles of Schoharrey, 40 of Albany, and 40 of the Kaats Kills. Any Perſon inclining to ſettle on the above Lands, may apply to the Subſcriber in Eaſt Windſor (who intends ſoon to remove and ſettle on the ſame) who will ſell on the moſt reaſonable Terms, and give good Warrantee Deeds to the Purchaſers.

JOHN HARPER, jun.

Eaſt Windſor, Auguſt 26, 1769. 7w45

Eaſt-Hartford, Sept. 4, 1769.

Stolen from the Subſcriber

of Eaſt-Hartford, on the night after the 26th inſt a ſmal Silver Watch, with a china face, and a ſteel chain, and ſeal, the perſon who ſtole it, was one Stephen Burnham born in Eaſt Hartford about 5 feet 10 inches high, ſwarthy complexion, thin face, wears his own curl'd dark buſhy hair, had on a blue waiſt coat, with ſleves, and a brown veſt longer, than the outſide jacket, check'd linnen ſhirt, white thread ſtockings the feet worn out, new calf ſkin ſhoes bound round the top, round pinchback buckles, and an old caſtor hat--Whoever will take up the above thief, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's goals, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice, and the watch recover'd ſhall have Two Dollars reward and all neceſſary charges paid by,

JOHN RAYNOLDS.

LONDON, June 7.

On Sunday his Excellency the Ruſſian Ambaſſador received an expreſs from his Court

Extract from the St. Peterſburgh Gazette, of April 28. O. S. 1769.

BRIGADIER Jadreſs having drawn together, in the fortreſs of St. Demetrius, the corps which was deſtined for the attack of the fortreſs of Tahan Roke, ſituated at the river Don, on the ſea of Azoff, he marched out from thence, with a proper number of Engineers, the 31ſt of March, arrived at Tahan Roke the 2d of April, and took poſſeſſion of that fortreſs in military from. After he had entered the place, divine ſervice celebrated, attended by a general diſcharge of the artillery, &c to return thanks to the Almighty for giving this important fortreſs again into our hands, and that, too, without the leaſt obſtacle; and after centinels were every where placed, and the artillery properly planted the ſtandard with the Ruſſian Imperial arms, was fixed upon the high wall towards the ſea, and the ſide of Crimea.

They write from Liſbon, that above a million ſterling in gold & ſilver has juſt been imported there, by the arrival of ſeveral rigiſter ſhips from the Bahia, Fernambucco, and other parts of Brazil.

In a ſhip arrived at Rio de Janeiro, came five Engliſh ſailors, being part of the crew of the Black Prince, of Briſtol, bound from thence for the coaſt of Guinea, but on her arrival within a day or two's ſail of the ſaid coaſt, the greateſt part of the ſaid crew roſe, cut and wounded their Capt. whoſe name was Hawkins, his officers, and ſuch others as oppoſed them, and in that condition thruſt them into their long boat to ſhift for themſelves; the crew then bore away for the Brazils, where the above men landed at Fernambucco, and one of them, aſſuming the Captain's name, applied for proviſions and ſuch neceſſaries as they wanted; but before they had been many hours on ſhore, thoſe that remained on board cut their cables, hoiſted a black enſign, and ſailed away, leaving their companions behind.

Some late advices from abroad, poſitively aſſure, that the whole fraternity of Jeſuits will, in leſs than twelve months be abſolutely driven out from every Catholic Court in Europe.

June 15. Never was there known ſo great a plenty of gold in this kingdom as at preſent, and ſo great a ſcarcity of ſilver: A gentleman very well ſkilled in the doctrine of coinage ſays, this ill judged policy is owing to our eſtimating the gold above its par price: And we are told he has now received inſtructions from the Board of Treaſury to lay his obſervations before the Maſter of the Mint, without loſs of time.

June 26. It is ſaid Paſchal Paoli, is invited by the Empreſs of Ruſſia, to command a conſiderable body of her troops againſt the Turks.

It is ſaid a certain great perſonage uſed to take great delight in communicating the news of the Corſican arms againſt the French, to his ——— conſort. But the other day, having learnt the intelligence of their loſs of Corte, and the deſerting of the Corſican chiefs from their General, he was heard to exclaim, Alas! Madam, we ſee that even virtue and bravery cannot ſuſtain itſelf againſt treachery and baſeneſs.

Some accounts from Hamburgh inform, that the brave General Paoli, had been invited to a diſtinguiſhed command in the Ruſſian army, which probably the preſent poſture of affairs may induce him to embrace.

June 29. The plan for ſettling the affairs of the colonies upon the moſt equitable footing and for reſtoring that harmony which the fooliſh behaviour of former miniſters had diſturbed, is nearly finiſhed. The ſcheme for ſecuring to Britain the whole of the benificial commerce with Africa is far advanced, and internal regulations for augmenting the revenue, without additional taxes, or diſtreſſing the ſubject, are under the ſerious conſideration of the proper Boards.——Particular attention is paid to every motion at foreign Courts. The views of the ſeveral powers are known, they are found to have no intention to break the tranquility of Europe. The preſent ſtate of our finances, the good condition of our army and navy, are well known to the Courts of Spain and France, and they have no inclination to renew a conteſt in which they lately ſuffered ſo much. Pacific diſpoſition prevails amongſt them from the beſt cauſe in the world, the fear of our ſtrength.

TOMLINSON AND HUNTINGTON,

of Woodbury,

Have juſt imported from LONDON, a general aſſortment of Drugs and Medicines, among which are,

BALſom of Gilead, Liquid, Storax, many of the Patented Medicines, ſpices, Sago, &c. &c. which will be ſold on good terms to the purchaſer,

Aug. 29. 1769.

Strayed or STOLEN

From the ſubſcriber of Weathersfield, the 24 Aug. laſt, a Sorrel Mare, about 13 hands high both paces and trots, branded with W. on the left ſhoulder, and A. on her left thigh, very thick ſet a white ſtar in her face, whoever ſhall take up ſaid Mare and return her to the owner or ſecure her ſo that he may have her again ſhall be reaſonably rewarded and if ſtole, and the thief taken and bro't to juſtice Five Dollars Reward will be given and all reaſonable charges paid by

JOSEPH RICHARDS, jun.

Weathersfield, Sept. 1, 1769.

To be ſold at Public

Vendue the 2d day of Octo. next, at the houſe of Capt. Timothy Seymour of West-Hartford, at two o'Clock afternoon (or at private ſale any time before)

A Farm of Land containing about 60 acres, all under good improvements about 25 acres of choice Mowing land, the reſt well proportion'd into plow and paſturing Land, with a good orchard and butting on a river, whereon is now ſtanding a good new dwelling houſe about 40 feet long and 30 feet wide well finiſhed with a good barn and out houſes and a good well, within 3 quarters of a mile of the meeting houſe.

Likewiſe to be ſold at the ſame time and place a dwelling houſe, barn and out-houſes, and about 9 acres of good land with a good orchard half a mile from the Meeting houſe very convenient for a tradeſman --for terms of ſale enquire of

EZEKIEL WILLIAMS.

Hartford Sept. 4. 1769.

STrayed from the ſubſcriber in Hartford to Windſor Goſhen, about two months ſince, a ſorrel Mare Colt, branded with A, on the near ſhoulder, ſome white feet, trots and paces, aged two years old. Whoever will take up ſaid colt and ſecure her in paſture and ſend word to the Subſcriber ſhall have Five Shillings reward and all neceſſary charges paid by me

Lemuel Easton.

Hartford, Aug 13. 1769.

Pet. Verſtille,

(At his Store in Weathersfield)

Has juſt received a Quantity of GOODS and will ſell them at the very lowest prices for Caſh only VIZ.

BROAD Cloths,
Ratteens,
Coatings,
Duffles,
Kerſeys,
Half Thicks,
Serges,
Sagathy's,
Durbys,
Bazes,
Shalloons,
Tammy's,
Durants & Calamancos
Camblets,
Plain & figur'd Cambleteens,
Dorſeteens,
Hungarian Stuffs
Poplins
Miſſinets
Dreſdinets
Grezetts
Green Blue Brown & Yallow Brolioes
Black Silk
Crapes
Black Bombazines
Black and Cloth colour'd Drawboys
Brown and Olive colour'd Fuſtians
Brown and white Stay Buckrams
Black figur'd Laſtings
Cotton Checks of all widths
Red & white & blue & white ſtript Hollands
Pelong Sattins of moſt colours
Sarſnets ſorted colours
Shear & thick Muſlins
Cambricks
Lawns
Black and white Catgut
Black and white Parſenetts
Black and white plain gauze
Black & white figur'd ditto
Black and Crimſon Capuchine Silks
Mens and Womens leather Gloves and Mittens of all colours
Womens Silk & worſted Gloves & Mitts
3 4 & 7-8 bed ticking
A fine aſſortment of Chints & Callicoes
Black and colour'd Barcelona handkerchiefs
Gauze Linnin & Silk ditto
Black Cravatts
Black and ſcarlet Snail Trimmings
Head flowers
Neclaces & Ribbons
Silvertipits & turbands
Cap Wiers Velvet Maſks
Sattin hatts & bonnets
Black cloth colours & changeable luteſtrings
Blck & cloth colour'd Taffity's
Martinico luteſtrings
Silk & cotton dit.
Paddleſticks & other fans
Damaſcus & Soſeas for waiſtcoats
Black & white Laces
Silk ſtay ditto
Mens hemp gloves
Dowlas Garlix and Hollands —
Beſt warranted Linn Shoes
Ruſſia linnins & Diapers
White figur'd Dimothy's
Mens and Womens thread cotton and worſted hoſe
Black blue purple & cloth colour'd breeches Patterns
Mens and boys caſtor and felt Hatts
Flower'd lawn & Kenting Handkerchiefs
Ferrits & Gallooms
Shoe & quality binding
Horn Mettle & Twiſt Buttons
Sewing ſilk cruels & ſilk Twiſt
Horn & Ivory Combs
Tapes Pinns Needles
Writing & preſs paper
Paper hangings for rooms
Looking Glaſſes
Chaiſe and hunting whips
Muffs and Tippitts
Beſt G. B. wool cards
Cotton wool
Pewter & Braſs
Knives & Forks
Shoe and knee buckles
Penknives Bellows
Nails
with an aſſortment of Hard Ware
Beſt of Kippens and Tillocks Snuff
Beſt Bohea Tea
Coffe
Chocolate
Pepper Allſpice
Nutmegs Cloves
Cinnamon
Ginger Allum
Coperas Brimſtone
Redwood Logwood
Rice, &c. &c. &c.

HARTFORD:
Printed by Green and Watson.

MONDAY, Sept. 18, 1769. Numb. 248.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices, Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

From the NEW YORK JOURNAL, Sept. 7.

Elizabeth Town, Sept. 4, 1769.

Mr. HOLT,

I Obſerved the Comet this Morning at 2 o'Clock, and find its Progreſs towards the Sun, I believe at about the Rate of three Degrees in 24 Hours. It is now to the Southward of the Sun, but is falling ſo faſt towards the North, that I think it will paſs on that Side. By a Calculation I made this Morning, I find the Sun, at Half after 7 o'Clock 2 793 104 Miles North of the place the Comet was in at Two. In leſs then 30 Days I expect it will be parallel with the Sun.——Should it come between us and the Sun the Tail will then probably extend to the Earth: And therefore it becomes all to be prepared for Conſequences ſo alarming as thoſe which muſt then follow.

If ſomebody who has Inſtruments, has not ſent you ſome exact Calculations, you may publiſh theſe, but if better are come to hand, theſe are needleſs. The Publication of thoſe ſent you laſt Week are now I ſuppoſe unneceſſary for the ſame Reaſon.

HARTFORD, Sept. 18.

Obſervations reſpecting the COMET, continued.

Monday Sep. 11, 3 o'Clock Morn.

Comet Riſes.	2 h. 8m.
—Long. in CANCER.	19°	00
—Lat. South.	24°	30
—Right-Aſcenſion.	110°	45
—Declination South.	2°	30
—Time of Culmin^{n}.	8 h. 11 m.
—Meridian Altitude.	45°	30
—Angle of Elongation from the Sun about	70°	00
—Aſcenſional-Difference of Comet & Sun.	57°	15

Its poſition is upon the ſame Meridian with Canis minor or, the leſſer Dog-Star, 8 degrees more South, and riſes about 6 min. before Sirius or the greater Dog-Star.

The Tail after an extent of about 95 degrees of equable denſity, ſeems to protrude a feeble divergent gleam or ſtreak over an arch of about 25 deg. ſtill further [*].

The Nucleus appears nearly of the ſame Magnitude and luſtre as heretofore.

Wedneſday Sep. 13, 3 o'Clock Mor.

	Deg.	Min.
Comet Riſes.	2 h. 56m.
—Long. in CANCER.	29	00
—Lat. South.	24	15
—Right-Aſcenſion.	121	30
—Declination South.	4	30
—Time of Culmin^{n}.	8 h. 45m.
—Meridian-Altitude.	43	30
—Angle of Elongation from the Sun.	64	00
—Aſcenſional-Difference of Comet and Sun.	49	00

Turn'd into time is - - 3 h. 16 m. and is equal to the time the Sun is behind the Comet.

REMARKS, &c.

THE foregoing ſeries of obſervations duly contemplated, will render it obvious to any one that our COMET ever ſince it paſs'd the Node (viz from about the 25th of Aug.) has been making its way eaſtwardly, falling towards the South [†] 'Tis now 75 deg more eaſtwardly, and 24 deg 15 min. more ſouthwardly, than it then was. And in its apparent courſe has paſſed over an arch of a great circle in the heavens of 82 deg. which wants but 8 deg of half a Semi Circle; this diſtance it has paſs'd over in 18 days, which at a mean is 4 deg 33 min and 20 ſeconds in the ſpace of 24 hours; during which, if the Comet's mean diſtance from the earth has been equal to the mean diſtance of the Sun, it has paſs'd with a velocity of 4469 miles, at leaſt, per minute.

'Tis now 4 deg. 30 min South of the Equinoctial; and appears ſtill to increaſe its South declination; in the mean time its preſent courſe is nearly parrallel with the ecliptic, and probably is near its ſouthern LIMIT, and will ſoon recline towards the ecliptic, approaching to a coincidence [‡] with the Sun, towards which (or rather its PERIHELION) it is making ſpeedy progreſs, and will e're long roll round it on the ſouth ſide, paſſing the ecliptic on the eaſt ſide of the ſun. ——In about 3 days hence, it will, by immerging into the Suns Rays abſcond itſelf from human obſervation. Here then for the preſent; we bid adieu to the celeſtial Phaenomenon; leaving it to the ſuperintendency and wiſe direction of an all governing arm, to bend it round its central body the Sun, truſting the care of Heaven for its convoy to indemnify, from its dire encroachments and deſerved invaſions [§], an ungodly, treacherous, degenerate, and defenceleſs world.

N. S.

---

[*] The apparent amplitude, or length of their Tails, is not the proper teſt by which to eſtimate, either the comparative magnitudes of the bodies of different Comets, or their proximity to the earth; for though it be true, that the greater, and nearer the earth, the more extenſive (caeteris paribus) would their tails appear; yet it is alſo true, that theſe different apparitions do principally depend on their different attitudes, or poſitions in reſpect of the Sun, and ſpectator. Thus, when they are nearly in oppoſition to the Sun; e.g. when they are ſouth at midnight, the tail being then oppoſite to the Sun, can be view'd only end ways; and the Nucleus will appear like a dim Star in the middle of a ſmoaky Nebula or luminous vapor; ſo that in this caſe we can make no judgment as to its length. The moſt appoſite poſition therefore, for an adequate view of the real length of the tail, is at right angles, where it lies extended in the middle between the extremes of conjunctions and oppoſitions, in which ſituation the preſent Comet has moſtly been ſeen.

[†] That it has fallen South appears from its different Lat. & declinations; otherwiſe than ſome would imagine by its apparent courſe.

[‡] When this coincidence happens (it being then in the ſame Azimuth circle) there will be no angle of Elongation from the Sun; this angle is now 64 deg. and it has at a mean for ſeveral days paſt leſſend about 3 deg. 45 min. which would carry it in about 17 days to a coincidence with the ſun; but this is uncertain.

[§] Very alarming indeed muſt be the conſequence ſhould it come in Conjunction between us and the ſun; for ſo the Tail would not only be pointed towards but would actually ſweep this earth, even if it ſhould come ſo near the ſun as the Orbit of Venus.

For on ſuppoſition the two extreme Parts of its Tail are now as remote from the Earth as the ſun is and it ſubtend an angle of 60 Degrees, the triangle is equiangular, conſequently equilateral which would make the length of the tail, 81 000 000 miles, equal to what has been generally ſuppoſed to be the diſtance of the Sun from the earth: but if the tail is at a diſtance from the earth, no more than one half the earths diſtance from the Sun, the length of the tail is about half ſo great and ſo in proportion for other diſtances. Now then in caſe the Comet ſhould be ſet in a line between us and the Sun in the orbit of Venus, it would on the former ſuppoſition, reach as far beyond the earth, as the orbit of Venus is on this ſide the Sun, which is 59000,000 miles; and on the other ſuppoſition, it would reach beyond it 185000000 miles. But very erroneous have I been in my obſervation, or quite out in my computations if (conſiſtent with the phyſical laws of circular motions of projectiles) the preſent Comet can, in its preſent revolution, paſs the Sun on this ſide—would therefore hope the inhabitants of our world have no juſt ground of terror from that quarter.

East-Hartford, Sept. 4. 1769.

Stolen from the Subſcriber

of Eaſt-Hartford, on the night after the 26th inſt. a ſmal Silver Watch, with a china face, and a ſteel chain, and ſeal, the perſon who ſtole it, was one Stephen Burnham born in Eaſt Hartford about 5 feet 10 inches high, ſwarthy complexion, thin face, wears his own curl'd dark buſhy hair, had on a blue waiſt coat, with ſleves, and a brown veſt longer, than the outſide jacket, check'd linnen ſhirt, white thread ſtockings, the feet worn out, new calf ſkin ſhoes bound round the top, round pinchback buckles, and an old caſtor hat---Whoever will take up the above thief, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's goals, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice, and the watch recover'd ſhall have Two Dollars reward and all neceſſary charges paid by,

JOHN RAYNOLDS.

Advices by the Packet, lately arrived at N York

LONDON, July 6 1769.

Yeſterday the Right Hon. Samuel Turner, Eſq; Lord Mayor, Sir Robert Ladbroke, Mr. Alderman Beckford, and Mr. Alderman Trecothick, together with the Sheriffs, accompained by Peter Roberts, Eſq; this City's Remembrancer, proceeded in State to St. James's, with the Petition of the Livery of London, where, after waiting a ſhort Time in the Anti-Chamber, his Lordſhip ſent in a Meſſage by the Remembrancer to the Lord of the Bed-Chamber. He was deſired by Mr. Pitt, Groom of the Bed-Chamber, to deliver his Meſſage. The Remembrancer anſwered, his buſineſs could only be delivered to the Lord of the Bed-Chamber, and that his Orders were to communicate it to none but his Lordſhip. Soon after Lord Huntingdon came out, and acquainted the Lord Mayor, that Lord Orford was in waiting, that the Levee was begun, and therefore he could not leave the King; but if they had any Thing to preſent, they might walk into the Levee. Mr. Beckford anſwered, they were there ready to obey the King's Commands; and Lord Huntingdon returned. After ſome Time Lord Orford, the ſaid Lord in waiting, came out and told them, that if they had any Thing to deliver, they might walk into the Levee, which they immediately did, and the King being near the Door, the Lord Mayor addreſſed him to the following Effect:

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

"We, the Lord Mayor, the Repreſentatives in Parliament, together with the Sheriffs of your Majeſty's ancient and loyal City of London, preſume to approach your Royal Perſon, and beg Leave to preſent, with all Humility to your Majeſty, the dutiful and moſt humble Petition of your Majeſty's faithful and loyal Subjects the Livery of London in Common Hall aſſembled, complaining of Grievances; and from your Majeſty's unbounded Goodneſs, and paternal Regard and Affection for all your Subjects they humbly preſume to hope, that your Majeſty will graciouſly condeſcend to liſten to their juſt Complaints, and to grant them ſuch Relief as in your Majeſty's known Wiſdom and Juſtice ſhall ſeem meet."

After which his Lordſhip preſented the Petition to his Majeſty, but the King made no anſwer, and immediately turned about to Baron Dieden, the Daniſh Miniſter, and delivered the Petition to the Lord in waiting, which was as follows:

To the King's Moſt excellent Majeſty.
The humble Petition of the Livery of the City of London, in Common-Hall aſſembled.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majeſty's dutiful and loyal Subjects the Livery of the City of London, with all the Humility which is due from free Subjects to their lawful Sovereign, but with all the Anxiety, which the ſenſe of the preſent Oppreſſions, and the juſt Dread of future Miſchiefs, produce in our Minds, beg leave to lay before your Majeſty ſome of thoſe intolerable Grevances, which your People have ſuffered from the evil Conduct of thoſe, who have been entruſted with the Adminiſtration of your Majeſty's Government, and from the ſecret unremitting Influence of the worſt of Counſellors.

We ſhould be wanting in our Duty to your Majeſty, as well as to ourſelves and our Poſterity, ſhould we forbear to repreſent to the Throne the deſperate Attempts which have been, and are too ſucceſsfully made, to deſtroy that Conſtitution, to the Spirit of which we owe the Relation, which ſubſiſts between your Majeſty and the Subjects of theſe Realms, and to ſubvert thoſe ſacred Laws, which our Anceſtors have ſealed with their Blood.

Your Miniſters, from corrupt Principles, and in Violation of every Duty, have, by various enumerated Means, invaded our invaluable and unalienable Right of Trial by Jury.

They have, with impunity, iſſued General warrants, and violently ſeized Perſons and private Papers.

They have rendered the Laws non-effective to our Security, by evading the Habeas Corpus.

They have cauſed Puniſhments, and even perpetual Impriſonment, to be inflicted, without Trial, Conviction, or Sentence.

They have brought in Diſrepute the Civil Magiſtracy, by the Appointment of Perſons who are, in many Reſpects, unqualified for that important truſt, and have thereby purpoſely furniſhed a Pretence for calling in the Aid of a Military Power.

They avow, and endeavour to eſtabliſh, a Maxim abſolutely inconſiſtent with our Conſtitution — that "an Occaſion for effectually employing a Military Force always preſents itſelf, when the Civil Power is trifled with or inſulted;" and, by a fatal and falſe Application of this Maxim, they have wantonly and wickedly ſacrificed the Lives of many of your Majeſty's innocent Subjects, and have proſtituted your Majeſty's ſacred Name and Authority, to juſtify, applaud, and recommend their own illegal and bloody Actions.

They have ſcreened more than one Murderer from Puniſhment, and in its Place have unnaturally ſubſtituted Reward.

They have eſtabliſhed numberleſs unconſtitutional Regulations and Taxations in our Colonies. They have cauſed a Revenue to be raiſed in ſome of them by Prerogative. They have appointed Civil Law Judges to try Revenue Cauſes, and to be paid from out the Condemnation Money.

After having inſulted and defeated the Law on different Occaſions, and by different Contrivances, both at home and abroad, they have at length compleated their Deſign, by violently wreſting from the People the laſt ſacred Right we had left, the Right of Election: By the unprecedented ſeating of a Candidate notoriouſly ſet up and choſen only by themſelves. They have thereby taken from your Subjects all Hopes of parliamentary Redreſs, and have left us no Reſource, under God, but in your Majeſty.

All this they have been able to effect by Corruption. By a ſcandalous Miſapplication and Embezzlement of the public Honours and Employments; procuring Deficiencies of the Civil Liſt to be made good without Examination; and, inſtead of puniſhing, conferring Honours on a Paymaſter, the publick Defaulter of unaccouted Millions.

From an unfeigned Senſe of the Duty we owe to your Majeſty and to our Country, we have ventured thus humbly to lay before the Throne thoſe great and important Truths, which it has been the Buſineſs of your Miniſters to conceal. We moſt earneſtly beſeech your Majeſty to grant us Redreſs. It is for the Purpoſe of Redreſs alone, and for ſuch Occaſions as the preſent, that thoſe great extenſive Powers are intruſted to the Crown by the Wiſdom of that conſtitution which your Majeſty's illuſtrious Family was choſen to defend, and, which we truſt in God it will for ever continue to ſupport."

After the Levee at St. James's Yeſterday a Privy Council was held, which chiefly conſiſted of the following Noblemen and Gentlemen:

Duke of Bedford,	Lord Talbot,
Lord Mansfield,	Lord North,
Lord Sandwich.	Richard Rigby Eſq;

The Duke of Rutland was there, but withdrew before the Council was opened.

The Biſhop of Sailſbury in his Speech to the Houſe of Lords at the Impeachment of Dr. Henry Sacheverell, quoted the following Sentence from King James's Speech to his Parliament in the Year 1709:

"A King leaves to be a King, and degenerates into a Tyrant, as ſoon as he leaves off to govern by Law: In which Caſe the King's Conſcience may ſpeak to him, as the poor Woman to Philip of Macedon. Either govern by Law, or ceaſe to be a King."

July 8. Yeſterday the Earl of Chatham attended the Levee at St. James's afterwards dined at Earl Temple's Houſe in Pall Mall, and returned in the Evening to Hayes.

We hear that Lord Chatham was ſent for to Court, and had a private Audience of his Majeſty, which laſted about Half an Hour.

According to recent Letters from Leghorn, a Capitation Tax is ſoon to be impoſed on all the Inhabitants of Corſica in order to defray the extraordinary Charges of the War.

We are informed that an Arrangement, ſome-what ſimilar to the following, is under Conſideration:

Lord Cambden, Lord Chancellor.

Sir J. Eardley Wilmot, Knt. Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench.

Earl of Egmont, Firſt Lord of the Treaſury.

Right Hon. William Dowdeſwell, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Earl of Chatham, Lord Viſcount Townſhend, Secretaries of State.

Earl of Hillſborough, Secretary of State for the Colonies, and Firſt Lord of Trade.

Sir Edward Hawke Firſt Lord of the Admiralty.

Marquis of Rockingham, Preſident of the Council.

Lord Lyttelton, Lord Privy Seal.

Earl of Briſtol, Ambaſſador to France.

General Conway, Secretary at War.

Duke of Ancaſtar, Maſter of the Horſe to the King

Duke of Portland, Lord Chamberlain of the King's Houſhold.

Duke of Mancheſter, Ld. Steward of Ditto.

Duke of Montague, Maſter General of the Ordnance.

Marquis of Granby, all his Poſts but the Ordnance.

Earl of Huntingdon, Groom of the Stole.

Earl of Suffolk, Earl of Dartmouth, Joint Poſtmaſters General.

Lord George Cavendiſh Cofferer of the King's Houſhold.

Sir Gorge Saville, Paymaſter General.

Lord Viſc. Howe, Treaſurer of the Navy.

Lord Mayor, Reciver General of the Cuſtoms.

Lord George Sackville, Hon. James Grenville, Edmond Burke, Joint Vice Treaſurers of Ireland.

Other Arrangements under Conſideration for Exportations.

Right Hon George Grenville, in addition to Poſts of 6000l. per. Ann. in preſent Enjoyment, Lord Lieut. of North America,

Jeremiah Dyſon, Secretary to Dito,

Lord Viſcount W——th, Lord Viſcount B——n, Supreme Directors of the Butchery at Bengal, with 10,000 per Ann. each and other Douceurs.

Sir William Beauchamp Proctor, Secretary to Ditto.

Juſtice Gillham, Juſtice Ponton, council to Ditto.

William Bromfield, Surgeon to Ditto,

John Broughton, with M Quirk and Balfe, Aſſiſtants in the Butchery.

It is confidently ſaid the moſt effectual Methods will be purſued to put a ſtop to the Petitions ſaid to be in Agitation in ſeveral Parts of this Kingdom, the Weight they may have with a certain Perſonage being much dreaded by the miniſterial Party.

Two Gentlemen of a Coffee-Houſe, talking on the Subject of Petitions of Apprehenſions and Grievances, one of them ſaid, "he wondered what would be done with them after the King had ſeen them:" "Sir, anſwered the other, they will be preſerved as ſtanding Mounuments of arb——y m——l Oppreſſion.

Yeſterday a Court of Aldermen was held at Guildhall, when James Townſend, Eſq; was ſworn in Alderman of Biſhopſgate Ward.

Yeſterday Meſſrs. Townſend and Sawbridge, the Sheriffs elect, gave bond to ſerve in the ſaid Office.

Yeſteday morning the following verbal Meſſage was ſent to ſeveral Printers of this City: "My Lord Mayor requires you to attend the Court of Aldermen this day at Twelve preciſely." In conſequence of which they were all in waiting till near Two, when only one of them was called in, to be examined relative to the Card from Lord Weymouth to the Lord Mayor, which was given in our laſt. His Lordſhip aſked him by what means a copy of the card was obtained, declaring that his motive for ordering their attendance was to aſſure his brethern, that it was publiſhed without his knowledge. The ſtory relative to the affair is as follows.

Monday ſe'nnight the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor ſent to Lord Rochford to know when it would be convenient to preſent the Petition of the Livery of the City of London, and received for anſwer, that it was a matter not in his department. Lord Weymouth being then out of town, did not return till Wedenſday; accordingly on Thurſday morning the Lord Mayor went to Lord Weymouth's, but did not ſee his Lordſhip: he therefore left his buſineſs, which produced the card inſerted in our laſt. On Friday the Sheriffs went up to Court, and requeſted an audience, which being granted, we hear, in conſequence of what then paſſed, that the petition will be preſented this day, attended by the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, in the State Coach, with the two Sheriffs, and three of the City Members.

July 11. By Accounts from Leghorn, dated June 20, which arrived Yeſterday, we learn, that the unfortunate Paoli, having been obliged to retreat before the French to the Pieve of Vivario, where he had only 537 of his Followers left; and being ſurrounded by 4000 of the Enemy, called his faithful Friends together, and mounting upon a ſmall Eminence, addreſſed them in a moſt pathetic Manner, lamenting, that after bravely oppoſing the ambitious Deſigns of the Genoeſe for a Number of Years, he ſhould live to ſee the Conſtitutions of his country overthrown, and almoſt all his Friends and fellow Soldiers either killed or made Priſoners! That ſeeing no proſpect at oppoſing the Power of France, he thought it neceſſary to acquaint them that as no Alternative was left but death or Slavery, he was determined to cut his way through the Enemy, in order to ſeek ſome diſtant Land, where, in time, an opportunity might offer for recovering the liberties of their Country, or terminating their honourable Career, by dying gloriouſly as they had lived. After this the brave chief embraced the followers of his Fortune, and, in the dead of the Night, having fought his way through the French, eſcaped to the ruins of a convent on the Sea ſhore, where he concealed himſelf two days, and then found means to embark on board an Engliſh Veſſel bound to Leghorn, where he arrived on the 6th of laſt Month. His Entrance into that Harbour had much more the appearance of Triumph than that of a Flight. All the Engliſh ſhips ſaluted him with their artillery and diſplayed their colours, and though it rained in the moſt violent manner when he landed, People of all ranks ran in crouds, towards the Mole, and received the brave chief with the greateſt Acclamations of Joy.

NEW-YORK, Sept. 14.

This day his EXCELLENCY SIR HENERY MOORE, BARONET, departed this Life in Fort-George, after 16 Days Illneſs, and in the Fifty-ſixth Year of his Age-----We never had a Governor whoſe Death was more DEEPLY and DESERVEDLY lamentented.

[The Character of his Excellency Sir Henry Moore, Bart. will be in our next]

☞ A likely Negro girl about 12 years old Country born, to be ſold, Enquire of the PRINTERS.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Heart and Crown in Hartford,

Doct GALE's LETTER, To J. W. Eſquire, CONTAINING A Narrative of the principal Matters of a public and intereſting Nature, which were Subjects of the Debates and Reſolves of the General Aſſembly of the Colony of Connecticut, during the Seſſions in May, 1769.

☞ As this Publication is thought to be of great Importance to the Welfare of this Colony, and to demand the Attention of every Freeman—and as it has cauſed much Altercation in this and the neighbouring towns, both before and ſince its Publication; thoſe who have a Curioſity to become acquainted with its Contents, muſt purchaſe immediately or (perhaps) they will be diſappointed.

N. B. A few of the above Pamphlets may be had of Mr. William Stanton of Litchfield.

Farmington, Sept. 12, 1769.

RUN-Away from the ſubſcriber of Farmington, on the 1ſt of Sept. inſt. a Molatto, Indian and Negro blood, named John Way, about 30 years of age, about 6 feet high, ſlim built, ſpeaks good Engliſh, ſmall voice, wears his own black hair quiew'd behind the fore part of his head ſhav'd—Had on when he went away an old felt hatt, a light flannel waiſtcoat, without ſleeves, a check'd linnen ſhirt, ſhort white tow trowſers, blue yarn ſtockings, a pair ſingle ſoal'd ſhoes.—Whoever will take up ſaid ſervant, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's goals, or return him to his maſter, ſhall be reaſonably rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

P ELIAKIM DEMING.

Wanted Immediately,

A Healthy Lad, that can be well recommended, as an apprentice to the Black-Smith buſineſs, Enquire of the PRINTERS.

☞ One that has work'd at the buſineſs would be moſt acceptable, and would have ſmall wages allow'd him.

For the Benefit of the ſick and afflicted,
Has juſt arrived from LONDON,

Iſaac Calcott,

A Seventh Son of a Seventh Son.

WHO, after ſeveral years travelling abroad, has obtained the art of cureing with God's aſſiſtance, all cureable diſorders, both in the Body and Eyes. I ſhall not ſpeak of cures never performed, as many, do; but let my Medicines and practice merit your applauſe—Any perſon wanting Mr. Calcott's aſſiſtance, and can't come in perſon, may ſend a bottle with the firſt water they make in the morning, by which I ſhall know what diſorder attends the perſon. I cure, with God's aſſiſtance, viz. Kings-evil, Vapour's, Rheumatiſm, Cancer, Wens, Deafneſs, Rupture, Yaws, Sore throat, Head ach, Fitts, Conſumption, Bloody flux, Veneral diſorders, Tooth ach without drawing, Cholic, Fever and Ague, Yellow-Jaundice, Worms Dropſy, Scurvey in the blood, Piles, Gleet, &c &c.

Any of my medicines may be had of me, on Monday, at Mr. Samuel Kellon's at Eaſt-Hartford; on Tueſday at Mr. Porter's Tavern at Eaſt-Windſor; on Wedneſday, at Mr. Buck's tavern at Weathersfield; on Thurſday at Mr. Pomeroy's tavern in Rocky Hill; on Friday, at the Wid. Shaylor's tavern in Middletown; and on Saturday at Mr. Hale's tavern in Glaſtenbury.

N. B. My Worm powders, 1/6 My Tooth-ach drops cures faſtning and whitning the teeth 1/6 The royal beautifying water for taking off all freckels, ſun-burn marks, or ſpots of the ſkin, and makes it ſoſt and white 2/6 all with directions.

TO BE SOLD.

(Lying between the weſtern Branch of the River Delaware, and the eaſtermoſt Branch of the Suſquehannah)

20,000 Acres of Land

well proportioned with plow, meadow and paſture Land, with a Variety of Streams running through it, very commodious for the erecting Mills, &c. within about eight Miles of Schoharrey, 40 of Albany, and 40 of the Kaats Kills. Any Perſon inclining to ſettle on the above Lands, may apply to the Subſcriber in Eaſt Windſor (who intends ſoon to remove and ſettle on the ſame) who will ſell on the moſt reaſonable Terms, and give good Warrantee Deeds to the Purchaſers.

JOHN HARPER, jun:

Eaſt Windſor, Auguſt 26, 1769. 7w45

To be ſold at Public

Vendue the 2d day of Octo. next, at the houſe of Capt. Timothy Seymour of Weſt-Hartford, at two o'Clock afternoon (or at private ſale any time before)

A Farm of Land containing about 60 acres, all under good improvements about 25 acres of choice Mowing land, the reſt well proportion'd into plow and paſturing Land, with a good orchard and butting on a river, whereon is now ſtanding a good new dewlling houſe about 40 feet long and 30 feet wide well finiſhed with a good barn and out houſes and a good well, within 3 quarters of a mile of the meeting houſe.

Likewiſe to be ſold at the ſame time and place a dwelling houſe, barn and out-houſes, and about 9 acres of good land with a good orchard half a mile from the Meeting houſe very convenient for a tradeſman—for terms of ſale enquire of

EZEKIEL WILLIAMS.

Hartford Sept. 4 1769.

TOMLINSON AND HUNTINGTON,

of Woodbury,

Have juſt imported from LONDON, a general aſſortment of Drugs and Medicines, among which are,

BAlſom of Gilead, Liquid, Storax, many of the Patended Medicines, ſpices, Sago, &c. &c. which will be ſold on good terms to the purchaſer.

Aug. 29 1769.

LONDON,

Extract of letter from Leghorn, dated June 16.

"——Whilſt I was writing the foregoing, word was brought me, that Capt. Cha. Wood, of the Bermudas Packet, was arrived to our addreſs from Porto Vecchio, in Corſica, with our favourite General Paoli on board. I am to go on board after dinner to ſee him. I am glad this great man is ſafe, though the whole iſland is entirely laſt.—ſince writing the above, I went with ſeveral friends to ſee Gen. de Paoli, we hoped to have gone on board, but in our going into the mole, we were told that the ſhip had not yet, practick, and that ſhe could not have it until an anſwer came from Florence; an expreſs having been ſent thither immediately on the general's arrival. We therefore waited ſome time in our boat with great anxiety to ſee him; but as there was a vaſt number of other people in boats around us, he did not care to look out of the cabbin windows; at length, however, he opened quarter gallery and ſaluted us, but being too far off we deſired the honour of ſpeaking to him, which he very courteouſly complied with. I therefore ordered our boatman to put cloſe along ſide, when I had the honour, with my friends, of talking to him about ten minutes.

"He told me that he had ſtill hopes of returning to Corſica in a ſhort time, to relieve his country, and that he did not yet diſpair his people being ſtill in arms. We ſincerely wiſhed him ſucceſs in his Endeavours; but without the aſſiſtance of ſome great Power, I told him, I thought it was too dangerous for him even to think of returning, as the French ſo much deſired to have him in their power: With this he ſeemed to acquieſce.

"I beg, my friend, that you will have it put in the news-papers that Capt. Charles Wood, of the Bermudas packet, ſailed from Porto Vecchio, the 13th of June, with General de Paoli on bord. A Shebec ordered him to come on board, when he was getting under [illegible], wich he did; and the French Captain ſtrictly examined him about his having any paſſengers on board, which the other aſſured him he had not, except a ſupercargo, being bound for Yvica, to load ſalt for Punto di Goro, which ſatisfied the French Captain in appearance; however, as ſoon as Captain Wood was under ſail the Frenchman ſent three feluccas after him; but the wind blowing freſh, he out ran them, and ſafely brought the brave General P[illegible] hither, which gives great pleaſure to the every body. I aſſure you, he is a man of the moſt engaging aſpect I ever ſaw, and ſo affable, that his eyes invite one to talk freely to him. At the firſt look he ſeemed rather thoughtful, but on his beginning to talk of Corſica, a moſt engaging brightneſs overſpread his countenance: In ſhort, one cannot look at and converſe with him, without having a kind of enthuſiaſm for him. Capt. Wood brought hither a cargo of logwood from Honduras, and was actually freighted to go from hence to Yvica, to load ſalt for Punta di Goro, in the Gulf of Venice, but being forced into Porto Vecchio, he has had the honour of bringing off the brave, the great, the wonderful Paoli."

Extract of a letter from Lyons, June 23.

"We juſt now received advice from Rome, that the new Pope, ſince his coronation has cauſed the General of the Jeſuits and ſix of his aſſiſtants to be arreſted and lodged in the Caſtle of St. Angelo; and that Cardinal Torregiani is baniſhed to Rimini; on account, it is ſaid, of proofs being received from the Court of Spain that they were the authors of the late conſpiracies in that kingdom. It is added, that the Pope has appointed a proviſional Vicar General to govern the Society for ſix months; and, in the mean time, all their effects are ſequeſtered. In theſe circumſtances, his Holineſs has thought proper to iſſue a ſpecial order that none of the Cardinals quit Rome."

The diſpatches from Bengal, by the Queen, Capt. Stainforth, bring advice, that a ſolid and advantageous treaty has been at laſt concluded between Sujah Dowla and the Engliſh Company, by which our poſſeſſions and trade in that country are left in full ſecurity and peace. The Deputies from Calcutta met with the Nabob at Banares, in the frontiers of his own territories. The conferences were carried on with the greateſt ſincerity and good faith. The Deputies repreſented to him (their Nabob) how neceſſary it was, for the preſervation of harmony between the two nations that every cauſe of jealouſy ſhould be removed. They told him, that the late augmentation of his forces, in time of profound peace, and his attempts to diſcipline them in the European manner, ſeemed to indicate deſigns, which juſtly gave the alarm to the preſidency of Calcutta; that therefore they muſt inſiſt on a reduction of theſe forces, as the beſt means to ſatisfy them as to the uprightneſs of his intentions. That we were willing to conſent to his maintaining ſuch an army, as was requiſite for the honour and ſecurity of his government at home; and as to all attacks from a foreign enemy, he would always find the Engliſh faithful and effectual allies to fly to his aſſiſtance.

J. Morton,

At his Store in Hartford, on the North ſide the Green in the Houſe of Mrs. Sarah Edwards,

HAS a good Aſſortment of Dry Goods, Iron-Mongery, Earthen Ware, Glaſs Ware, and beſt London Pewter, blown and Rock Salt

N. B. Said Morton intending for Europe, in the Fall, will ſell off what goods he has on hand, very low for Caſh or Produce.

To be ſold on generous Terms,

About 30 Acres of improved Land in Goſhen, adjoining the north line of Litchfield & Albany Road, whereon is a fine Orchard, and a large Houſe and Barn, a good Well, &c lately improved by Lieut. Ebenezer Hill, whereof a good Title, and immediate Poſſeſſion may be had of

JEDEDIAH STRONG.

Litchfield, March 22 1769.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by
FISHER GAY, of Farmington,
WILLIAM STANTON of Litchfield
KNIGHT SEXTON, and
GREEN & WATSON of Hartford,
A PLAN of

EXERCISE,

ORDERED by the General Aſſembly of the Colony of Connecticut, in May laſt to be uſed by the Militia of this Colony—extracted from the Plan of Diſcipline for the

NORFOLK MILITIA.

Likewiſe juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the above place,

Brief REMARKS,

On a Number of FALSE PROPOSITIONS and DANGEROUS ERRORS, which are ſpreading in the Country; collected out of ſundry Diſcourſes lately publiſhed, wrote by Dr. Whitaker and Mr. Hopkins, Written by Way of DIALOGUE.

By WILLIAM HART,
Paſtor of the firſt Church of Chriſt in Saybrook.

Pet. Verſtille,

(At his Store in Weathersfield)

Has juſt received a Quantity of GOODS and will ſell them at the very loweſt prices for Caſh only VIZ.

BROAD Cloths,
Ratteens,
Coatings,
Duffles,
Kerſeys,
Half Thicks,
Serges,
Sagathy's,
Duroys,
Bazes,
Shalloons,
Tammy's,
Durants [illegible],
Camblets,
Plain & figur'd Camblet[illegible],
Dorſeteens,
Hungarian Stuffs
Poplins
Miſſinets
Dreſdipetts
Grezetts
Green Blue, Brown & Yallow Brolines
Black Silk
Crapes
Black Bombazines
Black and Cloth-colour'd Drawboys
Brown and Olive coloured Fuſtians
Brown and white Stay Buckrams
Black figur'd Laſtings
Cotton Checks of all widths
Red & white & blue & white ſtripe Hollands
Pelong Sattins of moſt colours
Sarſnets ſorted colours
Shear & thick Muſlins
Cambricks
Lawns
Black and white Catgut
Black and white Parſenetts
Black and white plain gauze
Black & white figur'd ditto
Black and Crimſon Capuchine Silks
Mens and Womens leather Gloves and Mittens of all colours
Womens Silk & worſted Gloves & Mitts
3 4 & 7-8 bed ticking
A fine aſſortment of Chints & Callicoes
Black and colour'd Barcelona handkerchiefs
Gauze Linnin & Silk ditto
Black Cravatts
Black and ſcarlet Snail Trimmings
Head flowers
Neclaces & Ribbons
Silvertipits & turbands
Cap, Wiers Velvet Maſks
Sattin hatts & bonnets
Black cloth colours & changeable luteſtrings
Blck & cloth colour'd Taffity's
Martinico luteſtrings
Silk & cotton dit.
Paddleſticks & other fans
Damaſcus & Soſeas for waiſtcoats
Black & white Laces
Silk ſtay ditto
Mens hemp gloves
Dowlas Garlix and Hollands
Beſt warranted Linn Shoes
Ruſſia linnins & Diapers
White figur'd Dimothy's
Mens and Womens thread cotton and worſted hoſe
Black blue purple & cloth colour'd breeches Patterns
Mens and boys caſtor and felt Hatts
Flower'd lawn & Kenting Handkerchiefs
Ferrits & Gallooms
Shoe & quality binding
Horn Mettle & Twiſt Buttons
Sewing ſilk cruels & ſilk twiſt
Horn & Ivory Combs
Tapes Pinns Needles
Writing & preſs paper
Paper hangings for rooms
Looking Glaſſes
Chaiſe and hunting whips
Muffs and Tippitts
Beſt G. B. wool cards
Cotton wool
Pewter & Braſs
Knives & Forks
Shoe and knee buckles
Penknives Bellows
Nails
with an aſſortment of Hard Ware
Beſt of Kippens and Tillocks Snuff
Beſt Bohea Tea
Coffe
Chocolate
Pepper Allſpice
Nutmegs Cloves
Cinnamon
Ginger Allum
Coperas Brimſtone
Redwood Logwood
Rice, &c. &c. &c.

HARTFORD:
Printed by Green and Watson.

MONDAY, Sept. 25. 1769.

Numb. 249.

THE
Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

§¶§ The Public are deſired to correct a material Typographic error, which thro' inadvertency eſcaped unobſerv'd in our laſt, towards the bottom of the laſt Note, under the Remarks on the Comet, they are deſired to read 18500000 inſtead of 185000000.

STRAYED or Stolen from the Subſcriber of Coventry, in Connecticut, out of the Paſture of Jeremiah Atwater of New-Haven, on the night of the 13th Inſtant, a dark bay or brown Horſe, about fourteen hands & half high, has no Brand, thick ſet and well made, very rarely Trots, Paces ſquare and large, eight Years old laſt Spring.——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Horſe, and Thief, (if he be ſtolen) and return him to ſaid Atwater, or the ſubſcriber, ſhall have Three Dollars Reward, and all neceſſary Charges paid by

NATHAN STRONG.

September 22d. 1769.

NEW HAVEN, September 15.

Pearch'd on a ſtand eaſy to behold, you might laſt Tueſday have ſeen in the Market-Place of this Town an epitome of all the heart of an honeſt man can abominate in the perſon of an INFORMER, exhibiting to that whole "accurſed tribe" an inſtance of the ſpirit, reſolution and ability of the people, who can and will bring to a juſt demerit of their doings any one or their abettors who may hereafter be enough abandon'd under whatever pretence to give them countenance, or do the like.

A certain Nathan Smith, of this town, born and connected under the influence of him whoſe cognomen he bears, S—n, to gratify his particular pique, for a long while the ſubject of his machination, ſome few months ago lodged a regular information in the Cuſtom-Houſe againſt one of the firſt merchants in this place, him charging with the running of goods, in a place mentioned at a diſtance, and thereof falſely gave ſuch aſſurance, as cauſed to the collector much trouble and fruitleſs expence; the veſſel about which was the enquiry, being at that time in the Weſt-Indies, not taking ſuch rum on board.—Whereupon the aforeſaid S—n very prudently changed the ruling paſſion of his heart, malice, into that of caution and kept himſelf ſafe kennel'd until this event, when being caught he was advanced to the command of a cart, ſuitably dreſſed out for the voyage, on whoſe quarter-deck no one, except himſelf and his muſicians appeared, and thus equipt, he took his landmarks on board, and being well found & man'd eaſily made the moſt public ports of the town, proclaiming himſelf a Lyar, an Informer, a Peſt to Society, and the like, and until he got ſafe moor'd in the firſt mentioned birth.—Whence, after aſſuming thoſe juſticious and approbrious attitudes ſuited to his character, for a proper ſpace, he was conducted down, & pay'd well with as much tar feathers and infamy as he could wag home under convoy of certain gentlemen until clear of the mob to whom he acknowledged the uſage to be ſhort of his expectations, and returned them his thanks. By his appearance you would have rather thought that S—n had acquired the cognomen of Smith than Smith of S—n.—The whole being conducted by the principal Merchants, not the leaſt violence or diſorder was committed, but after a bonfire of a tar barrel, ſuitably elevated, all was quit.

On Wedneſday laſt was held the Anniverſary Commencement, in this Town, which was honoured by the attendance of a reſpectable Audience, compoſed of many of the principal Gentlemen of this and ſeveral of the neighbouring Colonies. The Proceſſion which began to move about half paſt ten A. M. conſiſted of the Students of the College the Candidates for the firſt and ſecond Degrees, the Tutors, the Beadle, the Preſident, Gov. Fitch, Counſellors, the Clergy, and Gentlemen of a liberal Education; after morning Prayers, the Exerciſes were introduced by a very elegant, Latin Oration pronounced by Mr. Strong, in which proper Salutations were made to the Audience in their reſpective Characters and Stations; which was followed by ſyllogiſtic Diſputations, performed by the Batchelors; after which the Auditory were agreeably entertained by an Engliſh Oration, on the powerful Charms of Eloquence, by Mr Keep; the animated & engaging Delivery of the Orator, gave the Audience a convincing Specimen of the juſtneſs of the Theme; the exerciſes of the Forenoon were concluded by an Anthem, ſung by the young Gentlemen of the College; after which the Proceſſion returned in the ſame Order as above.

The Exerciſes of the afternoon were opened by Mr. Baldwin, in a pathetic Funeral Oration on the Death of Mr. Lane, a late Tutor of the College—Diſputations were performed by the Maſters: and after conferring the degrees, the aſſembly were entertained with an agreeable Valedictory Oration, pronounced by Mr. Ingerſoll, after which was ſung another Anthem and the Exerciſes of the Day cloſed with Prayer.

The Degrees conferred were on the following young Gentlemen, (viz) Batchelors of Arts, Eliſha Allis, David Avery, Charles Backus, Abner Benedict, Leonard Cheſter, Samual Darling, Aſahel Dudley, Timothy Dwight, David Ely, Phineas Fanning, Daniel Groſvenor, Nathan Hale, John Hall, Jabez Hamlin, Robert Hubbard, Levi Hubbell, Samuel Johnſon, John Keep, David M'Cluer, Thomas Minor, Joſeph Patrick, George Phillips, William Seward, William Plum, Nathan Strong, Simeon Tryon; alſo, Nehemiah Williams, educated at Harvard College.

Maſters of Arts.

John Cheſter, James Lockwood, Nathaniel Brown Beckwith, Gorge Beckwith, Jonathan Ingerſoll, Thaddeus Maccarty, Jared Ingerſoll, Jonathan Fitch, Dudley Woodbridge, Stephen-Whitehead Hubbard, Rev. Andrew Lee, Jonathan Murdock, William St. John, Aſa Hall Lyon, Major Taylor, Thomas Kimberly, Hezekiah Chapman, Eliud Rockwell Gallub Hotchkiſs, & Moſes Graves,

The Degree of Maſter of Arts, was alſo conferred on the following Gentlemen, who had been educated at Yale College, viz

Moſes Kent, Eſq; Henry Cuyler, Eſq; Jonathan Sturges, Eſq; Samuel Gilbert, Stephen Van Ranſelaer, Eſq; Cyrus Brewſter, David Noble; Henry Jackſon Roger Conant, John Cheſter Williams, Elijah Fitch, John Elderkin. Alſo John Hancock, Eſq; and Mr. Thomas Brattle, educated at Harvard-College and the Rev. Jonathan Edwards, educated at Naſſau Hall, were admitted to the Degree of Maſters of Arts.

The whole was conducted with that Decorum which will reflect Honor on the young Gentlemen concerned, and to the utmoſt Satiſfaction of a learned, polite, and brillian Aſſembly.

The Rev. Mr. Eliphalet Williams, of Hartford, is choſen one of the Fellows, of Yale-College, in this Town, in the Room, of his Father, the Rev. Mr. Williams of Lebanon, who has reſign'd.

And, Mr. Joſeph Howe, is appointed a Tutor of ſaid College, in the Room of Mr. Miethel, reſign'd.

Laſt evening a number of gentlemen (whether juſt 45 or not cannot be aſcertained) with hearts glowing with an ardent fire for liberty & to ſhew their zealous affection to the glorious cauſe, as well as their undiſſembled joy at the public tranſactions of the week, inſtead of drinking 45 glaſſes in honor of Wilkes and Liberty, (as has been cuſtomary) drank themſelves 45 degrees in extreme DRUNK; which they effected by juſt 45 minutes after midnight which, advancing into college yard (to make their joy public as poſſible) they manifeſted to the full conviction of every auditor, by BAWLING in concert juſt 45 times, making the heavens ring with joyous peals, ſometimes Wilkes and Liberty, ſometims No. 45, but for the moſt part their joy was too great to admit of articulation; this laſted juſt 45 minutes—when the degrees of their drunkeneſs a little abating, they ſought for a recruit at ſome neighbouring taverns, but meeting with a repulſe, they retired with the utmoſt *Ir*Regularity to their lodgings——'it is reported that ſome of theſe gentlemen in concert with others decorated the commencement at Cambridge with a ſimilar exerciſe of bawling, but met with ſome obſtruction from the civil magiſtrates——It has been conjectured by ſome they would meet with the like oſtructions here, but 'tis begged they might not—as it might effectually hinder for the future, the town's being ſerenaded by ſuch ſweet concerts of melodious bawling.

NEW-LONDON, Sept. 8.

By Capt Blakeney, who arrived laſt Friday from St. Croix and Turk's Iſlands, we are informed, that juſt before he left the former, one George Cornell, well known in Newport for almoſt every infamous action of the power of men to commit, was diſcovered there of giving Information to the Hon. Board of commiſſioners, with reſpect to the trade in that and ſome other Iſlands on the continent. Mr. Cornell met with Part of the Treatment ſuch Gentry as he ſometimes receive, and aways delerez. We are told he juſt eſcaped with life.——A Gentleman who came with Capt. Blakeney ſays, he ſaw ſeveral Letters from Mr. Commiſſioner Robinſon to this wretch, copies of which were put up at the public Houſes. A Gentleman at St. Croix has ſent a copy of one of Cornell's letters to his honour, which we give the Public, verbatim.——Mr. Cornell wrote a letter to Capt. Blakeney, in which he acknowleges himſelf the writer of the letter to Mr. Robinſon, ſays he intended no Harm, and begs to be taken off the Iſland, where he expected every Moment to be put to death by the Populace; but Capt Blakeney did not chuſe to comply with this requeſt

[Cornell's Letter will be in our next.]

PORTSMOUTH, New Hampſhire Sept 8.

Laſt Sunday Evening departed this Life, in this town, much lamented Capt. George Henderſon, of Boſton, aged 28 Years——whoſe death was occaſioned by a moſt ſorrowful and affecting accident in an Affray between him and Capt. Morris Cavenaugh, of London, laſt Friday Evening who wounded him ſo greatly that he died laſt Sunday of ſaid Wounds, and on Tueſday the deceaſed was decently and honorably interred; the principal Gentlemen & Ladies attending his Funeral. The unhappy Capt. Cavenaugh has voluntarily ſurrendered himſelf up to Juſtice——The Jury of Inqueſt found as follows, viz That the ſaid George Henderſon, came to his Death by a violent Blow or Blows given him by the ſaid Cavenaugh, in the Rencounter between them, which was the Occaſion of his Death.

The farther particulars of this unhappy Affair may perhaps be given hereafter. Capt. Cavenaugh's Trial, we hear, will come on at the court of Aſſize to be held here the 18th Inſtant.

Confines of Poland, June 16.

THE Confederates having failed in their attempt againſt Leopold, turned afterwards upon Lublin, were reinforced by between five and ſix hundred men whom they carried off from the Dragoons and Uhlans belonging to the Crown. The courſe of the poſts is ſince very much interrupted, eſpecially in regard to ſuch letters as come from Podolia, Volhinia, and the Ruſſian army; ſo that we have abſolutely no account at all concerning them, nor reſpecting the Turks. Major Drewitz is preparing to diſperſe the Confederates, who, on the other ſide, ſeem to carry their views as far as Warſaw; and as that Officer is to be reinforced by a body of troops, which is marching from Lithuania, we expect ſoon to have the news of a bloody action.

Warſaw, June 16. Accounts from the frontiers of Turkey mention, that the Ruſſian army has received a freſh ſupply of proviſions, and that Price Gallitzin, having been reinforced with a large body of Coſſacks, had diſpatched a courier to Prince Proforowſki, who was within a few leagues of the Grand Vizir's army, in order to know how the Turks were poſted; ſo that the account of a general engagement is hourly expected.

June 4 By letters from Jamaica, we hear, that the inhabitants of St. Domingo, after having taken arms and beat the French King's troops, ſent a memorial to the Court of France, deſcribing the neceſſity they were under to ſupport their rights, which had been cruelly invaded by the Governor, and requeſting the King to recall him, and ſome other obnoxious perſons declaring their reſolution to die, than longer ſubmit to the arbitary treatment they had lately met with.

The principal authors of the commotions in the iſland of St. Domingo, are ſaid to be Monſr de Mariſhall, a Planter of great fortune, and M. Belloy, a Phyſician; who got moſt the Boſton and Virginia Remonſtrances tranſlated into French, and circulated them amongſt them in order to excite them to ſupport their liberties, after the example of the Britiſh ſubjects in America.

On a tomb-ſtone in Heyden Church yard, near Hull, in Yorkſhire, is the following inſcription:—"Here lies the body of William Stuart, of Pauntio, buried May 18, 1085 aged 97 years. He had children by his firſt wife 28; by his ſecond 17; own father to 45. Grand father to 68; great grand father to 97; great, great grand father to 23; all 291."

July 6. A correſpondent ſays, It has been obſerved that viſible marks of diſguſt have been imprinted on the faces of every citizen of London ever ſince Wendneſday laſt

It is confidently ſaid the moſt effectual methods will be purſued to put a ſtop to the petitions ſaid to be in agitation in ſeveral parts of this kingdom, the weight they may have with a certain perſonage being much dreaded by the miniſterial party.

It is alſo ſaid, that whoever appears at the head of public affairs muſt unavoidably adopt the ſame meaſures which have been purſued for ſome time paſt, as none are allowed to guide, the plan having been laid down by the Thane previous to his Journey, and ratified ſince at Zell, ſo that a change of men, and not of meaſures is all, according to ſome, that is to be expected.

It is ſaid that a great man has ſtrenuouſly adviſed the compliance with certain articles in a late requeſt.

It is reported that a court of common council will be held in a few days to take into conſideration a letter addreſſed to a Chief Magiſtrate from a great man at the weſt end of the town.

A few days ago a gentleman in the city, of conſiderable dealings, received a meſſage from the Weſt end of the town, purporting, that if he intereſts himſelf any farther in the city elections, he muſt never expect to ſee his name again in any future liſt.

We hear that next week a petition, from Litchfield, in Staffordſhire, will be preſented to his Majeſty on the preſent ſtate of affairs.

Eaſt-India Houſe, July 3 1769.

The Queen Eaſt Indiaman, Capt. Stanforth, is arrived off Falmouth; the letters by her are dated the 6th of Jan. 1769, and bring advice, that the deputies who were ſent to Illahabad have concluded a new treaty with Sujad Dowlah, who has acquieſced in the moſt eſſential parts of the Company's juſt pretenſions. Nothing new from Fort St. George and Bombay.

Sunday ſe'nnight, a divine preached an excellent Sermon at the Church near Lewiſham in Kent, from St. Mathew, Chap 14 10. "And he ſent and beheaded John in priſon." The Lord Mayor happened to be preſent.

Extract of a letter from Paris, June 23.

"Some advices, by the way of Lyons, inform us, that the Pope, ſome days after his coronation, cauſed the General of the Jeſuits and ſix of his aſſiſtants to be conducted to the Caſtle of St. Angelo; and that Cardinal Torregiani hath been baniſhed Rimani, becauſe that by ſome proofs which the court of Spain hath communicated, they are all convicted of having been the authors of ſome conſpiracies in Spain. Their effects are all ſequeſtered."

July 1. We hear Col Barre will very ſoon preſent a private memorial to his ———, to requeſt an anſwer to the Merchants and Inhabitants of Boſton in New England. If that does not obtain an anſwer, it's ſaid a great number of the moſt coſiderable traders of America, who are at this time in England, intend waiting upon his——— in perſon for the Purpoſe.

July 4. We hear from Gaſworth in Cheſhire, that a cow having got a diſorder called the hoſk, the owner was adviſed to give her tar, cream, and welken berries. A few days after ſhe declined her food and was very bad; and, to the aſtoniſhment of many people, diſcharged a worm in a putrefacted ſtate, which meaſured upwards of ten feet in length, and conjectured to be, when in full vigour, ſix inches in circumference. This creature, upon examination, was found to have in its belly the ſame ſuccour as the cow had received from the ground, ſome of which was found in its throat: its head was mortified. Its belly was ſcaled like a ſerpent, and in all other reſpects the ſame, except the colour, and being ſo wonderfully large.——The cow, 'tis thought, will do well with taking another doſe of the above.

There is now living near Leadhills in the ſhire of Lanark, Scotland, Mr. John Taylor born in Yorkſhire, and who is aged 142 years.

[Character of Governor MOORE, whoſe Death was mentioned in our laſt]

HE took the Command (of N York), in Nov 1765 (a Month never to be forgotton for the Storms & Tumults excited by the peſtilent Stamp-Act!) and has conducted himſelf, in an Adminiſtration uncommonly perplexed by the public conteſts between the mother country and America, with ſuch a Degree of Wiſdom and temper, as to gain the approbation of his Sovereign and the Eſteem of the People committed to his care——marks of diſtreſſing affliction appear in every countenance; for we had hopes of his continuing at the Helm, till the dark clouds that have ſo long impeded, were totally diſpelled.———

He ſupported his Government with Dignity and Splendor; and having as juſt a ſenſe of the Liberty of the Subject, as of the Prerogatives of the crown, his adminiſtration cannot be impeached by a ſingle act of oppreſſion on the one hand, or Infidelity on the other,—Juſt, fair, clement and generous to all; and affectionately concerned for the colony, he eized every oppertunity to promote its Proſperity;—and if in any Inſtance obſtructed by the Malignity of the Times, no member of the community was more ready than he, to deviſe and execute Meaſures for gratifying the public wiſh; and advancing the common Weal.

Inheriting an unuſual Share of affluence from his anceſtors his Education was liberal, and ſo were his Principles—He countenanced merit, regardleſs of all narrow, Party Diſtinctions, whether of a civil or religious nature; and was thereby eminently qualified to govern a Colony conſiſting of proteſtants of various denominations.———He has attended Divine Worſhip at moſt of our churches, and in no Part of his conduct diſcovered an illiberal Partiality to any Sect, or that contempt of all, ſo often the foible of men in elevated ſtations.

But this is not a time, to draw the character of our late worthy Governor at full length; we mean only to ſuggeſt a Hint to thoſe at a Diſtance, in Juſtification of our ſenſe of the loſs, which this colony has ſuſtained, by a calamity doubly ſevere from the peculiar ſtate and Complexion of our public affairs——No Period will efface the favourable Impreſſions he has left upon our minds, and every future Governor will deſerve commendation, in Proportion as he poſſeſſes the abilities and imitates the Example of Sir HENERY MOORE.

The Governor's remains were interred the Evening of the next Day, in the chancel of Trinity church. The Corps was preceeded by the 16th Regiment, the charity School Boys, and then by the clergy of all Perſuaſions.——His Majeſty's council ſupported the Pall—His Excellency General Gage and Lord Drummond followed among the Mourning Relations; and in the Suit were the Phyſicians, the Judges, the Mayor, Magiſtrates and whole corporation, the members of the General Aſſembly, the Field Officers, the captains of his Majeſty's Ships of War, and the General's Staff, the commiſſioners for ſettling the line of Partition, between this and the colony of New Jerſey, the Surveyor General and Officers of the cuſtoms, the attorney General and Gentlemen of the Law, the Faculty of King's college, and the principal Inhabitants of the city.—The artillery brought up the rear——From the Moment he expired, all the colours in the Harbour were half-hoiſted,—all the Bells tolled a great Part of the Day.———Minute-Guns were fired, during the Proceſſion from the Fort to the church, which was illuminated——The Military Honours were paid with a ſtriking Solemnity: and every Mark of Reſpect ſhewn, which the Rank and Station of the Deceaſed required, and which became an afflicted, grateful and affectionate People.———

BOSTON, September 21.

The Merchants and others in Connecticut, who have agreed not to import any goods from Great Britain, are hereby informed, that the Committee of Inſpection here have diſcovered that a Cheſt of Tea purchaſed of Thomas and Eliſha Hutchinſon has been lately ſhiped on Board a Sloop belonging to Hartford in Connecticut, and now bound for ſaid Place, commanded by Capt. George Butler, who acknowledged he recived the ſaid Tea from the ſaid Hutchinſons, and paid them for the ſame. The Committee found alſo on board ſaid Sloop ſeveral other Cheſts of Tea, but have not as yet diſcovered of whom they were purchaſed, but have Reaſon to ſuſpect one other Cheſt beſides that abovementioned, was purchaſed of the Hutchinſon's.—This Information is given, that the Merchants in Connecticut may conduct with Reſpect to this Matter, as they may think proper.

Saturday laſt arrived here the ſloop Betſey, Capt. Small from Grenada, but laſt from St. Euſtatia, by whom we have the St. Chriſtophers Gazette of the 19th of Auguſt, which contains the following account of a dreadful Fire which lately happened at Antigua viz. Baſſaterre, Auguſt 19. Mr. Lumley Woodyear, yeſterday from Antigua informs us, that a fire broke out in the town of St. John's on Wedneſday laſt, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, which has conſumed the principal part of that town; moſt part of the ſtores and wharves are burnt down, and at 9 o'Clock the cuſtom-houſe took fire, and in conſequence of which all the adjacent ſtores muſt inevitably undergo the ſame fate. At 10 o'clock, the time that Mr. Woodyear left that place, the fire was very violent in many parts of the town. In ſhort words cannot deſcribe the diſmal ſcene. It is ſaid nothing will eſcape the flames, except the court-houſe and guard houſe.-------The Fire firſt began in an oven."

NEW-HAVEN, Sept 22.

Laſt Tueſday, the Freemen of this Town, made Choice of Col Whiting, and Mr Chandler, to repreſent them in the next General Aſſembly.

I ADONIJAH THOMAS, of the Town of New Haven, and Pariſh of Weſt Haven, do in the Preſence of the Gentlemen Merchants, and Inhabitants of the Trading town of ſaid New Haven, humbly acknowledge that I have attempted to inform againſt Mr. Timothy Jones, jun'r, for running of goods, for which I now humbly beg Pardon of the whole Inhabitants of this Colony, and this town in particular; and hope the ſaid Inhabitants will receive me into their former Favor and Eſteem: And acknowledge that my Puniſhment is far leſs than the Demerit of my heinous crime deſerves.

ADONIJAH THOMAS.

Dated New Haven, Sept. 21, 1769

This confeſſion being publiſhed, the Inhabitants in general, forgave the Informer, and diſperſ'd, without the leaſt Diſorder; having firſt declared, that whoever attempts to do the like, or to ſupport or encourage any of thoſe mean Wretches, who may be hardy enough to attempt any Thing of the like Nature, that they may expect to receive a reward adequate to their Crimes.

HARTFORD, Sept. 25, 1769.

We hear from Wallingford, that a ſociety of Singing-Maſters who have voluntarily aſſociated, with a view to encourage Pſalmody in this government, at their laſt meeting there, agreed to meet at the South Meeting-Houſe, in this Town the firſt Wedneſday of October next, at one o'Clock in the afternoon, when ſeveral new pieces of Muſic will be performed, both with voices and Inſtruments, and a Sermon preached on the Occaſion.

The Freemen of this Town, at their Meeting on Tueſday laſt, made choice of Mr. BENJAMIN PAYNE and Col. JOHN PITKIN, to repreſent them in the General Aſſembly in October next.

For the benefit of the Public, is lately come from Utopia, the truly noted Aſs, MOUNTEBANK.

LIKE the extraordinary I—c G——tt, I am the ſeventh Colt of a ſeventh Colt, but have much more to boaſt than he can pretend to. I am deſcended in a right line from Pegaſus, univerſally known and famed; from the noted Aſs Bucephalus, who condeſcended to accompany Alexander the Great, and aſſiſted him in the conqueſt of the world; and can trace my pedigree down through that famous nation of Aſſes, the Houyhnhyms, ſo juſtly celebrated by the learned Gulliver in his account of his travels. Thus having the advantage of the travels and experience of ſuch illuſtrious Anceſtors, I have become more than equal to them all in natural and acquired knowledge; Witneſs the method of cure for all diſeaſes, by me invented, ſhorter than can be pretended to by any other. My whole practice conſiſts in a properly alert application of of my hind hoof to the head of the Patient, whereby inſtantly, like the antient River Lethe, I totally abliterate all remembrance of all paſt bodily pains and diſeaſes whatſoever, and as effectually prevent all future uneaſineſſes in this world.—As I readily practice Gratis on all who apply at my Stable, ſo Meſſieurs Printers you will be ſo kind as to publiſh this, for the good of the Public without fee or Reward——I am the Public's humble and obedient Aſs.

MOUNTEBANK.

P. S Should any object, to my deriving my pedigree from Pegaſus, &c. that they were Horſes, I anſwer that the ancients all called them Aſſes; Horſe being a modern name which I diſdain to aſſume.

WOOL,

A Quantity of the beſt

LONG-ISLAND Fleeſe WOOL, to be ſold cheap by the Fleece, for Caſh only——Enquire of Nathaniel Burnham, of Eaſt-Hartford.

ALL PERSONS indebted to the late partnerſhip of Gardiner & Jepſon, by book ſtill unſettled are once more deſired to ſettle the ſame immediately either by Caſh or their Obligations; and thoſe indebted by their Obligations, are deſired to diſcharge the ſame, as ſaid Partnerſhip has now been five years expired, otherwiſe they muſt expect to be Sued forthwith.

ALSO all Perſons indebted to ſaid Jepſon, on book, whoſe accounts are of more than one Years ſtanding, that unleſs they ſettle the ſame, either by Caſh or their Obligations, they muſt expect Trouble, and thoſe whoſe obligations are now due, are deſired to make ſpeedy payment. Said Jepſon Acquaints his Cuſtomers and others, that he has for ſale a large quantity of choice DRUGGS and MEDICINES, which he will ſell wholeſale and retail, at the very loweſt Prices, for Caſh or ſhort Credit. Alſo Surgeon's Capital Inſtruments, Crooked Needles, Patented Medicines, good and genuine as Bateman's Drops, Lockyer's Pills, Turlington's Balſam of Life, &c. Logwood, Fuſtick, Allum, Copperas, &c &c.

Hartford, Sept. 25, 1769

For the benefit of the Public,

IS on his way from the Ottowawa country the celebrated Indian Doctor

Wyantonomoo, or the Diſeaſe-killer.

WHO has ſtudied the nature of Plants, Trees, Herbs and Roots, for forty years, and has travelled thro' all the tribes of Indians, from Hudſon's Bay to the Northward. To Patagonia, in South America, and has conferred with the oldeſt and moſt experienced Weauchntois or doctors in fifty different tribes of Indians, & has fully acquainted himſelf with all ſimples, their virtues and uſes. He cures by the uſe of ſimples only, Conſumptions, Coughs, Catarrh's, Dropſys, Scurveys, Hyſterics, Inward Bleedings, the Stone and Gravel, Gout and Rheumatiſm——All breakings out upon the ſkin, Cancers, Wens, the King's-evil. He cures all diſorders of the Eyes, and in ſome caſes, can even reſtore ſight to the blind, by an eaſy method he takes away all pains from broken and fractured limbs in ſix hours——He expels wind, and worms, and in general, cures all diſorders incident to the human body, in men women and children. His fee is moderate, to be returned when he comes from Cohoſs, if the cure is not then effected, which will be likely next December———He does for the poor Gratis, and has no fee for his interpreter. He will be to be ſpoke with at Mrs. Shaylors tavern in Middletown, on the Friday after next, and the Monday following at Mr. Bulls tavern in Hartford, and the next Wedneſday at Mr. Kents tavern in Suffield, and the Fryday following at Capt. Lymans tavern in Northampton.

N. B. He has an eaſy and effectual remedy for the Itch, which wholly cures it without inconvenience or danger be it ever ſo inveterate.

Phillips's Patent,
September 20th, 1769.

We the Subſcribers being appointed by the hon. Judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, Commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the Creditors to the eſtate of Iſaac Brownſon, of Bolton, (repreſented Inſolvent) do hereby give public notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs, at the houſe of Peter Olcott, Innholder in ſaid Bolton, on the firſt Tueſdays of October, Nov. & Dec next, from 2 till 9 o'Clock Afternoon.

BENJAMIN TALCOTT, } Commiſſi-
THOMAS PITKIN. } oners.

 BLANKS of moſt Kinds, uſed in this Colony, ſold by the Printers.

Pet. Verſtille,

(At his Store in Weathersfield)
Has juſt received a Quantity of GOODS and will ſell them at the very loweſt prices for Caſh only VIZ.

BROAD Cloths,
Ratteens,
Coatings,
Duffles,
Kerſeys,
Half Thicks,
Serges,
Sagathy's,
Duroys,
Bazes,
Shalloons,
Tammy's,
Durants & Calamancoes
Camblets,
Plain & figur'd Cambleteens,
Dorſeteens,
Hungarian Stuffs
Poplins
Miſſinets
Dreſdinets
Grezetts
Green Blue Brown & Yallow Brolioes
Black Silk
Crapes
Black Bombazines
Black and Cloth colour'd Drawboys
Brown and Olive colour'd Fuſtians
Brown and white Stay Buckrams
Black figur'd Laſtings
Cotton Checks of all widths
Red & white & blue & white ſtript Hollands
Pelong Sattins of moſt colours
Sarſnets ſorted colours
Shear & thick Muſlins
Cambricks
Lawns
Black and white Cat-gut
Black and white Parſenetts
Black and white plain gauze
Black & white figur'd ditto
Black and Crimſon Capuchine Silks
Mens and Womens leather Gloves and Mittens of all colours
Womens Silk & worſted Gloves & Mitts
3 4 & 7-8 bed ticking
A fine aſſortment of Chints & Callicoes
Black and colour'd Barcelona handkerchiefs
Gauze Linnin & Silk ditto
Black Cravatts
Black and ſcarlet Snail Trimmings
Head flowers
Neclaces & Ribbons
Silvertipits & turbands
Gap Wiers Velvet Maſks
Sattin hatts & bonnets
Black cloth colours & changeable luteſtrings
Blck & cloth colour'd Taffity's
Martinico luteſtrings
Silk & cotton dit.
Paddleſticks & other fans
Damaſcus & Soſeas for waiſtcoats
Black & white Laces
Silk ſtay ditto
Mens hemp gloves
Dowlas Garlix and Hollands
Beſt warranted Lina Shoes
Ruſſia linnins & Diapers
White figur'd Dimothy's
Mens and Womens thread cotton and worſted hoſe
Black blue purple & cloth colour'd breeches Patterns
Mens and boys caſtor and felt Hatts
Flower'd lawn & Kenting Handkerchiefs
Ferrits & Galloons
Shoe & quality binding
Horn Mettle & Twiſt Buttons
Sewing ſilk cruels & ſilk Twiſt
Horn & Ivory Combs
Tapes Pinns Needles
Writing & preſs paper
Paper hangings for rooms
Looking Glaſſes
Chaiſe and hunting whips
Muffs and Tippitts
Beſt G. B. wool cards
Cotton wool
Pewter & Braſs
Knives & Forks
Shoe and knee buckles
Penknives Bellows
Nails
with an aſſortment of Hard Ware
Beſt of Kippens and Tillocks Snuff
Beſt Bohea Tea
Coffe
Chocolate
Pepper Allſpice
Nutmegs Cloves
Cinnamon
Ginger Allum
Coperas Brimſtone
Redwood Logwood
Rice, &c. &c. &c.

HARTFORD:
Printed by Green and Watson.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by
FISHER GAY, of Farmington,
WILLIAM STANTON of Litchfield
KNIGHT SEXTON, and
GREEN & WATSON of Hartford,

A PLAN of

EXERCISE,

ORDERED by the General Aſſembly of the Colony of Connecticut, in May laſt to be uſed by the Militia of this Colony—extracted from the Plan of Diſcipline for the

NORFOLK MILITIA.

Likewiſe juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the above place,

Brief REMARKS,

On a Number of FALSE PROPOSITIONS and DANGEROUS ERRORS, which are ſpreading in the Country; collected out of ſundry Diſcourſes lately publiſhed, wrote by Dr. Whitaker and Mr. Hopkins. Written by Way of DIALOGUE.

By WILLIAM HART,
Paſtor of the firſt Church of Chriſt in Saybrook.

Farmington, Sept. 12, 1769.

RUN-Away from the ſubſcriber of Farmington, on the 1ſt of Sept. inſt. a Molatto, Indian and Negro blood, named John Way, about 30 years of age, about 6 feet high, ſlim built, ſpeaks good Engliſh, ſmall voice, wears his own black hair, quiew'd behind the fore part of his head ſhav'd—Had on when he went away an old felt hatt, a light flannel waiſtcoat, without ſleeves, a check'd linnen ſhirt, ſhort white tow trowſers, blue yarn ſtockings, a pair ſingle ſoal'd ſhoes.——Whoever will take up ſaid ſervant, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's goals, or return him to his maſter, ſhall be reaſonably rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid. by

p ELIAKIM DEMING.

Wanted Immediately,

A Healthy Lad, that can be well recommended, as an apprentice to the Black-Smith buſineſs, Enquire of the PRINTERS.

☞ One that has work'd at the buſineſs would be moſt acceptable, and would have ſmall wages allow'd him.

To be ſold at Public

Vendue the 2d day of Octo. next, at the houſe of Capt. Timothy Seymour of Weſt-Hartford, at two o'Clock afternoon (or at private ſale any time before)

A Farm of Land containing about 60 acres, all under good improvements about 25 acres of choice Mowing land the reſt well proportion'd into plow and paſturing Land, with a good orchard and butting on a river, whereon is now ſtanding a good new dwelling houſe about 40 feet long and 30 feet wide well finiſhed with a good barn and out houſes and a good well, within 3 quarters of a mile of the meeting houſe.

LIkewiſe to be ſold at the ſame time and place a dwelling houſe, barn and out-houſes, and about 9 acres of good land with a good orchard half a mile from the Meeting houſe very convenient for a tradeſman---for terms of ſale enquire of

EZEKIEL WILLIAMS.

Hartford Sept. 4. 1769

A Likely Negro garl about 12 years old Country born, to be ſold, Enquire of

The PRINTERS.

Strayed or STOLEN

From the ſubſcriber of Weathersfield, the 24 Aug. laſt, a Sorrel Mare, about 13 hands high both paces and trots, branded with W on the left ſhoulder, and A, on her left thigh, very thick ſet a white ſtar in her face whoever ſhall take up ſaid Mare and return her to the owner or ſecure her ſo that he may have her again ſhall be reaſonably rewarded and if ſtole, and the thief taken and bro't to juſtice Five Dollars Reward will be given and all reaſonable charges paid by

JOSEPH RICHARDS, jun.

Weathersfield, Sept. 1, 1769.

TO BE SOLD

(Lying between the weſtern Branch of the River Delaware, and the eaſtermoſt Branch of the Suſquehannah)

20,000 Acres of Land

well proportioned with plow, meadow and paſture Land, with a Variety of Streams running through it, very commodious for the erecting Mills, &c. within about eight Miles of Schoharrey, 40 of Albany, and 40 of the Kaats Kills. Any Perſon inclining to ſettle on the above Lands, may apply to the Subſcriber in Eaſt Windſor (who intends ſoon to remove and ſettle on the ſame) who will ſell on the moſt reaſonable Terms, and give good Warrantee Deeds to the Purchaſers.

JOHN HARPER, jun:

Eaſt Windſor, Auguſt 26, 1769. 7w45

For the Benefit of the ſick and afflicted,
Has juſt arrived from LONDON,

Iſaac Calcott,

A Seventh Son of a Seventh Son.

WHO, after ſeveral years travelling abroad, has obtained the art of cureing with God's aſſiſtance, all cureable diſorders, both in the Body and Eyes. I ſhall not ſpeak of cures never performed, as many, do; but let my Medicines and practice merit your applauſe—Any perſon wanting Mr. Calcott's aſſiſtance, and can't come in perſon, may ſend a bottle, with the firſt water they make in the morning, by which I ſhall know what diſorder attends the perſon. I cure, with God's aſſiſtance, viz. King's-evil, Vapour's, Rheumatiſm, Cancer, Wens, Deafneſs, Rupture, Yaws, Sore throat, Head ach, Fitts, Conſumption, Bloody flux, Veneral diſorders, Tooth-ach without drawing, Cholic, Fever and Ague, Yellow Jaundice, Worms Dropſy, Scurvey in the blood, Piles, Gleet, &c. &c.

Any of my medicines may be had of me, on Monday, at Mr. Samuel Eaſton's at Eaſt-Hartford; on Tueſday at Mr. Porter's Tavern at Eaſt-Windſor; on Wedneſday, at Mr. Buck's tavern at Weathersfield; on Thurſday at Mr. Pomeroy's tavern in Rocky-Hill; on Friday, at the Wid. Shaylor's tavern in Middletown; and on Saturday at Mr. Hale's tavern in Glaſtenbury.

N. B. My Worm powders, 1/6 My Tooth-ach drops cures ſaltning and whitning the teeth 1/6 The royal beautifying water for taking off all freckels, ſun-burn marks, or ſpots of the ſkin, and makes it ſoft and white 1/6 all with directions.

J. Morton,

At his Store in Hartford, on the North ſide the Green in the Houſe of Mrs. Sarah Edwards,

HAS a good Aſſortment of Dry Goods, Iron-Mongery, Earthen Ware, Glaſs Ware, and beſt London Pewter, blown and Rock Salt

N. B. Said Morton intending for Europe, in the Fall, will ſell off what goods he has on hand, very low for Caſh or Produce.

Hartford

MONDAY, Oct. 2, 1769. Numb. 250.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

NEWYORK, Sept 21.

Saturday laſt arrived here the Earl of Haliſax, Packet Capt. Bolderſon, in 32 days from Falmouth, by whom we have London Prints to the 10th of Auguſt, from whence we have the following Advice, viz.

LONDON, July 20.

WE are informed, that almoſt all the Freeholders in and near Kingſton have already ſigned the Surry Petition, and it is thought that nine in every ten of the reſident Freeholders in the county will follow their example.

It is ſaid that Petitions will ſhortly be preſented from Norwich, Lyn, Yarmouth, and other towns in Norfolk.

The greateſt vigilance has been exerted by the M——y to prevent the Freeholders of the county of Kent, from aſſembling to conſider of a Petition at the preſent juncture; but we hear it is univerſally determined to approach the throne with their complaints.

July 25. On Saturday ſeveral of the Nobility waited on the Earl of Bute, at his houſe in South Audley Streed, to compliment him on his arrival in town. His Lordſhip enjoys better health than he has for ſome years paſt.

Extract of a letter from Briſtol, June 22.

On Tueſday laſt there was a meeting of the Citizens at Guildhall, in order to conſider of, and draw up a petion, on the preſent ſituation of national affairs when Henry Cruger, Eſq; was choſen Chairman,——After which a queſtion was deſired to be propoſed, Whether there ſhould be a Petition or not? which was carried with only one diſſenting voice.

It is ſaid that Lord B——'s being ſent for in ſuch haſte, is on account of the preſent critical ſituation of ſome of the friends, and particularly a late P———r.

It is remarkable, that the return of a Noble Peer from abroad, was made with ſo much privacy, that not the leaſt account has arrived from any town, either in this or in foreign Kingdoms, of his paſſage thorugh ſuch places. Many, however, aſſert, that he has actually been arrived here theſe two months; while ſome, perhaps more ſceptical, doubt whether he has ever been abroad at all.

Since the arrival of a certain Nobleman bets are greatly in favour of the preſent Miniſtry, as, it is ſaid, conciliating meaſures are ſtrongly recommended to them.

July 27. We can aſſure our readers, upon the beſt grounds, that all the reports of the Earl of C—th—m having declared in a certain high place, that he approves and will ſupport the meaſures of the preſent adminiſtration, are totally deſtitute of truth, and propagated in order to miſlead the public, by an artifice equally mean and unavailing; nothing being more certain, than that the above Noble Earl has the juſteſt ſenſe of the fatal miſchiefs in which the error of Adminiſtration have involved both King and People; and that this Noble Peer truly reverences and loves the whole frame of our wiſe conſtitution, whereof the tranſcendent and ſacred right to free and independent elections is the only ſure baſis.

It is ſaid the miniſtry are the more confident in perſevering in their preſent mode of Adminiſtration, becauſe the arrival of a certain Earl from abroad, has thrown ſuch an additional weight in their favour; and it is ſaid, he entirely approves of every ſtep they have taken.

July 29. A letter from Exeter gives an account of the ill treatment of the D. of B. there, and adds, that the mob not only hiſſed his Grace, but threw dirt at him, as he was going into the Cathedral to be inſtalled as Lord Lieutenant, and endeavoured to preſs him down; that his Grace was ſhoved down on his hands, and the Chancellor thrown quite down; and that if his Grace had not been conveyed by a private door to the Biſhop's Palace, it is thought he would have been trampled to death.

The above letter ſays, "The Gentlemen of Devonſhire have had a meeting at Exeter, to conſider of a petition: Another meeting is to be held the 5th of October. Devonſhire will be followed by Somerſet and Cornwall. Sir Richard Bamfield, in the riot laſt Tueſday, had the misfortune to loſe a joint of one of his fingers. I cannot conclude without mentioning a remarkable declaration made to his Grace by a well dreſſed man, who was coming from Guildhall, "The red in your Grace's face is dyed with the ruin of your country."

In order to appeaſe the minds of the people, and effectually to reconcile all parties, both at home and abroad, it is now whiſpered, that Lord Bute will be appointed firſt Lord of the Treaſury, and the Duke of Grafton retire with a Penſion.

It is alſo ſaid, that Sir Fletcher Norton will be appointed Lord High Chancellor.

It is ſaid that Paoli, who arrived here from Leghorn, expreſſed a deſire to ſee the King's Bench; not ſo much on account of the celebrated Patriot now immured there, but that he might contemplate the ſpot, where Theodore, his predeceſſor both in command and misfortune, drew his laſt breath.

The rough treatment a certain noble D— lately received in a place of worſhip, we hear, has determined him not to be ſo pious for the future.

They write from Vienna, that the moſt outragious diſorder reigns in the Turkiſh dominions, from which the moſt melancholy conſequences are expected with regard to Poland, and perhaps all Europe.

Auguſt 1. The report of Paoli's being arrived in London is intirely without foundation. The laſt letters from Leghorn mention that the illuſtrious Corſicans intended to ſettle in Switzerland, and had taken a large farm there.

There is no proſpect of a reconciliation with the contending parties, though many overtures have been made to the Outs, which, on account of their particular reſtriction on a late county election, have been all rejected.

On Saturday laſt Col. Morris and his Lady the Dutcheſs Dowager of Gordon, arrived at their houſe in Harly Street, from North-America.

The Duke of Cumberland's ſquadron ſtill remains at Spithead.

Extract of a Letter from Portſmouth, July 29.

"A ſingular circumſtance happened here yeſterday morning, which has occaſioned a good deal of converſation. While his R. H. the D. of G. was reviewing the Marines, a woman decently dreſſed, with a beautiful little gairl in her arms, made ſeveral attempts to ſpeake to his H——ſs, but was kept off by the ſoldiers, till at length ſhe grew ſo importunate, ſaying ſhe had buſineſs of the utmoſt conſequence to communicate, and made ſuch a diſturbance, that the D. enquired the cauſe, and on being told of the woman's application, ordered an Officer to acquaint her, he would hear what ſhe had to ſay at his apartments, where the woman ſoon after attended, and declared to a Gentleman; who ſent out to know her buſineſs, that the child was nearly related to his H———ſs, being the daughter of a great late, Naval Officer, who was not more diſtinguiſhed by his ſtation, than his many amiable qualities; the woman ſaid ſhe was an upper ſervant in a certain Nobleman's houſe, where the above Great Officer reſided ſome years ago, when he was going out on an expedition; that ſoon after ſhe was brought to bed, ſhe married a perſon employed about the Dock-yard, from whom ſhe concealed her having had the child, but as her haſband left her, ſhe thought it her duty to publiſh the circumſtance. The ſtory was corroborated by ſeveral perſons who knew the woman, and further ſtrengthened by the great ſimilarity there appeared between the gairl and the declared father; upon which his R. H. with great affability, after kiſſing the child, put a twenty pound bank note into her hand, and aſſured the mother if ſhe convinced him of the truth of her ſtory, ſhe ſhould be provided for.

Auguſt 3. By letters from Leghorn, dated July 8, which arrived yeſterday, we learn, that Gen. Paoli was then in that City, and that his brother Clement was dangerouſly ill.

The ſame letters mention, that great numbers of Corſican Gentry, whom the love of liberty had animated to abandon their own country, were continually arriving at Leghorn, and intended to ſettle about Piſa.

We are told General Paoli is not coming here; for ſome people ſay, orders have been ſent to our Conſul at Leghorn, to diſſuade the General from ſuch an intention, ſhould he be inclined to it.

Auguſt 5. It was this morning confidently reported that Lord Chatham will ſoon be again in the Adminiſtration; his Lordſhip's health being perfectly eſtabliſhed.

A certain Nobleman on his return from a late country excurſion, ordered his attendants to keep at the diſtance of a mile from his carrige, leſt their liveries being known he ſhould be inſulted.

Extract of a letter from Buckingham, dated Auguſt 1. 1769.

"On Saturday the Earl and Counteſs

Chatham arrived at Stowe, and on Sunday came the Right Hon. Mr. Grenville and his Lady. In a few days they will go over to Wotton together. This whole family is happily returned, at this critical moment, on the firm baſis of private affection, and public good. It is certain that they will warmly concur and preſevere in endeavouring to vindicate the fundamental rights of the people to free elections "

Auguſt 1. Advices from Holland mention the arrival there, from Bengal, of ſundry Armenian and other Aſiatic Merchants, on their way to London, with complaints againſt the Engliſh Company's Governor, and the Gentlemen of the Council at their above mentioned ſettlements, for ſundry grievous oppreſſions, which affair made a great noiſe in Holland.

It is confidently reported, that the Spaniards have at Ferrol, not leſs than thirty four Ships of the line, ready to ſail at a fortnight's notice.

The ſeveral ſheets of the Petition will ſpeedily be brought to town, and, when joined together, preſented to his Majeſty. It is believed more than 1500 Freeholders have already ſigned, though it has yet never appeared in many parts of the country. The number that ſigned what is called the Surry Addreſs, was exactly 335, half of whom it is ſaid were not Freeholders.

A Letter from Paris mentions that a reduction of the religious houſes will ſoon take place throughout that kingdom, and liberty of conſcience in matters of religion be allowed to a fuller extent than heretofore.

It is now currently reported, that the Marquis of Rockingham will ſpeedily be appointed to a conſiderable poſt in the Adminiſtration.

On Saturday laſt as one of the Briſtol ſtages was returning to town, it was ſtopped by a ſengle highwayman on Hounſlow heath, who robbed the paſſengers of a conſiderable ſum. A livery paſſing the coach immediately afterwards with a brace of piſtols before him, on being informed of the affair, purſued the thief, and took him. He was brought to town, tied neck and heels in the baſket, behind the coach, and is now in New Priſon.

It was yeſterday reported, that the Marquis de Buſſy, is again appointed Ambaſſador to this Court from that of France, and he is expected to arrive here ſoon after Michaelmas.

Auguſt 10. A Letter from Copenhagen, mentions, that his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Glouceſter propoſes being in England ſome time next month, accompanied by his ſiſter the Princeſs of Baunſwick and her young Princeſs.

On Thurſday laſt the Earl of Bute, and the Duke of Grafton, had a conference at the Earl's houſe in South-Audley Street.

It is ſaid a Petition is prepared in the county of Eſſex, ſupported by upwards of fifty Gentlemen of great property in that county.

It is ſaid that a military company of Noblemens children will ſoon be aſtabliſhed, of which the Prince of Wales will be appointed Colonel.

The Grenvilian congreſs ſtill continues to be frequently either at Stowe, or the houſes of the members of it; and there ſeems a great unity of the two Earls with each other, and of both with the Square. This gives great hopes and expectations to their friends, and to those who wiſh a change of men and meaſures

It has been remarked that Lord B—while in office procured penſions for more men of letters than any of his predeceſſors did before, or his ſucceſſors have done ſince.

Extract of a Letter from Baſtia, July 4.

"The French Miniſtry apply all their care to augment agriculture and commerce in this iſland. There are already arrived at Corte ſeveral merchants and traders, which has conſiderably raiſed the rent of ſhops and warehouſes. The Miniſtry alſo earneſtly endeavour at the advancement of arts and ſciences, of which the Corſicans, by means of the troubles which have agitated their country for more than 40 years, have almoſt loſt all the traces."

The Earl of Chatham is expected in town to morrow, to aſſiſt at the grand council then to be held at St. James's.

A political writer aſſerts, that "That diſapprobation of the Earl of Chatham, if true, and the coldneſs of the Earl of Bute, have not in the leaſt ſtaggered the Miniſtry, or added any real force to oppoſition. The two noble Lords did not poſſeſs thoſe concillating manners that are calculated to carry influence into retirement. Riſing into power in the decline of life, they left no hope of their return into office, after their unaccountable reſignations. The intereſted never worſhip any ſetting ſuns; and that pride, haughtineſs, and reſerve, which are the inſeparable companions of aſtoniſhing talents, acquired no friends to the two Earls, whoſe affection or attention outlaſted their actual appoſſeſſion of power. Upon a ſtrict review of the ſtate of parties in this country, there is leſs probability of a change than in times of much leſs oppoſition. The enemies of the preſent Miniſtry are not friends among themſelves. Though they all open batteries againſt the Servants of the Crown, they keep up flank fires upon one another. If Grenville likes Rockingham better than he does Grafton, it is only for his being leſs afraid of the pars of the former, than of the abilities of the latter. If Chatham is civil to Bute, it is that he wiſhes his Lordſhip ſhould, by ſecret intrigue, clear the C—t of the preſent Miniſtry; and ſo, once more, open a field for his own decrepid ambition."

Leghorn, June 30. The Rachael Engliſh frigate has brought ſeveral Corſican families; with their effects and ſome Monks. The French government gives great encouragement to trade and agriculture in Corſica; ſeveral merchants are gone to Corte to trade, and the inhabitants of the country have notice ſent them to cultivate their lands, or they will be confiſcated to their King.

Warſaw, July 8. Hitherto the Ruſſians not only keep the Turks and Tartars along the Neiſter at Bay, but the troops of their own guard frequently even make incurſions into the Ottoman territories, and Prince Proſorowſki is become the terror of the Infidels. In Lithuania the Confederates have ſubjected almoſt the whole diſtrict of Brozeck, but as a freſh Ruſian corps has re entered the Grand Dutchy, it is hoped affairs will ſoon change their aſpect there. Many other Diſtricts of Great and Litte Poland, have likewiſe joined the Confederats more in appearance than reality; and there is reaſon to believe that Major General Cologue, who has received re enforcements, will ſpeedily act againſt them with ſucceſs.

Leghorn, June 24. A ſecond Engliſh ſhip arrived here the day before yeſterday from Porto Vechio, having on board near 300 Corſicans, among whom are Clement Paoli, Count Centili, the Sieur Roſtino, Capt. Carlo Salicetti, &c. with ſixteen Eccleſiaſticks.

Warſaw, June 28. We have received the news, within theſe few days, of ſome ſkirmiſhes between the Ruſſians and the Confederates in Great Poland: The advantages were ſometimes on one ſide, and ſometimes on the other. The Ruſſian Carabineers, commanded by Col. Wolknſkoy, have been beat in the neighbourhood of Kutno; in other places, the Confederates have had the worſt; excepting this, Confederacies are every where forming, and all is in motion in Poland.

July 12. Letters from the frontiers of Turkey, confirm the account, that 5000 Ottoman volunteers have paſſed the Nieſter, and attacked the Ruſſian light troops under Prince Proſorowſki, and that they had been repulſed with the loſs of 300 men. The outrages committed by the Tartars are incredible.

July 19. Yeſterday a courier arrived here with advice, that the Ruſſian army, commanded by Prince Galietzin, after having repaſſed the Neiſter, attacked and beat the 13th of this month a corps of the army of 50,000 Turks, commanded by the Seraſkier.

The ſame courier further informs us, that a body of Ruſſian troops, commanded by General Berg, hath alſo beaten the Tartars, and killed 6000 men.

July 13. General Paoli, during his ſtay in this city, hath collected conſiderable ſums of money of our merchants who trade to Corſica, which he has expended, or a great part of it, in the maintenace of the Corſicans who are come hither, and are reſolved to return no more to their country, rather than become ſlaves there We are informed, that the inhabitants beyond the mountains, continue to Skirmiſh with the French, and that they will not ſubmit, tho' they ſhould be hanged for refuſing.

Extract of a letter from Exeter, Juley 23.

"The reception the D—— of B—— met here exceeded every thing of the kind ever known. The people being apprehenſive his G——'s buſineſs here was to procure an addreſs from the Grand Jury, &c. they would not ſuffer him to go along the ſtreet to the Guildhall without his firſt giving them ſatiſfaction upon that matter. A gentleman was deputed to aſk his G—— the queſtion perſonally, and not to receive an anſwer from any body but himſelf; which he gave, amidſt the great concourſe of people, declaring that he did not know of the Aſſizes, nor had any ſuch intention. But this did not fully ſatiſfy the populace who followed him to every place in this city both public and private, declaring their utter diſapprobation of ſending up lies to the T——. The cry was, a Petition to redreſs and not Addreſs to add to our preſent Grievances.——His G—— ſat out this morning for the Southams."

Extract of a Letter from Hamburgh,

"Advice has been received here, that Prince Proſorowſki had been obliged to retire, having heard that the Turkiſh Seraskier was arrived at Choczim at the head of 45,000 men; that the Prince, willing to impede the progreſs of the Ottomans as much as poſſible diſpatched a meſſenger to the Sieur de Witt, the Poliſh Governor of Kaminiec, deſiring him to put that fortreſs into his poſſeſſion; but, to his great ſurpriſe, received for anſwer. That he the Governor, had the honour to belong to the Republic of Poland, and that the garriſon had bound themſelves by an oath to ſuffer neither Ruſſians nor Turks to enter the place.

"We have juſt heard that the Seraskier has joined the Confederates at Bar, and was in full march for Prince Gallitzin's camp, which was to be attacked the other ſide by the grand Ottoman army, ſo that a deciſive battle ſeems inevitable."

A letter from Leghorn dated July 1, ſays, Amongſt the Corſicans who are come hither in the Rachel Engliſh frigate, in M. Jules Francis Serpentini, Preſident de Terra de Commune, whoſe wife has always followed General Paoli in man's clothes, and is ſaid to have diſtinguiſhed herſelf by many feats of arms. This lady remains at Porto Ferrio (Where the frigate was obliged to put in) with 140 Corſicans, who have rather choſe to abandon their country and their eſtates, than ſubmit to France."

A poſtſcript of a letter from Leghorn, ſays, "Papers have been ſtuck up, and proclamation made, in all parts of the iſland of Corſica, offering a conſiderable reward for taking the body of Paſcal Paoli; he having been declared a rebel againſt to Genoſe."

Wanted immediately.

A Healthy LAD, about fourteen Years of age, as an Apprentice to a Blackſmith in this Place.— Enquire of

The Printers.

Copy of a Letter from a Noble Lord to the Lord Mayor of this city, with his Lordſhip's Anſwer thereto.

To the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor.

H—d H—, K—n: July 9 1769.

My Lord,

IN a petition preſented by your lordſhip, It is mentioned as a grievance "Inſtead of puniſhing, conferring honours on a paymaſter, the public defaulter of unaccounted millions." I am told that I am the paymaſter here cenſured: may I beg to know of your lordſhip if it is ſo? I am ſure Mr Beckford muſt have been againſt it, becauſe he knows, and could have ſhewn your lordſhip in writing, the utter falſhood of what is there inſinuated.

I have not the honour to know your Lordſhip, ſo I cannot tell what you may have heard to indece you to carry to our ſovereign a complaint of ſo atrocious a nature.

Your lordſhip, by your ſpeech made to the king at the delivering the petition, has adopted the contents of it; and I don't know of whom to inquire but if your lordſhip concerning this injury done to an innocent man, who am by this means (if I am the perſon meant) hung out as an object of public hatred and reſentment.

You have too much honour and juſtice not to tell me whether I am the perſon meant, and if I am, the grounds upon which I am thus charged, that I may vindicate myſelf, which truth will enable me to do to the conviction of the bittereſt enemy; and therefore I may boldly ſay, to your Lordſhip's entire ſatiſfaction, whom I certainly have never offended.

I am, with the greateſt reſpect, My Lord,
Your Lordſhip's moſt obedient,
And moſt humble ſervant,
H——D.

The Lord Mayor's Anſwer.

Manſion houſe, July 10 1769.

THE Lord Mayor preſents his compliments to Lord H——d, and in anſwer to the honor of his Lordſhip's letter delivered to him by Mr. Selwyn, he begs leave to ſay that he had no concern in drawing up the petition from the livery of London to his Majeſty; that he looks on himſelf only as the carrier, together with other gentlemen charged by the livery with the delivery of it; that he does not, nor ever did hold himſelf accountable for the contents of it, and is a ſtranger to the nature of the ſuppoſed charge againſt his Lordſhip.

Copy of a Letter from George Conell, dated St. Croix, Auguſt 6, 1769.

SIR,

SINCE my laſt letter to your Honour, I beg leave to acquaint you that I am now at St, Croix, and ſhall ſail for Newburn in North-Carolina to morrow morning. I hope your Honour has not forgot me. Would be very glad if you will be pleaſed to write me a line as ſoon as poſſible. I can't live long on ſhore without your Honour's help—If your Honour will be pleaſed to make me ſearcher of North Carolina, or will be pleaſed to ſend me a Veſſel there immediately, I will be bound to have ſome of the St. Croix men, as here are five ſail lading for North Carolina; and alſo a number more for the Northen Colonies to ſail very ſoon——the firſt of thoſe bound for North Carolina will ſail about the firſt of September, the others very ſoon after them. If your honour will appoint me ſearcher, & find me a veſſel, I will ſtand a good chance to get ſome of their St. Croix Rum, and likewiſe their Veſſels; there is a large Trade from Martineco and this Place to the Northern Colonies, which might be eaſily detected by keeping a good lookout for them. I muſt beg your Honor to write me as ſoon as poſſible, that I may konw what to depend on.

I am your Honour's moſt humble Servant, (Signed)
George Corcell

To the Hon. John Robinſon, one of the Hon. Commiſſioners of the Board at Boſton.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.

Extract of a letter from London, June 18.

"There ſeems to be a general ſtagnation of politics at preſent. Mr. Wilkes ſlumbers and ſleeps, but it is reported, that his dreams are very ominous to ſome in power. The next ſeſſion of parliament is expected to produce a total change in the Miniſtry, when they ſay, the Marquis of Rockingham and his party will come into place. Strange as you may think it, yet Mr. G. Grenville, the famous projector of all American grievances, is now vigorous in the oppoſition to the court, and declares aloud againſt the expediency & legality of the acts. Dr Franklin is the beſt friend America ever had. With a noble freedom of ſpirit, he utters his ſentiments upon all proper occaſions."

Extract of a letter from London, July 25.

"There is no particular news, except that it is now a pretty general opinion, that the Duke of G——n, and his party, will be routed next ſeſſions. G. Grenville is now almoſt as warm in favour of America, as he was formerly againſt it."

On thurſday laſt was tried at Eaſton, in the county of Northampton, a number of people, who came from the colony of Connecticut, and were convicted of a riot, in taking poſſeſſion of a tract of land in this province, on Lahnawanack, above Wyoming. The verdict of the jury was founded on theſe facts: Some time about the 10th of February laſt, a few of the defendants came to Wyoming under arms, and were taken by the ſheriff; but upon their promiſe to quit their deſign, they were ſuffered to return home; however, in about a month's time they returned with a larger number, built a ſtrong block houſe at Lahnawanack, and declared they were determined to defend their poſſeſſion to the laſt. Upon hearing of their return, ſeveral juſtices with the ſheriff, & a number of Pennſylvanians went up to the blockhouſe, in order to arreſt them; they at firſt refuſed to ſurrender, ſaying, they would defend themſelves till death, but after ſome time, on the mediation of one Iſaac Trip, a Quaker, they were prevailed on to ſurrender, and by this means the ſhedding of blood was happily prevented.

PROVIDENCE, September 23.

Extract of a lette from Mr. Sherwood Agent for this Dolony at the Court of Great Britain, to his Honour Governor Wanton, dated July 5, 1769, laid before the General Aſſembly, at their laſt Seſſion.

——"In Company with ſeveral of the Agents for the North American Colonies, and particularly for New York, Penſylvannia, and Maſſachuſetts Bay, I attended the Earl of Hillsborough, on the Subject of the American Grievances: He repeatedly aſſur'd us, that the Legiſlature and Miniſtry here had laid aſide every Idea of raiſing a Revenue in America for the Service of Government; that it was reſolved upon by them, to repeal the Act laying Duties upon Paper, Glaſs and Colours; and that every reaſonable and proper Meaſure would be taken to remove the Jealouſies, Fears, and Apprehenſions of the Americans."

His Honour the Governor likewiſe laid before the Aſſembly a Letter from the Earl of Hillsborough, conceived in the moſt reſpectful and complaiſant Terms, differing in Stile and Manner from the heretofore received by this Colony from his Lordſhip.

BOSTON, Sept. 28

The London Papers contain the Meſſages from the Houſe of Repreſentatives of this Province to Governor Bernard, at the opening of the Seſſion the 31ſt of May, as alſo his Anſwers, as far as their Adjournment to Cambridge the 15th of June.

NEW-HAVEN, Septem. 29.

Laſt Saturday mornidg at 6 o'Clock departed this life, in the ſixty ſixth year of her age, Mrs. MARY CLAP, relict of the late Rev'd. President Clap, and on Monday her remains were decently interred.

HARTFORD, October, 2.

Yeſterday about 3 o'Clock, P. M. departed this Life, in an advanced Age, at his Houſe in Eaſt-Hartford, the HONORABLE WILLIAM PITKIN, Eſq; Governor of this Colony.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be Sold by
GREEN and WATSON,
At the Printing Office in Hartford, and by
CYPRIAN WEBSTER of Harwinton,

A DISSERTATION, on the Qualifications neceſſary to a lawful profeſſion and enjoying ſpecial Ordinances; and alſo on the Attonement of JESUS CHRIST.
By Andrew Bartholomew, A. M.
Paſtor of the Church in Harwinton.

Juſt re-printed, and to be ſold by T. & S. Green, Printers in N. Haven;
(Price TWENTY SHILLINGS.)
The Connecticut Colony
LAW-BOOK,
Containing all the Laws which are in Force in ſaid Colony, together with a neat and correct
TABLE.

Weathersfield, Sept. 23. 1769.

RUN AWAY from me the ſubſcriber of Weathersfield, on Monday the 25th inſt. a Servant Lad, about 11 or 12 years of age, had on when he went away an old Hat, a light blue Jacket, a pair white tow Trowſers, no ſhoes when he went away. Whoever takes up ſaid Negro Lad and brings him to his maſter, ſhall have TEN DOLLARS Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by me JOSIAH BUCK.

N. B. All perſons are Strictly forbid harbouring, concealing, or carrying off ſaid Negro, as they muſt anſwer the conſequences at their Peril.

To be ſold by
Heman & Levi Allen,
in Saliſbury near the Furnace a large Quantity of the beſt of DEERSKINS (juſt received from Detroit) by the Pack or ſmaller Quantity, ready dreſſed or otherways; Alſo Weſt India and Dry Goods, for Caſh or Country Produce, the ſubſcribers will barter whole Packs of Deerſkins for Wollen Check, Shoes, &c. &c.

HEMAN & LEVI ALLEN.

STrayed from the ſubſcriber at Kent ſometime in the month of July laſt, two Mare Colts, one of them three years old, a natural pacer, dock't, but not branded, the other two years old, branded on her right ſhoulder X, paces and trots. Whoſoever ſhall take up ſaid Mares, and give me notice, that I may have them again ſhall have TWO DOLLARS Reward.

JOSEPH GUTRHIE.

Kent, 26 Sept. 1769.

To be ſold on generous Terms,

About 30 Acres of improved Land in Goſhen, adjoining the north line of Litchfield & Albany Road, whereon is a fine Orchard, and a large Houſe and Barn, a good Well, &c. lately improved by Lieut. Ebenezer Hill, whereof a good Title, and immediate Poſſeſſion may be had of

JEDEDIAH STRONG.

Litchfield, March 22. 1760.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by

FISHER GAY, of Farmington,
WILLIAM STANTON of Litchfield
KNIGHT SEXTON, and
GREEN & WATSON of Hartford,

A PLAN of

EXERCISE,

ORDERED by the General Aſſembly of the Colony of Connecticut, in May laſt to be uſed by the Militia of this Colony—extracted from the Plan of Diſcipline for the

NORFOLK MILITIA.

Likewiſe juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the above place,

Brief REMARKS,

On a Number of FALSE PROPOSITIONS and DANGEROUS ERRORS, which are ſpreading in the Country; collected out of ſundry Diſcourſes lately publiſhed, wrote by Dr. Whitaker and Mr. Hopkins. Written by Way of DIALOGUE.

By WILLIAM HART,
Paſtor of the firſt Church of Chriſt in Saybrook.

Farmington, Sept. 12, 1769.

RUN-Away from the ſubſcriber of Farmington, on the 1ſt of Sept. inſt. a Molatto, Indian and Negro blood, named John Way, about 30 years of age, about 6 feet high, ſlim built, ſpeaks good Engliſh, ſmall voice, wears his own black hair, quiew'd behind the fore part of his head ſhav'd—Had on when he went away an old felt hatt, a light flannel waiſtcoat, without ſleeves, a check'd linnen ſhirt, ſhort white tow trowſers, blue yarn ſtockings, a pair ſingle ſoal'd ſhoes.——Whoever will take up ſaid ſervant, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's goals, or return him to his maſter, ſhall be reaſonably rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

ELIAKIM DEMING.

STRAYED or Stolen from the Subſcriber of Coventry, in Connecticut, out of the Paſture of Jeremiah Atwater of New-Haven, on the night of the 13th Inſtant, a dark bay or brown Horſe, about fourteen hands & half high, has no Brand, thick ſet and well made, very rarely Trots, Paces ſquare and large, eight Years old laſt Spring.——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Horſe, and Thief, (if he be ſtolen) and return him to ſaid Atwater, of the ſubſcriber, ſhall have Three Dollars Reward, and all neceſſary Charges paid by

NATHAN STRONG.

September 22d. 1769.

Wanted Immediately,

A Healthy Lad, that can be well recommended, as an apprentice to the Black-Smith buſineſs, Enquire of the PRINTERS.

☞ One that has work'd at the buſineſs would be moſt acceptable, and would have ſmall wages allow'd him.

A Likely Negro garl about 12 years old Country born, to be ſold, Enquire of

The PRINTERS.

TO BE SOLD.

(Lying between the weſtern Branch of the River Delaware, and the eaſtermoſt Branch of the Suſquehannah)

20,000 Acres of Land

well proportioned with Plow, meadow and paſture Land, with a Variety of Streams running through it, very commodious for the erecting Mills, &c. within about eight Miles of Schoharrey, 40 of Albany, and 40 of the Kaats Kills. Any Perſon inclining to ſettle on the above Lands, may apply to the Subſcriber in Eaſt Windſor (who intends ſoon to remove and ſettle on the ſame) who will ſell on the moſt reaſonable Terms, and give good Warrantee Deeds to the Purchaſers.

JOHN HARPER, jun.

Eaſt Windſor, Auguſt 26, 1769. 7w45

For the Benefit of the ſick and afflicted,
Has juſt arrived from LONDON,

Iſaac Calcott,

A Seventh Son of a Seventh Son.

WHO, after ſeveral years travelling abroad, has obtained the art of cureing with God's aſſiſtance, all cureable diſorders, both in the Body and Eyes. I ſhall not ſpeak of cures never performed, as many do; but let my Medicines and practice merit your applauſe—Any perſon wanting Mr. Calcott's aſſiſtance, and can't come in perſon, may ſend a bottle, with the firſt water they make in the morning, by which I ſhall know what diſorder attends the perſon. I cure, with God's aſſiſtance, viz. King's-evil, Vapour's, Rheumatiſm, Cancer, Wens, Deafneſs, Rupture, Yaws, Sore throat, Head ach, Fitts, Conſumption, Bloody flux, Veneral diſorders, Tooth-ach without drawing, Cholic, Fever and Ague, Yellow-Jaundice, Worms Dropſy, Scurvey in the blood, Piles, Gleet, &c. &c.

Any of my medicines may be had of me, on Monday, at Mr. Samuel Eaſton's at Eaſt-Hartford; on Tueſday at Mr. Porter's Tavern at Eaſt-Windſor; on Wedneſday, at Mr. Buck's tavern at Weathersfield; on Thurſday at Mr. Pomeroy's tavern in Rocky-Hill; on Friday, at the Wid. Shaylor's tavern in Middletown; and on Saturday at Mr. Hale's tavern in Glaſtenbury.

N. B. My Worm powders, 1/6 My Tooth-ach drops cures faſtning and whitning the teeth 1/6 The royal beautifying water for taking off all freckels, ſun-burn marks, or ſpots of the ſkin, and makes it ſoft and white 1/6 all with directions.

J. Morton,

At his Store in Hartford, on the North ſide the Green in the Houſe of Mrs. Sarah Edwards,

HAS a good Aſſortment of Dry Goods, Iron-Mongery, Earthen Ware, Glaſs Ware, and beſt London Pewter, Blown and Rock Salt

N. B. Said Morton intending for Europe, in the Fall, will ſell off what goods he has on hand, very low for Caſh or Produce.

WOOL,

A Quantity of the beſt

LONG-ISLAND Fleeſe WOOL, to be ſold cheap by the Fleece, for Caſh only——Enquire of Nathaniel Burnham, of Eaſt-Hartford.

HARTFORD:
Printed by Green and Watſon.

ALL PERSONS indebted to the late partnerſhip of Gardiner & Jepſon, by book ſtill unſettled are once more deſired to ſettle the ſame immediately either by Caſh or their Obligations; and thoſe indebted by their Obligations, are deſired to diſcharge the ſame, as ſaid Partnerſhip has now been five years expired, otherwiſe they muſt expect to be Sued forthwith.

ALSO all Perſons indebted to ſaid Jepſon, on book, whoſe accounts are of more than one Years ſtanding, that unleſs they ſettle the ſame, either by Caſh or their Obligations, they muſt expect Trouble, and thoſe whoſe obligations are now due, are deſired to make ſpeedy payment. Said Jepſon Acquaints his Cuſtomers and others, that he has for ſale a large quantity of choice DRUGGS and MEDICINES, which he will ſell wholeſale and retail, at the very loweſt Prices, for Caſh or ſhort Credit. Alſo Surgeon's Capital Inſtruments, Crooked Needles, Pattented Medicines, good and genuine as Bateman's Drops, Lockyer's Pills, Turlington's Balſam of Life, &c. Logwood, Fuſtick, Allum, Copperas, &c. &c.

Hartford, Sept. 25. 1769.

We the Subſcribers being appointed by the hon. Judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, Commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the Creditors to the eſtate of Iſaac Brownſon, of Bolton, (repreſented Inſolvent) do hereby give public notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs, at the houſe of Peter Olcott, Innholder in ſaid Bolton, on the firſt Tueſdays of October, Nov. & Dec. next, from 2 till 9 o'Clock Afternoon.

BENJAMIN TALCOTT, } Commiſſi-
THOMAS PITKIN, } oners.

For the benefit of the Public,

IS on his way from the Ottowawa country the celebrated Indian Doctor

Wyantonomoo, or the Diſeaſe-killer.

WHO has ſtudied the nature of Plants, Trees, Herbs and Roots, for forty years, and has travelled thro' all the tribes of Indians, from Hudſon's Bay to the Northward. To Patagonia, in South-America, and has conferred with the oldeſt and moſt experienced Weauchntois or doctors in fifty different tribes of Indians, & has fully acquainted himſelf with all ſimples, their virtues and uſes. He cures by the uſe of ſimples only, Conſumptions, Coughs, Catarrh's, Dropſys, Scurveys, Hyſterics, Inward Bleedings, the Stone and Gravel, Gout and Rheumatiſm——All breakings out upon the ſkin, Cancers, Wens, the King's-evil. He cures all diſorders of the Eyes, and in ſome caſes, can even reſtore ſight to the blind, by an eaſy method he takes away all pains from broken and fractured limbs in ſix hours——He expels wind, and worms, and in general, cures all diſorders incident to the human body, in men women and children. His fee is moderate, to be returned when he comes from Cohoſs, if the cure is not then effected, which will be likely next December——He does for the poor Gratis, and has no fee for his interpreter. He will be to be ſpoke with at Mrs. Shaylors tavern in Middletown, on the Friday after next, and the Monday following at Mr Bulls tavern in Hartford, and the next Wedneſday at Mr. Kents tavern in Suffield, and the Fryday following at Capt. Lymans tavern in Northampton.

N. B. He has an eaſy and effectual remedy for the Itch, which wholly cures it without inconvenience or danger be it ever ſo inveterate.

Phillips's Patent, }
September 20th, 1769. }

MONDAY, Oct. 9, 1769.

Numb. 251.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

NEW-LONDON, Sept 8.

Mr. GREEN,

Pleaſe to give the following a Place in your next Paper.

BY late advices from Wyoming on Suſquehannah river, we learn there is about [illegible] ſettlers there, under the conduct of Major John Durkee, of Norwich, and that they have 500 loads of good hay, and ſowe 200 good acres with wheat, and are yet ſowing; the moſt of their Indian corn is very good——and that the ſeveral mobs raiſed by the Pennſylvanians to diſpoſſeſs the ſettlers, have proved abortive; and we further learn that Major Durkee ſo behaves and conducts, that he hath got the univerſal eſteem of all the ſettlers;——and notwithſtanding all the diſadvantage he is under of not having any law, either civil or martial, to govern the people by, yet he quiets all their uneaſineſſes, and they are well united, and do not only love and fear, but honour and obey the Major, who is ſuperiorly accompliſhed for ſuch an undertaking; he is ſteady, affable, mild and gentle, but reſolutely determined to defend their juſt rights againſt their unjuſt oppoſers, and hath hitherto ſucceeded to the great terror of thoſe evil doers, which gives us great hopes, by the bleſſing of God, of the ſettlement of this colony being greatly enlarged, and thereby a door opened for the ſpreading the glorious goſpel among the natives of this land, ſo that the wilderneſs ſhall bloſſom as the roſe, and the deſert become a fruitful field.

PHILADELPHIA, September 18.

The General Aſſembly of this province will meet this afternoon, at four o'clock.

Extract of a Letter from London, dated June 1.

"To the ſurpriſe of almoſt every patriotic politician, the ſame Miniſtry continue to direct our affairs as in my laſt; they ſeem to think the Britiſh ſubjects in America were made with ſaddles on their backs and bridles in their mouths, and they, the Miniſtry with boots and ſpurs to ride you at their pleaſure, but was I to adviſe the brave Americans, I would have you throw the devils in the dirt if they ſpur too hard; for I have no notion of a brave people ſubmitting to the ſpirit of arrogance againſt their convictions. I know both the Miniſtry and the oppoſition, and muſt confeſs I have no confidence in either."

The General Aſſembly of the Province of New-Jerſey are ſummoned to meet at Burlington, on Tueſday, the 10th of October.

Extract of a Letter from Fort Pitt, dated the 23d and 24th of Auguſt.

"I told you in my laſt we were alarmed at the behaviour of the Indians. I don't remember that any thing has happened on their part ſince, that could give us any farther cauſe of uneaſineſs; but I connot ſay that the white people have behaved well, for within theſe two days a worthleſs fellow, named Cornelius Dougherty, has murdered in the moſt barbarous manner an unhappy Indian of the Munſy Tribe, whom he found drunk and aſleep. He firſt mauled him with a billet of wood afterwards with brick bats, and having killed him, he dragged him into the river, there left him, and then attempted to make his eſcape, but was ſecured. The Munſies are not very powerful, nor held in great eſteem by the other Indian nations, which may make them take the leſs notice of this unhappy affair.

This morning (Aug 24) came down ſome Mingoes, with a chief, called the White Mingo, at their head, who inſiſted on Dougherty's being ſet at liberty, and at their importunities, the commanding officer has releaſed him; which however, ſeems to give great umbrage to a party of the Munſies, who came down this evening on purpoſe to inquire into the particulars of this unhappy affair."

Extract of a letter from London, dated Auguſt 2.

"Every thing is quiet here at preſent.——We have a very fine and plentiful ſeaſon, which will probably lower the price of the neceſſaries of life, and of courſe tend to keep the labouring part of the people quiet, and in good humour.——Wilkes is now hardly mentioned; but the committee of grievances and apprehenſions, are ſtill very aſſiduous to promote the ſending up ſimilar Petitions to that from Middleſex, from the other counties, throughout the kingdom.——No change in the Miniſtry; the preſent ſet of them ſeem to have nothing to apprehend, but rather to be on a very firm footing——You will ſee in the papers ſeveral hints thrown out, as if offers of pardon had been made to Wilkes, which he had rejected, but there is not a ſyllable of truth in any of them——North-American affairs ſtand exactly where the parliament left them."

A particular Account of the late terrible Fire at Antigua; taken from an Antigua News-Paper.

ST. JOHN'S in ANTIGUA, Aug. 26, 1769.

ON Thurſday the 17th inſt. between 2 and 3 in the afternoon, a fire broke out in Corn ſtreet, in the neighbourhood of the Little Negro-market, at the houſe of Mrs. Finly, occaſioned by a Negro heating an oven with part of a pitch barrel. The alarm of fire being rung, the people ran to the place from all directions: in a ſhort time the engines were brought, but were of little ſervice, partly owing to their being much out of order, and partly to the aukwardneſs of thoſe who had the management of them.

In this deſcription of the buildings deſtroyed I mean not to follow the traces of the fire in its progreſſive order, which was ſometimes before, and ſometimes againſt the wind, but take the rows or ſquares uniformly from eaſt to weſt.

In a few minutes from the firſt eruption of the flames, they were communicated to the houſe of William Dickenſon, Eſq; in Newgate ſtreet, and in ſhort, the whole ſquare of houſes, from Corn-ſtreet on the E. to Market-ſtreet on the W. and from Church-ſtreet on the S. and Newgate ſtreet on the N. was reduced to aſhes.

The guard houſe and arſenal had now taken fire, and had it not been for the extraordinary activity of the officer, and ſoldiers of the 68th Regiment, muſt have been deſtroyed. The artillery houſe on the W. and the Market houſe and goal on the N. of the guard, were burnt down, with the whole ſquare of houſes in the weſtward direction to the Parade, terminated on the N. corner by a large brick houſe belonging to the heirs of Cheſter, and on the S. by Mr. John Watſon, barber and peruke maker's ſhop. On the oppoſite ſide of the Parade, the houſe of Mr. Daniel Hill, on the N. the large houſe lately occupied by Mr. John Payne, and the whole ſquare of buildings, now the property of Mr. John Wand, with the wharf and crane, were deſtroyed to the S. the fire terminated on the N. ſide of theſe buildings, at the houſe of Mr. Elias Ferris.

To return to where the fire began its depredation on the next row of building.—The court houſe, being a magnificent lofty ſtone building, was contrary to all expectation ſav'd tho' ſurrounded with flames on all ſides. The houſe poſſeſſed by Samuel H. Warner, Eſq; and the whole row quite to Church ſtreet, with the ſquare of buildings bounded by Long-ſtreet, on the S. the parade on the W. and Church-ſtreet on the E. were entirely conſumed; and from the Parade in the ſame weſtern direction the whole ſquare ending with Hockley's Tavern, to the water's edge, with Mr. Duncan Grant's wharf and crane on the S. and Mr. Livingſton's crane on the N.

The deſtruction of the third row of buildings began to the eaſtward on a ſmall ſquare, bounded on the S. by High ſtreet, alias Broad-ſtreet, on the W. by Corn ſtreet, and on the N. by Long ſtreet. Oppoſite to the S. corner of this ſquare a houſe belonging to Mr. George Dalzell was blown up. From thence it ſpread deſolation before the wind, to the weſtward all that large and opulent ſquare of buildings conſiſting, to the ſouth ward, of the houſe of Mr. Thomas Lynch, that of Mr. Henry Benin, Mr. Thomas Mackie, ſenr. the New Printing office, all the ſtores along the Parade, formerly diſtinguiſhed by the name of White-hall Tavern, quite up the corner of High or Broad-ſtreet, and up that ſide the ſtores lately poſſeſſed by Meſſrs Clifford, Willtonſon, Sonip, Martin, Sedgwick, Sandland, Aſhton, W. Byam, Grice's Tavern, Tew, Roſſington, and Grant, ſadler. On this part of Market-ſtreet on the E. was burnt down three tenements; one a huxter's occupied by Phillip Hogan, the next by Mrs. Ann Sleigh, the third untenanted belonging to Thomas Sheppard, Eſq. From the Parade on the weſtward, to the water's edge, with the wharfs and cranes incluſive, the fine ſquare of houſes containing all the brick buildings from the corner ſtore occupied by Mr. Andrew Roſs and Co, to the cooperage of Mr. Walter Burke on the S. on the Parade ſide the ſtores of Meſſrs. Forbes, Roſe, Weſton, and Kukan, with two unoccupied on the north, Mr. Bowyer's, late Lindſay's, tavern.

The eaſtermoſt part of the fourth row that was deſtroyed, was the houſe of Mrs. Elizabeth Grace which was blown up, with a deſign to ſtop the progreſs of the flames to the

E. and S. but without the deſired effect, on the ſouth corner of the ſame row, the large houſe of Mrs. Martin was blown up with ſuch a dreadful exploſion as ſhatter'd the houſe occupied by Mr. Simms on the E. and that of Mrs. Parke on the S. at the diſtance of near 60 feet, at which time Mr John Carlile was ſo much hurt that he languiſhed a few days and died in great agonies. The flames then devoured all before it, weſtward to the Parade, on both ſides; in this ſquare was, on the S. the Houſes of Meſſrs. Bunting, Snaip, Smith, and the corner houſe and ſtores of Robert Brown Eſq; on the North corner, the Cuſtom-houſe, belonging to John Halliday, Eſq;—oppoſite to which the ſtore of Meſſ. Willock and Morſon took fire, the conſequence of which was the deſtruction of the whole ſquare with the wharves and cranes adjoining (excepting one crane belonging to Thomas Mackie, ſen.) quite to the harbour on the W. with that commonly called Dunbar's (now Ferguſſon's) ſtores and wharf. The large houſe belonging to the Eſtate of William H. Doig was ſeveral times on fire, but by inceſſant drenchings from the engines was ſurprizingly ſaved. This horrid ſweep has taken the center of the town of St. John's, leaving on the N. and S. ſides a few ſtreets of ſtraggling houſes, many of which are but inconſiderable; one thing is ſurprizingly ſingular, not a ſingle merchant ſtore is left in the whole place.——All the granaries with their contents, were deſtroyed; 1700 barrels of ſalt proviſions, 14000 buſhels of corn, and 1000 tierces of rice were deſtroyed. The rent-roll of the town is 37000l. currency per annum, 18000l. of which is deſtroyed, which, at twelve and an half years purchaſe, amounts to 225000l. the other damages ſuſtained by the loſs of proviſions, goods and devaſtation of buildings amounts to a far greater ſum, ſo that according to the moſt moderate computation, the whole cannot be leſs than three hundred thouſand pounds ſterling.

Thus fell St. John's, the metropolis of an Iſland, the pride and glory of her ſiſters, the ſeat of induſtry, nurſe of merchants, the beloved manſion of generous hoſpitality, and the central mart of the Weſt Indies! Whoſe harbour was ever crouded with fleets from the four winds, and whoſe wealth and grandeur was equalled by no place of its magnitude. Yeſterday, an opulent rich well built town; to day a pile of ruins, confuſion, and ſmoky aſhes! Yeſterday, its inhabitants giving each other a cheerful good-morrow; to day meeting with tears and dejection in their countenances, reciprocally recounting their loſſes to each other, and can hardly trace the veſtiges of their late habitations. Let ſuch as were not ſpectators to the tremendous ſcene, only figure to themſelves the circumference of ſuch a flame, the noiſe and cruſh of houſes falling, the frequent dreadful exploſions of others blown up, the convulſ'd vortex of fiery flakes in the air, with the ſhricks and lamentations of the unhappy ſufferers, intermixt with the yellings of the negro ſavages; I ſay, let them paint theſe in their imaginations, and with hold their pity and commiſeration if they can.——In ſhort, the ruins of the place would begger all deſcription; for 'tis impoſſible by words, to raiſe an adequate Idea of our diſtreſſes.

In this general calamity the council and aſſembly have uſed every poſſible means to prevent the Negroes from plundering the ſufferers, to detect and bring to juſtice ſuch as have been embezzling or concealing goods, or other effects, and to reſtore ſome degree of regularity and order amongſt the diſtreſſed inhabitants of this ruinated place. Every one ſeems eagerly ſolicitous to do good, and to alleviate the miſeries of their afflicted neighbours. The merchants, to their honour be it ſpoke, vie with each other in ſelling whatever part of their proviſions they have ſaved from the fire to their fellow ſufferers at the uſual prices; generouſly ſcorning to ſnatch at an advantage the general diſtreſs might give them of enhancing.

May other nations who read the fate and fall of this hapleſs place without further ſupplication, think on its diſtreſſes and exert their influence in contributing to its relief; perhaps the dejected inhabitants of St John's may yet be able to raiſe its walls from their rubbiſh and ruins, and may God aſſiſt and proſper their endeavours.

Meſſ PRINTERS.

I Am very ſorry that your preſs, together with the reſt of the preſſes in Connecticut, have of late been employed ſo much in the propagation of religious diſcord and contention —The preſs indeed is free, and I am very glad to find the conductors of it impartial.—But as to your authors, never was there a time wherein I could more heartily join with Yorick, when he ſays, "I wiſh there was not a Polemical divine in the nation!"——But of all the Polemicks that ever a Proteſtant country produced, I believe ours bear the bell—They have never yet wrote upon the old queſtion of the Schoolmen, "Whether it is poſſible for the DEITY to become feminine?"—But perhaps if a red hat was to ſupercede a Scotch——there might be a vaſt deſtruction of paper upon that queſtion, yet the deepeſt things of GOD, hid from human comprehenſion from the foundation of the world, things to us entirely ſpeculative, are now become as pretty a play thing in ſome hands, as a foot ball among a company of boys; and no matter if they make as much havock among each conſcience, as the other does among the brittle glaſs of the ancient houſes.

One divine can clearly ſee "Why it was beſt that ſin ſhould enter the world? That GOD's glory is eminently diſplayed therein—And that it is vaſtly better for the body of mankind that the greater part of them be damned."—On peruſal of his works, many people find their Ideas of good and evil, happineſs and miſery ſo confounded and inverted, that a ſtrong temptation to ſcepticiſm is preſented. They are ready to conclude that if it be holineſs in GOD to permit ſin from a principle of benevolence to the world, it is holineſs in man to commit it from the ſame principle, (and therein is he perfect as his father which is in heaven is perfect) and that conſequently the commiſſion of ſin is an act of holineſs, and the higheſt inſtance of honor done to GOD.

We find again the awakened, ſeeking ſinner ſhock'd with ſuch doctrines as teach "that he is more guilty and further from heaven for his concern, his reformation, and his ſeekings. That if he had hitherto gone on in the ſight of his eyes and the underſtanding of his heart in a ſtate of entire ſecurity he had not been ſo vile, nor ſo near hell as he is by his illuminations, ſeriouſneſs, prayers and reformation." What uſe common ſenſe and common people will make of this extraordinary doctrine is plain enough! If it be a truth, at beſt it is but a dangerous one to hand out to the world.—But I am far from determining any thing to be a truth merely becauſe, like the forced fruit of a hot bed, the Ergo has juſt been poked up from a mixture of metaphyſical jingle.

The little pamphlet upon the "Half way Covenant," (ſecure from contempt and entitled to notice from the venerable name it bears in its front) was, it ſeems, a ſignal for a general engagement——And what ſlaughter will cloſe the conteſt I know not. Every lover of peace muſt regret the proſpect of that deſtruction of harmony and unanimity, which has for a great number of years been eſtabliſhed in our churches——With regard to the doctrines advanced by the ſaid gentleman and his adherents (I mean including what relates to qualification for church communion) I would Query, Did not our forefathers by eſpouſing and acting upon thoſe principles find that they were likely to root out and deſtroy the infant churches of this land? Did they not generally agree upon practiſing upon what he calls the "Half way covenant" to prevent ſuch an evil? Will not the preſent diſpute, or at leaſt the general operation of his principles, open a door for the revival of thoſe evils? Why do not the arguments advanced operate as ſtrongly againſt praying in the name of Chriſt as partaking of the Lords ſupper? Is it conſiſtent with chriſtian charity to treat a man profeſſing chriſtianity, who is neither ſcandalous nor ignorant, as a heathen man and a Publican, merely becauſe from tenderneſs of conſcience he wavers as to his duty in a point of mere inſtitution, a point wherein the greateſt caſuiſts have differed, a point wherein ſome very alarming texts of ſcripture tend to rivet his ſcruples? Far be it from me to enter the liſts with ſuch a veteran as the author of that pamphlet——I mean only to expreſs my concern at the increaſing ſpirit of diſputation, &c.

If the gentlemen of the cloth would only amuſe themſelves, and enlarge their faculties, by curious ſpeculation in their private interviews, it might anſwer a good purpoſe; but when the preſs teems with the pledges of ſacerdotal diſcord, no good is to be expected.—There are ſix pamphlets upon the footing of litigation, where there is one calculated to promote practical godlineſs.——And 'tis a melancholly thing to behold ſo many young preachers, after having received ſome of theſe new notions by inoculation, carrying the infection wherever they go, and leaving everlaſting diviſion where they ſettle.——The word practical I am ſenſible is very diſguſtful to ſome of the zealous defenders of the faith; but I am ſtill of my friend Yorick's mind, "that an ounce of practical divinity is worth thirty ton of dry, fine ſpun, ſpeculative theology.

[The Remainder in our next.]

HARTFORD, October 9.

Lord's Day, the 1ſt Inſtant, departed this life, at his Seat in Eaſt Hartford, the Honorable WILLIAM PITKIN, Eſq; Governor of this Colony, after a ſhort Illneſs, and in the 76th Year of his Age—a very heavy Stroke, and demands deep and bitter Lamentation! He was endued with good Abilities, natural and acquired, and qualified for ſpecial Service, in his Generation; and ſhone with Honuor in the various important Truſts to which Providence called him. He was early improved as a Repreſentative of this Town in the General Aſſembly of this Colony, of which he was Speaker many Years. In the Year 1737, he was elected a Member of his Majeſty's Council, and ſhortly after, appointed an aſſiſtant Judge of the Hon. Superior Court. In the Year 1754 he was choſen Deputy-Governor, and made Chief Judge of that Court, in which Poſt he continued till May, 1766, when he was elected Governor, in which Office he died: In all which (and ſeveral other Offices that he ſuſtained) he conducted to very general Acceptance, and public Approbation; well filling and adorning his Station. He well underſtood, and carefully apply'd himſelf to the Duties of his Place, and was an hearty Friend to civil and religious Liberty—to this government, and laboured to the utmoſt, to promote it's beſt Intereſt. As his Judgment was ſound and his Integrity unimpeach'd, ſo his Piety was uneffected and conſpicuous, and his Stability firm, and unſhaken. He truly ſcattered away Evil with his Eye, and made it aſhamed with his Preſence, and to ſerve the public, and be beneficial to all as he had Opportunity was his Buſineſs and Delight. In ſhort, he was an Example of univerſal Goodneſs in all Relations. And his Character was very amiable in private as well as public Life. Eminent for Probity, Temperance, Patience in well-doing, and Public-ſpiritedneſs. Courteous and obliging; of eaſy Acceſs, and given to Hoſpitality; in whom the Gentleman, Chriſtian, and good Ruler, were happily united. And as he lived, ſo he died with Calmneſs and Compoſure, in the full Aſſurance of Faith, and has doubtleſs received the Plaudit of his Lord, and entered into his Joys.

His Remains were interred on Tueſday after; a Sermon preached on the mournful Occaſion, to a numerous and crowded Aſſembly, and his Corpſe attended to the Grave by a large Number of Gentlemen of public Character, from this and the neighbouring Towns. Notwithſtanding his advanced Years he retained his Powers remarkably well, and was ſtill capable of further Uſefulneſs, had it pleaſed God to have continued his important life. The Loſs of him muſt be deeply felt and regretted, not only by his Family; and the Church and Town where he reſided, and was ſo great a Bleſſing; but to the Colony and Public, to which he was ſo bright an Ornament, and ſignal Benefactor. And peculiarly affecting is the Loſs, and ſevere the Calamity, in being deprived of ſo capable and patriotic a Leader and Head, at ſo critical and dark a Day as this. Whereon we may well cry, Let thy tender Mercies ſpeedily prevent us, for we are brought very low. Help us, O God of our Salvation. Much of our Defence and Glory is gone, but God lives, who can repair the Breach, tho' great and wide as the Sea. In whom alone is the Help of an afflicted People, and who encourages a Return to him, in that, though he hath torn, he will heal; and tho' he hath ſmitten, he will bind us up.

BOSTON, Oct. 2.

A letter from Rhode-Iſland by the laſt poſt ſays,——

We have reduc'd our Cuſtom houſe Officers to the Table of Fees eſtabliſhed by a Law of this Province, and have commenced ſome Actions for exorbitant Demands.——Our Collector is (I ſuppoſe) now at Boſton, conſulting the Oracles; if you happen to become acquainted with him, you'll eaſily perceive him to be no Conjurer—by his Conduct, he appears to have been under the Tuition and Guidance of our old Friend Shan Ap Morgan, and with the Aſſiſtance of Mr. Beals, he comes on very faſt in a good Way. ——Maſter Shan is Prudent in keeping the Ninny Hammer under his Wing—he and Beal's might, and we ſuppoſe will, by Accident or Deſign, ſoon make ſome Curious diſcovery of old affairs.—M--lcom intends giving a Publick Breackfaſt as ſoon as he can get his Gardens in order.—We hear it is the high Taſte at Boſton.

As Money is ſcarce at Bermudas, we hear the Commiſſioners have lately had a large Remittance of TURTLE from that Iſland ſome of which they dreſſed laſt Week in this Town; and tho' many Invitations were given out to the Royal Repaſt, we hear that excepting the PENSIONED HYPOCRITE, that great Friend to his Country, not an American appeared to regale of their Dainties.

BOSTON, Octo. 5.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman of Credit at Portſmouth, New-Hampſhire, to one in this Town, dated Sept. 23, 1769.

—I Often read but not without Indignation, the abuſive, ſcurrilous Publications of J. M——. I think the Merchants do well to treat his Publications with Contempt: He is not worth ſo much notice as to be anſwered by ſo reſpectable a Body. If he had one thouſandth part the Senſe he has Impudence, he never would have publiſhed thoſe ſcandalous Pieces. Should he ever be endued with common ſenſe and the leaſt Principle of Honour and Juſtice, he will humbly implore the Pardon of the many worthy Gentlemen he has ſo ungenerouſly treated, eſpecially Mr. Hancock, whoſe Name will ſhine in the Records of Fame, when infamous Jacobites & Tories will ſink in oblivion; except ſome ſhould be recorded for their notorious Crimes, as a warning to future Generations. Gentlemen here think Mr. M—— uſes them very ill, he publiſhed a pompous Advertiſement of his C——, that it ſhould contain the moſt uſeful and entertaining things, &c. &c. inſtead of that, he fills it with his own low contemptible abuſive Pieces.—They are determined not to be impoſed on by him again.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman of undoubted Credit in London, to his Friend in this Town, dated July 13, 1769.

—"I am honored with your's of May 10th and agree with you perfectly in your Sentiments of public affairs. Government here ſeems now to be growing more moderate in regard to America; and I am perſwaded that by a ſteady, prudent conduct, we ſhall finally obtain all our important points, and eſtabliſh American Liberty on a clearer and firmer foundation. The folly of the late meaſures begins to be ſeen and underſtood at court, their Promoters growing out of credit, and the trading Part of the nation, with the Manufacturers, are become ſenſible how neceſſary it is for their welfare to be on good Terms with us. The Petitioners of Middleſex and London have numbered among their grievances the unconſtitutional taxes on America; and ſimilar Petitions are expected from all quarters; ſo that I think we need only be quiet and perſevere in our Schemes of Frugality and Induſtry, and, the reſt will do itſelf.—Your Governor is recalled, and 'tis ſaid the Commiſſioners will follow ſoon, or be new modelled with ſome men of diſcretion among them."

Cal. Bull, ju.

Oppoſite the North End of the Court Houſe in Hartford,

WANTS a Quantity of FLAX SEED, for which he will give Salt or Engliſh Goods, of which he has an Aſſortment ſuitable for the Seaſon.

TO BE SOLD

At the houſe of Moſes Butler in Hartford, the BRICK HOUSE adjoining to the Great Bridge in ſaid Hartford, on Friday the 27th day of October inſt. at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at Public Vendue.

To be ſold at the ſame time and place, two pieces of LAND lying in the South Meadow in ſaid Hartford, now in the Poſſeſſion of Elijah Clap, being excellent Meadow Land.

ALSO, To be ſold at public Vendue, or private ſale at the houſe of Nathaniel Porter in Eaſt-Windſor, on the third Tueſday of November next, ſix Pieces of Land in the Occupation of Thomas Elmer, Ten Acres of good Meadow, Ten Acres beſt upland Paſture near the Poſt Road, and the Reſidue large Tracts of well wooded and timbered OutLand. Alſo four hundred Acres of Land lying on Mankerouſen Brook, in ſaid Eaſt Windſor, on which a good Sawmill was formerly erected.

Alſo, to be ſold, a Farm of one hundred Acres, and the third Part of a good Griſt-Mill in Hebron, in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Skinner. For Terms apply to

TITUS HOSMER.

Strayed or Stolen,

FROM the ſubſcriber of Newington, on Monday night, the 2d. inſt. A Sorrel HORSE, about 14 hands high, four years old paſt, both paces and trots, white main and tail, the main lately cut off ſhort, a blaze in his face, white feet, a ſmall white ſpot on each ſide of his neck, no brand——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid horſe and thief (if ſtole) and return him to the owner, and ſecure the thief, ſo that he may be bro't to juſtice, ſhall have a handſome Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JOHN GOODRICH.

Glaſtenbury, Oct. 6, 1769.

We the Subſcribers being appointed by the hon. Judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, Commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the Creditors to the eſtate of Iſaac Brownſon, of Bolton, (repreſented Inſolvent) do hereby give public notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs, at the houſe of Peter Olcott Innholder in ſaid Bolton, on the firſt Tueſdays of October, Nov. & Dec. next from 2 till 9 o'Clock Afternoon.

BENJAMIN TALCOTT, } Commiſſioners.
THOMAS PITKIN. }

A Quantity of the beſt

LONG ISLAND Fleeſe WOOL, to be ſold cheap by the Fleece, for Caſh only——Enquire of Nathaniel Burnham, of Eaſt Hartford.

Meſſ. Printers,

I OBSERV'd in your papers No. 241 & 242, an anſwer to a piece ſometime before, containing ſome remarks, on the medical Corporation of Litchfield county (as they ſtile themſelves) and am very ſorry that the gentleman (whoever he was) in his attempts to vindicate the corporation, ſhould ſay nothing by way of anſwer to the objections there made, unleſs to deny a plain matter of fact, capable of being fully prov'd, by a number of witneſſes——Doubtleſs what the author of that firſt piece (attempted) to prove was, viz. that the propos'd deſign of the medical corporation (which was to keep out quack's and pretenders to phyſic) under it's preſent conſtitution, could not be anſwered. He produced an inſtance of a perſon's being recommended by ſaid ſociety, who had never liv'd with any regular practitioner in the character of an apprentice; and was (in his opinion) no ways qualified for the practice of phyſic as yet. (Which ſeems now very evidently to be the caſe, in as much, as he has declin'd it ſince, from a conſciouſneſs (as he himſelf owns) of not being (as yet) ſufficiently qualified. In which I think he acts like a man of conſcience.—And yet notwithſtanding all this, the vindicator of the corporation in that labour'd performance of his, roundly affirms, that no ſuch inſtance can be produced in the county. In that piece the author produced one inſtance to prove his opinion of the corporation.——now I will produce another, and that is, the receiving one into their communion (and thereby recommending him to the world, as an able phyſician) who had been pronounc'd by a number of the principal members of the corporation, but a few weeks before a non compus mentis, that is in plain Engliſh a fool——that he was not then, nor ever could be fit for the practice of phyſic——Now if theſe two facts are true, does it not fully prove his aſſertion, which is (by Mr. Vindicator thought) ſo bold—and that they are true I am fully able to demonſtrate—this conduct of the corporation very much diſpleas'd ſome of the members who were not preſent, in ſo much that they had almoſt come to a determination, never to attend the meeting of the corporation more—neither am I alone in my ſentiments, many of the members have ſpoke with freedom, and have given it as their opinion, that above one half of the members of the corporation are not fit for the practice of phyſic—And becauſe the author of the firſt piece has endeavoured to ſet theſe matters in a true light, (with a view, no doubt if any thing ſhould be done to regulate the practice of phyſic) it might be done to anſwer ſome good purpoſe, for which he is accuſed, by this able logician, as an enemy to religion, learning, and all that is good. But if his appearing to be inimical to quacks and vain pretenders, and to a corporation, whoſe very exiſtence recommends a number of ſuch to the world, has incur'd ſuch an heavy charge, together with a threat of amputation, and the like: I would have the Vindicator know, that, (as for my part) I have not liv'd ſo long in the woods as to be fear'd at an Owl, altho' it is a frightful Bird.

The author of the firſt piece has ſaid nothing againſt regulating the practice of phyſic.—He has ſaid nothing to diſcourage the practitioners in phyſic from uniting (in a proper manner) to diſcourage and diſcountenance vain pretenders.—All that he has ſaid only militates againſt a corporation, that has in fact, recommended, and ſtill continue to recommend, a number of ſuch to the world. And becauſe he did not diſtinguiſh between the real and profeſs'd deſign of the corporation, he is charg'd with inconſiſtency: but if the vindicator wants to know my opinion of ſuch matters, undoubtedly the profeſs'd deſign was the thing he intended. However if I myſelf was to judge of the real deſign of its members, I ſhould think, that a deſire of diſtinguiſhing themſelves, by public orations on phyſic extracted from Boerhaave, (excepting now and then a blunder, where the author truſting to his own legs venture's without his crutch) were the governing motives. And as to the laws and rules of ſaid ſociety, notwithſtanding all the accurate reaſonings to the contrary, I am ſtill of the ſame opinion with the author of the firſt piece; eſpecially that which forbids to hold communion with any who don't belong to the ſociety (however learn'd and ingenious in other reſpects) he affirm'd that ſuch impoſition was inconſiſtant with the natural rights and liberties of mankind. And I think all the Vindicator has ſaid (by way of proof) amounts to no more than this, viz. that all the phyſicians of note ſoon join'd the corporation, as tho' truth, and righteouſneſs were to be determined by vote. But ſuppoſe a man of learning and ingenuity ſhould refuſe to join with the corporation, and ſhould offer this as a reaſon, viz. that the greater part of the members were unqualified, and no ways ſuitable to be conſulted or truſted to in caſe where life lay at ſtake, muſt ſuch a perſon be treated with contempt and neglect, becauſe he can't ſacrifice the peace of his conſcience, and his love to his fellow men? which he thinks he muſt do, if he joins with the corporation.——Now if this is not impoſition, I don't know what impoſition means——The cenſure of ſuch a ſociety——and even amputation from it, would be about as terrible as the Pope's curſe to a Proteſtant. In both of which I believe there would be more ſound than ſubſtance. In ſhort; I ſee but two places, wherein the author of the firſt piece appears to me to be in the leaſt inconſiſtant. One is where he calls that ſociety, or combination, by the name of corporation, and the other is where he ſays he has himſelf had the honor to be a member of the ſociety.

* * *

To be ſold by

Heman & Levi Allen,

in Saliſbury near the Furnace a large Quantity of the beſt of DEERSKINS (juſt received from Detroit) by the Pack or ſmaller Quantity, ready dreſſed or otherways; Alſo Weſt India and Dry Goods, for Caſh or Country Produce, the ſubſcribers will barter whole Packs of Deerſkins for Wollen Check, Shoes, &c. &c.

HEMAN & LEVI ALLEN.

STrayed from the ſubſcriber at Kent, ſometime in the month of July laſt, two Mare Colts, one of them three years old, a natural pacer, dock't, but not branded, the other two years old, branded on her right ſhoulder X, paces and trots. Whoſoever ſhall take up ſaid Mares, and give me notice, that I may have them again ſhall have TWO DOLLARS Reward.

JOSEPH GUTRHIE.

Kent, 26 Sept. 1769.

Juſt re-printed, and to be ſold by T & S. Green, Printers in N. Haven,
(Price TWENTY SHILLINGS.)
The Connecticut Colony
LAW-BOOK,
Containing all the Laws which are in Force in ſaid Colony, together with a neat and correct
TABLE.

HARTFORD:
Printed by GREEN & WATSON,

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be Sold by
GREEN and WATSON,
At the Printing-Office in Hartford, and by
CYPRIAN WEBSTER of Harwinton,

A DISSERTATION, on the Qualifications neceſſary to a lawful profeſſion and enjoying ſpecial Ordinances; and alſo on the Attonement of JESUS CHRIST. By Andrew Bartholomew, A. M. Paſtor of the Church in Harwinton.

STRAYED or Stolen from the Subſcriber of Coventry, in Connecticut, out of the Paſture of Jeremiah Atwater of New-Haven, on the night of the 13th Inſtant, a dark bay or brown Horſe, about fourteen hands & half high, has no Brand, thick ſet and well made, very rarely Trots, Paces ſquare and large, eight Years old laſt Spring.——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Horſe, and Thief, (if he be ſtolen) and return him to ſaid Atwater, or the ſubſcriber, ſhall have Three Dollars Reward, and all neceſſary Charges paid by

NATHAN STRONG.

September 22d. 1769.

TO BE SOLD.

(Lying between the weſtern Branch of the River Delaware, and the eaſtermoſt Branch of the Suſquehannah)

20,000 Acres of Land

well proportioned with plow, meadow and paſture Land, with a Variety of Streams running through it, very commodious for the erecting Mills, &c. within about eight Miles of Schoharrey, 40 of Albany, and 40 of the Kaats Kills. Any Perſon inclining to ſettle on the above Lands, may apply to the Subſcriber in Eaſt Windſor (who intends ſoon to remove and ſettle on the ſame), who will ſell on the moſt reaſonable Terms, and give good Warrantee Deeds to the Purchaſers.

JOHN HARPER, jun.

Eaſt Windſor, Auguſt 26 1769. 7w45

ALL PERSONS indebted to the late partnerſhip of Gardiner & Jepſon, by book ſtill unſetled are once more deſired to ſettle the ſame immediately either by Caſh or their Obligations; and thoſe indebted by their Obligations, are deſired to diſcharge the ſame, as ſaid Partnerſhip has now been five years expired, otherwiſe they muſt expect to be Sued forthwith.

ALSO all Perſons indebted to ſaid Jepſon, on book, whoſe accounts are of more than one Years ſtanding, that unleſs they ſettle the ſame, either by Caſh or their Obligations, they muſt expect Trouble, and thoſe whoſe obligations are now due, are deſired to make ſpeedy payment. Said Jepſon Acquaints his Cuſtomers and others, that he has for ſale a large quantity of choice DRUGGS and MEDICINES, which he will ſell wholeſale and retail, at the very loweſt Prices, for Caſh or ſhort Credit. Alſo Surgeon's Capital Inſtruments, Crooked Needles, Pattented Medicines, good and genuine as Bateman's Drops, Lockyer's Pills, Turlington's Balſam of Life, &c. Logwood, Fuſtick, Allum, Copperas, &c. &c.

Hartford Sept. 25. 1769

J. Morton,

At his Store in Hartford, on the North ſide the Green in the Houſe of Mrs. Sarah Edwards,

HAS a good Aſſortment of Dry Goods, Iron-Mongery, Earthen Ware, Glaſs Ware, and beſt London Pewter, Blown and Rock Salt

N. B. Said Morton intending for Europe, in the Fall, will ſell off what goods he has on hand, very low for Caſh or Produce.

MONDAY, Oct. 16, 1769. Numb. 252.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

A Philoſophical Eſſay on COMETS.

MODERN Philoſophy, not fond of productions meerly conjectural, diſcarding as far as poſſible, all Hypotheſes, ſuch only excepted, as are agreeable to juſt reaſoning, conſentaneous to experience, probable in their own nature, and ſufficient to explain their Phænomena; will never readily embrace the contracted notions and vague conjectures, which have been won't to prevail among many, reſpecting the nature, affections, and final cauſes of Comets; as ſuppoſing them to be no other than ſome ſlight tenuous meteors or exhalations within or near the confines of our Atmoſphere, there, with frightful aſpect ſuſpended, as ſome ſtupendous prodigy deſign'd principally or only to be portentive of ſome dire event or approaching calamity: but chooſes rather to regulate its ſpeculations according to eſtabliſh'd laws of nature; the analogy of things; or what is exhibited by their Phænomena. As therefore on the one hand it ſavours not a little of vanity for any to pretend to a very minute and accurate acquaintance with the moſt intimate nature, ſtate, and condition of bodies at ſuch an immenſe diſtance as Comets are from us; ſo on the other hand, not a little of contractedneſs and ignorance, to ſuppoſe, that a good acquaintance with thoſe phyſical laws of attraction and gravitation, which are ſuppoſed univerſally to obtain throughout our ſyſtem, as alſo of circular motions reſulting therefrom; will not furniſh an obſerver with an excellent clue, by which to inveſtigate many curious and entertaining diſcoveries relative to thoſe diſtant bodies, which otherwiſe muſt have been concealed from us. In this way only, together with probable conjectures from Analogy, and deductions from Phænomena aſſiſted by Mathematicks it is, that any reaſonable pretenſions to any genuine acquaintance with the nature, &c. of Comets, have ever been made.—Upon theſe premiſes than we may venture to ſuppoſe and generically to define that,

COMETS are large, fix'd and ſolid compact opaque bodies, ſeen only by the reflection of borrowed light, ſubject to the laws of circular motions round their central body the Sun; thus making a part of our Syſtem.

That theſe generical aſcriptions are true of Comets appears from the following conſiderations.

1. That they are large extended bodies, needs no other proof, than that they have a ſenſible apparent diameter, which however ſmall, muſt at ſuch a diſtance import their nucleus to be large and bulky, as otherwiſe it could not be diſcerned—And, that their diſtances from us, even when thus beheld, are very great, is evident from this, that they have no diurnal or horizontal parallax——As the diſk of a Comet is not well defined, on account of its circumambient vapour; the angle ſubtended thereby cannot with accuracy be aſcertained: yet if we ſhould only ſuppoſe the apparent diameter to be no more than equal to 3 ſeconds of a minute (which I think is the leaſt we can ſuppoſe for any viſible object) it would make the real diameter not leſs than 637 Engliſh miles, in caſe its diſtance from us be equal to the diſtance we are at from the ſun; and ſo in a direct proportion for any other diſtance or apparent magnitude, greater or leſs.

2. That their bodies are fix'd, compact and ſolid appears from this, that notwithſtanding the prodigious intenſity of heat they conceive in their acceſs towards the Sun, which in the Comet fore mentioned, Sir Iſaac Newton computes to be 2000 times greater than that of a red-hot Iron; yet their bodies remain firm, which if they were unfix'd and volatile, they muſt by ſuch intenſe heat be ſubject to utter diſperſion and diſſipation.

3. That they are Opake, and ſeen only with borrowed light, is evident from this, that, their light does conſtantly increaſe in their receſs from the earth towards the ſun and vice verſa: the contrary to which would be true were they luminous PER SE.

4 That they are carried round the ſun by the laws of circular motion, and ſo make a part of the Solar Syſtem, needs no other proof than, that from obſervation of their courſes, on the footing of theſe principles, ſuch calculations have been made as have been ſufficient to determine with tolerable accuracy, the Perihelion, velocities, periodical times, &c. of ſeveral of them.

In all theſe reſpects they agree with thoſe other heavenly bodies called primary Planets; yet Comets and Planets are ſpecifically different. And this difference, ſeems to conſiſt in thoſe articles I ſhall here mention.

1. In reſpect of the direction of their courſes or of the plain of their Orbits. The Planets obſerve a ſteady regularity, and moſt of them have their courſes nearly coincident with the plain of the ecliptic, or, of the annual path of the earth. And no one of them, even in its greateſt excurſion North or South, deviates more than 7 deg. from it. So that they are ever to be found within the limits of the Zodiac; all moving the ſame way, viz. from Weſt to Eaſt, or in conſequentia according to the order of the ſigns.—Whereas the Comets in their courſes are reſtricted to no ſuch limits, but move in all directions to and from any point of the heavens, either retrograde or direct; interſecting the ecliptic at any angle.

2. Another article of diſtinction is the prodigious excentricity of the orbits in which they move; between the conjugate and tranverſe diameter of which, there is a vaſt diſproportion: Thus they are at one time carried at an immenſe diſtance from the Sun into the cold regions of boundleſs ſpace, at another bro't near into the torrid confines of that glowing luminary: thus undergoing ſucceſſive alternations of extreme heat and cold.

Comets move in very long orbits, which as they are vaſtly more elliptical than thoſe of Planets, ſo they are carried to a diſtance from the ſun greater, by far, than that of any Planet.—Thus, by a computation of Sir Iſaac Newton, the Comet of A.D. 1680 the period of whoſe revolution was 575 years was carried 11201951780 Engliſh miles from the ſun which is more than 14 times further then the mean diſtance of Saturn, the remoteſt of all the Planets, and which is near about 30 years in completing his periodical revolution. And as their diſtances from the ſun in the various parts of their orbits are very diverſe, ſo the velocities with which they are carried are very unequal, being in exact conformity to thoſe diſtances reciprocally i. e. the leſs the diſtance the greater the velocity & ſo e Contra; and theſe different velocities which obtain in the ſeveral parts of their orbits are conſtantly regulated by this invariable law, viz. That they deſcribe equal Areas in equal times. ‡

3. Another thing remarkably diſtinguiſhing of Comets is, that always, when within our obſervation they are attended with a luminous Phænomenon, called the Tail, reſembling a ſteam or vapour, proceeding from the Nucleus, and always in a direction nearly oppoſite to the ſun.

Though the bodies of Comets are ſuppoſed to be compact and ſolid, yet are they not ſo fix'd as to be ſubject to no degree of evaporation: but do emit a fine tenuous lucid vapor, exhibiting the Phænomenon we call their tail——That this is conſtituted of an effluvia proceeding from the nucleus as its ſource, there is all the marks of probability from its appearance—That this is forcibly ſeparated from its ſurface by the intenſe ardor of the ſuns rays, and is not the effect of any inteſtine efferveſcence is manifeſt, in that the tail becomes more conſpicuouſly bright and fiery as well as more extenſive and ſpacious the nearer it approaches the ſun, and vice verſa; and much more ſo in their returns from, than in their acceſs towards it.

As the component particles of the tail ſeem to be an efflux from the nucleus we may perhaps with probability ſuppoſe that their bodies are to a conſiderable degree furniſhed with the proper materials for evaporation, or rather ſublimation by ſolar heat, and not a little ſuſceptible of it. And were we allow'd to indulge conjectures, from what is exhibited by the Phænomenon; ſhould perhaps be inclined to an opinion that it is ſomething, the compages or texture of which is by heat render'd more lax and volatile than the earthy or aqueous, and more analogous to the oily reſinous ſulphurious or bituminous kind.

---

‡ For illuſtration, ſuppoſe that an imaginary line drawn from the center of the ſun to the center of the Comet, ſhould by the Comets motion be carried over a certain Area or ſuperficial content of the plain of its orbit, in any given time when near the Sun: then when the Comet is in the remoteſt part of its orbit it muſt go ſo much ſlower as to carry the ſame line (tho' now vaſtly extended) over no greater part of its Area or ſuperficial content in the ſame time, than when the Comet was neareſt the ſun.——Hence it appears that when in its greateſt diſtance from the ſun its motion muſt be very ſlow compar'd with what it is when in Perihelio, or neareſt the ſun; as it needs then to move comparatively but very ſlow to carry a very long line over a given ſpace or Area, in the ſame given time that it would require to carry one that is very ſhort over an equal ſpace. And 'tis on the footing of this with other kindred laws of motion that their Periods, &c. are computed.

[The Remainder in our next]

PHILADELPHIA, Sept 29.

Tueſday laſt arrived here Capt. Benjamin Amory, late of the ſloop Mary, bound from this place for St Kitts, who informs, that he left our Capes on Thurſday the 7th inſt that the next morning about 4 o'clock the gale came on at E. N. E which continued till about three in the afternoon, when the wind ſhifted to W N W. and increaſed to a mere hurricane; that he ſcuded away from the ſhore about four P M. till ten, then hove too; the next morning he ſcuded again from the ſhore; that on the 11th, in lat. 34. being in the Gulph ſtream, the wind blowing violent at E. S. E., cauſed a prodigious high ſea, which overſet her bottom upwards; when two of his negroes were drowned; that himſelf, his mate, one white man, and two negroes got on the wreck and cut the laniards of the ſhrowds when the maſt went away, and ſhe righted; they then continued on the deck for 7 days, enduring great hardſhips, till they were quite worn out with fatigue, when they providentially met with Captain Shoals in a Sloop from the Grenades for New York, who took them all on board, and treated them kindly, and on Sunday laſt put them on board a pilot boat off our Capes, in which they came to town. The Captain was ſo very weak and burnt with the ſun, that he could not go to the water caſk to drink, and they having nothing to drink out of, his negro ſupplied him by taking a mouthful at a time to carry him, and he ſubſiſted chiefly on a ſpermaceti candle.

New-York, October, 12.

On Saturday laſt his Majeſty's Commiſſioners appointed under the Great Seal of Great Britain, for ſettling the Boundary line between this Colony and New Jerſey, pronounced their decree. The commiſſion was opened on the 18th Day of July laſt, by the following gentlemen, to wit.

CHARLES STEUART, Eſq; Preſident.
Andrew Elliot, Eſq;
Samuel Holland, Eſq;
Andrew Oliver, Eſq;
Charls Morris, Eſq;
Peyten Randolph, Eſq;
Jared Ingerſoll, Eſq;

Some Time before the Decree was given, Mr. Randolph was called away by neceſſary Avocations of a public Nature.—The Decree was pronounced by four of the remaining Commiſſioners, to wit, Mr. Preſident, Mr. Elliot, Mr. Oliver, and Mr Ingorſoll, who determined "the Boundary Partition Line between the two colonies to be, a direct and ſtraight Line from the Fork at the mouth of Mahacamack River, formed by its Junction with the river called Delaware (as they term it) or the Fiſh Kill, in the Latitude of 41°. 21^{I}, and 37^{II}, to the Latitude of 41° on Hudſon's River, found by their Surveyors to be at a marked Rock on the weſt ſide of Hudſon's River, 79 Chains and 27 Links to the Southward, on a Meridian from Sneydon's Houſe, formerly Dorbet's."

Tho' by this Decree the court houſe and church in Orange Town, is left a few rods to the Northward of the Line decreed yet upwards of 150 Families, ſettled in that antient County Town will if the decree be confirmed, be diſmembred from this colony, and expoſed to utter ruin.

Influenced by this conſideration, and a regard to the royal commiſſion which authorized the commiſſioners to ſettle the Boundary line, upon Principles of juſtice and Equity, Samuel Holland, and Charles Morris, Eſqrs, diſſented from the decree of the court; and by their diſſent, which was entered in the records of the court, immediately following the decree, they, in ſubſtance, declare it, among other things, as their opinion, that a line from the Station on Hudſon's River, which in the year 1686 was ſolemnly fixed by the ſeveral Governments, as the Partition point on Hudſon's River, to the mouth of Mahacomack, would be now conformable to the antient Grants, Juriſdiction and poſſeſſions of both colonies; and therefore more agreeable to his Majeſty's benign Intentions, in directing the boundary line to be ſettled upon Principles of juſtice and Equity.

As by the above mentioned decree, his Majeſty's Intereſt's, to the amount of many hundred thouſand acres of Land, and a vaſt Number of antient poſſeſſions held by patents under this colony, are totally ceded to New Jerſey, and the antient Juriſdiction of this colony greatly encroached on, the agents on the part of New York, conceiving it to be their duty to appeal from the decree, immediately after the ſame was pronounced, tendered to the court their appeal to his Majeſty in Privy council; and prayed that it might be entered, and the proceedings forthwith tranſmitted:—But tho' the court permitted it to be entered, they refuſed to receive it as an appeal, conceiving that by the terms of the Royal Commiſſion, they were not at Liberty to receive an appeal, till after the Expiration of two months, from the time of pronouncing the decree: And for this Purpoſe they adjourned, to meet at Hartford, in Connecticut, on the 8th Day of December next.

BOSTON, October 9.

Laſt Thurſday Evening was married the right noble, right valiant, right humane, right wiſe, right well born, right well bred, right pure, right ſound, right untainted John Robinſon, Eſq; one of that right delectable Board of right powerful Commiſſioners, to Miſs Nancy Bouteneau, a native of this Town! Daughter of James Bouteneau, Eſq; and Grand Daughter of the worthy Deacon Stephen Bouteneau, deceaſed, who fled from the Tyranny of France that he might enjoy the bleſſings of Freedom in America.

NEW-HAVEN, October 13.

This Day, the General Aſſembly of this Colony, elected the Honorable JONATHAN TRUMBULL, Eſq; Governor of the Colony, in the Room of the Honorable WILLIAM PITKIN, Eſq; deceaſed:—And the Honorable MATTHEW GRISWOLD, Eſq; Deputy Governor, in the Room of Deputy Governor Trumbull, promoted.

In Reſpect to the Memory of our late worthy Governor, laſt Tueſday a Funeral proceſſion was formed in this town as follows, Firſt, the Troop of Horſe under the command of Captain John Beecher. Second, the Foot Companies under the Command of Captains Hubbard and Munſon, with their Arms reverſ'd. And, Thirdly, the Gentlemen, Clergy, and other inhabitants of this Town; who, after marching in SOLEMN POMP, once round the market-place, three Vollies were fir'd by the Troop and Foot Companies.—The Proceſſion conſiſted of near a Thouſand Perſons, who behaved with Decency and good Order on the Occaſion.

☞ The Roll of Repreſentatives return'd to ſet in General Aſſembly in New-Haven, muſt be omitted till next Week.

WHereas I the Subſcriber am inform'd that I am accuſed of purchaſing the box of Tea advertiſed in the Connecticut Courant of the 2d of this inſt. to be on bord Capt. George Butler, purchaſed of the Hutchinſon's in Boſton, imported contrary to agreement of the Merchants in Boſton. I think it neceſſary to inform the Public, that I never have either directly or indirectly, had a ſingle Ounce of Tea from Boſton, in the ſpace of four years paſt; and that ſaid accuſation is falſe and groundleſs, and very injurious to

FISHER GAY.

Farmington, Oct. 12, 1769.

TO BE SOLD,

At the houſe of Moſes Butler in Hartford, the BRICK HOUSE, adjoining to the Great Bridge in ſaid Hartford, on Friday the 27th day of October inſt. at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at Public Vendue.

To be ſold at the ſame time and place, two pieces of LAND lying in the South Meadow in ſaid Hartford, now in the Poſſeſſion of Elijah Clap, being excellent Meadow Land.

ALSO, To be ſold at public Vendue, or private ſale, at the houſe of Nathaniel Porter in Eaſt-Windſor, on the third Tueſday of November next, ſix Pieces of Land in the Occupation of Thomas Elmer, Ten Acres of good Meadow, Ten Acres beſt upland Paſture near the Poſt Road, and the Reſidue large Tracts of well wooded and timbered Out Land. Alſo, four hundred Acres of Land lying on Mayexooſen Brook, in ſaid Eaſt Windſor, on which a good Sawmill was formerly erected.

Alſo, to be ſold, a Farm of one hundred Acres, and the third Part of a good Griſt-Mill in Hebron, in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Skinner. For Terms apply to

TITUS HOSMER.

Cal. Bull, ju.

Oppoſite the North End of the Court Houſe in Hartford,

WANTS a Quantity of FLAX SEED, for which he will give Salt or Engliſh Goods, of which he has an Aſſortment ſuitable for the Seaſon

Juſt re-printed, and to be ſold by T. & S. Green, Printers in N. Haven,
(Price TWENTY SHILLINGS.)
The Connecticut Colony
LAW-BOOK,
Containing all the Laws which are in Force in ſaid Colony, together with a neat and correct
TABLE.

STrayed from the ſubſcriber at Kent, ſometime in the month of July laſt, two Mare Colts, one of them three years old, a natural pacer, dock't, but not branded, the other two years old, branded on her right ſhoulder X, paces and trots. Whoſoever ſhall take up ſaid Mares, and give me notice, that I may have them again ſhall have TWO DOLLARS Reward,

JOSEPH GUTRHIE.

Kent, 26 Sept 1769.

To be ſold by
Heman & Levi Allen,
in Saliſbury near the Furnace a large Quantity of the beſt of DEERSKINS (juſt received from Detroit) by the Pack or ſmaller Quantity, ready dreſſed or otherways; Alſo Weſt India and Dry Goods, for Caſh or Country Produce, the ſubſcribers will barter whole Packs of Deerſkins for Wollen Check, Shoes, &c. &c.

HEMAN & LEVI ALLEN.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be Sold by
GREEN and WATSON,
At the Printing-Office in Hartford, and by
CYPRIAN WEBSTER of Harwinton,

A DISSERTATION, on the Qualifications neceſſary to a lawful profeſſion and enjoying ſpecial Ordinances; and alſo on the Attonement of JESUS CHRIST.
By Andrew Bartholemew, A. M.

[Remainder of the Piece begun in our laſt]

THE certain method of elucidating miſterious points, lately adopted, called metaphyſical, is entirely fallacious.—Some certain data are admitted to build upon, and men can raiſe juſt what they pleaſe—I would not deſpiſe metaphyſicks, in the proper ſenſe of the word. But I can never be ſatisfyed with thoſe demonſtrations, which grow out of propoſitions taken for granted merely becauſe they have been long admitted. E. G. It has long been taken for granted, and as ſuch argued upon without heſitation, "that ſin is an infinite evil becauſe it is commited againſt an infinite being." And 'tis as much hereſy even for weak minds to doubt this, as to doubt the being of God. On this platform they mount, and demonſtration riſes in what part they pleaſe. But even if this be true, will not thoſe who are not adepts in the doctrine of infinites, and yet are ſmatterers at logic, from hence argue and conclude, that it then follows, or rather contains to his purpoſe "that any act of a finite being becomes infinite on account of the object towards whom 'tis directed" and that if ſo to query, why is not the love the chriſtian bears to GOD an infinite love? Why is not every act proceeding from a principle of piety an infinite good? and why cannot ſome extraordinary chriſtian render to GOD a ranſom for their neighbour? Who has any right to ſay that if this propoſition is true from the nature of things, that it is not likewiſe true "that the leaſt degree of puniſhment inflicted by an infinite being upon a finite creature is an infinite puniſhment" &c. by ad infinitum, I am ſorry that the ſyllogiſtick amuſement of a commencement day are become ſo faſhionable a method of parochial inſtructions.——I cannot think that when a poſition, paradoxical to common ſenſe, is to be demonſtrated; and the all conquering Ergo is, after much ſpinning and weaving, bro't forth from its metaphyſical loom——I ſay I cannot think that the manufacturer himſelf ſee's it, and loves it, as truth—he is pleaſed with his own ingenuity without doubt, and intend, that others ſhall be.—"Ye GOD's! What havock has ambition made among your works!"

This way of demonſtrating any thing a man pleaſes for truth, is not confined to thoſe who have a real talent at ſhining away in it. But as it is taken for the criterion of a great man, ſome of the little pulpiteers have been ſomething oſtentatious that way, to the no ſmall diſguſt of the ſenſibly ſerious, and entertainment of the giddy and riſible——This ſame predominant thirſt for fame of this kind has put ſome gentlemen of one talent upon ſtraining like the frog in the fable, ſo that their whole preaching, from one end of the year to the other is a ſeries of pretended cloſe arguments upon the decrees—God's laſt and—the benefit of ſin, &c. and the phraſeology comprizes a certain ſet of very convincing common place terms, ſuch as wherefore—if ſo, then—'tis plain—conſequently it follows, and the like. Let my preacher or author be who he will, I can aſſure him that however we may applaud his talents, we taſte, reliſh, and are nouriſhed by a diſh of plain common-ſenſe; and ſuch viands as have continually for ages paſſed the digeſtion of common conſciences, and common ſtomachs; more than the fineſt metaphyſical ragouts, cooked up in demonſtration, diſguſtful to reliſh. We account the common ſenſe diſh more ſafe and wholeſome. And we would inform him, that if a camel cannot paſs thro' the eye of a needle, it is ſcarcely worth while to ſpoil much paper in determining whether the impoſſibility aroſe from the camels being too big for the needles eye, or the needles eye too ſmall for the camel.——A few lines from Hudibraſs as they occur ſo apropos.

"He could raiſe ſcruples dark and nice,
And after ſolve them in a trice,
As if divinity had catch'd
The Itch on purpoſe to be ſcratch'd;
Or like a Mountebank did wound
And ſtab herſelf with doubts profound,
Only to ſhew with how ſmall pain
The ſores of faith are cured again,
Altho' by woful truth we find
They always leave a ſcar behind

When men pride themſelves in anatomizing the matters of divinity, they have got an unmannerly trick of looking with contempt upon preachers and writers, of another caſt, however ſuperior to themſelves in genius and compoſition——"He has a good ſtile, but he does not preach the GOSPEL."—"I always chuſe to go into the VERY CORE and MARROW of divinity when I preach." O ſurfeiting! when the poor fellow can't write a page of grammer, nor ſpell a line gramatically.——I find I muſt conclude, but it ſhall be with another quotation.

" Some things are plain, we can't miſunderſtand;
Some ſtill obſcure, tho' thouſand have explaind.
Thoſe influence more which reaſon can conceive,
Than ſuch as we thro' faith alone believe;
In thoſe we judge, in theſe you may deceive,
But what too deep in myſtery is thrown,
The wiſeſt preachers chuſe to let alone,
How Adam's fault effect all human kind;
How three is one, and one is three combind;
How certain preſcience check not future will,
And why almighty goodneſs ſuffers ill;
Such points as theſe by FAR TOO DEEP for MAN,
Were never well explain'd nor ever can."

I am your Humble Servant,
Beltaſhazar Slap Daſh.

JUST PUBLISHED,
A Collection of
Original PAPERS,
Which are intended to ſupport and elucidate the principal Facts related in the firſt Part of the HISTORY of MASSACHUSETS BAY, and may ſerve as an Appendix to it.

☞ Subſcribers are deſired to ſend for their Books to T. & J. Fleet, at the Heart & Crown, in Cornhill, BOSTON.

Harwinton, Oct 7, 1769.

RUN Away on Friday the 29 Sept. from the ſubſcriber living in Harwinton, an Apprentice boy, named Ebenezer Worner, aged about 16 years, 5 feet 5 inches high, had on when he went away a brown homeſpun coat, black broad cloth veſt, leather breaches, check't holland ſhirt, caſter hat, wares his own hare tied behind. Whoſoever takes up ſaid apprentice and returns him to his maſter, ſhall have Two Dollars reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by me

ISAAC CURTIS.

Hartford, 13. Oct. 1769.

SOME time ſince, was left upon a Horſe-Block in this town, a Man's Great Coat,——The owner may have it, by proving his property, and paying for this Advertiſement.—Enquire of the PRINTERS.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY.

AS an apprentice to a Weaver a likely boy about 15 years old that has a mind to learn all ſorts of work in that way, that is done in the Country.———Enquire of the PRINTERS.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

BOSTON, October 5 1769.

Extract of a letter from New York, dated Sept 22.

"Laſt Nigt arrived a Veſſel from Pool laden chiefly with Dry goods, as I am told, conſign'd to the Captain, who ſays, he will contrary to any Reſolves among the Merchants here, land and Diſpoſe of ſaid goods to beſt Advantage.—None are yet come on Shore, being cloſely watch'd by the Sons of Liberty".

Extract of another Letter, dated New-York, Sept. 24

"On Tueſday laſt Mr. T R——ſon mounted the Roſtrum, facing the Liberty-Pole in the Fields, and made his public Acknowledgement.—He is a Jeweller from England, woth about £300 Sterling in Trinkets, &c. but he hath been obliged to conſent to ſtore them under the Care of the Committee.

It is currently reported here. That all Intercourſe with Rhode Iſland is nearly ſhut up, as if the Plague was there, as we will neither ſell to them, or ſhip them any Goods nor receive any from thence, nor ſuffer them to ſell any in this Province."

It is ſaid, that at Philadelphia, they propoſe to have no Intercourſe in Trade with Rhode Iſland.

AT a Meeting of the Freeholders and other Inhabitants of the Town of BOSTON, legally aſſembled at Faneuil Hall on Wedneſday the 4th of October, 1769.

The Hon. Thomas Cuſhing, Eſq; Moderator.

AGREEABLE to the Notification of the Selectmen, it was ordered, that the authentic Copies of the ſeveral Letters, Memorials, &c wrote by Governor Bernard, Commodore Hood, the Commiſſioners of the Cuſtoms, and others, to the Miniſtry, which were laid before the Parliament, and tranſmitted to the Selectmen by William Bollan, Eſq; be read ſo far as they related to this Town; and they were read accordingly.

A Motion was then made, and it was unanimouſly Voted, That the thanks of the town be and hereby are given to William Bollan, Eſq; for his generous Care in tranſmitting to the Selectmen authentic Copies of Letters wrote to his Majeſty's Miniſters of State, by Governor Bernard, General Gage, Commodore Hood, and others, and alſo of ſeveral Memorials of the Commiſſioners of the Cuſtoms in America.——In which Letters and Memorials the Diſpoſition and Conduct of the Inhabitants of the Town have been groſly miſrepreſented to our Sovereign, in Conſequence whereof they have been ſenſibly affected with the marks of his Majeſty's Diſpleaſure——and that the Moderator be directed to tranſmit this vote of thanks to Mr. Bollan for ſo ſeaſonable and important a Service.

It was alſo unanimouſly Voted, That the Hon. Thomas Cuſhing, Eſq; Mr. Samuel Adams, John Adams, Eſq; the Hon. James Otis, Eſq; Dr. Joſeph Warren, Richard Dana, Eſq; Joſhua Henſhaw, Eſq; Joſeph Jackſon Eſq; and Benjamin Kent, Eſq; be and hereby are appointed a Committee to conſider what Meaſures are proper to be taken, to vindicate the Character of the town from the falſe and injurious Repreſentations contained in the Letters and Memorials aforeſaid, and report at the Adjournment of this Meeting.

After which, upon a Motion made, the following Vote was unaniouſly paſſed:

THE Merchants, not only of this Metropolis, but through the Continent, having nobly preferred the public Good to their own private Emolument: And with a view to obtain a Redreſs of the Grievances ſo loudly and juſtly complained of, having almoſt unanimouſly engaged to ſuſpend their Importations from Great Britain: A Meaſure approved by all Orders, as legal, peaceable, and moſt likely of all others to effect the ſalutary Deſign in view; and which will be regarded by Poſterity with Veneration, for the diſintereſted, and truly pulic Spirit appearing in it: The Town cannot but expreſs their Aſtoniſhment and Indignation, that any of its Citizens ſhould be ſo loſt to the Feelings of Patriotiſm and the common Intereſt, and ſo thoroughly and infamouſly ſelfiſh, as to obſtruct this very Meaſure by continuing their Importation. Be it therefore Solemnly Voted, that the Names of thoſe Perſons ——Jew indeed, to the Honour of the Town,—viz ——John Bernard, Nathaniel Rogers, Theophilus Lillie, James Mc. Maſters and Comp'y, John Mein, Thomas Hutchinſon, Jun'r. and Eliſha Hutchinſon,——be entered on the Records of this Town, that Poſterity may know, who thoſe Perſons were that preferred their little private Advantage to the common Intereſt of all the Colonies in a Point of the greateſt Importance; who not only deſerted but oppoſed their Country, in a ſtruggle for the Rights of the Conſtitution, that muſt ever do it honor. And who with a Deſign to enrich themſelves, baſely took Advantage of their fellow Citizens for the Common Good.

Ordered, That the foregoing Votes be printed in the ſeveral public News-Papers.

Then the Meeting was adjourned to Wedneſday the 18th Inſtant at 10 o'clock in the Fore noon.

Atteſt, WILLIAM COOPPER, Town Clerk.

Notwithſtanding the above Meeting was ſo full a one, the Merchants of the Town, were during the whole Time, at the Repreſentatives Chamber, on Buſineſs of Importance which concerned the general Cauſe.

Tueſday Morning laſt arrived here the Brig Wolf, Capt. Briant from London, which he left the 28th July laſt;——In the Brig came Paſſengers, Samuel Vennter, Eſq; late Secretary to the Board of Commiſſioners, Capt. Lyde, Capt. Coppinger, Mr. Patrick [illegible], a Merchant from London, and ſeveral others among whom were one or two Hatters and Jewellers.

Capt. Bryant ſpoke off Cape-Sables with the Elizabeth, from Cork for Philadelphia, all well.

On the arrival of the above Veſſel, a Meeting of the Merchants was immediately called, and the following Tranſactions voted to be publiſhed.

THE Merchants of this town met at Faneuil Hall on the third of October Inſtant, and being informed that Mr. Patrick Smith, a Stranger from London, had imported a Quantity of Goods in the Brigantine Wolf, John Briant, Maſter, and conſidering that in caſe Strangers might import Goods while the Merchants were obligated not to import any, it would have a direct Tendency to fruſtrate the Deſign of their Agreement, and ſo be attended with fatal Conſequences, they appointed a Committee to apply to Mr. Smith, and deſire his attendance, who accordingly attended and ſigned an Agreement to reſhip his Goods for London, a Copy of which is hereafter inſerted: Capt. Nathaniel Byfield Lyde, and Mr. Colburn Barrell alſo appeared at the Meeting and ſigned ſimilar Agreements, which are alſo inſerted below.

And at a Meeting of the Merchats the fourth Inſt. a Gentleman appeared, at the Requeſt of Thomas and Eliſha Hutchinſon, informed the Merchants that they were ready to treat with them with reſpect to the Goods they had imported; upon which a Committee was appointed to hear their Propoſals; The Committee accordingly had a Conference with them, and reported that they had acceded to every Article of the Agreement of the Merchants, and had engaged to deliver up the Eighteen Cheſts of Tea, they imported in Captain Briant; as alſo any other Goods that they might receive by any other Veſſels.——

The Committee alſo reported, that Mr. Theophilus Lillie met them, and acceded to the agreement, and entered into ſimilar Engagements.

Which Report was accepted.

The Merchants ſent a Meſſage to Nathaniel Rogers, John Bernard, and James Mc Maſters, requeſting their attendance at the Meeting at half after three o'Clock P. M.—Their ſeveral anſwers were highly inſolent, and juſtly deſerving of Cenſure, particularly the Anſwer received from James Mc Maſters, who refuſed to attend, and told Mr. Gore and Mr. Freeman that the Merchants might do as they pleaſed, that he found they intended to make a Riot, which he ſhould be very glad to ſee:

Voted unanimouſly, That theſe ſeveral Perſons by continuing their Importations from Time to Time, contrary to the Senſe of the Trade, notwithſtanding the Pains that has been taken to prevail with them to accede to the agreement, have diſcovered a baſe Attachment to their own little private Intereſts and a total diſregard to that of the Public: It appears they have had a ſettled Deſign to counteract and defeat the generous Efforts of the Merchants, and have acted altogether unbecoming the Character of good Citizens, and therefore are not only unworthy of the future Countenance and Favour of the Public in any reſpect, but by this their Conduct have rendered themſelves juſtly obnoxious to all who have any Regard for the Welfair of their Country.

Voted, That the Committee of Inſpection be and hereby are deſired to make ſtrict enquiry after ſuch Perſons as may hereafter purchaſe Goods of thoſe who continue to import from G. Britain contrary to the agreement of the Merchants, and publiſh their Names in the News-Papers.

Voted, unaniſmouſly, That the conduct of the ſtanding Committee is highly worthy of our Approbation, and we accordingly approve of it in every Inſtance, eſpecially in the fair, juſt and impartial account which they publiſhed the 28th of Auguſt laſt, relative to ſuch Goods as have been imported from Great-Britain ſince the Agreement of Non-Importation has taken place, in anſwer to the fallacious and ſcandalous Aſſertions of one John Mein in his many ſcurrilous and abuſive Publications.

WHEREAS I the Subſcriber have imported a quantity of Goods conſiſting of Twenty Eight Bales and Caſes in the Brigantine Wolf, from London, and I find ſince my arrival, that it will greatly interfere with, and have a Tendency to defeat the good Intentions of the Merchants of this Place in their Agreement of Non-Imporation, and gives great Uneaſineſs to the People of this Place: I hereby promiſe and engage to Reſhip the ſaid Goods to London, by the firſt Veſſel that will take Freight for ſaid Place, provided the Chrge of Reſhipping and Inſurance of the ſame be borne by the Merchants here, as well as my Paſſage back.

Boſton, Oct. 3d, 1769. PATRICK SMITH.

WHEREAS I the Subſcriber have imported a Quantity of Goods, conſiſting of Four Caſes, in the Brigatine Wolf, from London; and I find ſince my arrival, that it will greatly interfere with, and have a Tendency to defeat the good Intentions of the Merchants of this Place, in their Agreement of Non-Importation and gives great Uneaſineſs to this Place; I hereby promiſe and engage to reſhip the ſaid goods to London, by the firſt Veſſel that will take Freight for ſaid place, provided the Charge of Reſhipping, Inſurance and Freight of the ſame, be borne by the Merchants.

Boſton October 3, 1769.

NATH'L. BYFIELD LYDE.

WHEREAS I the Subſcriber have a Parcel of goods contained in Six Trunks, Eight Caſes, per the Brigantine Wolf, conſigned to me from London: I hereby promiſe and engage to reſhip the ſaid goods to London by the firſt Veſſel that will take Freight for ſaid place, provided the charge of Reſhipping, Inſurance and Freight for the ſame be borne by the Merchants, and alſo indemnify me from any Charges that may ariſe on ſaid goods here from this Time.

COLBN. BARREL.

We hear the Merchants here propoſe that if the Rhode Iſland Merchants do not come into an agreement of Nonimportation of goods from Great-Britain, they will treat them as thoſe at New-York and Philadelphia have done, and inform their Correſpondents in London, that if they ſhip goods for Newport or Providence, they will change their Correſpondents.

It is alſo propoſed, that an Agreement be ſigned by the Owners of Veſſels gone & going for London, to give their Maſters Orders in writing, not to take on board any Goods except what is allowed of by the Merchants here, until the Revenue-Acts are repeald.

It is likewiſe propoſed that an agreement be ſubſcribed, to as has been at Philadelphia and New York, to extend their Non Importation until the Revenue acts are repealed.

A Day or two ago one of the Importers ſent a trunk of Goods to go to Old York by Capt. Winn, who inquiring of the Servant from whence they came, and being informed, the Captain refuſed to take it on board, and ſent the Servant back with the goods——Some altercation enſued between the Merchant and Captain; but the goods were not taken on board.

We hear that two Strangers who imported three Boxes of Linnens, from Philadelphia in Capt. Gorham, have agreed to re-ſhip them by the firſt Veſſel that ſails for that port.

QUEBEC, Auguſt 31.

Friday Night, about 11 o'Clock, as a poor Man, his wife, and two Children, were departing from this city, in a canoe, to their farm up the country, they unluckily run athwart a ſhip's cable in the river, which immediately overſet the canoe, when happily for them the Man inſtantly catch'd one of the children with his teeth, and got hold of the cable with his hands, where, with his Wife hanging round his body, he ſupported himſelf and them till taken up by ſome Boats: The other child was taken up ſome diſtance from them floating on the water, borne up only by the Blanket, in which it was lying when the canoe, overſet; ſo they were all maraculouſly ſav'd, but loſt every thing they had in the canoe.

Strayed or Stolen,

FROM the ſubſcriber of Newington, on Monday night, the 2d. inſt. A Sorrel HORSE, about 14 hands high, four years old paſt, both paces and trots, white main and tail, the main lately cut off ſhort, a blaze in his face, white feet, a ſmall white ſpot on each ſide of his neck, no brand——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid horſe and thief (if ſtole) and return him to the owner, and ſecure the thief, ſo that he may be bro't to juſtice, ſhall have a handſome Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, By

JOHN GOODRICH.

Gaſtenbury, Oct. 6, 1769.

HARTFORD:
Printed by Green and Watson.

MONDAY, Oct. 23, 1769.

Numb. 253.

THE Connecticu COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

A Philoſophical Eſſay on COMETS,

[continued.]

THUS far definitively as to Comets: ſhould it now be demanded how theſe prodigious maſſy ORBS are with perſevering conſtancy carried on in their reſpective elliptic or parabolic circuits round the ſun, and with velocities reciprocally proportioned to their diſtances therefrom, compleating their revolutions at certain ſtated periods; and all this without either falling into the body of the ſun in their near Appulſes toward it, or being loſt in the immenſely diſtant regions of boundleſs ſpace in their remoteſt excurſions from it?—To this it might be anſwer'd, that, this ſurprizing regularity is effected by nothing leſs than the conſtant and immediate agency of that ſame Almighty ſupreme being, by whoſe imperial FIAT all nature at once, from Non-Entity ſtarted forth into exiſtence.—Yet true as this may be, we are at the ſame time to conceive of this ſupreme Agency, in this, as well as in all its operations throughout the known limits of his wide extended dominions, as being exerciſed in a certain ſtated, regular, uniform method of operation: and being thus exerciſed, does aſſume the very formal nature of and really becomes what is called a LAW of nature: which is no other than a certain general rule, or ſtated method, according to which natural effects, or natural appearances are immediately produced by GOD.

In this view then of the matter it comes to this, viz. that Comets (as well as Planets) are carried along in their Orbits according to certain ſtated and fix'd laws of nature by the combination or joint operation of which, are generated what we call Central Forces, as, viz. the laws of gravitation; and the laws of projection.

GRAVITATION is that habitual conſtitution which (by a conſtant and uniform Agency of the firſt ſupreme cauſe) takes place in all material ſubſtances throughout the univerſe, (ſo far as experiments have ever been made) whereby in direct and exact proportion to their reſpective quantities of matter, they have a mutual tendency towards their common center.——Upon this univerſal principle, all the bodies of the Solar Syſtem have a direct propenſity, or tendency towards the ſun: This is called the CENTRI-PETAL force.—And was this force ſimply and ſolely to exert itſelf upon them, it would inſtantly with increaſing velocity carry them directly towards, and into the body of the Sun.

THE laws of PROJECTION (ſo far as is pertinent to the preſent purpoſe) are ſuch as theſe, viz. that a body once projected or put in motion, will perpetually continue to perſevere therein, and in the ſame direction; unleſs obſtructed in its progreſs, or deflected from its courſe by ſome extraneous power impreſs'd; and that theſe changes are always proportioned to the Momentum occaſioning them; and in the ſame direction in which that force is impreſs'd. From this projectile force is generated what is called the CENTRI-FUGAL force, or that by which bodies tend to receed or fly from their center.

Now let us conſider the operation of theſe two kinds of forces in reference to the bodies of the Solar Syſtem. Suppoſe we then, that in the beginning, or at the firſt adjuſtment of this Syſtem, and antecedent to all the laws of motion; a Comet ſhould have been poſited in a quieſcent ſtate at what we now call its mean diſtance from the ſun; it would then by its Vis Inertiæ have no tendency to move to or from the ſun.——Now while the Comet is thus at reſt let us ſuppoſe that, at once it is by Almighty power impreſs'd with a projectile impulſe, from which it becomes a ſubject of the law of projectile force; and thus carried in a right line, neither directly towards, nor from the ſun; but in the direction of a tangent; which is a line at right-angles with another drawn to the center of the ſun: then 'tis plain that by this impulſe it is ſo qualified as to have a conſtant Conatus or endeavour to receed or depart from the ſun; and is hereby conſtantly moving at a greater diſtance from it: according to the forementioned law of Projection.

AGAIN let us ſuppoſe that the force of gravitation (which if alone operating, would carry it directly to the ſun) ſhould take place at the ſame inſtant with that of Projection; 'tis very certain this would give it a turn toward the ſun; and ſo divert it from a ſtrait line, conſtantly bending its direction into a curve towards the ſun. And upon the whole 'tis evident that by the joint operation of theſe two forces, viz. Centri petal and centrifugal a projected body muſt move in an intermediate direction between the two extreems, of falling directly into the ſun; and of flying from it in a tangent line; by the former it is diverted from a right line, to an inclination towards the ſun; by the latter it is ſecured from falling into it. And ſo being thruſt along by the projectile impulſe it will continue to move along in a circle round the ſun its common center.

I might here add, that from the nature of theſe combining forces it appears, that the diverſity of the forms or figures of their orbits, depends entirely on the different adjuſtments of theſe combinations; which is always proportioned to the direction in which the moving body is firſt impell'd or projected; and alſo to the degree of velocity firſt communicated to it in that direction. Thus, if the body be projected in the direction of a tangent, or at right angles with the line paſſing thro' the centers of the projected and central body, and with ſuch a velocity as will generate a centri fugal force juſt equal to counterballancing the centri-petal force of attraction; it will in that caſe deſcribe an exact circle: becauſe theſe two forces being equal and oppoſite, will by their obnitency counter act and deſtroy each other; conſequently the body muſt keep at the ſame diſtance from its center, being conſtantly propell'd by its projectile force round its central body——But tho' the direction ſhould be the ſame, yet if the velocity be different (whether leſs or greater it matters not) the moving body will deſcribe an ellipſis, not a circle. If greater, it regards the neareſt Focus as the place of its central body; beginning and ending its revolution at the Perihelion: but if leſs, regards the moſt diſtant Focus as its center beginning and ending its revolution at the Aphelion.——But if the Direction ſhould be diverſe, or any other than a Tangent, or at Right Angles as above; the velocity can never be ſo adjuſted as to conform the body to a true circle: but muſt form an ellipſis, whoſe excentricity will be greater or leſs in a Ratio compoſed of the direction of the moving body and its velocity.

Theſe are Poſtulatums whoſe evidence is derived from the very nature of theſe combind forces in their phyſical opperations.

Some Corollaries may properly take place here.

In the firſt place, it appears that, as well the Comets as the planets of our Syſtem in their preſent conſtitution are kept from falling into the ſun, by nothing but the Centrifugal force generated by their projection——That (while nature remains the ſame) they can't in any of their different revolutions, increaſe their proximity to the ſun (much leſs fall into it) while the centri-petal and centrifugal forces are an exact counter-ballance to each other, unleſs acted upon by an extraneous force——that the centri-petal force wholly ceaſing, the centri fugal carries the body off in a tangent——the centri fugal wholly ceaſing, the body at once falls in a right line directly into the ſun——it partially ceaſing ſo as not to counterballance the other, the body gradually (perhaps after many gyrations) deſcends in a ſpiral line and falls obliquely into the ſun.——In fine, that no revolving body ever falls directly into the ſun but in conſequence of a total deficiency or deſtruction of its centri-fugal force *.

---

* It ſeems not impertinent here to animadvert upon a pretty common, though groundleſs notion, that has been conceived of late, reſpecting the late COMET, viz. that it has actually fallen into the ſun; 'tis not indeed very ſtrange that ſuch a ſuſpicion ſhould obtain among ſuch as have not had the advantage of obſerving its trajectory courſe; eſpecially ſince the opinion has the additional corroboration of an appearance of a very remarkable Phænomenon on the diſk of the ſun, which happened about the 25 of September, ſoon aftter the Comet in its approach towards the ſun, had withdrew from obſervation. Upon which principle it ſeems they ground the reaſon of its preſent occultation from us. As this Phænomenon was noticed by ſundry in this town, and as I myſelf in particular (without the aſſiſtance of a Magnifyer) had ocular demonſtration of it no doubt can be made of its reality. This appearance however, I venture to ſuppoſe can't be accounted for upon the forementioned principle, but may rather be ſuppoſed to be no more than a congeries or aſſemblage of theſe Maculæ or Spots which at times are notorious appendages of the ſuns diſk, which though when ſingular are ſeldom diſcernable to the naked eye, yet when congeſted together are very apparent. Be that as it may, 'tis very certain, that though ſo great a part of its Orbit did not come under obſervation as to furniſh us with the pre-requiſite DATA for very exact computations of its period, &c. yet by its obſerved direction it was manifeſtly influenc'd by ſuch a degree of centri fugal force as would keep it at ſuch a diſtance from the ſun as that it could not poſſibly fall into it in this revolution; its preſent occultation from us ſince it fell behind the ſun has been owing to its being ſo immerſed in the ſame rays as to be no more an object of obſervation.

[The Sequel being more lengthy than we were ſenſible of, part muſt be omitted til our next]

NEW-HAVEN, October 13.

Roll of Repreſentatives returned to ſet in General Aſſembly in this Colony, holden at New Haven, on the Second Thurſday (12th) October 1769.

For the County of Hartford.

Hartford.
Mr. Benjamin Payne, Col. John Pitkin.
Middletown.
Hon. Jab. Hamlin, Eſq; Seth Wetmore Eſq; Weathersfield.
Hon John Cheſter, Eliſha Williams Eſqrs;
Farmington.
Iſaac Lee, Eſq; Mr Fiſher Gay.
Windſor.
Alexander Wolcot, Joſiah Biſſel, Eſqrs;
Symsbury.
Mr. Joſ. Forward. Mr. Amos Wilcox, jun.
Glaſſenbury.
Mr. Jonath. Wells, John Kimberly, Eſq;
Colcheſter.
Henry Champion, Daniel Foot, Eſqrs;
Suffield.
Samuel Kent, Eſq; Capt. John Granger.
Tolland.
Hon. Zabulon Weſt, Eſq; Speaker.
Capt. Samuel Chapman.
Eaſt Haddam.
Dan. Brainard, Eſq; Capt. Chriſt. Holms.
Somers.
Mr. Emery Peaſe, Capt. Luke Cooley,
Chatham.
Mr. Eben. White, Mr. Eliſha Cornwell.
Stafford.
Iſaac Pinny, Eſq; Capt. Samuel Davis.
Eaſt Winſor.
Maj. Eraſtus Wolcot Capt Char. Ellſworth.
Enfield.
Mr. Edward Collins Capt. Eph. Peaſe.
Haddam.
Capt. Jabez Brainard, Capt Thos. Seldon.
Bolton.
Thomas Pitkin, Eſq; Capt. Joel White.
Willington.
Mr. Moſes Holmes, Capt. Timo. Pearle.
Hebron.
David Barber, Eſq; Capt. Obad. Hosford.

For the County of New-Haven.

New Haven.
Col. Nathan Whiting Joſhua Chandler Eſq;
Milford.
John Fowler, Eſq; Maj. Edward Allen.
Durham.
Col. Elihu Chauncy, Jam. Wadſworth Eſq; Brandford.
James Barker, Joſiah Rogers, Eſqrs;
Darby.
Capt. John Holbrook, Mr. Joſ. Holl, jun.
Wallingford.
Macock Ward, Eſq; Capt. Eben. Cole.
Guilford.
Nathaniel Hill, Eſq; Mr. John Burgis.
Waterbury.
Capt. Sam. Hickox, Jonath. Baldwin, Eſq;

For the County of New London.

New London.
Hon. Gordon Saltonſtall, Eſq; William Hilhouſe, Eſq;
Norwich
Eliſha Fitch, Elijah Backus, Eſqrs;
Lyme.
Samuel H. Parſons. John Lay, 2d. Eſqrs;
Stonington.
Charles Phelps, Eſq; Col. Henry Babcock,
Groton.
Capt. Benadam Gallop. Mr. Simeon Avery.
Killingworth.
Theos. Morgon, Eſq; Capt. John Pierſon,
Saybrook.
Maj John Murdock, Capt. John Shipman.
Preſton.
Capt. Roger Sterry, Capt. Moſes Tyler.

For the County of Fairfield.

Fairfield.
David Burr, Eſq; Mr. Thaddeus Burr.
Norwalk.
Col. Thomas Fitch, Mr. Thomas Belden.
New Fairfield.
Mr. James Potter, Mr. John Page.
Danbury.
Joſeph Plat Cook, Daniel Taylor Eſqrs;
Reading.
Col. John Read, Mr. Daniel Lyon.
Ridgfield.
Mr. William Lee, Mr. Philip Burr Bradley.
Stanford.
Benjamin Weed Eſq; Maj. David Waterbury
Greenwich.
Capt. John Mead, Capt. Ruben Bruſh.
Newtown.
Henry Glover, Richard Fairman, Eſqrs;
Stratford.
Theos Nichols, Agur Tomlinſon, Eſqrs;

For the County of Windham.

Windham.
Nath. Wales, jun. Samuel Gray Eſqrs;
Lebanon.
Maj. William Williams, Clerk.
Capt Joſeph Trumbull,
Pomphret.
Col. Eben. Williams, Thomas Williams, Eſq
Canterbury.
John Curtiſs, Eſq; Mr. John Felch.
Plainfield.
Capt John Douglaſs, Mr. Gideon Welles.
Voluntown.
Robert Dickſon, Samuel Steward, Eſq;
Coventry.
Eph. Root, Eſq; Capt. Eben. Kingſbury.
Manſfield.
Mr. Conſt. Southworth. Mr. Edm. Freeman.
Aſhford.
Benja. Samner, Eſq; Capt. Benja. Clark.
Woodſtock.
Capt. Nehem. Lyon, Mr. Manaſſeh Hoſmer,
Killingley.
Mr. Simon Learned, Capt. Silas Hutchins.

For the County of Litchfield.

Litchfield.
Col. Eben. Marſh, Mr. Abraham Kilborn.
New Milford.
Maj Buſhnel Boſtwick, Mr. Abel Hine.
Sharon.
Col. John Williams, Capt. Thos. Pardee.
Kent.
Mr. Eliſha Swift, Mr. Ephraim Hubbell.
Goſhen.
Capt. Samuel Naſh, Mr. Abraham Parmele.
Saliſbury.
Maj. Thos. Chittenden Joſhua Porter, Eſq;
Harwinton.
Abijah Catlin, Eſq; Capt. Daniel Catlin.
Cornwall.
Thos. Ruſſell, Eſq; Capt. Thos. Porter.
New Hartford.
Iſaac Kellogg, Matthew Gillet, Eſqrs;
Canaan.
Capt. Samuel Forbs, Charles Burrel, Eſq;
Woodbury.
Daniel Sherman, Benjamin Stiles, Eſqrs;

PHILADELPHIA, October 5.

Extract of a letter from Carliſle, dated September 24, 1769.

"On the 22d inſtant James Smith, an inhabitant of the upper part of this county, was committed to goal, for the murder of a certain John Johnſton, which happened on the 20th inſtant, near Bedford, and for particulars refer you to the incloſed depoſitions. Yeſterday morning, to our great aſtoniſhment, we had intelligence that a large party of armed and diſguiſed men were within ten miles of this town, in order to take the priſoner out of this goal, alledging that we would ſend him to Philadelphia to take his trial. Upon this notice, John Armſtrong, and John Montgomery, Eſquires, and the Rev. Mr. John Steel, rode out to meet them, while ſundry of the Magiſtrates aſſiſted the Sheriff in raiſing a guard to defend the goal; and accordingly met them, blacked, and armed with rifle guns, and prevailed with them to ſtop and converſe on this ſubject of their preſent intention.

"The reſult of the converſation was, that two perſons (who had not blacked themſelves yet, come down from the neighbourhood of the others) ſhould be admitted to ſee the priſoner, and bring a letter from his own hand, ſhewing whether he choſe to ſtand his trial, or to go with them; which expedient was granted them, only to prevent the effuſion of blood, together with aſſurance, that Smith would receive his trial in the county. They farther inſiſted, that bail ſhould be taken, ſaying, that ſeveral of the beſt freeholders of that part of the county would enter his bail, ſwearing, as a few of them did, in an outrageous manner, that if the requeſt was not complied with, their fire arms ſhould be his bail. To this it was replyed, that the Magiſtrates here had not that power, but would repreſent the matter to the Governor & chief Juſtice, provided the perſon they mentioned would requeſt it, and enter for him. Accordingly the priſoner ſent them a candid letter, declaring his deſire to have a trial by the laws of his country, begging them to return home, &c.

"Notwithſtanding this, they ruſhed into town, and coming to the goal door, which was properly ſecured, and a guard within, & armed men in ſundry private houſes; the priſoner extended his hands as far as he could thro' the windows, and begged them in a ſolemn manner, to return, and to ſhed no innocent blood; which together with the exertions of the Magiſtrates, prevailed with them to go off. As we expected, they tarried near the town all night, and appeared to ſet off about day break; but finding their numbers increaſing it is tho't they deſign a vigorous attack.——They have ſpies on every road, and we look for them every moment, being aſſured that as ſoon as they think themſelves ſtrong enough, they will return.

"We have accounts of a large number coming from Potowmack, and look for no other terms from them, than to deliver up the priſoner, or have the town, at leaſt ſome houſes near the priſon, burnt to aſhes. We are in great confuſion, but yet determined to defend the goal to the laſt extremety, and no meaſures have been left unimproved; nor can we think of any, farther than that of admitting bail, which we can by no means do, only thus repreſent the ſituation we are in.

"Sundry people have joined the rioters (not blacked) but whether to influence their return, or otherwiſe, we cannot yet learn. We have no other method of fitting the priſon guard, purchaſing ammunition, or paying expreſſes, but on the credit of a few perſons, which expence will, but too probably, be requiſite for a conſiderable time, of which we hope to be relieved by the honourable the Houſe of Aſſembly.

"We are greatly aſſiſted by ſundry Gentlemen in town, and a number of the good inhabitants, who exert themſelves in a ſpirited and becoming manner. We juſt now learn that the rioters are about 6 miles from hence, apparently moving homewards, which we have ſome expectations they will do, unleſs reinforced by a conſiderable number."

Since receiving the above, we are aſſured, from good information that the number of rioters having increaſed to 150, they had returned within a few miles of Carliſle; but hearing of the reception they were likely to meet with, from the inhabitants being well prepared for them, and the perſuaſion of ſome well diſpoſed perſons, they went off.

BOSTON, October 19

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, dated Auguſt 3, 1769.

"IT is generally believed here Lord H——h can't ſtand it long but Lord B—te is juſt arrived in town and 'tis thought will keep him in ſome time longer; the Oppoſition are not yet ſufficiently united. It was tho't the other day, H——h muſt have gone, as he deſired in the P——y c——l, troops to be ſent to Virginia and was refuſed. Something will be done for America, when the Parliament meet again, but their relieving you effectually depends on your own virtue and fortitude. Your late conduct is noble indeed, every ray is ſplendid with aſſerted right and vindicated freedom. Fortitude in a good cauſe is virtue, and you will be a happy people, if you do not deviate from the preſent path you are proceeding in."

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman at Bath, dated 29th July, 1769.

"I am exceedingly rejoiced to ſee ſuch a dignity of ſoul in the General court as to refuſe doing Buſineſs under ſuch Circumſtances. My complyments to thoſe glorious Worthies who have taken the Lead in ſuch ſpirited Meaſures.——I congratulate them on the compleat Victory they have gained over the Power of a moſt oppreſſive Adminiſtration, and now preſent them with Aſſurances of the full approbation of all the independant People in England and Ireland. The cauſe of America is gaining Ground daily."

NEW-HAVEN, October 20.

The General aſſembly, a few days ſince, elected the Hon. William Pitkin, Eſq; one of the Judges of the Superior court.

Laſt Week the Rev. Mr. Ephraim Woodbridge was ordained to the miniſterial Office over the firſt Society in New-London.

Meſſ GREEN & WATSON

The following ſubſcription, which I underſtand is ſign'd by upwards of one hundred here, and among them, ſome of the beſt farmers; I would be glad you will publiſh in your next, not doubting but every printer in the colony will publiſh it out of regard to common juſtice; and every town draw up and ſign ſomething ſimilar, out of the ſame principle. In doing which, you will oblige the better part of the public, as well as A FARMER, who gives in a liſt of ſtock and lands of more than £. 200.

"October 12th, 1769

WHEREAS we the ſubſcriber, with others of our ſeveral occupations, did petition the hon General Aſſembly of this colony, in October laſt, for the relief from the burthen of working at the Highways, as by a law we at preſent are oblig'd to; which we look upon to be unequal and oppreſſive; and did in ſaid petition, give reaſons ſufficient to have the ſame alter'd——But by reaſon of not having or imploying ſufficient counſel or attorneys to ſpeak to, and ſupport the ſame, it fell through and nothing was done.——And whereas we look upon the ſaid law, as it now ſtands, to be injurious, oppreſſive and unjuſt, we therefore promiſe to pay our proportion according to our ſeveral liſts, to pay ſufficient attorneys to ſpeak to the caſe, and for defraying any other neceſſary charges, in the approaching ſeſſions of aſſembly; hereby declaring, that we never can reſt eaſy in the premiſes, without relief. Witneſs our hands the day and year firſt above written."

LONDON,

Auguſt 3. The Duke of Choiſeul has long meditated the compleat conqueſt of Holland, as by that means France will not only avail herſelf of the immenſe naval ſtores and ſhipping of that once flouriſhing republic; but will alſo make Great-Britain become an annual tributary power to France to the yearly amount of 1,300,000l. that ſum being nearly the intereſt annually paid to the Dutch for the principal money in our funds. But perhaps the Duke of Choiſeul may find himſelf miſtaken in the latter part of his favourite plan, and probably may haſten the ſpunging off ſo much of the debt of Great-Britain.

We congratulate our miniſtry, that they have hitherto withſtood the preſſing ſollicitations of many of the European powers to enter into a continental war, though by ſuch their patriotic reſolution they have given great umbrage to the moſt powerful potentate in the North.

Suſannah Lott was tried at Maidſtone, for the murder of John Lott, her huſband, of Hythe, in Kent, and after a long hearing ſhe was found guilty, and condemned to be drawn upon a hurdle to the uſual place of execution, on Penenden Heath, there to be burnt to aſhes. At the ſame time Benjamin Buſs, convicted alſo of the murder of the ſaid Lott, was condemned to be hanged & his body afterward delivered to a ſurgeon, to be diſſected and anatomized.

The behaviour of Mrs. Lott, during her confinement, was ſerious, decent, and reſigned. She was convicted principally on her own declaration, and the confeſſion ſhe ſigned, ſoon after her huſband was poiſoned: She was much affected during the whole of her trial, particularly at the time of her child being bro't to court, to be ſuckled, which was twice repeated in the courſe of her trial, in order, it is ſuppoſed, to excite the compaſſion of the jury; and at the time of her receiving ſentence, ſo great were the agonies ſhe ſeemed to ſuffer, as drew tears from almoſt every body preſent.

Benjamin Buſs, behaved with an inſolent indifference, till the verdict was found againſt him, when he inſtantly changed colour, and in the utmoſt agony falling down on his knees, begged the mercy of the Court.

BROKE into the encloſure of the Subſcriber of Suffield, ſome time ſince a Roan Mare Colt, about two years old, no brand. The owner on proving his property and paying charges, may have her again by applying to

JOHN LEAVITT.

Suffield, Oct. 20, 1769.

T. Hopkins,

At his STORE, oppoſite the North-Meeting Houſe, Hartford.

HAS juſt received a General Aſſortment of Engliſh GOODS, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable terms, for Caſh or Produce in hand.

N. B. Salt exchanged for Flax-Seed, at the above Store.

Wanted Immediately,

A Journeyman Shoe Maker, that can be well recommended.—Such a one may have good encouragement by applying to

MOSES SMITH.

N. B. A Quantity of choice SOLE LEATHER, and CALF-SKINS, to be Sold by ſaid Smith.

A number of Cattle,

SOME fit for the Shambles; others for the Yoke, or in a proſtate for Stall-feeding, TO BE SOLD by NATHANIEL HOOKER, of Hartford.

All perſons having accounts unſettled with the eſtate of Webſter Waters late of Hartford, deceas'd are deſired to ſettle the ſame immediately, with

JOHN THOMAS, Adminiſtrator.

Hartford, Oct. 20, 1769.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY.

AS an apprentice to a Weaver a likely boy about 15 years old that has a mind to learn all ſorts of work in that way, that is done in the Country,——Enquire of the PRINTERS.

Hartford, 13. Oct. 1769.

SOME time ſince, was left upon a Horſe-Block in this town, a Man's Great Coat.——The owner may have it, by proving his property, and paying for this Advertiſement.—Enquire of the PRINTERS.

Harwinton, Oct 7, 1769.

RUN Away on Friday the 29. Sept. from the ſubſcriber living in Harwinton, an Apprentice boy, named Ebenezer Worner, aged about 16 years, 5 feet 5 inches high, had on when he went away a brown homeſpun coat, black broad cloth veſt, leather breaches, check't holland ſhirt, caſter hat, wares his own hare tied behind. Whoſoever takes up ſaid apprentice and returns him to his maſter, ſhall have Two Dollars reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by me

ISAAC CURTIS

To be ſold by

Heman & Levi Allen,

in Saliſbury near the Furnace a large Quantity of the beſt of DEERSKINS (juſt received from Detroit) by the Pack or ſmaller Quantity, ready dreſſed or otherways; Alſo Weſt India and Dry Goods, for Caſh or Country Produce, the ſubſcribers will barter whole Packs of Deerſkins for Wollen Check, Shoes, &c. &c.

HEMAN & LEVI ALLEN.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

BOSTON, October 12.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman of Credit in London, to his Friend in this Town, July 25.

YOU have given me an herculean labour, when you require my thoughts of men and things. In regard to men here, they conſiſt of knaves and fools, the honeſt part is generally comprehended among the latter, things are ſo diſguiſed as hardly to deſerve the name by which they are call'd; wine is brew'd with brandy, cyder with turnip juice, rape ſeed a ſuccedanium for muſtard, &c. In ſhort corruption ſo runs thro' men and things, that when the Father aſked his little Son what trade he would be apprenticed to? his anſwer was any trade daddy where there is mixing. —In regard to politicks I am tired of them, it is enough when I tell you the American revenue laws will be certainly repealed, not from choice but neceſſity, nor are you indebted (tho' you have many well wiſhers) to any body here for it. It is your own firmneſs & that alone that has ſupported you, it is idle for you to talk of your miniſterial friends, there is no ſuch character, nor would I give a farthing for a change of Miniſters to morrow. I know the D——e R——d, L——d S--e, L——d R———m, and their creatures, I have heard them all, they are, as miniſters, no better diſpoſed than the preſent ſet, they make uſe of America to bring themſelves into power, for which reaſon I have ſaid "The laws will certainly be repealed, the preſent ſet (than which God knows there cannot be a worſe) cannot ſtand their ground without doing it, if the others come in, it is the American cauſe that brings them in and therefore muſt do it. L-d H——h the other day complain'd that he could not enforce his meaſures, that he had been denied ſhips and troops for Virginia, he was told as they were determined to make peace in that quarter he might choſe any other department in the adminiſtration he thought proper; 'tis ſuppoſed after conſulting L——d Bute and L——d Holland he will have ſome other appointment or reſign, if he reſigns L——d Dartmouth will ſucceed (as a ſtop gap) he is generally ſuppoſed to be too honeſt a man to be long continued, in ſhort, while L——d B—— and L——d H———d retain their influence, it is a matter of moon ſhine who are miniſters. I am hurt whenever I read a liſt of your toaſts, you ſeem to idolize ſome, who are no better, than mere lick plates and toad eaters, while you paſs over your great patron & deliverer L——d Chatham unnoticed, at whoſe preſence (even at this day) theſe ſons of corruption (both in and out) tremble, he was the other day at court, each party publiſhed a ſpeech for him, which they would have wiſhed him to have made; the truth is, what he ſaid was foreign to both, he reproved both ins & outs; told them where they were wrong and how to be right, he enjoined them to repeal all the American Revenue acts and recal the troops from thence, ſo much you may depend he ſaid, there is given out many other things adviſed by him, ſuch as a d——d of P——t, &c. for the truth of which I cannot anſwer. The Ld. Chancellor is a good man, if there is any defect in his character, it is a want of fortitude. Sir George Saville comes the neareſt perfection of any man at preſent in this kingdom. Old Alderman Beckford deſerves to be reverenced by every body, particularly the Americans; he is remarkable for blunt truths, he every day ſpeaks what others are almoſt afraid to think: He laſt winter told the H—— C—— while they were complimenting themſelves on their dignity within the walls, he was afraid the people out of doors conſider'd them as little better than a den of thieves.——I have alſo ſome reaſon to think the Commiſſioners the cuſtoms will be recalled.—G———r B—— is not more eſteemed in the city of London, than he is in B———n.' So much for news and politicks."——

Extract of a Letter from one of the Livery of London, to his Friend in Boſton, received by the laſt Ship.

I Am ſorry our rulers have tho't fit ſo to cramp and deſtroy the trade with the colonies, and to lay apparently inſupportable burdens upon them. I hope however things are now taking a more favorable turn, and that it is not yet too late to retrieve our loſt trade, becauſe I think the people of America are too wiſe, when their hardſhips are removed, to make the treatment they have receiv'd from a few perſons in power, ſupported by a P——t, (in which ſo many Placemen, Penſioners, Contractors, Military Officers, ſons and relatives of Noblemen,) the ſtandard by which they muſt form their Judgment of the ſentiments and diſpoſitions of their bretheren, the bulk of the people of England.

I admire the noble ſtand the Coloniſts have made for their liberties, and the rights of free born Engliſhmen, and that they have ſhewn by their ſteadineſs that they are the ſons of thoſe Worthies who left all dear to them here, and caſt themſelves upon your then inhoſpitable and deſolate coaſt, rather than ſubmit to religious or civil tyranny.—May you be ſtill preſerved from any attempts of either; eſpecially if you are relieved from your preſent burdens, from any deſigns of introducing an eccleſiaſtical hierarchy among you

I am charmed with the prudent conduct of the Boſtonians in particular, and that you have been able to preſerve ſo much tranquillity among you, while the ſpirits of the people muſt have been ſo ſowered and agitated by oppreſſion. You have certainly very wiſe and prudent men concern'd in the conduct of your affairs; And GOD give you ſucceſs and once more unite us all as Brethren under one common faith, under one juſt, mild and equitable Government."——

Extract of Letter from London Aug. 1.

THE diſapprobation of the Earl of Chatham, and the coldneſs of the Earl of Bute, have not the leaſt ſtaggered the Miniſtry, or added any real force to oppoſition. The two noble Lords did not poſſeſs thoſe conciliating manners that are calculated to carry influence into retirement. Raiſing into power in the decline of life, they left no hopes of their return into office, after their unaccountable reſignations. The intereſted never worſhip any ſetting ſuns; and that pride, haughtineſs and reſerve, which are the inſeperable companions of aſtoniſhing talents acquired no friends to the two Earls, whoſe affection or attention outlaſted their actual poſſeſſion of power. Upon a ſtrict review of the eſtate of parties in this country, there is leſs probability of a change than in times of leſs oppoſition. The enemies of the preſent Miniſtry are not friends among themſelves. Tho' they all open batteries amongſt the ſervants of the crown, they keep up flank fires upon one another. If Greville likes Rockingham better than he does Grafton, it is only for his being leſs afraid of the parts of the former than of the abilities of the latter. If Chatham is civil to Bute, it is that he wiſhes his Lordſhip ſhould by ſecret intrigue, clear the C——t of the preſent Miniſtry; and ſo, once more, open a field for his own decrepid ambition."

Extract of a Letter from New York, Oct 5.

"Yeſterday was exhibited, to the great Satisfaction of all the good Inhabitants of this City, and to the great Terror of evil does, three Men, who have for ſome time paſt made a practice of giving Information to the Cuſtom houſe Officers againſt Goods illegally imported;—Their Puniſhment was being put on a cart, after being well tarr'd from Head to Foot and covered with Feathers, and then rid thro' every Street in the city, ſurrounded by ſome thouſands of people; they were greatly terrified and very penitent."——

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman of Credit at Portſmouth, New Hampſhire, Sept. 13, 1769.

"I apprehend the time now draws near, when you will be delivered from all your oppreſſors, and they will be caſt out as Evil.——

"I am glad to hear the Small Pox is not likely to ſpread. I rejoice in every Occurrance favourable to the City of Boſton, and ſhall always be ambitious to contribute all in my power to its proſperity. My faith is ſtrong, that ſo much Wiſdom and virtue as hath been conſpicuous in the Boſtonians, will not go unrewarded: That your trade and Manufactures will increaſe, and you will in all reſpects flouriſh until you become the glory of New England, the pride of Britiſh Kings, the ſcourge of Tyrants, and the joy of the whole Earth.——May you, Sir, and all the Friends of Liberty, live to ſee the accompliſhment of theſe things; and after long taſting the ſweets of Liberty here, be tranſplanted to that Land of Freedom, where wicked Commiſſioners, Jacobites and Tories, will forever ceaſe from troubling, and the weary Supporters of the Rights of Mankind be at reſt."——

TO BE SOLD.
(Lying between the weſtern Branch of the River Delaware, and the eaſtermoſt Branch of the Suſquehannah)
20,000 Acres of Land
well proportioned with plow, meadow and paſture Land, with a Variety of Streams running through it, very commodious for the erecting Mills, &c. within about eight Miles of Schoharrey, 40 of Albany, and 40 of the Kaats Kils. Any Perſon inclining to ſettle on the above Lands, may apply to the Subſcriber in Eaſt Windſor (who intends ſoon to remove and ſettle on the ſame) who will ſell on the moſt reaſonable Terms, and give good Warrantee Deeds to the Purchaſers.
JOHN HARPER, jun:
Eaſt Windſor, Auguſt 26, 1769. 7w45

J. Morton,
At his Store in Hartford, on the North ſide the Green in the Houſe of Mrs. Sarah Edwards,
HAS a good Aſſortment of Dry Goods, Iron-Mongery, Earthen Ware, Glaſs Ware, and beſt London Pewter, Blown and Rock Salt
N. B. Said Morton intending for Europe, in the Fall, will ſell off what goods he has on hand, very low for Caſh or Produce.
Litchfield, March 22, 1769.

Strayed or Stolen,
FROM the ſubſcriber of Newington, on Monday night, the 2d. inſt. A Sorrel HORSE, about 14 hands high, four years old paſt, both paces and trots, white main and tail, the main lately cut off ſhort, a blaze in his face, white feet, a ſmall white ſpot on each ſide of his neck, no brand——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid horſe and thief (if ſtole) and return him to the owner, and ſecure the thief, ſo that he may be bro't to juſtice, ſhall have a handſome Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by
JOHN GOODRICH.
Glaſtenbury, Oct. 6, 1769.

HARTFORD:
Printed by Green and Watſon.

MONDAY, Oct. 30, 1769.
Numb 254.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

A Philoſophical Eſſay on COMETS,

[continued.]

AS to the CAUSÆ FINALES of Comets: or what are the principal Purpoſes, Ends and Uſes aſſigned them? And what the reſpective diſtinguiſhing Offices they ſuſtain in their ſeveral departments in the extended Univerſe? Or, what the ſpecial view of the Supreme Creator, in their Production and Suſtentation? Are matters ſo obſcure and perplex'd that perhaps nothing can be aſſerted with any good Aſſurance in the Affair; or that will amount to any thing beyond what is merely conjectural. As, whether in their periodical Permeations through the planetary regions they are by their attractive influence to adjuſt, reſtore, or preſerve a harmonious regularity in the Movements of the complicated Machine?—Whether on the one hand, to ſhed forth their diffuſive ſalutary influence to recruit with freſh ſupplies of vital Nutriment the ſeveral Atmoſpheres of their bordering planetary worlds? Or on the other hand, to interſperſe them with malignant, peſtilential Qualities, productive of baneful mortiferous effects to their Inhabitants?—Whether to ſerve as Ominous Heralds to proclaim the approach of ſome deſtined Calamity?—Whether as inſtrumental Engines, in due time to bring on, and at once compleat the general and utter deſtruction or final Cataſtrophe of Occurſary Worlds ‡?—Whether, by falling into the Body of the Sun, to afford him needful ſupplies of combuſtibles for Fewel?—Or, in fine (as ſome have ſuppoſed) to ſerve as ſo many HELLS for the places of Puniſhment for the Wicked? Theſe I ſay are Queſtions ſo far beyond us as that it becomes us to acquieſce in all that Ignorance which at preſent we are neceſſarily involved in, till we are furniſhed with the requiſite Præcognita from which to inveſtigate ſomething with more evident certainty, than at preſent we can.

In the mean time we may and ought to aſſure ourſelves that however theſe ends and purpoſes, are obſcure, and difficult to aſcertain they are yet the effects of infinite ſkill, Wiſdom & Counſel; anſwerable to the perfections of him who is the Great Author and Superintendant of Univerſal nature. "The Inviſible things of whom from the foundation of the World are clearly Seen being underſtood by the things that are made, even his eternal POWER and GODHEAD."

——By a philoſophical Senſe I mean, that this Event may take place in conſequence of the preſent conſtitution of the Univerſe, under the future Operation of thoſe phyſical Laws according to which it hath hitherto been regulated and governed——True indeed it is, if we have any aſſurance from Divine Revelation or otherwiſe, that their diſſolution is ordained in ſome other way; of Conſequence we know it won't happen in this: but even that don't prove that the preſent order or conſtitution of the Syſtem, is not of ſuch a nature as that in proceſs of time it would of Courſe effect its own diſſolution, if no other way was ordained for it.

Now, there are two ſuppoſable ways in which upon philoſophical principles (for I mean here to ſpeak Philoſophy rather than Theology) according to the preſent conſtiturion this may happen.

In the firſt place, in conſequence of the free and natural operations of the celeſtial bodies, without any Colliſion or Congreſs with each other.

There can I think be no doubt but our Syſtem has the conſtruction of a piece of Mechaniſm; or a machine, all the ſeveral parts of which mutually conſpire to ſubſerve the general movement of the whole. And tho' the ſeveral parts of this Machine are not connected by any ſenſible Medium as in common machines; but ſuſpended at great diſtances from each other: yet their mutual influence is no leſs forcible, conſtant and regular, than if they were thus connected. And their common center of gravity obtains the ſame rational point in the Syſtem at any aſſign'd moment, as would the center of gravity in a portable Machine in miniature whoſe ſeveral parts, connected by a ſenſible Medium, have a ſimilar proportion among themſelves as to quantity of matter and diſtances: and this common center of gravity to which all the bodies in our Syſtem do mutually tend, takes place within or near the body of the Sun, towards or into which all theſe bodies would fall at once, were they not kept at their diſtances by the fore mentioned Centri fugal force.

Now, it appers from foregoing Poſtulatums, that where the Centri-petal force over ballances the Centri fugal, the effect muſt be the falling of the Body into the Sun; conſequently this muſt be the caſe with the Syſtem in general ſhould the whole QUANTUM of its Centrifugal force not be in equal ballance for the whole Quantum of its centri petal, (viz) the whole Syſtem muſt in proceſs of time ſettle in the body of the Sun; as upon the whole it has a prevailing tendency thither—upon which I would only query, whether any philoſopher can with any aſſurance aſſert that theſe two forces are ſo equally Ballanced as forever to prevent ſuch a Cataſtrophe?

But another ſuppoſable way in which the diſſolution of the bodies of our Syſtem upon the foregoing Hypotheſis may be effected, is their interfering with each other by a Colliſion or congreſs in their courſes. We know that Comets are very vague in their courſes, and always form the Perihelion Vertex of their orbits within the orbits of the Planets. The Comet of A.D. 1680 came within the orbit of Mercury and in its way (as appeared by a computation made by Dr. Halley) was not diſtant from the line of the earth's annual orbit more than one half the earth's diameter; ſo that had the earth at that time been in that part of its Orbit, it is not difficult to imagine the conſequence would have been ſhockingly alarming to the terreſtial inhabitants; eſpecially conſidering that mutual attraction would have powerfully ſolicited a mutual impulſe. And how ſoon ſome Comet may threaten the earth with an appulſe no leſs terrifying, GOD only knows.

Now, there is I think from foregoing Poſtulatums a phyſical certainty, that ſhould two celeſtial bodies directly meet and impinge each other in oppoſite directions and with equal forces, the conſequence would be a total deſtruction of the whole Centri-fugal force of each; and they being promiſcuouſly blended together in one common Maſs of ruin would fall directly into the Sun.

Should they meet obliquely with unequal forces, the more forcible body having captivated the other, and the centri-fugal force in each being partially deſtroyed, they would in one maſs gradually deſcend and (in a ſpiral line, reſembling the ſpring of a Watch when wound up, or a ſcroll of parchment that is rolled together) inſinuate themſelves obliquely into the body of the Sun.

Upon the whole; the firſt notices of the approach of an unexpected Comet, is no very unreaſonable ground of concern to the inhabitants of our globe: as they can have no certainty as to its deſtination, conſequently no ſecurity from its annoyance; till after a ſhort ſeries of obſervations, by the direction of its courſe it appears to be pacific and harmleſs.

In fine, ſince all things tend to diſſolution, and ſince by natural or ſupernatural cauſes all theſe things muſt ſoon be diſſolved; it becomes us to conduct as thoſe who have here no continuing city; and to ſtudy what manner of perſons we ought to be in all holy converſation and Godlineſs: looking for, &c.

N. S.

Hartford, October 13, 1769.

NEW YORK, October 16.

Extract of a Letter from a Merchant in Edinburgh, to a Gentleman in this City with a part of the anſwer returned by ſaid Gentleman.

"——I am ſorry, from the heart, to read of your Americans attachment to Wilkes, that ſon of Belial; ſome Colonies ſending him preſents, others inſiſting him to reſide among you (as our news papers ſay) and ſure I am, ſhould he Ever come your way, he would fling fire brands, arrows and death all round you.——No nation ever had a more mild goverment, nor enjoyed a king ſo deſerving as his preſent Majeſty, and ſcarce one worſe uſed. I am told to day, that Wilkes's party had the impudence to attack him in his coach lately, as he was coming from the play houſe, and gave him abuſive language, ſo that he was obliged to ſeek ſhelter from his guards.——Your tem-

---

‡ To ſay there is no apparent Certainty of an event, is one thing: and to ſay there is no probability of it is another: and even if a thing ſhould be deny'd to be either Certain or Probable; yet may it at the ſame time be Poſſible and even Suppoſable. To ſay that there is (to us) no certainty that this, or any of the Planetary Worlds, will come to their diſſolution by the inſtrumentality of a Comet is what I troſt we may all do—To ſay there is no probability of it, perhaps is what moſt will do: But to ſay that ſuch a thing is poſſible and even ſuppoſable in a philoſophical Senſe, is what (I think) we may all ſafely do.

'pers, I own, have been ruffled, but the colonies are overgrown, riches beget pride and luxury, fatal to cities and empires.—Your people cannot well want our aid, tho' I own they can do it better, than we without theirs.——But were you to hear the mournful complaints of tradeſmen and merchants here, how your heart would feel for them.——I lately ſaw many veſſels at London advertiſed, that could not by any means procure a freight, your folks having entered into agreements againſt importation of goods from us;——theſe meaſures, alas, we will ſoon ſee to our loſs.

A N S W E R.

"As to Wilkes, I never knew one colony ſend him a preſent, nor any one man doing it; we can hardly pay Britain our debts; nor was he ever invited here: I often heard gentlemen talk of him here with diſdain, as a very profane man, tho' he eſpouſeth the cauſe of liberty, which is in itſelf glorious. And tho' I think his majeſty had no manner of buſineſs at the play houſe, but had been much better in his cloſet, praying and contriving good anſwers to the juſt petitions of America, London and Middleſex; yet very ſorry I am to hear of his being attacked by a mob; it ſhocks me indeed. You ſay, our tempers you own has been ruffled; yes, and our purſes has been both ruffled and rifled too by your people's repreſentatives, not to pay off the national debt but to pay a board of men no greater ſaints than your Wilkes. You ſay, we are grown in wealth:——that's a miſtake; for if a farmer here goes to a ſhop to buy iron, ſalt, or a coat, inſtead of a purſe with caſh in it, he muſt take a waggon with ſome wheat or the like in it, to ſell at what price the merchant pleaſes, and ſo pay for ſaid goods, and ſince your board of cuſtoms ſet up here, our goals are filled with inſolvent debtors, and our people began heartily to make clothes for themſelves, now when its almoſt too late, having already run ourſelves deep in debt for your fineries.

But why don't your freeholders jointly, by proper inſtructions, charge and command their agents, or attornies, who repreſent them in parliament ſpeedily to repeal theſe revenue acts, &c. which ſtrip us of our dear and glorious liberties? Why did ye vote in ſuch members to deſtroy your trade and liberties? It is certain, that if once we ſtoop to your parliament's arbitrary Admiralty Courts, they have now ſent us, and without our conſent, attempt to make us pay them; the next thing will be to ſend us biſhops Courts, and by a new revenue act, pull money out of our pockets to pay them too; and ſo they ſhall ſtrip us as bare as they did the Britains, in Charles the 2d's time: which God forbid!

Sir, we now poſſeſs, by the ineffable bounty of Heaven, a ſweet, tho' envied Liberty; ſo that our pooreſt peaſants can ſit in their cottages and defy the world to deſtrain a tax of one farthing from them, without their conſent; yea, we can now do more than all the Dukes in England can do; we can bid a bold and daring defiance to all the Biſhops on the globe, to erect a court within our provinces, or diſtrain our flocks or fields for a tenth of our produce; but even your lofty Parliament is ſhackled with, and tamely ſubmits to their yearly incurſions. Our juſt freedoms, from thoſe chains our fathers prayed, fought, bled and died for, and we hope God may pardon our ſins, and not ſuffer your P—— to bereave us of them truly glorious liberties."

WILLIAMSBURG, (In Virginia,) Sept. 21.

Extract of a letter to a Gentleman in Virginia from an eminent merchant in London, who reſided many years in this colony, and upon the death of his partner, removed with his family, all Virginians, to London, where he has proſecuted a very extenſive buſineſs, to the mutual ſatisfaction and advantage of his numerous correſpondents and himſelf. His ſentiments are truly American, and he ſeems to breathe a fervent ſpirit of genuine freedom.

London, July 22. 1769.

"I had, as you obſerve, heard of the diſſolution of the aſſembly of Virginia, and wiſh I had the honour of having my name recorded in the liſt of the reſolvers. I always did, and always ſhall think thoſe laws of taxation unjuſt and oppreſſive; and I highly applaud thoſe who ſtood up bravely in defence of their country. We now, on this ſide, make as many proſelytes in that cauſe as Wh——d in his, and I hope, at leaſt, to as good purpoſes; for it is my real opinion the laws will nay muſt be repealed at the opening of the next ſeſſion of Parliament. His Majeſty has declared his deſire is, that his American ſubjects ſhall be made eaſy."

October 5. We hear that ſome evil diſpoſed and diſorderly perſons have lately killed, at ſundry times, ſixteen of the Delaware and Mingo Indians, on the frontiers of Auguſta county; which the inhabitants fear will occaſion an Indian war, eſpecially as none of the guilty perſons have yet been diſcovered.

PHILADELPHIA, October 12.

Sunday Night laſt, between Nine and Ten o'Clock, one James Hedges, a labouring Man, at Kenſington, inhumanly murdered his Wife, by cutting her throat from Ear to Ear, after which he made his Eſcape; but ſtrict ſearch is making after him. He is about 5 Feet 10 Inches high, thin Viſage, broad ſhouldered lame of one Foot, by a Cut with an Axe, and wore blue Pluſh Breeches. It is hoped all well diſpoſed Perſons will lend their Aſſiſtance in bringing the Villain to Juſtice.

By a gentleman juſt arrived from London, we are informed the Commiſſioners of the cuſtoms were much incenſed at the American Board, on account of ſome complaints which they had the aſſurance to ſend home againſt them to the Lords of the Treaſury; and one of the principal officers of the cuſtoms told him juſt before he embarked, that by the time he arrived in America, there would be orders ſent out to call thoſe gentlemen home, to give account of their conduct.

NEW-YORK, October 19.

Extract of a Letter from Philadelphia Oct. 11, 1769.

"This day we had a jovial ſcene exhibited by a number of Tars; a fellow who had aſſiſted in ſtoring ſome run wines, and being generouſly paid, lodg'd an information; on which the wines were ſeized, and the ſhallopman who had received them from the Veſſel and landed them here, through fear, puſh'd off his bark, which was the little all he was poſſeſſed of, and on which his whole dependence for a livelihood was founded; and to avoid the trouble of an Admiralty proſecution, and the fearful treble damages, intended for Egg Harbour; was in the ſtorm in the 8th ult. on which he loſt his ſhallop, and three men, who were drowned. The informer was this day ſeen for the firſt time ſince he informed,——they ſeized him, bound him, tarred him from head to foot, feathered him, led him through the ſtreets, huzza'd him at every cuſtom houſe officer's door, and made a great parade at the collector's. They then ſet the poor wretch in the pillory for a quarter of an hour, and afterwards carted him, after which they waſhed the tarry devil in the mud of one of our docks, and then peaceably diſmiſs'd him."

Meſſieurs PRINTERS,

Pleaſe to inſert the following.

THE love of fame hath long ſince been eſteem'd an univerſal paſſion; various are the methods taken by mankind in purſuit of this mighty bubble; ſo fond are ſome, and ſo eager in the chaſe, that they will leap from precipices, plunge into the abyſs, or even ruſh on certain death, merely for the love of fame.—Doubtleſs this ſingle conſideration induces ſome men to commence authors, although they do it, at the riſk of their intereſt, and the everlaſting reproach of their names. I can't conceive what other motive ſhou'd influence the late lowliv'd, ſcurrilous ſcribler, to craul forth from deſerv'd obſcurity, by means of the preſs, to public view, in public ſcandal, in two dirty* libels againſt the medical corporation of Litchfield county; did he think to gain univerſal applauſe for his diſintereſted benevolence to the public, in ſhewing them their danger, and the admiration of the world, for his extraordinary abilities as a politician—as it ſeems he did when he enters into the conſideration of the conſtruction of ſocieties, their uſes, &c. he tells us that "union is the band of ſociety." But I obſerv'd he never told us what was the band of union in any ſociety. It would have been as good ſenſe to have ſaid ſociety was the band of union, ſo that his ideas ſeem to be as confuſed as his narrations are falſe, and his conjectures groundleſs, and all are notorious (if not to the world) to many witneſſes. He boaſts indeed of being ſuch a ſturdy boor as not to be frightned with an owl, (though a frightful bird.) If he hath a mind to make full trial of his courage by frightful appearances, I wou'd adviſe him, to look in the glaſs, and if he is'nt frightned then, I will acknowledge he is fool hardy.—I ſhall not take ſo much notice of this wretched ſcribler as to give him a ſerious anſwer to every particular in theſe jargonical epiſtles, but cannot paſs by a particular objection he makes uſe of; for which he is rather beholden to the vulgar than they to him; (viz) "That a combination of Doctors might be hurtful to ſociety, "(tho' ever ſo well qualified) in agreeing "to impoſe upon people with reſpect to their "accounts, and ſo raiſe exorbitant demands." It ſeems this Monkey's mate did not eſteem honour, or honeſty, to be neceſſary or uſeful qualifications, for a phyſician. I heartily wiſh that this was the only inſtance by which he had diſcovered that to be his ſentiment, but this objection, come it from whence it will, hath no foundation in reaſon or commonſenſe; but the reverſe of this ſuppoſition is notoriouſly true.—Not many confidents to a ſecret is a receiv'd maxim in politics. And I challenge him, or any other man to produce a ſingle inſtance where phyſicians, in a public body, have been guilty of the evil here ſurmiſed, on the contrary, look among private practitioners of the knaviſh empirical ſort: and inſtances will not be wanting—This very Adamite (if men of credit are to be depended on) is a notable one, who by means of his noſtrums and arcana, takes advantage to oppreſs the few patients he hath with intolerable demands. And by this method, and this only, the people of this country have been impoſed upon, oppreſs'd and abus'd, by doctors. To prevent which I know of no other expedient than the method taken by this corporation. Some menial ſervants, ſwol'n with pride and ſelf conceit, thinking themſelves of too much importance, to content themſelves in the humble ſtation in which providence hath placed them, have recommended themſelves to the notice of the world, by clamouring abroad, miſrepreſenting the œconomy, and good order, of the honorable families to which they belong until they are noticed with a witneſs; having thereby drawn upon them the odium, and juſt contempt, not only of that particular family, but of all mankind.—It amounts to a proverb, that it is a bad bird that fouls his own neſt. Such a part this buffoon hath acted, and ſuch treatment doth he deſerve, and I hope no one of ſaid medical corporation will take any further notice of him or his writings for the future, than they would of a dry dumplin, juſt to kick it out of their way.

---

* See Courant No. 235, and 251.

BOSTON, October 26.

Laſt Evening a very melancholy Occurrence happened in this Town, as Mr JONATHAN LOWDER, Poſt Rider from Boſton to Hartford, with Mr. Hide, each of them on Horſeback, were riding through a narrow Lane between Summer-ſtreet and Pond Lane, juſt below the New South Meeting-Houſe, Mr. Hide diſcovering a Truckman endeavouring to clear his Trucks that had got entangled with a Cart, went on the oppoſite Side, expecting Mr. Lowder to follow; but the Truckman pulling his Horſe's Head over that Way Mr. Lowder endeavoured to paſs the other Side; when one of the Shafts ſtriking againſt his Horſe, ſtartled him and threw him off, and ſtruck his Head againſt the Wheel, which went over his right Shoulder, down his Side: Mr. Hide immediately diſmounted, and carried him into a Houſe that was nigh, and Surgeons were immediately ſent for: He had his Senſes till they came in, but died in about an Hour. His Funeral is to be on Saturday next, at three o'clock Afternoon.

The Accident happened on the Birth Day of Mr. Lowder, having compleated 55 Years.

He returned the Beginning of this Week from Philadelphia, having been employed by Mr. Hancock to attend him on his Tour thither. He was well known and reſpected in thoſe Places where he has been employed to do Buſineſs.

HARTFORD, October 30.

Laſt Thurſday evening the Sky being ſerene and clear, we had, tho' a very diminutive, yet plainly diſtinguiſhing view of the (now weſtern) COMET. 'Tis now in ſuch a ſituation, and at ſuch a diſtance from us, that the Tail, though probably greatly increas'd in Magnitude and Splendor, ſince laſt obſerved, yet appears very dim; and from the body of the Comet extends no more than about 4 or 5 Degrees nearly perpendicular to the Horizon.

The following Obſervations then made are here offered to the Public.

Thurſday, Octob. 26, at Evening,

	Deg.	M
Comets Long. in SCORPIO	29	00
—Latitude North. - - - -	19	00
—Right Aſcenſion. - - -	236	00
—Declination South. - - - -	1	00
—Angle of Elongation from the Sun about - - - -	10	00
—Aſcenſional-difference of Comet and Sun. - -	25	00

Which turn'd into time is 1h 40m equal to the time the Comet is behind, or comes to the Meridian later, than the Sun.

It ſets about two Degrees to the South of a due weſt Point, at 25 Minutes after 7 o'Clock.

Its poſition is near the back of the Serpent, about 35 Deg. Southwardly from Arcturus, a Star of the firſt Magnitude in the conſtellation Bootes; and ſets about 22 Minutes after it.

REMARKS, &c.

FROM Obſervation 'tis now pretty certain the Comet has not as yet wholly (and I ſhould think not partially) got into the Sun. Its place now in the heavens is 115 degrees (which is 25 more than a quarter of a circle) more eaſtwardly than when we left it, which was Sept. 13; and it is in reſpect of the Ecliptic (which is the proper ſtandard by which to eſtimate the true ſituation of the heavenly bodies) 43 deg. more northwardly than it then was; as appears from the difference of its Latitude then and now. It was then in 24 deg. 15 min. ſouth Latitude; 'tis now in 19 degrees north. Yet the parts of the earth to which it now runs vertical in its diurnal courſe are nearly the ſame as when laſt obſerv'd, the preſent courſe differing no more than 3 deg. and a half northwardly from the former; ſo that though its riſing and ſetting are nearly at the ſame points of the Compaſs in reſpect of our Horizon, yet in reſpect of the heavenly bodies it has made its way greatly to the north: having paſs'd the Sun on the ſouth ſide, from which it is now diſtant 28 deg. and a half north eaſtwardly, in ſuch ſort that a perſon to whom the Comet is vertical, would be to another to whom the Sun is vertical, nearly in the direction of a point E. N. E. one third north; and at a diſtance of about 2000 miles, meaſured on the earth's ſurface; and in caſe the Comet is now as far from us as the Sun is, its preſent diſtance from the Sun can be no leſs than 30000000 miles.——To determine the direction and velocity of the Comet in its preſent trajectory courſe, further obſervations are neceſſary.

N. S.

☞ ERRATA, In the Connecticut Courant, No. 251, Page 4, Col. 2, Lines 2d & 3d from the Top, for inſtead of the real deſign of its members, read, the real deſign of ſome of its members. Lines 4th & 5th of the ſame Col. read thus, by public orations and diſſertations, &c.

To be ſold at the Houſe of Mrs Margaret Cheenard, in Hartford,

GOOD Madeira and Liſbon WINE, Barbados RUM, ANNICESEED WATER, CHOCOLATE, SNUFF of the beſt Kind, &c. &c. &c.

STRAY'D or ſtolen, from the ſubſcriber of Eaſt-Hartford, about the 3d or 4th inſt. a bay mare, about 14 hands high, both paces and trots, branded with the letter A on her left ſhoulder, and with the letters C B on her left thigh, not plain to be ſeen, lately had a wart cut off her breaſt, where is a ſmall ſcar or wart to be ſeen. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid mare, and (if ſtolen) ſecure the thief, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice, and the mare recovered, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

EPHRAIM WILLIAMS.

Eaſt Hartford, Oct 20 1769.

Preparing for the Preſs,

A ſhort SERMON,

of a new Kind, never preach'd, nor ever will be. The doctrinal Part to conſiſt of the Doctrine of the HOPKINTONIAN Scheme of Orthodoxy, collected from ſundry Books lately publiſhed, and ranged in their proper Order and Connection, without any Reaſonings in Support or Confutation of them; cloſed with an Application, and an Addreſs to the unconverted, ſuch as thoſe Doctrines do ſuggeſt, ſupport, and warrant. The doctrinal and applicatory Part of this Sermon will be wholly conſiſtent: the Application ariſing naturally and entirely out of the Doctrine. The whole will conclude with a ſhort Form of Prayer, for the Uſe of the unconverted Believers of this Scheme, which they may ſafely make, without lying againſt their own Belief or ſpeculative Sentiments.

☞ Subſcriptions for printing the above Piece, are taken in by the Printers hereof.

TO BE SOLD

By E. Auſtin,

[Near the Court Houſe in Hartford.]

The following articles for Goldſmith's and Jeweler's Uſes, viz.

ROUND and ſquare ſteele Shoe Chapes and Tongs, Knee ditto; an Aſſortment of Files; Cruſibles; Black Lead Pots; Salt Peter; Borax; Iron Rivet wire; fine binding ditto; Braſs Rivit wire; Moulding Sand; Rotten Stone; Pummice Stone; Sandever; Sand paper; Buckle Bruſhes; Flower of putte; red and white Foil; cypher'd and white Stone Rings; cypher'd and white Stone rings ſet in Gold; ditto in Silver; cypher'd and white Stone Buttons ſet in Silver, Stone Broaches ſet in Silver. &c. &c. &c.

Doct. Uriah Rogers, jun.

Of Norwalk, in Fairfield County,

TAKES this method to inform the public, and particularly ſuch as are diſpoſed to take the Small-Pox by inoculation, that he has again opened his noted hoſpital, where he intends to carry on inoculation as long as any perſons appear to be inoculated; he intends to inoculate the ſummer thro'out; as he finds by conſtant experience that his patients never have it more favourable than in warm weather. He intends to have things in the beſt order poſſible, and the beſt attendance ſhall be given, both by Doctor and Nurſe, at the moderate expence of Four Pounds, L. M.

N. B. Said Rogers takes the patient at firſt, & puts him to no other expence. Dated Norwalk, 9th day of Octo. 1769.

Juſt Publiſhed and to be ſold at the Printing-Office, Hartford.

That there is but one

Covenant, Whereof BAPTISM and the LORD's SUPPER are Seals, viz. The Covenant of Grace, proved from the Word of GOD, and the Doctrine of an external graceleſs Covenant, lately advanced by the Rev. Mr. MOSES MATHER; in a Pamphlet, entituled, The viſible Church in Covenant with God, &c. Shewed to be an unſcriptural Doctrine.

To which is prefixed,

An Anſwer to a Dialogue concerning the Half-Way-Covenant;

Lately printed at New-London.

By JOSEPH BELLAMY, D. D.

JUST PUBLISHED,

A Collection of

Original PAPERS,

Which are intended to ſupport and elucidate the principal Facts related in the firſt Part of the HISTORY of MASSACHUSETS BAY, and may ſerve as an Appendix to it.

☞ Subſcribers are deſired to ſend for their Books to T. & J. Fleet, at the Heart & Crown, in Cornhill, BOSTON.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

An ANECDOTE of Importance.

OUR late venerable Sovereign told Lord Grenville, when conſulting him about the colonies, that he did not underſtand Colony matters; but he would have juſtice done them. And he kept his word: the colonies had juſtice done them, and were eaſy.

We doubt not but our beloved Sovereign his grandſon, will ſee juſtice done to his ſubjects and children in the colonies, and ſee and hear their own ſtate of their caſe, and not judge of them from the repreſentation of their enemies.

Mr. Francis Bernerd, now Sir Francis and Governor of the Maſſachuſetts, was the ſon of a private clergyman, a petty officer in our Spiritual courts, when he was raiſed to his preſent dignity. It is of conſequence, that thoſe whom it concerns ſhould conſider what our ſpiritual courts are; founded on the bottomleſs deep of the Canon law. Our fellow ſubjects in the colonies complain of this gentleman, for his haughty, injurious treatment, and miſrepreſentation of them. In judging between them, we need not to fear but juſtice will be done to a million of loyal ſubjects, & the character, education, principles, &c. of both parties be taken into the account. How few Proctors of our ſpiritual courts are fit to be made Governors or Viceroys! A.

BOSTON.

Meſſieurs EDES & GILL,

By giving the following a Place in your Paper, you'l oblige your humble Servant, and will let the Public know in what an inſulting Manner I have been treated by John Mein.

I Having an account of three or four years ſtanding, which I often requeſted him for a ſettlement of, and he often promis'd he would do, if I wou'd wait till the next day, or ſome future time, which I did more than once (waiting upon expence as I live at Newbury-Port 10 miles from Boſton) but after all my waiting, when I did call, his meſſage to me was, he was buſy, was not to be ſpoke with, or the like; and being wearied out with ſuch treatment, I ſent him a line to let him know I was weary of calling to ſettle accounts, as I had been more than one year trying for it; that if he ſee cauſe to ſettle with me, and would by ſending a line let me know it, I would attend, otherwiſe I muſt be under the neceſſity of taking ſome other Meaſures; to which he ſent a verbal meſſage for me to call after dinner, which according to his meſſage I did. As ſoon as he ſaw me he aſk'd me in a very arrogant manner for my account which I readily gave him, and we ſettled accounts without much difficulty, and he gave me an order on his ſervant at the ſtore for the balance, which was about One Hundred & ten Pounds O. T. and as ſoon as I had given him my account ſigned, he turned himſelf to Mr. Hodgdon the foreman of his binding buſineſs, and ſaid to him, Do you know this man? pointing to me. Have you any acquaintance with him? &c. And ſaid to him, if you have any thing more to ſay to him, or do with him, I have no more to ſay to you, or the like. Then turning himſelf to his boy, ſaying, Will open that door; and then with the moſt horrible grins, grimaces, and his fiſt doubled, ſaid to me, Get out of my houſe you Raſcal: Get out of my houſe, never more to enter my door. What did you mean by ſending me that d—d inſolent letter to-day? and drove me out of doors with ſuch a vengeance as not to give me time to take my cloke with me (but Mr. Hodgdon was ſo kind as to throw it out of window to me)—As I had been inform'd that he keeps himſelf armed with Piſtols, &c. I made my eſcape upon principles of Self preſervation.

D. BAYLEY.

BASSETTERRE, (in St. Chriſtophers) Auguſt 9.

On Monday arrived an expreſs here, from Antigua; the William and Elizabeth, Capt. Bamfield, by whom we have an account that the Caraibes in St. Vincent, had aſſembled together, and obſtructed the people employed in making roads, &c. in conſequence of which James Hartly, Eſq; (an officer of the militia) was diſpatched to Antigua, in order to procure arms for the inhabitants, where he got 200 firelocks, and immediately proceed to this place. 'Tis ſaid he is to receive 300 ſtand of arms from hence.

CHARLESTOWN, (South Carolina) Sept. 14. Extract of a letter from Auguſta, dated the 12th inſt.

"A few days ago came adviſe by an expreſs, of the Spaniards having appeared before New Orleans, with a fleet of twenty two ſhips, and 4500 land forces, to take poſſeſſion of that place; a few days after which it was delivered up by the French Malecontents: It muſt, I think, be much more beneficial to Great Britain, having Spaniſh neighbours than French as it has too often experienced the intriguing temper of the latter, more particularly as the Spaniards brought with them 400,000 dollars, the greateſt part of which no doubt will centre in Florida."

Sept 5. This Morning the Officers and men of his Majeſty's 21ſt Regiment of Foot, who have been in this Province ſince January laſt, embarked on board the Tranſports Ship Mary, James Gordon, Maſter, Snow Sally, Richard Purſs, Maſter, and Brig Harriot, Charles Dawſon, Maſter, and will Sail To Morrow for St. Auguſtine, where, after they are landed, the Tranſports to take on board his Majeſty's 9th Rigment of Foot, and proceed to Cork.

All perſons having accounts unſettled with the eſtate of Webſter Waters late of Hartford, deceas'd are deſired to ſettle the ſame immediately, with

JOHN THOMAS, Adminiſtrator.

Hartford, Oct. 20. 1769.

BROKE into the encloſure of the Subſcriber of Suffield ſome time ſince a Roan Mare Colt, about two years old, no brand. The owner on proving his property and pays charges, may have her again by applying to

JOHN LEAVITT.

Suffield, Oct. 20. 1769

Wanted Immediately,

A Journeyman Shoe Maker, that can be well recommended.—Such a one may have good encouragement by applying to

MOSES SMITH.

N. B. A Quantity of choice SOLE LEATHER, and CALF SKINS, to be Sold by ſaid Smith.

Harwinton, Oct. 7, 1769.

RUN Away on Friday the 29. Sept. from the ſubſcriber living in Harwinton, an Apprentice boy, named Ebenezer Worner, aged about 16 years, 5 feet 5 inches high had on when he went away a brown homeſpun coat, black broad cloth veſt, leather breeches, check't holland ſhirt, caſter hat, wears his own hare tied behind. Whoſoever takes up ſaid apprentice and returns him to his maſter, ſhall have Two Dollars reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by me

ISAAC CURTIS.

HARTFORD:
Printed by Green and Watſon.

T. Hopkins,

At his STORE, oppoſite the North-Meeting Houſe, Hartford.

HAS juſt received a General Aſſortment of Engliſh GOODS, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable terms, for Caſh or Produce in hand.

N. B. Salt exchanged for Flax-Seed, at the above Store.

TO BE SOLD.

At the houſe of Moſes Butler in Hartford, the BRICK HOUSE, adjoining to the Great Bridge in ſaid Hartford, on Friday the 27th day of October inſt. at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at Public Vendue.

To be ſold at the ſame time and place, two pieces of LAND lying in the South Meadow in ſaid Hartford, now in the Poſſeſſion of Elijah Clap, being excellent Meadow Land.

ALSO, To be ſold at public Vendue, or private ſale, at the houſe of Nathaniel Porter in Eaſt-Windſor, on the third Tueſday of November next, ſix Pieces of Land in the Occupation of Thomas Elmer, Ten Acres of good Meadow, Ten Acres beſt upland Paſture near the Poſt Road, and the Reſidue large Tracts of well wooded and timbered Out Land. Alſo, four hundred Acres of Land lying on Mankezooſen Brook, in ſaid Eaſt Windſor, on which a good Sawmill was formerly erected.

Alſo, to be ſold, a Farm of one hundred Acres, and the third Part of a good Griſt-Mill in Hebron, in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Skinner. For Terms apply to

TITUS HOSMER.

Strayed or Stolen,

FROM the ſubſcriber of Newington, on Monday night, the 2d. inſt. A Sorrel HORSE, about 14 hands high, four years old paſt, both paces and trots, white mane and tail, the main lately cut off ſhort, a blaze in his face, white feet, a ſmall white ſpot on each ſide of his neck, no brand.—Whoever ſhall take up ſaid horſe and thief (if ſtole) and return him to the owner, and ſecure the thief, ſo that he may be brou't to juſtice, ſhall have a handſome Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JOHN GOODRICH.

Glaſtenbury, Oct. 6, 1769.

J. Morton,

At his Store in Hartford, on the North ſide the Green in the Houſe of Mrs. Sarah Edwards,

HAS a good Aſſortment of Dry Goods, Iron-Mongery, Earthen Ware, Glaſs Ware, and beſt London Pewter, blown and Rock Salt.

N. B. Said Morton intending for Europe, in the Fall, will ſell off what goods he has on hand, very low for Caſh or Produce.

Litchfield, March 22, 1769.

Cal. Bull, ju.

Oppoſite the North End of the Court Houſe in Hartford,

WANTS a Quantity of FLAX SEED, for which he will give Salt, or Engliſh Goods, of which he has an Aſſortment ſuitable to the Seaſon.

MONDAY. Nov. 6, 1769. Numb 255.
THE Connecticut COURANT.
Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

HARTFORD, Nov. 6.

Obſervations reſpecting the COMET, (continued.)

Sunday, October 29, at Evening.

Comets Longitude in	Deg.	min.
SAGITARIUS.	4	00
—Latitude North.	20	30
—Right-Aſcenſion.	242	00
—Declination	00	00
—Angle of Elongation from the Sun.	12	00
—Aſcenſional-difference, of Comet and Sun.	28	30

which reduced to time, is 1 H. 54M. And is equal to the Time, the Comet comes to the Meridian later than the Sun. It ſets in a due weſt Point, at 48 minutes after 7 o'Clock.

The Tail ſeems to extend about 2 deg. from the Nucleus, a little declining towards the ſouth, from a perpendicular to the Horizon.

REMARKS, &c.

I NEED only remark here, that for three days paſt the COMET has moved but about 3 degrees along in its trajectory courſe; 'tis now croſſing the Æquinoctial, therewith making an angle of about 12 deg. changing from a ſouthern to a northern declination. Its courſe being ſtill eaſtwardly, it increaſes its apparent diſtance from the Sun. At 50 minutes after ſun-riſe the Comet will be riſing at a due eaſt Point: at 54 minutes after one o'Clock P. M. it will be juſt about 42 deg. ſouth of the point, directly over our heads; and in a point about 13 deg. and half, directly north from where the. Sun is at noon, tho' inviſible to us.

N. S.

From the PUBLIC LEDGER,

A ſhort Deſcription of CORSICA. Tranſlated from a French piece, written by FREDERICK, ſon of the late king THEODORE, who reſided a conſiderable time on that iſland, during the government of his father.

THE iſland of Corſica was called by the Greeks Cyrnos, Terapne, or Corſis; by the Romans Corſica. It extends in length between the forty firſt and forty-third degrees of north latitude, and in breadth from twenty ſix degrees ten minutes to twenty ſeven degrees fifteen minutes eaſt longitude. It is computed to be an hundred and fifty miles in length, fifty in breadth, and three hundread and fifty two in circumference.

It is ſituated between the republic of Genoa to the north: the Eccleſiaſtical State to the eaſt; the iſland of Sardinia, from which it is ſeparated by a ſtrait only three leagues broad, on the ſouth; and the ſea of Province to the weſt. It is divided into two parts, called "Banda di dentro and Banda di fuori, or Di qua dai monti and Di la dai monti:" Baſtia "being the capital of that part called This "ſide the mountains;" and Ajaccio of that "beyond the mountains" Theſe diviſions are again ſubdivided into juriſdictions; the former into pieves, and the latter into villages.

The country is mountainous, the climate mild and temperate, the air healthful, and the ſoil remarkably fertile in all the neceſſaris of life. This iſland is full of wood, and is watered by number of ſprings and rivulets that give it a pleaſing verdure, and make it the moſt agreeable ſpot in the world. Its waters are clear and uncommonly wholeſome. It is alſo furniſhed with ſeveral rivers, the moſt conſiderable of which are the Guelo and the Tavinano. Its produce conſiſts of wine, oil, corn, with all ſorts of grain and pulſe, bees wax, honey, and fruts, ſuch as cheſnuts, walnuts, figs, oranges, citrons, and many other of delicous kinds. The land is ploughed, in this iſland, by oxen, which are ſmall and not very numerous; the Corſicans making no other uſe of them than that juſt mentioned, as they ſeldom eat beef, to which they prefer mutton or goat.

Almoſt all the mountains, excepting ſome of the higheſt, which are rocks buried in ſnow, are covered with a light ſandy earth, that is abundantly fertile when cultivated. Between theſe mountains are ſituated the moſt pleaſant valleys, which might be rendered by cultivation exceedingly fruitful; moſt of them being watered by large rivers or ſmaller ſtreams, whoſe courſe might be eaſily diverted; as all theſe valleys have declivities, along which ſerpantine brooks might convey the winding waters at pleaſure. The paſturage is rich and in great plenty, affording ſubſiſtence to numbers of cattle, and particularly to ſheep; theſe are almoſt all black, notwithſtanding their wool is very fine. Their flocks are never houſed, but are kept on the mountains, where they find ſufficient paſture, from the beginning of May to the month of October. At the approach of winter they are driven into the valleys, where it never ſnows, and where they alſo find ſufficient ſuſtenance; particularly on the declivity of the mountains, bordering on the ſea. The ſhepherds build themſelves occaſional huts, with the branches of trees; which they cover with ſtraw, and in which they reſide with their wives and children. They ſubſiſt chiefly on a milk diet, and are emigrants that have no fixed habitation, nor belong to any particular pariſh

There is alſo a prodigious number of ſwine, which are all black, like the wild boars, and are for the moſt Part of a mixed breed. There is alſo plenty of poultry and game. There are no wolves nor rabbits, but, on the other hand, there are a number of foxes. There is a wild animal reſembling a goat, which the inhabitants call muffoli. This creature is ſo nimble that he ſprings from one rock to another at an amazing diſtance; and is generally taken in a ſnare. By a very ſtrange ſingularity, however, he attaches himſelf to the firſt perſon who ſpits in his mouth; after which he follows him up and down like a ſpanial. There are mules and horſes; the latter, though ſmall, being well made, ſtrong, and ſpirited. Being extremely ſure footed, they traverſe the moſt difficult mountains without being ſhod, and run over rocks and ſtones without even ſtumbling. The dogs are ſo prodigiouſly large and ſtrong, that they ſet upon the wild boars, and always overpower them.

There is a great quantity of oak in this iſland; of which the Genoeſe build the ſhips which they diſpoſe of to other European powers. Almoſt all the ſhips of war at Toulon are built at Genoa with Corſican timber; that city being juſtly to be regarded as the French ſhip yard in the Mediterranean. Mulberry trees abound in Corſica, where they make much ſilk, that the Genoeſe fabricate the greateſt part of their damaſks and velvets. The French alſo make uſe of a great quantity in their manufactures at Lyons.

There are mines of iron, lead, copper, and ſilver, quarries of marble, and beds of ſaltpetere. There is in particular a lake called Stagno di Diana, in which the ſalt is formed of itſelf by the heat of the ſun. On the mountains is found a kind of rock chryſtal, which is tranſparent, and ſo hard that it will ſtrike fire againſt ſteel. The Corſicans generally uſe it as flints to their fire arms: It is very remarkable that evey piece of this chryſtal has naturally five ſides, as if it had been regularly cut by a lapidary. On Mount Gradacoio are two lakes, called Creno and Ino, the firſt of which are ſopy, and ſo hot, that upon throwing a dog into them, and letting him remain ſome time, the fleſh comes off his bones and leaves only a ſkeleton. The water of the ſecond is ſo cold, that if a bottle of red wine be immerſed in it for a few minutes, the liquor looſes its colour as well as taſte, aſſuming the qualities of the water. Toward the middle of the iſland is a rivulet called Reſtonica, a pretended corruption of the Lattin words res unica whoſe waters have indeed a very remarkable quality; if a piece of wood be left in it for a few hours, it becomes quite white; the ruſtieſt iron, under the ſame circumſtances, ſoon appearing as if it was ſilvered.

The ſea coaſts of Corſica abound alſo in fiſh and coral; the eſtabliſhed fiſheries of the latter being in the gulf of Ajaccio and the ſtraits of Bonifacio.

This fine country is nevertheleſs but poorly peopled; thoſe inteſtine wars which have ſo many ages ſubſiſted among the inhabitants having contributed to its depopulation. At preſent it is computed they amount only to two hundred and thirty thouſand.

In Pliny's time there were no leſs than three and thirty towns in the iſland; at this time there are only nine; theſe are Baſtia, San Fiorenzo, Calvi, Ajaccio, Bonifacio, Porto Vecchio, Aleria, Mariana, and Corte; all which are built with great ſymmetry and proportion.

Corte is ſituated almoſt in the centre of the iſland, the others on the ſea coaſts having very commodious havens for the ſecurity of ſhipping. The ports of Bonifacio, PortoVecchio, and Ajaccio, particularly the latter, are the moſt convenient and advantageous. This laſt is in the weſt of the iſland, and is, beyond contradiction, one of the largeſt, fineſt, and ſafeſt ſea ports in the Mediterranean. As to its capacity, all the fleets in Europe might ride in it with ſecurity againſt every wind that blows. Ships of the greateſt burthen alſo might anchor, careen, and refit with the greateſt convenience, and without the leaſt danger. It would alſo be very eaſy to fortify its entry in ſuch a manner as to ſecure it effectually againſt any hoſtile attack.

Under the dependance of Corſica, and at the diſtance of nine leagues, is Caparia, a little iſland about four leagues in circumference, and abounding in goats and wine. Its capital is defended by a caſtle built at the top of an hill, ſufficiently ſtrong both towards ſea & land, but much ſtronger by nature than art.

This is a conciſe detail of the principal circumſtances relative to the iſland of Corſica; circumſtances ſo little known that I was induced on that conſideration to pen theſe memoirs, in order to acquaint the world with a number of facts, hitherto miſrepreſented, obſcured, or totally unknown. It may poſſibly happen that ſome ſovereign prince or able miniſter, informed by what I have ſaid of the fertility and advantages of this country, may entertain deſigns for the happineſs of this people, and the proſperity of their own.

LONDON, Auguſt 4.

The following Addreſs to the Freememn and Inhabitants of the City of Briſtol, has been publiſhed in the Briſtol Gazette, and may be conſidered as an Addreſs to the whole Kingdom, as every County, City, Town and Borough, is equally concerned in this preſent Criſis,

FELLOW CITIZENS,

I Call upon you in behalf of my K—g and my country——As ye regard your own ſafety and welfare—as ye regard the ſafety and Welfare of poſterity—as ye regard the glorious privileges, ſo dearly purchaſed by the blood of your anceſtors; and as ye regard that moſt ſtrict account you muſt give of your actions, at the tremendous bar of GOD,——open your eyes!

Awake, my fellow citizens, awake!——Take the alarm from the metropolis.——Let the example of the Livery of London fill you with emulation. Regard not the black and gloomy complexion of the times, nor the baſe efforts of a deſpicable miniſtry; but let there be a glorious ſtruggle which ſhall be the foremoſt in the grand undertaking of preſenting a loyal and affectionate petition to our good and excellent King, dreſſed in the ſweet language of truth, expreſſing the real grievances of his diſtreſſed ſubjects, and declaring the free ſentiments of a bold and brave people.

Thus you will deal faithfully with your King, your country, yourſelves, your poſterity—Thus you will have the ſatisfaction of being the happy inſtruments of reſtoring a ſinking nation. And finally of baniſhing into total obſcurity every ſycophant of ſlavery and oppoſition.

The triumph of our brethren in London over an abandoned ———, is an event unſpeakably joyous. I hope the foundation of bribery and corruption have received a ſhock by the ſpirited conduct of the patriotic Livery, which will at length terminate in their total deſtruction. Remember, O my friends, the laws, the rights, the generous plan of power delivered down, from age to age (the price of ſo much blood) by your renowned forefathers! Let your indignation riſe againſt the deceivers of your King, and the plunderers of your country! Let the anxiety you feel for your own ſecurity, as well as for the ſafety and happineſs of your poſterity, ſtimulate you in the glorious cauſe of liberty. Rouſe, my countrymen! rouſe! lay your grievances at the foot of the throne. You have a King who is the father of his people, who only wants to know in order to redreſs your complaints. Above all, forget not ardently to implore the removal of thoſe who have, with unremitted eagerneſs and fury, not only attempted to annihilate the importance of the merchants, traders and manufacturers; but alſo meditate the deſtruction of that conſtitution, to which you are indebted for the moſt valuable bleſſing of this life,——your FREEDOM.

CHARLSTOWN, (So. Carolina.) Aug. 31

We are told, that one of the paſſengers in the laſt ſhip from London, came over on purpoſe to contract, through the Continent, for Raw Hides; But, if ſuch is his buſineſs, he will moſt certainly be diſappointed.

We are alſo told, that there are ſeveral agents employ'd to purchaſe all the Hemp made in America, in order to ſave us the trouble of manufacturing that commodity as well as leather

NEW-YORK, October 29.

On Sunday laſt, a Meſſenger from Shrewſbury came to town with the following melancholy Account, viz. That on Friday Evening laſt, the Wind being Southerly and moderate, and the Weather having been ſome Time very thick and foggy, The Live Oak a fine large Sloop, belonging to Mr. Jacobus Van Zant, of this City Merchant, Capt. Foy Maſter from Spaniſh St. Domingo, bound in to this Port, being nearer the land than they imagined, had the Miſfortune to run a ground on Squan Beach, a little to the Weſtward of Shrewſbury Inlet, where the Veſſel, being deeply laden, and a large Swell from Sea, ſetting right on upon the Beach, in a few Thumps the Veſſel went all to Pieces and was intirely loſt, with all her Cargo, which was very valuable, conſiſting of Sugars, Mahogany, &c and upwards of 20 000 Dollars in Specie; and of the People—— 4 only eſcaped with Life, viz the Mate, two Seamen and a Spaniſh Merchant, who were caſt aſhore on the Beach where they found themſelves next Morning but could give no Account how they got there. They were terribly bruiſed and mangled, eſpecially the Merchant, who was ſtark naked, had his Fleſh miſerably torne and by lying ſo long in the Water, turn'd pale reſembling that of a dead Corps, and ſcare any Skin left on his Back: The reſt of the People, 14 in Number were all unfortunately drown'd, among whom was Mr. Campbell Super Cargo of the Veſſel, Nephew to Mr. Van Zant, a young Gentleman of whom his Friends had great Expectations, of an amiable Character, highly eſteem'd and much lamented by all that knew him, alſo the Family of the unhappy Spaniſh Merchant, (conſiſting of his Wife, his Son, about 8 years of Age, and his Daughter a young Lady about 16 or 17) who is by this diſtreſſing Stroke of Providence at once deprived of all his Fortune and Family. We expect a more particular Account of this melancholy Event, on the return of Mr. Van Zant, who Yeſterday ſat out for Shrewſbury.

Extract of a letter from Virginia, May 3 1769.

"The times make every body haul cloſe, and dread to deal with ſo ſevere a mother country; therefore, we patch and pinch, that ſhe may feel the difference between tenderneſs and cruelty to her children; that her prudence may teach her, that ſlaves can never be ſo uſeful as her affectionate decendants. For this reaſon if I ſend for a few goods, they ſhall be but very few. My family, as yet untaught at once to put on the ruſſet gown, or drink the tea of our gardens, may poſſibly make a few articles neceſſary, but not one that bears a duty payable here, will I ever ſend for until my own repreſentatives ſhall lay a tax upon them, and tea, that I cannot get, clear of your duty, I will never drink—Some other ſhip may bring this little invoice.

"Our aſſembly is meeting; I am not one of them, but I believe every member is ſo convinced of the determinations of his conſtituents, that the man who gives a tittle of his liberty, muſt do it at the hazard of ——, and I am certain there is not a Briton in the world but muſt applaud the reſolution; for a people, not born to ſlavery, cannot diveſt themſelves of the feelings of thoſe entitled to the ſame freedom with them in any manner going to be deprived of it. Aſk me for aſſiſtance and give me the reaſon why, I am ready to grant it to the laſt ſhilling; but take it not out of my pocket, for I am ready to die to protect it: And this your ſupercilious baſhaws, truly call, a rebellious diſpoſition——All England, then, have been conſtantly rebellious, for her hiſtory is full of this reſolution.——O dreadful meaſure formed only to diſunite, at once the moſt affectionate and moſt powerful people on earth."

WILLIAMSBURGH, Sept. 21.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in London, to his friend here, dated July 12, 1769.

"As to political conduct of your country, you have the approbation of every Engliſhman; nor was your addreſs to the King treated with that diſreſpect which had been ſhewn on former like occaſions. In ſhort, the acts already paſt to the injury of America, are to be repealed, and no more ſuch attempted for future. This you may rely on, as I have ſuch information as puts the truth of it beyond a doubt."

From the MASSACHUSETS GAZETTE.

Mr. DRAPER, October 23 1769.

YOU may inform the Public, that the New York Cometographer was under a miſtake at leaſt, when he imagined thoſe "conſtellations of dark Maculæ ſpopts," as he is pleaſed to term them, which he lately obſerved on the Sun's diſk, were the leſs combuſtible parts of the late Comet fallen into the Sun, and burſt in pieces. The COMET is now ſafe and found on the eaſtern ſide of the Sun.——————He was laſt Evening in about 24° m. and 10° North latitude, near the right claw of Scorpio. It ſets between 8 and 9 o'clock in the evening. From its ſituation in reſpect to the Earth, its Tail is now ſcarce vibſile.

NEW-YORK November 2.

The following further particulars, relating to the loſs of the LIVE OAK, Capt FOY, are come to Hand ſince our laſt, viz

The veſſel had on board 2600 Buſhels of Salt, ſome large Logs of Mahogany, &c. In about 9 Hours ſhe beat to pieces. The Perſons drown'd, we hear were; Richard Foy, Maſter; John Campbell, Supercargo; Joſeph Hayner, Henry Williams John Sample, and John Lahay, Seamen; John Abbit, James Sands, a German and his Wife, another married Woman, with her Daughter of 18, and her Son of 9 Years old, Paſſengers: and a Negro Boy (belonging to Mr. Campbell) The Mate Robert Hog; with Joſhua Mariner, and Cornelius Thompſon, ſeamen, got aſhore on ſome of the Plank of the Veſſel, as did alſo a German, Huſband to one of the Women, and Father to the young Woman and Boy that were drowned, on the Bows.

The Bodies of the Capt and Mr Campbell, as alſo of 10 more were taken up on the Beach, and decently buried.

BOSTON, Nov. 2. 1769.

On Saturday laſt a Perſon who was ſuppoſed to have given information to ſome of the Officers of the Cuſtoms, of certain Goods which have been lately ſeiz'd, was ſought after and perſued, and towards Evening taken and carried into King-ſtreet, and a Cart was ſoon provided for him, his Cloaths except his Breeches pulled or torn off, his Body firſt tarred and then feathered. He was required to ſtand up with a Lanthorn in his Hand, and in this Manner was carted firſt to the South, then to the North, and then to the Weſt Part of the Town, and ſo back to King Street, where he was ſet at liberty. Numbers of People perhaps ſome Thouſands were gathered together, and they ordred the Inhabitants to put Lights in their Windows, as they paſs'd, which in general was comply'd with. Upon proper Notice to the Commanding Officer of His Majeſty's Forces in the Town, orders were iſſued, and the Men were all in Arms at the ſeveral Barracks and Guard Houſes. His Honor the Lieutenant Governor met with ſuch of his Majeſty's Council as were in Town, and as many of his Majeſty's Juſtices of the Peace as could be ſeaſonably convened at the Council Chamber, but ſoon after the Tumult gradually ſubſided, the People diſperſed, and before Nine o'Clock the Town was perfectly quiet.

Whilſt the People were collecting, an Affray happened between J. Mein and certain Gentlemen who ſuppoſed themſelves reflected on in his Chronicle of Thurſday, tho' not publiſhed till Saturday. But as there has been no Proſecution or Examination we cannot give any authentic Account of it.—In general we learn that his Publications on that day, in addition to what he had before publiſhed, incenſed the People againſt him, and as he was coming from his Bookſtore, with his Partner, he was "catechiſed" by one who had been reflected upon, ſeveral Perſons collected, he then drew out a piſtol, cock'd it, and preſented it, at the ſame time retreated backwards, up King Street, and ſeeing the People cloſe upon him, he turned, and ran to the Main Guard for Protection; having got ſafe into the entry door, he fired off his Piſtol, which tore the Sleeve of a Soldier's Coat, but whether with a Bullet or only a Wad we cannot ſay. Application being made to Mr. Juſtice Dana, a Warrant was iſſued & Search made, but he could not be found.

We hear that the Perſons principally concerned in carting the Informer as before related, would not have engag'd in it on a Saturday Evening, if a queſtion had not been ſtarted, whether the Man could LEGALLY be kept in cuſtody till Monday.

When the Informer was carrying to Liberty-Tree, juſt as they paſs'd Mein & Fleeming's Printing Office, a Gun was fired from one of the Windows, which provoked ſome of the People in the Rear, who ruſhed into the Office, to ſearch for the Perſon that fired, but did not find any one therein; they found two or three Guns loaded, which they brought out, and took under their Care.

NEW-HAVEN:

The Names of the Gentlemen, nominated by the Votes of the Freemen of the Colony of Connecticut, to ſtand for Election in May next, are as follow, viz. The Honorable Jonathan Trumbull, Hon. Matthew Griſwold, Hezekiah Huntington, Shubael Conant, Eliſha Sheldon, Eliphalet Dyer, Jabez Huntington, William Pitkin, Roger Sherman, Robert Walker, Abraham Davenport, William Samuel Johnſon, Hon Thomas Fitch, Ebenezer Silliman, John Cheſter, Jabez Hamlin, Eſquires, Capt. Zebulon Weſt, Capt. Oliver Wolcott, and Col. Nathan Whiting.

Laſt Saturday Night died very ſuddenly, Samuel Sherman, Eſq; of the Pariſh of Weſt Haven, in this Town.

Thurſday, the Twenty Third Inſtant, is appointed a Day of public Thankſgiving throughout this Colony.

HARTFORD, Nov. 6.

Laſt Tueſday Morning, about 8 o'Clock, departed this Life, after a long Courſe of Illneſs, Captain JOHN COLEMAN of this Place, in the 42d Year of his Age—His Remains were decently interred the Day following.

Laſt Friday the General Aſſembly of this Colony, broke up at New-Haven, having finiſhed the Buſineſs of the Fall Seſſions.

In the Houſe of Repreſentatives of the Colony of Connecticut, convened at New Haven, 2d Thurſday of October 9th George III 1769.

RESOLVED,

THAT this Houſe do highly approve the Conduct of the Merchants of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, Connecticut, New-York, Pennſylvania, and all the other Colonies, who, in theſe critical Times, have made ſo noble a ſtand, to ſave the Liberties of this Country, by refuſing to import ſeveral Britiſh Manufactures, until the Revenue Laws are repealed; thereby ſacrificing their private Fortunes to the Cauſe of Liberty, from ſuch truly patriotic Views, as ought to tranſmit their Memories with diſtinguiſhed Honor to the lateſt Poſterity—and ordered, That the Clerk of the Houſe be directed to cauſe a Copy of this Reſolve to be publiſhed in the ſeveral News Papers in this Colony.

Teſt. WILLIAMS WILLIAMS, Clerk.

The foregoing is a true Copy, extracted from the Journal of the Houſe.

Atteſt. William Williams, C. D R.

The PRINTERS to their CUSTOMERS.

WOuld inform that by Reaſon of the unexpected & Perſevering Negligence of far the greater Part of our Cuſtomers, in reſpect of Payment, or ballancing Accounts, we are obliged to think of diſcontinuing the Publication of our weekly Paper; which, unleſs prevented by previous Settlements, we have determined will take Place on the 11th of December next, which will compleat the fifth Year ſince its firſt Publication.

We beg Leave to addreſs our delinquent Cuſtomers, in the Language of Civility, and with a Deference due to the Character of Perſons, either of Probity, Honeſty and Veracity, or, of Humanity, Honor, and Ingenuity; in either of which, we are aſſured they will take no Offence, at our once more calling upon them for a Settlement. As we have, Gentlemen, been at great Expence to ſerve you, we would entreat of you, for once, to take into your Conſideration, on the one Hand, the trifling Conſequence it would be to you, to pay the ſum of only Six Shillings, per Ann. eſpecially if paid when it firſt becomes due; and on the the other, how intereſting a Matter it is to us, that you ſhould thus do; eſpecially conſidering we have (relying on your Encouragement, as it were) riſk'd the Support of ourſelves and Families on this Footing;—and alſo, as the Continuance of the Buſineſs of Printing in this Place does entirely depend upon it.

We aſſure our Cuſtomers, that ſince the Commencement of the Partnerſhip between us, we have not received from them, upon an Average, ſo much as Two Shillings out of Six, of what has been due from them; which has not been ſufficient even to defray the Expence of clean Paper, we have uſed in the Buſineſs. And as our Capital is very ſmall, and as (to oblige our Cuſtomers) we have run ourſelves deeply in Debt; ſo we are ſorry to tell them, that, without the requeſted Relief, we muſt be obliged to ſerve them no longer than the Time forementioned. Their ſettling, or not ſettling with us, therefore, by that Time, we can do no other than conſtruct as the Language of their Hearts, as to whether they mean to have us continue the Paper longer or not.

We ſtand ready to receive our Dues in Caſh, Country Produce, or their Obligations: Or if they have any Method more reaſonable to propoſe, we ſtand ready to hear them.

Our having repeatedly, (tho' almoſt fruitleſsly) reminded you of theſe Matters, will amply apologize for the Plainneſs with which we now treat them. We hope we ſhall not be obliged to offer you any further Trouble of this Kind——And that by the Favour of our Cuſtomers, we may be able ſo to diſcharge our own Obligations, as to ſerve them and the Public in a better Manner than we have hitherto been able to do, by continuing the Buſineſs in this Place.

Nor would we here diſmiſs the Subject, without firſt paying our thankful Acknowledgments of the Favours of many of our Cuſtomers, who have not only favoured us with their Cuſtom, but have alſo been to a good Degree punctual, as well as generous in ſettling their Accounts according to previous Engagements. We are their's, and the Public's Humble Servants,

GREEN & WATSON.

N. B. Thoſe Perſons in Arrears in the Town of Simſbury, are deſired to make Payment to Capt. Jonathan Humphrys; and thoſe in the Town of Suffield, to Mr. Seth Auſtin, with whom their reſpective Accounts are left——and at the Time limitted above, we will ſend for our Pay, and hope not to be diſappointed of receiving.

☞ Thoſe that live near, and chooſe to pay in Wood, are deſired not to omit bringing of it by the Time before mentioned.

Hartford, 4 Nov. 1769.

We the Subſcribers being appointed by the Judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, Commiſſioners to receive and adjuſt the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Ebenezer Mix, of Hartford deceas'd we therefore hereby notify the creditors to ſaid eſtate, to bring in their claims to us, on the laſt Tueſdays of Nov. and Dec. next, at one o'Clock on each of ſaid days, at the Dwelling-Houſe of the ſaid Ebenezer Mix, in Hartford deceas'd, as we will attend the buſineſs on each of ſaid days at ſaid place. np

Timothy Seymour,
George Kellogg. } Commiſſioners.

TO BE SOLD.

A Lot of Land lying in the Pariſh of Wintonbury, in Windſor, containing about eight acres, with a ſmall DWELLING HOUSE, a large Tan houſe and a Shoemaker's ſhop thereon; together with a good orchard, of upwards of 40 trees, and within about half a mile of the meeting houſe, a Black-Smith, a Cloathier, a Saw and Griſt mill, and a Coopers Shop—Any perſon inclining to purchaſe the above, may know the terms, by applying to PHINEAS LOOMIS of Wintonbury, or ASHBEL WELLS of Hartford Weſt-Diviſion.

p

TAKEN up by the ſubſcriber of Litchfield, on the 22d inſt. an Iron-gray Mare, about 14 and half hands high, both paces and trots, four years old paſt, no brand. The owner may have her again, on proving his property, and paying charges, by applying to

JABEZ FRISBY.

Litchfield, Oct. 30, 1769.

8 o'Clock, departed this Life, after long Courſe of Illneſs, Captain JOHN COLEMAN of this Place, n the 42d Year of his Age—His Remains were decently interred the Day following.

Laſt Friday the General Aſſembly of this Colony, broke up at New-Haven, having finiſhed the uſineſs of the Fall Seſſions.

the Houſe of Repreſentatives of the Colony of Connecticut, convened at New Haven, 2d Thurſday of October 9th George III 1769.

RESOLVED,

HAT this Houſe do highly approve the Conduct of the Merchants of the ſſachuſetts Bay, Connecticut, New-York, nnſylvania, and all the other Colonies, who, heſe critical Times, have made ſo noble a nd, to ſave the Liberties of this Country, efuſing to import ſeveral Britiſh Manu ures, until the Revenue Laws are re ed; thereby ſacrificing their private For s to the Cauſe of Liberty, from ſuch truly iotic Views, as ought to tranſmit their mories with diſtinguiſhed Honor to the Poſterity—and ordered, That the Clerk he Houſe be directed to cauſe a Copy of Reſolve to be publiſhed in the ſeveral Papers in this Colony.

Teſt. WILLIAM WILLIAMS, Clerk.

foregoing is a true Copy, extracted m the Journal of the Houſe.

Atteſt. William Williams, C. D R.

PRINTERS to their CUSTOMERS.

Ould inform that by Reaſon of the unexpected & Perſevering Negligence of greater Part of our Cuſtomers, in reſpect ment, or ballancing Accounts, we are o to think of diſcontinuing the Publicati our weekly Paper; which, unleſs pre by previous Settlements, we have de ed will take Place on the 11th of De next, which will compleat the fifth nce its firſt Publication.

beg Leave to addreſs our delinquent ers, in the Language of Civility, and Deference due to the Character of Per ther of Probity, Honeſty and Veracity, Humanity, Honor, and Ingenuity; in f which, we are aſſured they will take nce, at our once more calling upon or a Settlement. As we have, Gen been at great Expence to ſerve you, ld entreat of you, for once, to take ur Conſideration, on the one Hand, ing Conſequence it would be to you, to ſum of only Six Shillings, per Ann. y if paid when it firſt becomes due; the the other, how intereſting a Mat to us, that you ſhould thus do; eſpe onſidering we have (relying on your gement, as it were) riſk'd the Support ves and Families on this Footing;— as the Continuance of the Buſineſs ng in this Place does entirely depend ſſure our Cuſtomers, that ſince the cement of the Partnerſhip between ve not received from them, upon an ſo much as Two Shillings out of what has been due from them; s not been ſufficient even to defray nce of clean Paper, we have uſed in neſs. And as our Capital is very d as (to oblige our Cuſtomers) we ourſelves deeply in Debt, ſo we to tell them, that, without the re Relief, we muſt be obliged to ſerve onger than the Time forementioned. tling, or not ſettling with us, therefore, by that Time, we can do no other than conſtruct as the Language of their Hearts, as to whether they mean to have us continue the Paper longer or not.

We ſtand ready to receive our Dues in Caſh, Country Produce, or their Obligations: Or if they have any Method more reaſonable to propoſe, we ſtand ready to hear them.

Our having repeatedly (tho' almoſt fruitleſsly) reminded you of theſe Matters, will amply apologize for the Plainneſs with which we now treat them. We hope we ſhall not be obliged to offer you any further Trouble of this Kind——And that by the Favour of our Cuſtomers, we may be able ſo to diſcharge our own Obligations, as to ſerve them and the Public in a better Manner than we have hitherto been able to do, by continuing the Buſineſs in this Place.

Nor would we here diſmiſs the Subject, without firſt paying our thankful Acknowledgments of the Favours of many of our Cuſtomers, who have not only favoured us with their Cuſtom, but have alſo been to a good Degree punctual, as well as generous in ſettling their Accounts according to previous Engagements. We are their's, and the Public's Humble Servants,

GREEN & WATSON.

N. B. Thoſe Perſons in Arrears in the Town of Simſbury, are deſired to make Payment to Capt. Jonathan Humphrys; and thoſe in the Town of Suffield, to Mr. Seth Auſtin, with whom their reſpective Accounts are left——and at the Time limitted above, we will ſend for our Pay, and hope not to be diſappointed of receiving.

☞ Thoſe that live near, and chooſe to pay in Wood, are deſired not to omit bringing of it by the Time before mentioned.

Hartford, 4 Nov. 1769.

We the Subſcribers being appointed by the Judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, Commiſſioners to receive and adjuſt the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Ebenezer Mix, of Hartford deceas'd we therefore hereby notify the creditors to ſaid eſtate, to bring in their claims to us, on the laſt Tueſdays of Nov. and Dec. next, at one o'Clock on each of ſaid days, at the Dwelling-Houſe of the ſaid Ebenezer Mix, in Hartford deceas'd, as we will attend the buſineſs on each of ſaid days at ſaid place. 6p

Timothy Seymour,
George Kellogg. } Commiſſioners.

TO BE SOLD.

A Lot of Land lying in the Pariſh of Wintonbury, in Windſor, containing about eight acres, with a ſmall DWELLING HOUSE, a large Tan houſe and a Shoemaker's ſhop thereon; together with a good orchard, of upwards of 40 trees, and within about half a mile of the meeting houſe, a Black-Smith, a Cloathier, a Saw and Griſt mill, and a Coopers Shop—Any perſon inclining to purchaſe the above, may know the terms, by applying to PHINEAS LOOMIS of Wintonbury, or ASHBEL WELLS of Hartford Weſt-Diviſion. P

TAKEN up by the ſubſcriber of Litchfield, on the 22d inſt. an Iron gray Mare, about 14 and half hands high, both paces and trots, four years old paſt, no brand. The owner may have her again, on proving his property, and paying charges, by applying to

JABEZ FRISBY.

Litchfield, Oct. 30, 1769.

SAVANNAH (in Georgia) Auguſt 23.

As advice has been received, that the addreſs of the Commons Houſe of aſſembly of this Province, of the 24th day of December laſt, to our moſt gracious Sovereign, has been, by the Agent, delivered to the Secretary of State for America, to be preſented to his Majeſty, it is thought not improper now to publiſh it.

TO THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

The humble ADDRESS of the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly of the Province of Georgia.

MOST GRACIOUS SOVERIEGN,

YOUR dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly of Georgia, with the greateſt humility, beg leave to preſent to your ſacred preſon, the grivences that this province labours under, by the late acts of parliament of Great Britain, for raiſing a Revenue in America. Equally attached by intereſt, principle, and affection, for our mother-country, we readily acknowledge a conſtitutional ſubordination to its ſupreme legiſlature; at the ſame time, with inexpreſſible concern, we muſt lament, that, by their impoſition of internal taxes, we are deprived of the privilege, which, with humble deference, we apprehend to be our indubitable right, that of granting away our own property, and are thereby prevented from a ready compliance with any requiſition your Majeſty may graciouſly pleaſe to make, and which, to the utmoſt extent of our ſmall abilities, we have always moſt chearfully obeyed.

From your Majeſty's equity, wiſdom, and paternal regard for the rights and liberties of your ſubjects, however remote, we flatter ourſelves with, and firmly rely upon redreſs in this our unhapy ſituation. And as we of this province experience your Majeſty's particular countenance and protection, in our preſent infant ſtate, for which we are impreſſed with the deepeſt ſenſe of gratitude, ſo we moſt fervently hope, and doubt not, we ſhall alſo experience, in general with our ſiſter colonies, on this occaſion, freſh marks of your Majeſty's royal juſtice and attention to the ſupplications of your diſtreſſed ſubjects.

We beg leave to aſſure your Majeſty, that none of your numerous ſubjects can, or do more ardently wiſh and pray for, a continuance of your auſpicious reign, and that your lateſt poſterity may happily rule over a free, grateful, and loyal people, throughout your wide extended empire, than your faithful Commons of Georgia.

By Order of the Houſe.

N. W. JONES, Speaker.

Commons Houſe of Aſſembly 24th Dec. 1769.

The Brigantine Prince George, Capt. Martain, from London for St. Auguſtine, was loſt about 27 days ago in the night upon a reef about ten miles to the northward of the bar. We hear the veſſel and cargo are entirely loſt.

The Ship Lion, Capt. Irvine, belonging to London, having on board about 450 hogſheads of ſugar, was caſt away the 30th of laſt month, on Arrikabas reef on the North ſide of Jamaica.

To be ſold at the Houſe of Mrs Margaret Chenevard, in Hartford,

GOOD Madeira and Liſbon WINE, Barbados RUM, ANNICESEED WATER, CHOCOLATE, SNUFF of the beſt Kind, &c. &c. &c.

* * *

Preparing for the Preſs.

A ſhort SERMON,

of a new Kind, never preach'd, nor ever will be. The doctrinal Part to conſiſt of the Doctrine of the HOPKINTONIAN Scheme of Orthodoxy, collected from ſundry Books lately publiſhed, and ranged in their proper Order and Connection, without any Reaſonings in Support or Confutation of them; cloſed with an Application, and an Addreſs to the unconverted, ſuch as thoſe Doctrines do ſuggeſt, ſupport, and warrant. The doctrinal and applicatory Part of this Sermon will be wholly conſiſtent: the Application ariſing naturally and entirely out of the Doctrine. The whole will conclude with a ſhort Form of Prayer, for the Uſe of the unconverted Believers of this Scheme, which they may ſafely make, without lying againſt their own Belief or ſpeculative Sentiments.

☞ Subſcriptions for printing the above Piece, are taken in by the Printers hereof.

TO BE SOLD

By E. Auſtin,

[Near the Court-Houſe in Hartford.]

The following articles for Goldſmith's and Jeweler's Uſes, viz.

ROUND and ſquare ſteele Shoe Chapes and Tongs, Knee ditto; an Aſſortment of Files; Cruſibles; Black Lead Pots; Salt Peter; Borax; Iron Rivet-wire; fine binding ditto; Braſs Rivit wire; Moulding Sand; Rotten Stone; Pummice Stone; Sandever; Sand paper; Buckle Bruſhes; Flower of putte; red and white Foil; cypher'd and white Stone Rings; cypher'd and white Stone Ear rings ſet in Gold; ditto in Silver; cypher'd and white Stone Buttons ſet in Silver, Stone Broaches ſet in Silver. &c. &c. &c.

Doct. Uriah Rogers, jun.

Of Norwalk, in Fairfield County

TAKES this method to inform the public, and particularly ſuch as are diſpoſed to take the Small-Pox by inoculation, that he has again opened his noted hoſpital, where he intends to carry on inoculation as long as any perſons appear to be inoculated; he intends to inoculate the ſummer thro'out; as he finds by conſtant experience that his patients never have it more favourable than in warm weather. He intends to have things in the beſt order poſſible, and the beſt attendance ſhall be given, both by Doctor and Nurſe, at the moderate expence of Four Pounds, L. M.

N. B. Said Rogers takes the patient at firſt, & puts him to no other expence. Dated Norwalk, 9th day of Octo. 1769.

Juſt Publiſhed and to be ſold at the Printing Office, Hartford.

That there is but one

Covenat, Wereof BAPTISM and the LORD's SUPPER are Seals, viz. The Covenant of Grace, proved from the Word of GOD, and the Doctrine of an external graceleſs Covenant, lately advanced by the Rev. Mr. MOSES MATHER; in a Pamphlet, entituled, The viſible Church in Covenant with God, &c. Shewed to be an unſcriptural Doctrine.

To which is prefixed,

An Anſwer to a Dialogue concerning the Half-Way-Covenant;

Lately printed at New London.

By JOSEPH BELLAMY, D. D.

STRAY'D or ſtolen, from the ſubſcriber of Eaſt-Hartford, about the 3d or 4th inſt. a bay mare, about 14 hands high, both paces and trots, branded with the letter A on her left ſhoulder, and with the letters C B on her left thigh, not plain to be ſeen, lately had a wart cut off her breaſt, where is a ſmall ſcar or wart to be ſeen. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid mare, and (if ſtolen) ſecure the thief, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice, and the mare recovered, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

EPHRAIM WILLIAMS.

Eaſt Hartford, Oct. 20, 1769.

JUST PUBLISHED,

A Collection of

Original PAPERS,

Which are intended to ſupport and elucidate the principal Facts related in the firſt Part of the HISTORY of MASSACHUSETS BAY, and may ſerve as an Appendix to it.

☞ Subſcribers are deſired to ſend for their Books to T. & J. Fleet, at the Heart & Crown, in Cornhill, BOSTON.

Wanted Immediately,

A Journeyman Shoe-Maker, that can be well recommended.—Such a one may have good encouragement by applying to

MOSES SMITH.

N. B. A Quantity of choice SOLE LEATHER, and CALF SKINS, to be Sold by ſaid Smith.

All perſons having accounts unſettled with the eſtate of Webſter Waters late of Hartford, deceas'd are deſired to ſettle the ſame immediately, with

JOHN THOMAS, Adminiſtrator.

Hartford, Oct. 20, 1769.

BROKE into the encloſure of the Subſcriber of Suffield ſome time ſince a Roan Mare Colt, about two years old, no brand. The owner on proving his property and paying charges, may have her again by applying to

JOHN LEAVITT.

Suffield, Oct. 20, 1769.

T. Hopkins,

At his STORE, oppoſite the North-Meeting Houſe, Hartford.

HAS juſt received a General Aſſortment of Engliſh GOODS, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable terms, for Caſh or Produce in hand.

N. B. Salt exchanged for Flax-Seed, at the above Store. tf

TO BE SOLD.

At the houſe of Moſes Butler in Hartford, the BRICK HOUSE, adjoining to the Great Bridge in ſaid Hartford, on Friday the 27th day of October inſt. at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, at Public Vendue.

To be ſold at the ſame time and place, two pieces of LAND lying in the South Meadow in ſaid Hartford, now in the Poſſeſſion of Elijah Clap, being excellent Meadow Land.

ALSO, To be ſold at public Vendue, or private ſale, at the houſe of Nathaniel Porter in Eaſt-Windſor, on the third Tueſday of November next, ſix Pieces of Land in the Occupation of Thomas Elmer, Ten Acres of good Meadow, Ten Acres beſt upland Paſture near the Poſt Road, and the Reſidue large Tracts of well wooded and timbered Out Land. Alſo, four hundred Acres of Land lying on Mankeroosen Brook, in ſaid Eaſt Windſor, on which a good Sawmill was formerly erected.

Alſo, to be ſold, a Farm of one hundred Acres, and the third Part of a good Griſt-Mill in Hebron, in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Skinner. For Terms apply to

TITUS HOSMER.

HARTFORD.
Printed by Green and Watſon.

MONDAY, Nov. 13, 1769.

THE

Connecticut

Containing the freſheſt Advices

An Epitaph on the Honorable WILLIAM PITKIN, Eſq; the late governor of Connecticut, who died the firſt of October, 1769

COuld honour, virtue, uſefulneſs,
Or richeſt fruits of heavenly grace,
Such excellence, as moſt endears
To heaven and earth with prayers and tears,
The Public and domeſtic ſigh,
Or ſons of want's diſtreſsful cry,
Avail to ſtay the hand of Death,
The Patriot ſtill had bleſs'd the earth.
But naught can change the ſentence juſt,
That turns the ſons of men to duſt,
Nor worth, nor prayers, nor grace, nor ſtate,
He dies and ſhares the common fate.
Tho' dark to ſenſe, the chriſtian's faith,
O'er natures ruins ſoil'd in death
From earthly toil, the ſaint releas'd,
Aſcends with joy to heavenly reſt.
Mean while his fleſh in CHRIST ſecure,
Sleeps here, 'till time ſhall be no more,
'Till GOD's eternal day ſhall riſe,
And ſhine around his waking eyes.
His influence here is loſt in death,
But precious memory ſtill on earth,
Moſt uſeful leſſons will ſupply—
Teach how to live and how to die.

* * *

From a late LONDON Paper.

To the PRINTER.

THO' a number of writers have humorouſly ridiculed the folly of thoſe who in the lower ſtations of life, diſtinguiſh themſelves by an attachment to Party and neglect the duties of their ſeveral occupations, to attend the important buſineſs of the kingdom the error, neverthe'eſs, is no way eradicated, and poſſibly no period of hiſtory can produce ſuch a number of POLITICIANS as the preſent æra, who, differ as they may in matters of opinion, profeſs all the moſt diſintereſted attachment to the welfare of their Country.

I would by no means, Mr. PRINTER, have given either you or myſelf the trouble of this letter, if the ſubject was not a matter of ſome conſequence, not only to my family, but to many families in this metropolis who have no dependence but their induſtry and who ſhould endeavour to gain the good opinion of every body, inſtead of being abſurdly ſedulous to create enemies. My huſband, Sir, is a Shopkeeper and had the happineſs of giving general ſatisfaction to many perſons of the firſt conſequence. We were going on very proſperouſly, till the late fatal diſſentions converted or rather as Scrub in the Stratagem phraſes it, perverted one of the beſt Haberdaſhers into one of the worſt Politicians exiſting.

The moment theſe unhappy feuds broke out, my huſband, who has had a tolerable education was too much a good Engliſhman to mind his own affairs any longer; he felt the moſt patriotic regard for the happineſs of his poor country, and ſet himſelf ſeriouſly down to write Letters for the News papers. Inſtead of employing his pen to the adjuſtment of his books, he exerciſed it on the nature of General Warrants; and inſtead of drawing out Bills, which were neceſſary to be collected, he

SAVANNAH (in Georgia) Auguſt 23

As advice has been received, that the addreſs of the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly of this Province, of the 24th day of December laſt to our moſt gracious Sovereign, has been, by the Agent, delivered to the Secretary of State for America to be preſented to his Majeſty, it is thought not improper now to publiſh it.

To THE KING's MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY

The humble ADDRESS of the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly of the Province of Georgia

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN,

YOUR dutiful and loyal ſubjects the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly of Georgia with the greateſt humility beg leave to preſent to your ſacred perſon, the grievences that this province labours under, by the late acts of parliament of Great Britain for raiſing a Revenue in America. Equally attached by intereſt, principle, and affection, for our mother-country, we readily acknowledge a conſtitutional ſubordination to its ſupreme legiſlature; at the ſame time with inexpreſſible concern, we muſt lament, that, by their impoſition of internal taxes we are deprived of the privilege, which, with humble deference, we apprehead to be our indubitable right, that of granting away our own property, and are thereby prevented from a ready compliance with any requiſition your Majeſty may graciouſly pleaſe to make and which, to the utmoſt extent of our ſmall abilities, we have always moſt chearfully obeyed.

From your Majeſty's equity, wiſdom, and paternal regard for the rights and liberties of your ſubjects, however remote, we flatter ourſelves with and firmly rely upon redreſs in this our unhapy ſituation. And as we of this province experience your Majeſty's particular countenance and protection, in our preſent infant ſtate, for which we are impreſſed with the deepeſt ſenſe of gratitude ſo we moſt fervently hope, and doubt not, we ſhall alſo experience, in general with our ſiſter colonies on this occaſion, freſh marks of your Majeſty's royal juſtice and attention to the ſupplications of your diſtreſſed ſubjects.

We beg leave to aſſure your Majeſty, that none of your numerous ſubjects can, or do more ardently wiſh and pray for, a continuance of your auſpicious reign, and that your lateſt poſterity may happily rule over a free, grateful, and loyal people, throughout your wide extended empire, than your faithful Commons of Georgia.

By Order of the Houſe.
N. W. JONES, Speaker.

Commons Houſe of Aſſembly 24th Dec. 1769.

The Brigantine Prince George, Capt. Martain, from London for St. Auguſtine, was loſt about 17 days ago in the night upon a reef about ten miles to the northward of the bar. We hear the veſſel and cargo are entirely loſt.

The Ship Lion, Capt. Irvine, belonging to London, having on board about 450 hogſheads of ſugar, was caſt away the 30th of laſt month, on Arrikabas reef on the North ſide of Jamaica.

To be ſold at the Houſe of Mrs. Margaret Cheenvard in Hartford.

GOOD Madeira and Liſbon WINE, Barbados RUM, ANNICESEED WATER, CHOCOLATE, SNUFF of the beſt Kind, &c. &c. &c.

❧

Preparing for the Preſs.

A ſhort SERMON,

of a new Kind, never preach'd, nor ever will be. The doctrinal Part to conſiſt of the Doctrine of the HOPKINTONIAN Scheme of Orthodoxy, collected from ſundry Books lately publiſhed, and ranged in their proper Order and connection, without any Reaſonings in Support or Confutation of them; cloſed with an Application, and an Addreſs to the unconverted, ſuch as thoſe Doctrines do ſuggeſt ſupport, and warrant. The doctrinal and applicatory Part of this Sermon will be wholly conſiſtent, the Application ariſing naturally and entirely out of the Doctrine. The whole will conclude with a ſhort Form of Prayer, for the Uſe of the unconverted Believers of this Scheme, which they may ſafely make without lying againſt their own Belief or ſpeculative Sentiments.

☞ Subſcriptions for printing the above Piece, are taken in by the Printers hereof.

TO BE SOLD

By E. Auſtin,

[Near the Court Houſe in Hartford.]

The following articles for Goldſmith's and Jeweler's Uſes, viz.

ROUND and ſquare ſteele Shoe Chapes and Tongs, Knee ditto; an Aſſortment of Files; Cruſibles; Black Lead Pots; Salt Peter; Borax; Iron Rivet wire; fine binding ditto; Braſs Rivit wire; Moulding Sand; Rotten Stone; Pummice Stone; Sandever; Sand paper; Buckle Bruſhes; Flower of putte; red and white Foil; cypher'd and white Stone Rings; cypher'd and white Stone Ear rings ſet in Gold; ditto in Silver; cypher'd and white Stone Buttons ſet in Silver, Stone Broaches ſet in Silver, &c. &c. &c.

Doct. Uriah Rogers, jun.
Of Norwalk, in Fairfield County

TAKES this method to inform the public, and particularly ſuch as are diſpoſed to take the Small Pox by inoculation that he has again opened his noted hoſpital, where he intends to carry on inoculation as long as any perſons appear to be inoculated; he intends to inoculate the ſummer thro'out; as he finds by conſtant experience that his patients never have it more favourable than in warm weather. He intends to have things in the beſt order poſſible and the beſt attendance ſhall be given both by Doctor and Nurſe, at the moderate expence of Four Pounds, L. M.

N. B. Said Rogers takes the patient at firſt, & puts him to no other expence. Dated Norwalk, 9th day of Octo. 1769.

Juſt Publiſhed and to be ſold at the Printing-Office, Hartford.

That there is but one

Covenat, Wereof BAPTISM and the LORD's SUPPER are Seals, viz. The Covenant of Grace, proved from the Word of GOD, and the Doctrine of an external graceleſs Covenant, lately advanced by the Rev. Mr. MOSES MATHER; in a Pamphlet, entituled, The viſible Church in Covenant with God, &c. Shewed to be an unſcriptural Doctrine.

To which is prefixed,

An Anſwer to a Dialogue concerning the Half-Way-Covenant;

Lately printed at New London.
By JOSEPH BELLAMY, D. D.

STRAY'D or ſtolen, from the ſubſcriber of Eaſt Hartford, about the 3d or 4th inſt. a bay mare, about 14 hands high, both paces and trots, branded with the letter A on her left ſhoulder, and with the letters C B on her left thigh, not plain to be ſeen, lately had a wart cut off her breaſt, where is a ſmall ſcar or wart to be ſeen. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid mare, and (if ſtolen) ſecure the thief, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice, and the mare recovered, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

EPHRAIM WILLIAMS.

Eaſt Hartford, Oct. 20, 1769.

JUST PUBLISHED,

A Collection of

Original PAPERS,

Which are intended to ſupport and elucidate the principal Facts related in the firſt Part of the HISTORY of MASSACHUSETS BAY, and may ſerve as an Appendix to it.

☞ Subſcribers are deſired to ſend for their Books to T & J. Fleet, at the Heart & Crown, in Cornhill, BOSTON.

Wanted Immediately,

A Journeyman Shoe Maker, that can be well recommended.—Such a one may have good encouragement by applying to

MOSES SMITH.

N. B. A Quantity of choice SOLE LEATHER, and CALF SKINS, to be Sold by ſaid Smith.

All perſons having accounts unſettled with the eſtate of Webſter Waters late of Hartford, deceas'd are deſired to ſettle the ſame immediately, with

JOHN THOMAS, Adminiſtrator.

Hartford, Oct. 20, 1769.

BROKE into the encloſure of the Subſcriber of Suffield ſome time ſince a Roan Mare Colt, about two years old, no brand. The owner on proving his property and paycharges, may have her again by applying to

JOHN LEAVITT.

Suffield, Oct. 20, 1769.

T. Hopkins,

At his STORE, oppoſite the North-Meeting Houſe, Hartford.

HAS juſt received a General Aſſortment of Engliſh GOODS, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable terms, for Caſh or Produce in hand.

N. B. Salt exchanged for Flax-Seed, at the above Store.

TO BE SOLD

At the houſe of Moſes

Butler in Hartford, the BRICK HOUSE, adjoining to the Great Bridge in ſaid Hartford, on Friday the 27th day of October inſt. at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, at Public Vendue.

To be ſold at the ſame time and place, two pieces of LAND lying in the South Meadow in ſaid Hartford, now in the Poſſeſſion of Elijah Clap, being excellent Meadow Land.

ALSO, To be ſold at public Vendue, or private ſale, at the houſe of Nathaniel Porter in Eaſt Windſor, on the third Tueſday of November next, ſix Pieces of Land in the Occupation of Thomas Elmer, Ten Acres of good Meadow, Ten Acres beſt upland Paſture near the Poſt Road, and the Reſidue large Tracts of well wooded and timbered OutLand. Alſo, four hundred Acres of Land lying on Mankerooſen Brook, in ſaid Eaſt Windſor, on which a good Sawmill was formerly erected.

Alſo, to be ſold, a Farm of one hundred Acres, and the third Part of a good Griſt-Mill in Hebron in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Skinner. For Terms apply to

TITUS HOSMER.

H A R T F O R D:
Printed by Green and Watson.

MONDAY, Nov. 13, 1769.

Numb. 256.

THE

Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

An Epitaph on the Honorable WILLIAM PITKIN, Eſq: the late governor of Connecticut, who died the firſt of October, 1769.

Could honour, virtue, uſefulneſs,
Or richeſt fruits of heavenly grace,
Such excellence, as moſt endears
To heaven and earth with prayers and tears,
The Public and domeſtic ſigh,
Or ſons of want's diſtreſsful cry,
Avail to ſtay the hand of Death,
The Patriot ſtill had bleſs'd the earth.
But naught can change the ſentence juſt,
That turns the ſons of men to duſt,
Not worth, nor prayers, nor grace, nor ſtate,
He dies and ſhares the common fate.
Tho' dark to ſenſe, the chriſtian's faith,
O'er natures ruins ſmil'd in death
From earthly toil, the ſaint releas'd,
Aſcends with joy to heavenly reſt.
Mean while his fleſh in CHRIST ſecure,
Sleeps here, 'till time ſhall be no more,
'Till GOD's eternal day ſhall riſe,
And ſhine around his waking eyes.
His influence here is loſt in death,
But precious memory ſtill on earth,
Moſt uſeful leſſons will ſupply—
Teach how to live and how to die.

❧

From a late LONDON Paper.

To the PRINTER.

THO' a number of writers have humorouſly ridiculed the folly of thoſe who in the lower ſtations of life, diſtinguiſh themſelves by an attachment to Party and neglect the duties of their ſeveral occupations, to attend the important buſineſs of the kingdom the error, nevertheleſs, is no way eradicated, and poſſibly no period of hiſtory can produce ſuch a number of POLITICIANS as the preſent æra, who, differ as they may in matters of opinion, profeſs all the moſt diſintereſted attachment to the welfare of their Country.

I would by no means, Mr. PRINTER, have given either you or myſelf the trouble of this letter, if the ſubject was not a matter of ſome conſequence, not only to my family, but to many families in this metropolis who have no dependence but their induſtry and who ſhould endeavour to gain the good opinion of every body, inſtead of being abſurdly ſedulous to create enemies. My huſband, Sir, is a Shopkeeper and had the happineſs of giving general ſatisfaction to many perſons of the firſt conſequence. We were going on very proſperouſly, till the late fatal diſſentions converted or rather as Scrub in the Stratagem phraſes it, perverted one of the beſt Haberdaſhers into one of the worſt Politicians exiſting.

The moment theſe unhappy feuds broke out, my huſband, who has had a tolerable education was too much a good Engliſhman to mind his own affairs any longer; he felt the moſt patriotic regard for the happineſs of his poor country, and ſet himſelf ſeriouſly down to write Letters for the News papers. Inſtead of employing his pen to the adjuſtment of his books, he exerciſed it on the nature of General Warrants; and inſtead of drawing out Bills, which were neceſſary to be collected, he was conſtantly drawing up invectives againſt the Adminiſtration. In vain, Sir, did I argue with him upon the Miſapplication of his time, and the dangerous tendency of Negligence in his buſineſs; he conſidered my reaſoning as an inſult to his public ſpirit, and looked upon my concern for the main chance, as a baſe indifference to the national Proſperity. Nay, Sir, not content with this, whenever he condeſcended to ſerve in the ſhop he paid no attention to any but thoſe whoſe principles he imagined conſonant to his own, and would addreſs a Lady on the ſeizure of Papers, when ſhe only come in to beſpeak a new bonnet or order her a pair of ruffles.

This mode of acting, joined to the perſonal diſreſpect, he occaſionally manifeſted to the wives or daughters of people who diſſented from his political ſentiments, ſoon gave univerſal diſguſt, and ſome of his beſt friends, expoſtulated with him very ſeriouſly on the abſurdity of this conduct. Remonſtrances however, were to no purpoſe, he ſtill perſiſted in his prepoſterous behaviour, and very cavalierly told ſuch as kindly adviſed him for his good, that they were bribed to take him off by the Miniſtry. To be ſure the intereſt of a Haberdaſher, was a matter of prodigious moment to Government, and therefore it was highly probable, that every artifice ſhould be uſed to detach him from the cauſe of popularity. Notwithſtanding the ſelf evident ſtupidity of ſuch an imagination, he reported upon all occaſions, that the Adminiſtration were determined to deſtroy him, if he did not immediately abandon the defence of his country. As his cuſtomers decreaſed, he never ſuppoſed that they decreaſed thro' the extravagance of his own folly, but thro' the machinations of the Treaſury, and as they went into a rival ſhops before his face, he would gravely aſſert, that every article they bought was purchaſed with the money of the Public.——As I found him irreclaimable in his Patriotiſm, and had repeatedly experienced the inefficacy of reaſoning, I endeavoured to prevent, if poſſible, the fatal effects of it, and therefore made a perſonal application to many Ladies, who had withdrawn their buſineſs, and ſolicited the renewal of their protection. This ſtep, which was apparently dictated by Prudence, gave inconceivable offence to my huſband. He reproached me in the ſtrongeſt terms with turpitude, in courting the Enemies of my Country; and inſiſted, that the wife of a man who ſcorned to have an obligation to Government itſelf, ſhould be above the Infamy of crouching to its dependents.—For his part he looked upon ſilence at ſuch a criſis to be highly criminal; and tho' as a Tradeſman, it might argue wiſdom to conceal his ſentiments, ſtill as an Engliſhman, it was his duty to be mindful of the general good——He might be poor, but he would be virtuous;——and exclaimed with Cato that he ſhould have bluſhed to ſtand ſecure,

" And flouriſh in a Civil War." Such, Sir, has been our ſituation for ſome time; but the ſtate of our affairs is now become ſo alarming, that I cannot conceal my apprehenſions any longer; the people whom we thought rivited in a manner to our ſhop, complain of being ill-treated, and tell us that they can purchaſe much better goods on much eaſier terms at other places. This, Mr. Printer is unhappily too true; my huſband will not employ the beſt workmen, but the moſt public ſpirited, and he chearfully gives a price to a patriotic Weaver for an inferior commodity, which he refuſes to a man of moderate principles, for what is really excellent. By this means, the little we ſet out with, is amazingly diminiſhed, and what is yet worſe, we are indebted in ſums conſiderably beyond the amount even of our original capital. Ruin, Mr. Printer, inevitable ruin ſtares us in the face, and my huſband is ſtill inſenſible, nay he is a man of ſuch conſequence, as to be obnoxious to Government, and tells me when his name is in the Gazette, it will give him a glorious opportunity of publiſhing a Letter againſt the Duke of Grafton.

As I have no motive for troubling you with this letter, Mr. Printer, but to prevent other Tradeſmen from the folly of imitating the ridiculous example of my huſband, give me leave in this place to tell our mechanical Patriots, that the beſt way of promoting the intereſt of their country will be to mind their own buſineſs. In every Adminiſtration they will be ſure of taxes and oppreſſion; but they will have little reaſon to exclaim at the diſhoneſty of Government, if they render themſelves ſpiritedly unable to behave honeſtly to their own Creditors. Such are my ſetiments, Sir, and ſuch I dare ſay are the ſentiments of every diſpaſſionate mind, as well as of,

Your conſtant Reader,
BARBARA BALLANDINE.

BOSTON.

By Letters from Cardinerſton, alias Cobbiſconte, on Kennebeck River dated the 18th ult. we learn, that on Tueſday the 17th, 4 Minuets before 12 o'clock they had there a ſmart Shock of an EARTHQUAKE, which laſted a Minute: It was inſtantly followed with a violent Hurricane of Wind from the N. W. & by W. which continued all that Day. The next Day exactly at the ſame Hour and Minute, viz. 4 Minutes before 12 o'clock there was another Shock harder than that on the preceding Day; it threw the Pewter off the Shelves, and the Ground appeared to move in Waves, and ſeem'd to come from N. W.

On Monday laſt two Indians came to this town from Kennebeck, and immediately waited upon his Honor the Lieutenant Governor and produced to him a paſsport from his Excellency Governor Carleton, dated at Quebec, which place they left about ſeven weeks ago: They belong to a tribe or ſmall body of Indians who are ſeated upon the river St. Charles near Quebec, and came by the way of the river Chaudiere from the head whereof they croſſed over a carrying place of about three quarters of a French league, which brought them into a ſmall lake that has communication with the river Kennebeck and the reſt of their paſſage to FortHalifax was interrupted only by rapid falls, which obliged them to carry their canoe now and then a very few rods upon the land. They were ſent to meet Mr. Finley, a gentleman who was expected at Fort Halifax, where they waited for him a fortnight when they deſpaired of ſeeing him. and apprehending they ſhould meet with difficulty in returning by the way they came, they ſold their canoe to pay their paſſage to Boſton, from whence they ſet out yeſterday for Albany.

One of theſe Indians came the ſame route as a guide to Captain Montreſor about 8 or 10 years ago.

A Gentleman has ſhewn us this Week a Pair Silk Stockings that was manufactured here and wove, by Mr. Etter of Germantown: They appeared to be fine and very ſtrong: Several other Pair we hear are weaving of Silk made here.

MARBLEHEAD, October 27.

At a meeting of the Merchants and Traders of the Town of Marblehead, at the Bunch of Grapes Tavern October 20 1769. and at an Adjournment the 23d ditto, and at another Adjournment the 26th ditto, they came into the Agreement following, viz.

IN order to relieve the Trade under the preſent Diſcouragements, and to promote Induſtry, Frugality and Oeconomy, and to diſcourage Luxury and every Kind of Extravagance, Do promiſe and engage to and with each other as follows:

1ſt, That we will not ſend for or import any Kind of Goods from Great-Britain, on our own Accounts, or on Commiſſions, or any otherwiſe, from this time, until the American Revenue Acts are Repealed; except Coal, Fiſh Hooks, Salt, Lines, Twine, Hemp, Duck, bar and ſheet Lead, Shot, Wool-Cards and Card-Wire, Nails, Powder, coarſe Kerſeys, and Half Thicks, Bay Rugs and Blankets, Oznabrigs and Pepper.

2dly, That we will not purchaſe of any Factor, or others, any Kind of Goods imported from Great-Britain, contrary to the foregoing Article, from this Time, until the ſaid Revenue Acts are Repealed.

3dly, That whereas many of us have ordered Goods to come out this Fall, which are hourly expected to arrive; and among which are a few Articles, that are not included in the Exception in the firſt Article; We hereby promiſe to deliver the ſaid nonexcepted Articles unto the Committee of Merchants in this Town to be ſtored, at the Riſque of the Owners, till the ſaid Acts are Repealed or otherwiſe agreed by us.

To which Agreement, between fifty and ſixty Merchants and Traders have already ſigned; and two Merchants, tho' not ſigned, have given their Honour, that when their Goods arrive, they will deliver all the non-excepted Goods to the ſaid Commettee, to be ſtored at their Riſque, in the ſame Manner as the Subſcribers. And it is expected that the few, that have not as yet come into ſuch Agreement, will ſoon be convinced that they ſhould prefer the Good of their County to their private Intereſt.

SALEM, October 31.

Capt. Dodge, in the Sloop Elizabeth, in 20 Days from St. Euſtatia, arrived at Ipſwich laſt Saturday Night, and informs, that he was at Dominica on or about the 20th of September, when the Town of Roſeau was almoſt ruined by prodigious Torrents of water from the Mountains, occaſioned by exceſſive Rains: That about 20 Buildings was waſhed away and loſt in that Place, and many perſons drowned: That the Town was ſo overflowed, as rendered it very difficult and dangerous to paſs from one Part of it to another, the water being in many Places 4 Feet above the Surface of the Earth: And that many Articles were ſeen at Sea, which were carried away by the Rapidity of the Streams of Water, particularly a Roof of a Houſe, with four Perſons on it who were ſaid to be 12 Leagues from Land before they were diſcovered.

Mr. HALL,

THE COMET, which now re-appears, after having made a Viſit to the Sun, ſeems to have undergone a very remarkable Change in the State of its Atmoſphere, during its Paſſage round that Luminary. When it appeared in the Morning, about the 8th or 10th of September, its Situation and Nearneſs to the Earth gave us every poſſible Advantage for obſerving it; notwithſtanding which, the beſt Teleſcopes diſcovered nothing of the Nucleus, but only preſented to View a whitiſh Cloud, the Body itſelf being involved in impenetrable Clouds or Miſts; but during its Neighbourhood to the Sun the Weather ſeems to have cleared up, for tho' the Atmoſphere appears now 15 or 20 Times the Dimeter of the central Body, yet the latter is very viſible, and appears both bright and diſtinct in a common Teleſcope. The Comet appears but faintly to the naked Eye, which is owing to its preſent Remoteneſs from the Earth principally, though in ſome Meaſure to the Vapours near the Horizon; and Tail appears ſhort and broad, ariſing from its Situation with Relation to our Eye; and very crooked, which is in Conſequence of the ſhort Turn it took at its Perihilion.

PROVIDENCE, October 28.

AT a Town Meeting held at the Court-Houſe, on Tuſday, the 24th Inſtant, it was reſolved, by the Merchants, Traders, and other Inhabitants of this Town, That they would not, directly nor indirectly, from that Time, until the Act impoſing Duties upon Glaſs, Paper, &c ſhall be repealed, give any Orders for importing by Land or Water into this Colony, either for Sale, or for their own or Families Uſe, or purchaſe of any other Perſon importing any of the Articles enumerated in an Agreement entered into, and ſigned, by a Number of the Inhabitants of this Town, on the 2d Day of December, 1767, ſimilar to one entered into about the ſame Time by the Town of Boſton; and that they would ſtrictly adhere to the Meaſures thereby adopted, by endeavouring moſt effectually to diſcountenance Luxury and Extravagance, in the Uſe of Britiſh and foreign Manufactures and Superfluities, and by exerting their utmoſt Endeavours to promote and encourage, by all laudable Methods, our own Manufactures, more eſpecially the Articles of Wool and Flax, the natural Produce and Staple of the Colony.

And whereas ſeveral Merchants of this Town have given orders for, and daily expect from England, in the Snow Triſtram, David Shand, Maſter, divers Parcels of Goods amongſt which are many of the Articles enumerated in the aforementioned Agreement not to be imported; they did then perſonally, in Preſence of the Town Meeting, chearfully agree and engage to deliver up all ſuch enumerated articles which they ſhall import in ſaid Snow, or by any other Way whatever, to a Committee of three Gentlemen appointed by ſaid Meeting for that Purpoſe, who are to receive and ſtore the ſame, till the aforeſaid Act impoſing Duties, &c. ſhall be repealed.

JAMES ANGELL, Town Clerk.

NEW-YORK.

Extract of a Letter from Briſtol, dated the 14th Auguſt, 1769, to a Merchant in this City.

"The Act of Parliament, which permits the Importation of Pig and Bar Iron from America, Duty free, directs that it ſhall have a Mark or Stamp upon it; but this has been neglected on Bar Iron for ſome Time and for which the Officers of our Cuſtom-Houſe have been called to Account, ſo that any that may arrive after this Time without having a Mark or Stamp on it, will be ſubject to pay Duty; which Mark or Stamp of either Pig or Bar Iron, ſhould be mentioned in the Certificate, to denote the Identity of the Iron."

A CHARACTER.—By JOHN WILKES.

[Never before Publiſhed]

OF all political adventurers, Mr. PITT has been the moſt ſucceſsful, according to the venal ideas of modern ſtateſmen. PULTENY ſold the people only for a barren title. The mercenary PITT diſpoſed of popularity like an exchange broker. Beſides the ſame title with the other apoſtate PITT ſecured from the crown a large family penſion, and the lucrative ſinecure of the Privy ſeal, which he held for a few years. His retreat into the Houſe of Lords was a political demiſe. He paſſed away, but is not yet quite forgotten — His treachery to the cauſe of the people ſtill loads his memory with curſes.

He raiſed himſelf to the greateſt offices of the ſtate by the rare talent of command in a popular aſſembly. He was indeed born an orator, and from nature poſſeſſed every outward requiſite to beſpeak reſpect, and even awe. A manly figure, with the famous Condé fixed your attention, and almoſt commanded reverence the moment he appeared; and the keen lightnings of his eye ſpeak the haughty, fiery ſoul, before his lips had pronounced a ſyllable. His tongue dropped venom. There was a kind of faſcination in his look, when he eyed any one aſkance. Nothing could withſtand the force of that contagion. The fluent MURRAY was faultered, and even FOX ſhrunk back, appalled from an adverſary fraught with fire unquenchable, if I may borrow the expreſſion of our great MILTON. He always cultivated the art of ſpeaking with the moſt intenſe care and application. He has paſſed his life in culling of words, the arrangement of phraſes, and choice of metaphors; yet his theatrical manner did more than all, for his ſpeeches could not be read. There was neither ſound reaſoning, nor accuracy of expreſſion in them. He had not the power of argument, nor the correctneſs of language, ſo ſtriking in the Roman orator, but he had the verba ardentia, the bold glowing words. This merit was confined to his ſpeeches; for his writings were always cold, lifeleſs, and incorrect, totally void of elegance and energy, ſometimes even offending againſt the plaineſt rules of conſtruction. In the purſuit of eloquence he was indefatigable. He dedicated all his powers and faculties, and he ſacrificed every pleaſure of ſocial life, even in youth, to the ſingle point of talking well:

Multa tulit fecitque puer; ſudavit et alſit,
Abſtinuit venere et vino,

to a greater degree than almoſt any man of his age.

He acknowledged, that when he was young, he always came late into company, and left it early. He affected at firſt a ſovereign contempt of money, and when he was Paymaſter, made a parade of two or three very public acts of diſintereſtedneſs. When he had effectually duped his credulous friends, as well as a timid miniſtry, and obtained enormous legacies, penſions and ſinecure places, the maſk dropped off. Private intereſt afterwards appeared to be the only idol to which he ſacrificed. The old Duke of Newcaſtle uſed to ſay, that Mr. Pitt's talents would not have got him forty pounds a year in any country but this.

At his entrance into Parliament, he attacked Sir Robert Walpole with indecent acrimony, and continued the proſecution to the laſt moment of that Miniſter's life. He afterwards paid ſervile and fulſome compliments to his memory, not from conviction, as appeared from any other particulars, but to get over a few Walpolians. He had no fixed principle, but that of his own advancement. He declared for and againſt Hanoverian ſubſidies, &c. &c ſtill preſerving and unbluſhing, unembarraſſed countenance, and the moſt perfect contradiction of a man to himſelf, which the world ever ſaw. If his ſpeeches in Parliament had been faithfully publiſhed to the Engliſh, ſoon after they werere delivered, as thoſe of Demoſthenes and Cicero were to the Greeks and Romans, he would have been ſoon detected, and utterly caſt off by his countrymen.

He is ſaid to be ſtill living at Hays in Kent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9

Thurſday laſt arrived the ſhip —— Captain Ruſſel, in a ſhort Paſſage from Havre de Grace, who informs that there was a Report that the Engliſh had taken a French Eaſt Indiamen in India, the Reaſon given for which, was, that the French had aſſiſted the Indian Powers at War with the Engliſh. That all the Outward bound French Ships, now are double manned, and carry their full Compliment of Guns and Ammunition; and are in daily Expectation of a War with England on which they are in high Spirits.——A later Engliſh Paper than any we have received, gave an Account that the Earl of Chatham was in the Miniſtry.

NEWHAVEN, Nov. 10.

Mr. Samuel Wales, is appointed one of the Tutors of Yale College, in the Room of Amos Botsford, Eſq; reſigned.

BOSTON, November 9.

THE Merchants of this Town have lately Agreed not to Import any Goods, ſome few Articles Excepted, from Great Britain, until all the Revenue Acts are Repealed; a Subſcription has been opened for this Purpoſe, and has been ſigned by all the Importers in Town, except Ten or Twelve who at preſent do not ſee their way clear to ſign.

We hear the Importers by the John Galley, Thomas Allen, Maſter, who arrived here laſt Tueſday from London is very ſmall.—That there are but few Articles on board but what are allowed of by the Merchants Agreement, and thoſe in Town to whom they are Conſigned have agreed to deliver them to the Committee of Inſpection.

Laſt Thurſday Afternoon a young Woman from the Country was decoyed into one of the Barracks in Town, and moſt ſhamefully abuſed by ſome of the Soldiers there:—The Perſon that enticed her thither, with promiſes of diſpoſing of all her marketting there (who alſo belonged to the Country) was afterwards taken by the Populace and ſeveral times duck'd in the Water at one of the Docks in Town; but luckily for him he made his eſcape from them ſooner than was intended; however, we hear that after he had croſſed the Ferry to Charleſtown, on his return home, the People there being informed of the baſe Part he had been acting, took him and placed him in a Cart, and after covering him well with Mud, they carried him about that Town for two or three Hours, as a Spectacle of Contempt and a Warning to others from practiſing ſuch vile Artifices for the Deluſion and Ruin of the virtuous and innocent: He was then diſmiſſed, and permitted to proceed to the Town where he belonged.

PROVIDENCE, October 21.

From different Parts of the Country we learn, that a dangerous Diſtemper has broke out among the Dogs, ſeveral having lately gone mad. An Ox belonging to Capt. Ephraim Pearce, of Johnſton, was ſome Time ſince bit by one of thoſe Animals: but as the Ox was not immediately affected, and the Wound healed, it was hoped no bad conſequence would enſue; however, in about ſix Weeks after, Symptoms of the Malady appeared, which increaſed till it became dangerous to approach him, and he died raving mad.

We ſince learn that Mr. Ebenezer Tyler, of Cranſton, died on Tueſday laſt. He was lately bit in the Arm by a Dog, which ſome ſay was the cauſe of his Death.

On Tueſday Morning a mad Dog entered a Houſe on the Weſt Side of the Bridge, when a Perſon attempted to ſhoot him; but the Gun only flaſhed, and he made off in Johnſton Road. He was afterwards ſeen to bite two other Dogs, belonging to Col. Chriſtopher Harris, and Mr. Conſider Luther.

We are likewiſe informed that numbers of Swine having been bit, all of them died mad.

It ſtrongly behoves the Owners of Dogs to guard as much as poſſible, againſt their being infected; and upon diſcovering the leaſt Sign of Madneſs immediately to deſtroy them.

HARTFORD, Nov. 13.

Laſt Thurſday P. M. was expected a viſible TRANSIT of the Planet MERCURY over the Sun's Diſk; but as the Proſpect was moſtly interrupted by intervening Clouds, no advantageous Obſervations could be made here.

COPY of a Letter from the Committee of Merchants in Middletown, to the Committee of Merchants in Hartford.

Middletown, September 30, 1769.

GENTLEMEN,

IN the Boſton Paper, printed by Meſſ. Edes & Gill, an Advertiſement appears to be put out by the Committee of Inſpection, dated the 18th current, relative to the Conduct of Capt. George Butler, in receiving on board one or more Cheſts of Tea, imported by the Hutchinſons, contrary to the Agreement almoſt univerſally come into by the Merchants throughout the Continent of America, and in direct Oppoſition to a Meaſure indiſpenſable neceſſary for the Preſervation of our Liberty and Property. The People here being greatly alarmed, to think what may be the Conſequences of ſuch a Step, if it ſhould paſs unnoticed——we are therefore deſired, in their Name to addreſs you on the Occaſion, and entreat you to take the Matter under your ſerious Conſideration, and take ſuch Meaſures as will be moſt likely to prevent the terrible Conſequences that may naturally flow from ſuch an Example paſſing unnoticed. Although we do not undertake to direct you in this Affair, yet we think we can with Confidence aſſure you, that if ſuch a Thing ſhould be tranſacted by any Inhabitant of this Town, that the Goods would be put into a Store, under the Care of ſome Perſon in whom the Public may confide.——And ſhould Capt. Butler refuſe to comply with any ſalutary Meaſures by you come into for the healing of this Breach, you may rely on our Concurrence with you in withdrawing all Correſpondence with, or extending Favour to ſaid George Butler, and his Abbettors, or in any other reaſonable Meaſures for the Accompliſhing of a Thing ſo indiſpenſably neceſſary.

Your's, &c.

A true Copy, publiſhed by Order of the Merchants of Middletown.

Teſt. BENJAMIN HENSHAW, Clerk.

TO BE SOLD BY
John Thompſon,
At Middletown,
Two Stills and Worms,

One 800 Gallons, the other 150, with ſundry other articles belonging to ſaid Stills.—Alſo, 30 acres of good land, near Butlers Creek, and 20 acres of Wood land at Moromos.—Alſo, a ſmall parcel of European Goods, to be ſold cheap for Caſh or ſhort Credit.—Alſo ſaid Thompſon's Dwelling Houſe in the town Plot, to be let or ſold.

Middletown, Nov. 10. 1769.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Heart and Crown in Hartford,

REMARKS,

On Dr. Gale's Letter to
J. W. Eſquire.

RUN-Away from his maſter the 21ſt laſt month, an Iriſh man ſervant named John White, (alias Patrick White) or what other name he may go by. He is about twenty ſix years of age, light complexion, brown hair, about five feet ten inches high, ſtutters ſome when he talks, had on when he went away, a light colour'd coat and veſt, but quite likely he may ſhift his cloaths when he finds an opportunity, he ſometimes pretends to be a merchant, ſometimes a maſter of a veſſel, ſometimes a ſchool maſter, by which and the plauſible pretences he makes, he has and ſtill may deceive many. He has uſed his preſent maſter with the utmoſt ingratitude. Wherefore, whoever takes him up, and convey's him to the ſubſcriber, or confines him in any of his majeſty's goals in this or the neighbouring colonies, or puts him on board any of his majeſty's ſhips of war, taking the commanding officers receipt for him, and ſending to the ſubſcriber, ſhall receive a reward of Twenty Shilling Lawful Money, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

BENJAMIN HENSHAW.

Middletown, Nov 2. 1769.

Hartford, Nov. 10, 1769.

ALL perſons that are creditors to, or have any claims to the eſtate of John Hopſon of Colcheſter, an inſolvent debtor are notified to attend a meeting of the truſtees on the 11th day of December next, at John Tainter's tavern in Colcheſter, when and where thoſe creditors who have not as yet made out their claims to ſaid eſtate, may have an opportunity, and direct the truſtees to compromiſe or ſettle by arbitration, ſome debts due to ſaid eſtate.

Humphry Lyon,
Charles Foot, } Truſtees.
Joſeph Iſham, Jun.

STray'd or ſtolen from the ſubſcriber of Eaſt Hartford, on the night after the 1ſt inſt. a ſorrel Mare, about 14 hands and half high, paces and trots, white face, both hind feet white, towards half way up to her ham, a white ſpot juſt back of her ſhoulder, branded with A, upon her left ſhoulder, her left eye wall. Whoever will take up ſaid Mare, and return her to the owner, ſhall have FOUR DOLLARS reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JONATHAN HILLS, Eſq;

Eaſt-Hartford Nov. 9, 1769.

TAKEN up by the ſubſcriber a ſorrel Horſe, three or four years old, about 13 half hands high, natural trotter, white in the face, below his eyes, the left hind foot white, branded with B on the left thigh—— Said Horſe was taken up on the 9th of Octo. laſt, STEPHEN MATTHEWS.

Waterbury, Nov. 4, 1769.

---Suſquehannah---

AT a meeting of the Suſquehannah company held by adjournment in Hartford, Nov. 8th, 1769.

WHEREAS it appears that but few of the proprietors of the Suſquehannah purchaſe are preſent, or have had notice of this meeting, & matters of importance are now under conſideration relative to ſaid purchaſe, and ſettlement, it is now voted to adjourn this meeting, to the 6th day of December at Windham, and the Clerk is hereby directed, to publiſh a copy of this vote and adjournment of this meeting, as above, in this, and three adjoyning provinces, and the proprietors are deſired to give their attendance without fail, as matters moſt intereſting to the company, are then to come under conſideration.

A true Copy,
Teſt SAMUEL GRAY, Clerk of ſaid Com.

The PRINTERS to their CUSTOMERS.

WOuld inform, that by Reaſon of the unexpected & Perſevering Negligence of far the greater Part of our Cuſtomers, in reſpect of Payment, or ballancing Accounts, we are obliged to think of diſcontinuing the Publication of our weekly Paper; which, unleſs prevented by previous Settlements, we have determined will take Place on the 11th of December next, which will compleat the ſixth Year ſince its firſt Publication.

We beg Leave to addreſs our delinquent Cuſtomers, in the Language of Civility, and with a Deference due to the Character of Perſons, either of Probity, Honeſty and Veracity, or, of Humanity, Honor, and Ingenuity; in either of which, we are aſſured they will take no Offence, at our once more calling upon them for a Settlement. As we have, Gentlemen, been at great Expence to ſerve you, we would entreat of you, for once, to take into your Conſideration, on the one Hand, the trifling Conſequence it would be to you, to pay the Sum of only Six Shillings, per Ann. eſpecially if paid when it firſt becomes due; and on the other, how intereſting a Matter it is to us, that you ſhould thus do; eſpecially conſidering we have (relying on your Encouragement, as it were) riſk'd the Support of ourſelves and Families on this Footing;—and alſo, as the Continuance of the Buſineſs of Printing in this Place does entirely depend upon it.

We aſſure our Cuſtomers, that ſince the Commencement of the Partnerſhip between us, we have not received from them, upon an Average, ſo much as Two Shillings out of Six, of what has been due from them; which has not been ſufficient even to defray the Expence of clean Paper, we have uſed in the Buſineſs. And as our Capital is very ſmall, and as (to oblige our Cuſtomers) we have run ourſelves deeply in Debt; ſo we are ſorry to tell them, that, without the requeſted Relief, we muſt be obliged to ſerve them no longer than the Time forementioned. Their ſettling, or not ſettling with us, therefore, by that Time, we can do no other than conſtruct as the Language of their Hearts, as to whether they mean to have us continue the Paper longer or not.

We ſtand ready to receive our Dues in Caſh, Country Produce, or their Obligations: Or if they have any Method more reaſonable to propoſe, we ſtand ready to hear them.

Our having repeatedly (tho' almoſt fruitleſsly) reminded you of theſe Matters, will amply apologize for the Plainneſs with which we now treat them. We hope we ſhall not be obliged to offer you any further Trouble of this Kind——And that by the Favour of our Cuſtomers, we may be able ſo to diſcharge our own Obligations, as to ſerve them and the Public in a better Manner than we have hitherto been able to do, by continuing the Buſineſs in this Place.

Nor would we here diſmiſs the Subject, without firſt paying our thankful Acknowledgments of the Favours of many of our Cuſtomers, who have not only favoured us with their Cuſtom, but have alſo been to a good Degree punctual, as well as generous in ſettling their Accounts according to previous Engagements. We are their's, and the Public's Humble Servants,

GREEN & WATSON.

☞ N. B. Thoſe Perſons in Arrears in the Town of Simſbury, are deſired to make Payment to Capt. Jonathan Humphrys; and thoſe in the Town of Suffield, to Mr. Seth Auſtin, with whom their reſpective Accounts are left——and at the Time limitted above, we will ſend for our Pay, and hope not to be diſappointed of receiving it.

☞ Thoſe that live near, and chooſe to pay in Wood, are deſired not to omit bringing of it by the Time before mentioned.

Hartford, 4 Nov. 1769.

We the Subſcribers being appointed by the Judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, Commiſſioners to receive and adjuſt the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Ebenezer Mix, of Hartford deceas'd we therefore hereby notify the creditors to ſaid eſtate, to bring in their claims to us, on the laſt Tueſdays of Nov. and Dec. next, at one o'Clock on each of ſaid days, at the Dwelling-Houſe of the ſaid Ebenezer Mix, in Hartford deceas'd, as we will attend the buſineſs on each of ſaid days at ſaid place. op

Timothy Seymour, } Commiſſioners.
George Kellogg.

TO BE SOLD.

A Lot of Land lying in the Pariſh of Wintonbury, in Windſor, containing about eight acres, with a ſmall DWELLING HOUSE, a large Tan houſe and a Shoemaker's ſhop thereon; together with a good orchard, of upwards of 40 trees, and within about half a mile of the meeting houſe, a Black-Smith, a Cloathier, a Saw and Griſt mill, and a Coopers Shop.—Any perſon inclining to purchaſe the above, may know the terms, by applying to PHINEAS LOOMIS of Wintonbury, or ASHBEL WELLS of Hartford Weſt-Diviſion. p

TAKEN up by the ſubſcriber of Litchfield, on the 22d inſt. an Iron-gray Mare, about 14 and half hands high, both paces and trots, four years old paſt, no brand. The owner may have her again, on proving his property, and paying charges, by applying to

JABEZ FRISBY.

Litchfield, Oct. 30, 1769.

TO BE SOLD.

At the houſe of Moſes Butler in Hartford, the BRICK HOUSE, adjoining to the Great Bridge in ſaid Hartford, on Friday the 27th day of October, inſt. at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, at Public Vendue.

To be ſold at the ſame time and place, two pieces of LAND lying in the South Meadow in ſaid Hartford, now in the Poſſeſſion of Elijah Clap, being excellent Meadow Land.

ALSO, To be ſold at public Vendue, or private ſale, at the houſe of Nathaniel Porter in Eaſt-Windſor, on the third Tueſday of November next, ſix Pieces of Land in the Occupation of Thomas Elmer, Ten Acres of good Meadow, Ten Acres beſt upland Paſture near the Poſt Road, and the Reſidue large Tracts of well wooded and timbered Out Land. Alſo, four hundred Acres of Land lying on Mankeroofen Brook, in ſaid Eaſt Windſor, on which a good Sawmill was formerly erected.

Alſo, to be ſold, a Farm of one hundred Acres, and the third Part of a good Griſt-Mill, in Hebron, in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Skinner. For Terms apply to

TITUS HOSMER.

All perſons having accounts unſettled with the eſtate of Webſter Waters late of Hartford, deceas'd are deſired to ſettle the ſame immediately, with

JOHN THOMAS, Adminiſtrator

HARTFORD.
Printed by Green and Watſon.

T. Hopkins,

At his STORE, oppoſite the North-Meeting Houſe, Hartford.

HAS juſt received a General Aſſortment of Engliſh GOODS, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable terms, for Caſh or Produce in hand.

N. B. Salt exchanged for Flax-Seed, at the above Store.

Wanted Immediately,

A Journeyman Shoe Maker, that can be well recommended.—Such a one may have good encouragement by applying to

MOSES SMITH.

N. B. A Quantity of choice SOLE LEATHER, and CALF SKINS, to be Sold by ſaid Smith.

J. Morton,

At his Store in Hartford, on the North ſide the Green in the Houſe of Mrs. Sarah Edwards,

HAS a good Aſſortment of Dry Goods, Iron-Mongery, Earthen Ware, Glaſs Ware, and beſt London Pewter, Blown and Rock Salt.

N. B. Said Morton intending for Europe, in the Fall, will ſell off what goods he has on hand, very low for Caſh or Produce.

Cal. Bull, ju.

Oppoſite the North End of the Court Houſe in Hartford,

WANTS a Quantity of FLAX SEED, for which he will give Salt, or Engliſh Goods, of which he has an Aſſortment ſuitable to the Seaſon.

Juſt re-printed, and to be ſold by T. & S. Green, Printers in N. Haven,
(Price TWENTY SHILLINGS.)
The Connecticut Colony
LAW-BOOK,
Containing all the Laws which are in Force in ſaid Colony, together with a neat and correct
T A B L E.

* * *

To be ſold at the Houſe of Mrs Margaret Chenevard, in Hartford,

GOOD Madeira and Liſbon WINE, Barbados RUM, ANNISEED WATER, CHOCOLATE, SNUFF of the beſt Kind, &c. &c. &c.

* * *

JUST PUBLISHED,
A Collection of
Original PAPERS,
Which are intended to ſupport and elucidate the principal Facts related in the firſt Part of the HISTORY of MASSACHUSETS BAY, and may ſerve as an Appendix to it.

☞ Subſcribers are deſired to ſend for their Books to T. & J. Fleet, at the Heart & Crown, in Cornhill, BOSTON.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

MONDAY, Nov. 20, 1769. Numb 257.

THE
Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Adv
Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

By Capt. Allen arrived here from London, we have the following advices, viz.

LONDON, Auguſt 10.

LAST Sunday Evening the remains of Mrs. Trecothick, Wife of Mr. Alderman Trecothick, were interred in a Vault in Addington Church, Surry: The Pall was ſupported by the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, Sir Robert Ladbroke, Knight, the Right Hon. Thomas Harley, Alderman Croſby, Mr. Alderman Peere, and Mr. Alderman Plumb.

Aug. 12. There is a Report juſt circulated, That an Overture was made, by Expreſs, a few Days ſince, from the Members of the Congreſs at Wooburn Abbey to the Members of the Congreſs at Stow; but that it was of ſuch an inadequate Nature, and rejected with ſo much Firmneſs and Diſdain, as to preclude the Poſſibility of any ſecond Offer, but on Terms too humiliating for the one to ſtoop to, or the other to expect.

ON the other Hand we are aſſured that it is the Opinion of a noble Duke, neither to offer, nor liſten to, Terms of Accommodation, for the preſent, with the Anti Miniſterialiſts.

S—— V——, Eſq; who is ſaid to have offered a Bribe of 5000l. to the Premier, is much talked of at the Weſt End of the Town. An action, we hear, will be brought againſt him for this Offence at the enſuing Term.—There is an old Act of Parliament which decrees ſevere Penalties againſt thoſe who ſhall attempt to corrupt the King's Miniſters.

We can aſſure the public, That the 5000l. offered to the D. of Grafton by an eminent patriotic Merchant, for a Place for his Son in Jamaica, was not to be taken out of the Money ſubſcribed to the patriotic Society of the Bill of Rights, for the Uſe of Mr. Wilkes; but that the 5000 l. was to be depoſited out of the private Fortune of the ſaid patriotic Merchant.

We hear that a patriotic Merchant in the City was ſuddenly and moſt unadviſedly precipitated into that imprudent, if not illegal Meaſure of making a corrupt Offer in his Letter and Affidavit to the Premier, by his hearing that a relation of the ſaid noble Duke had offered his G—— for the obtaining the Grant, 3000l. and that the Surprize at this account, hurried Mr. V—— almoſt inſtantaneouſly to make the Offer, write the Letter, and ſwear to the Affidavit; which on cooler Thought, it is now ſaid, gives this Gentleman the deepeſt Regret and Anxiety; and it muſt add to the Senſibility of his Reflections on this Tranſaction, his not having any Copy or Extract of the Letter or Affidavit.

Aug. 18. It is reported at the weſt end of the town, that the noble Duke who has lately refuſed to provide for the ſon of a great patriot in Jamaica, has declared that it is not unlikely but he may deſire to be ſent further ſhortly, to ſome other of the colonies for his own life.

Aug. 21. An anecdote has lately been handed about that S. V——ho, Eſq; who for ſome time paſt has appeared as a very warm patriot, has written a letter to the D. of G. offering the ſum of 5000l. for the reverſion of the office of the clerk of the crown in Jamaica for his ſon, being a patent place, and the preſent poſſeſſor very much advanced in years who is the only ſurvivor of three, to whom the patent was originally granted.

The friends of Mr. V——ho affect to excuſe him, by giving out that theſe places are uſually diſpoſed of by thoſe in power for valuable conſiderations, which are looked on in light of perquiſites of office. But on the other hand it is obſerved, that if the gentleman had not been conſcious of the criminality of the meaſures, he would not have taken the oath of ſecrecy before the Lord Mayor, which it is ſaid he did.

The ſaid Mr. V——ho, we are told, in a Viſit he made to a certain patriot in St. George's Fields, took notice, that he had committed a groſs blunder, in not keeping a copy of the letter; to which the other replied, that in his opinion the greateſt miſtake was his not keeping the original.

A certain miniſter in the late reign, whoſe virtues and abilities were on a pitch with thoſe of the noble D. who is ſo deſervedly the Idol of the people, was honeſt and wiſe enough to confeſs, that his reaſon for refuſing a very conſiderable bribe for obtaining a place, was, becauſe he had received a much greater the day before on the ſame account. Some particular circumſtance muſt apologize for a requeſt which is here made to the —— of ——, to inform the public whether Mr. V.'s offer of 5000l. was not refuſed, becauſe R. W.'s of 5500l. had been already accepted?

Aug. 29. We hear a reverend dueliſt is prohibited preaching in the dioceſe of London.

We hear that a great perſon is again pregnant.

LONDON,

Aug. 14. There is now a Meeting of Patriots at Font-hill in Wiltſhire, the Seat of Alderman Beckford; and, it is ſaid, that within theſe few Days ſome Diſpatches have been ſent from thence to Stow in Buckinghamſhire.

Notwithſtanding the Majority the M——y preſume they are certain of at the enſuing Seſſion, yet much is expected from the preſent Meetings of the Patriots, eſpecially as they ſeem determined to unite in the moſt formidable Oppoſition to the preſent Meaſures.

We hear that the E. of B. had but one interview ſince his Arrival from Abroad, with his Grace the D. of G.

It is now beyond a Doubt that the Intereſt of a certain Northern Nobleman is greatly on the Decline, and that the D—— of G—— is the preſent Favourite.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman at Philadelphia, to his Friend in London, dated June 22.

"In fine the whole continent from New-England to Georgia ſeem firmly fixed: like a ſtrong well conſtructed arch, the more weight is laid on it, the firmer it ſtands. And thus the Americans; the more we are loaded, the more we are united."

LONDON.

Aug 15. It is ſaid that L—— H—— is indefatigable in preparing his accounts, in order to have them as forward as poſſible, by the meeting of the next ſeſſion, if they ſhould then be called for.

The Rev. M. WHITEFIELD hath taken paſſage in the Friendſhip, Capt. Ball, bound to Charles Town, South Carolina, which will ſail ſome time this month.

The Miniſtry have come to a reſolution, to appoint no provincial Governors merely for the political intereſt of themſelves, or friends; having, by late experience found how neceſſary it is, for the ſervice of the nation, not to be ſwayed by any thing but perſonal merit in ſuch high appointments.

Aug. 16. Before the ſtamp act every colony in America was divided into court and country parties; but now union, induſtry, œconomy, are univerſal all over that large continent. Internal manufactures flouriſh, and as theſe improve, a contempt of European delicacies becomes the riſing mode. The planter ſtruts in his homeſpun, and caſts an indignant look on that meanneſs of ſoul, which hopes for a ſuperior diſtinction, by the conſumption of the manufactures of a country that exulted in enſlaving America. Such are the bleſſed effects of our new tax laws upon them!

A letter from Mantua of July 29th, ſays, that the celebrated Paoli was then in that city, & lived in a very elegant manner; but was to ſet out in a few days after, for Vienna, twas ſaid to have a command in the Emperor's ſervice.

On the 10th of July a fire broke out in the city of Conſtantinople, and burnt near a mile in length. It conſumed a number of palaces and 600 houſes.

Aug. 17. It is reported at the weſt end of the town, that the following great perſons are to compoſe a new miniſtry. Firſt Lord of the Treaſury, Duke of Bedford. Chancellor of the Exchequer, Jer. Dyſon, Eſq. Lord Chancellor, Lord Mansfield. Secretaries of State, the Earls of Sandwich and Gower. Preſident of the Council, the Duke of Grafton. Lord Privy Seal, the Duke of Marlboro'. Lord Chief Juſtice, Sir Fletcher Norton.

It is now ſaid that the friends of a noble Lord will be the firſt that will move in a great aſſembly for his accounts to be laid before them, ſo confident are they of the rectitude of his procedings.

Aug. 18 It is ſaid ſome diſpatches of a very alarming nature have been received by the laſt ſhips from India.

It is remarkable that Lord Halifax, by his plea of not guilty on the 17th of June laſt, juſtified the legality of general warrants, and that his defence is undertaken by the law officers of the crown, and paid for out of the treaſury.

Aug. 19. They write from Dantzic, that the Tartars have made a ſudden incurſion into the Ukraine, deſolated all the country, and maſſacred and carried ſeveral thouſand of the inhabitants into ſlavery.

Letters arrived yeſterday from the Continent declare, the Ruſſians have taken Choczim, in which they found a conſiderable booty. The Grand Vizir's army had halted between Jaſſy and Bender, to wait for the Aſiatic reinforcements; but as Prince Gallitzin was in full march towards him, it was ſuppoſed a deciſive battle be fought before they cou'd join him.

A letter from Leghorn mentions, that it is thought the malecontents of Corſica only wait the re embarkation of the French troops, on their return home to break out in open hoſtilities.

Auguſt 26. We hear that the parliament will meet for diſpatch of buſineſs in November.

Aug. 20. They write from Paris, that the epidemical ſickneſs among the ſoldiers at Corſica increaſes daily, and carries off vaſt numbers, which has occaſioned the Court to ſend for moſt of the regiments back which were employed in the conqueſt.

We are told by letters from Berlin, that it is preſumed the intended interview between the Emperor of Germany, and the King of Pruſſia, has principally for object the concerting efficatious meaſures for putting an end to the troubles of Poland; wherein both thoſe Monarchs are eſſentially intereſted, from the vicinity of part of their reſpective dominions.

Aug. 19. It is reported that Lord Harcourt has received his letters of recal from the court of Verſailles.

It is publickly rumored, that a noble Duke now in Northamptonſhire, ſtrongly enforced at a late meeting, held in town, the expediency of Col. Luttrell's accepting a place to vacate his ſeat in parliament, and Mr. Wilkes, at the expiration of his confinement, to be admitted to take his ſeat for Middleſex, it being the only means to appeaſe the minds of the people, and to cauſe the preſent mode of petitioning entirely to ſubſide. He recommended other ſalutary meaſures, very likely to reſtore peace & good order in the people, and unanimity among the Great.

Auguſt 20. It is aſſerted, that the Right Honourable Defaulter, declared at his own table, within theſe few days, to ſeveral gentlemen, that he was ſo far from being ſorry at the publick arraignment of his honour and integrity, that he ſhould think it as the happieſt incident of his life; being no ways doubtful but that he ſhould clear himſelf from the imputation in a manner that would place him beyond the malice of his enemies; and place him where they would leaſt of all wiſh him to be; namely, in the good opinion and confidence of the people.

There are no leſs than one hundred and thirty ſix Captains of the Royal Navy, who are ſeniors in promotion to Sir John L—nd ſ-y, Knight, the very fortunate nephew of Lord B.

Aug. 20. On Friday a turtle of a very conſiderable weight, drawn by ſix horſes, and a puncheon of rum, were ſent as a preſent to the Duke of Grafton, from Sir Francis Bernard, in America.

They write from New York, that workmen and manufacturers of every kind are continually arriving there, and at Philadelphia, from England; ſo great that in a few years they ſhall be able to ſupply every neceſſary among themſelves.

By the couriers that are continually paſſing and repaſſing from Fonthill, the ſeat of our illuſtrious Aldermen Beckford, to Lord Shelburn's in Wiltſhire, and to Lord Temple's in Buckinghamſhire, we begin to entertain great hopes, that not only new men will be appointed to the miniſtry, but alſo meaſures entirely new will ſoon be adopted: For it is impoſſible, either for the ſafety of the K——g, or of the people, to have the old and tyr——l meaſures any longer continued. Though the ſubject has all the reaſon in the world to be diſſatisfied with the ſanguinary & deſpotic adminiſtration of the B——d execrated faction, yet it is not ſo much the men as the meaſures, that now give a general alarm to every part of the Britiſh empire.

A letter from Paris, dated Auguſt 7, mentions, that the Seraſkier, three days after the affair with the Ruſſians, on the 13th, having been joined by a large body of Janiſſaries, from the Grand Viſir's army, under Pacha Amurath, a popular leader among the Turks, fell upon the imperial army and after an obſtinate reſiſtance, put their van-guard to the route, and drove great numbers of them into the Neiſter, which they re-paſſed with the utmoſt precipitation. The Ruſſian General, Prince Proſorowſki, is ſaid to have been dangerouſly wounded in the above action.

It is talked that Lord George Sackville, will ſoon be appointed paymaſter of the forces.

An officer in the third rigment of guards, a member of P———t has, and is now enquiring at ſome particular places for able writers, offering great terms for thoſe who could write in favour of the m———y.

Letters directly from Conſtantinople aſſure, that the Ottoman Porte has declared war againſt the King of Poland.

Aug. 29. A letter from Gibraltar ſays, a report prevails there, that Gen. Paoli is at Leghorn, with a conſiderable number of his followers, and that his brother Clement in Corſica is in ſuch a ſituation as to be likely to give the French much trouble, they not being able to get any water in that part of the country where they are at preſent.

LONDON,

Aug. 24. This day the following gentlemen waited on his Majeſty at St. James's with the Petition from the Freeholders of the county of Surry: The Hon. Peter King, Sir Francis Vincent, Bart. Sir Joſeph Mawby Bart. Sir Joſeph Martin, Eſq; Andrew Chapman, Eſq; Joſeph Clark, Eſq; Sir Anthony Abdy, Bart. met the above gentlemen, previous to their going to Cou[illegible]t the Thatched Houſe tavern; but being [illegible]ly indiſpoſed with the gout could not atten[illegible]em to the palace.

On the King's return from the Drawing-room, Sir Francis Vincent, Bart. the worthy repreſentative of the county preſented the Petition to his Majeſty, which was moſt graciouſly received, and is as follows:

To the KING's moſt excellent Majeſty.
The humble PETITION of the Freeholders of the County of Surrey.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign!

WE, your Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the Freeholders of the county of Surrey, from a grateful ſenſe of the ineſtimable bleſſings which this nation has enjoyed under the mild and equal government of your Majeſty, and your illuſtrious predeceſſors of the Houſe of Brunſwick, and from a ſteady attachment, zeal and affection to your perſon and family, think it our duty to join with our injured fellow ſubjects, in humbly offering to your Majeſty our complaints of the meaſures adopted by pernicious councellors, who, we apprehend, have countenanced and adviſed a violation of the firſt principle of the conſtitution.

The right of election in the people, which is the ſecurity of all their rights, is alſo the foundation of your Majeſty's; we cannot therefore forbear being alarmed, when we ſee that firſt principle violated in the late inſtance of the Middleſex election.

We have ſeen, Loyal Sire, with great concern, an application of the Freeholders of the county of Middleſex, made by their humble petition to the Houſe of Commons, complaining of that meaſure, defeated; and it is with the utmoſt reluctance, we now find ourſelves conſtrained to appeal to your ſacred perſon, from whoſe juſtice and goodneſs we can alone hope for redreſs.

We therefore moſt humbly implore your Majeſty, that you would be graciouſly pleaſed to give us ſuch relief as to your royal wiſdom ſhall ſeem meet, by an exertion of the prerogative which the conſtitution has ſo properly placed in your Majeſty's hands. And your Majeſty's petitioners ſhall ever pray, &c.

The petition was ſigned by 1494 freeholders, which number was deemed ſufficient as ſeveral gentlemen who were obliged, next week, to go into diſtant parts of the kingdom and as they are certainly a great majority of the freeholders reſident in the county.

Auguſt 29. Friday night there was a numerous and reſpectable meeting of the electors of Weſtminſter, at the Globe Tavern in the Strand, when the draft of a petition to his Majeſty was read and unanimouſly approved of. It is confined to the caſe of Middleſex and the prayer is ſaid to conſiſt of a requeſt, that his Majeſty would be graciouſly pleaſed to diſſolve this parliament, and call another as ſoon as poſſible. One of the company took notice of a reſolution in the Commons Journals Vol. 13, P. 767 Anno 1701, 14 of Will. III. which is in theſe words: " Reſolved, That it is the " UNDOUBTED RIGHT of the people of " England to petition or addreſs the King, for " the calling, ſitting, or diſſolving of parliaments, and for the redreſſing of grievances."

This day, at 11 o'clock the electors of Weſtminſter, to the number of about ſeven thouſand, aſſembled in Weſtminſter-hall, to petition his Majeſty for a redreſs of grievances. At 12 o'clock Sir Robert Bernard, Bar. was called to the chair, which was placed on the ſteps of the Court of Common Pleas. Robert Jones, Eſq; moved for the Petition; he expatiated in a moſt ſenſible manner, on the preſent important criſis and then ſaid, he had been chairman of the committee appointed to draw up the Petition, and that in conſequence of their direction he would preſent the ſame to Sir Robert Bernard, who would read it for their approbation. Accordingly Sir Robert read it, and it was received with unanimous applauſe. When the queſtion was put whether they approved of that petition, it was carried unanimouſly and the electors began immediately to ſign it.

It is certain that there were at leaſt 7000 perſons preſent, the greateſt part of whom were gentlemen of conſiderable property: and, by two o'clock, it was conjectured more than two thouſand had ſigned.

We are informed that a patriotic Alderman intends to demand an anſwer to the city petition.

Philadelphia, November 9.

Captain Peele, from Liſbon, informs, that on the 25th of September, in Lat. 36. 34. Long. 15. 36, he fell in with three Sallee Men of War, of 32 Guns each, who ordered him to hoiſt out his boat, and come on board them, which he did, and after producing his Mediterranean Paſs, they detained him four hours, & then ordered him to proceed on his Voyage. The next Morning he ſaw a Sail to Windward, which immediately bore down for him, and came up with him about noon, when they fired a Gun, hoiſted a red Flag, and ordered him on board; that on his ſhewing his Paſs, the Captain ordered him under a guard of 18 Men, while they went on board his Brig, plundered his Cabbin of his Stores and neceſſaries; took away his Books and Inſtruments, Shirts, Wearing Apparel, and ſeveral things of Value, ſtruck his mate ſeveral times, and uſed all his people very ill, threatning to ſtab them if they did not open their Cheſts, that they might take what they pleaſed; that one of their Slaves told him, while he was on board, the ſhip belonged to the Emperor of Morocco; that they had lately ſailed from New Sallee on a Cruize, had taken ſeveral Spaniſh Ships, and plundered a great many others. They detained him till Evening, and then ordered him on board his own Veſſel.

By Captain May, from Liſbon, we are informed, that a Fleet of 30 Sail of Ruſſian Men of War, of the E[illegible], joined by 16 Sail of Daniſh Men of War, were going from the Baltick up the Mediterranean, againſt the Algerines, who had declared War againſt the Danes, further informs that the above Account was brought to Liſbon by the Lieutenant of a Daniſh Man of War, and that they were all in the Sound on the 10th of Auguſt. On the 26th of September, two Days after he left Liſbon he fell in with 5 or 6 Sail of Algerines, one of them a two Deck ſhip, who fired ſeveral ſhot, and brought him to; after detaining him for ſome Time two Veſſels hove in Sight, which they took to be Engliſh Frigates, when they ſuffered him to proceed on his Voyage, having firſt taken away ſome of his Compaſſes, and Inſtruments. At the Time he left them he ſaw two Zebecks bring a ſnow to, but does not know who ſhe was.

From Cork we learn, that the Charming Polly, Capt. Henderſon, who ſailed from this port, with a deſpiſed load of malt arrived there on the 29th of Auguſt, where ſhe was at firſt refuſed entrance by the collector he ſuppoſing the ſaid Captain had run away with the veſſel and cargo, till the Captain produced a news paper containing the tranſactions of the united inhabitants of this city relative to the ſaid malt; which tranſactions, have ſince been publiſhed there, and greatly appoved of.

Laſt week ſailed the Brig Friends Goodwill, Captain Spicer, for Hull, who carries back with him a large quantity of goods imported in ſaid Brig contrary to the agreement of the merchants and traders of this city.

This day ſails for London the ſhip Pennſylvania Packet, Capt. Falconer, with whom go paſſengers Mrs. Rachel Wilſon, a public friend, and Mr. Abel James, of this city, merchant. Capt. Falconer carries with him a quantity of goods imported contrary to agreement.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.

By Captain Merſey from Gibralter, we learn, That the Emperor of Morocco, has declared War againſt the Engliſh Nation.

Boſton, November 13.

Extract of a Letter from London, per Capt. Calef, dated Auguſt 31, 1769.

“AS I ſuppoſe your connections here are ſuch as procure you the earlieſt intelligenc of any tranſaction reſpecting America, all I can ſay is that things at preſent wear an obſcure and gloomy aſpect, and the affairs of government ſeem much perplex'd as the paſſions of the people here are ſo irritated by the conduct of the miniſtry that nothing will appeaſe them but a total change therein. And the miniſters themſelves know not how they can get extricated out of the labyrinth of difficulties in which their unprecedented conduct has involved them, and I have good reaſon to believe, that they ſincerely wiſh the burthen under which the Americans groan had never been impoſed upon them.——But the grand point now to be conſidered is, how, theſe grievances you complain of, can be redreſſed, conſiſtent with the honor of G. Britain, and ſo as to prevent your boaſting.——If the acts are repealed, and your grievances redreſſed then you will triumph in the victory you have gain'd, and all future attempts to tax you will prove vain and fruitleſs; on the other hand if the acts be continued we dread the conſequences, as we know not but it may occaſion an open rebellion.

This is our preſent ſituation, we have erected a gallows for ourſelves on the one ſide, and a deep pit on the other; we may now choſe whether to be hanged or drowned——ſo that the ſnares our wiſe politicians have laid for others will moſt effectually catch themſelves. Nor is this the only inſtance of their great Wiſdom, one no leſs convincing is their not only tolerating a popiſh prieſt to officiate in your neighbouring colony, (which is all that they themſelves could reaſonably have expected) but alſo appointing him a miſſion with a ſalary of £.100 per annum, which is an unconteſtable proof to every impartial attachment to the popiſh intereſt, and that they take pleaſure in promoting it——O fooliſh Brittanians, how infatuated muſt you be by prejudice and party ſpirit, thus to endeavour to influence the minds and alienate the affections of thoſe from you without whoſe aſſiſtance the very Crown itſelf would totter on the head of him that wears it, and the throne reel to and fro like a ſtar that had loſt its excentrical motion.”

Nov. 17. Its ſaid Gen. Draper is to be appointed to command in North America in the room of Gen. Gage.

It was tho't by ſome People in England that General Draper, or ſome other military Officer will be appointed Governor of this Province.

General Paoli is arrived in London.

We hear J. Mein, late Publiſher of the Boſton Chronicle, is gone home in the Schooner Hope, in order to

---

HARTFORD;

Meſſieurs PRINTERS.

By inſerting the following Phænomenon, you'll doubtleſs oblige the Public in general and in particular L———d.

Kid, pe co, C——l M——h.

THE night after the tenth of October laſt, a younger deſcendant of the celebrated domeſtic captive; diſcovered a L——n and a Uni—n, in a denſe, ſaline miſt.——Perhaps the curious and ſpeculative, wou'd gladly know the origin, progreſſive growth, and travels, of theſe huge animals and in what manner they diſappeared.——Will therefore, ſo far as the naked eye and when that fail'd, the beſt glaſſes enabled me, ſketch out their origin, &c. Being taken into the mouth (the fore part of the day, in their firſt rudiments) with, and tranſmitted in a continual current of Weſt-India water, to his ſtomach; they there remain'd, without giving our hero much uneaſineſs, (except perhaps a little more fortitude, and inſolence) 'till in the beginning of the evening, they excited (together with an habitual inclination) the moſt uneaſy, longing ſenſation after t——y, and f——p alternately; which they receiv'd (by military bounty) with great kindneſs and hoſpitality. When about ten o'clock being tired of their old fare, (and every thing being free of coſt) they called earneſtly for the juice of the grape, which they receiv'd (in a clandeſtine manner) with boundleſs generoſity. Their growth now encreaſed to ſuch a degree, they began to gambol briſkly, iritate, twitch, turn, whirle, and heave his ſtomach in convulſive throws; and, together with the earneſt perſuaſion of friends, induced him to walk abroad; (aſſiſted by collateral props, and crutches) where, in the moſt violent efforts, (aſſiſted by obſtetrick art) they attempted to eſcape; 'till their ſurrounding element was wholly evacuated; but all to no purpoſe, then (like Milton's ſpirits) contracting to their original dimenſions, they travers'd all the laberinthic turnings, of the urinary paſſages, and appear'd thro' his elevated, teleſcopic tube, in the (above) denſe, ſaline miſt, fully expanded, but ſo far were they from ſurpriſing the ſpectator, that like the " inflexible coſſet" that's juſt catch'd the wool of her tail, by a ſpark of venereal fire, emited thro' ſome (of the old gemeſters) " certain ſtrainers well refin'd") he butted 'em, ſeveral times, proclaiming, with an audable voice, I have made a Lion, and I've made, a Unicorn, 'till a large number of ſpectators were flock'd, to ſee the awful viſitants; but with far different paſſions from their firſt diſcoverer; ſome in ſilent grief, pour'd torrents of tears; others walk'd up, and down, and out and in with agonizing, (tho' not unfrequent) ſurpriſe and aſtoniſhment.

The ſpectators now diſperſing, ſome to conduct, and watch, with our intrepid hero; (who was thrown into a raving delirium occaſion'd by the violent concuſſion of his brain by butting) others for a moments ſleep, longing for the " break of day" to make further obſervations, and diſcover, (if poſſible) in what manner they diſappear'd.——" The ſhades of night were no ſooner fled" and the riſing ſun, diſcovered theſe formidable creatures, than the learned were prepar'd, with the beſt glaſſes, to obſerve their diſappearance; which was in a fine vapour, till they reach'd the very heighth of heaven, when they began to condenſe, and organize, by ſlow degrees, till they were perfectly form'd, and (as the teleſcope diſcover'd) re-aſſum'd their deſerted vacuities, in the Zodiac. Whence ſhall offer the following Corrolaries, to public conſideration.

Corrol. 1. It ſeems our hero was a little miſtaken, as to one of the animals, it being (by aſtronomers) the well known Capricorn, inſtead of a unicorn.

Corrol. 2. If any calculations were made for an Almanack during this alteration of the Zodiac, they muſt be very precarious, if not entirely falſe.

Corrol. 3. Is it not rational to conclude, the many falſe calculations, and obſervations, made reſpecting the late Comet, were owing to the aſtoniſhing changes, made in our ſyſtem, by ſo ſudden a variation of that animated zone; which binds the auguſt vault of heaven?

" All forms that periſh other forms ſupply" POPE.

☞ We are obliged to omit the intelligence brought by Capts. Calef & Bruce, arrived at Boſton from London ſince our laſt, together with ſeveral Advertiſements [for want of room] which ſhall be in our next.

Singing-Books
TO BE SOLD BY
Lathrop & Smith,
In Hartford, viz.

TANSURS Royal Melody Compleat at 5/4 ſingle, or 5/ by the dozen—Williams's univerſal Pſalmodiſt at 7/—A new edition of Arnolds compleat Pſalmodiſt, with large additions printed in 1769, at 7/—And a new edition of Knibbs Pſalm Singers help, with large additions at 5/ all on a good paper, and well bound.

☞ They have alſo a large aſſortment of other Books, which they will ſell cheap for Caſh, Pork or Grain in hand.

Having loſt, between Litchfield and Saliſbury, on the 6th inſt. ſeveral Half Johannis's, and other pieces of money of various ſorts, in a leather Purſe, gathered in a ſtring like a Knapſack, will give TWO DOLLARS Reward, to any perſon who ſhall return the ſame to

Jedediah Strong.

STrayed or Stolen, from the ſubſcriber of Wilbraham, out of a Paſture in Eaſt-Hartford, on the night after the 8th inſt. a black Horſe, about 14 hands high, natural pacer, never was ſhod, his tail very ſhort.——Whoever takes up ſaid Horſe, and returns him to the ſubſcriber at Wilbraham, or to David Jones, jun. of Eaſt-Hartford, ſhall be reaſonably rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid by DAVID JONES.

Hartford, Nov. 8, 1769.

AXES,
Made by an approved Workman,
to be ſold at the Printing-Office.

RUN-Away from his maſter the 21ſt laſt month, an Iriſh man ſervant named John White, (alias Patrick White) or what other name he may go by. He is about twenty ſix years of age, light complexion, brown hair, about five feet ten inches high, flutters ſome when he talks, had on when he went away, a light colour'd coat and veſt, but quite likely he may ſhift his cloaths when he finds an opportunity, he ſometimes pretends to be a merchant, ſometimes a maſter of a veſſel, ſometimes a ſchool maſter, by which and the plauſible pretences he makes, he has and ſtill may deceive many. He has uſed his preſent maſter with the utmoſt ingratitude. Whereſore, whoever takes him up, and convey's him to the ſubſcriber, or confines him in any of his majeſty's goals in this or the neighbouring colonies, or puts him on board any of his majeſty's ſhips of war, taking the commanding officers receipt for him, and ſending to the ſubſcriber, ſhall receive a reward of Twenty Shilling Lawful Money, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

BENJAMIN HENSHAW.

Middletown, Nov 2. 1769.

Hartford, Nov. 10, 1769.

ALL perſons that are creditors to or have any claims to the eſtate of John Hopſon of Colcheſter, an inſolvent debtor are notified to attend a meeting of the truſtees on the 11th day of December next, at John Tainter's tavern in Colcheſter, when and where thoſe creditors who have not as yet made out their claims to ſaid eſtate may have an opportunity, and direct the truſtees to compromiſe or ſettle by arbitration, ſome debts due to ſaid eſtate.

Humphrey Lyon,
Charles Foot, } Truſtees,
Joſeph Iſham, jun.

STray'd or ſtolen from the ſubſcriber of Eaſt Hartford, on the night after the 1ſt inſt. a ſorrel Mare, about 14 hands and half high, paces and trots, white face, both hind feet white, towards half way up to her ham, a white ſpot juſt back of her ſhoulder, branded with A, upon her left ſhoulder, her left eye wall. Whoever will take up ſaid Mare, and return her to the owner, ſhall have FOUR DOLLARS reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JONATHAN HILLS, Eſq;

Eaſt-Hartford Nov. 9. 1769.

TAKEN up by the ſubſcriber a ſorrel Horſe, three or four years old, about 13 half hands high, natural trotter, white in the face, below his eyes, the left hind foot white, branded with B on the left thigh —— Said Horſe was taken up on the 9th of Octo. laſt.

STEPHEN MATTHEWS.

Waterbury, Nov. 4. 1769.

—Suſquehannah—

AT a meeting of the Suſquehannah company held by adjournment in Hartford, Nov. 8th, 1769.

WHEREAS it appears that but few of the proprietors of the Suſquehannah purchaſe are preſent, or have had notice of this meeting, & matters of importance are now under conſideration relative to ſaid purchaſe, and ſettlement, it is now voted to adjourn this meeting, to the 6th day of December at Windham, and the Clerk is hereby directed, to publiſh a copy of this vote and adjournment, of this meeting, as above, in this, and three adjoyning provinces, and the proprietors are deſired to give their attendance without fail, as matters moſt intereſting to the company, are then to come under conſideration.

A true Copy,
Teſt SAMUEL GRAY, Clerk of ſaid Com.

TO BE SOLD

By E. Auſtin,

[Near the Court Houſe in Hartford.]

The following articles for Goldſmith's and Jeweler's Uſes, viz.

ROUND and ſquare ſteele Shoe Chapes and Tongs, Knee ditto; an Aſſortment of Files; Cruſibles; Black Lead Pots; Salt Peter; Borax; Iron Rivet wire; fine binding ditto; Braſs Rivit wire; Moulding Sand; Rotten Stone; Pummice Stone; Sandever; Sand paper; Buckle Bruſhes; Flower of putte; red and white Foil; cypher'd and white Stone Rings; cypher'd and white Stone Ear rings ſet in Gold; ditto in Silver; cypher'd and white Stone Buttons ſet in Silver, Stone Broaches ſet in Silver. &c. &c. &c.

TO BE SOLD BY

John Thompſon,

At Middletown.

Two Stills and Worms,

One 800 Gallons, the other 150, with ſundry other articles belonging to ſaid Stills — Alſo, 30 acres of good land, near Butlers Creek, and 20 acres of Wood land at Moromos — Alſo, a ſmall parcel of European Goods, to be ſold cheap for Caſh or ſhort Credit. — Alſo ſaid Thompſon's Dwelling-Houſe in the town Plot, to be let or ſold.

Middletown, Nov. 10, 1769.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Heart and Crown in Hartford.

REMARKS,

On Dr. Gale's Letter to
J. W. Eſquire.

STRAY'D or ſtolen, from the ſubſcriber of Eaſt Hartford, about the 3d or 4th inſt. a bay mare, about 14 hands high, both paces and trots, branded with the letter A on her left ſhoulder, and with the letters C B on her left thigh, not plain to be ſeen, lately had a wart cut off her breaſt, where is a ſmall ſcar or wart to be ſeen. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid mare, and (if ſtolen) ſecure the thief, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice, and the mare recovered, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

EPHRAIM WILLIAMS.

Eaſt Hartford, Oct 20 1769.

Juſt Publiſhed and to be ſold at the Printing Office, Hartford.

That there is but one

Covenant, Whereof BAPTISM and the LORD's SUPPER are Seals, viz. The Covenant of Grace, proved from the Word of GOD, and the Doctrine of an external graceleſs Covenant, lately advanced by the Rev. Mr. MOSES MATHER; in a Pamphlet, entituled, The viſible Church in Covenant with God, &c. Shewed to be an unſcriptural Doctrine.

To which is prefixed,

An Anſwer to a Dialogue concerning the Half-Way-Covenant;

Lately printed at New London.
By JOSEPH BELLAMY, D. D.

T. Hopkins,

At his STORE, oppoſite the North-Meeting Houſe, Hartford,

HAS juſt received a General Aſſortment of Engliſh GOODS, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable terms, for Caſh or Produce in hand.

The PRINTERS to their CUSTOMERS.

WOuld inform, that by Reaſon of the unexpected & Perſevering Negligence of far the greater Part of our Cuſtomers, in reſpect of Payment, or ballancing Accounts, we are obliged to think of diſcontinuing the Publication of our weekly Paper; which, unleſs prevented by previous Settlements, we have determined will take Place on the 11th of December next, which will compleat the ſixth Year ſince its firſt Publication.

We beg Leave to addreſs our delinquent Cuſtomers, in the Language of Civility, and with a Deference due to the Character of Perſons, either of Probity, Honeſty and Veracity; or, of Humanity, Honor, and Ingenuity; in either of which, we are aſſured they will take no Offence at our once more calling upon them for a Settlement. As we have, Gentlemen, been at great Expence to ſerve you, we would entreat of you, for once, to take into your Conſideration, on the one Hand, the trifling Conſequence it would be to you, to pay the Sum of only Six Shillings, per Ann. eſpecially if paid when it firſt becomes due; and on the other, how intereſting a Matter it is to us, that you ſhould thus do; eſpecially conſidering we have (relying on your Encouragement, as it were) riſk'd the Support of ourſelves and Families on this Footing; — and alſo, as the Continuance of the Buſineſs of Printing in this Place does entirely depend upon it.

We aſſure our Cuſtomers, that ſince the Commencement of the Partnerſhip between us, we have not received from them, upon an Average, ſo much as Two ſhillings out of Six, of what has been due from them; which has not been ſufficient even to defray the Expence of clean Paper, we have uſed in the Buſineſs. And as our Capital is very ſmall, and as (to oblige our Cuſtomers) we have run ourſelves deeply in Debt, ſo we are ſorry to tell them, that, without the requeſted Relief, we muſt be obliged to ſerve them no longer than the Time forementioned. Their ſettling, or not ſettling with us, therefore, by that Time, we can do no other than conſtruct as the Language of their Hearts, as to whether they mean to have us continue the Paper longer or not.

We ſtand ready to receive our Dues in Caſh, Country Produce, or their Obligations: Or if they have any Method more reaſonable to propoſe, we ſtand ready to hear them.

Our having repeatedly (tho' almoſt fruitleſsly) reminded you of theſe Matters, will amply apologize for the Plainneſs with which we now treat them. We hope we ſhall not be obliged to offer you any further Trouble of this Kind —— And that by the Favour of our Cuſtomers, we may be able ſo to diſcharge our own Obligations, as to ſerve them and the Public in a better Manner than we have hitherto been able to do, by continuing the Buſineſs in this Place.

Nor would we here diſmiſs the Subject, without firſt paying our thankful Acknowledgments of the Favours of many of our Cuſtomers, who have not only favoured us with their Cuſtom, but have alſo been to a good Degree punctual, as well as generous in ſettling their Accounts according to previous Engagements. We are their's, and the Public's Humble Servants,

GREEN & WATSON.

N. B. Thoſe Perſons in Arrears in the Town of Simsbury, are deſired to make Payment to Capt. Jonathan Humphrys; and thoſe in the Town of Suffield, to Mr. Seth Auſtin, with whom their reſpective Accounts are left —— and at the Time limited above, we will ſend for our Pay, and hope not to be diſappointed of receiving it.

☞ Thoſe that live near, and chooſe to pay in Wood, are deſired not to omit bringing of it by the Time before mentioned.

HARTFORD: Printed by GREEN & WATSON.

MONDAY Nov. 27, 1769. Numb 258.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

Meſſ. PRINTERS.

Pleaſe to give the following animadverſions, a place in your Courant, as

An APPEAL to the PUBLIC, in this Colony.

IN every country, nation or kingdom, fam'd for wiſdom, arts and ſciences have flouriſh'd; and it is recorded of them, by hiſtorians, as a peculiar honor. And what more redounds to the glory of a prince, or ſtate, than their care and induſtry to encourage, and promote theſe things? Our nation hath diſtinguiſh'd themſelves herein, to their immortal honor. And it is probably owing in a great meaſure, to the generous encouragement ſhe hath given to learning, that the greateſt maſters of Divinity, Law, Phyſic and Philoſophy, have been produced by her; in which 'tis ſuppoſed they have exceeded any part of the world. And this little infant colony of Connecticut, is not the leaſt among the thouſands of the Britiſh dominions in theſe reſpects, having taken great pains, and expended large ſums of money, for the education of youth. And perhaps there is not a province now on this terraqueous ball, enjoying ſo great a degree of liberty, and priviledges, civil and religious and govern'd by ſo wholeſome and equitable laws. But after all, a ſtrange paradox ſtill ſubſiſts, i. e. where (in all other reſpects) life and property is ſecured, learning, peace, and good order encourag'd and promoted in the beſt manner, phyſic is totally neglected by the legiſlature, altho' the thing has been often motion'd to them for theſe many years paſt. Is it becauſe it is too trifling an affair for their honours to trouble their heads about? Is life of leſs conſequence than the ſoles of the ſhoes they tread on? As it ſeems it is with them, for a man muſt be qualified to tan their leather, or be ſubjected to a ſevere penalty: but any the moſt ignorant pretender, man or woman, may undertake the cure of diſeaſes, and ſlay their hundreds with impunity: yet if men of ſkill, with bleeding hearts, beholding this manſlaughter, remonſtrate againſt it, and petition for redreſs: what do they get by it? Reproach, contempt and ridicule; by whom? The fathers of the common wealth or at beſt no notice taken: its unworthy their conſideration — matters of greater importance are before them — ſome notable caſe in hand; occaſioned (perhaps) by a horſe running over a gooſe and treading on it, or ſomething elſe of equal conſequence; that nothing can be done in this affair.

Object. It is to be feared that moſt of thoſe that are ſo zealous in petitioning for redreſs, are as ignorant as thoſe they complain of: and entirely unqualified to judge of, and licenſe others. Be it ſo: the greater need of redreſs, and really is an argument in favour of it. For if the greater part of the practitioners in the country are really ſuch ignoramus's that they are likely to do more hurt than good when concerned with the lives of men; 'tis time they were marked in the forehead, that people may know and ſhun them; that they may no longer reſemble the peſtilence that walks in darkneſs. For there are men of ſkill and approv'd abilities, well known in the government: let them be judges and licencers, to prevent the growing evil. It an't ſuppos'd that all things can be ſet right at once. There are many on the ſtage at preſent probably that had better never appeared: but yet it might make difficulty to turn them off: 'tis propos'd therefore to do ſomething to prevent any more bad ones coming on. — There are many inſtances where life is eminently concerned, and betruſted, in the hands of the moſt ignorant and ſtupid of all mortals, (if not the moſt ſavage & barbarous) & hundreds of lives annually (perhaps) loſt in this government, thro' their male practice. This is not the voice of one practitioner but of the greateſt part, nor is it altogether matter of judgment, but of knowledge if moral certainty may be call'd ſo.

Query. If the Aſſembly are made acquainted with theſe things can they be innocent (as it is in their power) if they dont try to remedy the evil? Shall the cry of ſo much bloodſhed come up before their ſeats, and they turn a deaf ear? but a word to the wiſe is ſufficient. All men ſeem to be agreed that it would be quite right and very deſirable to have the aſſembly eſtabliſh ſome rules for the better regulation of theſe affairs, but at the ſame time declare they dont think they will (this is the conſtant talk of moſt of the members of the houſe as well as others) but what's the reaſon? — Why they never have, nor never would: a very good reaſon that, —— "as your fathers did, ſo do ye."

Object. They an't big enough, nor old enough, to come into ſuch regulations yet: but this is not of any weight. Is it a matter that's like to bring a vaſt bill of coſt upon the government? No, not a penny. What then have big or old, or rich, to do in the caſe? Nothing at all. Now with regard to the Medical Corporation of Litchfield county, who have lodg'd their memorial in the aſſembly; moſt ſay it's a good thing but I don't think they will obtain. If this is not a grievous reflection on the honourable General Aſſembly, I know not how to word one. But ſince it's ſo common among the members 'tis to be hoped they will bear it the more patiently from others. Nevertheleſs I would hope better things of that venerable body; firmly believing that when matters come under conſideration, they won't judge the life of man beneath their notice; and that they will act their judgments uprightly. —— And if they think in their conſciences, it is beſt to incourage every lazy ignorant fellow, (that's wicked and lowliv'd enough to uſe all the faculties of their ſouls to the utmoſt of their power, to impoſe upon the public, and cheat them at once, out of their lives and eſtates, in order to ſupport themſelves;) they will ſay ſo: & if they think it beſt to frown on all endeavours for the promotion of true medical knowledge, they will ſay ſo, and if they refuſe to do any thing when call'd upon; will it not be an implicit declaration thereof? — I have undertaken to anſwer ſeveral objections, and I find myſelf ſtrongly preſt with another, that will be apt to ariſe on reading this piece, viz. That it is ſaucy, and favours two much, the nature of reflection; which I know not how to anſwer better, than in the words of Ben Johnſon; when it was urg'd upon him that his ſpeech was no rhyme (tho' he had undertaken to make one) "no (ſays he) but there is a deal of truth in it." And if the members of the General Aſſembly are grown ſo delicate, that they can't receive truth in its natural ſimplicity and plainneſs, but muſt needs have it trim'd off in a Cice ocean dreſs, before they can hear it; 'tis to be hop'd the people will change them, till they get ſuch as will. Many of the happy conſequences of a well regulated practice might now be ſet in a convincing point of light: but leaſt I ſhall be too tedious ſhall add no more.

By Capt. Calef, and by Capt. Bruce, who arrived from LONDON, we have the following Advices from the public Prints, viz.

PARIS, Auguſt 21.

IT is pretended that the Engliſh offered to reſtore Canada, if the King of France will give up their Poſſeſſions in India, and prohibit all Commerce to their Subjects in thoſe parts.

Paris, Auguſt 21. The Chevalier de Rohan, Governor General of the French Leeward Iſlands, is coming home from St. Domingo with Leave, though many People ſuſpect that he will not return there. Mr. de Nolivos formerly Governor of Guadaloupe, is ſent to Cape Francois, where he is to command in the Abſence of the Chevalier de Rohan. Guadaloupe is going to be put under the ſame Department as Martinico, and reunited to that Government.

LONDON, Auguſt 19.

Though the following is not literally a copy of the letter which has lately made ſuch a noiſe at both ends of the town, yet it may not prove unacceptable.

MY LORD

IN matters of buſineſs, eſpecially in the mercantile way, there is ſeldom any occaſion for an apology. I am confident none will ever be expected where the ſtranger is anounced as bringing in his hand an offer of 5000l. To come immediately to the point, therefore my Lord, I am to inform your Grace that this ſum is at your ſervice, upon the reverſion of the office of Clerk of the Crown for Jamaica being ſettled upon my ſon and though when you ſee the name at the bottom of this letter you may poſſibly ſtartle at ſuch a propoſal, I doubt not but when you have peruſed the encloſed affidavit you will be ſatisfied that this tranſaction will remain for ever a ſecret between your Grace and me. Need I add that however zealous I may have appeared in a cauſe I am much aſhamed of, if I ſucceed in this affair you will bind me and mine for ever to your intereſt. I am,

Your Grace's moſt devoted and obedient ſervant,
S. VAUGHAN.

Auguſt 9. Moſes Alexander capitally convicted at the Old Bailey for forgery, was carried from Newgate at half paſt 12 to Tyburn, and there executed. The ſheriffs indulged him to that fate hour in expectation of a reprieve. Great intereſt had been made for him, and much had been laid in the papers in extenuation of his crime; but as it was not all founded in truth, it perhaps did him more harm than good. He had formerly carried on a trade in the Borough, and had failed for more than 60 000 l. but had again entered into buſineſs, without a proper capital to ſupport what he had undertaken. He therefore, like many more in the ſame circumſtances, had recourſe to bill drawing; and that led him to the forgery for which he was convicted. He was indicted for forging an indorſement on the following bill. "Leeds, Jan. 15. 1768.

Six weeks after date, pay Mr John Brown, or order, 98l. 16s. value received, as adviſed To Mr. Nathaniel Aked, &c.

Rich. Aked."

The moſt favourable circumſtance for the priſoner, was the bill's being ſo long in the poſſeſſion of the proſecutors; by which it ſhould ſeem they were not ſo ſolicitous about puniſhing the crime, as about ſecuring to themſelves the ſums due to them; and if the delinquent had been able to have ſatisfied their demands, the public would perhaps have never heard of the forgery. The forgery however, was proved, and other bills of the ſame kind was ready to be proved; the law therefore was ſtrongly againſt him, tho' ſomething might be urged to mitigate the puniſhment; for the forgery was not of the ſame kind with the forgery of a common ſharper, who having obtained his end, has no view to reſtitution. This man's forgery was only to enlarge his credit; and he certainly deſigned to pay every bill he raiſed money upon had not the unlucky ſituation, of his affairs prevented his intentions. Indeed, this kind of traffic is by no means juſtifible, and what is here ſaid is only to ſhew that it differs in its nature from that of the abandoned villain.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Halifax, Nova Scotia, July 6 1769.

"The popiſh prieſt who was ordained at Quebec by a biſhop of the church of Rome, is now appointed by government as a miſſionary in this province, and has obtained, by means of his good friends on your ſide of the water, a ſalary of 100l. ſter. ſettled upon him during life. He is very active in his profeſſion, celebrates maſs, and many perſons flock to confeſſion; he has already made many converts, —As a convincing proof of his aſſiduity in office, ſeveral children, who were baptized by Proteſtant Miſſionaries, have been re baptized into the Holy Church. If this Prieſt is continued in his miſſion, we have reaſon to believe that our miſſionaries of the Church of England have been doing for many years paſt, and of conſequence, the good intention of the venerable Society for propagating the Goſpel in foreign parts will be entirely fruſtrated, and the 840l. per annum, which now appropriated to the ſupport of our miſſionaries in this province might be better applied in paying off the provincial debt."

Aug. 17. The Duke of Marlborough paid a debt for the city of Oxford, which had lain heavy upon the inhabitants for more than half a century, amounting in the whole to 5913l. 7s. 2d. On this occaſion the bells were ſet a ringing, and the freemen were entertained by the liberality of his grace at more than 50 houſes.

Aug. 23. A farmer at Granchefter in Cambridgſhire, was bound over to the quarter ſeſſions by the humanity of the Rev. Dr. Plumtree for forcing a poor woman of Caldecot into the water to prove her a witch, and otherwiſe maltreating her.

Aug. 31 ON Tueſday laſt died at Bath, the Right Hon. William Villiers, Earl of Jerſey, Viſcount Villiers of Dartford, and Baron of Hoo, and one of his Majeſty's moſt Honourable Privy Council. His Lordſhip is ſucceeded by his only ſurviving Son the Right Hon. George Buſſy Viſcount Villiers, now Earl of Jerſey, &c. Member in the preſent Parliament for Dover, Vice-Chamberlain of his Majeſty's Houſhold, and Privy Counſellor.

Aug. 31. The French ambaſſador has lately preſented a memorial to the States General, in which he acquaints them that the Iſland of Corſica is united to the dominions of France, and hopes that in caſe any ſhips for the future ſhall appear under Corſican colours, their H. M. will look upon them as pirates, and treat them accordingly.

From the NEW-YORK GAZETTE.

To the PRINTER.

AS the late Comet or laſt imperfect Piece of a Comet, has now diſappeared, a few ſhort Hints (for the preſent) or Remarks thereon, may not be unacceptable to the Public;——This Comet's Trajectory, or apparent Courſe in the Heavens, extended nearly in a right Line with the Equinoctial; its real and apparent Motion was exceedingly ſlow, and almoſt imperceptible; whereas, had it been the perfect Comet, its path would have been more proportionably and moderately deflected or curved; its apparent Motion, would have been conſiderably more rapid, and its Nucleus and whole Appearance much larger and brighter, as the Planets are.

On the 7th and 8th Inſt. the Comet had almoſt diſappeared, no Obſervation could be quite perfect; but to the beſt of my Judgment, its apparent Place on the 7th was 2°. and on the 8th four Deg nearer to the Sun than it was on the 5th Inſt. And between 6 and 7 Deg. very ſuddenly more to the Southward; conſequently it muſt already, either have ſpent nearly the whole of its weak projectile Force, or its new formed Orbit muſt prove to be exceedingly ſmall and contracted:—by projection of a Scheme, from Obſervations taken of each of the Comet's Path, this latter Comet appears, as an imperfect invalid, and out of its Road.

This Comet, or ſplit Piece of a blown up World, had an exterior Contact, or juſt touched the Æquator on the Celeſtial GLOBE, and alſo touched the left Side of the Aſteriſm SERPENTARIUS, in a right Line with the fixed Star Alſeta in CORONA-SEPTENTRIONALIS, and the fixed Star Seginus in the Conſtellation BOOTES, a few Hours before the Storm began on Monday laſt, the 6th Inſtant.

There really appears to me, to want only an actual viſual Demonſtration, to prove, that the Maculas, or ſolar Spots, are the melted Droſs the Scoria, and the partly diſſolved broken Pieces of BLOWN UP WORLDS, ſwimming on the Surface of the SUN'S VORACIOUS, LARGE, AND DREADFULLY CONSUMING LIQUID FIRE.

And which is ſtrongly confirmed, by the general and univerſal Tendency of the whole Creation of WORLDS AND THEIR INHABITANTS, towards a DISSOLUTION, by the nearer and nearer Coincidence of the PLANETARY ORBITS, &c.—And by their proportionable reſiſtance from the DENSITY OF DIFFERENT MEDIUMS; and by every inference and Concluſion ariſing from the latter Parts of my Philoſophical Deſcription of COMETS for the 6th ult &c.

The Earth, we may obſerve, is not in the Part of its Orbit to receive material general Damage (naturally) from either of theſe Comets; but, the contingent Situation By Nature) of every World, &c. ought to be made as univerſally known as poſſible;—'tis really imprudent to deceive us, and to lull us wantonly into a hurtful Security. Hoever read Sir Iſaac Newton.——See Principia prop X B. III &c. Wherein it is proved (as mentioned Sept 25th) that in Regard to the Medium, in which the Planets or Worlds now circulate, their Motion in the Heavens, may ſubſiſt an exceeding long Time.

S. Sp. Skinner.

New York, Nov. 12, 1769.

BOSTON, November 25.

We hear that the Rippon which ſailed from Boſton the 4th of Auguſt, made the Land the 31ſt of the ſame Month: and that on the 3d of September Sir Francis Bernard landed at Portſmouth: The 5th he arrived in London: The 6th he was preſented to His Majeſty, who did him the Honour of converſing with him for ſome Time: The 7th he was again at Court, in order to his being preſented to the Queen, but Her Majeſty did not come that Day to the Drawing Room. The King again condeſcended to a Converſation with him longer than the Day before. We hear further, that great Civilities were ſhewn to Sir Francis by many Perſons of Diſtinction who were at Court. The Treaſury was under Adjournment, and it was a Time of general Vacation, and no Proſpect of any Buſineſs being done relative to America until Lord Hillſborough's Return from Ireland.——His Lordſhip was expected the Beginning of October. The Parliament, we hear, would not meet to do Buſineſs until after Chriſtmaſs.

We hear alſo, that Mr De Berdt preſented the Remonſtrance of the Honourable Houſe of Repreſentatives of this Province on the 14th of September.

NEWYORK, November 22.

Extract of a Letter from Penſacola, dated October 10 1769.

Laſt Tueſday we received News from New-Orleans, that the Spaniſh General O'Riely had obliged all the Engliſh to leave that Place, forbidding them ever to appear there any more——He has cloſe confined fourteen of the principal Inhabitants of Orleans, and ſeized between ſeven and eight Hundred Negroes belonging to them, together with all their other Property; a Liſt of their Names you have here annexed.——It is believed he will confine ſome more of the French——He is very ſtrict in his Command, and ſeems to be determined to have no Connection with the Engliſh.

Monſ. Foucault, Intendant, Commiſſary Judge, &c &c.

La Freniere, Attorney General.

Garic, Provincial Secretary, and Notary Public.

Monſieurs Demazant, Marquiz, Vileret, and Dunoyant,

French Officers, and Knight, of St. Louis.

Monſ. Douſſett, Attorney at Law.

Monſieurs Careſſe, Peatit, Braud, Poupett, Millett, ſen. and Millett, jun. Merchants.

Yeſterday Morning, departed this Life, in the 73d Year of his Age, the Hon. William Smith Eſq; one of the Juſtices of the Supreme Court, and late one of his Majeſty's Council for this Province,

---

HARTFORD, November 27.

In the Evening preceeding the Thankſgiving, a ſtrolling Vagabondly Fellow in his way (as he pretended) to Boſton, comeing into a private Houſe in the eaſtwardly Part of this Town, in the Habit and Character of a Beggar plauſibly ſought for Entertainment; calling himſelf a Native Subject of the King of Denmark, from whoſe Dominions about Ten Years ago he came into this Country; Since which, among other Misfortunes, he had that of loſeing all the Fingers on one Hand, and the free uſe of thoſe of the other by falling into the Fire in a convulſion Fit. Being thus recommended to the Pity and Charity of the hoſpitable Family, commiſerateing his calamitous Circumſtances they could do no other than receive him as their Gueſt. But as he preferr'd ſolitary Retirement to Company under a Pretence of not being troubleſome to the Family, was introduced to a comfortable Fire in the Kitchen. But while the Family were buſy in the other Room, confideing in the Simplicity and Honeſty, as well as Imbecility of their new gueſt, he, with ſeveral Articles of Value, was ſoon found to be miſſing; whereupon with all convenient Speed, the Thief was purſued, and overtaken at a Tavern about a Mile diſtant, where in merry Mood, he was offering his new Aſſortment upon Sail to the higheſt Bidder.——This Merriment might have laſted longer, had it not been interrupted by the true Owner challenging his Property, who after ſome proper Diverſion, bound the deprehended Criminal, for a more eaſy and convenient Eſcortment about ſeven Miles in a retrograde March to a civil Magiſtrate. But the reluctant Villain, chooſing rather to make a preſent than a future Settlement, made the Propoſal, to which, with the Advice of the Company, the indulgent Creditor conſented; for the Receipt of which (Matters being thus amicably accommodated) he voluntarily ſtripping himſelf receiv'd upon the Spot ſeven hearty Laſhes, with a good ſturdy Horſe-Whip warmly apply'd, which he tamely ſubmitted to & endured with all the Patience and Fortitude which his own Circumſtances and the Nature of the Thing would well admit of.—A requital in the Judgment of the Company nearly commenſurate to the Merits of the Cauſe: as well as to the ſeeming Content and ſatisfaction of both Parties.—His Account being thus ballanced was allow'd to make off (upon his third March) in queſt of new Quarters: And is hereby recommended to the Public, as worthy of their ſpecial Notice and Regard.

Meſſ. Printers,

By inſerting the following you will oblige your's, &c.

MRS. Mary Starkweather, widow of Mr. John Starkweather, late of Stonington deceas'd, is now living, and in the 79th year of her age. She has been

Mother of	13 Children,
Grand mother of	87
Great Grand mother of	76
Great Great Grand mother of one Child of the fourth Generation.	1
In all,	177

There is now living of the above number 152. She is remarkably ſtrong and active, and about three weeks ſince, on Sunday, went on foot from her houſe to the place of public worſhip, which is upwards of three miles; and the ſummer paſt conſtantly attended divine ſervice on foot at the above diſtance.

Poſt-Office Hartford, Nov. 27. 1769

Liſt of Letters remaining in the POST OFFICE at Hartford, not before Advertized.

☞ Where the town is not mentioned they are directed for Hartford ☜

SETH AUSTIN Suffield, Hyman Jacob Bochrah, Zachariah Boſtwick, Capt Edward Bulkly Weathersfield, Bartholomew Boult Southington, Capt. Daniel Bull, John Calder, George Caldwell, Eliphalet Dyer, Eſq; Windham, Thomas Elmer Windſor, Roger Enos Windſor, John Goodrich Weathersfield, Oliver Hamblin Somers, Rufus Herrick Pomfret, James Humphrys, Juſtin Joy Litchfield, Amaſa Jones Colcheſter, Daniel Jones Somers, John Lawrence, Eſq; Allen McLean, Bolton, Lauchlan McLean, Roſſel Mills, Eſq; Windſor, Eliſha Pitkin, Reuben Parſons, Suffield, Ebenezer Plummer, Glaſtenbury, David Wright, N. Bolton, John Smith, Weathersfield, Iſrael Seymour, Joſiah Steele, Weſt Hartford, Thomas Sedgwick, Eſq; Great Barrington, Habakkuk Turner, Coventry, John Wright, Nathaniel Wales, jun. Windham, Meſſ. Smith & Williams Goshen, Capt. David Wells, Weathersfield, David Young, Windham.

BROKE Out of the County Goal in Hartford, laſt night, the following Perſons committed for Theft, viz. Iſaac Davis, Thomas Spencer, Tranſient Perſons. Alſo, John Danx, a Tranſient Perſon, laſt from Weathersfield. Alſo, John Grimes a Tranſient Perſon, laſt from Windſor. Alſo, Patrick Fleming, who was committed for ſome Criminal conduct. Whoever ſhall take up either of the above-mentioned Perſons, and return them to the keeper of the Goal in Hartford, ſhall have TWENTY SHILLINGS Lawful Money Reward, for each, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

EZEKIEL WILLIAMS, Sheriff.

Hartford, November 25, 1769.

WE the Subſcribers being appointed by the hon. Judge of Probate, for the Diſtrict of Middletown, Commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of James Witon, of Chatham deceas'd (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the Houſe of Abiel Cheney, innholder in ſaid Chatham, on the firſt Mondays of Dec. and Jan and the laſt Monday of Feb. next, from two to ſix o'clock afternoon.

DAVID SAGE,
SAMUEL HALL, } Commiſſioners
MOSES BARTLET.

Chatham, 27th, Nov. 1769.

STRAYED or Stolen from the Subſcriber of Hartford, on the 19th inſtant, a large Bay HORSE, fourteen hands and a half high, about ten years old, a natural pacer, having ſundry white ſpots on his back, branded with C. B. on the near Hoof, whoever ſhall take up, and ſecure ſaid Horſe, ſo that the owner may have him, ſhall have all neceſſary charges paid him therefor, and if ſaid Horſe be Stolen, TWO DOLLARS Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid for returning the Horſe to the Subſcriber, and the Thief ſecured ſo as to be brought to juſtice.

CALEB BULL.

Hartford, Nov. 27. 1769

STrayed or Stolen, from the ſubſcriber of Wilbraham, out of a Paſture in Eaſt-Hartford, on the night after the 8th inſt. a black Horſe, about 14 hands high, natural pacer, never was ſhod, his tail very ſhort.——Whoever takes up ſaid Horſe, and returns him to the ſubſcriber at Wilbraham, or to David Jones, jun. of Eaſt-Hartford, ſhall be reaſonably rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid by

DAVID JONES.

Hartford, Nov. 8, 1769.

Having loſt, between Litchfield and Saliſbury, on the 6th inſt. ſeveral Half Johannis's, and other pieces of money of various ſorts, in a leather Purſe, gathered in a ſtring like a Knapſack, will give TWO DOLLARS Reward, to any perſon who ſhall return the ſame to

Jedediah Strong.

Singing-Books

TO BE SOLD BY

Lathrop & Smith,

In Hartford, viz.

TANSURS Royal Melody Compleat at 5/4 ſingle, or 5/ by the dozen—Williams's univerſal Pſalmodiſt at 7/—A new edition of Arnolds compleat Pſalmodiſt, with large additions printed in 1769 at 7/—And a new edition of Knibbs Pſalm Singers help, with large additions at 5/ all on a good paper, and well bound.

☞ They have alſo a large aſſortment of other Books, which they will ſell cheap for Caſh, Pork or Grain in hand.

Hartford, 4 Nov. 1769.

We the Subſcribers being appointed by the Judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, Commiſſioners to receive and adjuſt the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Ebenezer Mix, of Hartford deceas'd we therefore hereby notify the creditors to ſaid eſtate, to bring in their claims to us, on the laſt Tueſdays of Nov. and Dec. next, at one o'Clock on each of ſaid days, at the Dwelling-Houſe of the ſaid Ebenezer Mix, in Hartford deceas'd, as we will attend the buſineſs on each of ſaid days at ſaid place. op

Timothy Seymour,
George Kellogg. } Commiſſioners.

Doct. Uriah Rogers, jun.

Of Norwalk, in Fairfield County

TAKES this method to inform the public, and particularly ſuch as are diſpoſed to take the Small-Pox by inoculation, that he has again opened his noted hoſpital, where he intends to carry on inoculation as long as any perſons appear to be inoculated; he intends to inoculate the ſummer thro'out; as he finds by conſtant experience that his patients never have it more favourable than in warm weather. He intends to have things in the beſt order poſſible, and the beſt attendance ſhall be given, both by Doctor and Nurſe, at the moderate expence of Four Pounds, L. M.

N. B. Said Rogers takes the patient at firſt, & puts him to no other expence. Dated Norwalk, 9th day of Octo. 1769.

J. Morton,

At his Store in Hartford, on the North ſide the Green in the Houſe of Mrs. Sarah Edwards,

HAS a good Aſſortment of Dry Goods, Iron-Mongery, Earthen Ware, Glaſs Ware, and beſt London Pewter, blown and Rock Salt

N. B. Said Morton intending for Europe, in the Fall, will ſell off what goods he has on hand, very low for Caſh or Produce.

To be ſold at the Houſe of Mrs Margaret Chenevard, in Hartford,

GOOD Madeira and Liſbon WINE, Barbados RUM, ANNICESEED WATER, CHOCOLATE, SNUFF of the beſt Kind, &c. &c. &c.

RUN-Away from his maſter the 21ſt laſt month, an Iriſh man ſervant named John White, (alias Patrick White) or what other name he may go by. He is about twenty ſix years of age, light complexion, brown hair, about five feet ten inches high, ſtutters ſome when he talks, had on when he went away, a light colour'd coat and veſt, but quite likely he may ſhift his cloaths when he finds an opportunity, he ſometimes pretends to be a merchant, ſometimes a maſter of a veſſel, ſometimes a ſchool maſter, by which and the plauſible pretences he makes, he has and ſtill may deceive many. He has uſed his preſent maſter with the utmoſt ingratitude. Wherefore, whoever takes him up, and convey's him to the ſubſcriber, or confines him in any of his majeſty's goals in this or the neighbouring colonies, or puts him on board any of his majeſty's ſhips of war, taking the commanding officers receipt for him, and ſending to the ſubſcriber, ſhall receive a reward of Twenty Shilling Lawful Money, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

BENJAMIN HENSHAW.

Middletown, Nov. 2. 1769.

Hartford, Nov. 10. 1769.

ALL perſons that are creditors to, or have any claims to the eſtate of John Hopſon of Colcheſter, an inſolvent debtor are notified to attend a meeting of the truſtees on the 11th day of December next, at John Tainter's tavern in Colcheſter, when and where thoſe creditors who have not as yet made out their claims to ſaid eſtate, may have an opportunity, and direct the truſtees to compromiſe or ſettle by arbitration, ſome debts due to ſaid eſtate.

Humphry Lyon,
Charles Foot, } Truſtees.
Joſeph Iſham, jun.

STray'd or ſtolen from the ſubſcriber of Eaſt Hartford, on the night after the 1ſt inſt. a ſorrel Mare, about 14 hands and half high, paces and trots, white face, both hind feet white, towards half way up to her ham, a white ſpot juſt back of her ſhoulder, branded with A, upon her left ſhoulder, her left eye wall. Whoever will take up ſaid Mare, and return her to the owner, ſhall have FOUR DOLLARS reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JONATHAN HILLS, Eſq;

Eaſt-Hartford Nov. 9. 1769.

TAKEN up by the ſubſcriber a ſorrel Horſe, three or four years old, about 13 half hands high, natural trotter, white in the face, below his eyes, the left hind foot white, branded with B on the left thigh.—— Said Horſe was taken up on the 9th of Octo. laſt. STEPHEN MATTHEWS.

Waterbury, Nov. 4. 1769.

---Suſquehannah---

AT a meeting of the Suſquehannah company held by adjournment in Hartford, Nov. 8th, 1769.

WHEREAS it appears that but few of the proprietors of the Suſquehannah purchaſe are preſent, or have had notice of this meeting, & matters of importance are now under conſideration relative to ſaid purchaſe, and ſettlement, it is now voted to adjourn this meeting, to the 6th day of December at Windham, and the Clerk is hereby directed, to publiſh a copy of this vote and adjournment of this meeting, as above, in this, and three adjoyning provinces, and the proprietors are deſired to give their attendance without fail, as matters moſt intereſting to the company, are then to come under conſideration.

A true Copy,
Teſt SAMUEL GRAY, Clerk of ſaid Com.

TO BE SOLD
By E. Auſtin,
[Near the Court Houſe in Hartford.]
The following articles for Goldſmith's and Jeweler's Uſes, viz.

ROUND and ſquare ſteele Shoe Chapes and Tongs, Knee ditto; an Aſſortment of Files; Cruſibles; Black Lead Pots; Salt Peter; Borax; Iron Rivet-wire; fine binding ditto; Braſs Rivit wire; Moulding Sand; Rotten Stone; Pummice Stone; Sandever; Sand paper; Buckle Bruſhes; Flower of putte; red and white Foil; cypher'd and white Stone Rings; cypher'd and white Stone Ear rings ſet in Gold; ditto in Silver; cypher'd and white Stone Buttons ſet in Silver, Stone Broaches ſet in Silver. &c. &c. &c.

TO BE SOLD BY
John Thompſon,
At Middletown,
Two Stills and Worms,
One 800 Gallons, the other 150. with ſundry other articles belonging to ſaid Stills — Alſo, 30 acres of good land, near Butlers Creek, and 20 acres of Wood land at Moromos — Alſo, a ſmall parcel of European Goods, to be ſold cheap for Caſh or ſhort credit — Alſo ſaid Thompſon's Dwelling Houſe in the town Plot, to be let or ſold.

Middletown, Nov. 10, 1769.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Heart and Crown in Hartford,
REMARKS,
On Dr. Gale's Letter to
J. W. Eſquire.

STRAY'D or ſtolen, from the ſubſcriber of Eaſt-Hartford, about the 3d or 4th inſt. a bay mare, about 14 hands high, both paces and trots, branded with the letter A on her left ſhoulder, and with the letters C B on her left thigh, not plain to be ſeen, lately had a wart cut off her breaſt, where is a ſmall ſcar or wart to be ſeen. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid mare, and (if ſtolen) ſecure the thief, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice, and the mare recovered, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

EPHRAIM WILLIAMS.

Eaſt Hartford, Oct. 20. 1769.

Juſt Publiſhed and to be ſold at the Printing-Office, Hartford.

That there is but one

Covenat, Whereof BAPTISM and the LORD's SUPPER are Seals, viz. The Covenant of Grace, proved from the Word of GOD, and the Doctrine of an external graceleſs Covenant, lately advanced by the Rev. Mr. MOSES MATHER; in a Pamphlet, entituled, The viſible Church in Covenant with God, &c. Shewed to be an unſcriptural Doctrine.

To which is prefixed,
An Anſwer to a Dialogue concerning the Half-Way-Covenant;
Lately printed at New London.
By JOSEPH BELLAMY, D. D.

T. Hopkins,
At his STORE, oppoſite the North-Meeting Houſe, Hartford.

HAS juſt received a General Aſſortment of Engliſh GOODS, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable terms, for Caſh or Produce in hand.

The PRINTERS to their CUSTOMERS.

WOuld inform, that by Reaſon of the unexpected & Perſevering Negligence of far the greater Part of our Cuſtomers, in reſpect of Payment, or ballancing Accounts, we are obliged to think of diſcontinuing the Publication of our weekly Paper; which, unleſs prevented by previous Settlements, we have determined will take Place on the 11th of December next, which will compleat the fifth Year ſince its firſt Publication.

We beg Leave to addreſs our delinquent Cuſtomers, in the Language of Civility, and with a Deference due to the Character of Perſons, either of Probity, Honeſty and Veracity, or, of Humanity, Honor, and Ingenuity; in either of which, we are aſſured they will take no Offence, at our once more calling upon them for a Settlement. As we have, Gentlemen, been at great Expence to ſerve you, we would entreat of you, for once, to take into your Conſideration, on the one Hand, the trifling Conſequence it would be to you, to pay the Sum of only Six Shillings, per Ann. eſpecially if paid when it firſt becomes due; and on the other, how intereſting a Matter it is to us, that you ſhould thus do; eſpecially conſidering we have (relying on your Encouragement, as it were) riſk'd the Support of ourſelves and Families on this Footing;— and alſo, as the Continuance of the Buſineſs of Printing in this Place does entirely depend upon it.

We aſſure our Cuſtomers, that ſince the Commencement of the Partnerſhip between us, we have not received from them, upon an Average, ſo much as Two Shillings out of Six, of what has been due from them; which has not been ſufficient even to defray the Expence of clean Paper, we have uſed in the Buſineſs. And as our Capital is very ſmall, and as (to oblige our Cuſtomers) we have run ourſelves deeply in Debt, ſo we are ſorry to tell them, that, without the requeſted Relief, we muſt be obliged to ſerve them no longer than the Time forementioned. Their ſettling, or not ſettling with us, therefore, by that Time, we can do no other than conſtruct as the Language of their Hearts, as to whether they mean to have us continue the Paper longer or not.

We ſtand ready to receive our Dues in Caſh, Country Produce, or their Obligations: Or if they have any Method more reaſonable to propoſe, we ſtand ready to hear them.

Our having repeatedly (tho' almoſt fruitleſs) reminded you of theſe Matters, will amply apologize for the Plainneſs with which we now treat them. We hope we ſhall not be obliged to offer you any further Trouble of this Kind——And that by the Favour of our Cuſtomers, we may be able ſo to diſcharge our own Obligations, as to ſerve them and the Public in a better Manner than we have hitherto been able to do, by continuing the Buſineſs in this Place.

Nor would we here diſmiſs the Subject, without firſt paying our thankful Acknowledgments of the Favours of many of our Cuſtomers, who have not only favoured us with their Cuſtom, but have alſo been to a good Degree punctual, as well as generous in ſettling their Accounts according to previous Engagements. We are their's, and the Public's Humble Servants,

GREEN & WATSON.

N. B. Thoſe Perſons in Arrears in the Town of Simſbury, are deſired to make Payment to Capt. Jonathan Humphrys; and thoſe in the Town of Suffield, to Mr. Seth Auſtin, with whom their reſpective Accounts are left—— and at the Time limitted above, we will ſend for our Pay, and hope not to be diſappointed of receiving it.

☞ Thoſe that live near, and chooſe to pay in Wood, are deſired not to omit bringing of it by the Time before mentioned.

HARTFORD: Printed by GREEN & WATSON.

MONDAY Dec. 4, 1769. Numb. 259.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advice, Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

PROPOSALS,
For the Continuance of the CONNECTICUT COURANT.

AS it appears to be the general Deſire of our Cuſtomers, from the Conſideration of their own and the common Benefit, that the Publication of our weekly News-Paper ſhould be ſtill continued, it is therefore hereby propoſed that they ſhall be gratified on the following Terms, viz.

1. That the Annual Price of a Paper ſhall be SIX SHILLINGS as has been uſual.

2. That (conſidering the Neceſſity of ready Money to carry on the Buſineſs) THREE SHILLINGS in Caſh be paid at Entrance, and the Remainder in Caſh or country produce at Caſh Price, at the year's End, by all thoſe who ſhall newly Sign, and by others who have been in Arrears more than a Year: otherwiſe they may expect their reſpective Papers will be diſcontinued after the Term mentioned in our late public Advertiſement.———As to others of our Cuſtomers who have not been thus delinquent, they may expect their Papers will be continued as heretofore, and upon the ſame Terms.———Upon the above Encouragement, we ſhall ever be ready to oblige them in the beſt manner we are able.

N.B. Thoſe who may have Advertiſements to inſert in this Paper, are deſired to ſend them by Saturday Noon, accompanied with the Pay, without which they will not be inſerted.

By Capt. White and Conſtant Freeman, who arrived at Boſton, laſt Monday from LONDON, there is public Prints to the 30th of September, from which we have extracted the following Articles, viz.

LONDON, Sept. 7.

YEſterday his Excellency Sir Francis Bernard, Governor of the Province of Maſſachuſetts-Bay in New England, was introduced to his Majeſty at St. James's. The Duke of Grafton was at Court.

It was the Earl of Rochford who introduced Sir Francis Bernard to his Majeſty. Sir Francis's ſtay was but ſhort; but it is ſaid that he will attend the next Council, to give an account of the preſent ſtate of the affairs of Maſſachuſets Bay.

The political ſuggeſtion at the court end of the town is now ripened into confidence, which is, that Lord Chatham will be firſt at laſt notwithſtanding he was behind before.

Sept. 21. The Right Rev. Dr. Jonathan Shipley, is elected Biſhop of St. Aſaph, and the Hon. and Rev. Shute Barrington, D. L. is elected Biſhop of Landaff.

Saturday Major Rogers arrived in town from North-America. It is ſaid he has given the moſt convincing proofs, ſince his arrival, of his innocence with reſpect to the late charges ſo iniquitouſly brought againſt him.

Sept. 16. A commiſſion has paſſed the great ſeal for appointing Walter Patterſon, Eſq; Governor of St. John's Newfoundland.

Letters from the Hague ſay, that the Ruſſians have been forced by the Turks to raiſe the Siege of Choczim, and that after a deſperate attack they had been obliged to repaſs the Neiſter with great precipitation, and a very conſiderable loſs.

Though we have before given an account of the accident at Breſcia by the blowing up of the powder Magazine, yet the following contains ſo many particulars of that affair, that we thought we could not omit laying it before our readers.

Extract of a Letter from Vienna September 6.

"On the 18th of Auguſt, about eight in the morning, the lightening fell, at Breſcia, upon a Magazine, in which were about twelve thouſand rubbi of fine cannon powder, which was to have been ſent to Venice on the 5th of this month. This powder inſtantly took fire, and the exploſion was ſo great, that it overturned about a ſixth part of the houſes in the Town, and, according to the beſt information we have hitherto been able to receive, buried near 3000 perſons under their ruins. Belonging to the above magazine was a Tower built of large ſtones, which blew up at the ſame time, and falling like hail upon the churches, houſes, and other buildings, ſhattered them from the very roofs to the cellars. Several other fragments of ſtones, launched horizontally, tore the houſes, pierced the walls, and beat down the moſt ſolid buildings. One of theſe Fragments driven by the violence of the ſhock to the diſtance of half a mile, there beat to pieces a houſe on which it fell, and buried five perſons under the ruins. In ſhort there is not ſo much as one edifice, which has not ſuffered more or leſs by this terrible event. All the ſtreets are covered with ruins of every ſort, and beſides the houſes beat down from top to bottom, upwards of 500 more threatening every moment to fall. The exploſion was ſo violent, that the ſtrongeſt faſtenings, at 18 miles diſtance, were forced open; ſome pieces of ſtone carryed ten miles, and a cannon, of twenty-five Cwt. driven two miles and a half. The fields near the Baſtion, on which the lightening fell are entirely burnt up, and covered with the ruins of the houſes beat down, which were driven there, trees torn up by the roots and ſhattered, and with dead bodies. All the ſhops in the town were forced open by the violence of the ſhock, and many of the doors belonging to the houſes carryed up into the air and ſhattered to pieces. In ſhort, through the whole City, not one ſquare of glaſs remained unbroken. The damage as yet is eſtimated at four millions of Philippis; and the Government has appointed two thouſand men to clear away the ruins, ſave, if poſſible, numbers of the unfortunate people, who lie almoſt entirely buryed beneath them, making the air reſound with the moſt horrible cries."

Sept 23. 'Tis ſaid that General Paoli ſupped on Thurſday Night with the Earl of Rochford.

The expected Demand of a Paſſage through Holland for ſome Troops, will be from the French, who are to invade the King of Pruſſia's Dominions, in caſe he ſhould join with the Empreſs of Ruſſia, or any how aſſiſt the Poles againſt the Turks.

Yeſterday Henry Vanſittart, Eſq; and the two other Superintendants, going to India, ſet out for Portſmouth to embark on board the Aurora, Capt. Lee.

A certain Great Perſonage has declared, that if the Weather holds tollerably good, he will not quit his Country Reſidence till the End of November. From the above circumſtances, and other Authority, it is imagined that the Parliament will not meet to do Buſineſs till after Chriſtmas, although they may meet to open the Seſſion in the Middle of December.

We hear there are a great Number of Scotch Officers on board the Ruſſian Armament; but that there is a great Deficiency of Sailors, which it is thought will be ſupplied from England. It is ſaid that the above Fleet are intended to winter in the Port of ſome Ally, and are not deſigned to go up to Conſtantinople till Spring.

It is ſaid that there is a very Skilful Perſon in the Marine Department of France on board the French Frigate in the Downs, who is employed to make the moſt minute Obſervations on the Arrangement and various Appointments of the Ruſſian Fleet.

It is ſaid a new Regulation, reſpecting the Regimentals of Subalterns, will take place throughout the Army next Year. They are to be entirely plain. This Regulation is much wiſhed for, as the Expence of Regimentals lies certainly very heavy on thoſe of inferior Rank in the Army.

Of late the Climate in America is greatly altered for the better. The Winters are leſs ſevere, and the Summers leſs hot. Several Marſhes are alſo drained by the Planters, which adds greatly to Salubrity. And the daily Fall of the Woods not only contributes to the ſame grand Purpoſe, but alſo renders the Country more delightful, by opening new Proſpects, and giving a more free Circulation to the Air.

Sept. 28. Mr. Howard, Naval Officer at Harwich, is appointed Marſhal of the Vice Admiralty Court at Boſton in New-England.

Sept. 22. A Petition, full of heavy Complaints againſt a certain Perſon, was delivered laſt Thurſday to his Majeſty by Dennys De Berdt, Eſq; Agent for the Houſe of Repreſentatives of the Maſſachuſetts Bay.

From the London Gazette. St. James's, September 29.

This Day his Grace Auguſtus Henry Fitzroy, Duke of Grafton, was inſtalled a Knight of the Moſt Noble Order of the Garter.

War-Office, Sept. 26. Capt. Francis [illegible] briel De Ruvynes is promoted to be Major in America only.

19th Rigment of Foot. Surgeon's Mate John Denholme to be Surgeon, vice Walter Farquhar, who reſigns.

Sept. 15. On Thurſday laſt General Paoli viſited the marquis of Rockingham, at his houſe in Groſvenor ſquare.

Saturday morning ſeveral of the Nobility viſited General Paoli, at his apartments in Bond ſtreet.

This week General Paoli will be introduced to his Majeſty and the Royal Family.

General Paoli's liveries are blue grey turned up with green, and laced with ſilver; the waiſtcoats green and laced. We are aſſured he is at preſent at a lodging houſe in Old Bond-ſtreet. A Jew Merchant is with him as his agent and interpreter.

It is ſaid that a Petition for Redreſs of Grievances may ſhortly be expected from the free Burgeſſes of Newcaſtle upon Tyne.

Alſo that the Petitions from the Counties of Glouceſter, Worceſter, and Wiltſhire, will ſhortly be preſented, notwithſtanding all attempts to prevent the ſame.

We hear orders are gone to all the ſea ports in the Mediterranean to prevent any ſeamen of Great Britain to enter into foreign ſervice, and it is ſaid they are ſoon to be recalled home.

Thurſday about noon, a General Officer was arreſted in Piccadilly, for the ſum of 2000l. He told the Bailiff, if he would go down with him to the Tilt yard, he ſhould there find a friend whom he wanted to ſpeak to, and would afterwards, on his not giving bail, go with him to a ſpunging-houſe. The bailiff unſuſpectedly complied with his requeſt and when they came to the horſe-guards, the General Officer ſent for a ſerjeant and a file of muſqueteers to ſecure the bailiff, on a pretence that he had been inſulted by him, which they did, while the priſoner found means to eſcape, and has not ſince been heard of.*

* G——l G---l.

Friday Adjutant General Harvey ordered the ſerjeant and his men who favoured the eſcape of the General Officer from the bailiff, cloſe priſoners to the Savoy and the ſame day waited on Lord Cambden and Lord Mansfield, to receive their opinions about the ſteps that are proper to be taken with the ſerjeant and his men, on occaſion of the General Officer's arreſt.

Sept. 26. Saturday died, after having endured a bad ſtate of health for ſome time, and a very ſevere Fit of Illneſs the laſt Fortnight, Doctor PETER TEMPLEMAN, Secretary to the Society for the Encouragement of Arts, Manufactures and Commerce — The Doctor was the Son of a Gentleman of a conſiderable Fortune in Dorſetſhire, and was educated to the Profeſſion of Phyſic at the Univerſity of Cambridge; but marrying diſadvantageouſly, he incenſed his Father ſo, that he refuſed him any Support; in conſequence of which he was deprived of the Means of introducing himſelf into Practice. He endeavoured, therefore, to avail himſelf of his Education by the Uſe of his Pen, in which he had ſome Succeſs. His Friends then procured him the Office of Reading Librarian at the Britiſh Muſeum, which he enjoyed for ſome Time; and on the Reſolution of the Society for the Encouragement of Arts, Manufactures and Commerce, to appoint a Secretary, who was a Man of Letters, he was choſen to that Poſt in 1760, which he continued to fill to the Time of his Death. He was eſteemed a Man of great Learning, and particularly with regard to Languages.—The particular Works which have appeared with the Doctor's Name, are an Abridgment of the Memoirs of the French Academy, in Engliſh; and a Tranſlation of Capt. Nordon's Travels through Egypt.

Extract of a letter from Jerſey, Sept. 20.

"The women here were the moſt active in the diſturbances about the exportation of corn; they unloaded a ſhip with [illegible] the aſſiſtance of a Man; Theſe [illegible] continue to keep ſo ſtrict a look out, [illegible] the exporters dare not ſhip a ſingle grain."

Extract of a Letter from Hull, dated Sept. 20.

"The Ruſſian fleet is daily expected in the Humber, to take in Pilots, Officers, &c. for their expedition.

September 28. Yeſterday Paſcal Paoli, the late Corſican General made his firſt appearance at Court, and was introduced to his Majeſty, who received him graciouſly, and converſed with him upon various ſubjects for upwards of two hours; he made a handſome appearance, was dreſſed in ſcarlet and gold, attended by a Clergyman and a Foreign officer.

The impatience of the Public to ſee the celebrated Paoli, is ſo great, that the houſe where he reſides is continually crouded by great numbers of people. A Gentleman who lately dined where that celebrated Chief was preſent, informs us, that he is a tall, athletic, well made man of a handſome open countenance very fair, has great dignity in his addreſs, and ſeems to be between forty and fifty years of age: He ſpeaks Latin with propriety, French and Italian with great fluency and elegance, and Engliſh but very indifferently.

Sept. 29. We are aſſured from undoubted authority that the French and Engliſh Courts are come to a reſolution to take no part in the preſent War between the Ruſſians and Turks, and that every thing relating to the Fleet deſtined for the Mediterranean has been adjuſted in the moſt amicable manner between the Court of Verſailles and London.

Diſpatches from the Eaſt Indies contain nothing particular, except invalidating the reports of Tueſday, that Madras had been taken, it appearing that the Company's affairs were in every reſpect in as good a ſituation as for ſome time paſt, and a box marked A B, as a preſent from the Nabob to his Majeſty.

It is ſaid the Corſican Chief will ſet out in a few days on a viſit to the two Univerſities.

L O N D O N.

Extract from Dr. Muſgrave's Addreſs to the Freeholders of the County of Devon, previous to their Meeting at Exeter, on the 5th of October 1769.

Gentlemen,

I Think it incumbent upon me as a lover of my country, to lay before you a tranſaction, which, I apprehend, gives juſter grounds of Complaint and apprehenſion than any Thing hitherto made public. Having long had reaſon to imagine, that the nation has been cruelly injured in a way they little ſuſpect, I have ardently wiſhed for a day, when my imperfect informations ſhould be ſuperſeded by evidence and certainty.——

I need not remind you, gentlemen, of the univerſal indignation & abhorrence, with which the conditions of the late peace were received by the independent part of the nation. Yet thoſe who condemned the meaſure did not attribute it to any worſe motive than an unmanly impatience under the burthens of the war, and a blind headlong deſire to be relieved from them. They did not conceive that perſons of high rank and unbounded wealth, could be ſeduced by gold to betray the intereſts of their country.—Such a ſuppoſition unhappily for us is at preſent far from incredible. The important ſecret was diſcloſed to me in the year 1764 during my reſidence at Paris.—On the 10th of May 1765, by the direction of Dr. Blackſtone, I waited on Lord Halifax, then ſecretary of ſtate, and delivered him an exact narrative of the intelligence I had received at Paris, with copies of four letters to and from Hertford. The behavior of Lord Halifax was polite but evaſive. When I preſſed him in a ſecond interview to enquire into the truth of the charge, he objected to all public ſteps that might give an alarm, and aſked me whether I could point out to him any way of proſecuting the enquiry in ſecret, and whether in ſo doing there was any probability of his obtaining poſitive proof of the fact.——Four days after I gave a direct and ſatisfactory anſwer to both his queſtions, he then put an end to my ſolicitations by a peremptory refuſal to take any ſteps whatever in the affair.

It is here neceſſary to explain what I mean by enquiring into the truth of the charge. In the ſummer of the year 1764 an overture had been made to Sir George Yonge, Mr Fitzherbert, and ſeveral other members of parliament in the name of the chevalier D'Eon, importing that he, the Chevalier, was ready to impeach three perſons, two of whom are Peers and members of the privy council, of ſelling the peace to the French. Of this propoſal I was informed at different times by the two gentlemen above mentioned. Sir George Yonge in particular told me, that the charge cou'd be ſupported by written as well as living evidence. The ſtep that I urged Lord Halifax to take was to ſend for the Chevalier D'Eon, to examine him upon the ſubject of this overture, to peruſe his papers, & then to proceed according to the proofs. In ſuch a cauſe a more deciſive evidence than the Chevalier D'Eon could not be wiſhed for. He had himſelf conducted the negotiation on the part of the enemy, & was known to have in his poſſeſſion the diſpatches and papers of the Duke de Nivernois. This gentleman ſo qualified and ſo diſpoſed to light into the affair, did Lord Halifax refuſe to examine.——

It muſt not be underſtood, that I can myſelf ſupport a charge of corruption againſt the noble Lord named in my information. My complaint is of a different nature and againſt a different perſon. I conſider the refuſal of Lord Halifax as a wilful obſtruction of national juſtice for which I wiſh to ſee him undergo a ſuitable puniſhment. Permit me to obſerve, gentlemen, that ſuch an obſtruction not only gives a temporary impunity to offenders, but tends alſo to make that impunity perpetual by deſtroying or weakning the proofs of their guilt. Evidence of all kinds is a very periſhable thing. Living witneſſes are expoſed to the chance of mortality, and written to the not uncommon caſualty of fire. In the preſent caſe ſomething more than theſe ordinary accidents might with good reaſon be apprehended. It ſtands upon record that the Count de Guerchy had conſpired to aſſaſſinate the Chevalier D'Eon. This not ſucceeding, a band of ruffians was hired to kidnap that gentleman, and carry off his papers. Tho' this ſecond attempt failed, it does not follow that theſe important papers are ſtill ſecure. I was informed by Mr. Fitzherbert, ſo long ago as May 1765, that overtures were making to the Chevalier D'Eon to get the papers out of his hands in return for a ſtipulated ſum of money. This account I communicated the next day to Lord Halifax, who ſtill perſiſted in expoſing theſe precious documents to ſo many complicated hazards.——

[After particularly enumerating the evils that may reſult from the refuſal of Lord Halifax, in not enquiring into the evidence of this affair, the Doctor proceeds as follows.]

It is not from a deſire of aggravating that nobleman's offence, but merely to evince a ſpeedy enquiry, while there is a chance of its not being wholly fruitleſs.——In purſuing this point I have hitherto been fruſtrated from the very circumſtance which ought to have inſured my ſucceſs, the immenſe importance of the queſtion. It has been apprehended that any perſon who ſhould commence any enquiry would be deemed reſponſible for the truth of the charge, and ſubjected to ſevere penalties, if he could not make it good. This, however, did not deter me from carrying my papers to the Speaker, to be laid before the houſe of commons. The Speaker was pleaſed to juſtify my conduct by allowing that the affair ought to be enquired into, but refuſed at the ſame time to be inſtrumental in promoting the enquiry himſelf. What then remained to be done? What, but to wait, though with reluctance and impatience, till a proper opportunity ſhould offer for appealing to the public at large, that is, till the accumulated errors of government ſhould awaken a ſpirit of enquiry too powerful to be reſiſted or eluded? That this ſpirit is now reviving we have a ſufficient earneſt in the unanimous zeal you have ſhewn for the appointment of a county meeting.—The declared purpoſe of which is in itſelf a call upon every freeholder to diſcloſe whatever you are concerned to know. I obey the call without heſitation, ſubmitting the proſecution of the affair to your judgment, in full confidence that the reſult of your deliberations will do honor at the ſame time to your prudence, candor, and patriotiſm.

Plymouth, Aug. [illegible] 1769.

The Chevalier D'Eon's Anſwer to the foregoing will be in our next.

[By the Capts Hull and Hood, arrived at Boſton; and the Harriot Packet Boat, Capt. Boulderſon, arrived at New-York, ſince our laſt, there is public Prints to the 5th of October.——We have omitted the London Intelligence brought by the above Veſſels in Order to make Room for the following private Letters.]

B O S T O N, November 30.

An Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in a public Character in England, received by one of the laſt Veſſels.

"THE Remonſtrance againſt Governor BERNARD was a diſagreeable thing to the Miniſtry, and therefore was received with Coldneſs, like the Petition of the Livery of London.

'I ſee your Oppreſſion ſtill goes on, which when the Parliament meets we muſt endeavour to get removed, tho' there muſt be ſome Spirit in oppoſing oppreſſive Meaſures, yet a ſteady even Oppoſition, is better than a raſh furious one.—The Miniſtry have no Encouragement to continue the Officers with you, as the duties do not pay the Charge, and I believe they ſee the Inexpediency of the Scheme.—Almoſt all our Nobility & Gentry are out of Town, even Lord Hillſborough is in Ireland, but is expected home ſoon.—Fear our Friends wont be in London till juſt before the Parliament meet.—I ſhall neglect no Opportunity to fruſtrate the Deſigns of G——r B——d, and promote a good Underſtanding between America and this Country, which are inſeparable. A Spirit of Diſcontent rather increaſes than ſubſides, throughout the Kingdom; and one Article of Complaint pretty univerſally adopted, is American Grievances.'

Extract of a late letter from a known good Friend to both Countries, a Gentleman of Fortune and Character in London, to his Correſpondent in New England.

"O My dear Friend why will your Ladies take the law of faſhion, from ſuch a wanton tyranny of example, as is impoſed on you from Great-Britain? I am more clear in the enormity of this deſpotiſm (which you ſubmit) than of all the Revenue laws which America groans under; ſo many yards of coſtly ſilk, as we cut in pieces with the moſt licentious profuſion! The decent nightGown which ſhewed the ſhape of the ſex, in all its native elegance, is now baniſhed; and nothing but Negligees are ſeen with things flapping down on each ſide, which look as if the Ladies had turn'd a moſt monſtrious pair of ſilk pockets inſide out and drawn them through their pocket holes. The hinder part of their garment ſeems contrived by an Upholſterer, for it is a drawn up curtain; and for the front how monſtrouſly in the elegant fall of the Petticoat deformed with flounces of maſſacred ſilk! Oh Barbarous Murder both of beauty and materials.——but if I cannot reſtore the decent night Gown, to its uſurped power and influence; for decency ſake, for beauty ſake, by all that is engaging in ſweetneſs and nature, let me obtain, that the firſt man who comes among you to torture the Ladies heads of hair in New England, as they are diſtorted among us cut the Raſcal's head off for his reward."——

Extract of a Letter from an eminent Merchant in London, to his Correſpondent here, dated Sept. 21ſt.

"Its probable the Ruſſians ſending a fleet of ſhips of war up the Mediterranean may bring on a war, you may depend on my ſending you the earlieſt intelligence if our people prepare for it.—To the diſgrace of the great men of this country, who are intent in getting places at the expence of their country, we have faction and party, and of conſequence the moſt infamous falſehoods propagated with the moſt barefaced impudence; if adminiſtration have ability and are firm, I flatter myſelf, whatever inadvertencies may have happened, peace and unanimity will be reſtored."

Extract of a letter from London, Octo. 3.

"We are aſſured from good Authority, that in caſe a certain back ſliding patriotic Merchant in patriotic Merchant is proceeded againſt at law, he has drawn up a full and ſatiſfactory vindication of himſelf, which contains ſome charges againſt a Perſon of great rank, reſpecting that, when known, will excite the admiration of the public."

By Capt. Hood a Letter was received from Mr. Wilkes, acknowledging the Receipt of two Turtles ſent from this Town by a Number of Gentlemen, in July laſt;—one of which weigh'd 45 the other 47lb. which added together makes 92lb.——It is remarkable that the Veſſel in which they were ſent had 45 Days paſſage.

Meſſ. PRINTERS,

I HAVE heard it is generally held by Aſtronomers that ſome of the fixed Stars that were known ſome centuries back have been ſince Miſſing: if therefore you ſhould ever ſee the New-York Cometographer, do aſk him one Queſtion, about his laſt imperfect Piece of the COMET, or, *the imperfect ſovalid now out of its road, or, the ſplit Piece of a blown up world ſtrongly confined, that yet remains of the melted droſs the Scoria ſwimming on the ſurface of the ſuns voracious large and dreadfully conſuming liquid fire, which he tells us of; and that is this, viz. whether he dont think 'tis moſt likely that this Comet was blown up, and ſplit to pieces on purpoſe to make Stars of the ſmall Bits, to ſupply the places of them that are miſſing? Or, whether there does not really appear (to him) to be nothing wanting but an actual viſual demonſtration to prove, that the little Bits, are already made up into little Stars?—And do let us know, what he tells you about it.

* See the laſt Paper.

La[illegible]bier Leiſcotet,

(Clock and Watch-Maker from Paris)

At the Sign of the Clock in King-Street,

HARTFORD,

HEREBY informs the Public, that he has removed from the Shop of Mr. James Tiley, to one oppoſite the Store of Meſſieurs Lathrop & Smith; where he continues to make and mend, Repeating and Plain WATCHES, of all kinds, on the moſt reaſonable Terms.

Any Watch that he ſhall mend, which ſhall not go true he will rectify GRATIS.

ALL perſons indebted to the eſtate of URI HILL, late of Goſhen deceas'd, either by book or note, are hereby deſired to ſettle the ſame, by the firſt of Jan. next, or they may expect to be ſued without any further notice.

ADNA BEECH, Executor.

Goſhen, 24th Nov. 1769.

WE the ſubſcribers, being appointed by the hon. judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners, to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Capt. SAMUEL WELLS late of Hartford deceas'd, (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the late dwelling houſe of the ſaid WELLS in ſaid Hartford, on the ſecond Tueſdays of Dec. Jan. Feb. and the firſt and ſecond Tueſdays of March next.

JONATHAN STANLY, } Commiſ-
ELISHA PITKIN. } ſioners.

Hartford, Dec. 1, 1769.

To be ſold at public vendue, by Pelatiah Pierce and Aſhbel Steel, at the houſe of Captain Timothy Seymour, on the 14th Day of December inſtant,

ABout Nine acres of land, with a dwelling houſe and barn thereon, ſituate in Hartford Weſt-Diviſion, within a quarter of a mile of the meeting houſe very commodious for a tavern, tradeſman or trader. The Terms of ſale will then and there be made known.

N. B. Beſt of Soal Leather to be ſold by Pelatiah Pierce, for caſh or Hides, at his ſtore in Hartford.

WE the Subſcribers being appointed by the hon. Judge of Probate, for the Diſtrict of Middletown, Commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of James Witon, of Chatham deceas'd (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the houſe of Abiel Cheney, innholder in ſaid Chatham, on the firſt Mondays of Dec. and Jan. and the laſt Monday of Feb. next, from two to ſix o'clock afternoon.

DAVID SAGE, } Commiſ-
SAMUEL HALL, } ſioners
MOSES BARTLET. }

Chatham, 27th, Nov. 1769.

BROKE Out of the County Goal in Hartford, laſt night, the following Perſons committed for Theft, viz. Iſaac Davis, Thomas Spencer, Tranſient Perſons. Alſo, John Danx, a Tranſient Perſon, laſt from Weathersfield. Alſo, John Grimes a Tranſient Perſon, laſt from Windſor. Alſo, Patrick Fleming, who was committed for ſome Criminal conduct. Whoever ſhall take up either of the above-mentioned Perſons, and return them to the keeper of the Goal in Hartford, ſhall have TWENTY SHILLINGS Lawful Money Reward, for each, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

EZEKIEL WILLIAMS, Sheriff.

Hartford, November 25, 1769.

To be ſold at the Houſe of Mrs Margaret Chenevard, in Hartford,

GOOD Madeira and Liſbon WINE, Barbadoes RUM, ANNICESEED WATER, CHOCOLATE, SNUFF of the beſt Kind, &c. &c. &c.

Un-Away from, his maſter the 21ſt laſt month, an Iriſh man ſervant named John White, (alias Patrick White) or what other name he may go by. He is about twenty ſix years of age, light complexion, brown hair, about five feet ten inches high, ſtutters ſome when he talks, had on when he went away, a light colour'd coat and veſt, but quite likely he may ſhift his cloaths when he finds an opportunity, he ſometimes pretends to be a merchant, ſometimes a maſter of a veſſel, ſometimes a ſchool maſter, by which and the plauſible pretences he makes, he has and ſtill may deceive many. He has uſed his preſent maſter with the utmoſt ingratitude. Wherefore, whoever takes him up, and convey's him to the ſubſcriber, or confines him in any of his majeſty's goals in this or the neighbouring colonies, or puts him on board any of his majeſty's ſhips of war, taking the commanding officers receipt for him, and ſending to the ſubſcriber, ſhall receive a reward of Twenty Shilling Lawful Money, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

BENJAMIN HENSHAW.

Middletown, Nov. 2, 1769.

STray'd or ſtolen from the ſubſcriber of Eaſt Hartford, on the night after the 1ſt inſt. a ſorrel Mare, about 14 hands and half high, paces and trots, white face, both hind feet white, towards half way up to her ham, a white ſpot juſt back of her ſhoulder, branded with A, upon her left ſhoulder, her left eye wall. Whoever will take up ſaid Mare, and return her to the owner, ſhall have FOUR DOLLARS reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JONATHAN HILLS, Eſq;

Eaſt-Hartford, Nov. 9, 1769.

—Suſquehannah—

AT a meeting of the Suſquehannah company held by adjournment in Hartford, Nov. 8th 1769.

WHEREAS it appears that but few of the proprietors of the Suſquehannah purchaſe are preſent, or have had notice of this meeting, & matters of importance are now under conſideration relative to ſaid purchaſe, and ſettlement, it is now voted to adjourn this meeting, to the 6th day of December at Windham, and the Clerk is hereby directed, to publiſh a copy of this vote and adjournment of this meeting, as above, in this and three adjoyning provinces, and the proprietors are deſired to give their attendance without fail, as matters moſt intereſting to the company, are then to come under conſideration.

A true Copy,

Teſt SAMUEL GRAY, Clerk of ſaid Com.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Heart and Crown in Hartford,

REMARKS,

On Dr. Gale's Letter to

J. W. Eſquire.

STRAY'D or ſtolen, from the ſubſcriber of Eaſt Hartford, about the 3d or 4th inſt. a bay mare, about 14 hands high, both paces and trots, branded with the letter A on her left ſhoulder, and with the letters C B on her left thigh, not plain to be ſeen, lately had a wart cut off her breaſt, where is a ſmall ſcar or wart to be ſeen. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid mare, and (if ſtolen) ſecure the thief, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice, and the mare recovered, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

EPHRAIM WILLIAMS.

Eaſt Hartford, Oct. 30, 1769.

HARTFORD:
Printed by Green and Watſon.

Juſt Publiſhed and to be ſold at the Printing Office, Hartford:

That there is but one

Covenant, Whereof BAPTISM and the LORD's SUPPER are Seals, viz. The Covenant of Grace, proved from the Word of GOD, and the Doctrine of an external graceleſs Covenant, lately advanced by the Rev. Mr. MOSES MATHER; in a Pamphlet, entituled, The viſible Church in Covenant with God, &c. Shewed to be an unſcriptural Doctrine.

To which is prefixed,

An Anſwer to a Dialogue concerning the Half-Way-Covenant,

Lately printed at New-London.

By JOSEPH BELLAMY, D. D.

T. Hopkins,

At his STORE, oppoſite the North-Meeting Houſe, Hartford.

HAS juſt received a General Aſſortment of Engliſh GOODS, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable terms, for Caſh or Produce in hand.

The PRINTERS to their CUSTOMERS.

WOuld inform, that by Reaſon of the unexpected & Perſevering Negligence of far the greater Part of our Cuſtomers, in reſpect of Payment, or ballancing Accounts, we are obliged to think of diſcontinuing the Publication of our weekly Paper; which, unleſs prevented by previous Settlements, we have determined will take Place on the 15th of December next, which will compleat the fifth Year ſince its firſt Publication.

We beg Leave to addreſs our delinquent Cuſtomers, in the Language of Civility, and with a Deference due to the Character of Perſons, either of Probity, Honeſty and Veracity, or, of Humanity, Honor, and Ingenuity; in either of which, we are aſſured they will take no Offence, at our once more calling upon them for a Settlement. As we have, Gentlemen, been at great Expence to ſerve you, we would entreat of you, for once, to take into your Conſideration, on the one Hand, the trifling Conſequence it would be to you, to pay the ſum of only Six Shillings, per Ann. eſpecially if paid when it firſt becomes due; and on the other, how intereſting a Matter it is to us, that you ſhould thus do; eſpecially conſidering we have (relying on your Encouragement, as it were) riſk'd the Support of ourſelves and Families on this Printing;—and alſo, as the Continuance of the Buſineſs of Printing in this Place does entirely depend upon it.

We aſſure our Cuſtomers, that ſince the Commencement of the Partnerſhip between us, we have not received from them, upon an Average, ſo much as Two Shillings out of Six, of what has been due from them; which has not been ſufficient even to defray the Expence of clean Paper, we have uſed in the Buſineſs. And as our Capital is very ſmall, and as (to oblige our Cuſtomers) we have run ourſelves deeply in Debt, ſo we are ſorry to tell them, that, without the requeſted Relief, we muſt be obliged to ſerve them no longer than the Time forementioned. Their ſettling, or not ſettling with us, therefore, by that Time, we can do no other than conſtruct as the Language of their Hearts, as to whether they mean to have us continue the Paper longer or not.

We ſtand ready to receive our Dues in Caſh, Country Produce, or their Obligations; Or if they have any Method more reaſonable to propoſe, we ſtand ready to hear them.

Our having repeatedly (tho' almoſt fruitleſsly) reminded you of theſe Matters, will amply apologize for the Plainneſs with which we now treat them. We hope we ſhall not be obliged to offer you any further Trouble of this Kind—And that by the Favour of our Cuſtomers, we may be able ſo to diſcharge our own Obligations, as to ſerve them and the Public in a better Manner than we have hitherto been able to do, by continuing the Buſineſs in this Place.

Nor would we here diſmiſs the Subject, without firſt paying our thankful Acknowledgments of the Favours of many of our Cuſtomers, who have not only favoured us with their Cuſtom, but have alſo been to a good Degree punctual, as well as generous in ſettling their Accounts according to previous Engagements. We are their's, and the Public's Humble Servants,

GREEN & WATSON.

N. B. Thoſe Perſons in Arrears in the Town of Simſbury, are deſired to make Payment to Capt. Jonathan Humphrys; and thoſe in the Town of Suffield, to Mr. Seth Auſtin, with whom their reſpective Accounts are left;—and at the Time limited above, we will ſend for our Pay, and hope not to be diſappointed of receiving it.

☞ Thoſe that live near, and chooſe to pay in Wood, are deſired not to omit bringing of it by the Time before mentioned.

TO BE SOLD.

At the houſe of Nathaniel Porter,

in Eaſt-Windſor, at public Vendue, or private ſale, on the 3d Tueſday of November next, ſix Pieces of Land in the Occupation of Thomas Elmer, Ten Acres of good Meadow, Ten Acres beſt upland Paſture near the Poſt Road, and the Reſidue large Tracts of well wooded and timbered OutLand. Alſo, four hundred Acres of Land lying on Munkerooſen Brook, in ſaid Eaſt Windſor, on which a good Sawmill was formerly erected.

Alſo, to be ſold, a Farm of one hundred Acres, and the third Part of a good Griſt-Mill in Hebron, in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Skinner. For Terms apply to

TITUS HOSMER.

Having loſt, between

Litchfield and Saliſbury, on the 6th inſt. ſeveral Half Johannis's, and other pieces of money of various ſorts, in a leather Purſe, gathered in a ſtring like a Knapſack, will give TWO DOLLARS Reward to any perſon who ſhall return the ſame to

Jedediah Strong.

Singing-Books

TO BE SOLD BY

Lathrop & Smith,

In Hartford, viz.

TANSUR's Royal Melody Compleat at 5/4 ſingle, or 5/ by the dozen—Williams's univerſal Pſalmodiſt at 7/—A new edition of Arnolds compleat Pſalmodiſt, with large additions printed in 1769, at 7/—And a new edition of Knibbs Pſalm Singers help, with large additions at 5/ all on a good paper, and well bound.

☞ They have alſo a large aſſortment of other Books, which they will ſell cheap for Caſh, Pork or Grain in hand.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

MONDAY Dec. [illegible] 1769.

Numb 260.

THE

Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

The Chevalier D'Eon's Anſwer to Dr. Muſgrave's Letter publiſhed in laſt Monday's Evening Poſt.

SIR,

YOU will permit me to believe that you never knew any more of me, than I ave the honour of knowing of you; and if n your letter of the 12th of Auguſt you had ot made a wrong uſe of my name, I ſhould ot now find myſelf obliged to enter into a orreſpondence with you.

You pretend that " in the ſummer of the " year " 1764 overtures were made in " my name to ſeveral members of Parliament, " importing, that I was ready to impeach " three perſons, two of whom were peers, " and members of the Privy Council, of hav" ing ſold the Peace to the French." And ou ſeem to found thereupon the evidence of charge which you ſay you carried yourſelf o Lord Halifax.

I declare therefore here, Sir, that I never ade, nor cauſed to be made, any ſuch over ure, either in the winter or ſummer of the ar 1764 nor at any other time. I am on ide, too faithful to the office I filled; and the other, too zealous a friend to truth.

I confeſs you do not ſay it was I that made ſe overtures; but only that they were made my name, particularly to Sir Geo. Yonge, d Mr. Fitzherbert.

I aſſure you I do not know either of theſe ntlemen, and never authoriſed any perſon atever to make in my name ſuch overtures, ich the abhorrence alone I have for calum- would make me deteſt.

call upon you, therefore, Sir, to lay before public the name of the audacious perſon o has made uſe of mine to cover his own ous offers. The gentlemen whom you have n as your witneſſes, cannot deny you this ification of their own veracity and your's.

hough I cannot but commend your inte- y in citing your authors, yet it appears to an act of the laſt imprudence, in an affair ſo much weight, to build upon report for ing publicly a perſon of my character, hout having previouſly conſulted him.— at muſt be the reſult?—The public will e read greedily your letter; will have be- ed its contents, becauſe you appeal therein y teſtimony: But what will they think when your own intereſt, my honour and h oblige me to deny all that you have ad- ced therein with reſpect to me?

t is the ſame with your pretence that " a- out the 17th of May, 1765 Mr. Fitzher- ert told you, he knew that overtures had een made to me to ſell for a ſum of mo- ey the papers that were in my hands."

have always flattered myſelf with being eſſed of the eſteem and friendſhip of the liſh, with whom I have lived. Who of n then in theſe ſentiments would have pre- ed to have ſhewn ſufficient contempt for o have made me ſuch an overture? The ry would have been the more ſenſibly felt me as the character of the perſon was more ectable.

I ſhall not follow you, Sir, either in all the ſteps you have tho't it your duty to take, or in the arguments you make uſe of to ſupport them: Theſe ſhew the orator, and thoſe if they be well founded, prove the patriot.

But I here certify to you, on my word of honour, and in the face of the public, that I cannot be of any ſort of uſe to you: That I never entered into any treaty for the ſale of my papers, and never either by myſelf or any agent authorized on my part, offered to make appear, that the peace had been ſold to France.

If Lord Halifax or the Speaker, to whom you ſay you addreſſed yourſelf, in order to call upon me as evidence with reſpect to the validity of your charge had cauſed me to be cited, they would have perceived by my anſwers, that I am of opinion, that England rather gave money to France, than France to England, to conclude the laſt peace: and that the happineſs I had in concurring to the great work of peace has inſpired me with ſentiments of the juſteſt veneration for the Engliſh Commiſſioners who had been employed in it, and with the moſt lively eſteem and ſinceteſt admiration for the late Count de Viry, who in his attachments to the welfare of the two nations then at war, and thanks to his indefatigable zeal! I had the glory of bringing that peace to a happy concluſion.

Judge now, Sir, with what ſolidity you can depend upon me to make your charge clear.

I am too well known in England to have been under any neceſſity of this reply, if the frankneſs of your letter had not appeared to me to merit my preventing you from taking any further ſteps, which could not but turn to your prejudice, in as much as they would be founded ſolely on falſe reports of my proceedings.

In order to enable you to be as prudent as patriotic, I ſign this letter, and therein give you my addreſs, that for the maintenance of your own veracity you may furniſh me with the means of convicting publicly thoſe ſlanderers who have dared to make uſe of my name in a manner ſtill more repugnant to real facts, than the dignity with which I have ever ſupported my character.

I have the honor of being

Your humble Servant,

The Chevalier D'EON.

In Petty-France, Weſtminſter.

Advice by the laſt Veſſels from LONDON.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 17.

THIS day great rejoycings were made on account of the victory gained over the enemy by Abdalla, a Pacha of Two Tails, who has penetrated into Poland by the way of Balta, and cut to pieces 3000 Coſſacks, in the Palatinate of Braclaw; he has taken above 60,000 horſes, oxen and ſheep.

LONDON, Sept. 8.

IT was reported this morning, but we know not on what foundation, that a certain Noble Lord lately in A——n had ſhot himſelf.

Sept. 12. It is ſaid that Mr. Treyſſack de Vergy, Counſellor in the Parliament of Paris, intends to elucidate the difference between Dr. Muſgrave and the Chevalier D'Eon; and make it public.

The two reigning toaſts are—The patriotic Dr. Muſgrave of Plymouth—And the independent burgeſſes of the town of Bedford.

It is confidently reported that a certain unpopular Peer held a private conference with a French Politician, at his apartments near Petty France, yeſterday; the reſult of which has not yet tranſpired.

It was yeſterday at noon reported at Change, that an expreſs had arrived, by the way of Holland, at the India-houſe, with the diſagreeable news of Hyder Ally having made himſelf maſter of Madraſs, which had ſuch an effect in the Alley, that India ſtock fell inſtantly.

The American trade, which, at this ſeaſon, uſed to be in a proſperous condition, is now in a moſt alarming ſtate; and there is not one ſhip put up at the Royal Exchange for New-York or Philadelphia; and for Boſton and Carolina, there are only three for each Province. Such are the effects of the late taxation of the Colonies.

St. James's, Sept. 15. His majeſty in council was this day pleaſed to order, that the Parliament, which ſtands prorogued to Wedneſday the twentieth of this inſt. Sept. ſhould be further prorogued to Tueſday the fourteenth day of November next.

Sept. 16. A correſpondent from Jerſey informs us, that there are great diſturbances in that iſland, on account of the exportation of corn; but the particulars are of ſuch a nature, as cannot with ſafety, be publiſhed.

We are aſſured, that a certain noble D. hugs himſelf not a little that he is out of a dangerous ſcrape as it is charged before his adminiſtration commenced; but we hear he has adviſed the parties who are accuſed to probe the matter to the bottom, and bring the accuſer or guilty to condign puniſhment.

Extract of a letter from Plymouth, dated Sept. 15.

“ You will ſee ſomething from Dr. Muſgrave next month, that will ſurpriſe you. He is a very ingenious, ſober, ſedate, prudent man. I am well perſuaded what he is about is for the good of the public in general, and that he has no ſiniſter views,

To the PRINTER.

SIR,

I Think it my duty to contradict a report I find in the papers, by declaring that no employment or emolument, either preſent or in reverſion, was ever offered to me by the miniſtry, or any perſon on their behalf.

Plymouth, Sept. 9.

S. MUSGRAVE.

It is remakable, that the three gentlemen, Dr. Blackſtone, Sir George Yonge, and Mr. Fitzherbert, whom Dr. Muſgrave mentions in his addreſs to the gentlemen of Devon, as having conferred with him ſome years ago, relative to the ſuppoſed high crimes of certain great perſons, have now all of them places under the government.

Extract of a letter from Plymouth, dated Sept. 12.

“ I doubt not but you have ſeen Dr. Muſgrave's letter, and the anſwer of Monſ. D'Eon, who was here laſt night. He is very expeditious in travelling; perhaps you may ſee him in Petty France by this time again; be that as it may, I know the Doctor well; he is an ingenious, ſenſible, ſedate, ſteady man. I wiſh he may have fair play, and only adviſe the people in town to ſuſpend their judgment, for a ſmall time only, till the 8th of next month, when the county meet. We expect ſuch diſcoveries will be made as will make ſome people ſick, for he hath ſtudied phyſic all his life, and ſuch a noſtrum will be prepared as Dr. Ward or Dr. Hill never thought of.”

A commiſſion has paſſed the great ſeal for appointing Walter Patterſon, Eſq; Governor of St. John's, Newfoundland.

Yeſterday Lord Charles Greville Montague, lately arrived from his Government of Sauth-Carolina, was introduced to his Majeſty at St. James's.

Some letters from Amſterdam mention, that five thouſand barrels of gunpowder are now buying up in Holland, to be ſhipped on board Dutch tranſports for the ſervice of the Grand Signior.

It is reported that a certain Bench of J——s have denied licences to every Publican who has John Wilkes, Eſq; for his ſign. A ſpirited perſon, who was a ſufferer on this account, ſaid in his own vindication on the above occaſion, that he was no friend either to John Wilkes or his cauſe, and therefore had hung him up in effigy to ſhew his real principles; but if he had undeſignedly given them any offence, he was ready to pull down John Wilkes, and hang up the whole Bench in his ſtead.

It is generally imagined, that the ſtory from France of the pretended Lord Gordon's wanting to burn the town and port of Breſt, is a mere invention to ſerve ſome particular purpoſe at preſent unknown here.

Sept. 19. They write from the Hague, that the Ruſſian Miniſter there, had declared to Mr. Fagel, Greffier to the States General, and to Mr. Stein, Grand-Penſionary, (the Miniſter there) that his Court propoſed to ſend a fleet of thirty ſail of men of war into the Mediterranean, in order to make a divertion in the Archipelado, in favour of the Ruſſian troops engaged againſt the Turks, and that this fleet was probably already ſailed.

By letters from Leghorn we are aſſured, that no leſs than 22 tranſports, laden with French troops, have lately ſailed from Corſica to the Continent. The men are in general very ſickly, occaſioned by the exceſſive heat of the weather, and the hardſhips they were obliged to undergo in the reduction of that iſland.

We hear that Major Rogers, late Governor of Michilimakinec, who ſo remarkably diſtinguiſhed himſelf during the late war in North-America, has given the moſt convincing proofs, ſince his arrival in London, of his innocence with reſpect to the late charges maliciouſly bro't againſt him by his enemies.

Monday ſome diſpatches were ſent to the Commiſſioners of Portſmouth and Plymouth, ſaid to be relative to the fitting out ſeveral men of war for immediate ſervice.

Sept. 18 A letter from Conſtantinople, dated Aug. 17, ſays, “ This moment are brought to the Seraglio the heads of the Vizier and Pacha of Three Tails.”

Letters from Rochelle mention that the French merchants have already greatly availed themſelves of the diſputes between Great-Britain and her Colonies, by pouring into North-America large quantities of their manufactures, which it will be hardly poſſible to prevent being ſmuggled on different parts of ſo extenſive a coaſt.

Oct. 3. The Corſican Chief will not, as has been reported, pay a viſit to a certain popular priſoner, as, it is ſaid, he has been ſtrongly prejudiced againſt that gentleman b the accounts he has received from perſon, in whom he places grea confidence. And beſides, it i whiſpered, that the M——y ha bought him off from engaging wit the Bill of Rights people, by a p—n

By a perſon juſt arrived fron A-t--ſb--gh, we hear, there are grea apprehenſion of a Revolution there

By a perſon who arrived from Peterſburgh, we hear, there are grea apprehenſions of a revolution there from a jealouſy that the preſent w is a war of the Empreſs, unconne ted with the State; and the peop in general ſeem to be of opinio there, that the event of it will, in ſhort time, determine a revolt.

The language of the petitio from the city of York is ſo powe ful, and the terms ſo deceiſive, th it is laying the axe immediately the root: and the M—— are grea ly chagrined at it, as they know how they ſhall be able to parry formidable a blow.

Sept. 14. A letter from A bury adviſes an account of the p ceedings there, on the 11th relat to petitioning: All the morni the freeholders came in lare bodi from every quarter, and about no they aſſembled at the county h The ſpeakers were, Earl Ver their member, Mr. Aubery m bey for Wallingford, the Hon. Hambden, Mr. Calcraft, Mr. mund Burke, member for We ver, he ſpoke for near an hour pu e, eloquent, and rhetorical m ner, truly Ciceronian, which well known to be maſter of: petition is confined to the rig election only, and was agreed without one diſſenting voive. Th proceeded to ſign, Earl Temp was there—and gave all encoua ment poſſible, but as a Peer, c not ſign it.) At Dinner many al and conſtitutional toaſts drank; one in particular, give Mr. Obrien, “ may unanimity ſiſt among the three brothe meaning Lord Temple, Lord C ham, and the Hon George G ville; which was received great eclat; upon which Lord ——ſtept forward and ad them thus:

Gentlemen and Fellow Freeh

I have the pleaſure to aſſur on my honour, there is the g unanimity among us. It ambition, it is my determinat and I have authority from them to aſſure you that they will ſupport this and every Conſtitutional meaſure for the general good.”

NEW-YORK, Dec. 7.

On Tueſday Evening arrived here the Ship Wallworth, Capt. Connelly D'Cauſland, in 7 weeks from Liverpool, who has brought, we hear, an Engliſh Paper to the 20th of October, but we could not obtain a Sight of it. The principal Articles of News contain'd in that and the Letters of the ſame Date, are, we are inform'd ——That the Ruſſians had taken the Fortreſs of Chocizim with 7000 Priſoners, and a great Quantity of Warlike Stores, &c.——That the Ruſſian Fleet arrived at Portſmouth, had, with Leave of the Britiſh Govr't taken into pay a conſiberable Number of Engliſh Lieutenants and were to ſail for the Mediterranean the firſt fair Wind, That it appearing by a great Number of Petitions, from all Parts of the Kingdom, preparing or preſented to his Majeſty, and by other Proofs, to be the general Senſe of the Nation, that the Parliament ſhould be diſſolved, a Diſſolution was adviſed and was very ſoon expected,—That Lord Chatham was often in Conferrence with his Majeſty, and appear'd to have much of his Confidence. That the Livery of London had inſtructed their Members to impeach Lord Holland, who had precipitantly left England and was ſailed for Legborn. That Lord Bute had alſo left, or was ſoon expected to leave England. That at the Meeting of the Freeholders of Devonſhire on the 8th of October, Dr. Muſgrave had made a remarkable Speech, on the Subject of his Letter to them, lately publiſh'd; That upon the Occaſion, Serjeant Glynn ſpoke a long Time, with an Eloquence even ſurpaſſing Mr. Pitt, and was ſeconded by another Gentleman.—That the People aſſembled, voted their Thanks to theſe three Gentlemen, and alſo to the Freeholders of Middleſex, for the Spirit and Reſolution they had ſhewn in aſſerting their conſtitutional Rights.——That the Court of France had agreed with the Pope, to exchange the Iſland of Corſica for the Territory of Avignon, in France, and that the Court of Great-Britain had conferred a Penſion of £.1000 per Ann: upon General Paoli.

BOSTON, Dec. 6.

THE 1ſt Inſtant died here the Rev. Mr. SAMUEL CHECKLEY, ſenior paſtor of the New-South Church, in the 74th year of his age, and 51ſt of his miniſtry: And this afternoon his remains were very decently interred by the Society to which he miniſtred, and very reſpectfully attended.

HARTFORD, Dec. 11.

Laſt Friday Andrew Elliot, Eſq; Andrew Oliver, Eſq; Samuel Morris, Eſq; and Jared Ingerſoll, Eſq; Commiſſioners under the Great Seal of Great Britain, for ſettling the Boundary Line between New-York, and New-Jerſey, met in this Place, agreable to Adjournment in October laſt.

Strayed or Stolen from the Subſcriber of Weathersfield about the middle of Nov. laſt, a bay or Cheſtnut colour'd Mare, with a bald face, 4 white feet, both paces & trots, her main cut off, 4 years old paſt, branded on her fore hoof, R. W. ſhod all round, when ſhe went away. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Mare and return her to the ſubſcriber, ſhall have a reaſonable reward and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JUSTUS RILEY.

Weathersfield Dec. 9, 1769.

WHereas there is a diſpute, about the qualifications for ſpecial ordinances, viz. Baptiſm and the Lords Supper, lately revived by Dr. Bellamy and others, it is now propoſed to re-print by Subſcription,

Mr. Stoddard's Appeal to the Learned

Being a vindication of the right of viſible Saints to the Lord's Supper, tho' they be deſtitute of a ſaving work of the ſpirit of GOD, on their hearts againſt the exceptions of Mr. Mather and others.

The price to the ſubſcribers only ſtitch'd, will be about One Shilling L. Money.

Subſcriptions are taken in by Deac. Silas Kellogg, at Sheffield, Doct. Timothy Hoſmer in Farmington, and by the Printers hereof.

BROKE Out of the County Goal in Hartford, laſt night, the following Perſons committed for Theft, viz. Iſaac Davis, Thomas Spencer, Tranſient Perſons. Alſo, John Danx, a Tranſient Perſon, laſt from Weathersfield. Alſo, John Grimes a Tranſient Perſon, laſt from Windſor. Alſo, Patrick Fleming, who was committed for ſome Criminal conduct. Whoever ſhall take up either of the above-mentioned Perſons, and return them to the keeper of the Goal in Hartford, ſhall have TWENTY SHILLINGS Lawful Money Reward, for each, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

EZEKIEL WILLIAMS, Sheriff.

Hartford, November 25, 1769.

Lanbier Leiſcouet,

(Clock and Watch Maker from Paris)

At the Sign of the Clock in King-Street, HARTFORD,

HEREBY informs the Public, that he has removed from the Shop of Mr. James Tiley, to one oppoſite the Store of Meſſieurs Lathrop & Smith, where he continues to make and mend, Repeating and Plain WATCHES, of all kinds, on the moſt reaſonable Terms.

Any Watch that he ſhall mend, which ſhall not go true he will rectify GRATIS.

WE the Subſcribers being appointed by the hon. Judge of Probate for the Diſtrict of Middletown, Commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of James Wilſon, of Chatham deceas'd (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the houſe of Abiel Cheney, innholder in ſaid Chatham, on the firſt Mondays of Dec. and Jan. and the laſt Monday of Feb. next, from two to ſix o'clock afternoon.

DAVID SAGE, }
SAMUEL HALL, } Commiſſioners
MOSES BARTLET. }

Chatham, 27th, Nov. 1769.

To be ſold at public vendue, by Pelatiah Pierce and Aſhbel Steel, at the houſe of Captain Timothy Seymour, on the 14th Day of December inſtant,

A Bout Nine acres of land, with a dwelling houſe and barn thereon, ſituate in Hartford Weſt-Diviſion, within a quarter of a mile of the meeting houſe very commodious for a tavern, tradeſman or trader. The Terms of ſale will then and there be made known.

N. B. Beſt of Soal-Leather to be ſold by Pelatiah Pierce, for caſh or Hides, at his ſtore in Hartford.

Hartford, Dec. 4, 1769.

WE the ſubſcribers, being appointed by the hon. judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners, to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Capt. SAMUEL WELLS late of Hartford deceas'd, (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the late dwelling houſe of the ſaid WELLS in ſaid Hartford, on the ſecond Tueſdays of Dec. Jan. Feb. and the firſt and ſecond Tueſdays of March next.

JONATHAN STANLY, }
ELISHA PITKIN. } Commiſſioners.

Hartford, Dec. 1, 1769.

STRAYED or Stolen from the Subſcriber of Hartford, on the 19th inſtant, a large Bay HORSE, fourteen hands and a half high, about ten years old, a natural pacer, having ſundry white ſpots on his back, branded with C. B. on the near Hoof, whoever ſhall take up, and ſecure ſaid Horſe, ſo that the owner may have him, ſhall have all neceſſary charges paid him therefor, and if ſaid Horſe be Stolen, TWO DOLLARS Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid for returning the Horſe to the Subſcriber, and the Thief ſecured ſo as to be brought to juſtice.

CALEB BULL.

Hartford, Nov. 27, 1769.

ALL perſons indebted to the eſtate of URI HILL, late of Goſhen deceas'd, either by book or note, are hereby deſired to ſettle the ſame, by the firſt of Jan. next, or they may expect to be ſued without any further notice.

ANNA BEECH, Executor.

Goſhen, 24th Nov. 1769

Now in the Preſs, and in a few Days will be publiſhed,

Ames's Almanack,

For 1770.

To be ſold at the Houſe of Mrs Margaret Chenevard, in Hartford,

GOOD Madeira and Liſbon WINE, Barbados RUM, ANNICESEED WATER, CHOCOLATE, SNUFF of the beſt Kind, &c. &c. &c.

PROPOSALS,

For the Continuance of the CONNECTICUT COURANT.

As it appears to be the general Deſire of our Cuſtomers, from the Conſideration of their own and the common Benefit, that the Publication of our weekly News-Paper ſhould be ſtill continued; it is therefore hereby propoſed that they ſhall be gratified on the following Terms, viz.

1. That the Annual Price of a Paper ſhall be SIX SHILLINGS as has been uſual.

2. That (conſidering the Neceſſity of ready Money to carry on the Buſineſs) THREE SHILLINGS in Caſh be paid at Entrance, and the Remainder in Caſh or country produce at Caſh Price, at the year's End, by all thoſe who ſhall newly Sign, and by others who have been in Arrears more than a Year: otherwiſe they may expect their reſpective Papers will be diſcontinued after the Term mentioned in our late public Advertiſement.-------As to others of our Cuſtomers who have not been thus delinquent, they may expect their Papers will be continued as heretofore, and upon the ſame Terms.-------Upon the above Encouragement, we ſhall ever be ready to oblige them in the beſt manner we are able.

N.B. Thoſe who may have Advertiſements to inſert in this Paper, are deſired to ſend them by Saturday Noon, accompanied with the Pay, without which they will not be inſerted.

STray'd or ſtolen from the ſubſcriber of Eaſt Hartford, on the night after the 1ſt inſt. a ſorrel Mare, about 14 hands and half high, paces and trots, white face, both hind feet white, towards half way up to her ham, a white ſpot juſt back of her ſhoulder, branded with A, upon her left ſhoulder, her left eye wall. Whoever will take up ſaid Mare, and return her to the owner, ſhall have FOUR DOLLARS reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JONATHAN HILLS, Eſq;

Eaſt Hartford Nov. 9. 1769.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Heart and Crown in Hartford,

REMARKS,

On Dr. Gale's Letter to

J. W. Eſquire.

STRAY'D or ſtolen, from the ſubſcriber of Eaſt Hartford, about the 3d or 4th inſt. a bay mare, about 14 hands high, both paces and trots, branded with the letter A on her left ſhoulder, and with the letters C B on her left thigh, not plain to be ſeen, lately had a wart cut off her breaſt, where is a ſmall ſcar or wart to be ſeen. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid mare, and (if ſtolen) ſecure the thief, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice, and the mare recovered, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

EPHRAIM WILLIAMS.

Eaſt Hartford, Oct 20 1769.

HARTFORD.
Printed by Green and Watſon.

Juſt Publiſhed and to be ſold at the Printing-Office, Hartford.

That there is but one

Covenant, Whereof BAPTISM and the LORD's SUPPER are Seals, viz. The Covenant of Grace, proved from the Word of GOD, and the Doctrine of an external graceleſs Covenant, lately advanced by the Rev. Mr. MOSES MATHER; in a Pamphlet, entituled, The viſible Church in Covenant with God, &c. Shewed to be an unſcriptural Doctrine.

To which is prefixed,

An Anſwer to a Dialogue concerning the Half-Way-Covenant:

Lately printed at New London.

By JOSEPH BELLAMY, D. D.

T. Hopkins,

At his STORE, oppoſite the North-Meeting Houſe, Hartford.

HAS juſt received a General Aſſortment of Engliſh GOODS, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable terms, for Caſh or Produce in hand.

The PRINTERS to their CUSTOMERS.

WOuld inform, that by Reaſon of the unexpected & Perſevering Negligence of far the greater Part of our Cuſtomers, in reſpect of Payment, or balancing Accounts, we are obliged to think of diſcontinuing the Publication of our weekly Paper; which, unleſs prevented by previous Settlements, we have determined will take Place on the 11th of December next, which will compleat the ſixth Year ſince its firſt Publication.

We beg Leave to addreſs our delinquent Cuſtomers, in the Language of Civility, and with a Deference due to the Character of Perſons, either of Probity, Honeſty and Veracity, or, of Humanity, Honor, and Ingenuity; in either of which, we are aſſured they will take no Offence, at our once more calling upon them for a Settlement. As we have, Gentlemen, been at great Expence to ſerve you, we would entreat of you, for once, to take into your Conſideration, on the one Hand, the trifling Conſequence it would be to you, to pay the ſum of only Six Shillings, per Ann. eſpecially if paid when it firſt becomes due; and on the other, how intereſting a Matter it is to us, that you ſhould thus do; eſpecially conſidering we have (relying on your Encouragement, as it were) riſk'd the Support of ourſelves and Families on this Footing; — and alſo, as the Continuance of the Buſineſs of Printing in this Place does entirely depend upon it.

We aſſure our Cuſtomers, that ſince the Commencement of the Partnerſhip between us, we have not received from them, upon an Average, ſo much as Two Shillings out of Six, of what has been due from them; which has not been ſufficient even to defray the Expence of clean Paper, we have uſed in the Buſineſs. And as our Capital is very ſmall, and as (to oblige our Cuſtomers) we have run ourſelves deeply in Debt; ſo we are ſorry to tell them, that, without the requeſted Relief, we muſt be obliged to ſerve them no longer than the Time forementioned. Their ſettling, or not ſettling with us, therefore, by that Time, we can do no other than conſtrue as the Language of their Hearts, as to whether they mean to have us continue the Paper longer or not.

We ſtand ready to receive our Dues in Caſh, Country Produce, or their Obligations: Or if they have any Method more reaſonable to propoſe, we ſtand ready to hear them.

Our having repeatedly (tho' almoſt fruitleſsly) reminded you of theſe Matters, will amply apologize for the Plainneſs with which we now treat them. We hope we ſhall not be obliged to offer you any further Trouble of this Kind——And that by the Favour of our Cuſtomers, we may be able ſo to diſcharge our own Obligations, as to ſerve them and the Public in a better Manner than we have hitherto been able to do, by continuing the Buſineſs in this Place.

Nor would we here diſmiſs the Subject without firſt paying our thankful Acknowledgments of the Favours of many of our Cuſtomers, who have not only favoured us with their Cuſtom, but have alſo been to a good Degree punctual, as well as generous in ſettling their Accounts according to previous Engagements. We are their's, and the Public's Humble Servants,

GREEN & WATSON.

N. B. Thoſe Perſons in Arrears in the Town of Simſbury, are deſired to make Payment to Capt. Jonathan Humphrys; and thoſe in the Town of Suffield, to Mr. Seth Auſtin, with whom their reſpective Accounts are left,——and at the Time limitted above, we will ſend for our Pay, and hope not to be diſappointed of receiving it.

☞ Thoſe that live near, and chooſe to pay in Wood, are deſired not to omit bringing of it by the Time before mentioned.

TO BE SOLD

At the houſe of Nathaniel Porter,

in Eaſt-Windſor, at public Vendue, or private ſale, on the 3d Tueſday of November next, ſix Pieces of Land in the Occupation of Thomas Elmer. Ten Acres of good Meadow. Ten Acres beſt upland Paſture near the Poſt Road, and the Reſidue large Tracts of well wooded and timbered OutLand. Alſo, four hundred Acres of Land lying on Mankerooſen Brook, in ſaid Eaſt Windſor, on which a good Sawmill was formerly erected.

Alſo to be ſold, a Farm of one hundred Acres, and the third Part of a good Griſt-Mill in Hebron, in the Poſſeſſion of Joſeph Skinner. For Terms apply to

TITUS HOSMER.

Singing-Books

TO BE SOLD BY

Lathrop & Smith,

In Hartford, viz.

TANSURS Royal Melody Compleat at 5/4 ſingle, or 5/ by the dozen—Williams's univerſal Pſalmodiſt at 7/—A new edition of Arnolds compleat Pſalmodiſt, with large additions printed in 1769 at 7/—And a new edition of Knibbs Pſalm Singers help, with large additions at 5/ all on a good paper, and well bound.

☞ They have alſo a large aſſortment of other Books, which they will ſell cheap for Caſh, Pork or Grain in hand.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

J. Morton,

At his Store in Hartford, on the North ſide the Green in the Houſe of Mrs. Sarah Edwards,

HAS a good Aſſortment of Dry Goods, Iron-Mongery, Earthen Ware, Glaſs Ware, and beſt London Pewter, blown and Rock Salt

N. B. Said Morton intending for Europe, in the Fall, will ſell off what goods he has on hand, very low for Caſh or Produce.

MONDAY, Dec. 25. 1769.
Numb 261.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

Eq Strong

THE ſubſcriber having rode poſt almoſt four years, finds it abſolutely neceſſary to come to a general ſettlement with his cuſtomers to prevent any miſtakes that may happen in his accounts, not only by means of the length of time, but alſo as he is obliged to keep them in a ſmall pocket book, which by frequent uſing wears out in a few months, and thereby occaſions a transfer of them, and notwithſtanding all the care he can take will ſubject him to ſome omiſſion; he therefore intends to bring them to a cloſe with number 270, and hopes his good cuſtomers will be kind enough to meet him at the places where their reſpective papers are lodged upon thoſe days on which he commonly reaches the ſtages, that they may adjuſt the ſame.

He would not have any of his employers imagine that he intends to diſcontinue the buſineſs after that time, he ſtill hopes to have the pleaſure of ſerving them to their ſatisfaction in the ſame way, but his fixing upon a particular time for the ſettlement of the whole was, that for the future every mans account ſhould begin at the ſame time, which will ſave him a great deal of trouble in the ſettling of them, and render them not ſo much ſubject to error as before.——Compliance with the above will much oblige your very humble ſervant,

William Stanton.

N. B. Thoſe perſons who have dropped the papers and not been kind enough to make pay, are deſired to look upon this Advertiſement as a call upon them to remember their duty.

'Tis money makes the mare to go.

LONDON, October 18.

THE following particulars of the ſucceſs of the Ruſſians over the Turks, on the Banks of the Neiſter, have been communicated, by expreſs from Peterſburgh to the Ruſſian Miniſter; and may be depended on, coming from unexceptionable authority.

Beſides the firſt action, of which ſome particulars have been given, of the defeat and deſtruction of ſixteen thouſand men of the Ottoman army, which paſſed the Neiſter, and their communication interrupted by the failure of their Bridge, another body of ſixty thouſand, who croſſed that river afterwards, were attacked and repulſed with great loſs. This occaſioning great diſcontent in the Turkiſh army, the Ruſſians took advantage of the opportunity, and croſſed the Neiſter, and attacked the enemy's camp, forced it, cauſing a total diſperſion of the whole body, and gaining poſſeſſion of the camp.

The ſlaughter of the Turks in above mentioned action is exceeding great, and computed at no leſs than twenty thouſand men; the number of priſoners is proportionable. The Ruſſians have gained a great quantity of cannon and ſtores, beſides a very large booty of other kinds.

The rout of the Turks was followed by the immediate taking of Choczim; of which fortreſs, together with its artillery, ſtores, &c the Ruſſians were in actual poſſeſſion, when the expreſs, which brought this intelligence, came away.

From the ſame quarters we are informed, that the remaining part of the Ruſſian fleet, which arrived in the Humber a few days ago, are now got ſafe to Spithead; and that they have ſuffered no loſs except a pink or ſmall ſtore ſhip, which went aground in coming out of the Baltic. However, ſtores were ſaved.

M. De Paſſow, Daniſh Conſul General in this kingdom, has received orders dated the 3d inſt. to ſignify, that the king of Denmark will, without delay, take all neceſſary meaſures and precautions to ſecure the navigation of his ſubjects and his flag in the Mediterranean; and that the intended ſuccour may ſoon be expected.

By advices from Toulon, we hear that the Chevalier d'Oppede was juſt ſet out with poſitive orders to make a ſecond demand of the Corſican veſſels ſeized by the Regency of Tunis, while under French colours; and, in caſe of refuſal, to inform the Bey that a naval force would be immediately diſpatched againſt him.

L O N D O N.

Orders are ſent to Portſmouth, to ſupply the Ruſſian fleet with any aſſiſtance they may want, if they ſhould appear in ſight of that place.

Thurſday night the Coalheavers joined the rioters in Spittalfield, and did incredible damage to ſeveral of the maſter weavers, by deſtroying their looms and the work in them.

The King of the Two Sicilies has marched a corps of 4000 infantry and 600 horſe into the eccleſiaſtical State, in order to obviate any ill effects which might ariſe from reforming the ſociety of Jeſuits.

We hear that the Earl of Harcourt will go again as Ambaſſador to the court of France, and is to ſet out ſome time this month for Paris.

His Excellency Sir James Wright, miniſter to the Republick of Venice, who he a few days ſince arrived, has brought advices which it is ſaid will produce very ſalutary effects to this kingdom.

Several bets are already made on return of L— H—— to this kingdom; the odds are that he never viſits it again.

And it is now currently reported, that another N——n, who hath lately been the ſubject of a popular writer, will ſoon ſet out for the ſouth of France.

Extract of a letter from Portſmouth, dated October 4.

"We have two Ruſſian men of war at Spithead; one of them a large 74 gun ſhip. Several of the officers have been on ſhore; they are really clever ſightly men, conducting themſelves with an eaſy and genteel politeneſs; the account they give of their fleet is, that they were ſeperated from them in the North Sea in a hard gale of wind; that they conſiſted of fourteen ſail of the line, and upwards of twenty ſail of tranſports; that they expect them here, and we have been informed that they have been lately ſeen off North Yarmouth.

Oct. 22. It is reported, that a ſuppoſed defaulter has actually remitted near 300.000 ſterling to be depoſited in ſome of the principal foreign banks in Europe.

After the buſineſs relating to the election of a Lord Mayor, was over at Guildhall on Tueſday evening Mr. Lovell came forward, and propoſed to the livery the following reſolutions, which were unanimouſly agreed to, viz.

At the Guildhall London, 10th of Oct. 1769.

At a meeting of the livery of London, in Common Hall aſſembled,

Reſolved, That the Lord Mayor be aſked if his Lordſhip hath received an anſwer to the petition of the livery of London, to his Majeſty, which prayed for the redreſs of various grievances, the removal of evil counſellors, and the diſſolution of the preſent Parliament.

Reſolved, That the Lord Mayor be called upon to produce the letter which his Lordſhip received from Lord Holland, dated Holland houſe Kenſington, July the 9th, 1769.

Reſolved, That Lord Holland was the perſon whom we, the livery of London in our late petition to the throne, for the redreſs of grievances, &c. affirmed to be the public defaulter of unaccounted millions.

Reſolved, That it is the duty of our repreſentative to obtain if poſſible, an honeſt proper and parliamentary enquiry into the conduct and accounts of Henry Lord Holland.——

And, when it ſhall appear on ſuch enquiry, that Henry Lord Holland has, by unneceſſary delays, detained the public money for years in his hands, and appropriated the intereſt thereof to his own uſe, and has alſo, by various pretences, obtained repeated impediments to public juſtice, and, by various miſrepreſentations, induced our Sovereign to ſtay the legal proceedings againſt him, thereby endeavouring to leſſen that reſpect that is due to his Majeſty, and introduce a power ſuperior to that of law, the uſe and diſuſe of which, creates the diſtinction between monarchy and tyranny;

Reſolved, That then it will become, in the higheſt degree, the duty of our Repreſentatives in Parliament, to endeavour that Henry Lord Holland be impeached, that he may be an example to all future Miniſters, and ſhew them how dangerous it is to enrich themſelves with the public treaſure and ſport with the rights of a free people.

Reſolved, That theſe reſolutions be entered by the Town Clerk in the Record Books of this city,——as part of the proceedings of the livery at the election of a Lord Mayor of this city for the year 1770; and that a copy of theſe reſolutions, ſigned by the Sheriffs, be delivered to each of our Repreſentatives in Parliament.

The Lord Mayor in his anſwer to the quiſition of the livery, acknowledged the receipt of a letter from Lord Holland, and that the copy which appeared in the papers was a true one; but ſaid he left it to Lord Holland to juſtify himſelf for having publiſhed his anſwer, and to reconcile it, if he could, with the character of a gentleman.

On Sunday the 8th inſtant Lord Holland went through Canterbury, and on Monday embarked at Dover, on his paſſage to France.

A friend to juſtice ſays, to ſee the defaulter of millions, defrauder of the poor ſoldiers, the plunderer of the public treaſure, the underminer of this country, go off unpuniſhed, after having had honours heaped upon him, during the courſe of his unfaithful ſervices, as if, like Manlius, he had ſaved the capitol or like another Scipio, drawn Hanibal from our gates, and ſubdued a rival Carthage, is an event of which no hiſtory can furniſh an example.

A letter from York dated October 10, ſays "We are informed that ſo great is the ſpirit of the freeholders in moſt parts of this county for the ſupport of the rights of the electors of Great-Britain in general, that they ſtrive who ſhall be the foremoſt to ſign the petition to be preſented to his Majeſty on that ſubject.—By the beſt accounts that have been received, there are 5000 who have already ſigned it; amongſt whom we are aſſured, that no leſs than 14 are members of Parliament."

The augmentation of troops on the Iriſh eſtabliſhment, which it is thought will meet with a warm oppoſition, is to amount to three thouſand.

As there ſeems a probability in England, it is ſuppoſed that the miniſtry have, under a different colour, propoſed an augmentation to a neighbouring kingdom, from whence they may be ſoon tranſported in caſe of an emergency.

Extract of a letter from Exon Oct. 6.

"This day the county meeting came on, when Dr. Muſgrave produced a petition, which had been ſigned by Major [illegible], of the eaſtern battalion of militia, and was univerſally approved of. Mr. Serjeant Glynn, Recorder of this city, ſpoke for near an hour, in the moſt ſpirited and Roman-like manner, and was ſeconded by Dr. Muſgrave.—Lord [illegible] and Mr. Spooner, objected, and having oppoſed the petition, was anſwered alternately by the Doctor.——After the petition was approved of, (together with ſome ſpirited inſtructions to the Knights of the ſhire) Lord [illegible]—— went out at the back door, to avoid the populace; but being diſcovered, was purſued, hiſſed, and hooted at, from the Caſtle to the houſe he took refuge in.—Sir [illegible]; was ſerved in the ſame manner.—Counſellor Short ſpoke unpopularly, and was hiſſed and ſhamed. John Parker, Eſq; our knight of the ſhire, behaved exceeding well on this occaſion by ſtepping forward, and offering his ſervices to preſent the petition to his Majeſty, in which he was ſeconded by a worthy ſheriff, Sir Thomas Ackland and Sir John Rogers, Barts.——Mr. Serjeant Glynn made a motion, that the thanks of this county be preſented to the worthy freeholders of Middleſex, for their ſteady attachment to the cauſe of Liberty, which was unanimouſly aſſented to, and the ſame is ordered to be advertiſed under the name of the Sheriffs.

The petition is now ſigning, and it is thought a conſiderable number will be to it by eleven o'clock this evening.—It is computed there were at leaſt 5000 freeholders aſſembled."

It is ſaid the Ruſſian fleet have orders to rendezvous in the bay of Gibralter, previous to their voyage up the Levant.

By a private letter from Madrid we are informed that the frequent return of couriers between that court and Verſailles gives riſe to conjectures that matters of great importance are on the tapis.

A Rope maker in Rotherhithe, who uſed annually to export cordage, to the value of 500l. ſterl. to North-America, has not for the laſt two years ſent thither, to the amount of 50l. and there is reaſon to fear, this branch of trade, among many others, will be irrecoverably loſt to Great-Britain.

Oct. 14. Yeſterday morning, after Mr. Beckford had reſolved to gratify the importunities of the Livery of London, he acquainted the deputation who waited upon him, that he would go down to Fonthill for a few days to ſettle his private affairs, that he ſhould then have an opportunity of giving up his whole time to the execution of the important truſt repoſed in him by the city. Mr. Beckford after this withdrew for a few minutes, and returned with the following letter, which he requeſted the Sheriffs to deliver the preſent Lord Mayor.

Oct. 12, 1769.

"My Lord Mayor,

"I cannot reſiſt the importunate requeſt of my fellow citizens; their deſires have overcome reſolutions that I once tho't were fixed and determined.

"The feeble efforts of a worn-out man to ſerve them can never anſwer their ſanguine expectations.

"I will do my beſt, and will ſacrifice eaſe and retirement, the chief comforts of old age, to their wiſhes: I will accept the office of Lord Mayor.

"I ſhall hope for the aſſiſtance of your Lordſhip, and my brethren of the court of Aldermen; the advantage and good effects of their advice were experienced on many occaſions in my late Mayoralty, by your Lordſhip's

"Moſt obedient

"faithful ſervant,

WILLIAM BECKFORD.

The conſequence of Dr. Muſgrave's addreſs are now variouſly talked of; however it is not to be doubted, if he holds faſt his integrity, but the nation, into whoſe ſervice he has enliſted himſelf, will ſtrenuouſly ſupport him againſt every attack that may be made on him by thoſe whom he has pointed out as traitors to their country.

This morning at half an hour paſt one, a dreadful fire broke out in the houſe of Mr. Oſborn, a lace weaver, in Star-court, Butcher row, near Temple bar, which in a few hours conſumed that and twenty four dwelling-houſes, beſides damaging many others.

The Devonſhire petition is very ſpirited, & contains the ſame prayer with that from the county of York, a diſſolution of the Parliament.

Oct. 17. We are adviſed by letters from Leghorn, that there are no leſs than thirty-ſix Tuniſian Corſairs actually now at ſea, and that the Bey himſelf is making a cruize with ſome half gallies.

The Algerines have alſo eighteen large ſhips now at ſea.

They write from the Hague, that the States General had come to a reſolution to augment the land forces of the Republic to ninety battalions and ſeventy ſquadrons.

It is ſaid there is expected in the firſt packet from Germany, news that all Europe will ſhortly be engaged in a war, ſo that the M——y are not a little elated, as it will in a great meaſure abate the enquiry about domeſtic affairs.

They write from Gibralter, that a Saletine corſair, of thirty guns, had taken a rich French Guineaman, near cape Finiſterre, and carried her into Fedal.

We are informed, that the King of France has given orders to the Commiſſioners of his dock yard at Breſt, to build ſix bomb-veſſels with the utmoſt expedition.

PHILADELPHIA.

Extract of a letter from London, October 9.

It is expected the parliament will not meet till very late, and as there are many things that muſt engroſs their attention, we expect the American affairs will not be attended to in ſuch time as could be wiſhed, ſo that if a [illegible] takes place, it will moſt likely interfere with the regular ſeaſon of export; but at preſent it is difficult to form a proper judgment of matters. We wiſh ſome prudence may be the governing principles, as we think the preſent ſituation of things in general is very critical.

BOSTON, Dec. 11.

We hear that a Veſſel is arriv'd at Marblehead in a ſhort Paſſage from Falmouth, which brings an Account, That the Ruſſian Fleet conſiſting of 15 capital Ships and a Number of Tranſports were arriv'd in the Channel of England——That the French were fitting out a large Fleet at Toulon, in Order, 'twas tho't to intercept them in the Spring.—That a Corſican Prieſt had rallied all thoſe brave Iſlanders who ſtill adhered to their Liberties, gave Battle to and entirely routed a large Body of the French Troops and when the Corſicans came to bury their own dead, they found a conſiderable Number of Women of their own Nation, who fell in the Defence of their Country and the Cauſe of Liberty.——And that there was as great Parliamenteering all over England, as if a new Choice was ſoon to take Place.

From Freetown, we hear that a Child was lately born there, who at the Time of his Birth, was Uncle to Ninety-nine Perſons then living, a few Days after another Child was born, to whom he was Uncle, which compleated the Number of a Hundred, and that the eldeſt Brother of the firſt named Child is now in the 74th Year of his Age.

By Capt. Haſſey, juſt arrived from Cagliari in the Iſland of Sardinia, we are informed, that the Sardinians are very uneaſy about their new neighbours the French, ſince their conqueſt of Corſica, being apprehenſive, before long of ſharing the ſame fate.

On the 17th November, at 9 A. M. as Capt. Lightburn lay at Anchor in the Harbour of St. Thomas, he heard a great Rumbling, and immediately felt a great ſhock, which made the veſſel tremble in ſuch a manner that it moved all the caſk in the hold; it continued about 3 minutes.

We hear from North Carolina, that about the 3d or 4th of November, the General Aſſembly of that Colony met at Newbern, and two or 3 Days after, his Excellency William Tryon, Eſq; the Governor, diſſolved the Aſſembly, the Cauſe of which ſeems to be ſomething he diſapproved in the Management of their public Funds.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.

Extract of a letter from London, September 29.

"I have been talking with a Gentleman well acquainted with American affairs, am ſorry to tell you, that ſo far from truth was the report you mention, that we are rather of opinion, the revenue acts will not be repealed at all, at leaſt not in ſo full a manner, as to anſwer any good purpoſe. Indeed the proſpect is very unfavourable, both for the people here, and in the colonies. We have been, and ſtill are, blind to our trueſt intereſt, and when too late, ſhall diſcover how much we have been in the wrong."

NEW-YORK, Dec. 21.

We hear the Honourable GEORGE DUNCAN LUDLOW, Eſq; is appointed one of the Judges of the Supreme Court of this Colony, in the Room of the Hon. William Smith, Eſq; deceaſed.

Extract of a Letter from Penſacola, dated Nov. 10.

"In my laſt I ſent you a Liſt of the French Inhabitants at New-Orleans, which General O'Riely had confined as Rebels; ſince which they have had their Trials, & ſentenced as follows, which was put in Execution about 10 Days ago, viz. LeFrenier, Attorney General; De Marquiz, De Noyant Officers and Knights of St. Lewis; Pierre Carreſſe, and Pettit [illegible] Merchants, ſhot. De Mazant, Garie Douſſet, Poupett, Millet, Sen. and Millet, Jun. to be confined for 10 Years in the Moro, and Fougalt, the Intendant, ſent Priſoner to France."

Laſt night arrived the Ship Counteſs of Donegal, Capt. Pym, in 6 Weeks from Dublin. The public Papers by Capt. Pym contain nothing remarkable. He reports, that Sir Henery Littleton was appointed Governor of New-York.

Boſton, December 18.

Laſt Thurſday Noon departed this Life, nearly Compleated the 73d Year of his Age, Mr. SAMUEL KNEELAND, formerly an eminent Printer in this Town: He ſuſtained the Character of an upright Man and as ſuch was univerſally eſteem'd. He was employed as a Printer to the Governor and Council as well as the Houſe of Repreſentatives of this province for a great Number of Years; till thro' Age and bodily Infirmities he was obliged to leave off Buſineſs. His Funeral was very reſpectfully attended on Saturday Evening.

BOSTON, Decem. 21.

On the 3d of this inſt. between 1 and 2 o'Clock on the Lord's day morning, one Patrick Freeman, a ſoldier of the 29th regiment, broke into the houſe of Capt. James Brett, at the north end, and was heard by a woman who lived in part of the ſame, who immediately roſe out of bed, put on a looſe gound, and entered the room; the firſt ſight that preſented was this ſoldier with a lighted candle looking in a deſk drawer; upon which ſhe immediately ſeized him by the collar, and he then put out the light, but ſhe notwithſtanding kept faſt hold till he by ſome means twiſted himſelf out of her hands, and fell headlong into the ſhop; by this time her daughter came to her aſſiſtance & catched him by the leg, while the former got him again by the collar; and then another daughter came to them and took him by the club of his hair and bro't his head to the ground, while the other held him by the feet on the ſhop-window, then crying out for help, the men ſoon came to their aſſiſtance, bound him & delivered him to the watch who carried him to goal.——There were one or two others with him, but they ran off, and ſundry things were found in his pocket which he had taken out of the deſk.——It is ſaid that this is the fellow who bro't a man and woman into a theft with him at Halifax, where he turn'd King's evidence and had them both hanged.

On Friday laſt the above Patrick Freeman was tried before the Superior Court here for Burglary. The Jury bro't in their Verdict, GUILTY. The Council for Freeman afterwards plead the Benefit of the Clergy, but we have not heard whether it is granted.

We hear that Capt. Nixon, in a Brig belonging to Rhode-Iſland, was to ſail from London for Portſmouth, in New-Hampſhire, ſome time in November, full freighted with Goods for that Place.

NOTICE is hereby given, to the Members of the Medical Corporation in Litchfield County, deſiring all and every Member thereof, without fail, to attend the ſtated Convention, on the third Tueſday of January next, at ſaid Litchfield, in Order to conſult farther what Meaſures to take in the Support of the Memorial of ſaid Corporation, now lying in the General Aſſembly, it having as yet had no public Reading in the Houſe, for ſome particular Reaſons, but has been privately read by moſt of the Members thereof, who generally ſpeak favourably of the ſame. Said Memorial is laid over to the next Seſſion, and 'tis hoped will then meet with the Approbation of the legiſlative Authority.

per JOSEPH PERRY, Agent.
Woodbury, Dec. 16, 1769.

CLOCKS and Watches made in the beſt Manner, by PRESERVED CLAP
of Amherſt.
Likewiſe all Kinds of Inſtruments in Surgery.

TO BE SOLD BY
James Tiley,
Goldſmith, at his Store in King-Street,
HARTFORD,

SILVER ſhoe and Knee Buckles; Cypher'd and brilliant Stone Ear rings, ſet in Gold; ditto in Silver; Stone Rings, &c. with ſundry other Articles.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon. judge of probate for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners to receive and adjuſt the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Eleazer Dickinſon, late of Weathersfield, deceaſed, we therefore hereby notify the creditors to ſaid eſtate, to bring in their claims to us, on the ſecond Tueſdays of Jan. and Feb. next, at the houſe of Abigail Griſwoold in ſaid Weathersfield, as we will attend the buſineſs on each of ſaid days at ſaid place, at 1 o'Clock afternoon.

JOHN ROBBINS, } Commiſſioners.
JOHN AMES }
Weathersfield, Dec. 12th, 1769.

Simſbury Dec. 7, 1769.

STrayed or Stolen, from me the ſubſcriber in ſaid Symſbury, a dark bay Mare, about 14 hands high, well ſpread, natural to her pace branded thus, 8 on the near ſhoulder, one white ſtreak round the middle of each ear, and a white ſtreak in her face, had on a good ſaddle, with deers leather ſeat, and blue plaſh howſen.——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid mare, and convey her to me ſhall have Two Dollars reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by me

MICAH MOOR.

Ames's Almanack,
For 1770.
To be ſold at the Printing-Office.

HARTFORD.
Printed by Green and Watſon.

ANNAPOLIS, November 30.

We hear the Hon. the Lower Houſe of Aſſembly have reſolved to bring in a bill for emitting Bills of Credit, on Loan, to the amount of 300 000 Dollars, in order to ſupply this Province with a circulating Medium at this time much wanted.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.

Extract of a letter from Briſtol, Sept 4. 1769.

"The general topic of converſation among the great is Doctor Muſgrave's letter to the Freeholders of the county of Devon. It ſeems very probable from the attempts which are reported to have been made by the M——y to bribe the Doctor, and the late conduct of the D. of B. that the Doctor has ſome conſiderable diſcovery to make, and they have much to fear. At a late meeting of the quarter ſeſſions, the D. of B. went down to Exeter, in order, it is ſaid, to prevent any petition; but, without ſuſpecting his real cauſe, he was peſted out of town barely eſcaped with his Life. It is alſo reported that Doctor Muſgrave has papers in his poſſeſſion, ſuppoſed to be letters to and from the French court, by which, and by living witneſſes, he can prove that the laſt peace was ſold for a ſtipulated ſum, and that this ſum was actually paid to the M——y then concerned. In ſhort, a R——n ſeems very near in this kingdom. The open and daring inſult offered to public liberty in the laſt Brentford election, and ſome other acts of the like kind, have raiſed the ſpirit of the people to a pitch that will not be eaſily pacified. Our News papers are filled with ſarcaſtical reflections on the K. & M——y, and every man in trade carries with him a face of diſcontent and uneaſineſs. We are uneaſy at governor Bernard's being called home; if the K. chooſes to believe his account of the colonies, it is feared he will deal treacherouſly with them, and perhaps, among other weakneſſes of the c——t, he will be ſent back with full powers to act at his pleaſure. It redounds to your honour, and ſhews you are a people patient in ſufferings, generous and humane, that he eſcaped violence ſo long.

Your ſteady adherence to your excellent reſolutions will have the deſired effect in the next meeting of parliament. Theſe court favourites, who are hated by the people, will then be ready to confer any favour on the public, to conciliate their eſteem; it is therefore thought your acts will be repealed, and the grievances complained of, will be redreſſed."

Extract of a letter from London, dated September 9. 1769.

"Governor Bernard is arrived, and was at court a few days ago; but what will be the determination, with reſpect to America, is yet uncertain. He is not a welcome viſitant to the Miniſtry, as, by his partinacity and fondneſs for deſpotiſm, he has irritated his aſſembly, and urged them to declare their opinion on points, which the Ad——n wiſhed to have been undecided.—The diſpute is now brought to a criſis, as the aſſembly, with great propriety, refuſe to grant money, by direction of the Three Eſtates of this kingdom.—The Americans have (or have not) a right to diſpoſe of their own money; and ſurely it is immaterial to them, whether they are commanded to give it by one part, or by all parts of the Britiſh legiſlature. The ground they ſhould ſtand firmly and undauntedly on, is the diſpoſal of their own money; otherwiſe, from the univerſal prevalence of luxury, corruption, and diſſipation in this kingdom, we ſhall ſoon be broken in our ſpirits, and bankrupted in our fortunes. The Maſſachuſetts aſſembly have reſolved like freemen. And it is not in the power of this kingdom, conſiſtent with its own commerce, to injure the Americans: You have nothing to do but to remain firm to your engagements, and practiſe more oeconomy and induſtry, and all will be well. I am rejoiced at the account you gave me of the ſpirit of manufacturing with us, and that our people have a fondneſs for raiſing ſilk. A ſtranger would imagine, when he heard the Britiſh orators, &c in the houſe of commons, that they were the moſt cordial friends to poor America; but alas! all their declamations mean no more, that as they apprehend the diſpute between the two countries furniſhes them with a good handle to attack the preſent rulers, and expel them from their ſeats; therefore they bellow away in favour of the rights and privileges of their diſtant brethren. But reſt aſſured, and propagate this truth, that if we mean to eſtabliſh our liberties on an immoveable baſis, we muſt not rely on Britiſh patriots, or orators, but muſt do it for ourſelves."

By Capt. Miller, from Savanna le Mar, in Jamaica, we learn, that on the 20th of October a ſloop was brought in there by two Engliſhmen, which had been taken ſome time before by a Spaniſh guarda coſta, who put 6 Spaniſh ſoldiers and an officer, on board and left only the two Engliſhmen to aſſiſt in working the veſſel, with orders to follow the frigate that took them, to Carthagena: but the Engliſhmen altered the ſloop's courſe in the night, and ſteered to the northward, the next day, when the Spaniards loſt ſight of the frigate, they were in great confuſion, as they did not know which way to look for the land, and deſired the Engliſhmen to carry them into ſome Spaniſh port, which they readily promiſed to do, but brought her ſafe to anchor at the above port; the Spaniards were ſo ignorant, they did not know it was an Engliſh port, till they went on ſhore and, to their great ſurprize found none but Engliſh about them. The ſloop belonged to Kingſton.

Juſt Publiſhed and to be ſold at the Printing-Office, Hartford,

That there is but one

Covenat, Whereof BAPTISM and the LORD's SUPPER are Seals, viz. The Covenant of Grace, proved from the Word of GOD, and the Doctrine of an external graceleſs Covenant, lately advanced by the Rev. Mr. MOSES MATHER; in a Pamphlet, entituled, The viſible Church in Covenant with God, &c. Shewed to be an unſcriptural Doctrine.

To which is prefixed,

An Anſwer to a Dialogue concerning the Half-Way-Covenant;

Lately printed at New London.

By JOSEPH BELLAMY, D. D.

WE the ſubſcribers, be appointed by the hon. judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners, to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Capt. SAMUEL WELLS late of Hartford deceaſ'd, (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the late dwelling houſe of the ſaid WELLS in ſaid Hartford, on the ſecond Tueſdays of Dec. Jan. Feb. and the firſt and ſecond Tueſdays of March next.

JONATHAN STANLY, }
ELISHA PITKIN. } Commiſſioners.

Hartford, Dec. 2. 1769.

Singing-Books

TO BE SOLD BY

Lathrop & Smith,

In Hartford, viz.

TANSURS Royal Melody Compleat at 5/4 ſingle, or 5/ by the dozen—Williams's univerſal Pſalmodiſt at 7/—A new edition of Arnolds compleat Pſalmodiſt, with large additions printed in 1769 at 7/—And a new edition of Knibbs Pſalm Singers help; with large additions at 5/ all on a good paper, and well bound.

☞ They have alſo a large aſſortment of other Books, which they will ſell cheap for Caſh, Pork or Grain in hand.

To be ſold at public vendue, by Pelatiah Pierce and Aſhbel Steel, at the houſe of Captain Timothy Seymour, on the 14th Day of December inſtant,

ABout Nine acres of land, with a dwelling houſe and barn thereon, ſituate in Hartford Weſt-Diviſion, within a quarter of a mile of the meeting houſe very commodious for a tavern, tradeſman or trader. The Terms of ſale will then and there be made known.

N. B. Beſt of Soal Leather to be ſold by Pelatiah Pierce, for caſh or Hides, at his ſtore in Hartford.

Hartford, Dec. 4. 1769.

WHereas there is a diſpute, about the qualifications for ſpecial ordinances, viz. Baptiſm and the Lords Supper, lately revived by Dr. Bellamy and others, it is now propoſed to re print by Subſcription,

Mr. Stoddard's

Appeal to the Learned

Being a vindication of the right of viſible ſaints to the Lord's ſupper, tho' they be deſtitute of a ſaving work of the ſpirit of GOD, on their hearts againſt the exceptions of Mr. Mather and others,

The price to the ſubſcribers only ſtitch'd, will be about One Shilling L. Money.

Subſcriptions are taken in by Deac. Silas Kellogg, at Sheffield, Doct. Timothy Hoſmer in Farmington and by the Printers hereof.

Lanbier Leiſcoset,

(Clock and Watch-Maker from Paris)

At the Sign of the Clock in King-Street,

HARTFORD,

HEREBY informs the Public, that he has removed from the Shop of Mr. James Tiley, to one oppoſite the Store of Meſſieurs Lathrop & Smith, where he continues to make & mend, Repeating and Plain WATCHES, of all kinds, on the moſt reaſonable Terms.

Any Watch that he ſhall mend, which ſhall not go true he will rectify GRATIS.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

T. Hopkins,

At his STORE, oppoſite the North-Meeting Houſe, Hartford.

HAS juſt received a General Aſſortment of Engliſh GOODS, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable terms, for Caſh or Produce in hand.

MONDAY JAN. 1, 1770. Numb 262.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

HARTFORD, NEW-YEAR'S DAY, 1770.

A YEAR is no other than a certain Part, Portion, or Period ſet off or detach'd from the whole Series of paſſing TIME: This is meaſured or determined alſo, either by the apparent Rotation or Motion of the Sun, or, rather the real Motion of the Earth in it's annual Orbit: ſtrictly ſpeaking 'tis the Time taken up by the Sun in compleating one entire Revolution through all the Signs of the Zodiac, till it reverts to the ſame Point of the Ecliptic from whence it took it's firſt Departure. This is called a Tropical Year; and contains 365 Natural Days 5 Hours, 48 Min. 57 Sec. very nearly.—This is ſomewhat ſhorter than what is called a Periodical or Sydereal Year: which is the ſpace of Time the Sun ſpends in accompliſhing one Entire Revolution in the Heavens not in Reſpect of the Zodiac (as in the other caſe) but of the fix'd Stars, i. e. while the Sun performs ſuch an entire Revolution as to come to the ſame Point in Reſpect to the fix'd Stars, from which it ſet out.

THE Difference of theſe two Periods ariſes from a very ſmall Motion of Retrogradation obſervable in the equinoctial Points, or the Points of Interſection of the Ecliptic and Equinoctial. This Motion is from Eaſt to Weſt, contrary to the Order of the Signs, or the true Motion of the Heavenly Bodies; by means whereof, this Point of Interſection will ſeem to meet the Sun, and ſo ſhorten it's courſe that it will ſeem to have accompliſhed it's Revolution in the Ecliptic before it really has in reſpect of the Heavens or fix'd Stars. This Retrogreſſion is about 50 ſecond Minutes of a Degree in one Revolution.

As to the Time when the Year does properly begin, there ſeems to be no real Foundation in Nature to determine it abſolutely to any particular Point or ſeaſon: but 'tis commonly treated as a Matter meerly arbitrary and diſcretionary, according to the various Notions, Fancies, Circumſtances, Buſineſſes, or Profeſſions of Perſons of different Sects, Parties or Countries. Yet the moſt natural ſuppoſition it ſeems would fix it at the Inſtant when Time began, or rather when it began to be meaſured by the Motions of thoſe heavenly Bodies which ſerve as annual Chronometers, or Meaſurers of Years.

ASTRONOMY fixes the beginning of the Year at the Inſtant the Sun arrives at the firſt Point in the ſign Aries.†

THE Nation of the Jews, as well as moſt of thoſe of the Eaſt, had both a civil and eccleſiaſtical Year, each Compoſed of Lunar Months; the former commenced on the Day of the firſt New moon which happened after the Autumnal Equinox, which was in their Month Tiſri anſwering to our September or October, (according as at what Time the New moon ſhould happen) but the latter commenced at the Time of the New moon next after the vernal Equinox; in the Month Niſan, our March or April.

TILL about the beginning of the ſixth century, the generality of Chriſtians, together with the Romans, computed their Years, either from the Building of the City Rome, [Anno Urbis condita] or from the Reigns of the Emperors of Rome or ſome other Era agreed upon for common Uſe; but as this Diverſity of Methods was no ſecurity from confuſion between the eaſtern and weſtern Churches, another method was come into for fixing their Era: according to which the Beginning of the civil or legal Year commenced on the Day of ANNUNCIATION or of the Conception and Incarnation of CHRIST, which was on the 25 Day of the March preceeding his Birth: though they began their hiſtorical Account at the time of his Birth, or Nativity, December 25; or from (according to the common account) [illegible] CIRCUMCISION, which fix'd the Begining of the Year on the firſt Day of January, that being always the Eighth Day after Chriſtmas, or the Day of his Nativity incluſively. By Reaſon of theſe two different Accounts, they were won't from the 1ſt of January till the 25th of March to have Regard to both theſe Methods of reckoning, which they would expreſs after this Manner (e. g.) January 1726,7 Shewing, that tho' according to the former Account a New-Year is begun, yet according to the latter, the former Year is not ended. This was the eſtabliſhed Method which obtained throughout all the Engliſh Dominions till about eighteen Years ago, viz. till A. D. 1752, when, by Act of Parliament, the Gregorian Calender was adopted, and the New-Stile took Place of the Old: ſince which they reckon only from January 1ſt; as they do in moſt other Parts of Europe, except in the eccleſiaſtical Court of Rome where they ſtill continue to reckon from the 25th of March, or, Die Incarnationis.

THE prevailing Cuſtom or Ceremony of wiſhing a happy New Year, it ſeems is of ancient Date, and probably took its Riſe from the Romans, in the early times of their Nation, from whom it has ſince been propagated among moſt of the politer Nations, both of the eaſtern and weſtern World.

As to the different Seaſons of the Year, reſpecting the Viciſſitudes of Heat and Cold; this is occaſioned, not (as is popularly ſuppoſed) by the Suns being really nearer or farther diſtant from us at one time than another, for in truth the Sun is nearer ¶ to us in Winter than Summer; but to the different Poſition of the Surface of the Earth, or the Plain of our Horizon in Reſpect of the Sun, at different Times of the Year; occaſioned by the Earth's being in different Parts of its annual Orbit. In conſequence of which, though the Sun is nearer to the Earth in Winter than Summer, yet becauſe of the oblique Deſcent of its Rays, not ſo many of them will fall upon any given Space, conſequently cant produce ſuch intenſe Degrees of Heat, as if they fell in a more perpendicular Direction, as is the caſe in the Summer, tho' the Sun be then at a greater diſtance: This Intenſity of Heat as proceeding immediately from the Sun is always (cæteris paribus) in the Ratio of the Co Sines of the Sun's Altitudes inverſely, in different parts of the Year.

LONDON, Oct. 2

LETTERS from the Hague, which arrived yeſterday, mention, that advice had been received there from Negapatnam, a Dutch ſettlement on the coaſt of Coromandel, that Hyder Ali had made an unſucceſsful attempt upon Madraſs, and that an epidemical ſickneſs prevailed among his troops, who deſerted in great numbers.

Oct. 10. Such a ſpirit of freedom appears to be gather'd in the moſt of the corporations of this kingdom, that at their [illegible] for new officers, they ſeem determined to make choice of thoſe gentlemen only whoſe conduct has proved them to be ſteady friends to their country.

The Devonſhire petition is very ſpirited, and contains the ſame prayer with that from the county of York, a diſſolution of parliament. Among other things the gentlemen of Devonſhire ſay, "We preſume moſt gracious Sovereign, to add our ſupplications to our fellow ſubjects, that your Majeſty would graciouſly attend to their complaints. Permit not yourſelf, Sire, to be deluded by wicked and groundleſs inſinuations, that they proceed from faction or diſaffection.

We preſume to aſſure your Majeſty, that they flow from the pureſt zeal for your Majeſty's honour and ſafety, and are the ſentiments of the beſt wiſhers to the perpetuity of the throne in your Majeſty's royal houſe, and the privileges of the ſubject, ſo inſeparably connected with your Majeſty's right to the crown. We acknowledge with them your Majeſty's paternal regard to the welfare of your ſubjects. We with anguiſh lament that the fruits of ſo many royal virtues ſhould be blaſted with evil and pernicious counſels. We were willing to ſpare your royal breaſt the pain it muſt neceſſarily feel from the repeated cries & complaints of your ſubjects, waiting with patience and in ſilence for the moſt deſirable of all conſtitutional remedies, the interpoſition of a free and uninfluenced parliament. But we can no longer entertain ſuch hopes of redreſs, as by the arts and practices of your Majeſty's ſervants an undue and dangerous aſcendancy has been gained over the Houſe of Commons; and they have been prevailed upon to reject the choice of a member, not ineligible by the laws of this kingdom, and to declare another duly elected, though juſtly with the minority of votes, whereby a great and populous country is deprived of its privilege of repreſentation, and the fundamental relation between the elector & the elected is totally cancelled has deſtroyed. The precedent to ſubverſive, of the firſt of all privileges, the right of election our own repreſentatives in parliament, extinguiſhes all our hopes of parliamentary redreſs. In all humility, therefore, we ſupplicate your Majeſty, &c.

---

† That Point of the Ecliptic where it interſects the Æquinoctial, and where the Sun croſſes it when paſſing from a ſouthern to a northern Declination, which now happens on the 21 of March; from which Point is counted the Sun's Longitude in Degrees on the Ecliptic, and his Right Aſcenſion on the Equinoctial; this Point is always on this Day 42 Degrees ſouth from our Zenith at three Quarters after Sun ſet.

¶ This appears from the Suns having a larger apparent Diameter in Winter than Summer, which otherwiſe would not be the Caſe.

After Mr. Beckford had made ſeveral apologies for his inability to ſerve the office of Lord Mayor from his age and infirmity, the Livery ſtill perſiſted in their intreaties to him to accept of it, and it was eccheod from every ſide of the hall, Mr. Beckford, aſſiſt to ſave your country.

Oct. 16. It is confidently aſſerted, that many material alterations both in the meaſures and members of adminiſtration are now upon the carpet, though they will not be promulgated until the meeting of the parliament.

It is talked of abroad, that the premier hath adviſed a great perſonage to ſend for the E—l of C——m, to aſk his opinion with reſpect to ſome of the penſions, and alſo to requeſt his aſſiſtance in ſome part of the miniſtry.

The above circumſtance is to be done with a deſign to accompliſh a ſeparation between the three brothers; but we hear they are determined firmly to unite in the enſuing ſeſſion.

Oct. 17. Yeſterday at noon there was a very reſpectable and numerous meeting of the electors of the borough of Southwark at the town hall, purſuant to a printed notice to that purpoſe, dated October 6th.

The meeting opened preciſely at twelve o'clock, when Counſellor Grace ſaid; 'it was neceſſary, previous to buſineſs, to elect a chairman, and that as Edward Stevens, Eſq; had many times preſided in that place, with ſatisfaction to his conſtituents, and dignity to himſelf, he humbly moved he ſhould be now requeſted to take the Chair.' This motion being ſeconded, and univerſally approved of, Mr. Stevens took the Chair.—— Mr Grace then got up a ſecond time, and obſerved, 'that as the determination in the 'Houſe of commons, in reſpect to Mr. Wilkes 'was principally the buſineſs of this meeting, he begged that Sir Joſeph Mawbey, 'Bart. might explain ſuch particulars as he 'knew relative to that affair.—Sir Joſeph then came forward, and explained very particularly the whole proceedings of Mr. Wilkes's expulſion: he obſerved, 'that the freedom of 'election was ſo openly violated at this time, 'that one of his Majeſty's miniſters was 'hardy enough, in publick, to declare, that 'any perſon who ſhould oppoſe Mr. Wilkes '(provided he had but five voices) ſhould 'be the ſitting member, the reaſons (he remarked) that were given for his expulſion 'were futile and evaſive to the laſt degree, as 'the two inſtances, urged as precedents, 'proved, rather than denyed the point in 'queſtion—as one of the candidates was diſqualified from entering, though having a 'majority of votes, becauſe he was in the 'collection of exciſe, there being a poſitive 'act of Parliament againſt it; and the other 'not having a proper qualification.—if then '(continues Sir Joſeph) your rights Gentlemen, are thus torn from you, we may 'ſoon expect to find a Houſe of Commons 'troubling themſelves no longer in collecting 'the ſuffrages of the freemen, but elect 'themſelves, he therefore recommended to 'them, as the moſt effectual method of redreſs, to petition his Majeſty for a diſſolution of the preſent Parliament."

Sir Joſeph ſpoke about half an hour, and his ſpeech met with univerſal approbation.—After he had concluded, Mr. Stevens the Chairman roſe; he obſerved, 'That 'after what his worthy friend had ſaid; 'there was little left for him to ſay; he 'therefore would engroſs their time; and 'only begged leave to remark, that a great 'deal of time had hitherto been thrown away 'in inſtructing their members, which in part 'availed nothing; and that therefore, as the 'caſe was now ſo critical, he adviſed them 'not to ſit with arms acroſs, crying, Lord 'have mercy upon us, but rouſe themſelves 'into action, and at once addreſs the Throne 'as the only method left them.'

After he had concluded this exordium, he aſked their permiſſion to read to them a petition, which was drawn up, he ſaid, with great circumſpection by ſeveral eminent gentlemen, which being immediately aſſented to, and called for, he read it, and is to the following purport.

To the King's Moſt Excellent Majeſty.

"May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

"WE the loyal inhabitants of the antient town and borough of Southwark, beg leave with all humility to approach your royal perſon, and with hearts full of gratitude acknowledge the various bleſſings we have enjoyed under the illuſtrious houſe of Hanover.

"The benefits that we, and theſe nations in general have received by the glorious revolution, were great and invaluable; yet, notwithſtanding theſe bleſſings, they were far from being ſecured to us till the ſucceſſion was eſtabliſhed in your royal houſe; under them our privilges and liberties received extenſion and permanency, and the conſtitution in general its happy ſeat. We are likewiſe ſenſible of the many gracious benefits that we have more immediately received from your Majeſty's paternal care and affection.

"But we ſhould think ourſelves ſtill wanting in duty and affection to the beſt of Kings, if we did not beg leave to acquaint him, that he has got about his royal perſon, many evil and pernicious Counſellors, who, unmindful of the good of their country, have been for ſome time practiſing every method that is ſubverſive of our excellent conſtitution. The particulars would be too tedious at preſent to trouble your Majeſty with; we ſhall therefore adhear but to one point, which we truſt, from the conſideration of your Majeſty's uſual goodneſs, need only be mentioned to be complied with.

"The point we complain of is the deprivation of the right of election; a right that is ſo interwoven in the conſtitution that it cannot be diminiſhed without tearing it up by the roots; that this is a grievance we labour under at preſent, in common with all Engliſhmen, the world is witneſs to, in the caſe of the county of Middleſex, when, contrary to every right of liberty, a perſon, not having more than a fifth of the voices of the people, elected, and the repreſentative of our free choice expelled.

"We therefore, having no further Dependence on a body of people, who could act ſo diametrically oppoſite to the freedom and rights of Engliſhmen, throw ourſelves entirely on your Majeſty; humbly requeſting their ſpeedy diſſolution, as the moſt effectual means to reſtore our happy conſtitution to its priſtine vigour."

This was received with the loudeſt acclamations of applauſe, and aſſented to, after it had been twice read over. The Chairman then propoſed, that there ſhould be committees appointed in the different pariſhes, to wait on thoſe who could not have an opportunity of ſigning it, this was likewiſe aſſented to, and after a vote of thanks was given to Sir Joſeph Mawby, and Edward Stephens, Eſq; the Chairmen, the buſineſs of the day was concluded.

Peter Platier, Eſq; is elected mayor of Guildford in Surrey, in the room of the right Hon George Onſlow.

From a late London Paper.

ALLOW me, Mr. Printer, to indulge the dictates of my heart in one apoſtrophe—O infatuated England, will you never renounce your folly, credulity, and error, until the web of your diſtruction is compleated! The national buſineſs, ſhall it be again ſacrificed to unmeaning pique, and unprofitable diſputation? Shall the Seaſon, for important conſiderations, and important reſolutions, again paſs away unimproved, the miſery of your condition unmitigated; Shall your provincial Children continue Aliens to the Boſom of maternity, and from a neglect of their dutiful remonſtrances and a diſregard of their grievances be provoked to forego the filial tie, of which they have evinced themſelves ſo abundantly tender? Shall their loyalty be extinguiſhed, their hopes diſappointed, their fears augmented, and their independance ſtrengthened? Shall your commerce be ſuffered to languiſh or expire?——but all Apoſtrophes are vain: for, Mr. Printer, what is America, in compariſon of the Borough of B——d— what the Spirit, the Faith, the propulars of its Inhabitants, to the buſtle of a little Corporation—and what the preſervation of our Commerce, to another attack upon the big Houſe, in Bloomſbury Square; or the eclat of pelting its Maſter?—And yet we are all Patriots, bleeding for our Country, and unſpeakably tenacious of her rights, her Liberty, her Conſtitutional Advantages.—It is pity however that inſtead of our fine feeling, we were bleſſed with a little Common Senſe; that inſtead of our prejudices, we would conſult our true intereſt; and inſtead of contributing to aid the work of our ruin, we would nobly unite, to avert it from our Heads.

I ſhudder, Mr Printer, and at the preſent, tremble for the future dangers of the land I love—Here the Olive was wont to flouriſh—Britain was the ſoil it more peculiarly delighted in; but her Sons madly defeat the benignity of Heaven, and from forced cultivation, reap thorns and wretchedneſs. Is there no warning voice that can penetrate their Hearts; Your little ones implore your protection, ſhall your little ones implore in vain? Will it relieve their ſhoulder from its weight, or their Souls from anguiſh, to be told of your conviction when too late; that meteors and ſounds betrayed your unguarded feet, that your ſenſes were abuſed, your zeal miſplaced? Now, only is the time for you to retrieve the error of your ways, and ſnatch both them and yourſelves the yawning gulph.

Your e Servant, ALCIPPUS

BOSTON Dec. 25.

We hear that about ſix Weeks or two Months ago, £.300 Sterling was paid out of the Revenue Cheſt at the Cuſtom-Houſe, to John T——x K——p, Eſq; of New York, it being for one Year and half PENSION upon the American Eſtabliſhment. (a Secret)——The Hiſtory of another Penſion Warrant of a few Days earlier Date (a Secret alſo) may be a Matter of Entertainment to the Publick at ſome other Time.——It has not yet (they ſay) gone through the Office Formalities of Payment, but that in Reality it has been contriv'd to the PENSIONER's Satisfaction.

BOSTON, Dec. 28 1769.

We hear that on Wedneſday laſt a coaſting Sloop from Kennebeck, bound to this Port, Thomas Smart, Maſter ſuddenly ſunk on her Paſſage;—There were about ten People on board, among whom were ſeveral Paſſengers, who had but juſt time to get into the Boat, and were one Night before they could reach any ſhore, during which time two of the Paſſengers died with Cold, one of them was Mr. Deniel Stinſon, Son of Elder Stinſon, of Arrowſick, Student at Harvard College; the other People were much frozen.

A Letter from Halifax ſays, that the French Prieſt, mentioned ſome time ago to be at Halifax, with 100l. per Annum, was one that died ſome time ago; and the Indians of the St John's Tribe being deſirous of one of that Profeſſion, applied to Government, and they have granted them a Popiſh Prieſt, with the Salary of 100l. a Year. He does not reſide at Halifax, but chiefly at the River St John's.

INDUSTRY.

We hear one ſingle Perſon has had ſpun within Six Months in this Town, by Children (chiefly) that have been learned to Spin during that Space, Thirty-ſix Thouſand ſix Hundred and eighty Skeins of fine worſted Yarn, which will make about Seven Thouſand three Hundred and Twenty Yards of fine Womens Apparel, which it is hoped will ſoon be all weaved, dyed and dreſſed in the province Factory Houſe in Boſton.

We hear from Charlston, that about the 13th of November laſt, a Son of Mr. Jacob Davis of that Place, four Years of Age, was bit in the Throat by a Mad-Dog; the wound ſoon healed, and no appearance of Maniaiſm till about thirty Days after, when, at the Full of the Moon, the Child being at his Grandfather's, Deacon Thomas Davis of Oxford, it was ſeized with a Nancia Reaching, and averſion to any Food the Day following the Symptoms increaſed, a wildneſs in the Eyes, with irregular Geſtures, inconſiſtent Talk, Riſibility and with Anxiety; then following in a few Hours the Hydrophobia or averſion to Water or any Liquid, with Feroſity in his Countenance, Canine Actions, ſwelling in the Face, and a large Diſcharge of Saliva or Frothing at the Mouth, with frequent Convulſive Motions; and the next Forenoon Death cloſed the Scene.—After his Death his Body ſwelled and livid Spots appeared upon his Stomach.

The Rev. Mr. Whitefield is arrived at S. Carolina.

Friday laſt the large Manſion Houſe of JOHN DENNIE, Eſq; of Little Cambridge, was conſumed by Fire.

QUEBEC, Nov. 19,

We hear from Montreal, that laſt Week 42 Perſons died there in a natural Small-Pox, which ſtill continues to be extremely fatal; ſcarce two out of five, who are ſeized with this dreadful Diſorder ſurvive, Within theſe few Weeks paſt there have been 200 inoculated, and not one Death among them.

HARTFORD, January 20. 1770.

ON Thurſday the 21ſt of December laſt, was brought into Weathersfield, a quantity of Engliſh goods from Providence, imported in the Triſtram, Captain Shand, which being known, the principal perſons in the town, as well traders as others, aſſembled, and unanimouſly came into ſeveral reſolutions againſt every attempt of that kind and appointed a Committee to examine fully into the affair, and take care ſaid goods ſhould not be diſpoſed of until public ſatisfaction ſhould be given, and then adjourn'd to the next day, when being aſſembled, and joined by the gentlemen committee of Merchants from Hartford, Mr Verſtille, the importer was ſent for, and on producing his invoice and letters, it was judg'd the ſaid goods were imported contrary to the general agreement of the Merchants in America. Whereon he conſented to deliver them up to be ſtored, according to the practice in the larger trading towns on the continent; and delivered his invoice thereof, to Eliſha Williams, Eſq; the Moderator of the meeting, as a ſecurity againſt any embezzlement before the committee appointed to receive them, could be ready: on which the meeting, after the moſt ſpirited, and unanimous reſolutions againſt either importing, purchaſing, or uſing any goods imported contrary to ſaid agreement, broke up, with the utmoſt regularity and order; and on the Tueſday following the ſaid goods were delivered to the Committee, and by them carefully ſtored, to be kept until a repeal of the late acts ſhould take place.

It is worthy of remark to the honor of the people that compoſed this Meeting—They were almoſt intirely the honeſt, induſtrious & ſubſtantial landholders; with whom the temptation, of ſupplying their families at a cheap lay, when weighed againſt the liberty of their country was lighter than vanity.——And to prevent any attempts of this kind for the future, as well as to hand down to poſterity their ſentiments on this important ſubject, they paſs'd, in a full Town Meeting, the following Vote. Nem. Con. viz.

At a Town Meeting held in Weathersfield, December 25th. 1769 by adjournment.

VOTED, That it is and ever has been, the opinion of this town, that the late acts of parliament, commonly called the American Revenue Acts, impoſing certain duties on Paper, Glaſs, &c. are, in themſelves, unconſtitutional, oppreſſive, and tending to the total ſubverſion of the liberties of his Majeſty's ſubjects in America—that the oppoſition made thereto, thro'out the continent has been noble, juſt, firm, and deſerving the higheſt applauſe thro' every age.

That in particular the reſolutions againſt importing goods, or Merchandize from G. Britain, until ſaid Acts are repealed, ſo generouſly and unanimouſly came into by the Merchants in America, and ſo univerſally approved of by the people, is worthy of the higheſt commendation, as being the moſt effectual method for obtaining relief—Do reſolve to abide by the ſame, and as far as poſſible prevent the leaſt breach thereof by any of the inhabitants of this town or others; nor will we purchaſe, or uſe and conſume any goods imported contrary to ſaid agreement, ſo univerſally come into.

AND for the more effectual preventing any counteracting ſaid reſolution, we do appoint, Meſſieurs Silas Deane, Ezekiel Williams, Eliſha Williams, David Webb, and Elias Williams, a Committe, directing them, with the utmoſt vigilence and care, to guard againſt, and prevent any attempt to put in execution, ſo fatal and infamous a purpoſe as that of ſacrificing the good of this continent, and their poſterity, to private gain and emolument; deſiring them to correſpond & conſult with, as well as aid and aſſiſt the other Committees appointed in the neighbouring towns and elſewhere, for this purpoſe.

To be ſold at public Vendue, at the houſe of Mr. David Bull Innholder in Hartford, on Tueſday the 30th day of Jan. next, or at private ſale any time before,

THE home lot on which Mr. Elihu Wadſworth now dwells, containing about Ten Acres, together with the buildings thereon ſtanding, ſituate in a ſtreet about 60 rods weſt of the Court Houſe. Alſo Two Acres of excellent Mowing Land, adjoining to the Land of Col. Samuel Talcott, on which his ſhop ſtands. Alſo about 26 Acres in the North Meadow, in ſaid Hartford, lying convenient to the town for a paſture or mowing. For particulars, enquire of EZEKIEL WILLIAMS, at Weathersfield or the ſaid ELIHU WADSWORTH.

Hartford, 30th Dec. 1769.

RUN AWAY from the ſubſcriber of Eaſt-Hartford, on Monday the 25th of December laſt, an indented ſervant, named John Anſon, an Engliſhman, about 22 years of age about 5 feet 9 inches high, wears his own curl'd Black hair dark complection, had on when he went away, a homſpun great coat, with 2 capes, a deep blue double breaſted Serge waiſtcoat, Mettle buttons, one check'd linen Shirt, one Pair of light colour'd Brown broad-cloth breeches, a pair grey ſeam'd ſtockings, a pair of large braſs buckels, with very wide rims. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid ſervant, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's goal's, or return him to his maſter, ſhall have FOUR DOLLARS reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

NATHANIEL OLCOTT.

Hartford, Jan. 1. 1770.

THE ſubſcriber having rode poſt almoſt four years, finds it abſolutely neceſſary to come to a general ſettlement with his cuſtomers to prevent any miſtakes that may happen in his accounts, not only by means of the length of time, but alſo as he is obliged to keep them in a ſmall pocket book, which by frequent uſing wears out in a few months, and thereby occaſions a transfer of them, and notwithſtanding all the care he can take will ſubject him to ſome omiſſion; he therefore intends to bring them to a cloſe with number 270, and hopes his good cuſtomers will be kind enough to meet him at the places where their reſpective papers are lodged upon thoſe days on which he commonly reaches the ſtages, that they may adjuſt the ſame.

He would not have any of his employers imagine that he intends to diſcontinue the buſineſs after that time, he ſtill hopes to have the pleaſure of ſerving them to their ſatisfaction in the ſame way, but his fixing upon a particular time for the ſettlement of the whole was, that for the future every mans account ſhould begin at the ſame time, which will ſave him a great deal of trouble in the ſettling of them, and render them not ſo much ſubject to error as before.——Compliance with the above, will much oblige your very humble ſervant,

William Stanton.

N. B. Theſe perſons who have dropped the paper, and not been kind enough to make pay, are deſired to look upon this Advertiſement as a call upon them to remember their duty.

'Tis money makes the mare to go.

Monday Morning XI. o'Clock, New-York Poſt not arrived.

CHARLESTOWN, (South Carolina.)

Nov. 9. At a meeting of the general committee on Tueſday laſt, and an adjournment thereof to Yeſterday, ſeveral matters of importance reſpecting the general agreement entered into by the inhabitants of this province on the 22d day of July laſt, were taken into conſideration; and a committee of inſpection appointed, whoſe particular buſineſs it will be, to ſee ſuch Goods ſtored or re-ſhipped, (at the Option of the importers) as may be brought here contrary to the true intent and meaning of the ſaid agreement. It was at the ſame time agreed, that the general committee do meet on Tueſday in every week.

We have the pleaſure to inform our readers, that Mr. Thomas Eveleigh, who arrived here laſt Sunday, has readily agreed, that the goods which he imported in the Flora Captain Carter, from Briſtol, ſhall be re-ſhipped or ſtored: and that Mr. Andrew Marr, has done the ſame in regard to a conſignment of goods by the Brigantine Matty, arrived yeſterday from Glaſgow.

The ſubſcribers to the reſolutions are ſo conſcious of the juſtneſs of their proceedings, that they appear determined to adhere to them; and have not only refuſed to purchaſe ſome ſlaves lately arrived from Penſacola, but alſo rejected a parcel of rice, offered for ſale, belonging to a gentleman on Joen's iſland, who is ſaid to be a non-ſubſcirber.

"The few intereſted individuals in the colonies of Rhode-iſland and Georgia, who have hitherto miſled thoſe unhappy colonies by ſkim'd milk reaſonings, which has been attempted even in our province, we hear, have began to loſe ſo much of their influence, as to be under no ſmall apprehenſions of being gibbeted (in ſame) to rot and ſtink under the noſes of their countrymen as a mark of public infamy and warning to thoſe who ſhall endeavour to counteract the deſigns of ſociety in favour of liberty.—If oppreſſion (according to Solomon) maketh a wiſe man mad, what a pity it is that it cannot teach Fools wiſdom?"

NOTICE is hereby given, to the Members of the Medical Corporation in Litchfield County, deſiring all and every Member thereof, without fail, to attend the ſtated Convention, on the third Tueſday of January next, at ſaid Litchfield, in Order to conſult farther what Meaſures to take in the Support of the Memorial of ſaid Corporation, now lying in the General Aſſembly, it having as yet had no public Reading in the Houſe, for ſome particular Reaſons, but has been privately read by moſt of the Members thereof, who generally ſpeak favourably of the ſame. Said Memorial is laid over to the next Seſſion, and 'tis hoped will then meet with the Approbation of the legiſlative Authority.

per JOSEPH PERRY, Agent.
Woodbury, Dec. 16, 1769.

TO BE SOLD BY
James Tiley,
Goldſmith, at his Store in King-Street,
HARTFORD,

SILVER ſhoe and Knee Buckles; Cypher'd and brilliant Stone Ear rings, ſet in Gold; ditto in Silver; Stone Rings, &c. with ſundry other Articles.

CLOCKS and Watches made in the beſt Manner, by PRESERVED CLAP
of Amherſt.
Likewiſe all Kinds of Inſtruments in Surgery.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon judge of probate for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners to receive and adjuſt the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Eleazer Dickinſon, late of Weathersfield, deceaſed, we therefore hereby notify the creditors to ſaid eſtate, to bring in their claims to us, on the ſecond Tueſdays of Jan, and Feb. next, at the houſe of Abigail Griſwould in ſaid Weathersfield, as we will attend the buſineſs on each of ſaid days at ſaid place, at 1 o'Clock afternoon.

JOHN ROBBINS, } Commiſſioners.
JOHN AMES }
Weathersfield. Dec. 18th, 1769.

Simſbury Dec. 7. 1769

STrayed or Stolen, from me the ſubſcriber in ſaid Symſbury, a dark bay Mare, about 14 hands high, well ſpread, natural to her pace branded thus, 8 on the near ſhoulder, one white ſtreak round the middle of each ear, and a white ſtreak in her face, had on a good ſaddle, with deers leather ſeat, and blue pliſh howſen.——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid mare, and convey her to me ſhall have Two Dollars reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by me

MICAH MOOR.

Ames's Almanack,
For 1770.
To be ſold at the Printing-Office.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

Lanbier Leiſcoiet,
(Clock and Watch-Maker from Paris)
At the Sign of the Clock in King-Street,
HARTFORD,

HEREBY informs the Public, that he has removed from the Shop of Mr. James Tiley, to one oppoſite the Store of Meſſieurs Lathrop & Smith, where he continues to make & mend, Repairing and Plain WATCHES, of all kinds, on the moſt reaſonable Terms.

Any Watch that he ſhall mend, which ſhall not go true he will rectify GRATIS.

WHereas there is a diſpute, about the qualifications for ſpecial ordinances, viz. Baptiſm and the Lords Supper, lately revived by Dr. Bellamy and others, it is now propoſed to re print by Subſcription,

Mr. Stoddard's

Appeal to the Learned.

Being a vindication of the right of viſible Saints to the Lord's Supper, tho' they be deſtitute of a ſaving work of the ſpirit of GOD, on their hearts againſt the exceptions of Mr. Mather and others.

The price to the ſubſcribers only ſtitch'd, will be about One Shilling L. Money.

Subſcriptions are taken in by Deac. Silas Kellogg, at Sheffield, Doct. Timothy Hoſmer in Farmington and by the Printers hereof.

WE the ſubſcribers, be appointed by the hon judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford commiſſioners, to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Capt. SAMUEL WELLS late of Hartford deceas'd (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the late dwelling houſe of the ſaid WELLS in ſaid Hartford, on the ſecond Tueſdays of Dec. Jan. Feb. and the firſt and ſecond Tueſdays of March next.

JONATHAN STANLY, | Commiſſioners.
ELISHA PITKIN, |
Hartford, Dec. 1, 1769.

Juſt Publiſhed and to be ſold at the Printing-Office, Hartford,

That there is but one

Covenat, Whereof BAPTISM and the LORD's SUPPER are Seals, viz. The Covenant of Grace, proved from the Word of GOD, and the Doctrine of an external graceleſs Covenant, lately advanced by the Rev. Mr. MOSES MATHER; in a Pamphlet, entituled, The viſible Church in Covenant with God, &c. Shewed to be an unſcriptural Doctrine.

To which is prefixed,
An Anſwer to a Dialogue concerning the Half-Way-Covenant;
Lately printed at New London.
By JOSEPH BELLAMY, D. D.

LONDON.

Yeſterday at noon, Meſſ. Townſend and Sawbridge, the two Sheriffs, went to Hick's hall with their grand carriages, and rich liveries, and ſat ſome time on the bench, and at going away were accompanied with the greateſt acclamations of the populace.

Private Letters from Peterſburg mention that an am[illegible] or from the Hague was ſoon expected here on a treaty of importance now in agitation between the ſtates general and her imperial Majeſty of all the Ruſſians.

The demand of the article of White Lead is now ſo prodigious abroad and the price given for it by the exporters, ſo much beyond that of the conſumers at home, that the latter cannot now procure any; and almoſt all the journeymen houſe painters, are, in conſequence, at this time, out of work.—The general price of White-Lead, not above a year ſince, was only from 30 to 36 ſhillings an hundred; and now the colourmen cannot procure it of the makers even at three pounds,

A letter from Ayleſbury, October 12.

"The ſigning of our country petitions goes on with great rapidity, there being 1600 names to it, which is already a great majority."

HARTFORD.
Printed by Green and Watſon.

MONDAY JAN. 15, 1770.

Numb 264.

THE
Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 18

THE Grand Vizir, Maho[illegible] Emin Pacha, Generaliſſimo of the Ottoman armies, who was lately beheaded, and his head ex[illegible] outſide gate of the ſeraglio, had a paper affixed, upon which was wrote the motives [illegible] condemnation. The chief crimes that [illegible] to him were, that he had abuſed [illegible] authority, in the diſpoſal of the treaſure [illegible] troops; [illegible] march towards the enemy; [illegible] the miniſters of ſtate the grand officers, and the [illegible], by not ſending them proviſions, and other things neceſſary for their ſupport; and that he had, by delays, and unpardonable neglect, put off the ſending ſuccours to Chockzim, when that place was beſieged; and when he was informed, by the Kan of the Tartars of the enemy, which was the cauſe of continuation of the Blockade, and of all the ſufferings the Ottomans laboured under during the ſiege of that fortreſs.

Malta, Sept. 16. A ſecretary arrived here a few days ago from the emperor of Morocco with 37 Tuſcan ſlaves, which he delivered to the Grand Maſter with the following letter:

"In the name of the Almighty GOD, The emperor of Morocco, &c. to the prince of Malta, Grand Maſter of the religion of St. John, and all his councils, Greeting.

"You will know hereby, that being moved with compaſſion for the fate of ſeveral Leghorn ſlaves who have been a long while in my cuſtody and have never been demanded of me, I reſolved to ſend them to you by my ſecretary Abra[illegible]Saletti; in doing which I have a double ſatisfaction, 1ſt. That of making a preſent to you; and next, that of procuring theſe unhappy perſons their liberty. If you had no ſlaves in your cuſtody I ſhould deſire nothing from you in return; but as you have, I ſhall be glad to receive ſuch as you can ſend me; by my ſecretary."

LONDON October 26.

The laſt letters received from Breſt and Toulon mention, that they work double tides in bulding 18 men of war at the firſt port, and 6 at the latter.

According to private letters from the Hague, the Ambaſſador of a powerful court was expected to leave that place ſoon in diſguſt.

This morning an expreſs was ſent off from the Earl of Rochfort's office for Sir Joſeph York at the Hague.

Letters from Gibralter mention, that the Algerines had ſunk ſeveral large hulks at the entrance of the port, to prevent the too near approach of an enemy, and had moored ſome floating batteries within them.

It is rumoured that a certain American Governor has ſeveral papers of very great conſequence in his poſſeſſion; which he will lay before an auguſt Aſſembly, ſoon after the opening the Seſſions.

The late acts of cruelty committed by the French on the brave unfortunate natives of Corſica, many of whom they have hanged, has been greatly condemned by ſome perſons of the higheſt conſideration in this kingdom; as the glorious ſtand which thoſe valiant men have made for liberty should rather intitle them to the admiration, or at leaſt lenity, even of an enemy, inſtead of being accuſed of and executed for high treaſon, in the moſt ignominious and cruel manner.

The Freeholders of the county of Derby have agreed to meet on the 13th of next month, in order to conſider of a petition to his Majeſty.

Extract of a letter from Exeter, Oct 25.

"Yeſterday a great number of Freemen and Freeholders, of all denominations, aſſembled at the Guildhall, in conſequence of a public advertiſement from the Mayor, which he was deſired to do, on a requeſt from the Grand Jury of Exeter in the laſt ſeſſion week. I am informed that the Mayor had juſt opened the court, when a petition was propoſed, and greatly ſtrengthened and enlarged on, by Mr. Buller, member for the city, and Mr. Richard Trembler, who read the petition then produced, which was unanimouſly approved of, not one perſon m[illegible] the leaſt objection. The plan, much [illegible] as that for the county of Deve[illegible] Walter, the other member, was no[illegible] which was taken notice of. Mr. Bu[illegible]ed to deliver the petition, and [illegible] he would certainly ſee it done. [illegible] ſigned by a number, and is left wi[illegible] Chamberlain, as I am told for others to [illegible]

Nov. 1. The Di[illegible]s in Poland, as we are aſſured by a gentleman who reſided there ſome time, are all members of the Greek & Reformed Churches in that country. By ſeveral Treaties, they are ſecured in the free exerciſe of their worſhip, in all the places where they have been allowed by the laws to have churches; they may repair theſe churches, or build them; but they are not to enlarge their extent; they are to be allowed burying places, but the funerals muſt be performed without any ceremonies, except what are permitted by law. Where they have no churches, they may have Divine ſervice in their own houſes; and the Greek prieſts may baptize, marry, and bury, provided they pay the eſtabliſhed clergy their fees, &c.—The catholics, who are very numerous in Poland, have taken every method to abridge theſe people of their rights and liberties which has principally occaſioned the preſent diſturbances in that kingdom.

Nov. 4. It is ſaid that 45 hogſheads of Muſcovado ſugars, and 45 Puncheons of Rum are daily expected here as preſents from Leward Iſland planters to John Wilkes, Eſq; Advice having been received of their being ſhipped.

A perſon of conſequence, juſt arrived from Dublin, waited on Mr Wilkes yeſterday and delivered to that Gentleman many tokens of approbation of his conduct, from ſeveral perſons of the firſt diſtinction in Ireland: Alſo ſome letters from Dr. Lucas, the patriotic member for the city of Dublin, who is commonly called the Wilkes of Ireland.

As ſoon as a certain nobleman arrives in town, a Meeting will be held of the preſent patriots, and it is ſaid they are determined to exert their whole influence to have the purport of the ſeveral petitions already preſented immediately granted.

This day at one o'clock, Mr. Alderman Beckford, Lord Mayor elect, went from Guildhall, accompanied by Sir William Stephenſon, Braſs Croſby, Eſq; Barlow Trecothick Eſq; Thomas Halifax, Eſq; Richard Peters, Richard Naſh, James Townſend, Eſq; & John Sawbridge, Eſq; who preſented him to the Lord Chancellor for his approbation; he was accordingly approved of, and will take upon himſelf the office accordingly.

The Recorder did not go in the poceſſion, as is uſual, but went from his houſe in Lincoln's Inn, and met them at the Lord-chancellor's. They returned to Ironmongers Hall, where a moſt magnificent entertainment was prepared for them by the Lord Mayor Elect.

The 13 pilots, who conducted the Ruſſian fleet out of the Humber into the downs, are arrived in London, in order to wait on his Excellency Count Czernichew, the Ruſſian ambaſſador, to whom he Promiſed payment when at Hull. Their fee is 63l. for each ſhip being the ſum allowed them when they navigate the King's ſhips. The Ruſſians have very few Engliſhmen, if any, on board the admiral's ſhips, who has, for his [illegible] a Greek Biſhop. Their bread was chiefly contracted for in Scotland, and ſent to them when at Hull.

Nov. 4. We are informed, that a certain great Aſſembly upon their meeting, will immediately take into conſideration the late Petitions preſented to his M—y, and that all neceſſary preparations are making for that purpoſe.

We hear that the Lord Chancellor, (in his anſwer to the Recorder's Speech on his preſenting the Lord Mayor elect for his approbation) ſaid, that as to any uncommon proceedings in electing Mr. Beckford Mayor, he had nothing to do with them; if Mr. Beckford was legally elected by the Court of Alderman, he had his Majeſty's orders to approve him Mayor.

We hear that the Hon. William Henry Littleton, Eſq; his Majeſty's Ambaſſador at Liſbon, is not recalled, as has been mentioned in ſome of the papers.

The following is part of Dr. Muſgrave's ſpeech at the Caſtle of Exon, October 5.

"But perhaps the Gentleman § would ſuggeſt that the fact of my carrying an information to Lord Halifax, is not fully proved. The anſwer to this is eaſy. The addreſs was 5 weeks ago, in all which time the perſons concerned have not enquired, nay, it ſhould ſeem by their delays that they dare not enquire into it. What better proof of this fact can any man deſire? Or dare the Gentleman allow this, but is doubtful whether Lord H——— was under any obligation to attend it, whether it might not be too frivolous to merit any regard, and therefore thinks I ought to exhibit it, before I lay what he calls a burden upon the county? I will make him eaſy as to that point: I lay no burden upon the county or upon any man. I take it all upon my own ſhoulders. I myſelf impeach him; and the only thing I wiſh or deſire is to have my impeachment heard, unleſs you concur in requeſting it."

---

§ Mr. Short, who had told the Doctor that he ſhould produce the proofs of his charge againſt Lord Halifax,

It is rumoured that a memorial of a very important nature is preparing to be ſent to the Court of Madrid.

They write from Peterſburgh, that her Imperial Majeſty had given orders to diſcontinue the building any more men of war at Archangel, there having been found ſome defect in the conſtruction of very large ſhips.

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 16.

Since our laſt came to town captain John Foſter Williams, late mate of the brig John, belonging to Boſton. He informs, and we are requeſted to publiſh, that he ſailed from thence for Surinam the 21ſt of January laſt, and proceeded on his paſſage as far as lat. 34. lon. 60. where he met with a violent gale of wind, which ſo diſabled his veſſel that ſhe became water logg'd, and unfit to proceed to any port, her decks being level with the ſurface of the water.—About eight days after the ſloop ——, Abijah Smith, of Martha's Vineyard, maſter, bound from this port to the Weſt-Indies, hove in ſight, and came within two rods of the Wreck: the unhappy ſufferers endeavoured to throw ropes on board the ſloop, as they ſaw no preparations making for their relief. After taking a view of their diſtreſs, and moſt inhumanly refuſing to take up the crew (7 in number) the ſloop proceeded on her paſſage, notwithſtanding the piercing cries and lamentations of the diſtreſſed ſeamen. In this ſituation the wreck remained till the firſt of March, at which time none but the Captain remained alive, when he was providentially taken up by the Duncannon Packet, Capt. Edwards, bound from Carolina to Falmouth.

It is matter of grief to a humane mind, to obſerve from time to time, the many inſtances of cruelty exerciſed by ſome maſters of veſſels in paſſing wrecks at ſea with people on board, in the moſt extreme diſtreſs.—Such neglect is highly criminal, it is eventually committing the worſt of murder. ——It were to be wiſhed a remedy might be found in ſome meaſure adequate to this evil.——

The account that Capt. Williams of the brig John, of Boſton, gives of the diſtreſſing ſituation he was in, when Abijah Smith, maſter of a ſloop belonging to Martha's Vineyard, paſſed him ſo near, that he could not avoid ſeeing the diſtreſs to which that unfortunate Veſſel's company was reduced, yet never even attempting to aſſiſt them, (which had he done, doubtleſs thoſe alive might have been preſerved) is a recent inſtance of this worſt kind of inhumanity;——ſuch cruelty can hardly be accounted for on any other principle but that of the moſt ſordid avarice. —Would it not be an act of wiſdom as well as benevolence in the Britiſh legiſlature, to counteract ſuch inhumanity, by rendering that very principle of avarice (baſe as it is) ſubſervient to the relief of the diſtreſſed at ſea, by granting a reward, ſuppoſe of £ 20 ſterling for every perſon thus reſcued from the jaws of death?——'Tis highly probable ſome ſuch reward would have been the means of ſaving the lives of many unfortunate people, who have periſh'd at ſea.——It might alſo be further enforc'd by adding penalties to the criminal neglect of this humane duty. —'Tis probable in ſome caſes, that the effects which might be ſaved from ſuch wreck, would, in whole or part, defray the expence of paying thoſe premiums, and might be by a Law appropriated to that purpoſe.—— The ſaving of lives, beſides obeying the virtuous and tender calls of humanity, is of no ſmall political conſequence to a trading people.—It would therefore be, not only to the honour, but to the intereſt of the nation.—It would be ſtill more advantageous if the ſeveral maritime powers could be prevailed upon to join in ſo laudable a deſign, and make it of more general utility, by extending the law—even to the times of actual war, thereby rendering it always ſafe, as well as lucrative to relieve the diſtreſſed at ſea.——

If I am not miſtaken, there was a premium of £ 5 given in the late war, for every man taken in an enemy's ſhip of war or privateer: this law I am perſuaded anſwered a very good purpoſe.——If therefore a higher premium was given for ſaving the lives of our unfortunate brethren at ſea, tis more than likely it would have the deſired effect.——

[The following is inſerted by the deſire of the principal Merchants in this and the neighbouring Towns.]

THE great Importance of Trade & Commerce to every State; and in particular to this Colony, is too obvious to need enlarging on:—And equally evident it is, that a good Underſtanding, Harmony, and frequent Intercourſe among thoſe engag'd in Trade, are eſſential almoſt to its very Being—at leaſt to make it flouriſh to any conſiderable Degree.——The great Unhappineſs of this Colony in this reſpect, has long been obſerv'd to conſiſt in our having a Capital, in which a Center of the mercantile Intereſt might be formed, which would prevent many & great Inconveniences, as well as Loſſes, both private and public. To ſay no more on the Subj[illegible] has occaſioned our neighbouring Colo[illegible] become both our Factors and Carr[illegible] the moſt profitable Branches of Bu[illegible] of many great [illegible] which would otherwiſe have [illegible] among Us.—— To prevent this [illegible] muſt be a Work of Time. To do [illegible] as our preſent Situation will admit, [illegible] all Deference to the Gentlemen [illegible] Merchants in this Colony, propoſed,

THAT there be a Meeting of the principal Merchants and Traders of this Colony at Middletown, on the 20th of February next, by themſelves, or a Committee from each Town, to take the above into Conſideration, and conclude on ſuch Meaſures as they ſhall judge beſt for the Encouragement of Trade and Manufactures among us, and to form themſelves into a Body, Chamber, or Society, for theſe Purpoſes, in ſuch a Manner, and under ſuch Regulations, as, upon a full Conſideration of the Subject, ſhall appear beſt for the Community in general.

JANUARY, 1770.

N. B. The above Time and Place are propoſed for the firſt Meeting, as being thought moſt convenient, and neareſt the Center of the Colony: And far from confining the Propoſition to thoſe in Trade, it is expected, and hop'd, that every Gentleman, wiſhing well to this Colony, will join in promoting ſo public and beneficial a Deſign.

NEW HAVEN, January 2, 1770.

TO THE PUBLIC.

PROPOSALS for collecting, and arranging Materials for a complete Hiſtory of the united Colonies of CONNECTICUT and NEW-HAVEN.

As a Work of this Kind ought, or will undoubtedly be executed, it is, or may be proper, to aſk the Aſſiſtance of All, Councellors, Clergymen, Members of Aſſembly, that have been ſo, or are now in Office, to oblige us with their Communications, as,

I. Chronological Æras or Dates to all Principal and other Events in Church and State worthy Notice.

II. Names and Characters of all eminent Men; their Syſtem of Policy, Anecdotes, Theological Syſtem, & political Connections.

III. All Debates of Aſſembly upon intereſting and ſignal Occaſions, from the Year 1633. Names and Characters of the moſt eminent Clergymen, their Actions, Speeches in the Provincial and General Synods, peculiar Tenets in Theology, and Policy, Syſtem of Eccleſiaſtical Polity, &c. Anecdotes of the moſt noted Natives, their civil Polity of War and Peace.

And as Preciſion and Truth are the principal Characteriſticks of an Hiſtorian, Gentlemen of Leiſure and Curioſity, may aſſiſt ſome Author in theſe intereſting Particulars, And altho' not a Hiſtory equal to Salluſt, Plutarch, or Livy yet perhaps not inferior to Mr. Hutchinſon. And as the preſent Century has produced ſignal and important Events, hope ſome Perſon may relate them in a proper Manner, to the Public. Gentlemen that uſe a Seal, with a Signature, will be more authentic.——Orders will be faithfully executed as to the Name of any Communicator of Intelligence. All this with Intent that the Public may not have the Unhappineſs of purchaſing any ſpurious Hiſtory of the Colony.

Pleaſe to ſend to either of the Colony Printers, viz. Thomas and Samuel Green, in New-Haven, Green and Watſon, in Hartford, or Timothy Green, in New-London.

Colony of Connecticut, }
Litchfield County, ſs. }

Litchfield, January 12, 1770.

WHEREAS, purſuant to an act of ſaid colony entitled, An act to prevent fraud in debtors and for ſecuring the effects of inſolvent debtors for the uſe of their creditors, &c. The eſtate of Capt. Abner Baldwin of Litchfield, an abſconding and concealed debtor hath been by a warrant, granted by the Hon. John Williams, Eſq; chief Judge of the County Court in and for the County of Litchfield aforeſaid, ordered to be attached, ſeized and taken, for the benefit of the creditors of the ſaid Abner, agreeable to ſaid act. And he the ſaid Abner having neglected to diſcharge his juſt debts, and we the ſubſcribers being by the ſaid Judge appointed truſtees of the eſtate of the ſaid Abner: Theſe are therefore to notify all the creditors of the ſaid Abner Baldwin to meet at the dwelling houſe of widow Mary Walker, innholder in ſaid Litchfield, on the 7th day of February next, at one o'clock in the afternoon, then and there to diſapprove (if they think proper) of ſaid truſtees and elect others in their ſtead; and to do and tranſact any other buſineſs proper for ſaid creditors to do.

Jedediah Strong, }
Andrew Adams, } Truſtees.
Joſeph Picket. }

RUN AWAY from the ſubſcriber of Eaſt-Hartford, on Monday the 25th of December laſt, an indented ſervant, named John Anſon, an Engliſhman, about 22 years of age about 5 feet 9 inches high, wears his own curl'd Black hair, dark complection, had on when he went away a homeſpun great coat, with 2 capes, a deep blue double breaſted Serge waiſtcoat, Mettle buttons, one check'd linen Shirt, one Pair of light colour'd Brown broad-cloth breeches, a pair grey ſeam'd ſtockings, a pair of large braſs buckels, with very wide rims. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid ſervant, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's goal's, or return him to his maſter, ſhall have FOUR DOLLARS reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

NATHANIEL OLCOTT.

Hartford, Jan. 1, 1770.

"Will no ſuperior genius ſnatch the quill,
"And ſave me on the brink from writing ill?
YOUNG.

The PHYSICIAN, No. I.

TO THE PUBLIC.

BODILY health is ſo abſolutely neceſſary in order to the enjoyment of any other of the gifts of nature or Providence, that all ages and nations have laboured, with unremitted aſſiduity, to find means to preſerve and reſtore, when loſt, this moſt invaluable Bleſſing. Nor is health leſs neceſſary for any one who would do any great ſervice for his country. Had a man the genius of an Alexander, Newton or Boerhaave, and at the ſame time ſtruggling with the moſt tormenting gouty pains, or ſeiz'd with a raging fever or languiſhing under a conſumption, it is obvious, that in either of theſe circumſtances he would be in an ill ſituation to conquer the world, inveſtigate mathematical problems, or preach phyſical lectures at the univerſity of Leyden. A conſideration of the importance of health, and the proper means to preſerve and reſtore it when loſt, has induced ſundry Princes, and ſome of the wiſeſt and beſt men in all former ages, to take upon them the ſtudy and practice of the healing art; and becauſe a competent knowledge of the laws of the animal oeconomy, and the nature and operation of medicines is abſolutely neceſſary in order to qualify any one to act the part of a good phyſician, it has been the particular care of all wiſe patriots, and wiſe ſtateſmen, to encourage the ſtudy of phyſic. Were it needful I might here refer to the various phyſical ſeminaries which have been inſtituted in all parts of the learned world down to the preſent day; but as every one in the leaſt acquainted with letters, muſt be ſenſible of the truth of theſe facts, ſhall therefore wave an enumeration of them, and proceed to ſay, that a conſideration of the importance of what I have been ſpeaking of, induced a number of generous gentlemen belonging to the county of Litchfield, about five years ago, to form themſelves into a medical ſociety; and in order to accompliſh their noble deſign, and facilitate the growth of phyſical knowledge, they made a number of reſolves (a true copy of which is now lodg'd in the ſecretary's office with deſign to be heard by the hon General Aſſembly at their ſeſſions in May next) and gave invitation to all reputable Phyſicians to join them. In conſequence of which, and by means of the ſalutary effects reſulting from their conventions, their number is greatly augmented by additions from this and other neighbouring provinces, and I will venture to ſay, that there is not a gentleman of generoſity and learning, acquainted with this ſociety, but who is abundantly convinced of it's utility, and ardently wiſhes its proſperity. Indeed the benign influences which it is daily defuſing around us, are ſo conſpicuous that they are ſeen and acknowledged even by the moſt inattentive. Shall now give a brief account of this ſociety's proceedings. The ſociety meet twice a year ſtatedly, and oftener, if occaſion calls. The conventions are ſometimes opened by an oration —after which, if any gentlemen are deſirous to join the ſociety, on their being well recommended by proper perſons, as regular practitioners, they are received by a vote— after this, follows four diſſertations on phyſic, made by gentlemen previouſly appointed ——next the candidates for phyſic preſent themſelves, who are examined by a committee in preſence of the whole ſociety—after the committee have finiſhed their interrogations, every member of the ſociety (if they pleaſe) aſk the candidates ſuch queſtions as they think proper. Note here, theſe examinations are ſyſtematical, being correſpondent to the method practiſed by Boerhaave, preſident of the college of phyſicians at the univerſity of Leyden. After the examination is over, the candidates are try'd one by one, with reſpect to their qualifications——ſuch as are found qualified, are received by a vote, into the ſociety, and take licence——ſuch as are not qualified, are rejected. Muſt now inform, that if any member of the ſociety makes any new diſcovery, either in the ſtudy or practice of phyſic, he communicates it at the next convention; and if any thing occurs to him in his ſtudy or practice which he can't inveſtigate, he propoſes the caſe to the ſociety, and takes their opinion thereon. Thus far of the deſign and order of this ſociety. I ſhall in my next endeavour to point out the advantages that will ariſe from the Hon. Aſſembly's protection, and the diſadvantages which will neceſſarily reſult from non protection.

BOSTON, January 4, 1770.

Extract of a letter from a Merchant in London to his Correspondent in Boſton, dated November 4, 1769.

——THE great End of Government is to unite all its Subjects in one Intereſt; to make every Part of the Empire, and every Individual in it, contribute to the Welfare of the Whole; and to apply the Force of the Whole, to the Protection of every Individual. Combinations therefore entered into by the Subjects in one Part of the Empire, againſt thoſe of another, are a kind of Treaſon to the Whole— are in their Natur[illegible]radictory to all the Princip[illegible] Government, and ought never t[illegible] mitted in a well-ordered Empir[illegible] your People build any great Exp[illegible]s upon their raiſing Clamours a[illegible]ults in this Kingdom by their di[illegible]ging our Manufactures, there does not ſeem to be the leaſt Tendency to any Thing of that Kind.——Clamours enough we have of other ſorts; but ſuch as proceed from a Fulneſs of Bread, and a Plenty of Trade, rather than from the Want of it. In truth your People greatly over-rate their own Importance; and are not aware of the Variety of Reſources of Trade, of which this Nation is poſſeſſed, beſide that of North-America: And in Fact notwithſtanding all your Combinations, our Trade has this Year been as great as ever. In our own Houſe I know we have found no want of it. But the Ground I go upon, is the Produce of the Sinking Fund, which is the ſure and never-failing Pulſe of the National Commerce; and that comes out now by the laſt Year, and the laſt Quarters Account, made up to Michaelmaſs laſt, to be as great as ever. Nor are the Manufacturers diſpoſed now again to adopt the ſame ſort of Clamour.——Once they were artfully led into it: They have ſince upon Reflection ſeen the Falſeneſs of it, it is now a Stale Device, and will not do a ſecond Time. Certain it is there are now no Complaints of want of Trade.——

OXFORD, in the County of Worceſter, Dec. 24, 1769.

In about 29 Months paſt hath died in this Town of the Throat-Diſtemper, 144 Perſons moſtly Children from 2 to 14 Years of Age, and 28 Perſons hath died of other Diſorders, making in the whole 172; which Number according to a Calculation is about one ſeventh Part of the Inhabitants of Oxford when the Sickneſs began in the Town. ——31 of the aforeſaid Number is buried in 15 Graves; and three Families have buried 21 Children, viz. two Families eight Children each, and the other five Children.—For ſome Weeks paſt the Sickneſs has ſtopped.

A Gentleman from Valentown informs it was reported there, before he came away, that the Paxton Boys had taken Poſſeſſion of the Suſquehannah Lands, with the Blockhouſe thereon erected, in Behalf of the New-England Adventurers; and had offered, for a Tract of five Miles ſquare, to defend the Lands againſt all other Claims whatever.

HARTFORD, Jan. 15, 1770.

In conſequence of the plentiful rain (which began on Saturday night the 6th inſt. and continued till Monday Morning,) there has been ſuch a ſudden and extraordinary riſe of water in Connecticut River, as has been rarely known, by which all the low lands adjoyning, have been flooded—'Tis ſaid that about 25 boats, canoes, and batteaus, together with a great quantity of ſaw-mill logs, and other timber have been ſeen floating down the ſtream, which could not be ſaved by reaſon of the cakes of Ice, with which the river was throng'd.——The back water in the little river, roſe to the height of about twelve feet under the Great-Bridge, and 3 and half feet perpendicular above the top of the mill dam; and within 1 foot 9 inches of the plate of the Fulling-Mill.——And we hear the Iron-Works in Simſbury, are entirely ſwept off with the flood, together with one or two houſes which ſtood contiguous to the river there with ſeveral bridges of conſiderable importance that ſtood upon the ſame river; and with great difficulty the large and commodious Store which contain'd a great quantity of Engliſh Goods was ſaved.

In the terible ſtorm we had here the firſt inſtant, the Houſe of Mr. Stephen Brownſon of Farmington, took fire in the Night (ſuppoſed to be occaſioned by the Doors Blowing open) and was entirely conſum'd.——

⁂ The Severity of the Weather has prevented the Poſts performing their Stages at the uſual Time this Week.

To be ſold by the

Subſcriber in Hartford for Caſh in hand.

RED, and Blue Duffels at 5/ per yard, Red Blue and Drab colour'd Coatings, from 5/ to 7/ per yard, and many other European and India GOODS, for leſs advance from the Sterling coſt, as they pay a leſs freight. Alſo, a few articles in the Grocery way, dried Codfiſh at 22/ per Quintle. Bohea Tea, at 4/2 per lb. Soal Leather at 1/2 per lb. Logwood at 10/ per Hundred, &c &c.

CALEB BULL.

Jan 6. 1770

TO BE SOLD BY

Iſrael Abbot,

Of Middletown,

BEtween ten or twelve acres of good land, lately the property of Mr John Peutry Jones, in Eaſt-Hartford, where ſaid Jones's barn now ſtands. Alſo, one acre of land, adjoining the Great River, where the Ferry Boat lands, the one half North, and the other half South of Mr Moſes Williams's houſe, for further particulars enquire of ſaid Abbot of Middletown or Mr. William Knox of Hartford. P

Lanbier Leiſcoiet,

(Clock and Watch-Maker from Paris)
At the Sign of the Clock in King Street,
HARTFORD,

HEREBY informs the Public, that he has removed from the Shop of Mr. James Tiley, to one oppoſite the Store of Meſſieurs Lathrop & Smith, where he continues to make & mend, Repeating and Plain WATCHES, of all kinds, on the moſt reaſonable Terms.

Any Watch that he ſhall mend, which ſhall not go true he will rectify GRATIS.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon judge of probate for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners to receive and adjuſt the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Eleazer Dickinſon, late of Weatherſfield, deceaſed, (☞ Repreſented INSOLVENT ☜) we therefore hereby notify the creditors to ſaid eſtate, to bring in their claims to us, on the ſecond Tueſdays of Jan. and Feb. next, at the houſe of Abigail Griſwould in ſaid Weatherſfield, as we will attend the buſineſs on each of ſaid days at ſaid place, at 1 o'Clock afternoon

JOHN ROBBINS } Commiſſioners.
JOHN AMES }

Weatherſfield, Dec. 12th, 1769.

Simſbury Dec. 7. 1769.

STrayed or Stolen, from me the ſubſcriber in ſaid Symſbury, a dark bay Mare, about 14 hands high, well ſpread, natural to her pace branded thus, 8 on the near ſhoulder, one white ſtreak round the middle of each ear, and a white ſtreak in her face, had on a good ſaddle, with deers leather ſeat, and blue pluſh howſen.——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid mare, and convey her to me ſhall have Two Dollars reward; and all neceſſary charges paid, by me

MICAH MOOR.

FREEMANS Pocket Almanack,

For 1770.
To be ſold at the Printing-Office, in HARTFORD.

TO BE SOLD BY

PETER VERSTILLE,

At his Store in Weatherſfield, the following GOODS, at the loweſt Prices, for CASH only, viz.

CRimſon and other Broad Cloths Scarlet Green & Blue Ratteens German Serges Cloth colour'd Kerſey: Red Blue and Brown Half Thicks Sagathys and Duroys Bazies Shalloons ſorted, Tammys, ditto Durants, ditto Calamincoes, do Camblets, Plain & figur'd Cambletteens Dorſetteens, Hungarian Stuffs, Poplins, Miſſnets, Dreſdinetts, Grezetts, Broloes, Black Silk Crapes, ditto Bombazeens, Black and Cloth colour'd Drawboys, Brown and Olive colour'd Fuſtians, Brown and White Stay Buckrams. Black figur'd Laſtings, Cotton Checks of all width's, Red & White & Blue & White Stripe'd Hollands, Black White, Crimſon, Green, Blue and Purple Pelong Sattins Shear and Thick Muſlins [illegible] bricks and [illegible] Black and W[illegible] finetts, Black [illegible] Catgutt, Black [illegible] Plain Gauze, White figur[illegible] Black and Crim[illegible] puchine Silk, Men's & Women's Leather Gloves, and Mitts, Women's Silk Gloves and Mitts, 3 4 & 7 8 Bed Ticking. A fine Aſſortment of Chintz and Callicoes, Black and Colour'd Barcelona Hankerchiefs Black Gauze Handkerchiefs [illegible]ionin and Silk ditto Black Cravatts, Black Crimſon and Scarlet Snail Trimming Head Flowers, Necklaces and Ribbands, Silver Tippits and Turbands, Cap Wires, Velvet Maſks, Sattin Hatts & Bonnetts Black Ducape Cloth colour'd and changeable Luteſtrings, Brown Taffity, Martiheco Luteſtrings, Silk and Cotton ditto Paddleſtick Fans, and other ditto. Damaſcens and Soleas for Waiſtcoats, Black & White Laces Silk Stay ditto. 3-4 7 8 and Yard Wide Hollands and Dowlas, Womens Shoes Ruſſia Linnin and Diapers White figur'd Dimothy's, Mens and Womens Thread Cotton and Worſted Hoſe, Black Blue Purple and cloth colour'd Breaches Patterns, Looking Glaſſes, Chaiſe and Hunting Whips, Bohea Tea, Coffee, Ginger, Allſpice, Nutmegs, Cloves, Cinnamon, Men's Caſtor and Felt Hatts, Flower Lawn & Kenting Handkerchiefs, Ferritts and Galloons, Shoe and Quality Bindings, Horn, Mettle, Twiſt and Baſket Buttons, Beſt G. B. Wool and Cotton Cards, Beſt Kippens and Tillocks Snuff, Allum, Copperas, Brimſtone, Redwood, Logwood, Rice, &c. Sowing Silk Gruel, Twiſt ſorted, Horn & Ivory Combs, Tapes, Pins Needles, Writing and Preſs Paper, Paper Hangings for Rooms, Pewter & Braſs, Shoe & Knee Buckles, Bellows, Nails and an Aſſortment of Hard Ware.

N. B. Ticklinburgs and Ozinbrigs, by the Bolt, and Ravens Duck by the piece.

THIS is to give Publick

notice, that thoſe Perſons that have any concern in taking the Connecticut Courant, for the year 1770 in the following towns or pariſhes, are deſired to make pay to Mr. KNIGHT SEXTON, near the Great Bridge in Hartford, viz. Eaſt Hartford, Bolton, Andover, Coventry, Eaſt Windſor, Tolland Stafford, Somers, Enfield, Suffield, and, Weſt Windſor.

CLOCKS and Watches made in the beſt Manner, by

PRESERVED CLAP
of Amherſt.

Likewiſe all Kinds of Inſtruments in Surgery.

WHereas there is a diſpute, about the qualifications for ſpecial ordinances, viz. Baptiſm and the Lords Supper, lately revived by Dr. Bellamy and others, it is now propoſed to re print by Subſcription,

Mr. Stoddard's Appeal to the Learned

Being a vindication of the right of viſible Saints to the Lord's Supper, tho' they be deſtitute of a ſaving work of the ſpirit of GOD, on their hearts againſt the exceptions of Mr. Mather and others,

The price to the ſubſcribers only ſtitch'd, will be about One Shilling L. Money.

Subſcriptions are taken in by Deac. Silas Kellogg, at Sheffield, Doct. Timothy Hoſmer in Farmington, and by the Printers hereof.

THE ſubſcriber having rode poſt almoſt four years, finds it abſolutely neceſſary to come to a general ſettlement with his cuſtomers to prevent any miſtakes that may happen in his accounts, not only by means of the length of time, but alſo as he is obliged to keep them in a ſmall pocket book, which by frequent uſing wears out in a few months, and thereby occaſions a transfer of them, and notwithſtanding all the care he can take will ſubject him to ſome omiſſions; he therefore intends to bring them to a cloſe with number 270, and hopes his good cuſtomers will be kind enough to meet him at the places where their reſpective papers are lodged upon thoſe days on which he commonly reaches the ſtages, that they may adjuſt the ſame.

He would not have any of his employers imagine that he intends to diſcontinue the buſineſs after that time, he ſtill hopes to have the pleaſure of ſerving them to their ſatisfaction in the ſame way, but his fixing upon a particular time for the ſettlement of the whole was, that for the future every mans account ſhould begin at the ſame time, which will ſave him a great deal of trouble in the ſettling of them, and render them not ſo much ſubject to error as before.——Compliance with the above, will much oblige your very humble ſervant,

William Stanton.

N. B. Theſe perſons who have dropped the paper, and not been kind enough to make pay, are deſired to look upon this Advertiſement as a call upon them to remember their duty.

'Tis money makes the mare to go.

To be ſold at public Vendue, at the houſe of Mr. David Bull Innholder in Hartford, on Tueſday the 30th day of Jan. next, or at private ſale any time before,

THE home lot on which Mr. Elihu Wadſworth now dwells, containing about Ten Acres, together with the buildings thereon ſtanding, ſituate in a ſtreet about 60 rods weſt of the Court Houſe. Alſo Two Acres of excellent Mowing Land, adjoining to the Land of Col. Samuel Talcott, on which his ſhop ſtands. Alſo about 26 Acres in the North Meadow, in ſaid Hartford, lying convenient to the town for a paſture or mowing. For particulars, enquire of EZEKIEL WILLIAMS, at Weatherſfield or the ſaid ELIHU WADSWORTH.

Hartford, 30th Dec. 1769.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

HARTFORD:
Printed by Green and Watſon.

MONDAY, Jan. 22, 1770.

Numb. 265.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices, Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

LONDON, October 26

THE late meeting of the freeholders of the County of Cornwall was very numerous & reſpectable; the Sheriff firſt opened to them the reaſon of their aſſembling, and deſired to know the ſenſe of the county, if a Petition would be agreeable or not. On which its approbation was ſhewn by the loudeſt acclamation. But yet one Gentleman objected to it, and uſed many arguments in oppoſition to it; but they were ſoon refuted by a long and learned reply, both of Mr. Serjeant Glynn, and Thomas Pitt, Eſq. The County Members likewiſe with ardent and patriotic zeal, declared their readineſs to promote the welfare of their Country.

Mr. Pitt of Boconock, Member of Parliament for Oakhampton moved for the Petition, and made a moſt noble and eloquent ſpeech; he was ſeconded by Serjeant Glynn. The following is a Copy of the Petition.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

"We your Majeſty's dutiful and loyal ſubjects the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Cornwall, truly zealous for the honour and proſperity of your Majeſty's government, upon which depend the peace and welfare of your people, and at the ſame time ſenſibly alarmed at the impending evils, which now threaten the kingdom through a train of errors and miſconduct of your Majeſty's M——s, even to an open breach of that conſtitution, which hath hitherto been defended and maintained inviolate, at the price of ſo much blood; lamenting as we do, with the utmoſt loyal hearts, the ſpirit of diſcontent which, ariſing out of theſe cauſes augments daily, and has by degrees ſpread itſelf to the remoteſt parts of your Majeſty's dominions; yet, perſuaded that your royal ear is ever open to the remonſtrance of your faithful ſubjects, and that your mild and amiable diſpoſition is ever ready to give them full and ſpeedy redreſs of their grievances, we, in all humility, and in full confidence, lay them at your Majeſty's feet.

"The freedom of Election, we conſider as the baſis of our liberties and the very eſſence to that part of our wiſe conſtitution, which gives the people a ſhare in the legiſlative authority. The right of voting at elections, and right of being capable of elections, within the bounds preſcribed by law we conceive to be inherent in the freeholders of this kingdom; and of thoſe rights we ſhall ever eſteem it our duty to be more tenacious than of the freeholds themſelves upon which they depend, and which without them we ſhould juſtly conſider as poſſeſſions inſecure and precarious. It is therefore with inexpreſſible concern, that under your Majeſty's auſpicious reign, we have ſeen M——s bold enough to adviſe your Majeſty, to confer upon Col. Luttrel a trifling office, avowedly for the purpoſe of vacating the ſeat which he then held in Parliament, and enabling him to offer himſelf a candidate againſt Mr. Wilkes for the county of Middleſex; in conſequence of which, he hath been obtruded upon the freeholders of that county as their Repreſentative, tho' rejected by a numerous majority of legal and undiſputed votes; a precedent whereby the freedom of elections may be utterly aboliſhed; and the Houſe of Commons, inſtead of being the free choice and repreſentative of the people, may become the creatures of Miniſters, and the inſtruments of their illegal power. We humbly conceive that Mr. Wilkes, having a great majority of voices on the poll, and being not under any legal incapacity at the time of his election, was duly elected. That no incapacity, declared afterwards, even by law, could in juſtice have affected him with a retroſpect, ſo as to have cancelled thoſe votes, and rendered them null and nugatory; much leſs any prior or ſubſequent declaration of one branch of the legiſlature, not only founded upon no ſtatute or uſage, but contrary to law and precedents; that by the Bill of Rights, (the confirmation of our liberties) it is declared, that elections of members of Parliament ought to be free; that by Magna Charta, no freeman can be diſſeiſed of his freehold, or liberties, or cuſtoms, but by lawful judgment of his Peers, [illegible] of Parliament, is part of the law of the land; but that nothing leſs than a clear and well eſtabliſhed courſe of uſage and precedent, is a ſoleciſm in terms; that the right of judging finally in matters of election, does by no means imply a right to abrogate or alter the law in matters of election; that keeping ſeparate in all caſes, the two great powers of government, that of declaring judgment upon laws enacted, is one of the chief barriers againſt arbitrary power; that nothing can be more fatal to liberty, than to judge individuals upon law occaſionally enacted and ariſing ſuddenly out of the heat of the times, and peculiar circumſtances of the caſe under contemplation; that the claim of one branch of the legiſlature to the powers of the whole in making laws, has once already ſhaken the conſtitution to its foundations, and that every exerciſe of ſuch claim, more eſpecially in judgment, muſt tend to the ſame ruinous and deplorable confuſion; that to affirm that both Houſes of Parliament, have, or hath a legiſlative power without the King, or any other words to the ſame effect, is contrary to an expreſs law, and ſubjects the offender to the danger and penalty of a premunire. Alarmed, therefore, at this violent, dangerous, and unprecedented proceeding which ſtrikes, as we conceive at the root of the laws of Parliament, and of all our moſt ſacred privileges; and dreading the conſequences which a ſpirit of almoſt univerſal diſaffection, and want of confidence in the exerciſe of government muſt produce, if not prevented by ſeaſonable remedies we ſhould be wanting not only to ourſelves and poſterity, but to that loyal zeal for the glory and poſterity of your Majeſty's reign with which our hearts are warmly animated, if we neglected at this criſis, moſt earneſtly to call on your Majeſty's royal and paternal care to avert the common danger, in removing for ever from your councils and favour thoſe evil counſellors, whoſe influence has been the occaſion of thoſe powers which the conſtitution has intruſted to your Majeſty's royal wiſdom [illegible] muſt effectually redreſs the paſt, and remove all apprehenſions for the time to come; reſtore confidence to your government both at home and abroad, and fixes your Majeſty in the hearts and affections of your faithful ſubjects, whoſe moſt ardent wiſh is, that your Majeſty may be known to the lateſt poſterity by the moſt glorious of titles, the FATHER of a FREE and HAPPY PEOPLE."

All the gentlemen of the militia in the county of Cornwall, except two, have ſigned the petition.

MADRID, October 5.

THE laſt letters from Cadiz adviſe, that the Engliſh Officers belonging to Commodore Spry's ſhip which lay at anchor in that bay, were arreſted by the Cuſtom houſe Officers as th[illegible] [illegible] demanded his Officers, but was told they could not be releaſed without an expreſs order from Court; upon which he weighed anchor and put to ſea. What will be the conſequence of this, time will ſhew.

Vienna, Oct. 7. The ſtates of lower Auſtria, continue to deliberate upon the petition ſent by the Empreſs Queen for next year. It is ſaid they are required to furniſh a conſiderable number of recruits more than uſual, and that they are applied to for 50 000 men.

Warſaw, Oct 12. The Ruſſians are preparing to enter into winter quarters. Prince Repnin will fix his at Jaroſlaw. A body of 15000 Ruſſians under General Proſorowſki, continue to purſue the Turks, and to ſeize what booty they can, principally horſes. ——They have taken lately 3000 Janiſſaries, ſome ammunition, baggage, and 8 pieces of cannon. It is believed that they will blockade Bender.

The great number of Confederacies ſeem to announce the ruin of the Diſſenters. The Confederates have obliged the city of Cracow to give them 28 000 Poliſh florins for 1000 tons of ſalt, which they had ſtolen, belonging to the King.

Vienna, Oct. 20. As the Ruſſians have penetrated far into Moldavia and Wallachia, and as ſome of their troops have appeared on the frontiers of Tranſylvania, we are aſſured that our Court is going to ſend thither a reinforcement of troops.

Warſaw, Oct 12. This city continues to enjoy the moſt perfect tranquility, and ſince the defeat of the Turks, the Confederates dare not make their appearance in this neighbourhood as they uſed to do. Many of them are even gone home, and it is thought by ſeveral people, that before the end of the year, there will not be a body of Confederates left under arms.

LONDON, October 30.

WE are credibly informed, that it has been propoſed to lay a tax on all places of public entertainment throughout the kingdom, to anſwer the expence for the enſuing year.

Extract of a letter from Saliſbury, October 30.

"Our accounts of the affair at Jerſey from the Regiſter of certificates, baring date the 2d inſt. ſay, that all matters, reſpecting the Government, were then at a ſtand, owing to the riſing of the country people, who aſſembled and went to the Court-houſe, and forced their way in, compelling the Govenor and Court, then ſitting, to ſign an order, conſiſting of thirteen articles, (one of which was for the expulſion of all Revenue Officers) and this order has been publiſhed in the market, and in all the churches in that iſland, the letter adds, that Lieutenant Baily, and many of the Jurats, have retired to the Caſtle, out of the reach of the mob, and put themſelves under the protection of the military force.

"Four or five companies of the Royal Scots, now quartered at Wencheſter, are ordered to hold themſelves in readineſs to embark on the firſt notice for the ſaid iſland."

All thoughts of oppoſing the Lord Mayor Elect have been laid aſide ever ſince a great officer of the law declared in council, that he would not reſign the ſeals, till the public affairs are eſtabliſhed upon terms, agreeable to the people, and proper ſteps taken for redreſs, of the grievances they at this time labour under.

It is ſaid the Lord-Mayor Elect will make the moſt ſplendid appearance of any gentleman that ever filled that honourable office.

On Saturday laſt, a middle aged French gentleman, very decently dreſſed, hanged himſelf at the London Apprentice, in Old-ſtreet Road; a remarkable letter, written in French, was found in his pocket, ſetting forth, that ſome years ago he dream'd he was to die on the above-mentioned day, if not, he was to be d—mn—d eternally, and therefore for the ſalvation of his ſoul he thought it neceſſary to put an end to his life.

Saturday morning a fine Weſt-India turtle of 300 wt. was ſent by a merchant in the city as a preſent to Mr. Alderman Wilkes.

The Ruſſian fleet of ſhips of war have received orders to rendezvouſe in Gibraltar Bay, and then to ſail for Conſtantinople with he firſt fair wind.

It is reported, that though a great man in the law is very indifferent as to what may be determined relative to his continuing his office, or not, yet he has declared that he will not voluntarily reſign, nor will he trim, but always act, as his judgment and conſcience ſhall direct.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan 4.

Extract of a Letter from London, Nov. 1 1769.

"I am very much inclined to believe, that unleſs you relax ſomewhat, we ſhall have no connection together at leaſt for one twelve month. There is a rumour of an intention to give you one General Aſſembly for the continent, or perhaps two, and that every thing is to be properly ſettled when the Parliament meets, but it is impoſſible with our Miniſtry to adjuſt ſo weighty a matter in ſo ſhort a time. I am ſtill of opinion the duties upon glaſs, paper, painters colours, will be repealed, but as certain that the duty on tea will remain. Our manufacturers are ſo little ſenſible of the want of their uſual trade with you, that people begin to entertain an idea, that America never was of half the conſequence to us that it was generally imagined to be; an opinion that it can never be your intereſt to confirm. The ſeaſon, as I wrote you before, is unfavourable to your reſolutions; the Ruſſian war and other circumſtances, concur in occaſioning an unuſual demand for our manufactures. I do not ſee there are the leaſt diſpoſitions to make repreſentations to Parliament for your relief, which ought to convince you, that you were indebted to the merchants acting from a motive of principle, rather than intereſt, in promoting the repeal of the Stamp-act; for I aſſure you, there is ſome degree of remembrance of paſt tranſactions remaining, which diſcourages us from acting ſo ſtrenuouſly as we might otherwiſe be inclined to do, had our friends given us our due degree of merit for our former ſervices; you yourſelves have taken the field, and I wiſh you ſucceſs in every conſtitutional relief you may aim at obtaining. Your hints are good, with reſpect to ſhipping goods, and at a proper ſeaſon I will profit by them, but cannot now think any further proviſion whatever, for a time that appears ſo diſtant. For my own part, I declare I ſee no poſſibility of any trade to your part of the world, till next ſpring twelve-month. Thus far with reſpect to trade, which is now leaſt tho't of.

"Affairs here grow very critical; the colonies are petitioning for a diſſolution of parliament; I think the times wear a gloomy appearance; the nation in general much diſſatisfied, and God knows what will content them. But I am of opinion, there will be ſome bills of attainder paſſed, before long, upon the heads of one of the two parties. Many ſuppoſe us ripe for rebellion, but it is too ridiculous an idea to attempt to refute; the Miniſtry are not ſtrong enough to bring matters to ſo deſperate a criſis."

[A Miniſterial Sycophant.]

Extract of a ſecond letter London, of the ſame date.

"News, there is little abroad. The town is at preſent empty, and the Parliament do not meet till the middle of January. Conſiderable betts are depending at the Weſt End, that the Lord Chancellor reſigns before Saturday ſe'nnight, and that either Sir F. Norton, or Mr. De Grey ſucceeds him. A Rumour was ſpread yeſterday, that Sir W. Draper is to be appointed Governor of South-Carolina, which has not ſince been contradicted. This appointment will not be much in favour of America, as Sir William has lately ſignalized himſelf very highly for the Court. The Merchants univerſal agreement not to import the manufactures of this kingdom, under the preſent circumſtances, will certainly have its influence, in procuring a repeal of the Revenue Acts. All ranks of people admire the calm reſolution with which the Pennſylvanians have proceeded to aſſert their rights and liberties; and it is now a general opinion, that a total repeal will take place early in the next ſeſſion, for which event every true lover of both countries is bound to pray.

Extract of letter from London, Nov. 2.

"The trade of puſhing forward petitions, for the diſſolution of the Parliament, goes on in different parts of the kingdom, with more ſucceſs, (tho' not without oppoſition) than could have been conceived; ſo that by the time the Parliament meets in January, this kingdom will be in the ſtrangeſt, and moſt unaccountable ſituation that can be imagined. No judgment can poſſibly be formed of ſuch a ſituation. It will be very fortunate, in my mind, if matters are prevented from coming to the moſt diſagreeable extremities next winter. Hitherto all parties have joined in ſhewing all poſſible reſpect in words at leaſt, to the king; but he will ſoon be brought into a very diſagreeable dilemma.

"With regard to your American affairs, the Miniſtry are diſpoſed, to afford you the wiſhed for relief. But to go through with this, and ſome other very ardent taſks, that await them this winter, demands a greater degree of courage, readineſs and perſeverance than they are maſters of.——We ſhall ſee how they behave—It is ſaid they intend to ſtand their ground, their head, the Duke of Grafton, means well; but, from his youth and inexperience, it cannot be expected that he can yet have acquired ſufficient authority to fill the high ſtation he now holds."

BOSTON, Jan. 11, 1770.

Letters by the packet inform, that —— Hughes, Eſq; Collector of his majeſty's cuſtoms at Portſmouth is appointed Collector of South-Carolina.—Benjamin Hollowel jun. Eſq; Collector at Portſmouth, in the room of Mr. Hughes, and —— Meſerve, Eſq; Comptroller at this port, in the room of Mr. Hallowell.

At the Court of Common Pleas now ſitting in Boſton for the county of Suffolk, is to come on an Action of Treſpaſs, wherein James Otis, Eſq; is Plaintiff, and John Robinſon, Eſq; Defendant. The Sum demanded in Damages is ſaid to be £.3000 Sterl. His Majeſty's Writ of Original Summons on this Occaſion, is very elegantly engroſs'd on the beſt gilt Paper. The above Writ was ſerv'd according to the Laws of this Province; not by holding to bail; but by leaving a tranſcript engroſs'd in the ſame Hand and Paper at the Defendant's Houſe.

Laſt week a Hog was killed at Dorcheſter, which after it was dreſſed, is ſaid to have weighed 800 lb.—It has ſince been ſhewn in this Town, as a Curioſity, at three Coppers a ſight.

Laſt Week Mr. John Potter, of South-Kingſton, in the Colony of Rhode-Iſland, killed 3 Hogs of his own raiſing, which, when dreſſed, weighed the firſt 740 lb. the ſecond 648 lb. the third 626 lb.—Total 2014 lb.

We hear from Beverly, that Mr. Robert Roundy killed a Calf not quite 9 Months old, the four Quarters of which weighed 371 lb. the Tallow 34 lb. the Hide 55 lb. and the Tongue 3 lb. half. The whole 463 lb. half. The Calf was raiſed at Plaſtow in New-Hampſhire Government.

MARBLEHEAD, Jan. 1, 1770.

The Number of Veſſels, belonging to this Place, which have been loſt ſince January, 1768, is as follows, viz.

8 Fiſhing Schooners in 1768.
13 Ditto in the Spring, 1769.
3 Ditto the laſt Fall.
4 Sail of Merchantmen.

Total 23 Sail, and all the Men belonging to them, amounting to 160 Whites, and 2 Negroes, (beſides ſome ſtrangers belonging to the Merchantmen, of whom no Account has been kept) were loſt.—The Number of Widows left by theſe Men were 70, with 155 Children. The Value of the intereſt loſt, is eſtimated to amount to £.14124-8-5 Lawful Money.

Beſides the above loſs of men, a conſiderable Number have been waſhed overboard and drowned in the ſame ſpace of Time, but as the Veſſels to which they belonged returned, no Account has been kept of them; one Veſſel, in particular, laſt Spring, ſhipped a Sea, by which ſix Men, out of eight, were waſhed overboard and drowned.

BOSTON, Jan. 11.

Extract of a Letter by the Packet, from a Gentleman in London, to his friend in Boſton, dated the 3d of November, 1769.

"During my ſtay at Yorkſhire, the reſolutions of your merchants, and the capricious Reſolves of many of your Aſſemblies, were frequently the topic of converſation amongſt my acquaintances in that part of the country. The Non-Importation ſcheme, which, on a former occaſion, operated ſo much to your advantage, is now looked upon by the principal Merchants and Manufacturers, as an idle menace, chiefly calculated to impoſe on the credulity of the vulgar.—Never could there have been a time, when an agreement of that kind would have leſs affected the manufacturers than the preſent.—The commotions in the north of Europe, of which I ſee no likelihood of a ſpeedy termination, have increaſed the demand for our woollens to ſuch a degree, that our merchants are obliged to ſolicit thoſe very perſons for their manufactures, who, not above eighteen months ago, conſidered themſelves, as under the greateſt obligations to them for their cuſtom.—The ridiculous, and ill-timed vaunts, which have been repeatedly thrown out in your news papers, ſuch as that you will ſtarve Great Britain into your terms, have had no ſmall effect in rouſing the reſentment not only of the miniſtry, but of the nation in general againſt you.

"Our friend Mr. T——, with with whom I dined yeſterday, informs me, that, amongſt other things, it was propoſed, at the laſt meeting of the miniſtry, that orders ſhall be ſent to the ſeveral Governors in America, directing them to iſſue their proclamations, aſſuring all ſuch perſons as were inclined to import goods from Great-Britain, of every protection which the civil power could afford, and if that proved inſufficient, the military ſhould be called to its aid.—If this plan be adopted, which our friend aſſures me, there is little reaſon to doubt of, it will certainly be attended with very ſalutary effects on your ſide the water, as it is univerſally beleived here, that nothing prevents moſt of your principal merchants from importing as uſual but a dread of the reſentment of a deluded people, under the influence of a few men, who like ſome of the Worthies here, have too long carried on the baſeſt deſigns under the maſk of Patriotiſm, and the glorious love of Liberty. If you expect to avail yourſelves of the diſturbances here, or that a change in the miniſtry would be productive of a change of meaſures, be aſſured, your hopes are founded on the moſt fallacious principles.——All the bawlings about Wilkes, Liberty, and miniſterial oppreſſion are nothing more, than the clamour raiſed by the Outs, to work themſelves into place, but, the moment they have gained their point, which there is little probability of at preſent, you may depend upon it, they will adopt thoſe very meaſures which they now ſo loudly exclaim againſt."

NEW-YORK, January 11.

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor, was pleaſed to give his aſſent to the following acts laſt Friday.

An Act for making a further Proviſion of £.2000, for furniſhing his Majeſty's Troops quarted in this Colony with Neceſſaries for one Year.

An Act for emitting the Sum of £.120,000, in Bills of Credit to be put out on Loan, and to appropriate the intereſt ariſing thereon to the Payment of the Debts of this Colony, and to ſuch public Exigencies as the Circumſtances of this Colony may from Time to Time render neceſſary.

In the hard Weather we had laſt Monday Se'nnight, we are apprehenſive much Damage has been done on our Coaſt; we have already heard that Capt. Ryker, in a Sloop from the Weſt-Indies for this Port, is aſhore at Squan Beach, the Crew and Cargo will be ſaved, and the Veſſel may be got of again; a Brig and Schooner are alſo aſhore on the South-Side of Long-Iſland; The Brig proves to be the Elizabeth, Capt. Conry, in Ballaſt, from Dublin, which he left the 24th of October, the People, 9 in Number, were all loſt, the Bodies of two and Part of another, were found on the Shore. The Veſſel beat to Pieces.

HARTFORD, January 22.

We hear that on Saturday the 13th inſtant, departed this Life, the Rev'd. ELIJAH MASON, Paſtor of a Church in Say-Brook.

Laſt Tueſday one Dan Stow, of Middletown, about 21 Years of age, having been ſledding wood at ſome diſtance from home, and not returning at Night ſo ſoon as was expected, his friends went in ſearch of him, and found him dead in the ſtreet about two o'clock next morning. It is ſuppoſed he died in a fit, to which he was ſubject.

Middletown, Jan. 12, 1770.

ALL perſons indebted to, or that have any demands on the eſtate of Ebenezer Cook, late of Middletown, Mariner, deceaſed, are deſired to bring in their accounts to Wenſly Hobby, Adminiſtrator on ſaid eſtate, in order for a ſpeedy ſettlement.

Wethersfield, Jan. 13, 1770.

To be ſold at public vendue, at the houſe of the Wid. Griſwold, inn holder in Rocky Hill on Monday the 12th of Feb. next,

A Piece of land, lately call'd common land, containing 30 acres, lying eaſtward of land belonging to Thomas Deming's heirs, and weſtward of Jeremiah Standiſh's land, and butts north on a highway.——Alſo one acre in the great meadow, butted ſouth on land of Charles Butler, north on land of Nathaniel Robbins, and weſt on a high-way.——Alſo one piece of land containing four acres, lying on the road to Middletown, a little below the dwelling houſe of Capt. Thomas Curtiſs, bounded weſt on his land, and ſouth on Peter Bulkley's.——Said land may be ſo'd at any time before, at private ſale. For terms enquire of Thomas Seymour, Eſq; at Hartford, or

Ezekiel Williams.

WHereas application has been made to me the ſubſcriber, a juſtice of peace for the county of Litchfield, by more than a ſixteenth part of the proprietors of the townſhip of Addiſon, near Crown Point, deſiring to warn a meeting of ſaid proprietors, to ſee if they will chooſe a committee to ſurvey and bound out ſaid townſhip, and to lay a diviſion of home lots to ſaid proprietors——Theſe are therefore to notify the proprietors of ſaid townſhip, to meet together at the houſe of Mr. Andrew Stewart in New-Fairfield, on the ſecond Tueſday of February next, at one of the clock in the afternoon, for the purpoſe aforeſaid, and to do any other buſineſs proper to be done at ſaid meeting. Dated at Sharon, the 15th day of January, 1770.

Daniel Griſwold, Juſt. Pacis.

To be ſold by the

Subſcriber in Hartford for Caſh in hand.

RED and Blue Duffels at 5/ per Yard, Red blue and Drab colour'd Coatings, from 5/ to 7/ per yard. and many other European and India GOODS, for leſs advance from the Sterling coſt, as they pay a leſs freight. Alſo, a few articles in the Grocery way, dried Codfiſh, at 22/ per Quintle, Bohea Tea, at 4/2 per lb. Soal Leather at 1/2 per lb. Logwood at 10/ per Hundred, &c &c.

CALEB BULL.

Jan. 6, 1770.

TO BE SOLD BY

Iſrael Abbot,

OF Middletown,

BEtween ten or twelve acres of good land, lately the property of Mr. John Pentry Jones, in Eaſt Hartford, whereon ſaid Jones's barn now ſtands. Alſo one acre of land, adjoining the Great River, where the Ferry Boat lands, the one half North, and the other half South of Mr. Moſes Williams's houſe; for further particulars enquire of ſaid Abbot of Middletown or Mr. William Knox of Hartford.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon. judge of probate for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners to receive and adjuſt the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Eleazer Dickinſon, late of Weathersfield, deceaſed, (☞ Repreſented INSOLVENT ☜) we therefore hereby notify the creditors to ſaid eſtate, to bring in their claims to us, on the ſecond Tueſdays of Jan. and Feb. next, at the houſe of Abigail Griſwould in ſaid Weathersfield, as we will attend the buſineſs on each of ſaid days at ſaid place, at 1 o'Clock afternoon.

JOHN ROBBINS, } Commiſſi-
JOHN AMES, } oners.

Weathersfield, Dec. 12th, 1769.

Colony of Connecticut, }
Litchfield County, ſſ. }

Litchfield, January 12, 1770.

WHEREAS, purſuant to an act of ſaid colony entitled, An act to prevent fraud in debtors and for ſecuring the effects of inſolvent debtors for the uſe of their creditors, &c. The eſtate of Capt. Abner Baldwin of Litchfield, an abſconding and concealed debtor hath been by a warrant, granted by the Hon. John Williams, Eſq; chief Judge of the County Court in and for the County of Litchfield aforeſaid, ordered to be attached, ſeized and taken, for the benefit of the creditors of the ſaid Abner, agreable to ſaid act. And he the ſaid Abner having neglected to diſcharge his juſt debts, and we the ſubſcribers being by the ſaid Judge appointed truſtees of the eſtate of the ſaid Abner: Theſe are therefore to notify all the creditors of the ſaid Abner Baldwin to meet at the dwelling houſe of widow Mary Welers, innholder in ſaid Litchfield, on the 7th day of February next, at one o'clock in the afternoon, then and there to diſapprove (if they think proper) of ſaid truſtees and elect others in their ſtead; and to do and tranſact any other buſineſs proper for ſaid creditors to do.

Jedediah Strong, }
Andrew Adams, } Truſtees.
Joſeph Picket. }

FREEMANS Pocket Almanack,

To be ſold at the Printing-Office.

TO BE SOLD BY

PETER VERSTILLE,

At his Store in Weathersfield, the following GOODS, at the loweſt Prices, for CASH only, viz.

CRimſon and other Broad Cloths, Scarlet Green & Blue Ratteens, German Serges, Cloth colour'd Kerſeys, Red Blue and Brown Half Thicks, Sagathys and Duroys, Bazies, Shalloons ſorted, Tammys, ditto. Durants, ditto Calamincoes, ditto Camblets, Plain & figur'd Cambletteens, Dorſetteens, Hungarian Stuffs, Poplins, Miſſinetts, Dreſdinetts, Genzetts, Broſſoes, Black Silk Crapes, ditto Bombazeens, Black and Cloth colour'd Drawboys, Brown and Olive colour'd Fuſtians, Brown and White Stay Buckrams, Black figur'd Laſtings, Cotton Checks of all width's, Red & White & Blue & White Stripe'd Hollands, Black White, Crimſon, Green, Blue and Purple Pelong Sattins, Shear and Thick Muſlins, Cambricks and Lawns, Black and White Parſinetts, Black & White Catgute, Black & White Plain Gauze, Black & White figur'd ditto, Black and Crimſon Capuchine Silk, Men's & Women's Leather Gloves, and Mitts, Women's Silk Gloves and Mitts, 3-4 & 7-8 Bed Ticking. A fine Aſſortment of Chintz and Callicoes, Black and Colour'd Barcelona Hankerchiefs, Black Gauze Handkerchiefs innio and Silk ditto, Black Cravatts, Black Crimſon and Scarlet Snail Trimming Head

Flowers, Necklaces and Ribbands, Silver Tippits and Turbands, Cap Wires, Velvet Maſks, Sattin Hatts & Bonnetts, Black Ducape, Cloth colour'd and changeable Luteſtrings, brown Taffety, Marſeneco Luteſtrings, Silk and Cotton ditto, Paddleſtick Fans, and other ditto, Damaſcus and Soſeas for Waiſtcoats, Black & White Laces, Silk Stay ditto, 2-4 7-8 and Yard Wide Holland, and Dowlas, Womens Sheets, Ruſſia Linnin and Diapers, White figur'd Dimothy's, Mens and Womens Thread Cotton and Worſted Hoſe, Black Blue Purple and cloth colour'd Breaches Patterns, Looking Glaſſes, Chaiſe and Hunting Whips, Bohea Tea, Coffee, Ginger, Allſpice, Nutmegs, Cloves, Cinnamon, Men's Caſtor and Felt Hatts, Flower Lawn & Kenting Handkerchiefs, Ferritts and Galloons, Shoe and Quality Bindings, Horn, Mettle, Twiſt and Baſket Buttons, Beſt G. B. Wool and Cotton Cards, Beſt Kippens and Tillocks Snuff, Allum, Copperas, Brimſtone, Redwood, Logwood, Rice, &c. Sowing Silk Cruel, Twiſt ſorted, Horn & Ivory Combs, Tapes, Pins Needles, Writing and Preſs Paper, Paper Hangings for Rooms, Pewter & Braſs, Shoe & Knee Buckles, Bellows, Nails and an Aſſortment of Hard Ware.

N. B. Ticklinburgs and Ozinbrigs, by the Bolt, and Ravens Duck by the piece.

THIS is to give Public notice, that thoſe Perſons that have any concern in taking the Connecticut Courant, for the year 1770 in the following towns or pariſhes, are deſired to make pay to Mr. KNIGHT SEXTON, near the Great Bridge in Hartford, viz. Eaſt Hartford, Bolton, Andover, Coventry, Eaſt Windſor, Tolland Stafford, Somers, Enfield, Suffield, and Weſt Windſor.

CLOCKS and Watches made in the beſt Manner, by PRESERVED CLAP of Amherſt.

Likewiſe all Kinds of Inſtruments in Surgery.

WHereas there is a diſpute about the qualifications for ſpecial ordinances, viz. Baptiſm and the Lords Supper, lately revived by Dr. Bellamy and others, it is now propoſed to re print by Subſcription,

Mr. Stoddard's Appeal to the Learned

Being a vindication of the right of viſible Saints to the Lord's Supper, tho' they be deſtitute of a ſaving work of the ſpirit of GOD, on their hearts againſt the exceptions of Mr. Mather and others.

The price to the ſubſcribers only ſtitch'd, will be about One Shilling L. Money.

Subſcriptions are taken in by Deac. Silas Kellogg, at Sheffield, Doct. Timothy Hoſmer in Farmington, and by the Printers hereof.

THE ſubſcriber having rode poſt almoſt four years, finds it abſolutely neceſſary to come to a general ſettlement with his cuſtomers to prevent any miſtakes that may happen in his accounts, not only by means of the length of time, but alſo as he is obliged to keep them in a ſmall pocket book, which by frequent uſing wears out in a few months, and thereby occaſions a tranſfer of them, and notwithſtanding all the care he can take will ſubject him to ſome omiſſions; he therefore intends to bring them to a cloſe with number 270, and hopes his good cuſtomers will be kind enough to meet him at the places where their reſpective papers are lodged upon thoſe days on which he commonly reaches the ſtages, that they may adjuſt the ſame.

He would not have any of his employers imagine that he intends to diſcontinue the buſineſs after that time, he ſtill hopes to have the pleaſure of ſerving them to their ſatisfaction in the ſame way, but his fixing upon a particular time for the ſettlement of the whole was, that for the future every mans account ſhould begin at the ſame time, which will ſave him a great deal of trouble in the ſettling of them, and render them not ſo much ſubject to error as before.——Compliance with the above, will much oblige your very humble ſervant,

William Stanton.

N. B. Thoſe perſons who have dropped the paper, and not been kind enough to make pay, are deſired to look upon this advertiſement as a call upon them to remember their duty.

'Tis money makes the mare to go.

To be ſold at public Vendue, at the houſe of Mr. David Bull Innholder in Hartford, on Tueſday the 30th day of Jan. next, or at private ſale any time before,

THE home lot on which Mr. Elihu Wadſworth now dwells, containing about Ten Acres, together with the buildings thereon ſtanding, ſituate in a ſtreet about 60 rods weſt of the Court Houſe. Alſo Two Acres of excellent Mowing Land, adjoining to the Land of Col. Samuel Talcott, on which his ſhop ſtands. Alſo about 20 Acres in the North Meadow, in ſaid Hartford lying convenient to the town for a paſture or mowing. For particulars enquire of EZEKIEL WILLIAMS, at Weathersfield or the ſaid ELIHU WADSWORTH,

Hartford, 30th Dec. 1769.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

HARTFORD.
Printed by Green and Watſon.

MONDAY Jan. 29, 1770. Numb 266.

THE
Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

From a late ENGLISH PAPER.
Inſerted by particular deſire.

To Sir F—— B——.

FROM develloping the character, connections and conduct of your patron, L—— H——, I come now to an enquiry into thoſe of his favourite G——. From birth, Sir F——, you derive no ſplendor; it would even take more trouble, than I am inclined to beſtow upon a ſubject ſo inſignificant, to draw it from a ſecure obſcurity. From abilities, neither would you ever have claimed attention, had it not been for the memorable æra of the ſtamp act. It was then that your Excellency ſtept forth, and juſtified this obſervation of an incomparable female hiſtorian that "grovelling inſtruments of oppreſſion are ever inſolent in place in proportion to the baſeneſs of their education, and the ſervility of their natures." You became from that period the incendiary of Great Britain and her colonies, and the eligible inſtrument of eſtabliſhing deſpotiſm in America, to that ſet of men who were meditating the ſame deſtruction to the conſtitutional liberties of England.

You are now to appear at that tribunal from [illegible] appeal, the tribunal of the public. Here the upright magiſtrate has every thing to hope, the oppreſſor every thing to fear.

I begin with your firſt appearance during the ſtamp act: your repreſentation then was, that the intention of the colonies was to render the authority of Great Britain contemptible. This charge is brought againſt you, in the moſt ſolemn manner, by three and thirty Lords, ſpiritual and temporal: the validity of it therefore is hardly queſtionable.* The intention of it, Sir F—— is equally obvious: To inflame the minds of his Majeſty's miniſters and of the legiſlature ſo as to divert their attention from the juſtice of the American complaints, to a criminal and exaſperating intention in their oppoſition, which exiſted only in the malignity of your own heart. Governed thus by ſuppoſed intentions, and not by real facts, this country was to have denounced war againſt her colonies, and to have cut aſunder, with her own ſword, the ſinews of her commerce and of her wealth, to gratify the malice of an arbitrary provincial baſhaw. Happily, however, your views were, at that time, diſappointed; and your vengeance reſerved for a more favourable opportunity, which too ſoon preſented itſelf in the advancement of your preſent patron to the American department. The ſtamp act was repealed, and the thanks of the Americans for the repeal were tranſmitted, in addreſſes to our moſt gracious Sovereign, without once mentioning the declaratory [illegible] which threw a melancholy ſhade on the future proſpect; ſo far were the colonies from ſeizing every ground of complaint, or being ſolicitous to draw into contempt the authority of Great Britain. Every thing was now quiet in America. [illegible] in your own government the people acted with temper and moderation. May we not conclude then, Sir F——, that your charge was as groundleſs as it was malicious? A charge, in which you were ſupported by one other governor only.

The tranquility of America and the harmony between the two countries were now reſtored; and would, in all probability have laſted forever, had not the ſame arbitrary and offenſive ideas been reſumed, and drawn into exerciſe over the colonies. The duty act excited the alarm that [illegible] and furniſhed, to your ardent wiſh, a freſh opportunity of miſrepreſenting and embroiling the affairs of America. In this laudable ſpirit, we trace you next, interpoſing in your letter to the Earl of Shelburne againſt the circular letter from the repreſentatives of Maſſachuſetts-Bay, to the other houſes of aſſembly; which was ſolely to inform them, that the houſe had voted an humble, dutiful, and loyal petition to his majeſty, laying before him [illegible] revenue act, and praying his conſtitutional interpoſition for their relief: to make the prayer of which petition more ſucceſsful, they deſired the concurrence of the other houſes. As the grievances ariſing from the act were general, the propriety of a general petition for relief was obvious: and it is left to your Excellency to point out what method an aggrieved people can adopt, more loyal, more innocent, & more conſtitutional, than petitioning the throne. In your letter however, you repreſent this moſt dutiful and moderate tranſaction, as an "undertaking calculated to inflame the whole continent, and engage them to join together in another diſpute with the parliament, about the authority of the latter; and if the act complained of ſhould be given up, all other acts of American revenue muſt follow*."

Thus you flattered yourſelf with having fixed an early prejudice againſt the juſt repreſentation of the people, and an unſurmountable bar to the redreſs of grievances. But the Noble Lord who then preſided over the affairs of America impreſſed with a true ſenſe of the conſtitutional rights of the colonies, viewed your attempt in its proper light; and you would have met what you deſerved, another diſappointment, had not the department fallen, in an evil hour, to one perfectly fitted for your purpoſe, which was in truth to inflame the whole continent, and renew the diſpute ſo little profitable to either country. How happily your patron and you have ſucceeded in this, the ſtate of America from that time to this, will abundantly demonſtrate. You have had the pleaſure of hearing your own words re-echoed back from the empty heads of your ſuperiors here; your plans have been adopted, and have kindled flames which rendered you unſafe in America, and may conſume you here.

Raro antecedentem ſcelestum Deſeruit pede pœna claudo.

JUNIUS AMERICANUS.

BASSETERRE, in St. Chriſtophers Nov. 1.

Advices from Paris, via Guadaloupe ſay, that the ſon of the late Chevalier de St. George is actually in Paris, and has had ſeveral interviews with his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty.

CHARLES-TOWN, (South-Carolina)

Dec. 7. Letters from Penſacola, by Capt. Woodſide, who arrived here laſt Monday confirm the accounts we had before received that the Spaniſh General O'Reily, who commands at New-Orleans, and has 3500 regular troops there, after having ordered every Engliſhman away from thence, with poſitive orders never to appear there again, takes every poſſible meaſure to prevent any intercourſe or correſpondence whatever, between them and that place: But that a Britiſh ſloop of war, lately ſent thither on a [illegible] the river, every aſſiſtance readily given, and every mark of reſpect readily ſhewn that could be expected.——That the General moſt aſſiduouſly cultivates the friendſhip of the ſeveral tribes of Indians within his government; and it is ſuſpected, encourages them to plunder and commit many irregularities, in order to oblige the Engliſh inhabitants to deſert their ſettlements about Lake Pont Chartrain. That upon his firſt arrival at La Balize, the French inhabitants who had been concerned in the late inſurrection there (refuſing ſubmiſſion to the Spaniſh government, which they deteſt) were flattered with expectations that every thing would be ſettled to their ſatisfaction; But that in a very ſhort time after, they were too fatally convinced of the contrary, by his cauſing fifteen of the Principals to be ſeized and confined; amongſt whom were, Monſ. Villeré who ſoon died, having mad on board a Spaniſh frigate; Monſ. Foucault, Intendant, judge commiſſary, &c. who was ſent to France probably to end his life in the Baſtile; Monſ. La Freniere, Attorney General; Monſ. Garic Provincial Secretary and Notary Public; Meſſieurs De Mazant, Marquis, Villaree, and Du Fovant French Officers, and Knights of the Order of St. Louis; Monſ. Doucette, Attorney at Law; Meſſieurs De Careſſe, Petit, Boreau, Poupette, Millette, ſen. and jun. Merchants. That he had ſince ordered ſix of them to be ſhot, in the room where they were confined; amongſt whom were La Freniere, Du Novant and De Careſſe; who, when offered to be blindfolded, refuſed, and faced their Death with a Roman intrepidity: The five others were to ſuffer perpetual impriſonment; and about thirty of inferior rank had been whipped at the Halberts; and the property of all confiſcated. That ſince theſe ſeverities had been exerciſed, the reſt of the French inhabitants had taken the oaths of allegiance to the King of Spain; with a hatred in their hearts, to the Spaniſh government that can never be eradicated. That no French Proteſtant, of which there had been many, were allowed to remain in that government, or to remove any of their effects; That for want of a ſufficient force to protect them in Weſt Florida, inſtead of removing thither, they were obliged to incorporate themſelves with the Savages. ——And that the deputies which were ſent laſt year to France, to repreſent the colony's grivances, as ſoon as they landed, had been hurried to the Baſtile and never heard of ſince, which was the caſe of the ſovereign council at St. Domingo, ſent to France, by the Prince de Rohan.——Bleſſed Effects of arbitrary Power!

---

* See the Proteſt of the L——, againſt committing the Bill for repealing the Stamp-Act.

* See the Letter Feb. 18, 1768.

O Reiley!—In a Land of Freedom nurs'd!
Eternal Infamy attends thy Name,
By all Poſterity thou ſhalt be curs'd,
And live a Scoundrel, on the Liſts of Fame.

Dec. 13. We hear the perſons who call themſelves "Supporters of the Bill of Rights," have ſent letters to moſt parts of America, requeſting contributions for carrying on the deſign of their aſſociation, and we are told their letters have been received here.

The honourable the commons Houſe of Aſſembly, hath voted ten thouſand pounds, equal to 1500l. ſterling, to be remitted to London for the ſupport of the juſt and conſtitutional rights of Great Britain and America——The Houſe hath read a bill to encourage the making flax, linen and thread in this province and ordered a bill to be brought in for incorporating Charleſtown.

ON Saturday and Tueſday, 2d and 5th inſt. the tranſports with his Majeſty's [illegible] regiment, under the command of Major Thomas Whitmore, ſailed for Corke.

The Rev. George Whitefield ſet out on Sunday laſt for Georgia——He preached that morning to ſo crowded an audience that his friends were obliged to lift him in at one of the Meeting-houſe windows.

Dec. 14. The liſt of non ſubſcribers to the reſolutions of the 22d of July laſt (excluſive of crown officers) in this town, is now reduced to 30. Mr. Alexander Rantowle having acceded to them——There are a few inſtances, where indirect means have been uſed to elude thoſe reſolutions; but the parties have generally been diſcovered, and gained no credit thereby: On the other hand, ſome gentlemen, who have not ſubſcribed, adhere as ſtrictly to them as if they had formally acceded to the agreements, by not dealing with other non ſubſcribers, and not even offering their produce for ſale, but ſhipping it off; in conſequence whereof, near all the rice now loading for London, will belong to them and ſuch as cannot ſell it, and go on their own proper account and riſk! In general, as far as it is in every ſubſcriber's power, the reſolutions are moſt ſtrictly adhered to, for though (on account of ſome returns not being yet made) the country non-ſubſcribers names ſtill remain unpubliſhed, people nevertheleſs act with ſo much caution, that we do not know of one inſtance wherein they have been deceived.

We hear, that in the Little Carpenter, arrived ſince our laſt from London, is a large quantity of goods which are likely to be reſhipped: And it is remarkable, that only two dutyable articles are imported in this ſhip, viz. a bale of paper, and two caſks of paint. The next veſſel from England, in all probability, will bring out no goods whatever, but what are excepted in the general reſolutions.

Yeſterday ſe'nnight, Capt. Young from rks Iſland, ſpoke with a ſloop from Obercock for Jamaica, ſo leaky that both pumps could hardly keep her free, endeavouring to put back. He could not hear the names, and was to have kept her company, but about eight o'clock at night, her lights ſuddenly diſappeared.

Dec. 21. It is ſaid, that there will be a general meeting at Liberty-Tree, before or on, the firſt day of next month, of the inhabitants who ſigned the reſolutions of the 22d of July laſt in order to enquire, of the committee then appointed.

1ſt. How far the uſe of manufactures of this province have been, and can be, encouraged and promoted; and, whether they are ſold at the ſame rates as heretofore?

2dly. Whether the ſubſcribers have literally and ſtrictly adhered to the 2d article, whereby they ſolemnly promiſed, immediately to countermand all orders, except for certain enumerated Goods, and not to advance the prices of ſuch as they had on hand, or might receive, in conſequence of former orders, executed before they could be countermanded?——Who are the perſons that have thus diſtinguiſhed themſelves?——And, if any, who has been ſo regardleſs of the duty he owes to his King, his poſterity, as to neglect, evade, or obſtruct the only meaſure which can produce to them dignity, true proſperity, liberty, and honour?

3dly. Whether any Negroes have been imported from the Weſt Indies ſince the 1ſt day of October laſt, and ſold here; and by whom (if any) purchaſed?

4thly. Whether the 9th article of the reſolutions has been properly attended to; which reſtricts ſubſcribers from purchaſing any European and Eaſt India goods whatever, except coals and ſalt from maſters of Veſſels, tranſient perſons or non ſubſcribers, after the 1ſt of November laſt?——Whether there are any members of the community, ſo void of feeling, ſo deaf to the cries of their country, and ſo unjuſt to the patriotic merchants of this province, as to have violated, this part of their agreement?

5thly. Whether it may not be neceſſary adopt ſome new meaſure, to prevent the intentions of the aſſociation being defeated, by tranſient perſons bringing in cargoes of goods, offering them for ſale here? &c. &c.

We are aſſured, that ſeveral packages of Britiſh cloths, imported in the Little Carpenter Captain Maitland are actually re ſhipped for London, in the London capt. Curling.

For the CONNECTICUT COURANT.

Meſſieurs PRINTERS,

AS there appeared in your late paper, propoſals for a general meeting of the Mercantile intereſt; and as hand bills are now circulating for that purpoſe—to obviate thoſe objections which from a ſmall acquaintance with trade in its general ſyſtem, as well as the narrow circle of their own connection, ſome honeſt men may make, will not be unſeaſonable or improper.

Such an aſſociation or meeting will not be objected to by the merchants, mechanics or manufacturers, if any there be among us.——their intereſt is too obvious——but theſe collected bear no compariſon to the whole community; the farmers are fifty to one—and if this worthy, and reſpectable majority can be convinced that their intereſt is equally connected and cannot fail of being equally promoted by every advantage, trade and commerce receives.——Common ſenſe aſſures us at once of their aſſent, and hearty endeavours to promote them. Many gentlemen of this order I am ſenſible are not only convinced of this fact, but are much more able to convince others than I can pretend to be, ſuch I rely on, to ſecond, and enforce the hints I may throw out on this ſubject, in this, and ſome ſucceeding papers; as well as to correct me where I am wrong——The experience of every age, and nation from the remoteſt knowledge, down to the preſent day, join in aſſerting this fact; that no nation, ever became rich or poor, but in proportion to the increaſe, or decreaſe of their trade, and what is of vaſtly more conſequence, commerce, has thro' every period, gone hand in hand with liberty; roſe flouriſh'd and declin'd together.

As trade increaſes, the number of the people will inevitably; in proportion to their numbers (even excluſive of foreign markets) will be the produce of the land, and conſequently its value, to the landholder.——Land the capital of the huſbandman, is of little or no value, (however fertile) if no market offer for its produce; and ever riſes, and becomes valuable, in proportion to the increaſe of trade, and commerce——To give but one inſtance, the lands in England, notwithſtanding the enormous tax of four ſhillings on the pound, have nearly doubled their value within forty years; and certain I am, no cauſe has ever been pretended, but the increaſe of trade, and the growth of manufactures.—But ſays my honeſt neighbour, I don't like their uniting this aſſociating together ſome ſcheme will be laid to procure our produce cheaper, and manage their trade with us as they pleaſe. Honeſt friend! however hard in moſt caſes to prove a negative, it may be prov'd here, if with all mankind you adopt this maxim—intereſt never lies—If the trader depend on the farmer for his very exiſtance in buſineſs; the leaſt penetration will ſhew him, nothing that hurts, or diſcourages him or in any ſhape embarraſſes, ought to be tolerated.

The Plough, and the Sail are certain, and inexhauſtable ſources of wealth, they ought forever to unite, and where they do, it is impoſſible in the nature of things, but that nation, or ſtate will become rich, and powerful—the latter is the rewarder of the former. What avails thouſands of acres under the beſt improvement if there is no demand for the produce but in the farmers own family? In this caſe twenty acres is of more value than twenty thouſand.—To purchaſe the produce of the farmer at a low, or under price, can never be the view of the ſenſible trader, for whoever attempts it, is undermining himſelf and acting directly againſt the intereſt of the community in general, it is eaſy to ſee, the higher any article is, in the firſt purchaſe (if in demand abroad) the greater profit to the trader, ſince the ſame charge and expence, tranſports the article commanding a high, as a low price to the market, for home conſumption proviſion can never be too high, when the labourer and manufacturer can purchaſe a competency, with the avails of his labour; dear or cheap living, being nothing but comparative expreſſions, the whole really conſiſting, in the proportion one thing, bears to another. Thus for inſtance it is dear, for the poor labourer to ſubſiſt in Ireland, notwithſtanding the plenty, and cheapneſs of proviſion exceed every other part of Europe or America.

But when a country produces more than ſufficient for internal uſe, foreign demand is brought into the queſtion, and will of courſe regulate the price.——The very foundation of trade, and with which every reaſonable man is content, is an adequate reward for tranſporting the produce of one country, to another.——A foundation this amply ſufficient, and certain to enrich the concerned, a ſtriking inſtance Holland, which in leſs than two centuries from poor diſtreſſed fiſhing towns, are become the high and mighty ſtates. From whence ſprung their ſudden, and amazing wealth? (their country is known to be deſtitute of almoſt every neceſſary of life) from theſe two cauſes alone uniting firmly in their mercantile concerns, and by aſſiduity, and attention, becoming the factors, and carriers for great part of Europe.

The great advantages, that will naturally, and almoſt neceſſary reſult, from the union of the trading intereſt of the colonies, the reaſon of the thing, joined to long, and unvaried experience concur to make evident, I purpoſe in a future paper to point out the chief, peculiar to this colony; as well as briefly to ſtate, the prodigious balance annually ariſing againſt this colony, for want of it; and ſhew ſome methods by which it may be probably prevented, and ſaved amongſt us. X.

[To be continued.]

NEW-YORK, January 15.

We hear from Bound Brook, that one William Daniels, near that Place, having beat his Wife ſome Time laſt Week, which he had frequently done before, ſhe left him, and went to reſide with a Daughter ſhe had at ſome diſtance,—and on Monday night laſt a Number of Perſons, who are term'd there, Regulators, went to Daniels, and taking him out of his Bed, whipp'd him very ſeverely; and then left him to himſelf, and the next morning he was found dead in his Bed.

Tueſday laſt departed this Life, in the 80th Year of his age Mr. Samuel Pell, a noted Tobacconiſt in this City.

Saturday night laſt, a number of men belonging to the 16th Regiment, quartered in this City, made an Attempt to cut down the Liberty Pole in the Fields, by ſawing off the Spurs round it, and afterwards attempted to blow it up, by boring a Hole in the Pole, which they filled with Powder, and ſet Fire to it; but all their endeavours were in vain; The pole being ſo well ſecured with Iron that they could not penetrate it, ſo that they could not accompliſh their deſign:—They then ſallied forth in a furious Manner, with their Bayonets drawn, upon a ſmall number of Gentlemen, (who were ſtanding near the houſe of Mr. Mountayne) when they entered the Houſe, after having deſtroyed all the Front Windows;—one of the Soldiers made a Thruſt with his Bayonet at a Perſon, which he parrying with his Hand, only received a ſlight wound in the Forehead;——After which ſome of their Officers interpoſing, they retired to their Barracks.

In a Cheſt that was drove aſhore, from the Wreck of the Brig Elizabeth, mentioned in our laſt, a Pocket Book was found, with a ſhipping Paper therein, with the following Names thereto, viz. John Conry, Maſter; Michael Cannon, Mate; John Timothy, Carpenter; Joſeph Reily, Richard Berford, Joſeph Burke, William Bowden, and William Arter. Three of the dead Bodies were taken up on the Beach laſt Wedneſday, much cut and bruiſed with the Ice.

Monday night laſt, a dreadful Fire happen'd at Newark, when the Barn, Stables, and ſome Out-Buildings, belonging to the Hon. David Ogden, Eſq; were entirely deſtroyed, with every Thing that was therein:—They were tho't to have been ſet on Fire by ſome evil minded Perſons.

The 1ſt Inſtant, a Company of young Men having met together in the Outward of this City, one of the men had a loaded Gun in his Hand, when Benjamin Moorwiſe, ſhaking Hands with him, his Gun accidentally went off, and wounded Moorwiſe in the Side, of which wound he died the 10th Inſtant.—The coroners inqueſt ſat on the Body, and bro't in their Verdict Accidental.

BOSTON, January 25.

Laſt Saturday died, Miſs Suſanna Condy, Daughter of the late Rev'd Jeremy Condy.

Capt. Hinſton's Schooner from the Weſtern Iſlands, we hear is aſhore near Plymouth.

Laſt Wedneſday Forenoon a large Dwelling Houſe was accidentally burnt at Chelſea.

Our Harbour is now entirely froze up, ſo that many People paſs and repaſs from the Town and Iſlands on the Ice.

IN my former Advertiſement, I informed my cuſtomers that I did not intend to drop the buſineſs of ſupplying them with papers, but that I ſtill hoped to ſerve them to their advantage.——would now further inform them of the method, propoſed for the future. That I will ride every week through the year from Litchfield to Hartford, and be back on Tueſday of each week, having the paper conveniently lodged at a ſhop (which is to be immediately erected for that purpoſe) near the court houſe in Litchfield, where conſtant attendance will be given, and the greateſt care and pains taken, to have them forwarded with all poſſible diſpatch; and it is hoped and deſired, that all gentlemen that may be in Litchfield, from the ſeveral towns round the country, would be ſo kind as to call and take their papers, by which means it is hoped they will always be conveyed ſo expeditiouſly as to make the preſent alteration really beneficial; however, ſhould it ſo happen that no good opportunity preſents to ſend them within the fortnight, I hereby engage to convey them by a ſpecial poſt on purpoſe, in ſuch a manner as to accommodate every cuſtomer once a fortnight through the year——the papers to be afforded at the old price of Eight Shillings lawful money per year, which is but two ſhillings more than the printers have of their cuſtomers in Hartford, where the papers are taken from their office, excluſive of charge of riding. The above terms being ſo very favourable to the cuſtomers, cannot fail of being agreeable: But ſhould it happen that any perſon diſlikes them, it is deſired that information may be given as ſoon poſſible, and their papers ſhall be ſtopped, otherwiſe it will be conſtrued into conſent, and they will be continued.

WILLIAM STANTON.

This is to inform the PUBLIC, that

Cotton Murray,

Taylor from BOSTON,

HAS ſet up his Buſineſs at the Printing-Office in Hartford, where he makes all ſorts of Men's CLOATHS, both Leather and Cloth. Any gentlemen that pleaſe to favour him with their Cuſtom, may depend upon being ſerved as well as in Boſton.

Wincheſter, Jan. 24. 1770.

THESE are to give notice, to the Proprietors of Wincheſter, that have not paid their TAXES for 1769, to ſettle the ſame ſpeedily at my houſe, or they may expect trouble, from

DAVID AUSTIN, Collector.

WANTED,

A Journeyman Taylor, that well underſtands cutting and making all ſorts of men's Cloaths, and can take the whole Care of a Shop.——Enquire of Joſeph Clark of Canaan.

Now in the Preſs, and in a few Days will be Publiſhed,

Obſervations on a

Pamphlet entitled,

Remarks on Dr. GALE's Letter to J. H. Eſq; Sign'd E. D. of which

The Hon. ELIPHALET DYER,

Is the reputed Author.

Shewing, from the Matters therein contained, that ſuch an Imputation is highly injurious to the Character of that worthy Patriot.

By Benjamin Gale, A. M.

"The Liberty of the Preſs is the Birth right of a Briton, and is juſtly eſteem'd the firmeſt Bulwark of this Country.

It has been the Terror of all bad Miniſters; for their dark and dangerous Deſigns or their Weakneſs, Inability and Duplicity have thus been detected, and ſhewn to the Public generally in too ſtrong Colours for them long to bear up againſt the Odium of Mankind.

"A wicked and corrupt Adminiſtration muſt naturally dread this Appeal to the World, and will be for keeping all the Means of Information equally from the Prince, Parliament and People." N. Briton. No. 1.

Sejanus Wolſey hurt not honeſt Fleury,
But well may put ſome Stateſmen in a Fury.

[The Author has, in a great Meaſure, left the perſonal Reflections of the Remarker unnoticed, and almoſt wholly confin'd himſelf to the Arguments advanced by the Remarker, in Favour of the Right this Colony has to the Lands call'd Suſquehannah which he humbly conceives he has fully refuted——and alſo examined the Remarkers Sentiments, relative to ſome of our moſt eſſential Charter Rights and Privileges, as inconſiſtent with our Charter.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

TO BE SOLD BY

PETER VERSTILLE,

At his Store in Weathersfield, the following GOODS, at the loweſt Prices, for CASH only, viz.

CRimſon and other Broad Cloths
Scarlet Green & Blue Ratteens
German Serges
Cloth colour'd Kerſeys
Red Blue and Brown Half Thicks.
Sagathys and Duroys
Bazies

Shalloons ſorted, Tammys, ditto. Durants, ditto. Calamiacoes, do Camblets, Plain & figur'd Cambletteens. Dorſetteens, Hungarian Stuffs, Poplins, Miſſinetts, Dieldinetts, Grezetts, Frolions, Black Silk Crapes, ditto Bombazeens, Black and Cloth colour'd Drawboys, Brown and Olive colour'd Fuſtians, Brown and White Stay Buckrams, Black figur'd Laſtings, Cotton Checks of all widths, Red & White, & Blue & White Stripe'd Hollands. Black, White, Crimſon, Green, Blue and Purple Pelong Sattins, Shear and Thick Muslins, Cambricks and Lawns, Black and White Parſinetts, Black & White Catguts, Black & White Plain Gadze, Black & White figur'd ditto Black and Crimſon Capuchine Silk, Men's & Women's Leather Gloves, and Mittens, Women's Silk Gloves and Mitts 3 4 & 7 8 Bed Ticking A fine Aſſortment of Chintz and Calicoes, Black and Colour'd Barcelona Hankerchiefs. Black Gauze Handkerchiefs. Linnin and Silk ditto Black Cravatts, Black, Crimſon and Scarlet Snail Trimming Head

Flowers, Necklaces and Ribbands, Silver Tippits and Turbands, Cap Wires, Velvet Masks, Sattin Hatts & Bonnetts Black Ducape Cloth colour'd and changeable Luteſtrings, Brown Taffety, Martineco Luteſtrings, Silk and Cotton ditto. Padleſtick Fans, and other ditto. Damaſcus and Soloas for Waiſtcoats, Black & White Laces. Silk Stay ditto. 3-4 7 8 and Yard Wide Hollands and Dowlas, Womens Shoes Ruſſia Linnin and Diapers White figur'd Dimothy's, Mens and Womens Thread Cotton and Worſted Hoſe, Black Blue Purple and cloth colour'd Breaches Patterns, Looking Glaſſes, Chaiſe and Hunting Whips, Bohea Tea, Coffee, Ginger, Allſpice, Nutmegs, Cloves, Cinnamon Men's Caſtor and Felt Hatts, Flower Lawn & Kenting Handkerchiefs, Ferritts and Gallooms, Shoe and Quality Bindings, Horn & Mettle, Twiſt and Basket Buttons, Beſt G. B. Wool and Cotton Cards, Beſt Kippens and Tillock's Snuff, Allom, Copperas, Brimſtone, Redwood, Logwood, Rice, &c. Sowing Silk Cruel, Twiſt ſorted, Horn & Ivory Combs, Tapes, Pins Needles, Writing and Preſs Paper, Paper Hangings for Rooms, Pewter & Braſs, Shoe & Knee Buckles, Bellows, Nails and an Aſſortment of Hard Ware.

N. B. Ticklinburgs and Ozinbrigs, by the Bolt, and Ravens Duck by the piece.

THIS is to give Public notice, that thoſe Perſons that have any concern in taking the Connecticut Courant, for the year 1770. in the following towns or pariſhes, are deſired to make pay to Mr. KNIGHT SEXTON, near the Great Bridge in Hartford, viz. Eaſt Hartford, Bolton, Andover, Coventry, Eaſt Windſor, Tolland Stafford, Somers, Enfield, Suffield, and, Weſt Windſor.

CLOCKS and Watches made in the beſt Manner, by PRESERVED CLAP
of Amherſt.
Likewiſe all Kinds of Inſtruments in Surgery.

To be ſold by the Subſcriber in Hertford for Caſh in hand

RED and Blue Duffels at 5/ per yard, Red Blue and Drab colour'd Coatings, from 5/ to 7/ per yard, and many other European and India GOODS, for leſs advance from the Sterling coſt, as they pay a leſs freight. Alſo, a few articles in the Grocery way, dried Codfiſh, at 22/ per Quintle, Bohea Tea, at 4/2 per lb. Sole Leather at 1/2 per lb. Logwood at 10/ per Hundred, &c &c.

CALEB BULL.

Jan. 6, 1770.

Colony of Connecticut, }
Litchfield County, ſs. }

Litchfield, January 12, 1770.

WHEREAS, purſuant to an act of ſaid colony entitled, An act to prevent fraud in debtors and for ſecuring the effects of inſolvent debtors for the uſe of their creditors, &c. The eſtate of Capt. Abner Baldwin of Litchfield, an abſconding and concealed debtor hath been by a warrant, granted by the Hon. John Williams, Eſq; chief Judge of the County Court in and for the County of Litchfield aforeſaid, ordered to be attached, ſeized and taken, for the benefit of the creditors of the ſaid Abner, agreable to ſaid act. And he the ſaid Abner having neglected to diſcharge his juſt debts, and we the ſubſcribers being by the ſaid Judge appointed truſtees of the eſtate of the ſaid Abner: Theſe are therefore to notify all the creditors of the ſaid Abner Baldwin to meet at the dwelling houſe of widow Mary Weller, Innholder in ſaid Litchfield, on the 7th day of February next, at one o'clock in the afternoon, then and there to diſapprove (if they think proper) of ſaid truſtees and elect others in their ſtead; and to do and tranſact any other buſineſs proper for ſaid creditors to do.

Jedediah Strong, }
Andrew Adams, } Truſtees.
Joſeph Picket. }

To be ſold at public Vendue, at the houſe of Mr. David Bull Innholder in Hartford, on Tueſday the 30th day of Jan. next, or at private ſale any time before,

THE home lot on which Mr. Elihu Wadſworth now dwells, containing about Ten Acres, together with the buildings thereon ſtanding, ſituate in a ſtreet about 80 rods weſt of the Court Houſe. Alſo Two Acres of excellent Mowing Land, adjoining to the Land of Col. Samuel Talcott, on which his ſhop ſtands. Alſo about 26 Acres in the North Meadow, in ſaid Hartford lying convenient to the town for a paſture or mowing. For particulars, enquire of EZEKIEL WILLIAMS, at Weathersfield or the ſaid ELIHU WADSWORTH.

Hartford, 30th Dec. 1769.

WHereas there is a diſpute, about the qualifications for ſpecial ordinances, viz. Baptiſm and the Lords Supper, lately revived by Dr. Bellamy and others, it is now propoſed to re print by Subſcription,

Mr. Stoddard's Appeal to the Learned

Being a vindication of the right of viſible Saints to the Lord's Supper, tho' they be deſtitute of a ſaving work of the ſpirit of GOD, on their hearts againſt the exceptions of Mr. Mather and others,

The price to the ſubſcribers only ſtitch'd, will be about One Shilling L. Money.

Subſcriptions are taken in by Deac. Silas Kellogg, at Sheffield, Doct. Timothy Moſmer in Farmington, and by the Printers hereof.

WHereas application has been made to me the ſubſcriber, a juſtice of peace for the county of Litchfield, by more than a ſixteenth part of the proprietors of the townſhip of Addiſon, near Crown Point, deſiring to warn a meeting of ſaid proprietors, to ſee if they will chooſe a committee to ſurvey and bound out ſaid townſhip, and to lay a diviſion of home lots to ſaid proprietors —— Theſe are therefore to notify the proprietors of ſaid townſhip, to meet together at the houſe of Mr. Andrew Stewart in New-Fairfield, on the ſecond Tueſday of February next, at one of the clock in the afternoon, for the purpoſe aforeſaid, and to do any other buſineſs proper to be done at ſaid meeting. Dated at Sharon, the 15th day of January, 1770.

Daniel Griſwold, Juſt. Pacis.

Weathersfield, Jan. 13, 1770.

To be ſold at public vendue, at the houſe of the Wid. Griſwold, inn holder in Rocky Hill, on Monday the 12th of Feb. next,

A Piece of land, lately call'd common land, containing 30 acres, lying eaſtward of land belonging to Thomas Demming's heirs, and weſtward of Jeremiah Standiſh's land, and butts north on a highway.——Alſo one acre in the great meadow, butted ſouth on land of Charles Butler, north on land of Nathaniel Robbins, and weſt on a high way.——Alſo one piece of land containing four acres, lying on the road to Middletown, a little below the dwelling houſe of Capt. Thomas Curtiſs, bounded weſt on his land, and ſouth on Peter Bulkley's.—— Said land may be ſold at any time before, at private ſale For terms enquire of Thomas Seymour, Eſq; at Hartford, or

Ezekiel Williams.

Middletown, Jan. 22, 1770.

ALL perſons indebted to, or that have any demands on the eſtate of Ebenezer Cook, late of Middletown, Mariner, deceaſed, are deſired to bring in their accounts to Wenſly Hobby, Adminiſtrator on ſaid eſtate, in order for a ſpeedy ſettlement.

On the Power and Benevolence of the Almighty Creator.

ETernal Maker, hail! hail power divine!
The heav'ns and earth, the day and night, are thine.
Matter and form to thee their being owe,
From thee, their great original, they flow:
When yet the mingled maſs unactive lay,
Thou gav'ſt it motion by the quick'ning ray:
Chaos and night thy pow'rful mandate heard,
And light, and glorious order ſoon appear'd.
If thou but hide thy face the creatures mourn;
But life and pleaſure with thy ſmile return;
The gentle ſmile dependent nature cheers,
Revives its hopes and diſſipates its fears.
The earth and ſkies thro' various changes run;
But thou whoſe wond'rous being ne'er begun,
Canſt ne'er thro' all eternity decay,
While time's ſwift flood bears all things elſe away.
By thy direction the fair orbs above,
In perfect order, thro' the æther move;
And all that's lovely, all that's pure below,
Immediately from thy bright eſſence flow.
Fountain of life, from thy immortal flame,
All ranks of intellectual beings came:
Our maker thou, our great original!
We own thy right, and thee our father call.

Printed by Green and Watſon.

MONDAY Feb. 5. 1770.

Numb 267.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21.

To the PRINTERS.

In the New-York Journal of December 7, there is inſerted an account of ſome Occurrences at Wyoming, upon Suſquehannah, as it is there ſaid, by Information of one Smith, of Vollontown, in Connecticut, who lately came from thence; being deſirous that the World ſhould not be impoſed on by ſo baſe & falſe an Account, I beg Leave to acquaint you, that the very Reverſe of what is there aſſerted is the Truth. The Fact ſtands thus---

A Number of deluded People (for ſome ſuch, at leaſt, I would in Charity, ſuppoſe there are among them) came armed, in a hoſtile Manner, into this Province, from the Colony of Connecticut, have within this laſt Year, aſſembled at Wyoming, and forcibly ſeated themſelves on the Land lately purchaſed by the Proprietaries of the Indians nearly in the Center of this Province, to the Terror of the inhabitants, from which they have been twice removed by the civil Authority; and ſome of them fined, after a Trial by the Country in ſmall Sums, conſidering the Atrociouſneſs of their Doings; ſome few of which paid their Fines, and others broke the County Goal, and eſcaped. Since the Time of their ſecond Removal near Two Hundred Miſcreants, compoſed of the Dregs of the Colony of Connecticut, Pendergraſs's Gang of Rioters from New-York Government, and Horſe ſtealers, Debtors, and other Run-aways from the different Governments, came likewiſe armed into this Province, and built a large Fort, or Blockhouſe, at Wyoming, and fortified it with Swivels and Wall Pieces, &c. Since which they have been guilty of many diſorderly and wicked Practices, ſuch as taking the neighbouring People, ſettled under the Authority of this Government, into their Fort, whipping one of them, terrifying and threatening others violently, and diſſeizing them of their Farms: In doing one of which Acts, apprehending they ſhould meet with ſome Reſiſtance, they came, to the Number of Sixty, armed with Toma-hawks, Axes, and other Inſtruments of Violence, in order to take Poſſeſſion of ſome Land in the Tenour of Captain Ogden, who called about Twenty five of his Neighbours to his Aſſiſtance, to enable him to defend his Property, who were preſently attacked by this lawleſs Gang of fierce Warriors and five or ſix of them much wounded; but the Rioters were, however, preſently worſted by Captain Ogden's People, who had provided themſelves with ſome Oaken Sticks for their Defence, and made them ſoon run away to their Fort, their Captain, one Parks, leading the Way: Some of them, it is true, got broken Heads, from the hard Knocks they received in the Affray.

After the Affair was over, ſundry of their Tomahawks, and above twenty of their Axes remained in the Field of Battle. Major Durkee, who takes upon him the Command of the Fort, was ſo angry at his Soldiers and their Captain's Cowardice, who were chaced up to the Gates of their Fortreſs by a handful of Men, that for ſome Time he refuſed to admit them, calling them a Parcel of Poltroons and Cowards.

Theſe diſorderly Practices obliged the Magiſtrates again to ſend up the high Sheriff, with a Number of Men, about Half as many as were in the Fort, to apprehend thoſe Rioters; at whoſe Appearance thoſe Valliant People were ſo intimidated, that, after they were ſummoned to ſurrender, and a Quarter of an Hour given them for that purpoſe, they agreed many of them with Tears in their Eyes, to deliver up the Fort, upon Condition, that fourteen of their Number, only, with their Women and Children, ſhould remain there, to take Care of the Cattle, Houſhold Goods, and other Neceſſaries, belonging to them; accordingly about five or ſix Rooms of their large Building, being 150 feet long, was aſſigned them for that Purpoſe, and the other Part put into the Poſſeſſion of the Sheriff, and the reſt, being about 180, were ſuffered to depart, upon their Promiſe not to return, till his Majeſty in council ſhould be pleaſed to determine in whom the Property of the Land was. They likewiſe agreed, that thoſe who were left ſhould not commit any further Waſte, and only cut Wood enough for their Firing; and ſhould not receive more than five Perſons within their Rooms, nor let them ſtay any longer than three Days, nor even entertain them for that Time, till they had given in their names to the Magiſtrate reſiding there. To all which the Connecticut Committee, there being two who were called ſuch, ſigned in Behalf of themſelves, and the Connecticut Claimants.

The Seaſon of the Year, and the Difficulty of conveying ſuch a Number of Priſoners, near 60 Miles through the Woods, together with Compaſſion for the poor Creatures, who would have been, of courſe, confined in Goal, and put to great Expence, induced the two Magiſtrates, and the Sheriff, to releaſe them on the above mild Terms, which were counterſigned likewiſe by them.

As the King & Council has three ſeveral times already determined the Weſtern Bounds of Connecticut, it ſeems Aſtoniſhing, that any People can be ſo infatuated, as to claim Lands in this Province; but much more ſo, that any of the Inhabitants of this, or the neighbouring Provinces, ſhould buy their pretended Rights, which give them as much legal Right to Land in the Moon, as it does in the Province of Pennſylvania; and eſpecially, as a former Attempt of the Connecticut People to ſeat themſelves on the Wyoming Lands, was, in a great Meaſure, the Cauſe of the late bloody War with the Savages.

Your's, &c. A. B.

Anecdote of a Phyſician.

FABRICIUS Hildanus, a great Phyſician and very good Surgeon, once happened to find himſelf ſingularly embarraſſed. He was called to ſee a peaſant, into whoſe eye flew a ſparkle of iron. He attempted different ways to extract it, and even made uſe of ſome inſtruments; but the ſparkle eſcaped him by its tenuity, and all his operations ſerved only to occaſion an inflammation in the peaſant's eye. Fabricius returned home quite penſive, deſpairing of ſucceſs, when his wife, being informed of what had paſſed, began to laugh at her huſband's manner of treating his patient. The doctor's being put to a nonplus did not argue ſhe in her turn ſhould be reduc'd to a like dilemma; ſo that, deſirous to enjoy her triumph over him ſhe told her huſband that ſhe would be glad to accompany him to the patient, and that perhaps ſhe might be of ſome help to him. Fabricius, little thinking any further attempt would be attended with ſucceſs, aſſents to every thing, and obeys his wife, who bade him hold the patient's eye-lid as wide open as he could. This done, ſhe forthwith drew out of her Pocket a loadſtone which ſhe moved about as near as ſhe could to the ſurface of the eye, and the ſame inſtant the ſparkle of iron flew out towards the loadſtone, and the patient found himſelf relieved. Fabricius's wife, as may be well gueſſed, did not remain mute on this occaſion. She received the teſtimonies of the peaſant's gratitude: but what undoubtedly flattered her moſt was her huſband's acknowledging, that were it not for her, he ſhould not have the leaſt idea of ſo fortunate a reſource.

LONDON, Oct. 29.

IN the magnificent preſent, which the Nabob of the Carnatic has ſent to his Majeſty, there is among other things of very great value, one piece of muſlin, which we are credibly informed, is the fineſt that ever came to Europe: the texture of it is of a very peculiar nature, and the whole is remarkably fine. It coſt exactly 7800 rupees. which is about 975l.

Oct. 24. We are informed that a certain great perſonage, reſpecting whoſe health various reports have of late been propagated, labours at preſent under a ſevere fit of illneſs, which it is apprehended will (though it is hoped not) terminate in a diſagreeable event.

Oct. 26. The ruined finances, internal weakneſs of France, appear daily more and more. They now pay one half in French livres, and the other half in French promiſes. The Swedes are heartily ſick of their alliance with them, and the Turks perceive themſelves dupes to the ſo much boaſted aſſiſtance of France, who, God help her, is not able to aſſiſt herſelf, for theſe fifty years paſt, had no other ſubſiſtance but by fiſhing in troubled waters.

Nov. 2. The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor elect, hath been pleaſed to order the following motto to be painted on his coach and banner, Potior Metallis Libertas.

A gentleman in Cheſhire has ſent us the following receipt for the cure of a certain contagion among the dogs of ſeveral gentlemen in this kingdom:—— "Take of Æthiops Mineral, well powdered, one ounce, which may be had at any apothecary's; divide it into three equal portions, and mix it up with freſh butter, making three ſmall balls. This muſt be given three ſucceſſive mornings faſting, and the dog to have no meat for three hours after each doſe: but if the dog has been affected long, give him the like doſes the week following, which will moſt certainly effect a cure.

Nov. 3. We are informed, that the true reaſon for the late meeting of the Parliament, is to give time for ſettling the America complaints; which we hear, will be the firſt object, and that a late Governor will return thither, early in the ſpring, with a douceur that will inſure his welcome.

We are informed that the m——y are vaſtly embarraſſed whether to take any, or what notice, at the opening of the next ſeſſions, of the various petitions that have been preſented.

Promoted J. A. Cherley, Eſq; by the Lords of the Admiralty, to be Regiſter of the Vice Admiralty Court at Halifax, in Nova Scotia, John M'Gall, Eſq; Captain of a Company in the 29th Regiment of foot, in the room of Chapel Norton, Eſq; preferred; and George Mackenſie, Gent. ſucceeds Capt. M'Gall as Lieutenant in the ſaid Regiment.

A very great Patriot, in the eyes of the public in general, but of the Livery in particular, has we are aſſured, within theſe two days declared, "that the expectations of the people ſhall be complied with;" and that "if petitions alone will not do, remonſtrances muſt follow."

VIENNA, October 20.

As the Ruſſians continue to ſpread greatly in Moldavia and Walachia, and ſome of their Troops have even appeared on the frontiers of Tranſylvania; it is aſſured our Courts is going to ſend there a Reinforcement of troops.

For the CONNECTICUT COURANT.

[Continued from our laſt]

ONE objection may poſſibly be ſtarted to this propoſed union, that the uniting of private perſons, will if effected, never be of conſequence, and weight ſufficient to render it reſpectable in the eye of the public, and carry the ſalutary purpoſes into execution. That it would be much more proper for the general aſſembly to take the matter up, &c. I confeſs this has been long wiſh'd for, and very happy ſhould we eſteem it, could that reſpectable body attend to this affair. I ſay, if they could, for under the preſent regulation how is it poſſible? three weeks is a long ſeſſion, in that ſpace conſider the public officers, civil and military to be appointed, the former laws to have explanatory, or ſupplemental acts, debated, and paſs on, probate matters, &c. &c. beſides near one hundred cauſes of private property, (many of them, of the moſt intricate, and perplexing ſort) to be judiciouſly heard and, determined upon, and then let any one ſay if it is? Rather admire that in ſo ſhort a ſpace they diſpatch ſo much buſineſs as they do. This has been long wiſh'd for, and often talk'd of, both in public and private, viz. that ſomething might be done, for trade and manufactures, and as often lamented that every effort that way, has hitherto proved ineffectual. The proſpect from this quarter is far from mending, private buſineſs increaſing to that degree, that in a few years we may expect all controverſies, of any conſequence will be iſſued this way, unleſs ſome different meaſures are taken. Very far from faulting thoſe worthy gentlemen who compoſe the aſſembly, it is eaſy to ſee, ſuch an inconvenience is the natural conſequence of a growing colony, under our conſtitution, without a court of chancery.— England was formerly under much the ſame regulation, until the growing inconvenience, of hearing thoſe matters of private concern at large; before the parliament pointed out the neceſſity of courts of chancery, and the like.— Time no doubt, will from the ſame cauſe, produce the ſame effect.

Mean while if the encouragement of trade and manufactures, is of the laſt importance, every attempt that way is worthy public notice, and attention, and if every propoſal that has as yet been made (for ſome motions of this kind I am told have been made in the aſſembly) have fell through, ſurely the uniting of gentlemen in a private capacity, to further and promote, what is univerſally approved of, and often propoſed by the public, can give offence to none, but on the other hand has a right to challenge, and expect the countenance and aſſiſtance of all that wiſh well to the country.——Reſpecting our manufactures, any one acquainted with the colony knows that we have in our power as many and as valuable materials for them, if not more, than any one colony on the continent; and equally evident it is, our neighbours take the almoſt ſole advantage of them. To give but two inſtances, what is the ſtaple of the eaſtern towns? what renders them populous and rich? the cod and the whale fiſhery; principally the materials for carrying them on, and without which they could not be ſupported, are known to be carry'd from this colony; and what are our returns? I will not ſay European ſuperfluities; allow them to be neceſſaries; yet how prodigious is the ballance againſt us in every light, we have ample proviſion of every kind, and our ſituation equally good for carrying on theſe branches of buſineſs, yet with our materials they are carried on elſewhere;—— their effects an unfailing, and profitable remittance to every part of Europe: and the goods returned for them, with accumulating charges of freight, commiſſions, profit, &c. are conſumed by us, in which if we form a calculation from the firſt material, to the final conſumption of its avails (which, by the way is the only juſt commercial calculation, the ballance will be found againſt us, in this article alone, beyond the conception of any one, that has not fully conſidered it; ſure I am, it far exceeds all our public expences annually many times over. This remedied will not only ſave the charges and profit on our importations, by lodging a very large ballance among us; but would help every other branch of manufacture, and labour, to a very great degree; it is needleſs, and would be tedious to mention the particulars, ſince I recollect no one, but would be benefitted by it, and none that could be prejudiced.—— Wheat we find is one of the ſtaple articles of Great Britain, the demand for it in Flour in the Weſt-Indies, is permanent, and can never fail, while the iſlands are improved; the call for it in Europe, is very conſiderable, at times, and in the courſe of an age, muſt agreeable to the tenor of things, be ſupplied in a great part from America. Our neighbours to the ſouthward are ſo ſenſible of its importance; that flour is one of the principal objects of their attention, and a capital export——this colony abounds in Wheat, tho' not a fourth of the wheat lands are improved, to that purpoſe—we have ſtreams, and mills in plenty, yet the manufacturing wheat into flour, for exportation, has been almoſt wholly unattended to, yet this ſingle article manufactured among us, would be a clear ſaving of more than ten thouſand per annum.

And as certain as they who now buy the wheat of us, grind it before they uſe it, ſo certain they would purchaſe the Flour if the Wheat was not offered. This eſtimate is no way wild, or uncertain; the quantity of wheat annually exported, is nearly aſcertained, and from that, the calculation is plain and determinate, the public, may, if they pleaſe, ſee the calculation, by which a larger ſum, than the before-mentioned, will appear, in favour of manufacturing our wheat into flour. I have mentioned but two branches out of many; their importance is no way exaggerated. And now let every candid perſon ſay, if it is not high time to ſeize the advantages, God in the nature of things has put into our hand, for the promoting the wealth and independance of this colony and our proſperity, our lands are all taken up, and ſettled, our increaſe in numbers is rapid, and whilſt trade and manufactures, are conſidered as trifling or ſecondary concerns; the emigration of our inhabitants will continue to the emolument of the neighbouring colonies; and to the damage of our own, perhaps to a greater ſum annually, than the neglect of both the other branches occaſions. X.

(To be continued)

LONDON.

Tranſlation of a letter from Count Lauragais, to a lady of quality in England, dated St. Cloud, Octo. 2, 1769. Dear Madam, "WE are all metamorphoſed into Engliſh; a ſtrange and ſudden revolution has happened in our dreſs, equipages, furniture, kitchens and diverſions. The French, who for theſe two centuries were, as M. Voltaire ſays, envied, cenſured, and imitated by their neighbours, have at laſt condeſcended to receive the faſhions of England. Our petites-maitres, who formerly were dreſſed, painted and perfumed like dolls at ten o' Clock before noon, ride after breakfaſt in the court La Reine, the Elyſian fields, and all the environs of Paris, in plain ſhirts and frocks like your jockies. Our delicate ladies who never ventured to ſtir out in the morning, run all over Paris, and the public walks, in the genteel and looſe dreſs of milk maids.—— Our carriages are neat, plain, and convenient. Horſe-races are frequent in the Iſle of France: our ſtables are full of Engliſh hunters and grooms; and our whips, ſaddles, and boots, manufactured by your countrymen, who have reduced ours to beggary. We have ſubſtituted paper to the tapeſtries of the Gobelius, and introduced in our ketchens, toaſt beef and pudding, in lieu of our ſoups, ragouts, and fricaſſes. We hunt, ſwear, and drink toaſts, and determine all diſputes by wagers, like your nobility and gentry. Our girls, who never were allowed to pay or receive viſits without a mother or an aunt, and were ſhut up in a nunnery till they were forced to marry men they often deteſted, to acquire the privilege of having an intrigue with a fop of their own choice, reſort to all places of diverſion without controul or reſtraint. Our proſtitutes are raiſed by our debauches to the rank of counteſſes, and return the diſdain of the court to the citizens. Our now Vauxhall is the rendezvous of the moſt celebrated beauties and courtezans, and the prelude of the petites ſoupers and revels of the night. Six millions of livres are already ſubſcribed towards building a Ranelagh houſe. In fine, we want nothing but the immenſe fortunes of your gambling lords and arrogant NaBobs, to equal them in profuſion, immorality and debauchery. I am dear Madam, your conſtant admirer, Count de Lauragais."

BOSTON, February 1. 1770.

Yeſterday arrived here Capt. Boden in a Semiuner belonging to Marblehead, in but 30 Days from Falmouth in England; from the public Prints we have the following Freſh and Late Advices.

LONDON.

Nov. 21. Certain intelligence has been received that the French are fitting out with all expedition, a conſiderable fleet at Toulon.

Yeſterday ſome extraordinary diſpatches were received in Town from Gen. Gage, Commander in Chief of his Majeſty's Land Forces at New York.

A very ſtrong and inſulting memorial, it is ſaid, is come from France, on the ſubject of obliging a French ſhip to ſtrike her colours in the downs. A great number of meſſengers have been continually going backwards and forwards for ſeveral days, and from a variety of circumſtances, it appears the French court is preparing to break with us.

Nov. 23. Certain Advice is received, of there being a Spaniſh fleet of twelve ſhips of the line, beſides frigates, now cruizing in the Mediterranean ſea. It is ſuppoſed that they are to be joined by the French fleet which is equipping with all expedition at Toulon. What is the object of theſe great armaments, muſt be left to time to diſcover. But it now appears obviouſly and undeniably, that our old and naturally enemies intend ſhortly to break with us.

At Ferrol the Spaniards are fitting out all the ſhips they have there; and at the Royal foundery at Barcelona, all hands are extremely buſy in caſting of cannon, for the uſe of the Royal Navy.

At the breaking up of a late Council at the Weſt End of the town, an expreſs was ſent to Gibraiter.

By a gentleman of veracity, juſt arrived, from France, we are aſſured, that the French have at this time 24 ſhips of the line at Toulon, and 28 at Breſt, none leſs than 50 guns, in fit order for ſea on the ſhorteſt notice.

The C—— of the E—— has written circular letters, in the moſt preſſing terms to the Kings men, as they are called, commanding their early attendance this winter, on the moſt extraordinary matters of the higheſt national importance, which are to come on at the very opening.

A courier arrived on Tueſday, brought an account than the Ruſſian army were upon the point of ſtorming Bender, and it was not doubted they would carry that place immediately.

BOSTON, Feb. 1 1770.

We have an authentic Account from Nova-Scotia, that the Poſt of Annapolis Royal, is, by his Majeſty's Orders, to be entirely evacuated, the Officers of the Board of Ordnance are to repair to England, and the Stores of the Garriſon are to be ſent to wherever General Gage thinks proper.

AMERICA ſeems to have been very early concerned in the Numbers 92 and 45: It was diſcovered in Fourteen hundred 92 and the Inhabitants of St Salvador (the firſt Land diſcovered) viſit Admiral Columbus in their Canoes with 45 Perſons in each.

HARTFORD, Feb 5, 1770.

Laſt Tueſday died in this town a lad, ſon of Moſes Riſley about eleven years old, his death was occaſioned by the bite of a MAD DOG, in his leg, about nine weeks before his Death, by which he was ſlightly wounded, the teeth of the dog ſcarcely penetrated thro' the ſkin. The dog was ſoon after obſerved to be attended with the ſymptoms of an unuſual diſorder, and killed: the child's wound ſoon healed up, and he remained in a uſual ſtate of health until about three days before his death, his firſt complaint was of a pain in his heal of the ſame leg that increaſing it was poulticed, his pain then removed to his knee, and then to his hip, and ſoon after his body on the ſame ſide began to ſwell, and ſo continued up to his head, and that ſide of his face was ſwelled to that degree, that it could ſcarce be diſcovered where his eye was, exhibiting a moſt ſhocking ſpectacle to beholders.

He had the uſe of his ſences for the moſt of the time during his illneſs—he complained of the moſt excruciating pain; his diſtreſs was ſo great, that his whole frame appeared diſtorted by a continual writhing of his body; a froth or ſaliva conſtantly iſſuing from his mouth; running or reaching out his tongue an unuſual length. He alſo diſcovered a great averſion to water and other liquids; in which circumſtances he continued until his death.

This inſtance was ſo alarming, and further danger being apprehended, as a very uncommon diſeaſe appearing to attend dogs, indicating madneſs, by means whereof ſundry perſons have ſuſtained damage in this and the neighbouring towns, the civil authority and ſelect men of this town met on Friday laſt, and ordered the inhabitants to confine or deſtroy their dogs, and all others that ſhould be found at large within this town. In conſequence whereof the next day a very great deſtruction was made among thoſe animals, many of whom were ſuppoſed to be affected with the diſorder.

The Merchants of the Town of Norwich on Tueſday laſt made choice of a Committee to attend the propoſed meeting of the Merchants at Middletown, on the 20th of February inſtant. Ibid.

We hear the above propoſed Meeting will be attended by Gentlemen from this and every neighbouring Town; it being very generally approved of; as it is expected many ſalutary meaſures may thereby be adopted, which may be of the utmoſt Utility to this Colony.

To the PRINTERS.

As a number of Dogs have run mad in ſeveral Parts of the Country, it is neceſſary the Inhabitants ſhould know the Symptoms of the Diſorder, that they may deſtroy their Dogs when the Symptoms firſt appears, before they do much Miſchief.

The Symptoms of Madneſs in Dogs, are as follows.——

"WHEN they are going to run mad, they appear, dejected, ſhun Company, and hide themſelves; they will not bark but ſeem to murmur, and are averſe to Food and Water; they will fly upon Strangers, but retain ſome Regard for their Maſters; their Ears and Tails hang down, and walk along as if they were ſleeping; other Dogs will ſhun them. This is the firſt Degree of the Diſeaſe, and though the Bite is then bad, it is not at the worſt. Afterwards they begin to pant, hang out their tongues, froth at the Mouth, and gape. Sometimes they will run, but not directly forward and ſoon ceaſe to know their Maſters. A Bite at this time is extremely dangerous."

WANTED a Perſon Skilled in making REEDS, in the beſt manner.——Enquire of the PRINTERS.

ON the 31ſt of Jan, 1770, was offered to Sale, to Mr. Lescoiet, Watch-Maker in Hartford, one large Silver Spoon, the handle broke [illegible] aks as if done with violence) mark'd S. B. and the letter R. ſcratch'd under it, ſuſpected to be Stolen. Any perſon having loſt ſuch an one, may know the name of the Perſon who is ſuſpected to have ſtolen it, by enquiring of the ſaid Lescoiet, or of Joseph Pease of Suffield, who was preſent.

LONDON, October 28.

[The following is a more particular Account than we have yet publiſhed, of the Actions between the Turks and Ruſſians, on the 3d and 9th of September.]

The court of Peterſburg has received from Prince Galitzin, chief commander of the imperial army, the following particulars relating to the two victories gained over the Turks on the 3d, and 9th of September laſt; "On the 24th of Auguſt the enemy began to erect a bridge under the cannon of Choczim; and having finiſhed it the 3d of September a body of five or ſix thouſand Turks paſſed the ſame day on this ſide the Nieſter, and took their camp againſt it having made in the hurry ſome intrenchments. In the night of the 3d, Prince Gallitzin ordered 4000 grenadiers under the command of four colonels, to attack and drive away the enemy; which was executed with ſuch ſucceſs, that of the Turks paſſed on this ſide, 2000 were killed, and but very few eſcaped, the reſt being cut to pieces or drowned in the river, which they attempted to paſs over by ſwimming. The next day and the following till the 9th, the enemy kept themſelves quiet, but on this day the whole Turkiſh army near Choczim, conſiſting of 70 000 light troops, and 12.000 Janiſſaries, headed by the Grand Vizir and the Khan of Tartary, began to paſs the river. As the intention of Prince Galitzin, was to draw the enemy on this ſide, in order to give a general action, he did not hinder him in his undertaking. As ſoon as the Ottoman army paſſed the Nieſter, which they did either upon the bridge, or by ſwimming in ſeveral places, they made their attack upon our vanguard, and ſoon after a general engagement began with our whole front. This action which was very violent and bloody, laſted for 5 hours, & the Turks having repeatedly attempted to ſurround our army, was always repulſed with great loſs by the firmneſs of our troops, & the fire of our artillery till at length they were entirely routed, and defeated. The enemy fled away in the greateſt diſorder, and with ſuch precipitation, that notwithſtanding their cuſtom to carry away their dead, left upon the field of battle above 3000 ſlain. They have loſt alſo a conſiderable number of people in croſſing the river, and when the meſſenger came away, there was not a Turk to be ſeen on this ſide the Nieſter. Our loſs which is but very ſmall conſidering the obſtinacy and fury of the enemy, conſiſts in 500 killed and wounded. The Prince Wolodimer Gallitzin, who was diſpatched with this important news to the Empreſs, brought alſo nine colours, taken from the enemy.

Extract of a Letter from Edingburgh, Oct. 25.

"As none of the accounts of the death of the Earl of Eglington are truly ſtated, I ſend you the whole of the tranſaction as related by a perſon preſent: Lord Eglington and Lord Kelly, who was at his Lordſhip's on a viſit, went out in their chair to take the air, followed by ſervants, who had guns and dogs: near the ſea ſide, in his Lordſhip's incloſures, he heard a gun go off, and eſpying one Campbell, whom he had long known for a poacher, he alighted from his carriage, purſued Campbell, came up to him, and demanded his gun, for ſhooting on his manor; he was anſwered by Campbell in very rude language, that he would not deliver up his gun, but if his Lordſhip inſiſted on it, he would give him the contents. My Lord Eglington then ſeized a large ſtick, which was in Lord Kelly's hand, who by this time had come up to the ſpot where the fray happened. Lord Eglington was advancing faſt on to attack the fellow with his ſtick, which the fellow ſeeing, levelled and preſented his piece —Lord Eglington ſeeing that, withdrew a few paces, and cried out, "Oh, are you for that ſport!" and called one of his ſervants to reach him his fowling piece, which was accordingly brought, and delivered into his hand; Lord Eglington faced about to Campbell with the gun in his hand, but before he could either cock or preſent it, the fellow fired, and unhappily the whole charge, wadding and all, entered on his right ſide, about two inches from the navel, of which wound he lingered about 12 hours, and then expired. The fellow was ſo confuſed, or ſo frightened, he fell on his back the inſtant he fired, but not before. Lady Eglington, my Lord's mother, is ſo terribly affected with the unhappy loſs of her ſon, that it is feared the diſtraction and indiſpoſition ſhe is thrown into will prove to be mortal."

IN my former Advertiſement, I informed my cuſtomers that I did not intend to drop the buſineſs of ſupplying them with papers, but that I ſtill hoped to ſerve them to their advantage.——would now further inform them of the method, propoſed for the future. That I will ride every week through the year from Litchfield to Hartford, and be back on Tueſday of each week, having the paper conveniently lodged at a ſhop (which is to be immediately erected for that purpoſe) near the court houſe in Litchfield, where conſtant attendance will be given, and the greateſt care and pains taken, to have them forwarded with all poſſible diſpatch; and it is hoped and deſired, that all gentlemen that may be in Litchfield, from the ſeveral towns round the country, would be ſo kind as to call and take their papers, by which means it is hoped they will always be conveyed ſo expeditiouſly as to make the preſent alteration really beneficial, however, ſhould it ſo happen that no good opportunity preſents to ſend them within the fortnight, I hereby engage to convey them by a ſpecial poſt on purpoſe, in ſuch a manner as to accommodate every cuſtomer once a fortnight through the year——the papers to be afforded at the old price of Eight Shillings lawful money per year, which is but two ſhillings more than the printers have of their cuſtomers in Hartford, where the papers are taken from their office, excluſive of charge of riding. The above terms being ſo very favourable to the cuſtomers, cannot fail of being agreeable: But ſhould it happen that any perſon diſlikes them, it is deſired that information may be given as ſoon poſſible, and their papers ſhall be ſtopped, otherwiſe it will be conſtrued into conſent, and they will be continued.

WILLIAM STANTON.

This is to inform the PUBLIC, that

Cotton Murray,

Taylor from BOSTON,

HAS ſet up his Buſineſs at the Printing-Office in Hartford, where he makes all ſorts of Men's CLOATHS, both Leather and Cloth. Any gentlemen that pleaſe to favour him with their cuſtom, may depend upon being ſerved as well as in Boſton.

Winchester, Jan. 24. 1770.

THESE are to give notice, to the Proprietors of Winchester, that have not paid their TAXES for 1769, to ſettle the ſame ſpeedily at my houſe, or they may expect trouble, from

DAVID AUSTIN, Collector.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

TO BE SOLD BY

PETER VERSTILLE,

At his Store in Weathersfield, the following GOODS, at the loweſt Prices, for CASH only, viz.

CRimſon and other Broad Cloths Scarlet Green & Blue Ratteens German Serges Cloth colour'd Kerſeys Red Blue and Brown Half Thicks Sagathys and Duroys Bazies Shalloons ſorted, Tammys, ditto. Durants, ditto. Calamincoes, do Camblets, Plain & figur'd Cambletteens, Dorſetteens, Hungarian Stuffs, Poplins, Millanetts, Dreſdinetts, Greartts, Brolions, Black Silk Crapes, ditto Bombazeens Black and Cloth colour'd Drawboys Brown and Olive colour'd Fuſtians Brown and White Stay Buckrams, Black figur'd Laſtings Cotton Checks of all width's Red & White & Blue & White Stripe'd Hollands Black White Crimſon, Green, Blue and Purple Pelong Sattins, Sheer and Thick Muſlins Cambricks and Lawns, Black and White Parſinetts Black & White Calgusi, Black & White [illegible] Plain, Gauze Black & White, figur'd ditto Black and Crimſon Capuchine Silk Men's & Women's Leather Gloves and Mitts Women's Silk Gloves and Mitts 3 4 & 7 8 Bed Ticking. A fine Aſſortment of Chintz and Calicoes Black and Colour'd Barcelona Hankerchiefs Black Gauze Handkerchiefs. Linnin and Silk ditto Black Cravatts Black Crimſon and Scarlet Snail Trimming Head Flowers, Necklaces and Ribbands, Silver Tippits and Turbands, Cap Wires, Velvet Maſks, Sattin Hatts & Bonnetts Black Ducape Cloth colour'd and changeable Luteſtrings, Brown Taffity, Martinneco Luteſtrings, Silk and Cotton ditto. Paddleſtick Fans, and other ditto. Damaſcus and Saloons for Waiſtcoats, Black & White Laces, Silk Stay ditto. 2·4 7 8 and Yard Wide Hollands and Dowlas, Womens Shoes Ruſſia Linnin and Dipers, White figur'd Dimothy's, Mens and Women's Thread Cotton and Worſted Hoſe, Black Blue Purple and cloth colour'd Breeches Patterns, Looking Glaſſes, Chaiſe and Hunting Whips, Bohea Tea, Coffee, Ginger, Allſpice, Nutmegs, Cloves, Cinnamon. Men's Caſtor and Felt Hatts, Flower Lawn & Kenting Handkerchiefs, Ferritts and Galloons, Shoe and Quality Bindings, Horn, Mortie, Twiſt and Baſket Buttons, Beſt G. B. Wool and Cotton Cards, Beſt Kippens and Tillocks Snuff, Allum, Copperas, Brimſtone, Redwood, Logwood, Rice, &c. Sewing Silk Gruel, Twiſt ſorted, Horn & Ivory Combs, Tapes, Pins Needles, Writing and Preſs Paper, Paper Hangings for Rooms, Pewter & Braſs, Shoe & Knee Buckles, Bellows, Nails and an Aſſortment of Hard Ware.

N. B. Ticklinburgs and Oznabrigs, by the Bolt, and Ravens Duck by the piece.

THIS is to give Public notice, that thoſe Perſons that have any concern in taking the Connecticut Courant, for the year 1770. in the following towns or pariſhes, are deſired to make pay to Mr. KNIGHT SEXTON, near the Great Bridge in Hartford. viz. Eaſt Hartford, Bolton, Andover, Coventry, Eaſt-Windſor, Tolland, Stafford, Somers, Enfield, Suffield, and, Weſt-Windſor.

CLOCKS and Watches made in the beſt Manner, by PRESERVED CLAP of Amherſt.

Likewiſe all Kinds of Inſtruments in Surgery.

MONDAY Feb. 12, 1770.

Numb 268.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

Further Advices by Capt. Boden, whoſe arrival was mentioned in our laſt.

ITALY, November 6.

THEY write from Barcelona, that a Squadron is to ſail from that Port, the deſtination of which is a ſecret. It is aſſerted that Cardinal Bernis has deviſed a plan for the marriage ſettlement of the Dauphineſs that is to be, and accommodation with the Pope; according to which plan the Empreſs Queen is to cede to France the entire property of the towns of Ipres, Furnes, and Menin; the Grand Duke of Tuſcany is to be put in poſſeſſion of Corſica, and reſign up to the Pope certain Territories in the Eccleſiaſtical State, by way of indemnification for the County of Avignon, which is to be kept by France.

LONDON.

Nov. 9. We are well informed, the ſubſidy of 676 000l. due to the King of Pruſſia at the cloſe of the late war, has never yet been paid, notwithſtanding what has been ſaid at that time in public on a certain occaſion, about the ſupport and honour of the Crown.

[illegible] capital of Moldavia, and when the laſt accounts came away, were laying ſiege to Bender, with 20,000 men, which is the laſt fortreſs but one till they arrive at Conſtantinople.

We are well informed that a patent is preparing to create Sir Jeffery Amherſt a Peer.

The report of Sir Francis Bernard being to be created a Peer, is entirely without foundation.

Nov. 11. Yeſterday morning, at ten o'clock, came on at the Court of Common Pleas in Weſtminſter-hall, the trial between the Right Hon. Lord Halifax, and John Wilkes Eſq; when after the Council had opened it, the Right Hon. Lord Temple, Humphry Coates, Eſq; Mr. Phillips, and ſeveral others, were examined, in order to prove the manner in which Mr. Wilkes was taken up, and the uncivil treatment he met with during his confinement in the Tower. Col. Onſlow, in his examination, could not recollect the receiving a certain letter from Mr. Wilkes; but Mr. Philips, on his examination, produced a copy of the ſaid letter he had received from Col. Onſlow himſelf, which occaſioned a laugh throughout the Court. The general charges were admitted by the Defendants, notwithſtanding the trial laſted till eight o'clock, when the Jury brought in the verdict for Mr. Wilkes, with 4000l. damages.

The council for the Plaintiff were, Mr. Serjeant Glynn, Mr. Serjeant Davy, Mr. Serjeant Whitaker.

As ſoon as the verdict was known in the hall, the too ſanguine expectations of the populance appeared to be diſappointed, as they expreſſed their diſſatisfaction by groans, hiſſes, and other marks of inſult.

The account given of a peſtilential wind that ſwept away all the white inhabitants of Cape Coaſt Caſtle, the Governor only excepted, is confirmed, word for word, by other letters received from the Guinea coaſt.

The preſent and late Lord Mayor, and the ſix other patriotic Aldermen, who attended the proceſſion yeſterday, were received with ſuch acclamations by the populace as were never known before, and at night the whole city was illuminated.

Nov. 21. We are informed that the ſeals, with the title of Lord Keeper, has been offered to Lord Chief Juſtice Wilmot, and that his Lordſhip declined to accept of them.

We have it from pretty good authority, that Lord M—— [illegible] up a bill for regulating the [illegible] of the [illegible], and upon ſending it to the Lord C——r, to expunge what he pleaſed, had it returned to him with every line ſcratched out.

A noble Lord who has figured in the Eaſtern part of the globe, we hear, has made a propoſal within theſe few days to government, that if they will ſupply him with twenty ſhips of the line & ten thouſand land forces, he will undertake to pay off the national debt in the courſe of ſeven years.

From ſome late orders given, conſequen- [illegible] ſee in a ſhort time, our navy in a ſtate much fitter for action than at preſent, Plymouth, it is ſaid will ſoon be the place of rendezvous of a ſquadron of Britiſh ſhips, the deſtination of which, however, admits of many conjectures.

It is the opinion of thoſe verſed in politics, that before next ſummer the Mediterranean ſea will contain three fleets of the greateſt powers in Europe. But whether in ſtate of amity or contention, it is left to time to diſcover.

Yeſterday a full board was held at the Admiralty, at which Sir Edward Hawke, as firſt Lord, preſided; in conſequence of which, expreſſes were immediately ſent off to the commiſſioners of the ſeveral yards of Portſmouth, Plymouth, Chatham, and Sheerneſs, the purport of which is ſaid to be the getting the ſhips of war at thoſe different places in readineſs for ſervice with all expedition: The Lords of the Admiralty have alſo ordered ſeveral rendezvous houſes to be opened in Wapping, and other places, for engaging ſeamen to man the above ſhips.

Nov. 25 It is reported, that the intent of a private conference on Wedneſday laſt between a Great Perſonage and the premier was to determine on ſome method to draw the E—— of C—— from the preſent oppoſition.

Some ſay that at the above meeting it was reſolved to offer the E—— of C—— a Dukedom, with the power of appointing a certain number of his friends to places.

But it is aſſerted, that if the E—— of C—— ſhould be taken by this trap, it will immediately occaſion a breach between him and the E—— of T——, who has declared his determination of having no connexion with the preſent M——.

It is now aſſerted, that the fleet fitting out for the Mediterranean is intended to protect the Ruſſians in their expedition to the Archipelago, and oblige ſome folks to obſerve a ſtrict neutrality, in caſe they ſhould offer to obſtruct their paſſage.

By a Gentleman well verſed in naval affairs, we are informed, that Great-Britain is able, at this time, to equip, on very ſhort notice, eighty ſhips of the line, which will be more than a match for all the ſhipping France and Spain can fit out for many months.

A correſpondent obſerves, that there is no doubt but France and Spain will declare war againſt Great-Britain as ſoon as they are able.

They expect, at a certain office at the other end of the town, a rupture ſoon with a neighbouring kingdom.

Nov. 28 On Friday laſt a Jew merchant ſold by auction, in the Bank, upwards of 50 000l Stock.

We hear that on Saturday was iſſued out of the Treaſury, 4000l. being the damages lately given in favour of Mr. Wilkes, againſt Lord Halifax, and which ſum is ordered to be paid Mr. Wilkes immediately.

Yeſterday morning, at eleven o'clock, came on in the Court of King's-Bench, before Lord Chief Juſtice Mansfield, and the reſt of the Judges of that court, the long expected queſtion, "Whether Samuel Vaughan Eſq; ſhould not ſhew cauſe in a complaint, at the ſuit of his Grace the Duke of Grafton, relative to the ſum of five thouſand pounds offered by that gentleman to his Grace, for procuring his ſon to the reverſionary grant of Clerk of the Crown in the Iſland of Jamaica."

The Lawyers employed on both ſides ſupported the ſentiments of their leaders, which continued till after four o'clock, when my Lord Mansfield, (after obſerving on the facts and pleadings with great good ſenſe and accuracy) with the unanimous conſent of his brother Judges, made the rule abſolute.

Lawyers for the Defendant.

Mr. Wedderburn, Mr. Lee.

For the Plaintiff.

The Solicitor General, Mr. Wallace, Mr. Ranby.

Nov. 30. We are well aſſured, that Lord G——m has declared that the Parliament muſt be abſolutely and totally diſſolved.

We are aſſured from undoubted authority, that a great lawyer has declared, if he reſigns, or is deſired to quit his high office, he never will reſume it, even at the interceſſion of his greateſt friends.

The Weſtminſter Petition is ſigned by 5135 Freeholders, which makes a reſpectable majority, as very few more than 9000 were ever known to poll at an election for that city.

All the Officers in the French Army and Navy, who reſide here, have received orders to repair to their reſpective poſts immediately.

It is ſaid a demand of a very important nature has lately been made upon our court by the Empreſs of Ruſſia.

On Monday evening the proper officers from the Exchequer, waited on Mr. Wilkes in the King's Bench, and took his receipt for the 4000l. adjudged to him by the verdict obtained againſt Lord Halifax.

We are confidently aſſured, that the firſt object to be taken into conſideration by a certain auguſt aſſembly, is the reſolution of a former ſeſſion, relative to a certain county election.

It is the opinion of the judicious in political matters, and of thoſe alſo, who have a knowledge of ſtate ſecrets, that there is not one reſolve, regarding the Knight of the Shire for a certain County, but what will be expunged before the expiration of the month of January next.

Laſt night a moſt dreadful fire broke out in the Rope walk, in Rotherhithe, which deſtroyed 27 houſes greatly damaged ſeveral others, and a number of ſheds were alſo conſumed.

December 2. A late Chancellor of the Exchequer, it is ſaid, is to take the lead in the patriotic intereſt at the meeting of a Great Aſſembly.

The Secretary of a Nobleman, while in office, it is ſaid, will ſupport the above gentleman's meaſures.

'Tis ſaid that a gentleman in the law department, who holds his place for life, is to reſign on a penſion of 3000l. per annum; and that he will afterwards be appointed preſident of the P—— C——.

A commiſſion is preparing to paſs the Great Seal for a new Board of Commiſſioners of the Cuſtoms.

By a gentleman who has lately been at Toulon we are informed, that they are working with the greateſt diligence, to raiſe a formidable fleet. The gentleman landed there from Italy, and, in going through the port, counted ſeventeen new ſhips of the line quite finiſhed, beſides a number of frigates.

It is no joke, that a treaty of marrige is at preſent negociating between the Pr——d—e and one of the Princeſſes of the blood of the Houſe of Bourbon, but a fact.

The State Lottery began drawing in November, the 22d December, the Price of Tickets roſe to 22l. 5s.

Dec. 5. Whether the Parliament is diſſolved, or not, it is looked upon as certain, that there will be a total change in the adminiſtration; in which caſe a correſpondant aſſures us, that the following will nearly be the arrangement of the new miniſtry.

Firſt Lord of the Treaſury, the Marquis of Rockingham, with liberty to name his own board.

Secretaries of State for the Northen and Southern departments, the Earls Temple and Shelburn.

Preſident of the Council, Lord Cambden.

Lord Chancellor, Sir John Eardley Wilmot, who is to be ſucceeded as Cheif Juſtice of the common Pleas, by Mr. Serjeant Glyon.

Lord Privy Seal, the Earl of Chatham.

Lord Chamberlain, the Duke of Portland.

Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Right Hon. William Dowdeſwell, Eſq;

Paymaſter of the Forces, the Hon. George Grenville, Eſq;

Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, Earl of Briſtol.

Firſt Lord of Trade, Earl of Dartmouth.

Firſt Lord of the Admiralty, Admiral Sanders, and Sir Edward Hawke to retire with a Peerage & Penſion

Yeſterday after braking up of the Levee at St. James's, his Grace the Duke of Grafton, the two Secretaries of State and Lord Barrington, Secretary at war, had a conference with his Majeſty.

The Reverend John Hinchliffe, D. D. is elected Biſhop of Peterborough.

Colonel John Burgoyne is appointed Governor of Fort William in North-Britain, in the room of the late Gen. Kinſley.

We hear that this week a number of Navy-Officers upon the half pay liſt have had notice ſent them to be in readineſs to enter upon actual duty when called on.

Letters from Vienna ſay, that 2000 horſes were arrived to remount the Imperial cavalry, and 4000 more were daily expected. Do not theſe indicate an approaching war?

The whole maritime force of Spain, we are told by this day's mail, is ordered to be got ready to put to ſea the moment his catholic Majeſty ſhall judge proper; and his orders, it ſeems are executed with ſuch celerity, that they work night and day in their dock yards.

They write from Trieſte, that ſeveral veſſels, arrived there from the Levant, had brought advice of 400 houſes having been thrown down by a violent earthquake in the iſland of St. Maure.

We hear that the Count de Chatelet Lomont, the French Ambaſſador arrived on Wedneſday from Paris.

Letters from Amſterdam mentions, that it was ſaid an expreſs had arrived there, with an account that General Count Panin has been ſurprized by a body of 20,000 Turks, & totally routed. This officer was diſpatched by General Romonzow, commander in chief of the Ruſſian army in order to lay ſiege to Bender.

We are told that a great Perſonage has declared, that he will take no kind of notice whatever of the petitions that have been, or may be preſented to him.

The London Gazette of Nov. 21, contains a Proclamation for proroguing the Parliament to the 9th of January, then to be held for the diſpatch of divers weighty and important Affairs.

Died. At Wotton in Buckinghamſhire, the Lady of the Right Hon. George Grenville, brother to Earl Temple. She was ſiſter to the Earl of Thomond.

Promoted: [illegible] Fitch, Advocate General of the Vice-Admiralty court of Maſſachuſetts-Bay.

LONDON, Dec. 9.

It is ſaid that preſs warrants will be iſſued out ſoon after Chriſtmas.

By letters received yeſterday from Paris, dated Dec. 4 we learn, that they had juſt had advice from Breſt, that the Commiſſioners appointed for carrying on the proceſs againſt the Sieur Gordon (the Engliſh Spy) who after having been ſome months examining that affair, iſſued their definitive ſentence on the 14th ult. which condemned him to be beheaded, it was accordingly executed the ſame day. We farther learn, that the next day a ſoldier, of the regiment of Berne, who was an accomplice with Gordon, was tried, and condemned to be hanged; and that many other perſons are in cuſtody, who had a hand in this affair, and amongſt the reſt a phyſician named Durand.

The M——y are now at a loſs for a perſon to take the lead at the meeting of an auguſt Aſſembly, as, it is ſaid, Sir—— —— has declined it.

It is expected that R—— will be applied to, for to do the above buſineſs.

The E—— of E—— has declared, that he will take no part in any adminiſtration that ſhall be formed by the E—— of C——.

Yeſterday Doyle and Valline, the two Cutters were executed: Being great apprehenſion of a tumult, the unhappy ſufferers were obliged to be turned off before the uſual time: Immediately after their execution the mob ſeized the gallows, and burnt it to aſhes: They then went to the houſe of a maſter weaver, broke his windows, and deſtroyed part of his ſtock: A guard of ſoldiers were ſent for to quell the rioters, and two Juſtices of the peace went with them to read the Riot act; upon which they diſperſed. Three of the rioters were taken into cuſtody.

Dec. 14. Letters from Leghorn mention, that ſome Ruſſian Officers have lately ſurveyed the harbour of Ancona which is intended for the general rendezvous of the Ruſſian Fleet.

Ancona is ſeated on the Gulph of Venice, 30 miles from Urbino, and 116 from Rome.

A very diſagreeable diſcovery has been made at the Weſt End of the town. Lord —— having reaſon for ſome time to ſuſpect a too great intimacy between his Lady and a certain Perſonage, planned a method to make a diſcovery; which he effected, and caught his Lady in bed with her r——l paramour; he called up his ſervants to be witneſſes.

Whitehall, Dec. 22. The King has been pleaſed to appoint the Right Honourable William Earl of Dunmore to be Captain-General in chief of His Majeſty's Province of New-York, and the territories depending thereon, in America.

LONDON, Dec. 19.

It is ſaid that the Earl of Buchan will be appointed Governor of the colony of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, in the room of Sir Francis Bernard, Bart. a circumſtance, if true, that indicates an attention to the ſufferings of our North-American brethren. Other reports bear, that nobleman will be entruſted with the care of the education of an illuſtrious young Prince.

We hear that the plan for reſtoring the tranquillity of the colonies, will conſiſt chiefly in fixing the quota of the different provinces, according to a general ſcale of proportion to be drawn out, after the moſt mature deliberation and enquiry, the reſpective aſſemblies having the choice of the eaſieſt methods of affecting the people by internal taxes. None of the ſums ſo raiſed to be remitted to Britain, but applied to the purpoſes of ſupporting the expences of government in North-America. The revenue laws to be repealed, and reſpectable Governors, who are acquainted with American affairs, to be appointed to preſide in the different governments.

Report now ſays, the Parliament will not be diſſolved, but that the ſo-much complained of reſolutions will be reſcinded, and a new writ iſſued for another member for the county of Middleſex. In this caſe there can be no doubt, but that Mr. Wilkes will be returned, and we hear no further objections will be made to his ſitting in Parliament.

We hear that Lady Betty Germain has bequeathed 20,000l. to Lord George Sackville, together with her ſeat at Drayton in Northamptonſhire, and all the furniture therein; 20,000l. to Lady Vere Beauclerk; and annuities to all her ſervants, according to their ſtations. It is ſaid, notwithſtanding that lady has given in public and private charities 2000l. a year for 40 year paſt died worth, in jewels, plate and Money, 700,000l.

The Earl of Errol, ſon of the Earl of Kilmarnock, who ſuffered on Tower hill, for being in the rebellion 1745, will be choſen one of the ſixteen Peers of Scotland, in the room of the Earl of Eglington deceaſed.

It is ſaid, that a certain Nobleman is rendered inconſolable by the incontinence of his lady, as he married her purely on a principle of eſteem, being a perſon of no fortune in compariſon with his own.

The above Nobleman, we hear, has neither received nor paid any viſits ſince this unhappy affair.

We alſo hear that the damages ſued for are 150,000l, and not 100 000l. as mentioned in the papers.

When a Great perſonage was informed of the above affair, it is ſaid, he replied, "That he felt much for the injured Lord, and much alſo for himſelf, on account of the family ſtain that might be brought upon him by it."

For the CONNECTICUT COURANT.

(continued from our laſt)

IN my laſt I conſidered but two articles, in which this colony, by improving them to advantage, might make a moſt important ballance, annually ſav'd in its favour; and by employing a greater number of labourers, and manufacturers, prevent the now, almoſt neceſſary emigration of the induſtrious inhabitants, and of conſequence leſſen the weight of our public expences; and enhance the value of our lands——To mention at large every branch, capable of equally beneficial improvement, would exceed the brevity of my plan—there are many I am confident, of equal conſequence—I will hint one—When the nonimportation agreement was come into, we find Duck, Lines, Cordage, &c. excepted, as articles we muſt be dependant on Europe for. Is this our ſituation?—far from it, there is not a finer flax country on earth, than this colony; and experience proves this article may be raiſed, and manufactured among us, to equal perfection, in the above articles, and by proper encouragement may be had cheaper than from abroad.

Flax Seed, has become long ſince, a capital remittance from New York, well aſſured I am, that much the greateſt part there ſhipped, is the produce of this colony, let any one now calculate, the prodigious ballance againſt us in thoſe articles; in this article, in the firſt place, the coaſting freight, and charges ſav'd, by a direct exportation. The odds of the coſt of thoſe goods in their firſt purchaſe, with the avails, and the price at which they are taken and conſumed by us, in payment for our flax ſeed; and then add to both, the expenſive benefits naturally ariſing to the colony, from ſo conſiderable an increaſe, of our navigation, an unfailing conſequence, and it will be found a much larger ſum than is at preſent thought of in general. When we add the manufacture of duck, oznabriggs and ticklenburgh, &c. &c. among us, it will be no way inferior to either of the other two.

A ſtate of community civiliz'd, yet independant, is a perfect chimerecal idea. The creator of all things has ordered it ſo, that one man is dependant on another, through his whole period of exiſtence; and one climate on another for the neceſſaries, and conveniences of life. All, other ways would be uncultivated, ſavage, and deſart—mutual dependance, begets mutual intercourſe; reciprocal, kind, benevolent offices from whence the chain holds on to civiliz'd and ſocial life. Stoics may indeed pretend to compriſe the real neceſſaries of life, in a very narrow compaſs, a den to defend from the inclemencies of the ſeaſon, firing in winter, ſhade in ſummer, pulſe and water——This is indeed the life of a ſavage, but of ſuch, nothing need be ſaid. Man, in his nature, is a progreſſive being, with the rude materials put into his hands, he naturally riſes, from the real neceſſaries of life, to the conveniences, the delicacies, and the luxuries. Uſe is ſaid to be a ſecondary nature, ſo when habit has made the finer enjoyments of life, familiar they become natural, and neceſſary: and whilſt they are not deſtructive of the health, and virtue of the inhabitants, while the uſe of them, imported, furniſhes bread for thouſands of our fellow beings abroad, and for as many among ourſelves, in preparing, and exporting others in exchange, never in any ſtate, or country ought they to be diſcountenanced. It is but humane, it is a duty we owe one another, and the world in general; to encourage and promote them, from the maxim that charity begins at home, it becomes the duty of the patriot, is the great end of the honeſt well-wiſher to his country, ſo to order and manage this intercourſe, that the ballance may lye in favour of his own country, as far as poſſible, without injuring the foreign with which he deals.——The injuring thoſe from whom we receive benefits, like a rebound is moſt uſually fatal to ourſelves. Pardon this digreſſion; I may have inconſiderately advanced, that we have it in our power, to be intirely independant of any other part of the world, others with as little attention, & leſs well meant zeal, the direct reverſe——neither are our true ſituation, nor can we agreeable to the above ſyſtem ever wiſh for either—the truth is, the variety of climates now in poſſeſſion, of the Engliſh inhabitants of North-America, with the Weſt India iſlands, none of which are frozen, but fertile in the articles peculiar to them lays (the inhabitants united) the greateſt, the ſureſt foundation for future growth, wealth, affluence or even independance, that can be expected ever to be in the world beſide. Mean time, it is the duty of each colony, (peculiarly at a period, when the whole are threatned, with the moſt paſſive obedience, and abject dependance) it is a debt each individual owes the government under which he lives; carefully to examine into, and conſider the advantages, the beneficent author of our being has put into our hands, to live comfortably and agreeably, uſeful to ourſelves and others, to enjoy preſent affluence and provide for our poſterity, to ward off the above threatned ills, the greateſt of curſes; and hand down to future generations that greateſt of all temporal bleſſings, liberty.——Senſible of this obligation, I have in this, and two fore going papers, attempted ſomething of this kind; if miſtaken in my principle, or eſtimate, moſt thankfully will receive correction and inſtruction;——Of wilful error, I have not, nor will I be guilty in treating the ſubject——and my wiſh is to make it appear of conſequence ſufficient, to gain the attention of the public in general; and induce ſome gentleman, of more ability, than I have the vanity to think myſelf maſter of, to undertake, to treat it with that, plainneſs, & preciſion the ſubject requires.

[To be continued]

HARTFORD, February 12.

Laſt Friday Morning departed this life, in the LXII year of her age, Mrs. HANNAH BULL, widow of Doct. JONATHAN BULL, of this Town deceaſed.

Laſt Thurſday one Thomas Spencer, a tranſient perſon, very patiently ſubmitted to the diſcipline of the Whip in this town, for theft.——He was apprehended laſt Summer and lodg'd in the goal in this place, where he continued till the ſitting of the county court, when he had his trial, was found guilty of the fact, and ſentenc'd to be whipped, but prevented his receiving his puniſhment at that time by breaking the goal with ſome others, and making his eſcape, but he was ſoon after taken and conducted back to his former lodgings, there to remain till his ſentance could be put in execution.

BY Order of the Hon. Judge of Probates for the Diſtrict of Hartford, to be ſold at Publick Vendue, at the Houſe of Mr. David Bull, Innholder in ſaid Hartford, all the Real eſtate of Levi Jones, late of Hartford deceas'd (repreſented Inſolvent) By us the Subſcribers, on Thurſday the 1ſt of March next.

Daniel Goodwin, } Adminiſ-
Samuel Marſh. } trators.

N. B. All perſons inclining to purchaſe at private ſale may do it by applying to the ſubſcribers before the Day of ſale.

THE Proprietors of the Suſquehannah purchaſe in January 1768 granted a tax of Two Dollars on each right, and alſo in April 1769 granted a tax of Two Dollars on each right, a conſiderable part of which taxes have been paid in, and improved for the Company's uſe, and at a meeting of ſaid company January 1770 it was agreed upon & voted, that ſuch proprietors as have hitherto neglected paying in ſaid taxes, that they pay them to the committee appointed to receive them by the firſt Day of March next; and ſuch as ſhall neglect to pay the ſaid taxes by that time, their Rights are declared by a Vote of ſaid company, forfeited, and to revert to ſaid company.

By Order of the adjourned Meeting held January 10th, 1770.

SAMUEL GRAY, Clerk.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by the Printers hereof price Half a Piſtareen,

Obſervations on a

Pamphlet entitled,
Remarks on Dr. GALE's Letter to
J. W. Eſq; Sign'd E. D. of which
The Hon. ELIPHALET DYER,
Is the reputed Author.
Shewing, from the Matters therein contained, that ſuch an Imputation is highly injurious to the Character of that worthy Patriot.
By Benjamin Gale, A. M.

"The Liberty of the Preſs is the Birth right of a Briton, and is juſtly eſteem'd the firmeſt Bullwark of this Country.

It has been the Terror of all bad Miniſters; for their dark and dangerous Deſigns, or their Weakneſs, Inability and Duplicity have thus been detected, and ſhewn to the Public generally in too ſtrong Colours for them long to bear up againſt the Odium of Mankind.

"A wicked and corrupt Adminiſtration muſt naturally dread this Appeal to the World, and will be for keeping all the Means of Information equally from the Prince, Parliament and People." N. Briton, No. 1.

Sejanus Wolſey, hate not honeſt Fleury
But well may put ſome Stateſmen in a Fury.

[The Author has, in a great Meaſure, left the perſonal Reflections of the Remarker unnoticed, and almoſt wholly confin'd himſelf to the Arguments advanced by the Remarker, in Favour of the Right this Colony has to thoſe Lands call'd Suſquehannah, which he humbly conceives he has fully refuted——and alſo examined the Remarkers Sentiments, relative to ſome of our moſt eſſential Charter Rights and Privileges, as inconſiſtent with our Charter.

Will be ſold at publick VENDUE, on Monday the 12th day of March next, at the Houſe of Col. Ebenezer Marſh, Innholder in Litchfield, unleſs earlier diſpoſed of, by private ſale.

All the real eſtate of

Friend Grant, late of Litchfield deceaſed, viz. about one hundred acres near the Meeting-Houſe, and ſundry other pieces of land lying in other parts of ſaid town. Said ſale will be made for Caſh in hand, or three months credit, with good ſecurity, and on intereſt.——Vendue to begin at 2 o'clock afternoon on ſaid day, and to be continued by neceſſary adjournment till the whole of ſaid eſtate be ſold——Further particulars may be known at ſaid time of ſale. Any perſon inclining to purchaſe before that time, may apply to Oliver Wolcott, Adminiſtrator on ſaid Eſtate.
Litchfield, 5 Feb. 1770.

⁂ ERRATUM, in our laſt; Page 3. Col. 1. Line 2 & 3. for Proſperity; read Poſterity.

L O N D O N.

By letters from France, of good authority, we are aſſured, that after an anſwer to the firſt remonſtrance, ſent to the French Court, on account of the obliging the captain of the ſhip to ſtrike his colours in the Downs, which was given in gentle and conciliating terms a ſecond remonſtrance was made, peremptorily demanding ſatisfaction, and the puniſhment of the officer, to which the ſimple and ſpirited reply was made, That he had obeyed his inſtructions. This puts the Duke de Choiſeul under great difficulties, as he has reaſon to fear the event and embarraſſment of a war at this juncture; and yet, being a Lorrainer dreads the reſentful imputation of giving up a point that ſo greatly affects the honour of France.

Dec. 5. A celebrated Nobleman of this kingdom, greatly advanced in years, but formerly eſteemed one of the prime wits of the age, is now ſo far changed from what he was, that falling into the hands of the Methodiſts, he is become one of that ſect.

A gentleman who has lately viſited our ports and royal yards, aſſerts that there are near thirty new ſhips of the line, of the moſt perfect and compact conſtruction, which have not been at ſea, but are now entirely finiſhed; among them is a ſhip of immenſe force, pierced for 120 guns.

His Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland, attended by ſome officers, is now inſpecting the ſtate of the navy at Portſmouth.

It was yeſterday ſtrongly reported, that War had been declared between two neighbouring ſtates on the continent; and that one of them had demanded our aid as in a former inſtance.

They write from Dublin, that an attempt (by bringing in a Privy Council Money Bill into their Houſe) to deprive the Commons of their immemorial Privilege of having all Taxation Bills take their riſe with them: But the Patriots having time to rally, their adverſaries were defeated.

The day before Sir Edward Hawke ſold out of the Stocks he informed the Miniſters of the advices he had received; to which, however, they ſeemed to give little or no credit; and he concluded with ſaying, he thought it his duty to acquaint them.

One of our Secretaries of State very lately confeſſed, that though nothing was more expreſſively pacific than the language of the French court at this time, yet the very great expences which they were now putting themſelves to in naval affairs make a war, in his opinion, very ſuſpicious.

We hear that orders are given for fitting out 24 of our ſhips of war with all due expedition; and warrants for enliſting ſailors to man them are iſſued out.

The Earl of Effingham has obtained permiſſion to take a command in the Czarina's ſervice, and his baggage is ſent on board a Ruſſia ſhip at Plymouth.

Admiral Geary is appointed Commander in chief of his Majeſty's ſhips at Portſmouth, in the room of Sir J. Moore.

Dec. 7. It is reported, that Lord Weymouth is forthwith to go on an extraordinary negociation to the Court of France.

The King of Sardinia lies dangerouſly ill at Turin: his diſorder is of the apoplectic kind.

Middletown, Jan. 12, 1770.

ALL perſons indebted to, or that have any demands on the eſtate of Ebenezer Cook, late of Middletown, Mariner, deceaſed, are deſired to bring in their accounts to Wensly Hobby, Adminiſtrator on ſaid eſtate, in order for a ſpeedy ſettlement.

WANTED a Perſon Skilled in making REEDS, in the beſt manner.——Enquire of the PRINTERS.

WHereas application has been made to me the ſubſcriber, a Juſtice of peace for the county of Litchfield, by more than a ſixteenth part of the proprietors of the townſhip of Addiſon, near Crown Point, deſiring to warn a meeting of ſaid proprietors, to ſee if they will chooſe a committee to ſurvey and bound out ſaid townſhip, and to lay a diviſion of home lots to ſaid proprietors—— Theſe are therefore to notify the proprietors of ſaid townſhip, to meet together at the houſe of Mr. Andrew Stewart in New-Fairfield, on the ſecond Tueſday of February next, at one of the clock in the afternoon, for the purpoſe aforeſaid, and to do any other buſineſs proper to be done at ſaid meeting. Dated at Sharon, the 15th day of January, 1770.

Daniel Griſwold, Juſt. Pacis.

IN my former Advertiſement, I informed my cuſtomers that I did not intend to drop the buſineſs of ſupplying them with papers, but that I ſtill hoped to ſerve them to their advantage ——would now further inform them of the method, propoſed for the future. That I will ride every week through the year from Litchfield to Hartford, and be back on Tueſday of each week, having the paper conveniently lodged at a ſhop (which is to be immediately erected for that purpoſe) near the court houſe in Litchfield, where conſtant attendance will be given, and the greateſt care and pains taken, to have them forwarded with all poſſible diſpatch; and it is hoped, and deſired, that all gentlemen that may be in Litchfield, from the ſeveral towns round the country, would be ſo kind as to call and take their papers, by which means it is hoped they will always be conveyed ſo expeditiouſly as to make the preſent alteration really beneficial; however, ſhould it ſo happen that no good opportunity preſents to ſend them within the fortnight, I hereby engage to convey them by a ſpecial poſt on purpoſe in ſuch a manner as to accommodate every cuſtomer once a fortnight through the year——the papers to be afforded at the old price of Eight Shillings lawful money per year, which is but two ſhillings more than the printers have of their cuſtomers in Hartford, where the papers are taken from their office, excluſive of charge of riding. The above terms being ſo very favourable to the cuſtomers, cannot fail of being agreable: But ſhould it happen that any perſon diſlikes them, it is deſired that information may be given as ſoon poſſible, and their papers ſhall be ſtopped, otherwiſe it will be conſtrued into conſent, and they will be continued.

WILLIAM STANTON.

This is to inform the PUBLIC, that

Cotton Murray,

Taylor from BOSTON,

HAS ſet up his Buſineſs at the Printing-Office in Hartford, where he makes all ſorts of MEN'S CLOATHS, both Leather and Cloth. Any gentlemen that pleaſe to favour him with their Cuſtom, may depend upon being ſerved as well as in Boſton.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

TO BE SOLD BY

PETER VERSTILLE,

At his Store in Weathersfield, the following GOODS, at the loweſt Prices, for CASH only; viz.

CRimſon and other Broad Cloths. Scarlet Green & Blue Ratteens German Serges Cloth colour'd Kerſeys Red Blue and Brown Half Thicks Sagathys and Duroys Bazes Shalloons ſorted. Tammys, ditto. Durants, ditto. Calamincoes, do. Camblets, Plain & figur'd Cambletteens Dorſetteens, Hungarian Stuffs, Poplins. Miſſinetts, Dreſdinetts, Grezetts, Brolioes, black Silk Crapes, ditto Bombazeens Black and Cloth colour'd Drawboys Brown and Olive colour'd Fuſtians Brown and White Stay Buckrams, Black figur'd Laſtings Cotton Checks of all width's Red & White & Blue & White Stripe'd Hollands Black White Crimſon, Green, Blue and Purple Pelong Sattins, Shear and Thick Muſlins Cambricks and Lawns, Black and White Parſinetts Black & White Catgutt. Black & White Plain Gauze Black & White figur'd ditto Black and Crimſon Capuchine Silk Men's & Women's Leather Glov es and Mitts Women's Silk Gloves and Mitts 3 4 & 7 8 Bed Ticking. A fine Aſſortment of Chintz and Calicoes Black and Colour'd Barcelona Handkerchiefs Black Gauze Handkerchiefs Linnin and Silk ditto Black Cravatts Black Crimſon and Scarlet Snail Trimming Head

Flowers, Necklaces and Ribbands, Silver Tipping and Turbands, Cap Wires, Velvet Maſks, Sattin Hatts & Bonnetts Black Ducape Cloth colour'd and changeable Luteſtrings, Brown Taffity, Martineco Luteſtrings, Silk and Cotton ditto. Padleſtick Fans, and other ditto. Damaſcus and Soleas for Waiſtcoats, Black & White Laces, Silk Stay ditto. 2-4 7 8 and Yard Wide Hollands and Dowlas, Womens Shoes Ruſſia Linnin and Diapers White figur'd Dimothy's, Mens and Womens Thread Cotton and Worſted Hoſe, Black Blue Purple and cloth colour'd Breaches Patterns, Looking Glaſſes, Chaiſe and Hunting Whips, Bohea Tea, Coffee, Ginger, Allſpice, Nutmegs, Cloves, Cinnamon, Men's Caſtor and Felt Hatts, Flower Lawn & Kenting Handkerchiefs, Ferrits and Galloons, Shoe and Quality Bindings, Horn, Mettle, Twiſt and Baſket Buttons, Beſt G. B. Wool and Cotton Cards, Beſt Kippens and Tillocks Snuff, Allum, Copperas, Brimſtone, Redwood, Logwood, Rice, &c. Sowing Silk Cruel, Twiſt ſorted, Horn & Ivory Combs, Tapes, Pins Needles, Writing and Preſs Paper, Paper Hangings for Rooms, Pewter & Braſs, Shoe & Knee Buckles, Bellows, Nails and an Aſſortment of Hard Ware.

N. B. Ticklinburgs and Oznabrigs, by the Bolt, and Ravens Duck by the piece.

WANTED,

A Journeyman Taylor, that well underſtands cutting and making all ſorts of men's Cloaths, and can take the whole Care of a Shop.——Enquire of Joſeph Clark of Canaan.

Wincheſter, Jan. 24. 1770.

THESE are to give notice, to the Proprietors of Wincheſter, that, have not paid their TAXES for 1769, to ſettle the ſame ſpeedily at my houſe, or they may expect trouble, from

DAVID AUSTIN, Collector.

HARTFORD:
Printed by Green and Watſon.

MONDAY Feb. 19, 1770. Numb 269.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

BOSTON, Feb. 8 1770.

YESTERDAY Morning arrived here the Brigantine Riſing-Liberty, Capt. Gannett, who left LONDON the 2nd of November, the Downs the 1ſt of December, Dover the 18th, and the Land's-End the 2d of January: Capt. Gannett bro't Prints to the 19th December, from which we have the following.

From the LONDON EVENING POST, December 19.

When the Complaints of a brave and powerful People are obſerved to increaſe in Proportion to the Wrongs they have ſuffered: When, inſtead of ſinking into Submiſſion, they are rouſed to Reſiſtance, the Time will ſoon arrive at which every inferior Conſideration muſt yield to the ſecurity of the Sovereign, and to the general Safety of the State. There is a Moment of Difficulty and Danger, at which Flattery and Falſhood can no longer deceive, and Simplicity itſelf can no longer be miſled. Let us ſuppoſe it arrived. Let us ſuppoſe a gracious, well intentioned Prince, made ſenſible at laſt of the great Duty he owes to his People, and of his own diſgraceful Situation; that he looks round him for Aſſiſtance, and aſks for no Advice, but how to gratify the Wiſhes, and ſecure the Happineſs of his Subjects. In theſe Circumſtances it may be Matter of curious Speculation to conſider, if an honeſt Man were permitted to approach a King, in what Terms he would addreſs himſelf to his Sovereign. Let it be imagined, no Matter how improbable that the firſt Prejudice againſt his Character is removed, that the ceremonious Difficulties of an Audience are ſurmounted, that he feels himſelf animated by the pureſt and moſt honorable affections to his King and Country, and that the great Perſon, whom he addreſſes, has Spirit enough to bid him ſpeak freely, and Underſtanding enough to liſten to him with Attention. Unacquainted with the vain Impertinence of Forms, he would deliver his Sentiments with Dignity & Firmneſs, but not without Reſpect.

S I R,

IT is the misfortune of your Life, and originally the cauſe of every reproach, and diſtreſs, which has attended your government, that you ſhould never be acquainted with the language of Truth, until you heard it in the complaints of your People. It is not, however, too late to correct the error of your education. We are ſtill inclined to make an indulgent allowance for the pernicious leſſons you received in your youth, and to form the moſt ſanguine hopes from the natural benevolence of your diſpoſition. We are far from thinking you capable of a direct, deliberate purpoſe to invade thoſe original Rights of your ſubjects on which all their civil and political Liberties depend. Had it been poſſible for us to entertain a ſuſpicion ſo diſhonourable to your character, we ſhould long ſince have adopted a ſtile of remonſtrance very diſtant from the humility of complaint. The doctrine inculcated by our laws, That the King can do no wrong, is admitted without reluctance. We ſeparate the amiable good-natured Prince from the folly and treachery of his ſervants, and the private virtues of the man from the vice of his government. Were it not for this juſt diſtinction, I know not whether your M——y's condition, or that of the E——h nation, would deſerve moſt to be lamented. I would prepare your mind for a favourable reception of truth, by removing every painful, offenſive idea of perſonal reproach. Your ſubjects, Sir, wiſh for nothing but that, as they are reaſonable and affectionate enough to ſeparate your perſon from your government, ſo you, in your turn, ſhould diſtinguiſh between the conduct which becomes the permanent dignity of a K——g, and that which ſerves only to promote the temporary intereſt and miſerable ambition of a Miniſter.

You aſcended the throne with a declared, and, I doubt not, a ſincere reſolution of giving univerſal ſatisfaction to your ſubjects. You found them pleaſed with the novelty of a young Prince, whoſe countenance promiſed even more than his words, and loyal to you not only from principle, but paſſion. It was not a cold profeſſion of allegiance to the firſt Magiſtrate, but a partial animated attachment to a favourite Prince, the native of their country. They did not wait to examine your conduct, nor to be determined by experience, but gave you a generous credit for the future bleſſings of your reign, and paid you in advance the deareſt tribute of their affections. Such, Sir, was once the diſpoſition of a people, who now ſurround your throne with reproaches and complaints. Do juſtice to yourſelf. Baniſh from your mind thoſe unworthy opinions with which ſome intereſted perſons have laboured to poſſeſs you. Diſtruſt the men, who tell you that the Engliſh are naturally light and inconſtant;—that they complain without a cauſe. Withdraw your confidence equally from all parties; from miniſters, favourites, and relations; and let there be one moment in your life in which you have conſulted your own underſtanding.

When you affectedly renounced the name of Engliſhman, believe me, Sir, you were perſuaded to pay a very ill-judged compliment to one part of your ſubjects, at the expence of another. While the natives of Scotland are not in actual rebellion, they are undoubtedly intitled to protection; nor do I mean to condemn the policy of giving ſome encouragement to the novelty of their affections for the Houſe of Hanover. I am ready to hope for every thing from their new born zeal, from the future ſteadineſs of their allegiance. But hitherto they have no claim to your favour. To honour them with a determined predilection and confidence, in excluſion of your Engliſh ſubjects, who placed your family, and, in ſpite of treachery and rebellion, have ſupported it upon the T——ne, is a miſtake too groſs, even for the unſuſpecting generoſity of youth. In this error we ſee a capital violation of the moſt obvious rules of policy and prudence. We trace it, however, to an original bias in your education, and are ready to allow for your inexperience.

To the ſame early Influence we attribute it, that you have deſcended to take a ſhare not only in the narrow Views and Intereſts of particular Perſons, but in the fatal Malignity of their Paſſions. At your Acceſſion to the Throne, the whole Syſtem of government was altered, not from Wiſdom or Deliberation, but becauſe it had been adopted by your Predeceſſor. A little, perſonal Motive of Pique and Reſentment was ſufficient to remove the ableſt Servants of the Crown; but it is not in this Country, Sir, that ſuch Men can be diſhonoured by the Frowns of a K——. They were diſmiſſed but could not be diſgraced. Without entering into a minuter Diſcuſſion of the Merits of the Peace, we may obſerve, in the imprudent Hurry with which the firſt Overtures from France were accepted, in the conduct of the Negociation, and terms of the Treaty, the ſtrongeſt Marks of that precipitate Spirit of Conceſſion, with which a certain Part of your Subjects have been at all times ready to purchaſe a Peace with the natural Enemies of this Country. On your Part we are ſatisfied that every Thing was honourable and ſincere, and if E——d was ſold to F——e, we doubt not that your M——y was equally betrayed. The Conditions of the Peace were Matter of Grief and Surprize to your Subjects, but not the immediate Cauſe of their preſent Diſcontent.

Hitherto, Sir, you had been ſacrificed to the Prejudices and Paſſions of others. With what Firmneſs will you bear the Mention of your own?

A Man, not very honourably diſtinguiſhed in the World commences a formal Attack upon your Favourite, conſidering nothing, but how he might beſt expoſe his Perſon and Principles to Deteſtation, and the national Character of his Countrymen to Contempt. The Natives of that Country, Sir, are as diſtinguiſhed by a peculiar Character as by your Majeſty's Favour. Like another choſen People, they have been conducted into the Land of Plenty, where they find themſelves effectually marked, and divided from Mankind. There is hardly a Period, at which the moſt irregular Character may not be redeemed. The Miſtakes of one Sex find a Retreat in Patriotiſm; thoſe of the other in Devotion. Mr. Wilkes brought with him into Politicks the ſame liberal Sentiments by which his private Conduct had been directed, and ſeemed to think that, as there are few Exceſſes, in which an Engliſh Gentleman may not be permitted to indulge, the ſame Latitude was allowed him in the choice of his political Principles, and in the ſpirit of maintaining them. ——I mean to ſtate, not intirely to defend his conduct. In the Earneſtneſs of his zeal he ſuffered ſome unwarrantable Inſinuations to eſcape him. He ſaid more than moderate Men would juſtify; but not enough to entitle him to the Honour of your M——y's perſo-al Reſentment. The Rays of R——l indignation, collected upon him, ſerved only to illuminate, and could not conſume. Animated by the Favour of the People on one Side, and heated by Perſecution on the other, his Views and Sentiments changed with his ſituation. Hardly ſerious at firſt, he is now an Enthuſiaſt. The coldeſt Bodies warm with Oppoſition, the hardeſt ſparkle in Colliſion. There is a holy miſtaken Zeal in Politics as well as Religion. By perſuading others, we convince ourſelves. The Paſſions are engaged, and create a material Affection in the Mind, which forces us to love the cauſe for which we ſuffer.——Is this a Contention worthy of a K——? Are you not ſenſible how much the Meanneſs of the Cauſe gives an Air of Ridicule to the ſerious Difficulties, into which you have been betrayed? The Deſtruction of one Man has been now, for many Years, the ſole Object of your Government; and if there can be any Thing ſtill more diſgraceful, we have ſeen, for ſuch an Object, the utmoſt Influence of the executive Power and every miniſterial Artifice exerted without Succeſs. Nor can you ever ſucceed, unleſs he ſhould be imprudent enough to forfeit the Protection of thoſe Laws, to which you owe your Crown; or unleſs your Miniſters ſhould perſuade you to make it a Queſtion of Force alone, and try the whole Strength of Government in Oppoſition to the People. The Leſſons he has received from Experience will probably guard him from ſuch Exceſs of Folly; and in your M——y's Virtues we find an unqueſtionable aſſurance that no illegal Violence will be attempted.

Far from ſuſpecting you of ſo horrible a Deſign, we would attribute the continued Violation of the Laws, and even this laſt enormous attack upon the vital Principles of the Conſtitution, to an ill adviſed, unworthy, perſonal reſentment. From one falſe ſtep you have been betrayed into another, and as the cauſe was unworthy of you, your miniſters were determined that the Prudence of the Execution ſhould correſpond with the Wiſdom and Dignity of the Deſign. They have reduced you to the Neceſſity of chooſing out of a Variety of Difficulties;——to a ſituation ſo unhappy, that you can neither do wrong without Ruin, nor right without Affliction. Theſe worthy Servants have undoubtedly given you many ſingular Proofs of their Abilities. Not contented with making Mr. Wilkes a Man of Importance, they have judiciouſly transferred the Queſtion from the Rights and Intereſts of one Man to the moſt important Rights and Intereſts of the People, and forced your ſubjects, from wiſhing well to the Cauſe of an Individual, to unite with him in their own. Let them proceed as they have begun, and your M——y need not doubt that the Cataſtrophe will do no Diſhonor to the conduct of the Piece.

The circumſtances to which you are reduced will not admit of a compromiſe with the Engliſh Nation. Undeciſive, qualifying Meaſures will diſgrace your Government ſtill more than open Violence, and, without ſatiſfying the People, will excite their Contempt. They have too much Underſtanding and Spirit to accept of an indirect Satisfaction for a direct Injury. Nothing leſs than a Repeal, as formal as the Reſolution itſelf, can heal the Wound, which has been given to the conſtitution, nor will any thing leſs be accepted. I can readily believe that there is an Influence ſufficient to recal that pernicious Vote. The H—— of —— undoubtedly conſider their Duty to the C——n as paramount to all other Obligations. To us they are only indebted for an accidental Exiſtence, and have juſtly transferred their Parents to their Benefactors;——from thoſe, who gave them Birth, to the Miniſter from whoſe Benevolence they derive the Comforts and Pleaſures of their political Life;——who has taken the tendereſt Care of their Infancy, relieves their Neceſſities without offending their Delicacy and has given them, what they value moſt, a virtuous Education. But if it were poſſible for their Integrity to be degraded to a condition ſo vile and abject, that, compared with it, the preſent Eſtimation they ſtand in is a State of Honour and Reſpect, conſider, Sir, in what Manner you will afterwards proceed. Can you conceive that the People of this Country will long ſubmit to be governed by ſo flexible a H—— of ——? It is not in the Nature of human Society, that any Form of Government, in ſuch circumſtances, can long be preſerved. In ours the general contempt of the People is as fatal as their Deteſtation. Such, I am perſuaded, would be the neceſſary Effect of any baſe conceſſion made by the preſent H—— of ——, and, as a qualifying Meaſure would not be accepted, it remains for you to decide whether you will, at any Hazard, ſupport a Set of Men, who have reduced you to this unhappy Dilemma, or whether you will gratify the united Wiſhes of the whole people of England by diſſolving the P——.

Taking it for granted, as I do very ſincerely, that you have perſonally no Deſign againſt the conſtitution, nor any Views inconſiſtent with the Good of your Subjects, I think you cannot heſitate long upon the Choice, which it equally concerns your Intereſt, and your Honor to adopt. On one Side, you hazard the affections of all your Engliſh ſubjects; you relinquiſh every hope of repoſe to yourſelf, and you endanger the Eſtabliſhment of your Family forever. All this you venture for no object whatſoever, or for ſuch an object as it would be an affront to you to name. Men of ſenſe will examine your conduct with Suſpicion; while thoſe who are incapable of comprehending to what Degree they are injured, afflict you with Clamours equally inſolent and unmeaning. Suppoſe it poſſible that no fatal Struggle ſhould enſue, you determine at once to be unhappy, without the hope of a compenſation either from Intereſt or Ambition. If an Engliſh K—— be hated or deſpiſed, he muſt be unhappy; and this perhaps is the only political truth, which he ought to be convinced of without Experiment. But if the Engliſh People ſhould no longer confine their Reſentment to a ſubmiſſive Repreſentation of their Wrongs; if, following the glorious Example of their Anceſtors, they ſhould no longer appeal to the Creature of the conſtitution, but to that high Being who gave them the Rights of Humanity, whoſe Gifts it were Sacrilege to ſurrender, let me aſk you, Sir, upon what Part of your Subjects would you rely for aſſiſtance?

The People of I——l——d have been uniformly plundered and oppreſſed. In Return, they give you every Day freſh Marks of their Reſentment. They deſpiſe the miſerable Governor you have ſent them, becauſe he is the Creature of Lord Bute; nor is it from any natural Confuſion in their Ideas, that they are ſo ready to confound the Original of a K—— with the diſgraceful Repreſentation of him.

The Diſtance of the colonies would make it impoſſible for them to take an active Concern in your Affairs, if they were as well affected to your government as they once pretended to be to your Perſon. They were ready enough to diſtinguiſh between you and your Miniſters. They complained of an act of the Legiſlature, but traced the Origin of it no higher than to the Servants of the C——n: They pleaſed themſelves with the Hope that their S——r——n, if not favourable to their Cauſe, at leaſt was impartial. The deciſive, perſonal Part you took againſt them, has effectually baniſhed that firſt Diſtinction from their Minds. They conſider you as united with your Servants againſt A——r——a, and know how to diſtinguiſh the S——r——n and a venal P——t on one Side, from the real Sentiments of the Engliſh People on the other. Looking forward to independence, they might poſſibly receive you for their K——g, but, if ever you retire to A——r——a, be aſſured they will give you ſuch a covenant to digeſt, as the Preſbytery of Scotland would have been aſhamed to offer to Charles the Second. They left their native Land in Search of Freedom, and found it in a Deſart. Divided as they are into a Thouſand Forms of Policy and Religion, there is one Point in which they all agree: They equally deteſt the Pageantry of a K——g, and the ſupercilious Hypocriſy of a Biſhop.

It is not then from the alienated Affections of I——l——d or A——r——a, that you can reaſonably look for Aſſiſtance; ſtill leſs from the People of E——l——d, who are actually contending for their Rights, and, in this great Queſtion, are Parties againſt you. You are not however deſtitute of every Appearance of Support: You have all the Jacobites, Nonjurors, Roman Catholics, and Tories of this Country, and all S——l——d without Exception. Conſidering from what Family you are deſcended, the choice of your Friends has been ſingularly directed; and truly, Sir, if you had not loſt the Whig Intereſt of England, I ſhould admire your Dexterity in turning the Hearts of your Enemies. Is it poſſible for you to place any Confidence in Men, who, before they are faithful to you, muſt renounce every Opinion, and betray every Principle, both in church and State, which they inherit from their Anceſtors, and are confirmed in by their Education? whoſe Numbers are ſo inconſiderable, that they have long ſince been obliged to give up the Principles and Language which diſtinguiſhed them as a Party, and to fight under the Banners of their Enemies? Their Zeal begins with Hypocriſy, and muſt conclude in Treachery. At firſt they deceive; at laſt they betray.

☞ We have omitted the remainder of the above, together with the cure for the bite of a Mad Dog, in order to make room for the following pieces relative to the meeting of the Merchants at Middletown which is to be attended to-morrow, till our next.

To the Printers in the Colony of Connecticut,

Pleaſe to inſert the incloſed in your papers, by which you will oblige a friend to the freedom of the preſs. No Merchant, but

A Lover of his Country.

To the Merchants and gentlemen who ſhall convene at Middletown, to conſult the welfare and good of this colony, agreable to notice given.

THE generous and patriotic ſacrifice of private intereſt, made by American merchants, by a non-importation of goods, in order to obtain a repeal of the revenue acts, I confeſs is truly great, and ought to be recorded to their immortal honor in the annals of America. But at the ſame time, I think in ſome of our colonies, they have exceeded the bounds which prudence and good policy would ſuggeſt.

I would therefore beg leave to ſuggeſt to you, what I believe every one of you will allow, that there is not a ſufficiency of wool in theſe northern colonies, for the clothing our numerous inhabitants with American manufactures; and there are ſome other neceſſary articles, which, for want of manufacturers, cannot be ſupplied within ourſelves. To what purpoſe then is it, for us to limit our importations to ſo narrow a compaſs, that a little time will oblige us to break through our moſt ſolemn engagements, which we have publiſh'd to the world, or diſtreſs ourſelves, for the want of thoſe very articles which we can by no means do without?

Moreover, can the greater part of the merchants ſupport themſelves without trade, i. e. a non-importation of goods, juſt as well as a farmer can live without land, or a ſufficient ſtock to manure and cultivate it?

Are not our poor the leaſt furniſhed with proper materials to manufacture their own clothing? If ſo, why would you injure yourſelves, to bring diſtreſs, firſt of all, upon our own poor? Had the colonies in general limitted themſelves to a non-importation of thoſe goods only, which were tax'd with a duty by the parliament of Great Britain, and to unneceſſary trinkets, and religiouſly abided by it, it would ſoon have ſtarv'd out thoſe blood ſuckers, the officers of the revenue, and ſufficiently manifeſted a juſt reſentment againſt ſo unjuſt taxation of Americans, by a Britiſh parliament. But I deſire to know upon what principles of true policy, the merchants in the neighboring governments proceed? how they can reconcile their practice with the laws of humanity, that becauſe a majority of the members of a Britiſh Parliament (who by the way are by places and penſions, bought and ſold, like pigs and geeſe in a market) have by miniſterial influence been pleas'd to tax ſome of the manufactures of Great Britain, that, therefore in revenge we will render our merchants bankrupts, diſtreſs our own poor for neceſſary cloathing, which they have not the materials to manufacture, & ſtarve one quarter part of the manufacturers of Great Britain, who are no more to blame than they are for the luxury & corruption of the Britiſh court.

But my reſentments againſt the popular ſentiments of my countrymen are more effectually rous'd, when I read or hear, of a general importation of Britiſh manufactures again taking place, as ſoon as the revenue acts, impoſing a trifling duty upon tea, glaſs, paper, painter's colours, &c. ſhall be repeal'd, while the court of admiralty courts, the greater evil, are unremoved——by which we are depriv'd of that invaluable privilege of a tryal by jury, and are ſubjected to the arbitrary and oppreſſive proceeding of the civil law, and the properties of Britiſh ſubjects, to the amount of many thouſands, oftentimes left to the deciſion of a ſingle judge of a court of admiralty, who is to be ſupported by the plunder of his fellow-ſubjects. When I conſider this, in competition with the money raiſed by the revenue acts, I view them in compariſon with the other, as the ſmall duſt of the ballance. Can Americans be conciliated by a repeal of the revenue acts, while the other, is to remain? Let the Britiſh parliament proceed to tax their own manufactures, Americans will be gainers——indeed, we have already been great gainers. It is not their taxing their own manufactures which we purchaſe from them, raiſes any reſentment in my mind, but it is their collecting in America, and that by a ſet of miſcreants, who are thereby render'd independant of the colonies, and made ſit tools of miniſterial oppreſſion and tyranny. If they will collect them in Great-Britain, let them tax to what degree they pleaſe. The legiſlature of this colony has ever been famous for a ſteady, uniform and manly procedure; Let the merchants follow their example, and [illegible] after the patriots of North Carolina who have agreed to import no Dutiable goods from Great Britain, nor even any Gaws & Trinkets, but ſuch things only as are of the greateſt Neceſſity. Import no cloaths from Great Britain, but what we can manufacture better among ourſelves; this will put the beſt Families upon a ſtrife to excel in our own Manufactures, but if the Britiſh Parliament will not let us drink Tea without paying the Officers of the Revenues 3d per lb. don't let your Reſentment move you not to import coarſe cloths to clothe the poor, from the inclemency of the ſeaſons, but import not one ſingle pound of tea from Great-Britain, for if we cannot obtain it without a duty, let us be content to live without it, as our anceſtors did before us, in all endeavours to ſave all the duties impoſed by the Revenue acts, & your country will bleſs you, and be ready to aſſiſt you under any difficulties you may meet with in your lawful [illegible], and as this continent is grown much [illegible] for the Weſt India trade, manufactures among ourſelves will become more and more neceſſary; therefore uſe every method you can think of to encourage them and inſtead of importing nails, import nail rods into all our towns, ſet the Smiths to manufacturing them, we ſhall more readily purchaſe than thoſe imported from abroad, although they ſhould even come at a higher price.

As I could not attend your meeting, I have preſum'd to ſend you theſe few hints, which your wiſdom will lead you to improve as you think they will beſt promote the good of your country, which I make no doubt you have at heart, and be aſſured gentlemen, that I am, No Merchant, but a Lover of my Country.

Meſſ. Green & Watſon,

Pleaſe to give the following a place in your next.

IT is a ſtrange thing, that nothing can be projected in this colony, let the project be never ſo good, and the ſcheme never ſo well calculated for the general good and advantage of the ſtate, trade & harmony of the colony, but that there will be ſome of thoſe, who find fault with every thing, except it be firſt hammer'd upon their own anvil. (Theſe ſort of people are vulgarly called grumbletonians) that is for the good of the public, and the tranquility of the colony. Of ſuch are thoſe who, without any foundation, of late inveigh, and ſpeak, and try all they can, to ſower the minds of the public in general, by every artifice in their power, againſt the intended meeting of the merchants, &c. of this colony, at Middletown, the 20th inſtant, for no other purpoſe but to regulate, give a ſpring, and encourage our fiſhing trade, manufactories, [illegible] to raiſe the price of their goods (which by the bye they have already ſold) and engroſs every thing into their own hands. Some others, that it is a political meeting, projected on purpoſe to make an overturn in the preſent happy adminiſtration in this colony. O ſtrange! what abſurd jealous notions thoſe ſort of grumbletonian people are poſſeſſed with! they are never at reſt, but always finding fault with either the church, ſtate or trade.

Theſe are therefore to certify, and ſatiſfy (if poſſible) all thoſe ſort of people, from good authority, that there never was, nor is there any ſcheme, ſtratagem or thing, intended at ſaid meeting (except) the regulation of trade, &c. as above.

A FREEMAN.

HARTFORD, Feb. 19.

We hear the inhabitants of Weathersfield, Farmington and Simsbury have confin'd and deſtroyed all their dogs, having diſcovered among many of them the ſymptoms of madneſs to a very high degree.——We alſo hear, that in the town of Pittsfield, upwards of twenty head of cattle, with a number of hogs, have, within a few days died there, by the bite of a mad dog.

WHEREAS his excellency Benning Wentworth, Eſq; late governor of the province of New-Hampſhire, purſuant to order receiv'd from his Majeſty, granted to a number of his Majeſty's liege ſubjects about 140 townſhips of land then lying in ſaid Hampſhire province, weſt of Connecticut river, and eaſt of the line of the province of New York, and north of the line of the Maſſachuſetts Bay government, which grants being made agreeable to ſaid orders from his Majeſty; in conſequence whereof conſiderable ſettlements have been made on ſaid land, by the proprietors to whom ſaid grants were made. And whereas by means of ſome repreſentations ſince made to his Majeſty, he has been pleas'd to annex the ſaid land to the province of N. York, ſince which the governor of New-York hath re-granted a conſiderable part of thoſe lands to other Perſons, to the excluſion of the original proprietors, under the ſaid governor Wentworth. And whereas the claimers under the governor of N. York have began to eject many of the ſettlers upon the ſaid Hampſhire governors grants and more ſuits are ſoon expected to be commenced againſt the ſaid Hampſhire claimants. And it being thought grievous, burthenſome and unjuſt, that any one ſhould be obliged to defend ſaid Hampſhire title alone, ſeeing ſo many are alike intereſted in the cauſe.——Therefore at a meeting of a conſiderable number of ſaid Hampſhire proprietors held in Sharon, in Litchfield county, on the 23d day of January 1770 it was agreed, that a general meeting of the ſaid Hampſhire claimants be warned by advertiſements in the public prints of this and the neighbouring governments, to be held on the 2d Thurſday of March next, at the houſe of Charles Burrall, Eſq; in Canaan, to conſult and agree upon the beſt method to defend ſaid Hampſhire title. Therefore all the ſaid Hampſhire proprietors are hereby deſired by themſelves or their agents, to attend ſaid meeting at the ſaid time and place for the ſaid purpoſe.

Whereas John Ledyard, Eſq; hath this day taken out Letters of Adminiſtration on the eſtate of Captain John Coleman, late of Hartford deceas'd, and repreſented the ſame inſolvent, and the honorable the Judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, thereupon appointed us the Subſcribers Commiſſioners to examine and adjuſt the claims of the ſeveral creditors to ſaid eſtate; and hath allowed eight months for the doing of the buſineſs. [illegible] attend the buſineſs of our ſaid appointment on the firſt mondays in every of the ſucceeding months, till the expiration of ſaid eight months at the office of Tho. Seymour, one of the Commiſſioners in ſaid Hartford.

Thomas Seymour,
Richard Edwards, } Commiſſioners
George Smith.
Hartford, Feb 15. 1770.

RAN-AWAY

From his maſter Epaphras Bull, of Hartford, in Connecticut, on the night of the 12th inſt. one WILLIAM DAWSON by name, who was aſſigned to him in ſervice, by the hon County Court for the County of New London, in November laſt, for the term of fifteen years, upon a proſecution and conviction then had againſt him for Theft. He is a perſon about thirty years old, five feet and about ſeven inches high thin viſage, but well ſett, of a light complexion, light hair, which he wore, grey eyes, of good addreſs, has been a traveller, and of Iriſh extract. Had on when he went off and carried with him a brown bearſkin ſurtout, ſhort green coat, black under veſt, black Mancheſter breeches, [illegible] ſhoes grey ſtockings, & a caſter hatt that has had a lace ſewed upon it. Whoever will apprehend and ſecure the Runaway, in any of his Majeſty's Goals on this continent, ſhall upon notice and application to his ſaid maſter, be intitled to the one half of the term of his ſaid ſervice. And as the ſaid Dawſon is ſuppoſed to be of the party and gang of villains that have long infeſted the roads and country from Philadelphia to New York, Connecticut, Rhode Iſland and Boſton, it is very probable he may ſoon alter his dreſs and appearance, and the public are deſired to be very vigilant in their obſervations, leaſt he eſcape their notice.

EPAPHRAS BULL.

Hartford, Feb 13.

For the CONNECTICUT COURANT.

(concluded)

A direct importation of the goods conſumed in this colony has ever been ſo trifling, when compared with the whole, as not to deſerve preſent computing. We have from our firſt ſettlement, been under the neceſſity of conſuming European goods, more or leſs; and our conſumption is too well known, to have been full equal to our ability in payment. On this important branch, we have for more than a century paſt, paid a proſit, a ballance to Boſton, New York, &c. greater I am bold to ſay, than all our country taxes, of every kind through that period, put together——ſhall I ſpend one thought on the laſt twenty years? An exact amount, it is impoſſible perhaps to obtain; but from the beſt intelligence, one hundred and fifty thouſand pounds annually, will be far from over rating on this ſum, a ballance muſt have aroſe, at the moſt moderate computation, of thirty two thouſand pounds lawful money per annum; in that term ſix hundred thouſand pounds.

The public expences of the colony, during that period are well known to exceed by much, thoſe of any other period, ſince the ſettlement of this colony, and the conſumption of goods bore proportion, yet when the difference of our bills, or medium of trade in that period, is brought into compariſon, with that of the twenty years preceding; the ballances will, notwithſtanding the ſmaller quantity of Engliſh goods conſumed, viz. from 1730 to 1750) be found ſtill greater againſt this colony.

A merchant in London, not perſonally acquainted with the circumſtances of this colony muſt conclude that from its next to no direct importation, no means for remittance were in our power, and therefore we contentedly put ourſelves, under the factorage of our neighbours Many good gentlemen among [illegible] of the ſame opinion. To one principal view in my writing. And to do it the more effectually, the pointing out ſome of the principal materials in our hands, I tho't it not improper. If the patience of the public permit, it will be purſued in a paper or two more. Meantime let commonſenſe (admitting the facts), judge, whether a colony that pays for its goods, at ſecond, or third hand, with an advance ſufficient to enrich thoſe intermediately concerned, can in the nature of the thing, be unable to pay for them directly, at their firſt purchaſe. X.

Will be ſold at publick VENDUE, on Monday the 12th day of March next, at the Houſe of Col. Ebenezer Marſh, Innholder in Litchfield, unleſs earlier diſpoſed of, by private ſale.

All the real eſtate of

Friend Grant, late of Lithfield deceaſed, viz. about one hundred acres near the Meeting Houſe, and ſundry other pieces of land lying in other parts of ſaid town. Said ſale will be made for Caſh in hand, or three months credit, with good ſecurity, and on intereſt.——Vendue to begin at 2 o'clock afternoon on ſaid day, and to be continued by neceſſary adjournment till the whole of ſaid eſtate is ſold——Further particulars may be known at ſaid time of ſale. Any perſon inclining to purchaſe before that time, may apply to ſtrator on ſaid Eſtate.

o.

---

er Adver-

cuſtomers that I did

uſineſs of ſupplying hat I ſtill hoped to ntage,——would now further inform them of the method, propoſed for the future. That I will ride every week through the year from Litchfield to Hartford, and ſo back on Tueſday of each week, having the paper conveniently lodged at a ſhop (which is to be immediately erected for that purpoſe) near the court houſe in Litchfield, where conſtant attendance will be given, and the greateſt care and pains taken, to have them forwarded with all poſſible diſpatch; and it is hoped and deſired, that all gentlemen that may be in Litchfield, from the ſeveral towns round the country, would be ſo kind as to call and take their papers; by which means it is hoped they will always be conveyed ſo expeditiouſly as to make the preſent alteration really beneficial; however, ſhould it ſo happen that no good opportunity preſents to ſend them within the fortnight, I hereby engage to convey them by a ſpecial poſt on purpoſe, in ſuch a manner as to accommodate every cuſtomer once a fortnight through the year——the papers to be afforded at the old price of Eight Shillings lawful money per year, which is but two ſhillings more than the printers have of their cuſtomers in Hartford, where the papers are taken from their office, excluſive of charge of riding. The above terms being ſo very favourable to the cuſtomers, cannot fail of being agreeable; But ſhould it happen that any perſon diſlike them, it is deſired that information may be given as ſoon poſſible, and their papers ſhall be ſtopped, otherwiſe it will be conſtrued into conſent, and they will be continued.

WILLIAM STANTON.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by the Printers hereof price Half a Piſtoreen,

Obſervations on a

Pamphlet entitled,

Remarks on Dr. GALE's Letter to The Hon. ELIPHALET DYER,

Is the reputed Author.

Shewing, from the Matters therein contained, that ſuch an Imputation is highly injurious to the Character of that worthy Patriot.

By Benjamin Gale, A. M.

BY Order of the Hon. Judge of Probates for the Diſtrict of Hartford, to be ſold at Publick Vendue, at the Houſe of Mr. David Bull, Innholder in ſaid Hartford, all the Real eſtate of Levi Jones, late of Hartford deceas'd (repreſented Inſolvent) By us the Subſcribers, on Thurſday the 1ſt of March next.

Daniel Goodwin, } Adminiſ-
Samuel Marſh } trators.

N. B. All perſons inclining to purchaſe at private ſale may do it by applying to the ſubſcribers before the Day of ſale.

THE proprietors of the Suſquehannah purchaſe, in January 1768, granted a tax of Two Dollars on each right, and alſo in April 1769 granted a tax of Two Dollars on each right, a conſiderable part of which taxes have been paid in, and improved for the Company's uſe, and at a meeting of ſaid company January 1770, it was agreed upon & voted, that ſuch proprietors as have hitherto neglected paying in ſaid taxes, that they pay them to the committee appointed to receive them by the firſt Day of March next; and ſuch as ſhall neglect to pay the ſaid taxes by that time, their Rights are declared by a Vote of ſaid company forfeited, and do revert to ſaid company.

By Order of the adjourned Meeting held January 10th, 1770.

SAMUEL GRAY, Clerk.

TO BE SOLD BY

PETER VERSTILLE,

At his Store in Weatherſfield, the following GOODS, at the loweſt Prices, for CASH only, viz.

CRimſon and other Broad Cloths Starlet Green & Blue Ratteens German Serges Cloth colour'd Kerſeys Red Blue and Brown Half Thicks Sagathys and Duroys Bazies Shalloons ſorted, Tammys, ditto. Durants, ditto. Calamincoes, do Camblets, Plain & figur'd Camblettees, Dorſettees, Hungerian Stuffs, Poplins, Miſſnetts, Dreſdinetts, Grezetts, Brolioes, Black Silk Crapes, ditto Bombazeens Black and Cloth colour'd Drawboys Brown and Olive colour'd Fuſtians, Brown and White Stay Buckrams, Black figur'd Laſtings Cotton Checks of all width's Red & White & Blue & White Stripe'd Hollands Black White Crimſon Green Blue and Purple Pelong Sattins. Shear and Thick Muſlins Cambricks and Lawns, Black and White Parſineats Black & White Plain Gauze Black & White figur'd ditto Black and Crimſon Capuchine Silk Men's & Women's Leather Gloves and Mitts Women's Silk Gloves and Mitts 3 4 & 7 8 Bed Ticking. A fine Aſſortment of Chints and Callicoes Black and Colour'd Barcelona Hankerchiefs Black Gauze Handkerchiefs Linnin and Silk ditto Black Cravats Black Crimſon and Scarlet Small Trimming Head Flowers, Necklaces and Ribbands, Silver Tippits and Turbands, Cap Wires, Velvet Maſks, Sattin Hatts & Bonnetts Black Ducape Cloth colour'd and changeable Luteſtrings, Brown Taffity, Martineco Luteſtrings, Silk and Cotton ditto, Padleſtick Fans, and other ditto. Damaſcus and Soſnas for Waiſtcoats, Black & White Laces, Silk Stay ditto, 3-4 7 8 and Yard Wide Hollands and Dowlas; Womens Shoes Ruſſia Linnin and Dipers White figur'd Dimothy's, Mens and Womens Thread Cotton and Worſted Hoſe, Black Blue Purple and cloth colour'd Breeches Patterns, Looking Glaſſes, Chaiſe and Hunting Whips, Bohe Tea, Coffee, Ginger, Allſpice, Nutmegs, Cloves, Cinnamon, Mens Caſtor and Felt Hatts, Flower Lawn & Kenting Handkerchiefs, Ferritts and Galloons, Shoe and Quality Bindings, Horn, Metals, Twiſt and Baſket Buttons, Beſt G. R. Wool and Cotton Cards, Beſt Kippen and Tillock Snuff, Allum Copperas, Brimſtone, Redwood, Logwood, Rice, &c. Sowing Silk Gross, Twill ſorted, Horn & Ivory Combs, Tapes, Pins Needles, Writing and Preſs Paper, Paper Hangings for Rooms, Pewter & Baſons, Shoe & Knee Buckles, Bellows, Nails and an Aſſortment of Hard Ware.

N. B. Ticklinburgs and Ozinbrigs, by the Bolt, and Ravens Duck by the piece.

This is to inform the PUBLIC, that

Cotton Murray,

Taylor from BOSTON,

HAS ſet up his Buſineſs at the Printing-Office in Hartford, where he makes all ſorts of Men's CLOATHS, both Leather and Cloth. Any gentlemen that pleaſe to favour him with their Cuſtom may depend upon being ſerved as well as in Boſton.

WANTED,

A Journeyman Taylor, that well underſtands cutting and making all ſorts of men's Cloaths, and can take the whole Care of a Shop.——Enquire of Joſeph Clark of Canaan.

ARTFORD: Printed by Green & Watſon.

MONDAY Feb. 26, 1770.

Numb. 278.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

[Remainder of the Piece ſign'd Junius, begun in our laſt.]

AS to the Scotch, I muſt ſuppoſe your Heart and Underſtanding ſo byaſſed, from your earlieſt Infancy, in their Favour, that nothing leſs than your own Misfortunes can undeceive you. You will not accept of the uniform Experience of your Anceſtors; and when once a man is determined to believe, the very Abſurdity of the Doctrine confirms him in his Faith. A bigotted Underſtanding can draw a Proof of attachment to the Houſe of H——n——r, from a notorious Zeal for the Houſe of Stuart, and find Earneſt of future Loyalty in former Rebellions. Appearances are however in their Favour; ſo ſtrongly indeed, that one would think they had forgotten that you are their lawful K——, and had miſtaken you for a Pretender to the C——n. Let it be admitted then that the Scotch are as ſincere in their preſent Profeſſions, as if you were in Reality not an Engliſhman, but a Briton of the North, you would not be the firſt P——e of their native Country againſt whom they have rebelled, nor the firſt whom they have baſely betrayed. Have you forgotten, Sir, or has your Favourite concealed from you that Part of our Hiſtory, when the unhappy Charles (and he too had private Virtues) fled from the open avowed Indignation of his Engliſh ſubjects, and ſurrendered himſelf at Diſcretion to the good Faith of his own countrymen. Without looking for Support in their Affections as Subjects, he applied only to their Honour, as Gentlemen, for protection. They received him, as they would your M——y, with Bows, and Smiles; and Falſehood, and kept him until they had ſettled their Bargain with the Engliſh Parliament: then baſely ſold their native K——to the Vengeance of his Enemies. This, Sir, was not the act of a few Traitors, but the deliberate Treachery of a Scotch Parliament repreſenting the Nation. A wiſe P——e might draw from it two Leſſons of equal Utility to himſelf. On one Side he might learn to dread the undiſguiſed Reſentment of a generous People, who dare openly aſſert their Rights, and who, in a juſt Cauſe, are ready to meet their So——n in the Field. On the other Side, he would be taught to apprehend ſomething far more formidable;——a fawning Treachery, againſt which no Prudence can guard, no Courage can defend. The inſidious Smiles upon the Cheek would warn him of the Canker in the heart.

From the Uſes, to which one Part of the army has been and frequently applied, you have ſome Reaſons to expect, that there are no Services they would refuſe. Here too we trace to Partiality of your Underſtanding. You take the Senſe of the Army from the conduct of the Guards, with the ſame Juſtice with which you collect the Senſe of the Repreſentatives of Miniſtry. Your Marching Regiments, Sir, will not make the guards their Example either as Soldiers or Subjects. They feel and reſent, as they ought to do, that invariable, undiſtinguiſhing Favour with which the guards are treated; while thoſe gallant Troops, by whom every hazardous every laborious Service is performed, are left to periſh in Garriſons abroad, or pine in Quarters at home, neglected and forgotten. If they had no ſenſe of the great original duty they owe their Country, their Reſentment would operate like Patriotiſm, and leave your cauſe to be defended by thoſe to whom you [illegible] laviſhed the rewards and honours of their [illegible] a foreigner. The Prætorian Bands, enervated [illegible] they were, had ſtill ſtrength [illegible] Populace; but [illegible] they marched to Rome and gave away the Empire.

On this Side then whichever way you turn your Eyes, you ſee nothing but Perplexity and Diſtreſs. You may determine to ſupport the very Miniſtry who have reduced your affairs to this deplorable ſituation: You may ſhelter yourſelf under the Forms of a P——t, and ſet your People at Defiance. But be aſſured, Sir, that ſuch a Reſolution would be as imprudent as it would be odious. If it did not immediately ſhake your Eſtabliſhment, it would rob you of your Peace of Mind forever

On the other how different is the Proſpect! How eaſy, how ſafe and honourable is the Path before you! The Engliſh Nation declare they are groſly injured by their Repreſentatives, and ſolicit your M—— to exert your lawful Prerogative, and give them an Opportunity of recalling a Truſt, which, they find, has been ſo ſcandalouſly abuſed You are not to be told that the Power of the H—— of ——— is not original, but delegated to them for the Welfare of the People, from whom they received it. A Queſtion of Right ariſes between the Conſtituent and the Repreſentative Body. By what Authority ſhall it be decided? Will your M—— interfere in a Queſtion in which you have properly no immediate Concern? It would be a Step equally odious and unneceſſary. Shall the Lords be called upon to determine the Rights and Privileges of the commons? They cannot do it without a flagrant Breach of the Conſtitution. Or will you refer it to the Judges? They have often told your Anceſtors, that the Law of Parliament is above them. What party then remains but to leave it to the people to determine for themſelves? They alone are injured; and ſince there is no ſuperiour Power to which the Cauſe can be referred, they alone ought to determine.

I do not mean to perplex you with a tedious Argument upon a Subject already ſo diſcuſſed, that Inſpiration could hardly throw a new Light upon it. There are, however, two Points of View, in which it particularly imports your M—— to conſider the late proceedings of the H—— of ———. By depriving a ſubject of his Birthright, they have attributed to their own Vote an Authority equal to an act of the whole Legiſlature; and, tho' perhaps not with the ſame motives, have ſtrictly followed the example of the long Parliament, which firſt declared the Regal Office uſeleſs, and ſoon after, with as little ceremony, diſſolved the Houſe of Lords. The ſame pretended power which robs an Engliſh Subject of his birthright, may rob an Engliſh K—— of his c——n. In another View, the Reſolution of the H—— of ——, apparently not ſo dangerous to your M——, is ſtill more alarming to your People. Not contented with diveſting one Man of his Right, they have arbitrarily conveyed that Right to another. They have ſet aſide a Return as illegal, without daring to cenſure thoſe Officers who were particularly apprized of Mr. Wilkes's Incapacity not only by the Declaration of the H——, but expreſsly by the Writ directed to them, and who nevertheleſs returned him as duly elected. They have rejected the Majority of Votes, the only criterion by which our laws judge of the ſenſe of the people; they have transfered the rights of election from the collective to the repreſentative Body; and by theſe acts, taken ſeperately or together, they have eſſentially altered the original conſtitution of the H—— of ———. Verſed, as your M—— undoubtedly is in the Engliſh Hiſtory, it cannot eaſily eſcape you, how much it is your Intereſt, as well as your Duty to prevent one of the three Eſtates from encroaching upon the province of the other two, or aſſuming the Authority of them all. When once they have departed from the great conſtitutional Line, by which all their Proceedings ſhou'd be directed, who will anſwer for their future Moderation? Or what aſſurance will they give you that, when they have trampled upon their Equals, they will ſubmit to a Superior? Your M—— may learn hereafter, how nearly the Slave and tyrant are allied.

Some of your council, more candid than the reſt, admit the abandoned Profligacy of the preſent H—— of ——, but oppoſe their Diſſolution upon an opinion, I confeſs not very unwarrantable, that their Succeſſors would be equally at the diſpoſal of the Treaſury. I cannot perſuade myſelf that the nation will have profited ſo little by Experience. But if that opinion were well founded, you might then gratify our wiſhes at an eaſy rate, and appeaſe the preſent clamour againſt your government without offering any material Injury to the favourite cauſe of corruption.

You have ſtill an honourable part to act. The affections of your Subjects may ſtill be recovered. But, before you ſubdue their hearts, you muſt gain a noble Victory over your own. Diſcard thoſe little perſonal reſentments which have too long directed your public conduct. Pardon this man the remainder of his Puniſhment, and if reſentment ſtill prevails, make it, what it ſhould have been long ſince, an act of Mercy, but contempt. He will ſoon fall back into his natural Station—a ſilent Senator, and hardly ſupporting the weekly Eloquence of a News-Paper. The gentle Breath of Peace wou'd leave him on the Surface, neglected and unremoved. It is only the Tempeſt that lifts him from his place.

Without conſulting your Miniſter, call together your whole council Let it appear to the Public that you can determine and act for yourſelf. Come forward to your People. Lay aſide the wretched Formalities of a K——, and ſpeak to your Subjects with the ſpirit of a Man, and in the language of a gentleman. Tell them you have been fatally deceived. The Acknowledgement will be no diſgrace, but rather an honour to your underſtanding. Tell them you are determined to remove every cauſe of complaint againſt your government; that you will give your confidence to no man who does not poſſeſs the confidence of your Subjects; and that you will leave it to themſelves to determine, by their conduct at a future Election, whether or know it be in Reality the general ſenſe of the Nation, that their rights have been arbitrarily invaded by the preſent H—— of ———, and the Conſtitution betrayed. They will then do juſtice to their repreſentatives and to themſelves.

Theſe Sentiments, Sir, and the Stile they are conveyed in, may be offenſive perhaps, becauſe they are new to you. Accuſtomed to the Language of courtiers, you meaſure their Affections by the vehemence of their Expreſſions; and when they only praiſe you indirectly, you admire their Sincerity. But this is not a Time to trifle with your Fortune. They deceive you, Sir, who tell you that you have many Friends, whoſe affections are founded upon a Principle of perſonal attachments. The firſt Foundation of friendſhip is not the Power of conferring Benefits, but the equality with which they are received, and may be returned. The Fortune which made you a K——, forbad you to have a Friend. It is a Law of nature which cannot be violated with impunity. The miſtaken P——e, who looks for friendſhip,

L O N D O N, dated Salem in New-England, a town, in either Europe or America, also the ſpirit of oeconomy for manu- to the chief part of manufactories in a

The following is part of a letter August 23, 1769. It is amazing to ſee the prudence and failure, which prevails through the few years our wealthieſt men now ſent to a tradeſman in London, "Providence has ſo ordered it, that wiſdom of the people in theſe provinces, country. Unleſs the oppoſite [illegible] appear in homeſpun cloth, and this a gentleman who went over I am now ſettled in this town, as plea- in their country relative to the [illegible] appealed as [illegible] all generally more and [illegible] as I have ever ſeen for few mea-will find a favourite, and in that favourite the Ruin of his affairs.

The People of E—gl—d are loyal to the house of H—ver not from a vain preference of one Family to another, but from a Conviction that the establiſhment of that Family was neceſſary to the ſupport of their civil and religious liberties. This, Sir, is a principle of Allegiance equally ſolid and rational, fit for Engliſhmen to adopt, and well worthy of your M——y's encouragement. We cannot long be deluded by nominal diſtinctions. The name of Stu—t, of itſelf, is only contemptible; armed with the ſovereign authority their principles were formidable. The prince, who imitates their conduct ſhould be warned by their example; and while he plumes himſelf upon the ſecurity of his title to the crown ſhould remember, that as it was acquired by one revolution, it may be loſt by another.

JUNIUS.

In a London Paper of December 26 is part of an anſwer of MODESTUS to JUNIUS, — the following is an Extract.

——Not contented with arraigning your government falſly, this ſower of ſedition thinks little to attack your M—'s character. I wave the conſideration of that ſacredneſs which ſurrounds the perſons of Kings. To Junius nothing is ſacred: But I congratulate your M— on that inſolence of virtue, which forces him to ſeek, in an unnatural and abſurd conſtruction, that ground of evil which the whole tenour of your life leaves him deſtitute of, in fact ——After mentioning the demand of a Pardon for W—kes, Modeſtus adds, ——— but this puniſhment, tho' it is rather a mock on juſtice than a puniſhment, your M——— is treated is ordered to remit, and you are menaced if you do not. You are accuſed of harbouring a mean reſentment againſt a contemptible wretch, and of adopting the reſentment of your Miniſters. You have heard that this man is ſo much beneath your notice, that to puniſh him is degrading your M———. In the intercourſes of life private perſons often put up with groſs inſults from their inferiors on motives of this nature; but a King cannot act upon ſuch principles: and the argument made uſe of to perſuade your M——— to pardon, is an unſurmountable diſſuaſive from pardoning. This is not a caſe in which you are perſonally concerned, though your ſacred perſon was inſulted. It ſtrikes at the very root of good government. And if ſuch crimes are ſuffered to paſs, there is an end of ſociety. Who is there that needs be inſtructed in this? For what are Magiſtrates eſtabliſhed, rank, reſpect, and ſubordination preſerved? If the loweſt can, with impunity, revile, and falſly revile the Higheſt, it were better to be ſuch a man as Wilkes, than the Monarch of a great and generous nation. Had your M—— been born in a private ſtation, and the ſame malice directed againſt you, your ſword would have done you juſtice on the miſcreant, unleſs a regard for religion and the laws of the land reſtrained you. Shall not then that law avenge the head of the ſtate for an injury by which the ſtate, and every individual in it is diſgraced? I, in the name of your ſubjects, for ourſelves, for our poſterity, and for all we hold dear, requeſt, implore, nay demand, that you will not ſully the faireſt flower of your crown, by extending your pardon to a crime, which in its conſequences, may involve us all in ruin, and which has already produced very fatal effects; and we profeſs our deep ſorrow, that the puniſhment inflicted by law has been ſo little adequate to the offence. From that fatal ſource ſprings the daring inſult which has been offered your M—— to day.

In the ſame ſtyle of menace by which your M—— is commanded to pardon Wilkes, you are ordered to diſſolve P———t becauſe the H. of C. judged him unworthy to ſit among them. I will not urge the clowniſh and cruel impropriety of ſeeking from you a vengence on thoſe who ſhewed themſelves ſenſible of outrages offered to you, and in behalf of a perſon who offered them. The indecency is glaring; but becauſe I am certain it [illegible] upon mean motives of perſonal [illegible] I ſhall only conſider it as a political [illegible] mean with reſpect to its effects [illegible] aſſertion of right in the H—of C. to act as they have done, it has been ſifted to the uttermoſt; and every man's opinion, who is in a condition to form one, is already fixed. My own is eſtabliſhment beyond the poſſibility of a doubt. It is in favour of the deciſion. The arguments uſed to perſuade your M— to diſſolve the Parliament are threatening of the hatred, the contempt, nay the hoſtile intentions of your people againſt you. You are repreſented as already fallen from the throne, and ſeeking in every country and corner protection and refuge; and to complete the picture, every door is ſhut againſt you, expelled by the Engliſh, rejected by the Iriſh, betrayed by the Scotch and in America perhaps received but received under ſuch conditions as you could not ſubmit to.

Kings of England have been before now reduced to the greateſt part of theſe hard alternatives—but never in ſuch a cauſe. A King of England whoſe intentions are upright, whoſe adminiſtration is firm, who ſupports his parliament, and is ſupported by them, has nothing to fear from party clamour. The bulk of the nation will always remain true to their own intereſts, and on no ſlight occaſion will lend a hand to their own ruin, by unhinging the conſtitution. There have been times of delirium when even the wiſe were infected; but there is a wide difference between going a criminal length upon grounds, and going the ſame criminal length upon no grounds. There is a wide difference between a King who flies in the face of his parliament, and one who ſupports it. Between a people juſt emerging from barbariſm, and become ſenſible of the errors of a Gothic and imperfect conſtitution; and a people who enjoy a perfect and ſtable conſtitution, in which the rights of the King, and the liberties of the ſubject, are accurately defined; between a people heated with religious phrenzy, and a people who, to ſay no more would not willingly become martyrs to any ſect; and to ſum up all, there is a mighty difference between a King who pretended to include every thing within the bounds of prerogative, and one whom a part of his ſubjects would force to uſe his prerogative for the deſtruction of that Liberty which they pretend to ſupport.

For were your M——— diſpoſed to take advantage of the phrenzy of thoſe who invite you to diſſolve the P———t, ſuch a ſtep would certainly end in an acceſſion of power to the crown; indeed ſhould your intention point that way, you would have a very different party to encounter; A party of ſome more weight in the ſtate than thoſe, who by calling themſelves the Supporters of the Bill of Rights, have thrown deriſion upon a reſpectable thing, but there is no occaſion to argue upon a ſuppoſition which it would be injurious to you to make. You wiſh for no more power than the conſtitution gives you, will be maintained in the exerciſe of that, not by one part of your dominions or the other, not by this body of men but by the beſt and moſt reſpectable, the moſt numerous, the wiſeſt and the braveſt of all.

And what are theſe petitions for the diſſolution of P——t, under the ſhadow of which this madman has dared to threaten your M——y? Do we not know by whom, and what means, they have been promoted? Are not they the objects of ridicule, even to thoſe who obtain them to thoſe who ſign them, and to thoſe who preſent them at your throne? Yet were they in ſuppoſition as ſerious as they are ludicrous; in fact, what proportion do the petitioners bear to the body of your ſubjects? This which the faction diſplays as an argument of its ſtrength, is a convincing proof of its weakneſs. Conſidering the activity and arts that have been uſed, the petty intereſt that have conſpired, and many other circumſtances, it does honour to the nation that their number is not double; an honour which I hope it will preſerve, notwithſtanding the efforts of a faction, which in a headlong eagerneſs to get into power, ſcruples not to hazard the kingdom's ſafety; and notwithſtanding the invectives of Junius, who after having exhauſted all the food which the characters of ſubjects could afford to his malevolence, dares to raiſe his ſlanderous voice againſt the ſacred character of his S———.

MODESTUS.

London Articles not before publiſhed.

LONDON.

Nov. 13. We are informed by a Gentleman, who is very curious, as well as accurate in his calculations, that within theſe two years the Patriotic Priſoner has received in preſents to the value of 6700l. abſtracted from eatables and drinkables, which may be very moderately computed at 300l. more, which may in all the ſum of 7000l. this, together with the 1200l, per annum, allowed him by the Supporters of the Bill of Rights affixes his annual income at 4100l.

Nov. 14. We are now told with a melancholy air of certainty, that the A———n have on the Tapis to appoint a general Licenſer for the Preſs, in conſequence of the extravagant lengths to which political controverſies have for ſome time paſt been carried on in the News-papers; but, a meaſure of this nature, though perhaps in ſome reſpects ſalutary, muſt be ſo generally odius, that there is little probability of their being able to carry it into execution.

A right reverend gentleman lately embarked for America, has it is ſaid ſome very important commiſſions to execute in that country, having long been not only the Paſtor but Politician, of many provinces beyond the Atlantic.

London, Nov. 18. This Morning is publiſhed, Price 1s. A conciſe, hiſtorical View of the Difficulties, Hardſhips, and Perils which attended the Planting and progreſſive Improvements of NEW-ENGLAND. With a particular Account of its long and deſtructive Wars, expenſive expeditions, &c. By AMOS ADAMS, A. M. Paſtor of the firſt Church of Roxbury. Reprinted for E. and C. Dilly, in the Poultry.

Nov. 18. A Lady of Conſiderable eminence in the literary World, has, we hear, received the moſt cordial invitations from beyond the Atlantic; which, it is thought, ſhe will as cordially accept, and gratify thoſe ſons and daughters of Liberty with an opportunity of converſing with ſo extraordinary a genius, ſome time the enſuing ſpring.

Nov. 16. We are well informed, that a new ſyſtem of regulation for the American Colonies has been for ſome time under conſideration, and will be laid before the Parliament as ſoon as they meet. This plan has been already communicated to ſeveral of the principal Merchants trading to America, & met with their approbation.

Such is the prodigious hardſhip of the preſent times, that a Peruke-maker, not far from the Strand, at the chriſtening of a new-born ſon on Sunday evening, gave a ſupper that came to ſeven guineas; and even apologized for the ſcantineſs of his proviſions to the Company.

We are credibly informed that the bounty granted on the exportation of manufactured leather, will be taken off next ſeſſions for lowering the duty on ſealed ſkins, &c. not anſwering the intended meaning of the ſaid act.

The following extraordinary production may be depended on as authentic—Three Dutch Potatoes, ſent by the late Dr. Templeman to Mr. Reynolds, of Adiſham, have actually produced this ſeaſon 351 pounds.

(Margent)

Briſtol Feb. 4. In the Brice, Capt. Muir, which ſailed this week, went Sir William Draper, on his paſſage to South-Carolina.

Various are Reports about Sir W. D—r's Voyage to South-Carolina; ſome ſay, that he is ſo ſtung by Junius's Letters, that this Report is induſtriouſly propagated, to put a ſtop to futher Publications; others, that he is going to purchaſe a large Tract of Land in Eaſt-Florida, and that he intends conſulting with Denys Rollie, Eſq; Member of Parliament for Barnſtaple, who is now on the ſpot: and ſome ſay, his Voyage is determined on to prevent an examination into the Manillia Ranſom at the Meeting of the Parliament. [illegible]

From the NEW-YORK GAZETTE.

The MODE of ELECTIONS conſidered.

"IN Pennſylvania Government, the Repreſentatives are choſen by Ballot, and each elector is furniſhed with a Ticket, by ſome one or other of the Friends, Agents, Attornies, Solicitors or Acquaintance of each Candidate; and every Elector that is ſo unfortunate as to be under an obligation, indebted to, or in the power of any of the Candidates, their ſaid Friends, Agents, Attornies, Solicitors, or Acquaintance, is as much compelled to vote againſt his inclination as if he had voted Viva Voce.

When ignorant Men become poſſeſſed of property and Influence, they are a Scourge to a Community; being generally biaſſed by the crafty and ſubtil Arguments uſually urged by Lawyers, Clerks, and men who act under a Cloak of Religion, without any regard either to the Welfare of their Fellow Citizens, or the true Intereſt of their Country.

The Germans, who are very numerous in that Government, as well as this, being of Foreign Birth and Education, are in general ſo unacquainted with our Language, that they are incapable of knowing whoſe Name is inſerted in the Ticket they deliver, & are thereby frequently the Means of Electing Perſons whom they deteſt in their Hearts; of which there was a ſtriking Inſtance a few Years ago, in the Government aforeſaid; when the Presbyterian Party gained their Election for Repreſentatives for the City and County of Philadelphia, from the Friends and their Connections.

The Mode of Election in Connecticut, is likewiſe by Ballot, in the following Manner ——Each Town in that Colony returns two Deputies (as they term them) to ſerve in General Aſſembly: one of whom is firſt elected, by having more Votes than all the other Candidates put together, and the ſecond is afterwards elected in like Manner; and the man who can put on the greateſt appearance of Sanctity, though deſtitute of every other qualification neceſſary to conſtitute a good Member, is generally choſen. And though it is pretended that no Means are uſed to influence the Electors, by open Houſes or otherwiſe, yet I deny that to be the Caſe, and inſiſt upon it, that the Friends of the Candidates not only make uſe of the means aforeſaid, but alſo of threats and other compulſory methods to bring about the completion of their Deſigns. In order to evince this, I have only to obſerve in the firſt place, that at the time of, and immediately after every Election, all the Taverns and Ale-Houſes within the town, where ſuch Election is held, are open to every perſon that chooſes to go to them; who having eat and drank what they pleaſe, go off without any Queſtions being aſked, and leave their Reckoning unpaid; by which it is obvious, that either this expence muſt be defrayed by the candidates, or the Tavern keepers loſe their money, and I believe few will think the latter to be the caſe. ——In the ſecond Place—one of the gentlemen who repreſented the town of Wethersfield, in the Autumn of 1768, tho' a man of Abilities and unblemiſhed Reputation, and who hath ſerved his country faithfully, yet loſt his Election in the Way following, by the ſuperior Influence and overbearing Power of the Friends of his competitor.——From whence it clearly follows, that the mode of Election hitherto uſed in this Government (whereby every Elector is at Liberty to declare the Sentiments of his Heart publickly, which is the glory of the Britiſh conſtitution) is preferable to either of thoſe beforementioned.

J. W a Squinter on public Affairs.
New York, December 29. 1769.

(An anſwer to the above will be in our next)

CONNECTICUT.

MIDDLETOWN, February 27.

The Merchants of this colony, agreeable to notice given, convened here laſt Tueſday, and on Wedneſday morning opened their meeting in the Town Houſe Chamber, and proceeded on buſineſs. They came into a number of Votes and Reſolves, which were ordered to be publiſhed, and among others to form a ſociety for the promoting Arts, Agriculture, Manufactures, Trade and Commerce, to encourage the laudable deſign, a ſubſcription was opened, and in a few hours, more than One Hundred pounds lawful money was generouſly given, copies of the ſubſcription were ordered to be diſperſed thro' the colony, with a view to obtain further donations, and as the plan propoſed, is truly patriotic, and diſintereſted, it is hoped will meet with ſucceſs. After the buſineſs was finiſhed, the meeting was adjourned to the 2d day of May next, to be attended at Hartford.

The meeting was open, and a number of reſpectable gentlemen of all ranks attended to hear their debates, who appeared highly ſatisfied with the proceedings: The buſineſs was carried on with great unanimity and diſpatch, and the whole conducted with decency and good order.

AT a Meeting of the major Part of the Merchants and Traders of the Colony of Connecticut, and a Number of the reſpectable Inhabitants convened at Middletown, purſuant to an Advertiſement lately inſerted in the public News Papers of this Colony, upon the 20th of February, 1770.

GURDON SALTONSTALL, Eſq;
In the Chair.

The ſeveral Matters mentioned in ſaid Advertiſement were diſtinctly propoſed, & calmly diſcuſſed, and conſidered; in conſequence whereof the following Votes and Reſolutions were paſſed and concluded upon, VIZ.

THIS meeting taking into conſideration the unmerited diſtreſs which the people of America in general, and the inhabitants of this colony in particular already ſuffer, and are further expoſed to, from the opperation of ſeveral acts of parliament impoſing duties on tea, paper, glaſs and painter's colours, for the purpoſe of raiſing a revenue in America———And that it hath been the opinion of many of the people of Great Britain and America, that, to withhold our importation of goods from Great Britain was, and is the moſt likely means (under heaven) of averting the dangers and evils we are threatened with, and that the merchants and others, in moſt of the colonies, and in many trading towns in this colony, have come into agreements and meaſures for that purpoſe; which agreements in the towns this colony not being exactly ſimilar, by reaſon of which difficulties may ariſe——Now, to the intent that we may uniformely exert our endeavours, with our ſiſter colonies, in preſerving the juſt, the natural rights, liberty and welfare of America in general, and this colony in particular Therefore Voted and Agreed.

That we will not import, or cauſe to be imported, directly or indirectly, any goods, wares or merchandize from Great Britain, until the aforeſaid acts of parliament, impoſing duties for the purpoſe of raiſing a revenue, are repealed—the following articles excepted, viz

Powder and ſhot, German ſteel, hemp and duck, wool cards, card wire, tacks, implements for the clothier's trade, fiſhhooks and lines, tin plates, and hatters trimmings, ſaltpetre, ſickles, barr lead, pins and needles, copperas and allom, brimſtone, ſea coal, ſheep ſhears, ſhoemaker's awls and tacks, ſheet copper, apothecary's druggs, paper-moulds, books, chalk and ſalt. Alſo, Voted and Agreed,

That we will not have any dealings with the inhabitants of the neighbouring colonies that do not accede to, or ſtrictly adhere to the non importation agreements of the merchants that have or ſhall be entered into in the ſame, and if any perſon or perſons in this colony ſhall violate, or act contrary to this agreement, we will withdraw all correſpondence in trade from him or them.——And we do further engage, and bind ourſelves not to raiſe the price on any of our goods, during the continuance of this agreement.

And whereas the incouragement of arts, agriculture, manufactures, trade and commerce have ever been and are of the utmoſt importance to every ſtate; and we conceive will be peculiarly ſo to this colony, under the preſent circumſtances, therefore voted and agreed——That we will recommend it to the gentlemen preſent, and all others within this colony; lovers of their country, and friends to its happineſs, proſperity and glory that they form themſelves into a voluntary ſociety for the purpoſe of promoting & extending the arts, agriculture, manufactures, trade and commerce of this colony, and for collecting and diffuſing uſeful knowledge in order for attaining the great end aforeſaid.

That a committee be appointed, and impowered to take the ſubſcriptions of ſuch gentlemen, in the ſeveral parts of this colony as ſhall think proper to join the ſame, and to receive the donations that may be offered by ſuch as chooſe to advance the ſame.

2d. That every perſon, that ſhall ſubſcribe and pay twenty ſhillings into the ſtock of the ſociety, ſhall be admitted to a vote in the meeting of ſaid ſociety, at all times hereafter.

3d. That a meeting of ſaid ſociety be held at Hartford, on the 2d day of May next, where premiums may be agreed upon and publiſhed, for the firſt, ſecond and third greateſt quantity of Wheat, raiſed on four acres of land—The firſt, ſecond and third greateſt quantity of Flax on one Acre——The firſt, ſecond and third, greateſt quantity of Wool, raiſed and ſhearn from twenty Sheep——To the firſt hundred pair ſtockings wove, or the firſt ſtocking loom erected in this colony ——For the encouraging of nail making—For the firſt, ſecond and third greateſt number of yards of woolen cloth made in a certain term, flannels excepted———and for ſuch other articles as they ſhall ſee fit to encourage, and as their ſtock will enable them.

And whereas it appears to us, that great & extenſive benefits, may, and will reſult from the manufacture of Flour, and opening the Cod and Whale fiſhery, and that the ſame cannot be effected without the aid of the legiſlature, Therefore voted that the committee appointed by this meeting for that purpoſe, humbly repreſent the ſame to the general aſſembly in may next, and implore their interpoſition therein, and with all ſubmiſſion to the wiſdom of that reſpectable body, to propoſe, that a bounty of ſixpence per hundred, be given on all flour manufactured in this colony, and exported out of the ſame, in bottoms belonging to this colony, to any market ſouth of Pennſylvania, or eaſt of this colony. And to raiſe a fund to ſatisfy, and diſcharge ſuch bounty there be a duty of ſixpence per pound, on all tea conſumed in this colony.

And that all veſſels owned in this colony, and employed in the cod and whale fiſhery, for the ſpace of four months, in any year, be free from any tax; and left out of the general liſt, for that year in which they are ſo employed. And that the perſons employed in ſaid, fiſhery, for ſaid term, ſhall be exempted from a poll tax, and from working at high ways, for the year in which they ſhall be ſo employed.

And conſidering the extreme ſcarcity of caſh in this colony, and the many frauds, and inconveniencies conſequent, upon notes of hand, not being negotiable here. Therefore voted, and and agreed, that all the members preſent, in this meeting, will uſe all proper means, to obtain at the enſuing aſſembly, an act paſſed to make notes of hand negotiable with us, under proper regulations, as they are in Great-Britain, and in ſome of our ſiſter colonies. Alſo to endeavour to obtain proper encouragement, for the erecting a glaſs houſe, for making window glaſs, &c. in this colony.

Publiſhed by order of the Meeting.
SILAS DEANE, Clerk of ſaid Meeting.
February 23 1770.

WE the Subſcribers being appointed Commiſſioners, to receive and examine the claims of the creditors of the eſtate of John Lee Sherman, late of Saliſbury in Litchfield County deceas'd. We ſhall attend that buſineſs at the Dwelling Houſe, of capt. Samuel Moore, Innholder in ſaid Saliſbury, on the firſt and ſecond Tueſday's in April next, from two of the clock in the afternoon of ſaid days until ſeven.

Joſhua Jewel, } Commiſſioners.
Thomas Chittenden. }

Febr. 20. 1770. 279

WHereas there is a conſiderable number of the inhabitants of the town of Hartford, that have not paid their Country RATES to me the ſubſcriber. Thoſe on the Weſt ſide of the River, are hereby notified and deſired, to meet me at the Dwelling-Houſe of Mr. Moſes Butler, innholder in Hartford on Tueſday the 13th day of March next, and ſettle the ſame, as they would avoid having their names put into this paper, or bare the whole penalty of the law exacted. And thoſe on the Eaſt ſide of the River, are deſired to meet me at my own houſe on Thurſday the 15th day of ſaid March, & ſettle their Rates, or expect immediate trouble.

(Margent)

LEMUEL WHITE, Collector.
Hartford, Feb. 21, 1770.

Lately Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Printing Office in Hartford.

VISIBLE Saints lawful Right to Communion in Christian Sacraments, Vindicated. (In [illegible] Anſwer to a Sermon, [illegible] novem in New Jerſy, Nov. 4th, 1764. By the Rev. Jacob Green, A. M. In a Letter to a Friend. In three parts.
By GEORGE BECKWITH, A.M.
Paſtor of a Church in Lyme, Connecticut.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

and deſired, to meet me at the Dwelling-Houſe of Mr. Moſes Butler, innholder in Hartford on Tueſday the 13th day of March next, and ſettle the ſame, as they would avoid having their names put into this paper, or bare the whole penalty of the law exacted. And thoſe on the Eaſt ſide of the River, are deſired to meet me at my own houſe on Thurſday the 15th day of ſaid March, & ſettle their Rates, or expect immediate trouble. LEMUEL WHITE, Collector.

Hartford, Feb. 21, 1770.

Lately Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Printing Office in Hartford.

VISIBLE Saints lawful Right to Communion in Chriſtian Sacraments, Vindicated. (In Anſwer to a Sermon, noven in New Jerſy, Nov. 4th, 1764. By the Rev. Jacob Green, A. M. In a Letter to a Friend. In three parts.

By GEORGE BECKWITH, A.M.

Paſtor of a Church in Lyme, Connecticut.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

Will be ſold at publick VENDUE, on Monday the 12th day of March next, at the Houſe of Col. Ebenezer Marſh, Innholder in Litchfield, unleſs earlier diſpoſed of, by private ſale

All the real eſtate of

Friend Grant, late of Lithfield deceaſed, viz. about one hundred acres near the Meeting Houſe, and ſundry other pieces of land lying in other parts of ſaid town. Said ſale will be made for Caſh in hand, or three months credit, with good ſecurity, and on intereſt.——Vendue to begin at 2 o'clock afternoon on ſaid day, and to be continued by neceſſary adjournment till the whole of ſaid eſtate is ſold.——Further particulars may be known at ſaid time of ſale. Any perſon inclining to purchaſe before that time, may apply to Oliver Wolcott, Adminiſtrator on ſaid Eſtate.

Litchfield, 5 Feb. 1770.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by the Printers hereof price Half a Piſtareen.

Obſervations on a

Pamphlet entitled,

Remarks on Dr. GALE's Letter to

J. H. Eſq; Sign'd E. D of which

The Hon. ELIPHALET DYER,

Is the reputed Author.

Shewing, from the Matters therein contained, that ſuch an Imputation is highly injurious to the Character of that worthy Patriot.

By Benjamin Gale, A. M.

BY Order of the Hon. Judge of Probates for the Diſtrict of Hartford, to be ſold at Publick Vendue, at the Houſe of Mr. David Bull, Innholder in ſaid Hartford, all the Real eſtate of Levi Jones late of Hartford deceas'd (repreſented Inſolvent) By us the Subſcribers, on Thurſday the 1ſt of March next.

Daniel Goodwin, } Adminiſtrators.
Samuel Marſh }

N. B. All perſons inclining to purchaſe at private ſale may do it by applying to the ſubſcribers before the Day of ſale.

THE proprietors of the Suſquehannah purchaſe, in January 1768 granted a tax of Two Dollars on each right, and alſo in April 1769 granted a tax of Two Dollars on each right, a conſiderable part of which taxes have been paid in, and improved for the Company's uſe, and at a meeting of ſaid company January 1770, it was agreed upon & voted, that ſuch proprietors as have hitherto neglected paying in ſaid taxes, that they pay them to the committee appointed to receive them by the firſt Day of March next; and ſuch as ſhall neglect to pay the ſaid taxes by that time, their Rights are declared by a Vote of ſaid company, forfeited, and do revert to ſaid company.

By Order of the adjourned Meeting held January 10th, 1770.

SAMUEL GRAY, Clerk.

WANTED a Perſon Skilled in making REEDS, in the beſt manner.——Enquire of the PRINTERS.

WHEREAS his excellency Benning Wentworth, Eſq; late governor of the province of New-Hampſhire, purſuant to order receiv'd from his Majeſty, granted to a number of his Majeſty's liege ſubjects about 140 townſhips of land then lying in ſaid Hampſhire province, weſt of Connecticut river, and eaſt of the line of the province of New-York, and north of the line of the Maſſachuſetts Bay government, which grants being made agreeable to ſaid orders from his Majeſty; in conſequence whereof conſiderable ſettlements have been made on ſaid land, by the proprietors to whom ſaid grants were made. And whereas by means of ſome repreſentation ſince made to his Majeſty, he has been as'd to annex the ſaid land to the pro ce of N. York, ſince which the governor ew-York hath re-granted a conſiderable f thoſe lands to other Perſons to the ex of the original proprietors, under the ernor Wentworth, And whereas the claimers under the governor of N. York have began to eject many of the ſettlers upon the ſaid Hampſhire governors grants and more ſuits are ſoon expected to be commenced againſt the ſaid Hampſhire claimants. And it being thought grievous, burthenſome and unjuſt, that any one ſhould be obliged to defend ſaid Hampſhire title alone, ſeeing ſo many are alike intereſted in the cauſe.——Therefore at a meeting of a conſiderable number of ſaid Hampſhire proprietors held in Sharon, in Litchfield county, on the 23d day of January 1770, it was agreed, that a general meeting of the ſaid Hampſhire claimants be warned by advertiſements in the public prints of this and the neighbouring governments, to be held on the 2d Thurſday of March next, at the houſe of Charles Burrall, Eſq; in Canaan, to conſult and agree upon the beſt method to defend ſaid Hampſhire title. Therefore all the ſaid Hampſhire proprietors are hereby deſired by themſelves or their agents, to attend ſaid meeting at the ſaid time and place for the ſaid purpoſe.

TO BE SOLD BY

PETER VERSTILLE,

At his Store in Weathersfield, the following GOODS, at the loweſt Prices, for CASH only, viz.

CRimſon and other Broad Cloths Scarlet Green & Blue Ratteens German Serges Cloth colour'd Kerſeys Red Blue and Brown Half Thicks Sagathys and Duroys Bazies Shalloons ſorted Tammys, ditto Durants, ditto Calamincoes, do Camblets, Plain & figur'd Camblettees Dorſetteens, Hungarian Stuffs, Poplins, Miſſinetts, Dreſdinetts Gazetts, Broloes Black Silk Crapes, ditto Bombazeens Black and Cloth colour'd Drawboys Brown and Olive colour'd Fuſtians Brown and White Stay Buckrams. Black figur'd Laſtings Cotton Checks of all width's Red & White & Blue & White Stripe'd Hollands Black White Crimſon Green, Blue and Purple Pelong Sattins, Shear and Thick Muſlins Cambricks and Lawns, Black and White Paſſinetts Black & White Catgutt, Black & White Plain Gauze Black & White figur'd ditto Black and Crimſon Capuchine Silk Men's & Women's Leather Gloves and Mitts Women's Silk Gloves and Mitts 3 4 & 7 8 Bed Ticking. A fine Aſſortment of Chintz and Calicoes Black and Colour'd Barcelona Handkerchiefs Black Gauze Handkerchiefs Linnin and Silk ditto Black Cravatts Black Crimſon and Scarlet Snail Trimming Head Flowers, Neckleces and Ribbands, Silver Tippits and Turbands, Cap Wires, Velvet Maſks, Sattin Hatts & Bonnetts Black Ducape Cloth colour'd and changeable Luteſtrings, Brown Taffity, Marſineco Luteſtrings, Silk and Cotton ditto Paddleſtick Fans, and other ditto, Damaſcus and Soſeas for Waiſtcoats, Black & White Laces, Silk Stay ditto 2-4 7 8 and Yard Wide Hollands and Dowlas, Womens Shoes Ruſſia Linnin and Diapers White figur'd Dimothy's, Mens and Womens Thread Cotton and Worſted Hoſe, Black Blue Purple and cloth colour'd Breaches Patterns, Looking Glaſſes, Chaiſe and Hunting Whips, Bohea Tea, Coffee, Ginger, Allſpice, Nutmegs, Cloves, Cinnamon Men's Caſtor and Felt Hatts, Flower Lawn & Kenting Handkerchiefs, Ferrits and Gulloons, Shoe and Quality Bindings, Horn, Mettle, Swift and Baſket Buttons, Beſt G. B Wool and Cotton Cards Beſt Kippens and Tillocks ſnuff, Allum, Copperas, Brimſtone, Redwood, Logwood, Rice, &c. Sowing Silk Gruel, Twiſt ſorted, Horn & Ivory Combs, Tapes, Pins Needles, Writing and Preſs Paper, Paper Hangings for Rooms, Pewter & Braſs, Shoe & Knee Buckles, Bellows, Nails and an Aſſortment of Hard Ware.

N. B. Ticklinburgs and Ozinbrigs, by the Bolt, and Ravens Duck by the piece.

WANTED,

A Journeyman Taylor, that well underſtands cutting and making all ſorts of men's Cloaths, and can take the whole Care of a Shop.——Enquire of Joſeph Clark of Cannon.

Whereas John Ledyard, Eſq; hath this day taken out Letters of Adminiſtration on the eſtate of Captain John Coleman, late of Hartford deceas'd, and repreſented the ſame inſolvent, and the honorable the Judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, thereupon appointed us the Subſcribers Commiſſioners to examine and adjuſt the claims of the ſeveral creditors to ſaid eſtate; and hath allowed eight months for the doing of the buſineſs, &c. We do therefore hereby notify the ſaid creditors, that we ſhall attend the buſineſs of our ſaid appointment on the firſt mondays in every of the ſucceeding months, till the expiration of ſaid eight months at the office of Tho. Seymour one of the Commiſſioners in ſaid Hartford.

Thomas Seymour, }
Richard Edwards, } Commiſſioners
George Smith }

Hartford Feb 15. 1770.

RAN-AWAY

From his maſter, Epaphras Bull, of Hartford, in Connecticut on the night of the 12th inſt. one WILLIAM DAWSON by name, who was aſſigned to him in ſervice, by the hon County Court for the County of New London in November laſt, for the term of fifteen years, upon a proſecution and conviction then had againſt him for Theft. He is a perſon about thirty years old, five feet and about ſeven inches high thin viſage, but well ſett, of a light complexion, light hair, which he wore, grey eyes; of good addreſs, has been a traveller, and of Iriſh extract. Had on when he went off and carried with him a brown bearſkin ſurtout, ſhort green coat, black under veſt, black Mancheſter breeches, poor ſhoes, grey ſtockings, & a caſtor hatt, that has had a lace ſewed upon it. Whoever will apprehend and ſecure the Runaway in any of his Majeſty's Goals on this continent, ſhall upon notice and application to his ſaid maſter, be intitled to the one half of the term of his ſaid ſervice. And as the ſaid Dawſon is ſuppoſed to be of the party and gang of villains, that have long infeſted the roads and country from Philadelphia to New-York, Connecticut, Rhode Iſland and Boſton, it is very probable he may ſoon alter his dreſs and appearance, and the public are deſired to be very vigilant in their obſervations, leaſt he eſcape their notice. EPAPHRAS BULL.

Hartford, Feb 23.

Meſſ. Green & Watſon,

As the bite of a Mad Dog has been fatal in, at leaſt, one inſtance in this town, and as ſeveral have been bitten and are anxiouſly waiting the event you will pleaſe to inſert the following method of cure, which has in Europe, and the Eaſt Indies, ſucceeded in ſo many inſtances as to obtain the title of infallible.

AS ſoon as may be after the bite, rub into the wounded part a drachm of Mercurial ointment, keeping the wound open, as much as may be. The next Day repeat the Unction on all the wounded member, and purge the Patient with Drachm of mercurial Pills.—The third Day, after rubbing in the ointment on the bitten part,——take one fourth Part of the above Doſe of the Pills. Continue this Method for ten Days, at the end of which, take a full Doſe of the Pills, and it is to be hoped a cure will be effected.

Mercurial Pills.

Three Drachms of Crude Mercury extinguiſhed in a Drachm of Turpentine.

Choice Rubarb, }
Colloquintida in Powder, } of each 2 Drams.
Gutta Gamba, }

Make up the whole with a ſufficient quantity of Honey. The doſe one Drachm.

Mercurial ointment.

One ounce of crude Mercury, extinguiſhed in two Drachms of turpentine.

Hogs Lard, three oz's. Make an ointment of the whole. The quantity to be rubbed in each time, one Drachm.

This method is only proper for thoſe who are taken care of immediately after the bite. As for others, the doſe muſt be increaſed, and the medicines continued much longer. It muſt alſo be obſerved, the Doſe muſt be leſſened in proportion, for Children; and inſtead of the mercurial Pills, they may be purged with ſyrup of Rhubarb.

LONDON, Dec. 19.

Arrived at Plymouth, the Mayflower, Sears, from Boſton. The Hope Schooner, Dawſon, from Halifax, is arrived at Spithead, who brings Advice, that affairs are very bad in Boſton, owing, it is ſaid, to the taxes being ſo heavy. It is added, that there is no walking in the ſtreets after dark.

It being expected that an additional inland duty is going to be laid on TEA on account of the preſent duty very deficient; in conſequence of which, the price of common Bohea Tea is already advanced ſeven pence per Pound, and Singlo, eight pence or ten pence on the Exchange of London.

Nov. 17. It is reported, that Letters are received from Boſton New-England, mentioning, that in the courſe of three weeks, ſeveral duels had been fought there, between Gentlemen of oppoſite principles, in which ſome of the parties were dangerouſly wounded.

MONDAY MARCH 5, 1770. Numb 271.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

[The following piece was intended for our laſt, but came to hand after part of the papers were printed.]

CONNECTICUT, Feb. 24, 1770.

Meſs. PRINTERS,

Pray give the following a place in your next Courant—'twil oblige

YOUR CUSTOMER.

I AM no Merchant; yet, as I was at Middletown this week, when the gentlemen in trade met to conſult what of advantage could be done in the dark hour now upon us—The doors being open for all, I went in, and attended great part of the meeting—The ſatisfaction I received, richly attoned for the expence of time. There was a numerous body of the chief Merchants in the colony—they were generally gentlemen in the very prime of life—I ſaw them endeavouring, with the greateſt ſolicitude, to diſcover ſome means, or prepare ſome methods to deliver their country from its preſſures;—to ſave its trade from threatened ruin, and open a brighter ſcene for its commerce, its proſperity and Inhabitants.—Their ſpirited behaviour, their propoſals, plans & reaſonings, were to me more than pleaſing. I congratulate the colony on the happy omen of what theſe her ſons will probably one day perform in their commercial ſcene of life——if their generous intentions are properly encouraged. An account of their proceedings, 'tis ſaid is to be ſent to the preſs: One thing, as it was not done by the body of Merchants, is not ordered to be publiſhed, which, I think, ought to be known, and is; Mr. Verſtille, of Weathersfield, had, amongſt his goods (late from England) a quantity of courſe Woollens; theſe he claimed a right to diſpoſe of, conformable (as he alledg'd) to what was allowed in Boſton. Many letters, &c. from that town were read, and maturely conſidered. They did not appear ſo perfectly clear and conſiſtant; that a true ſtate of the caſe could be obtained by them. The Merchants were at a loſs—being on the one hand, very deſirous to act nothing contrary to agreement, that would be prejudicial to an honeſt man; on the other hand reſolutely determined not in the leaſt degree to violate, in any ſingle point, the non-importation covenant. Under this dilemma, ſome of the gentlemen went to Mr. Verſtille, gave him his price for his courſe woollens, and generally concluded that thoſe woollens ſhall lye and remain in ſtore, until the non-importation agreement, ſhall terminate. Our Manufactures, have ſufficiently ſupplied what of that kind would otherwiſe have been wanted.

[Anſwer to the Piece ſign'd, J. W. a Squinter on Public Affairs inſerted in our laſt.]

From the NEW YORK GAZETTE.

Mr PARKER,

UPON reading a late Hand Bill publiſhed in this City, of which the above is a true copy: I found it contained ſuch a high charge againſt the people of Connecticut, that I was induced to ſend one of thoſe extraordinary papers to a worthy Friend of mine in that colony, requeſting his candid Opinion, reſpecting that unexampled Aſſertion; who, in Vindication of their injured Character, from ſuch an ill natured puerile attack, tranſmitted me the following piece, which I deſire as one of your cuſtomers, you will give a place in your next Monday's Paper: And I hope ſome able Advocate for injur'd Innocence will not be ſilent in Pennſylvania, when they read the unmanly accuſation levelled againſt them.

It is truly aſtoniſhing, that Mr. Squinter, who I believe has made ſeveral tours to Connecticut, ſhou'd have learned the true character of that People no better:——However, as he ſquints by confeſſion, which is doubtleſs true, as he made uſe only of one I: I would adviſe him to employ ſome able Occuliſt, that in his next Performance he may be able to uſe both I's.

A Friend to Truth and Decency.

New-York Jan. 25. 1770.

SIR,

I HAVE peruſed the Paper entitled, The Mode of Elections conſidered, dated New-York, Dec. 29. 1769, and ſigned "J. W. a Squinter on public affairs.

How far Mr. Squinter is right in what he ſays concerning Pennſylvania, I am not able to ſay. But if his Remarks upon that Province have no better Foundation than his aſſertions concerning Connecticut, I am bold to affirm, there is no truth in them.

In his account of the latter, he certainly ſquints moſt abominably; and as perſons under that occular Infirmity, while they appear to look upon one Object, in reality are gazing at another: So this dabbler in Politicks, while pretending to deſcribe the Manner of chooſing repreſentatives in Connecticut, evidently had his attention fix'd upon a New-York Election. For in the firſt Place, he ſpeaks of Candidates, in his account of the Elections in Connecticut, a Name never known nor heard of in this colony, in the Senſe in which he uſes it. A Candidate is a competitor for an Office, ſo called from the Togacandida, or white ſhining Robe, worn by thoſe among the Romans, who ſought for public offices or honours in that ſtate. In this they appeared upon the Day of Election, and publickly ſolicited the Suffrages of the People in their Favour. In New-York indeed there is ſomething of this Kind. There a Number of Perſons appear before the Electors, and in perſon or by their Friends, openly ſolicit the Votes of the Freeholders and Freeman in their Favour——But in Connecticut there never is any Thing of this kind; here there is no ſuch thing as ſetting up for Aſſembly-men: but the Freemen, when met together, unſolicited & uninfluenced, bring in their votes in Writing for whomſoever they chooſe to ſerve them as Repreſentatives in general Aſſembly.——And the Deputies are ſo far from appearing as Candidates, or ſoliciting for the Suffrages of the Freemen, that I am perſuaded their ſo doing would be the moſt effectual Way to miſs of them.

No leſs miſtaken is this writer when he ſays: "The man who can put on the greateſt appearance of Sanctity, tho' deſtitute of every other Qualification to conſtitute a good member, is generally choſen." Whatever Qualifications he may think neceſſary for a member of Aſſembly, I preſume Sanctity or Religion is not one of the Number in his Account; otherwiſe he would have ſuppreſſed this awkward and profane Banter upon a religious character, when conſidered as a Qualification for an important Office. But he is not only profane, but highly injurious in this Remark. Herein he more than inſinuates, that the aſſembly of Connecticut is generally compoſed of members utterly deſtitute of every Qualification for Legiſlation.

To expoſe the Injuſtice of this Inſinuation, I need only refer to the Acts of Aſſembly contained in the Connecticut Law Book, and the good Effects of them in the civil Adminiſtration in ſaid colony. Dr. Douglaſs, who perhaps was as little prejudiced in Favour of an appearance of Sanctity, as Mr. Squinter himſelf in his account of this colony, ſays, "It is a Plantation of induſtrious ſagacious Huſbandmen——who in all their Elections of Governors, Councellors, Repreſentatives Judges, and other public officers by cuſtom, generally prefer the moſt Worthy." And after mentioning other Things to the ſame Purpoſe, adds, I could not avoid this Preamble by way of Eulogy upon the preſent Adminiſtration in their exemplary Juriſdiction. They have ſubſiſted as a Government about Ninety Years, and from œconomical experience, have formed a Body of Laws, lately reviſed and publiſhed, A. D. 1750, in a ſmall Folio of 258 Pages, of the moſt natural, equitable, plain and conciſe Laws of Plantations, hitherto extant. Sum. Hiſt. Vol. II. P. 158.

The people of Connecticut, tis true, have generally regarded, I hope they will ever continue to regard, a Religious character, as one very good Qualification for a Ruler. So far is this from being a reproach, that I am perſwaded, all ſenſible men will eſteem it an Honour to them. But that it is eſteemed the only one, eſpecially that perſons who have only the Appearance of Sanctity, tho' deſtitute of every other neceſſary Qualification, are generally choſen Deputies; is, I truſt, ſufficiently refuted by the above Remarks. And for the further conviction of Mr. Squinter, and others, who will be equally ignorant of the people he makes ſo free with, I will only mention one Inſtance as a Specimen, and leave the Public to judge for themſelves. What I mean is, their Conduct in making Proviſion for the King's Troops.

It is well known, that whenever any of ſaid Troops are paſſing thro', or quartered in any colony, certain Articles for their Subſiſtance, are by Act of Parliament required to be furniſhed for them at the Expence of ſaid colony. Now while other Aſſemblies have ſo conducted this matter, as either to incur the Diſpleaſure of the King and Parliament, or in effect given up their conſtitutional Right of Taxation, the Aſſembly of Connecticut is the only One, as far as I can learn, who have had the Addreſs and Prudence to ſtear clear of both. To do this, one would think requires ſome Qualifications beſides a bare appearance of Sanctity.——Mr. Squinter goes on, "and tho' 'tis pretended that no means are uſed to influence the Electors, by open houſes, or otherwiſe, yet I deny that to be the caſe, and inſiſt upon it, that the Friends of the candidates, not only make Uſe of the means aforeſaid, but alſo of threats and other compulſory Methods, to bring about the completion of their Deſigns." Here again, while he betrays his groſs Ignorance as to the mode of Elections in Connecticut, he is chargeable with downright Falſehood and Miſrepreſenta-

---

LONDON.

Nov. 8. We hear that the celebrated Dr. Lucas, the Iriſh patriot, is ſhortly expected in London from Dublin, in order to lay a complaint of an extraordinary nature, before a great perſonage.

This day, about one o'clock, the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, William Beckford, Eſq; the Lord Mayor Elect, with ſeveral of the Aldermen and the two Sheriffs, attended at Guild-hall, when the new Lord Mayor was ſworn into that office, and the chair and other enſigns of Mayoralty were ſurrendered to him, after the accuſtomed manner; the ſtreets were prodigiouſly crowded, and the acclamations of the people were almoſt incredible.

It is aſſured, that advices of a very intereſting and alarming nature, with reſpect to the colonies, have lately been tranſmitted from North-America.

Jonn Root

ſion. The people here know no ſuch creatures as Candidates for members of aſſembly. There are none that ſet up for that office, either by themſelves or their Friends; nor can any probable conjecture, many Times, be formed who is likely to be appointed, 'till the choice is over and publickly declared. Conſequently there is, there can be no ſuch thing as threats and compulſory methods to carry an Election.

Therefore what he ſays in the following Paragraph of all the Taverns and Ale houſes in the town being opened, at and after the time of Election for every Perſon that pleaſes to repair to, and eat and drink upon free coſt, &c. is all abſolutely falſe and groundleſs. Bad as the people in this colony are, ſuch a practice would be deemed infamous and diſhonourable.——I myſelf have lived both in the Eaſtern and weſtern parts of the colony and for ſome Years reſided in the two principal towns, Hartford and New Haven. I have generally attended the Elections for near 30 Years, having been an Elector the whole of that time; and I ſolemnly declare, I never have heard of any Tavern or Ale Houſes being opened, or any thing like it, upon theſe occaſions, and am morally certain nothing of that Kind has ever been done. I have heard indeed in ſome few Inſtances, that after the Election is over, and while the Votes are ſealing up, in order to be ſent into the Aſſembly, the Deputies newly elected, have called for a Bowl of punch to drink with the conſtables who have been preſiding for ſundry hours during the choice.—One Inſtance even of this Kind however being complained of to the aſſembly was generally diſcountenanced by the Houſe, as having too much the Air of Bribery, and the Member concern'd, if I am not miſtaken, publickly reprimanded for his conduct.

As to the particular Inſtance he mentions at Weathersfield; I have had an opportunity to enquire of a Gentleman, of character, belonging to the next Town, not more than three miles diſtant, who aſſures me, he never heard any thing of that nature, and fully believes it is falſe and groundleſs. The moſt that can be made of it, according to Mr. Squinter's account, is, that the people of Weathersfield ſaw fit, for ſome Reaſons not mentioned even by him, to neglect one who had formerly ſerved them as Repreſentative, and made choice of another.——He tells us indeed that this was done by the ſuperior Influence, and overbearing power of the Friends of the competitor. But if by this he means any thing more than that the Electors, for ſome reaſons beſt known to themſelves choſe to give their Votes for the perſon they elected: we muſt, after what has been above obſerved, have ſome better Evidence than his bare Aſſertion to induce us to believe it. And was Mr. Squinter right in the only Inſtance he has produced, I think it reflects no ſmall honour on this colony, that for near a century, it has furniſhed but one ſuch Example.

Upon the whole, it may undoubtedly be ſaid with great truth, that whatever other Vices the people of this colony are gilty of, Bribery and corruption have not yet found their way amongſt them; nor is there, I preſume, any one Spot of Earth in the Britiſh Empire, in which Elections are conducted with ſo much Freedom and good Order as in this colony. Whether this is owing to the particular mode of Election here practiſed, or to a greater degree of public virtue in the Electors; and whether an alteration in the mode of Elections in New-York, would be effectual to make them more free, and prevent any undue Influence in the choice, I ſhall not take upon me to determine. However, if the above Remarks may be thought to be of any Service in the preſent Diſpute ſubſiſting with you, they are entirely ſubmitted to your Diſcretion, either to publiſh or ſuppreſs as you ſhall think proper.

A FREEMAN.

Connecticut, January 20, 1770.

From the GENERAL EVENING POST.

To the PEOPLE of ENGLAND.

My Friends and Countrymen,

PERMIT me in this manner to addreſs you, though I muſt own I don't much deſerve your attention, for ſuppoſing you ſo weak, as in any degree to liſten to an anonymous writer in a news paper; much leſs I ought to think any one of you can be moved to ſwerve from that you owe your God, your King, and your country, by the ſpecious, but fallacious arguments of Junius; who has at laſt employed his pen, and his utmoſt abilities in the moſt diabolical deſign of which the human heart is capable; it is, my brethren, that of infuſing into you minds ſedition, and ſpiriting you up to rebellion.

You ſee your K— abuſed in the groſſeſt manner; but I muſt not here repeat any of thoſe abuſes, the recollection of them will long leave an impreſſion of horror on my mind; a character of itſelf ſo ſacred, and filled as it is by a P— of ſuch virtue, juſtice, and piety, would, one naturally might ſuppoſe guard him from the attacks of envy, malice and diſappointed ambition; for do we not well know the ſource of the preſent oppoſition? Are not the names of R———m, M———e, G———e, and S———n, a ſufficient antidote for the poiſon of their invectives? They have been employed in the higheſt offices of ſtate, their abilities not being ſufficient to maintain them in thoſe high offices, are now in an employent, which if they think they are qualified for, I ſhall not deny them that merit; but the merit of ſcandal, abuſe, detraction, and ſedition, is as inſignificant, as is the fountain from which they proceed, a bad heart. How noble and honourable might have been thoſe names I have mentioned! But can we with juſtice apply thoſe epithets to advocates for a W—s, to thoſe who have aſſociated and put themſelves on a level with De'aval, Coates, Horne, Bingley and Moore, for thoſe two laſt, inſignificant as they are, are fellow labourers in the ſame work, and equally intitled to their ſhare of merit and applauſe.

But let me, at this time, confine myſelf to Junius; not content with aſſaſſinating one character at a time, he now ſtrikes a great ſtroke indeed, and aſperſes not only his K— and the H—— of C———, but Engliſhmen, Scotch and Iriſh; the army and the colonies are all by him repreſented as diſaffected, as harbouring treaſon in their hearts, and only waiting an opportunity openly to avow their intentions, and proceed to action.

Is this a true account of you, my countrymen? Junius ſays it is; he has told our S———, he has told the whole nation (for his writings are but too much read) that you are ſuch. Infamous lyar! by what authority, or at whoſe inſtigation, but of him who is the father of lies, dareſt thou brand me and all the kingdom with treaſon? If theſe are thy thoughts, well doſt thou keep thyſelf ſecret; for though r— l clemency might withhold juſtice from rewarding ſuch ſervices with what they highly deſerve; yet the contempt, the diſdain which thou wouldſt meet with from every honeſt man, though not an adequate, yet is a puniſhment the certain conſequence of ſuch diſaffection and treaſon.

The generous ſpirit of Engliſhmen, from which we derive our national glory, will, if miſled, be productive of fatal conſequences. The annals of our nation are not wanting in examples of this ſort, the peruſal of them muſt fill every one with ſorrow for the miſeries of thoſe times: and can Britons applaud, can they forgive the man, who by his ſeditious writings would endeavour to infuſe ſuch a ſpirit in theſe times, recall former evils, & draw down on your heads the curſes and horrors of a civil war? Open your eyes, ye who have already been miſled into an artful and ambitious faction; It requires no uncommon penetration to ſee you are the tools only of diſappointed and deſigning men. I truſt you are but few. Return then to your duty, before it be too late; and give daily thanks to the Almighty, that you were not drawn in to join in the higheſt of all offences againſt him your King and country.

And now let me addreſs a few words to the Miniſtry. If you would wiſh to prove yourſelves worthy of the truſt which is repoſed in you, exert yourſelves in doing that duty you owe your King and country.——Whatever may be your royal maſters opinion of lenity and forbearance, let not this daring offence againſt him and againſt the conſtitution paſs unpuniſhed: how high ſoever the offender ſtands in the world, or by whomſoever abetted pluck him down: the eyes of the whole world are on you, and as ſervants of our Sovereign you have the good wiſhes of the greater and better part of the nation; do your duty and deſerve them.

P O R T I U S.

L E G H O R N, October 24.

THEY write from Kaminieck, that at the affair which happened near Caſſi and the Neiſter, their remained dead on both ſides, on the field of battle, 6000 men, and that more than 2000 Ruſſians were found with their heads cut off.

Peterſburg, Oct. 28. On account of the conqueſt of all Moldavia by the troops of the Empreſs, Te Deum was ſung here yeſter day, accompanied by a diſcharge of the artillery of the fortreſs and the admiralty. At night there was a ball at court, and the whole city, was illuminated.

The government, in order to continue the war with vigour, in caſe the interpoſition of certain powers to bring the porte to pacific ſentiments prove ineffectual, hath ordered 50,000 men to be raiſed, who are to be employed in the compe tion and augmentation of our land and ſea forces.

Warſaw, Oct. 21. The circolar letter which the Pruſſian miniſter addreſſed the 4th of this month, by order of the King his maſter, to the chiefs of the confederates in Poland and Lithuania, is a picture of all the exceſſes committed by them againſt his Majeſty's Subjects. The miniſter warns them ſeriouſly therein, to alter their conduct, if they do not chooſe to feel the effect of the King's reſentment, who, by means of a body of 50 or 60,000 men, could eaſily bring them to order.

The Turkiſh forces, ſince their retreat from Choczim, repaſſed the Danube, with many curſes againſt the new Grand Vizir and the Sultan, for ſending them out on ſo unſucceſsful expedition; and ſince that they are divided into two bodies, between which ſo great an enmity prevails, that they are making war upon each other. The number of confederates ſabred by them, on their retreat from Choczim, is ſaid to amount to 600 men.

Extract of a letter from Cape of Good Hope, dated May 16, 1769.

"By the accounts we have from the Dutch ſhips, our affairs in Bengal ſeem to be in a ticklish ſituation; our ſoldiers diſcontented on account of the arrears due to them by the company, have mutinied, and deſtroyed ſeveral of the out gariſons, and Hyder Ally's arms are ſtill victorious in the Carnatic: He now ſeems determined to accede to no terms of accomodation."

Nov. 13. Advice from the Continent confirms the report of an inſurrection of the people having happened at Conſtantinople, who flock in great crowds to the Seraglio, demanding the names of thoſe who firſt adviſed and promoted the war. The Janiſaries were then neuter.

It is computed there are now upwards of 400 ſail of ſhips in the River to be ſold, which uſed to be employed in the North-America trade, before the late taxation of the colonies. What a conſiderable decreaſe muſt this make in the conſumption of the manufactures of this country!

By a Gentleman from Porſmouth we are informed, that nothing can be more miſerable than the crew of the Ruſſian men of war lately in that port. He tells us, they lived chiefly on raw fleſh,——that they had ſcarcely any coin to purchaſe neceſſaries with at foreign ports, and that ſo little were they acquainted with the eſſentials requiſite for a long voyage, that they were not furniſhed with a ſufficient quantity of water for a week, and muſt have abſolutely periſhed for want of that element, had it not been totally from accident.

They adviſe from Copenhagen, that the King had prohibited, under ſevere penalties, the building any more ſhips of war in the dominion of Denmark, for the ſervice of France.

Letters from Berlin mention, that the Poliſh Marſhal Linſki, having been obliged to retire with the Confederates into the Pruſſian territories, was ſurrounded by a body of Huſſars, and made priſoner with all his people. His military cheſt contained 14,000 ducats, which will be employed in repairing the loſſes which his Pruſſian Majeſty's ſubjects have ſuſtained by the Confederates.

Letters arrived by this day's mail, bring authentic accounts, that fourteen ſhips of the line are fitting out by the French at Breſt, which it is ſuppoſed are deſtined for the Mediterranean, as a fleet of obſervation.

L O N D O N.

Nov. 15. It is ſaid, that if the Marquis of Granby reſigns, General Conway will ſucceed him in the Ordnance, and the Earl of Albemarle in the army.

A letter from Dieppe, dated the 10th inſtant, mentions that Lord Bute arrived there laſt Wedneſday night, and next day proceeded on his journey.

Particulars of the Peace concluded between the Engliſh and Hyder Alley.

The forts and places taken from each other to be reſtored: Each to bear the expence they have been at. A perpetual league offenſive, and defenſive, and the prices of troops hired in ſuch caſes ſtipulated. A mutual exchange and releaſement of priſoners: And a freedom of trade both in the Mycore Country and the Carnatic.

Nov. 24. In caſe of a war, 400 American ſhips may, as trade ſtands between us and the Colonies, be converted into privateers. If this is not tempora mutantur, we ſhould be glad to know what is?

It is ſaid, ſome great holders of Stock, had a hand in the raiſing and propagating the reports concerning a war with France. Their view in it, may be gueſſed, without a profundity of ſagacity; but that people ſhould be ſo impoſed on by them, as to ſell their ſtock under its value, requires an uncommon depth of wiſdom to find out.

Nov. 27. The celebrated Dr. Muſgrave has abſolutely refuſed to ſign the Devonſhire petition, altho' he was ſo great a ſtickler in the promotion of it.——The reaſon for his not ſigning it, it is ſaid, by ſome, to be the Freeholders having abſolutely refuſed to inſert therein the Dr's charge againſt Lord B. Lord H. &c. but others whiſper, that it is owing to means having been found, to remove all the patriotic Æſculapius's ſuſpicions of the malverſations of the noble perſons concerned in the negociating and concluding of the peace.

We hear, that although every Colony on the continent of America, except one or two, have come into a reſolution not to import Britiſh goods, yet not a manufacturing village in this kingdom complains of a ſlack trade; nay what is more, when ſome of them were applied to, at the cloſe of the laſt ſeſſion, to ſign a petition, ſetting forth their diſtreſſes ariſing from the ſuſpenſion of the American orders, they ſaid, that they were then ſo fully employed that they could not, with any colour of truth, ſign ſuch a petition.

The following letter has made its appearance in the public papers; on which, the public are left to make their comments:

To Charles Jenkins, Eſq; Lord of the treaſury.

S I R, Exeter, July 18. 1768.

"I Am ſorry to have any occaſion of writing to a gentleman upon a ſubject which, ſtriking deeply at his friend, muſt unavoidably be diſagreeable to himſelf. But I am under the neceſſity of telling your noble friend, Lord Bute, and I hope you will permit me to do it through you, that he ſtands accuſed of no leſs crime than ſelling the late peace to the French; ſome particulars of which accuſation were delivered to Lord Halifax more than three years ago. Lord Bute, I believe, is well apprized of the charge; and I need not tell you he has taken no ſteps to diſprove it. He will probably impute this to his contempt both of the accuſation and the accuſer; and if he does, I cannot contradict him. But I would be bold to ſay, that, in general, innocent men do not content themſelves with deſpiſing their accuſers in private, but commonly take ſome pains to convince the public too of their being really deſpicable. His Lordſhip, however, will do as he pleaſes. I ſhall only add, that if this private admonition is neglected (as probably it will) I ſhall think myſelf at liberty to give him a public one, which can never come more properly than when he is preparing to leave the Kingdom.

I am, Sir, with all due reſpect, Your very obedient, humble ſervant,
S. MUSGRAVE.

A Letter from Dublin, dated November 18.

"We are greatly aſtoniſhed to find that the H---e of C----s have not only agreed to the propoſal of the L—d L——t, for an augmentation; but have voted him an addreſs of thanks for the meaſure. According to this plan, the army on our eſtabliſhment is to conſiſt of 15,235 men; but though we are to pay for this number, we are to have only 12,000 here.——Surely the ſugar-plumb at the end of his L———p's meſſage could not have operated ſo ſtrongly? "The ſtaff offisers upon this eſta-" bliſhment who die, ſhall not be "replaced, but gradually reduced "to a commander in chief and "five general officers." There is a douceur for you, certainly every way adequate to the pay of 3235 men, who are to remain in your kingdom! Doctor L-----s is almoſt out of his ſenſes, and I have been intoxicated ever ſince I heard this addreſs was voted for yeſterday.

THOMAS L———N."

Notwithſtanding the complaint which generally prevails, that our trade is every where on the decline, and particularly in North-America, we are well informed, that in the year 1747, the net revenue of the cuſtoms did not amount to 900,000l and that this year it ſurpaſſes 2,800,000l. ſterling.

Meſſ Green & Watſon,

By inſerting the following cure for the bite of a Mad Dog, extracted from Doctor Meads Eſſays on Poiſons, you may (perhaps) render an acceptable ſervice to the Public.

"LET the patient be blooded at the "arm, nine or ten ounces, take "of the herb called in latin, lichen cinereus terreſtris, in Engliſh aſhcoloured ground "liverwort, cleaned, dried and powdered, "half an ounce of black pepper powdered, "two drachms (or a quarter of an ounce) "mix theſe well together, and divide the "powder into four doſes; one of which "muſt be taken every morning, faſting, for "four mornings ſucceſſively, in half a pint "of Cows milk warm. After theſe four "doſes are taken, the patient muſt go into "the cold bath, or a cold ſpring or river, "every morning faſting, for a month: he "muſt be dipt all over, but not ſtay in (with "his head above the water) longer than "half a minute, if the water be very cold. "After this he muſt go in three times a "week for a fortnight longer." The above method, the learned doctor ſays, he can ſafely affirm, he has never known fail of ſucceſs, when it it has been followed before the Hydrophobia, or dread of water began; altho' in the courſe of about thirty years, (beſides the experience of others both in town and country) he had uſed it a thouſand times, and adds, that he had often wiſhed that he knew ſo certain a remedy in any other diſeaſe.——The great Botaniſt, Dr Dillenius, gives the following diſcription of the herb, or rather moſs, as he calls it, grows cloſe to the ground, chiefly on heaths and in woody ſhady places, near the roots and ſtumps of trees; which being commonly covered with creeping moſſy herbs, it ſticks to them when gathered, the leaves when young are ſmall, but grow two or three inches in length, and an inch or two in breadth divided into ſeveral ſegments, they are ſometimes ſingle, ſometimes lying upon one another. At their extremities they produce little hard oblong bodies, which Botaniſts call pettæ and are undoubtedly the ſeminal capſulæ the leaves when dry, are aſhcoloured, darker on the upper part, on the under lighter. Frequent veins are obſerved along them from which here and there run ſmall white fibres into the earth, the roots of the plant.

Liſt of Letters remaining in the Poſt Office, Hartford, March 5 1770.

MARTIN BULL, Farmington, Captain Daniel Bull Hartford, Caleb Bull, do. Edward Bulckley Weathersfield, Ebenezer Balch do. Thomas Belding, Eſq; do. Jonathan Bull, Farmington, Giles Cone, Haddam, Eliphalet Dyer, Eſq; Windham, Ebenezer Devotion, jun. do. Eleazer Fitch, Eſq; do. Daniel Foot, Eſq; Colcheſter, Timothy Hall, jun. Glaſtenbury, William Hooker, Hartford, Miriam Harper, Eaſt Windſor, Richard Hale, Coventry, Richard Magee, Eaſt Hartford, Eliſha Root, Farmington, Capt. Jonathan Reynolds Weathersfield. Nathaniel Stilman, do. Allyn Stilman, do. Samuel Smith, Farmington. Hugh Thompſon, Ellington, Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Eſq; Lebanon, Dr. Edward Tudor, Windſor. Dyer Throop, Eſq; Haddam. Rev. Roger Viets, Simſbury, Rev. Eliphalet Williams, E Hartford. Ezekiel Williams, Eſq; Weathersfield Capt. David Webb, do.

N. B. Thoſe who are indebted to the Subſcriber for Poſtage of Letters, are deſired to ſettle the ſame immediately,

W. ELLERY.

TEN DOLLARS REWARD.

RUN AWAY the night after the firſt inſt. from the ſubſcriber in Toland, an apprentice boy named Uriah Croſs, about 20 years of age, five feet and four inches high, thick ſet, wears his own dark colour'd hair, his left hand ſomething withered, a ſcar on the ſame, and another on his left elbow, had with him when he went away, a great coat, a ſtrait bodied coat, and a looſe veſt, all grey homeſpun kearſey, a black ſearge veſt, two ditto wove with a wale, ſtriped, one red and blue, croſs-barr'd with white, the other blue and white, a check'd linen ſhirt, a woollen ditto, two pair of blue ſtockings, a pair of new ſhoes, and a pair of ſheepſkin breeches. Whoever takes up ſaid apprentice and ſecures him in any of his Majeſty's goals, or returns him to his maſter, ſhall have Ten Dollars reward, and all neceſſary charges paid by me,

ADONIRAM GRANT.

N. B. All maſters of veſſels are forbid carrying off ſaid apprentice, on the penalty of the law.

NEW-MILFORD, Dec. 28, 1769.

On the 26 day of December inſt. at 6 o'clock afternoon, died inſtantly in the 60th year of his age, that mirror of chriſtianity, and ever affible man Deac. NATHAN GAYLORD, his death was ſurpriſing, as he had juſt left a public Meeting at the Town-Houſe, and walk'd about 60 rods to Lieut. Daniel Boſtwick's, where he had ſet with a number of his friends in free Diſcourſe, with a book in his hand, about ſix or ſeven minutes, when the book drop't out of his hand, he put his hand upon his forehead and ſaid, the LORD have mercy on me, and without the leaſt motion or ſtruggle, in a moment reſign'd his breath.——His remains were decently interred on this day—the univerſal eſteem, which his truly chriſtian, benevolent, candid and charitable department had gain'd to all parties, was viſible on this occaſion, there being the greateſt number of attendants on this ſolemnity that was ever obſerved in town.

_ No Poſts arrived at the publication of this paper.

" liverwort, cleaned, dried and powdered, half an ounce of black pepper powdered, two drachms (or a quarter of an ounce) mix theſe well together, and divide the powder into four doſes; one of which muſt be taken every morning, faſting, for four mornings ſucceſſively, in half a pint of Cows milk warm. After theſe four doſes are taken, the patient muſt go into the cold bath, or a cold ſpring or river, every morning faſting, for a month: he muſt be dipt all over, but not ſtay in (with his head above the water) longer than half a minute, if the water be very cold. After this he muſt go — three times a week for a fortnight longer." The above method, the learned doctor ſays, he can ſafely affirm, he has never known fail of ſucceſs, when it it has been followed before the Hydrophobia, or dread of water began; altho' in the courſe of about thirty years, (beſides the experience of others both in town and country) he had uſed it a thouſand times, and adds, that he had often wiſhed that he knew ſo certain a remedy in any other diſeaſe.——The great Botaniſt, Dr Dillenius, gives the following diſcription of the herb, or rather moſs, as he calls it, grows cloſe to the ground, chiefly on heaths and in woody ſhady places, near the roots and ſtumps of trees; which being commonly covered with creeping moſſy herbs, it ſticks to them when gathered, the leaves when young are ſmall, but grow two or three inches in length, and an inch or two in breadth divided into ſeveral ſegments, they are ſometimes ſingle, ſometimes lying upon one another. At their extremities they produce little hard oblong bodies, which Botaniſts call pettæ and are undoubtedly the ſeminal capſulæ the leaves when dry, are aſhcoloured, darker on the upper part, on the under lighter. Frequent veins are obſerved along them from which here and there run ſmall white fibres into the earth, the roots of the plant.

Liſt of Letters remaining in the Poſt Office, Hartford, March 5 1770.

MARTIN BULL, Farmington, Captain Daniel Bull Hartford, Caleb Bull, do. Edward Bulckley Weathersfield, Ebenezer Balch do Thomas Belding, Eſq. do. Jonathan Bull, Farmington, Giles Cone, Haddam, Eliphalet Dyer, Eſq; Windham, Ebenezer Devotion, jun. do. Eleazer Fitch, Eſq; do. Daniel Foot, Eſq; Colcheſter, Timothy Hall, jun. Glaſtenbury, William Hooker, Hartford, Miriam Harper, Eaſt Windſor, Richard Hale, Coventry, Richard Magee, Eaſt-Hartford, Eliſha Root, Farmington, Capt. Jonathan Reynolds Weathersfield. Nathaniel Stilman, do. Allyn Stilman, do. Samuel Smith, Farmington. Hugh Thompſon, Ellington, Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Eſq; Lebanon, Dr. Edward Tudor, Windſor, Dyer Throop, Eſq; Haddam. Rev. Roger Viets, Simſbury, Rev. Eliphalet Williams, E Hartford. Ezekiel Williams, Eſq; Weathersfield Capt. David Webb, do.

N. B. Thoſe who are indebted to the Subſcriber for Poſtage of Letters, are deſired to ſettle the ſame immediately,

W. ELLERY.

TEN DOLLARS REWARD.

RUN AWAY the night after the firſt inſt. from the ſubſcriber in Toland, an apprentice boy named Uriah Croſs, about 20 years of age, five feet and four inches high, thick ſet, wears his own dark colour'd hair, his left hand ſomething withered, a ſcar on the ſame, and another on his left elbow, had with him when he went away, a great coat, a ſtrait bodied coat, and a looſe veſt, all grey homeſpun kearſey, a black ſearge veſt, two ditto wove with a wale, ſtriped, one red and blue, croſs-barr'd with white, the other blue and white, a check'd linen ſhirt, a woollen ditto, two pair of blue ſtockings, a pair of new ſhoes, and a pair of ſheepſkin breeches. Whoever takes up ſaid apprentice and ſecures him in any of his Majeſty's goals, or returns him to his maſter, ſhall have Ten Dollars reward, and all neceſſary charges paid by me,

ADONIRAM GRANT.

N. B. All maſters of veſſels are forbid carrying off ſaid apprentice, on the penalty of the law.

NEW-MILFORD, Dec. 28, 1769.

On the 26 day of December inſt. at 6 o'clock afternoon, died inſtantly in the 60th year of his age, that mirror of chriſtianity, and ever affible man Deac. NATHAN GAYLORD, his death was ſurpriſing, as he had juſt left a public Meeting at the Town-Houſe, and walk'd about 60 rods to Lieut. Daniel Boſtwick's, where he had ſet with a number of his friends in free Diſcourſe, with a book in his hand, about ſix or ſeven minutes, when the book drop't out of his hand, he put his hand upon his forehead and ſaid, the LORD have mercy on me, and without the leaſt motion or ſtruggle, in a moment reſign'd his breath.——His remains were decently interred on this day—the univerſal eſteem, which his truly chriſtian, benevolent, candid and charitable deportment had gain'd to all parties, was viſible on this occaſion, there being the greateſt number of attendants on this ſolemnity that was ever obſerved in town.

 No Poſts arrived at the publication of this paper.

Whereas John Ledyard, Eſq; hath this day taken out Letters of Adminiſtration on the eſtate of Captain John Coleman, late of Hartford deceas'd, and repreſented the ſame inſolvent, and the honorable the Judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, thereupon appointed us the Subſcribers Commiſſioners to examine and adjuſt the claims of the ſeveral creditors to ſaid eſtate; and hath allowed eight months for the doing of the buſineſs, &c. We do therefore hereby notify the ſaid creditors, that we ſhall attend the buſineſs of our ſaid appointment on the firſt mondays in every of the ſucceeding months, till the expiration of ſaid eight months at the office of Tho. Seymour, one of the Commiſſioners in ſaid Hartford.

Thomas Seymour,
Richard Edwards, } Commiſſioners
George Smith.

Hartford, Feb. 15, 1770.

RAN-AWAY

From his maſter Epaphras Bull, of Hartford, in Connecticut on the night of the 12th inſt. one WILLIAM DAWSON by name, who was aſſigned to him in ſervice, by the hon County Court for the County of New London. in November laſt, for the term of fifteen years, upon a proſecution and conviction then had againſt him for Theft He is a perſon about thirty years old, five feet and about ſeven inches high thin viſage, but well ſett, of a light complexion, light hair, which he wore, grey eyes; of good addreſs, has been a traveller, and of Iriſh extract. Had on when he went off and carried with him, a brown bearſkin ſurtout, ſhort green coat, black under veſt, black Mancheſter breeches, poor ſhoes, grey ſtockings, & a caſtor hatt, that has had a lace ſewed upon it. Whoever will apprehend and ſecure the Runaway, in any of his Majeſty's Goals on this continent, ſhall upon notice and application to his ſaid maſter, be intitled to the one half of the term of his ſaid ſervice. And as the ſaid Dawſon is ſuppoſed to be of the party and gang of villains, that have long infeſted the roads and country from Philadelphia to New-York, Connecticut, Rhode Iſland and Boſton, it is very probable he may ſoon alter his dreſs and appearance, and the public are deſired to be very vigilant in their obſervations, leaſt he eſcape their notice. EPAPHRAS BULL.

Hartford, Feb. 13,

WHEREAS his excellency Benning Wentworth, Eſq; late governor of the province of New-Hampſhire, purſuant to order receiv'd from his Majeſty, granted to a number of his Majeſty's liege ſubjects about 140 townſhips of land then lying in ſaid Hampſhire province, weſt of Connecticut river, and eaſt of the line of the province of New-York, and north of the line of the Maſſachuſetts Bay government, which grants being made agreeable to ſaid orders from his Majeſty; in conſequence whereof conſiderable ſettlements have been made on ſaid land, by the proprietors to whom ſaid grants were made. And whereas by means of ſome repreſentations ſince made to his Majeſty, he has been pleas'd to annex the ſaid land to the province of N. York, ſince which the governor of New-York hath re-granted a conſiderable part of thoſe lands to other Perſons, to the excluſion of the original proprietors, under the ſaid governor Wentworth. And whereas the claimers under the governor of N. York have began to eject many of the ſettlers upon the ſaid Hampſhire governors grants and more ſuits are ſoon expected to be commenced againſt the ſaid Hampſhire claimants. And it being thought grievous, burthenſome and unjuſt, that any one ſhould be obliged to defend ſaid Hampſhire title alone, ſeeing ſo many are alike intereſted in the cauſe.——Therefore at a meeting of a conſiderable number of ſaid Hampſhire proprietors held in Sharon, in Litchfield county, on the 23d day of January 1770, it was agreed, that a general meeting of the ſaid Hampſhire claimants be warned by advertiſements in the public prints of this and the neighbouring governments, to be held on the 2d Thurſday of March next, at the houſe of Charles Burrall, Eſq; in Canaan, to conſult and agree upon the beſt method to defend ſaid Hampſhire title. Therefore all the ſaid Hampſhire proprietors are hereby deſired by themſelves or their agents, to attend ſaid meeting at the ſaid time and place, for the ſaid purpoſe.

WANTED a Perſon Skilled in making REEDS, in the beſt manner.——Enquire of the PRINTERS.

TO BE SOLD BY

PETER VERSTILLE,

At his Store in Weathersfield, the following GOODS, at the loweſt Prices, for CASH only, viz.

CRimſon and other Broad Cloths Scarlet Green & Blue Ratteens German Serges Cloth colour'd Kerſeys Red Blue and Brown Half Thicks Sagathys and Duroys Bazies Shalloons ſorted. Tammys, ditto. Durants, ditto Calamincoes, do Camblets, Plain & figur'd Cambletteens Dorſetteens. Hungarian Stuffs. Poplins, Miffinetts, Dreſdinetts, Grazetts, Bruſhoes, Black Silk Crapes, ditto Bombazeens Black and Cloth colour'd Drawboys Brown and Olive colour'd Fuſtians Brown and White Stay Buckrams. Black figur'd Laſtings Cotton Checks of all widths Red & White & Blue & White Stripe'd Hollands Black White Crimſon, Green Blue and Purple Pelong Sattins. Shear and Thick Muſlins Cambricks and Lawns, Black and White Parſinetts Black & White Catgutts, Black & White Plain Gauze Black & White figur'd ditto Black and Crimſon Capuchine Silk Men's & Women's Leather Gloves and Mitts Women's Silk Gloves and Mitts 3 4 & 7 8 Bed Ticking. A fine Aſſortment of Chintz and Calicoes Black and Colour'd Barcelona Hankerchiefs Black Gauze Handkerchiefs Linnin and Silk ditto Black Cravatts Black Crimſon and Scarlet Snail Trimming Head

Flowers, Necklaces and Ribbands, Silver Tippits and Turbands, Cap Wires, Velvet Maſks, Sattin Hatts & Bonnetts Black Ducape Cloth colour'd and changeable Luteſtrings, Brown Taffiy, Martineco Luteſtrings, Silk and Cotton ditto. Paddleſtick Fans, and other ditto. Damaſcus and Soſeas for Waiſtcoats, Black & White Laces. Silk Stay ditto. 3-4 7 8 and Yard Wide Hollands and Dowlas, Womens Shoes Ruſſia Linnin and Diapers White figur'd Dimothy's, Mens and Womens Thread Cotton and Worſted Hoſe, Black Blue Purple and cloth colour'd Breaches Patterns, Looking Glaſſes, Chaiſe and Hunting Whips, Bohea Tea, Coffee, Ginger, Allſpice, Nutmegs, Cloves, Cinnamon, Men's Caſtor and Felt Hatts, Flower Lawn & Kenting Handkerchiefs, Ferrits and Galloons, Shoe and Quality Bindings, Horn, Mettle, Twiſt and Baſket Buttons, Beſt G. B. Wool and Cotton Cards, Beſt Kippens and Tillocks Snuff, Allom, Coppetas, Brimſtone, Redwood, Logwood, Rice, &c. Sowing Silk Cruel, Twiſt ſorted, Horn & Ivory Combs, Tapes, Pins Needles, Writing and Preſs Paper, Paper Hangings for Rooms, Pewter & Braſs, Shoe & Knee Buckles, Bellows, Nails and an Aſſortment of Hard Ware.

N. B. Ticklinburgs and Oznbrigs, by the Bolt, and Ravens Duck by the piece.

BY Order of the Hon. Judge of Probates for the Diſtrict of Hartford, to be ſold at Publick Vendue, at the Houſe of Mr. David Bull, Innholder in ſaid Hartford, all the Real eſtate of Levi Jones late of Hartford deceas'd (repreſented Inſolvent) By us the Subſcribers, on Thurſday the 1ſt of March next.

Daniel Goodwin, } Adminiſ-
Samuel Marſh. } trators.

N. B. All perſons inclining to purchaſe at private ſale may do it by applying to the ſubſcribers before the Day of ſale.

Lately Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Printing Office in Hartford.

VISIBLE Saints lawful Right to Communion in Chriſtian Sacraments, Vindicated. (In Way of Anſwer to a Sermon, entitled, Chriſtian Baptiſm, delivered at Hanover, in New Jerſy, Nov. 4th, 1764. By the Rev. Jacob Green, A. M. In a Letter to a Friend. In three parts.

By GEORGE BECKWITH, A.M.

Paſtor of a Church in Lyme, Connecticut.

WHereas there is a conſiderable number of the inhabitants of the town of Hartford, that have not paid their Country RATES to me the ſubſcriber. Thoſe on the Weſt ſide of the River, are hereby notified and deſired, to meet me at the Dwelling-Houſe of Mr. Moſes Butler, innholder in Hartford on Tueſday the 13th day of March next, and ſettle the ſame, as they would avoid having their names put into this paper, have or the whole penalty of the law exacted. And thoſe on the Eaſt ſide of the River, are deſired to meet me at my own houſe on Thurſday the 15th day of ſaid March, & ſettle their Rates, or expect immediate trouble. LEMUEL WHITE, Collector.

Hartford, Feb. 21. 1770.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

WE the Subſcribers being appointed Commiſſioners, to receive and examine the claims of the creditors of the eſtate of John Lee Sherman, late of Saliſbury in Litchfield County deceas'd. We ſhall attend that buſineſs at the Dwelling-Houſe, of capt Samuel Moore, Innholder in ſaid Saliſbury, on the firſt and ſecond Tueſday's in April next, from two of the clock in the afternoon of ſaid days until ſeven.

Joſhua Jewel, } Commiſ-
Thomas Chittenden. } ſioners.

Febr. 20. 1770 270

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by the Printers hereof price Half a Piſtareen,

Obſervations on a

Pamphlet entitled,

Remarks on Dr. GALE's Letter to J. W. Eſq; Sign'd E. D. of which The Hon. ELIPHALET DYER, Is the reputed Author.

Shewing, from the Matters therein contained, that ſuch an Imputation is highly injurious to the Character of that worthy Patriot.

By Benjamin Gale, A. M.

From the lateſt London Print.

A SOLILOQUY.

——" I have deſerved the affections of my ſ——s and will rely upon them. Our happineſs is interwoven, is incorporated. God has joined them together: let no mortal therefore dare to put them aſunder. To exert p——ve to its full extent, would be to procure a divorce. To exert it in a caſe, in which I have no immediate concern, would be to forfeit what I value more than life—the confidence of future p——s, and even the confidence of future ſ——s in general. It is both my intereſt & my duty to prevent the three eſt—s from encroaching upon the province of each other. With what face, then can I begin the encroachment, or depart from the c——l line which terminates the ſphere of my p——ve? The liberties taken with the preſent H—— of —— deſerve no countenance, as they have no foundation; general cenſure is no cenſure at all; it is a tribute which often attends deſert. All p——s have been blamed more or leſs, and till there be a poſſibility of meeting with one that ſhall pleaſe all parties, it would be in vain to ſtruggle for it. The very impoſſibility is a ſtrong proof of the flouriſhing ſtate of freedom. It is only in a ſtate of ſlavery that all ſubjects are of one opinion. I ſhould be poor indeed, if the fortune which made me a —— forbad me to have a friend. Every one of my ſ——s is my friend; and I am, and will be, his! Thoſe who are convinced that the eſtabliſhment of the family of —— was neceſſary to the ſupport of their civil and religious liberties, were my friends, and muſt ſtill be ſo. I deſire no other th—e than the hearts of my p——e; and whilſt I ſecure that, ſhall fear no r——n from a conviction, that the ſame principles, which brought my a——s to the cr——n, will always be powerful enough to keep in my ſ—y."

Dec, 14. Since Mr. Wilkes's confinement in the King's Bench, Mr. Humphry Coates's bill, for Wines, ſupplied him during that period, is no leſs than 500 l.

The bill brought in by Mr. Wilkes's attorney s, ſaid to amount to 1500 l.

LONDON,

Nov. 9. A noble Lord who is going abroad, as ſome ſay for recovery of his health, has, we hear, in reward for his ſervices to the Public, obtained a grant of lands from the Crown, on which it is propoſed to erect a ſumptuous edifice (not in honour of the peace) for his own reſidence. The ſituation is in Hyde-Park, nearly oppoſite conſtitution Hill Gate.

Nov. 10. A letter from Leghorn, dated Oct. 20, ſays. "Mr. Dick and Mr. Udney, Engliſh conſuls, the one in this City and the other at Venice, have received orders from their court, to cauſe all the ſhips of their nation, to obſerve a perfect neutrality in the war between Ruſſia and the Ottoman Porte."

Advice is ſaid to be received, that when the laſt expreſs arrived at Smyrna from Conſtantinople, the banner of Mahomet had been diſplayed from the top of the tower of the grand Signor's Seraglio, which was never done but in the moſt dangerous inſurrections.

MONDAY March 12, 1770. Numb 272.

2

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

by Shaw

To the IMPARTIAL PRINTERS,
in the Colony of Connecticut.
You are requeſted to inſert the following in your several papers.

A Report was ſome time ſince, with active zeal, circulated in this colony, that the gentleman who now holds the firſt dignity therein, was intereſted in, and unfriendly to the government reſpecting the Maſon or Mohegan cauſe, now pending in Great-Britain; the reverſe of which was ſo notoriouſly true, that it ſeem'd impoſſible the ſlander ſhould make much impreſſion, or be worthy of contradiction. But, ſurprizing as it is, the ſame ſtory is ſaid to be new vamped and ſpreading with ſucceſs to ſeveral parts of Connecticut; and it ſeems but the part of a friend to juſtice and to mankind, to detect and expoſe the fallacy of every evil report, calculated to injure the character of any of our fellow men and eſpecially of a ruler of the people; and happily in this inſtance it is many ways in my power, but perhaps by none more effectually, than the following extract from a letter, lately received, from Dr. Johnſon, the worthy excellent agent of this colony, at the Britiſh court. Speaking of other [illegible] ſervices the honourable gentleman aforementioned had done for this colony, he ſays,

——“In the Mohegan cauſe, in which “I was very particularly obliged to obſerve
“every thing that occurred, he diſcovered
“great extent of knowledge, exact attenti-
“on and ſound judgment. In that intereſting “buſineſs (and it is as perplexed an affair
“as can almoſt be met with) I am very ſure
“the colony and the proprietors of the land,
“are much indebted to him for his good “ſervices,” and adds, “here I cannot be “miſtaken.”

I confeſs I have not the Doctors leave to publiſh the above, nor believe he had any thoughts of its ſeeing the light, but as to do to others, as we would they ſhould do to us, is a dictate of heaven, which approves itſelf to the reaſon and conſcience of every man, and as the greateſt integrity and innocence are no ſhield againſt the ſly aſſaults of detraction, and none can tell who is next to be wounded by its invenomed darts; I doubt not but he, and every worthy man will excuſe, and juſtify the liberty I venture to take——I know not whether the abovementioned report has yet reached the gentleman who is the ſubject of it, but I am certain that he is a perfect ſtranger to the letter referred to, its contents, and this publication.

HONESTUS.

Kingſton, (Jamaica) 23 December.

A Gentleman from Cuba, ſays, it was reported there, that general O'Rieley having married in Old Spain, the Dutcheſs of Jamaica, (ſo called there) by whom he had a Son: His Catholic Majeſty had offer'd him both Men and Money, when ever he ſhould think proper to make a Deſcent on that Iſland, to recover his Wife's Fortune, in favour of his Son.

The Spaniſh Guarda Coſtas have taken at Rio de la Hache, the following Veſſels, viz. two Sloops, Rutherford and Calves, from Jamaica, and a Schooner, Blanchard, from Hiſpaniola, with Proviſions for that River; and a Schooner, Brookman, from Hiſpaniola for Coracoa with Cotton.

Nov. 23. Yeſterday came down near the Eaſt End of the Iſland, two large ſhips, ſuppoſed, from the Number of Men and Guns, to be Spaniſh men of War; a Pilot boat belonging to Port-Royal ſeeing them lie to, ſuppoſing they wanted to come in, came up and put a Negro Pilot on Board the largeſt Ship; they immediately fill'd their Sails, ſtood off, carrying away the Pilot.

We have advice from the Moſquito Shore, that a Conſpiracy has been formed by the Spaniards, and Muſketo Indians, and a day fixed, to cut off the Engliſh ſettlers on that coaſt.

CHARLES TOWN, (So. Carolina) Jan. 2.

Our Advices from New-Orleans, that Gen. O'Reily, with all the Troops under his Command, except as a Garriſon, were gone back to Cuba; other Accounts ſay the troops only were gone, and that the General would go in two or three Months; others that, he and the troops were to go in that Time: And that Don Lewis De Anzares, had, or was to have, command of the troops and Government. About fifty French Soldiers had entered into the Spaniſh Service, were ſent up the Miſſiſippi, to garriſon a Fort on that River, oppoſite to the Illinois, under the Command of Mr. St. Ange.

Jan. 4. Laſt Thurſday Dec. 23. landed here, from on board the Brice, Capt. Muir, from Briſtol, Sir William Draper, Knight of the Bath, accompanied by Richard Collins, Eſq; a Capt. in his Majeſty's Navy, and his Lady, intending to make the tour of America. The Reports of Sir William's coming in a public character, were not true.

This Day put in here, the Schooner Nelly, Capt. Cavendon, from North Carolina, bound to Philadelphia, but blown off. Yeſterday ſailed for London, the Ship London, Alexander Curling, Maſter, having on board one of the richeſt Cargoes ſhipped ſince the Peace, viz. 368 caſks, containing 139,134 lb. Indigo; 26 Hhds. and 200 Bundles Deer Skins; 10 caſks containing 4000 lb. Bees-Wax, 4 caſks Pot-Aſh, 65 Barrels of Rice; 900 Barrels of Pitch; one Bag of Cotton; 4 Pipes and 2 Hhds. Madeira Wine; 17 Tons Brazilletto Wood; and of return'd Goods 5 Bales of Cloth, one Bale and one Caſk Silks, and William Henry Drayton, Eſq; Author of ſeveral political Pieces, remarkable for their elaborate Inconſiſtency, in Oppoſition to the patriotic Meaſures of his Countrymen, and the conſtitutional Rights and Liberties of all Engliſh America. This Gentleman's obſtinate perverſeneſs, threw him into the Moſt ridiculous Diſtreſs imaginable. It appears by his own petition to the Aſſembly, that (tho' he is a man of Fortune, and reckon'd one of the firſt Rank in the Province) he was ſhunned as an infected Perſon, condemned to Solitude in the Midſt of a populous City, and juſtly excluded from all ſocial Intercourſe. His Diſtreſs is a ſtriking Proof of the Efficacy of the Non-Importation Agreement, and an honourable Teſtimony of the Virtue and Integrity of thoſe concern'd in it.——His complaint ſeems ſomething ſimilar to that made to Samuel by Saul——That God had forſaken him.

We are told that the Brice, Capt. Muir, from Briſtol, has brought only 46 Packages of European Goods, and all enumerated in the Reſolutions. The Nancy, Capt. Jordan, from London, no Goods but Furniture and Baggage belonging to the Paſſengers.——The Jenny, Hunter, from Liverpool, Salt and a few other Articles, all enumerated, and the Induſtry, Kenny, from London, no Goods of any kind.

A great number of Settlers from the North of Ireland are arrived here.

Jan. 25. A new Pilot Boat belonging to Meſſrs. Waldrons, which had been miſſing ever ſince the 13 was on Thurſday laſt found on ſhore on the back of Coffin Land; two white men and two Negroes, who were in her, were drown'd. The Bodies of the two white Men and one Negro, have been found and inter'd.

Feb. 2. There was a general Meeting of the Inhabitants, at Liberty Tree on Tueſday laſt, in order to determine upon ſome matters of Difficulty relative to the general Agreement for Non-importation. When it was unanimouſly voted, That 100 pipes of Wine from Teneriffe, imported by Mr. Gillon, ſhould be ſtored, not to be uſed before a general Importation takes Place,——or to be re-ſhip'd; and effectual Meaſures were agreed upon to bring delinquents to reaſon, to prevent the Importation, buying or ſelling of goods contrary to the Agreement, brought by tranſient Perſons, or others, from the Colonies or any other Place; and a fix'd Determination appear'd in the Inhabitants of the Province to continue free from the ſmalleſt Violation of their Agreement. The Non-Subſcribers have tried every art to elude the Effects of it, and, diſpoſe of their Goods, Produce &c. but in vain——as they have refuſed to conform to the Meaſures neceſſary for the Preſervation of the Society, they are juſtly excluded from the Benefits of it——Their Intercourſe with it is cut off, and every one refuſes to buy of, or deal with them, or even with any Perſon who can be diſcover'd to act for them.

Several thouſand Pounds Sterling worth of Britiſh Goods not admiſſible by our agreement, which have been ſent here in Hopes of a Market, are now in Store, there to remain till a general Importation takes Place, or to be ſent back; among which is a Parcel lately brought from Rhode-Iſland, from which Place all Veſſels will be watched with particular Vigilance.

This Week 24 Caſks of Wine 40 Caſks of Raiſins from Boſton, and 3 Negroes from Jamaica, were re-ſhipped for the ports from whence they came. [The Carolina Papers contain a more particular account of the proceedings of this Meeting, which were conducted with the greateſt Coolneſs and Regularity. But we have not room for the Account.]

Martial Law was proclaimed the 23d of December laſt in Jamaica, it is ſaid under ſome apprehenſion from the enterpriſing Diſpoſition of Gen. O'Reily, who was returned to Havana, leaving only 500 Troops at New Orleans.

BOSTON March 5 1770;

One day laſt week a Soldier who has long paſſed for the bully of the 29th Regiment, bought two baskets of Charcoal from a Stoughton Man and in payment offered him a Piſtereen in lieu of a Shilling Sterl. which the man refuſed, and inſiſted on his money or the return of his coal. The Soldier denied to do either, on which the charcoal man ſaid he would take it out of his Hide, rather than trouble himſelf much about it. To which the Bully very readily agreed and was laid ſprawling at every paſs, till quite tired of the diverſion he profeſſed his ſatisfaction, took his fellow combattant to an ale houſe, and amicably ſettled the diſpute.

Not quite ſo fortunate were two of theſe Don Quixote adventurers, who fell upon a young man walking quietly near the lower end of Kingſtreet and ſtopping him in his way, inſulted him with very opprobrious language, on which after a very ſhort parley he laid both ſprawling, and went about his buſineſs. Two or three more ſuch rencounters having happened lately. 'Tis ſaid many of the 29th Regt. have armed themſelves with bludgeons of about two feet long, a round handle, and the body of the club three ſquare. With ſuch weapons as theſe, ſwords and cutlaſſes, on Friday laſt, about 11 o'clock, they made a formal attack on the Rope walk of John Gray; one of them appearing firſt, & complaining that ſome of their people had affronted him, & declared he would have ſatiſfaction. The workmen not much attending to him, he grew very abuſive, and challenged any one in the ropewalk to turn out and fight him; one of the hands ſtep'd out to him very ſpeedily tript up his heels and took his ſword from him. He than went from them, and ſoon returned with 8 or 9 more, armed as aforeſaid, asking very haughtily, why he had been uſed in that manner? The anſwers probably not pleaſing the gentlemen ſoldiers, (as it ſeems they affect to ſtile themſelves) they fell upon the ropemakers, who being accidentally well provided for their reception, made it neceſſary for the whole body to march in queſt of auxiliaries. Recruited to the number of 30 or 40, they viſited the ropewalk, and challenged any or all of the workmen to come out and fight them. This offer was readily embraced, & notwithſtanding the ſoldiers were three to one, prepared on purpoſe, they were beat off, many of them much bruiſed, and 2 or 3 of the workmen ſlightly wounded.

Mr. Juſtice Hill came up as this laſt riotous multitude advanced, told them he was in commiſſion of the Peace, and commanded them to go to their barracks. In this exerciſe of his duty he was ſtruck at by one of them with a club, which had it reached him might have been fatal; and ſo daring was this fellow, that in the Magiſtrate's preſence, he knocked down a laborer, dragged him about, and beat and abuſed him much in deſpite of the Juſtice's utmoſt interpoſition. No leſs audacious was the behavior of a tall Negro Drummer, to whom JuſticeHill particularly ſpoke, ordering him home, but he intent on wounding, or probably killing the Inhabitants, head ed the party ſword in hand, but had his ſword beat from his hold, which however being chained to his body he carried with him. He is ſaid to be much wounded.

This gallant party aſſaulted many ſingle perſons in the ſtreet, as they returned from the battle, but did no conſiderable damage as we learn.

Between 5 and 6 the ſame evening; a large body of them collected again, and were in full march for the field of battle; when Mr. John Gray, owner of the walks, met them, and diverted their intention for that evening. But on Saturday, about half after 4, three ſtout grenadiers, armed with bludgeons as above deſcribed, came into the bottom of the walks, and finding three young men ſpinning together unarmed, accoſted them in theſe moſt impudent words. 'You d——n'd dogs, don't you deſerve to be kill'd?' The lads not anſwering, Mr. James Young came up and ſpoke boldly, on which a grenadier aimed a blow at his head, but Mr. Young fended it off with his arms; he then turned from Young and made a paſs at Mr. Archibald M'Neil, jun. which he avoided, otherwiſe believes it might have killed him. During this bluſter one of Mr. W. Calef's journeymen went into the tan houſe, got two batts, and giving one to his comrade, ſoon cleared the walks of the ſoldiers.——

The Remains of young Snider, the unfortunate Boy who was barbarouſly murdered the 22d of February laſt, was decently interred the Monday following——His tragical Death and the peculiar Circumſtances attending had touched the Breaſts of all with the tendereſt Sympathy, a few only excepted, who have long ſhewn themſelves to be void of the Feelings of Humanity. The little Corps was ſet under the Tree of Liberty, from whence the Proceſſion began. About Five Hundred School Boys preceeded; and a very numerous Train of Citizens followed, in the Eſtimation of good Judges, at leaſt Two Thouſand of all Ranks amidſt a Crowd of Spectators; who diſcovered in their Countenace and Deportment the evident Marks of true Sorrow.

The Pall was ſupported by ſix youths choſen by the Parents of the deceaſed. Upon the Foot of the Coffin was an Inſcription in Silver'd Letters Latet Anguis in Herba! Intimating that in the gayeſt Seaſon of Life and amidſt the moſt flattering Scenes, without the leaſt Apprehenſion of an evil Hour, we are expoſed to the unſeen arrows of Death: The Serpent is lurking in the Graſs, ready to infuſe his deadly Poiſon!—Upon each Side Haret Lateri Lethalis Arundo! In Engliſh, The fatal Dart is fix'd in his Breaſt! And on the head was another Inſcription, Innocentia NUSQUAM tuta! The original Sentiment revers'd; and denoting that we are fallen into the moſt unhappy Times, when even Innocence itſelf is no where ſafe!

Upon this very ſorrowful occaſion, and during the Solemnity, the Sons of Liberty order'd a board to be affix'd to Liberty Tree, inſcribed with the following Quotations from the ſacred writings, which perhaps cannot eaſily be miſapplied.

Thou ſhalt take no Satiſfaction for the Life of a Murderer;——He ſhall ſurely be put to Death.

Though Hand join in Hand the Wicked ſhall not paſs unpuniſhed.

The Memory of the Juſt is Bleſſed.

BOSTON, March 5.

Thurſday laſt Capt. Paddock, in a Schooner, arrived here from London.

The Parents of the unfortunate Youth who was lately murder'd, have deſired in this public Way to acknowledge with Gratitude the Reſpect ſhewn to their Son by the Attendance of ſo great a number of the Friends of Liberty, at his Funeral on monday laſt.

We can aſſure the Public, that a Monument will be erected over the Grave of young Snider, with an inſcription, to perpetuate his Memory: A Number of patriotic Gentlemen have generouſly ſubſcrib'd for that purpoſe——It is ſaid it will be done in an elegant Simplicity, and that the overplus Money, if any, will be given to the Parents.

It is whiſpered that the Trial of Richardſon and Wilmot will be put off till——

Extract of a Letter from London, dated Dec. 6.

"The Publication of Bernard's Letters, &c. has been of Service to the American cauſe. I am glad to find Mr. Bowdoin make ſo reſpectable a Figure. Hope he will always be animated by a Spirit of Liberty, and ſteadily oppoſe every Encroachment attempted to be made upon the rights of mankind, whatever Reſentments he may thereby expoſe himſelf to. The loſs of a Place in the Council, upon that account for which he was excluded, inſtead of being a diſgrace, will prove a laſting honor to him.

"The ſucceſs of the Ruſſians ſome ſuppoſe will haſten on a peace between them and the Turks; but I am otherwiſe minded: For I take it, the former will now inſiſt on higher Terms than the latter will comply with; and thereby the War be prolong'd 'till other Powers are at length drawn in to take Part. We have had lately ſtrong rumours of a War with France; and notwithſtanding what is aſſerted of a contra Tendency by the Miniſterial Party, I can't but apprehend there is ſomething in the Wind.

"The French appear, by the Dutch Papers, which uſually furniſh good intelligence, to be fitting out a Fleet at Toulon; and if ſo, they mean to uſe it I am afraid they will be ready to ſtrike the firſt Blow before us. Hope the Colonies will be upon their Guard. I would have your Militia be as well diſciplin'd as the Regulars, and was I among them, ſhould be ambitious of ſeeing them excel."

To The KING's moſt excellent MAJESTY in Council.

The PETITION of Sir FRANCIS BERNARD, Bart. Governor of the Province of Maſſachuſetts-Bay.

Humbly Sheweth.

THAT your Majeſty's Petitioner having receiv'd notice from the office of one of your Majeſty's principal Secretaries of State that a Remonſtrance of the Houſe of Repreſentatives of the ſaid Province, containing divers charges againſt your Majeſty's petitioner, has been preſented to your Majeſty by the Agent of the ſaid houſe, and now lies before your Majeſty in your Privy Council, moſt humbly implores that your Majeſty will be graciouſly pleaſed to order an early Day for the hearing the examination of ſeveral Articles of Charge againſt your Petitioner; for although the ſaid houſe of Repreſentatives had the injuſtice to deny your Petitioner a Copy of the ſaid Remonſtrance when it paſſed that Houſe ſometime before the 15th day of July, and your Petitioner was not able to obtain ſuch Copy till the 27th Day of that Month, only three Days before your Petitioner embarked for England, thereby evidently intending to prevent your Petitioner from procuring ſuch Evidence of the Falſity of ſuch Complaint as might be neceſſary for his juſtification, yet your Majeſty's humble Petitioner has no doubt that he ſhall be well able to manifeſt to your Majeſty's ſatisfaction, by the help of ſuch papers as are now in his poſſeſſion, and may be obtained from your Majeſty's Offices here, the Falſity and Malice of the Charges alledged againſt him.

And your Petitioner as in duty bound ſhall ever pray, &c. FRA. BERNARD.

Sept. 23, 1769.

[We are authoriz'd to aſſure the Public, that a Copy of the Remonſtrance refer'd to in the above-mentioned Petition, never was denied to Gov. Bernard by the Houſe of Repreſentatives——That after the General Aſſembly was prorogued, and not before, the Governor ſent a Meſſage to the Clerk of the Houſe, deſiring a Copy of the Remonſtrance; & the ſame Day it was made out and delivered to the Gentleman whom the Governor directed to receive it.]

Extract of a letter from London, December 5, 1769.

"We are induced to believe that a War with France is not at a great Diſtance; this may perhaps expedite a Redreſs of the grievances you are under, but let us beg you to preſerve your Firmneſs, relax not one iota, till you are compleatly redreſs'd.

Extract of another Letter from London, Dec. 4.

"Your Spirit and conduct in returning the Britiſh Manufactures, is noble, and a People with ſuch a Temper of Mind will never be made Slaves by any Set of men whatever."

Extract of another Letter from London, dated in Dec.

"Bernard was at Court laſt Week, and very little attended to; and I am told attends the Doors of the Great frequently without admiſſion.

"the Torrent of Petitions from every County praying for a Diſſolution of Parliament, muſt be laid before them; it is hoped ſome impeachments will take place, which there is great reaſon to believe will be the caſe, if there is virtue enough in the Houſe of Commons to proceed with Spirit."

Extract of another letter from a Gentleman in London to his Friend in Boſton, dated 4th December 1769, by Capt. Paddock.

"The Parliament has not yet been called, and it is generally believed, if it is not diſſolved, that it will not meet till the latter end of January.

"The preſenting petitions ſtill goes on, the one from the County of Buckingham was Yeſterday preſented to the King by my Lord Temple, notwithſtanding ſome obſtacles which 'tis ſaid were purpoſely thrown in his Way.

"Your Bernard has got into his Friend Paxton's old lodgings in Pall Mall; he appears to be greatly dejected, and certainly is very much neglected.

"It is ſaid that Mr. G. Grenville and Lord Shelburne are determined that he ſhall be at the Bar of a certain Houſe, to account for certain Repreſentations made to Government while they were in adminiſtration——Hallowell is with him; the Treaſury have removed the latter to ſome Office in New-Hampſhire Province; will he be ſafe there?"

HARTFORD, March 12.

Laſt Wedneſday night, Mr. ELISHA PAINTER of New-Haven Merchant, was Married to Miſs HANNAH SEYMOUR, daughter of THOMAS SEYMOUR, Eſq; late of this Town deceas'd, a young Lady richly furniſhed with every Qualification neceſſary to render the married State moſt agreeable and happy.

By an Expreſs from Boſton to N. York, who went through this town on Friday laſt, we learn, That on Monday Evening laſt, a Captain of the Regulars ordered a ſmall Detachment of the Soldiers from the Guard, and drew them up oppoſite the Cuſtom-Houſe in King-ſtreet Boſton. A Number of the Inhabitants being in the Street, the Captain ordered his Men to fire—in Obedience to which Command, the Soldiers diſcharg'd their Pieces, and kill'd four Perſons on the Spot, and wounded a Number of Others, ſome of whom are ſince dead of their Wounds. For a more particular Account of this tragical Affair muſt wait the Arrival of the Thurſday's Poſt from Boſton, when we ſhall be able to give our Readers further Intelligence.

Laſt Tueſday one Joſeph Humphrys of Simſbury, by ſome accident fell from his horſe, which wounded him to that degree that he died the Friday following.

A few days ſince, Mr. David Judſon of Woodbury, kill'd a calf only two years old, which weigh'd as follows, viz.

Tallow - - -	101
Hide - - -	128
Quarters - - -	927
In all - - -	1156 lb.

☞ We acknowledge the receipt of the piece ſign'd UNANIMOUS, and hope the author will not think us partial, in not publiſhing it, when we aſſure him that the only reaſon for its being omitted this day is, that it contains ſome reflections on a certain Aſſembly, which if publiſhed, would expoſe us to cenſure: however, this objection will be removed, and the piece inſerted, as ſoon as the author makes himſelf known to the Printers.

LOST

LAST Wedneſday, ſuppos'd about FOUR POUNDS lawful mony, of Paper Bills, wrapt up in a News-Paper.——Whoever has found the ſame, and will return it to the Subſcriber, ſhall be handſomely rewarded.

JAMES BUNCE.

Hartford, March 12, 1770.

AT the Upper Mills in Hartford Farmers may receive Money for a quantity of good clean WHEAT, from Three Shillings and Nine pence to Four Shillings a Buſhel, as the quality of the wheat is——about five hundred Buſhels, wanted to manufacture for a trvel.

TO THE PUBLIC.

MY laſt advertiſement not giving the ſatiſfaction I hoped, ſhall not adopt that plan, but continue to ride in the ſame manner as before, once a fortnight.——ALL perſons indebted to me are deſired to ſettle their accounts, thoſe that were to pay in Flax and Grain, are requeſted to bring them immediately, or I muſt be obliged to purchaſe them of others with Caſh, in which caſe I muſt exact the money of them——I ſhall refuſe no kind of Species that may be brought me, deſigning to make the pay as eaſy to my cuſtomers as poſſible.

WILLIAM STANTON.

Will be ſold at PUBLIC VENDUE, on Tueſday the third day of April next, at the houſe of Col. Marſh, Innholder in Litchfield.

ABOUT One Hundred Acres of good Land, part whereof is under improvement, with a convenient dwelling houſe thereon, now in the poſſeſſion of Joel Clemons, and which is advantageouſly ſituated about three miles weſt of the Court-Houſe in Litchfield, near the Iron-Works, on the New-Milford road——Said ſale will be made for caſh in hand, by

OLIVER WOLCOTT.

March 3, 1770.

Notice is hereby given that RUTH, the wife of Aaron Bacon, late of Litchfield, hath abſented herſelf from my bed and board, and I am thoughtful that ſhe is determining to run me in debt——Theſe are therefore to forbid any perſon crediting her on my account, for I am determined not to pay any debt that ſhe ſhall contract.

AARON BACON.

Whereas John Ledyard, Eſq; hath this day taken out Letters of Adminiſtration on the eſtate of Captain John Coleman, late of Hartford deceas'd, and repreſented the ſame inſolvent, and the honorable the Judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, thereupon appointed us the Subſcribers Commiſſioners to examine and adjuſt the claims of the ſeveral creditors to ſaid eſtate; and hath allowed eight months for the doing of the buſineſs, &c. We do therefore hereby notify the ſaid creditors, that we ſhall attend the buſineſs of our ſaid appointment on the firſt mondays in every of the ſucceeding months, till the expiration of ſaid eight months at the office of Tho. Seymour, one of the Commiſſioners in ſaid Hartford.

Thomas Seymour,
Richard Edwards, } Commiſſioners
George Smith.

Hartford, Feb. 15, 1770.

BOSTON, Feb. 26 1770.

LAST Thurſday Morning about 10 o'clok, ſome boys & children ſet up a large wooden Head, with a Board faced with paper on which was painted the figures of four of the Importers, who had entered into, and violated the Merchants agreement, in the middle of the ſtreet before Theophilus Lillie's door, who was one of them. Soon after it was ſet up, Ebenezer Richardſon, the famous Informer, came by, and endeavoured to perſuade a countryman to overturn it with his waggon: which he refuſing, he applied to a Charcoal man to drive his Cart againſt it; but he ſaid he had no buſineſs with it, and would not concern himſelf about it. Richardſon (as the boys ſay) preſſed him to it, ſaying he was a magiſtrate in the town, and would bear him out in it: The man ſtill denying to meddle therewith, Richardſon laid hold on the horſe & oxen and endeavoured to ſhove them upon the pole which ſupported the peageantry; the cart however paſſed without diſturbing it: Richardſon then left the place and came towards his own houſe at about 50 or 60 paces diſtance and meeting with Meſſrs. Edward Proctor, Thomas Knox, Capts. Riordon and Skillings, faced them in a very impudent manner, & cry'd out, perjury! perjury! often repeating it as he paſſed them. The gentlemen halted in the ſtreet, till getting within his door, he turned about and again repeated the inſult. Mr. Proctor with the other Gentlemen ſtep'd towards the door, and aſked him what he meant by perjury? He ſaid, I don't mean you Mr. Proctor, but looking ſpitefully on Mr. Knox, ſaid d—mn you, perjury, villains! Mr. Knox retorted the abuſe; on which Richardſon ſaid, by the eternal G—d, I will make it too hot for ſome of you before night! The boys on hearing the words began to gather round, and call him informer; on which both he and his wife, or woman, went out and talked to them in a very provoking manner, flouriſhing their arms, and advancing out into the ſtreet, with high threatnings; on which the children would retreat, and on their return, advance, with the ſqueeling and noiſe they uſually make on ſuch occaſions. This farce ſoon made a notable deverſion in favour of Mr. Lillie, Mr. Richardſon and Lady having drawn the whole attention on themſelves. The Boys at length began to throw light rubbiſh of one kind or other, as if to drive them into the houſe; this the woman often returned, till the matter became more earneſt. They then retreated into the houſe, and ſpeedily Richardſon opened the door, and ſnapp'd a gun preſented upon the people indiſcriminately. This raiſed them ſo much that they then pelted the houſe, and broke ſome of the windows——In a few minutes after this, Richardſon fired out of one of the windows among the people and wounded Mr. Sammy Gore, ſon of Capt. John Gore, thro' both thighs and two fingers of his right hand, beſides which, drove (one would think) a moderate charge into the breaſt and abdomen of Chriſtopher Snider, a boy about 11 years of age, who lived with Madam Apthorp. The child fell, but was taken up carried into a neighbouring houſe, where all the ſurgeons within call were aſſembled, & ſpeedily determined the wounds mortal, as they indeed proved about 9 o'clock that evening. The people on hearing the report of the gun, ſeeing one wounded and another as they thought killed, got into the new brick meeting and rang the bell, on which they had ſoon company enough to beſet the houſe front and rear; by the latter of which they entered, and notwithſtanding the menaces of Richardſon & his faithful aider and abettor, George Wilmot, ſeized on both, and wrenched a gun from the latter, heavily charged with powder, and cram'd with 179 gooſe and buck ſhot.

'Tis ſaid that ſome Perſons went into Richardſon before he fired, and diſſuaded him from it, but the event ſhewed he was not to be diverted from his deſign. The criminals were firſt carried before Mr. Juſtice Ruddock, who was pleaſed to ſend them to Faneuil-Hall, under a ſufficient guard, where three other magiſtrates, Richard Dana, Edmund Quincy, and Samuel Pemberton, Eſqrs, with Mr. Ruddock, took their examination before at leaſt a thouſand people, and committed them. The numberleſs affronts and abuſes both theſe perſons had heaped on the inhabitants, exaſperated them to ſuch a pitch, that had not Gentlemen of influence interpoſed, they would never have reached the priſon; but to the ſatisfaction of every good man, they are now in ſafe cuſtody, where we leave them, to obſerve, that ſoon after the Child's deceaſe, his body was opened by Doct. Warren, and others, and in it were found 11 ſhot or ſlugs, about the bigneſs of large peas, one of which pierced his breaſt about an inch and half above the midriff, and paſſing clear thro' the right lobe of the lungs, lodged in his back. This, three of the Surgeons depoſed before the Jury of Inqueſt, was the cauſe of his death; on which they brought in their verdict wilful murder by ſaid Richardſon. The right hand of the boy was alſo cruelly torn, whence it ſeems to have been acroſs his breaſt, and to have deadned the force of the ſhot, which might otherwiſe have pierced the ſtomach.

Doct. Warren likewiſe cut two ſlugs out of young Mr. Gore's thighs, but pronounced him in no danger of death, though in all probability he will loſe the uſe of the right fore finger, by the wound received there; much important to a youth of his dexterity in drawing and painting.——

Liſt of Letters remaining in the Poſt Office, Hartford, March 5. 1770.

MARTIN BULL, Farmington, Captain Daniel Bull Hartford, Caleb Bull, do. Edward Bulckley Weathersfield, Ebenezer Balch do. Thomas Belding, Eſq; do. Jonathan Bull, Farmington, Giles Cone, Haddam, Eliphalet Dyer, Eſq; Windham, Ebenezer Devotion, jun. do. Eleazer Fitch, Eſq; do. Daniel Foot, Eſq; Colcheſter, Timothy Hall, jun. Glaſtenbury, William Hooker, Hartford, Miriam Harper, Eaſt-Windſor, Richard Hale, Coventry, Richard Magee, Eaſt-Hartford, Eliſha Root, Farmington, Capt. Jonathan Reynolds Weathersfield, Nathaniel Stilman, do. Allyn Stilman, do. Samuel Smith, Farmington, Hugh Thompſon, Ellington, Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Eſq; Lebanon, Dr. Edward Tudor, Windſor, Dyer Throop, Eſq; Haddam, Rev. Roger Viets, Simſbury, Rev. Eliphalet Williams, E. Hartford, Ezekiel Williams, Eſq; Weathersfield Capt. David Webb, do.

N. B. Thoſe who are indebted to the Subſcriber for Poſtage of Letters, are deſired to ſettle the ſame immediately.

W. ELLERY.

RAN-AWAY

From his maſter Epaphras Bull, of Hartford, in Connecticut, on the night of the 12th inſt, one WILLIAM DAWSON by name, who was aſſigned to him in ſervice, by the hon County Court for the County of New London, in November laſt, for the term of fifteen years, upon a proſecution and conviction then had againſt himſelf for Theft. He is a perſon about thirty years old, five feet and about ſeven inches high thin viſage, but well ſett, of a light complexion, light hair, which he wore, grey eyes; of good addreſs, has been a traveller, and of Iriſh extract. Had on when he went off, and carried with him, a brown bearſkin ſurtout, ſhort green coat, black under veſt, black Mancheſter breeches, pair ſhoes, grey ſtockings, & a caſtor hatt, that has had a lace ſewed upon it. Whoever will apprehend and ſecure the Runaway, in any of his Majeſty's Goals on this continent, ſhall upon notice and application to his ſaid maſter, be intitled to the one half of the term of his ſaid ſervice. And as the ſaid Dawſon is ſuppoſed to be of the party and gang of villains, that have long infeſted the roads and country from Philadelphia to New-York, Connecticut, Rhode Iſland and Boſton, it is very probable he may ſoon alter his dreſs and appearance, and the public are deſired to be very vigilant in their obſervations, leaſt he eſcape their notice. EPAPHRAS BULL.

Hartford, Feb 13.

TEN DOLLARS REWARD.

RUN AWAY the night after the firſt inſt. from the ſubſcriber in Toland, an apprentice boy named Uriah Croſs, about 20 years of age, five feet and four inches high, thick ſet, wears his own dark colour'd hair, his left hand ſomething withered, a ſcar on the ſame, and another on his left elbow; had with him when he went away, a great coat, a ſtrait bodied coat, and a looſe veſt, all grey homeſpun kearſey, a black ſearge veſt, two ditto wove with a wale, ſtriped, one red and blue, croſs-barr'd with white, the other blue and white, a check'd linen ſhirt, a woollen ditto, two pair of blue ſtockings, a pair of new ſhoes, and a pair of ſheepſkin breeches. Whoever takes up ſaid apprentice and ſecures him in any of his Majeſty's goals, or returns him to his maſter, ſhall have Ten Dollars reward, and all neceſſary charges paid by me,

ADONIRAM GRANT.

N. B. All maſters of veſſels are forbid carrying off ſaid apprentice, on the penalty of the law.

WHEREAS his excellency Benning Wentworth, Eſq; late governor of the province of New-Hampſhire, purſuant to order receiv'd from his Majeſty, granted to a number of his Majeſty's liege ſubjects about 140 townſhips of land then lying in ſaid Hampſhire province, weſt of Connecticut river, and eaſt of the line of the province of New-York, and north of the line of the Maſſachuſetts Bay government, which grants being made agreeable to ſaid orders from his Majeſty; in conſequence whereof conſiderable ſettlements have been made on ſaid land, by the proprietors to whom ſaid grants were made. And whereas by means of ſome repreſentations ſince made to his Majeſty, he has been pleas'd to annex the ſaid land to the province of N. York, ſince which the governor of New-York hath re-granted a conſiderable part of thoſe lands to other Perſons, to the excluſion of the original proprietors, under the ſaid governor Wentworth. And whereas the claimers under the governor of N. York have began to eject many of the ſettlers upon the ſaid Hampſhire governors grants, and more ſuits are ſoon expected to be commenced againſt the ſaid Hampſhire claimants. And it being thought grievous, burthenſome and unjuſt, that any one ſhould be obliged to defend ſaid Hampſhire title alone, ſeeing ſo many are alike intereſted in the cauſe.——Therefore at a meeting of a conſiderable number of ſaid Hampſhire proprietors held in Sharon, in Litchfield county, on the 23d day of January 1770, it was agreed, that a general meeting of the ſaid Hampſhire claimants be warned by advertiſements in the public prints of this and the neighbouring governments, to be held on the 2d Thurſday of March next, at the houſe of Charles Burrall, Eſq; in Canaan, to conſult and agree upon the beſt method to defend ſaid Hampſhire title. Therefore all the ſaid Hampſhire proprietors are hereby deſired by themſelves or their agents, to attend ſaid meeting at the ſaid time and place, for the ſaid purpoſe.

MONDAY MARCH 19, 1770.

Numb 273.

THE

Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

By the Boſton Poſt who came to Town on Thurſday laſt, we have the following Account of the late Tragical Affair which happened there the 5th Inſtant, VIZ.

BOSTON, March 12.

THE Town of Boſton affords a recent and melancholy Demonſtration of the deſtructive conſequences of quartering Troops among Citizens in a Time of Peace, under a Pretence of ſupporting the Laws and aiding Civil Authority; every conſiderate and unprejudic'd Perſon among us was deeply impreſt with the Apprehenſion of theſe Conſequences when it was known that a Number of Regiments were ordered to this Town under ſuch a Pretext, but in Reality to inforce oppreſive Meaſures; to awe and controul the legiſlative as well as executive Power of the Province, and to quell a Spirit of Liberty, which however it may have been baſely oppos'd and even ridicul'd by ſome, would do Honour to any Age or Country. A few Perſons amongſt us had determin'd to uſe all their Influence to procure ſo deſtructive a Meaſure with a View to their ſecurely enjoying the Profits of an American Revenue, and unhappily both for Britain and this Country they found means to effect it.

It is to Governor Bernard, the Commiſſioners, their Confidents and Coadjutors, that we are indebted as the procuring Cauſe of a military Power in this Capital——The Boſton Journal of Occurrences, as printed in Mr. Holt's York Gazette, from Time to Time, afforded many ſtriking Inſtances of the diſtreſſes brought upon the Inhabitants by this Meaſure; and ſince thoſe Journals have been diſcontinued, our Troubles from that Quarter have been growing upon us: We have known a Party of Soldiers in the face of Day fire off a loaden Muſket upon the Inhabitants, others have been prick'd with Bayonets, and even our Magiſtrates aſſaulted and put in danger of their Lives, when Offenders bro't before them have been reſcued; and why thoſe and other bold and baſe Criminals have as yet eſcaped the Puniſhment due to their Crimes, may be ſoon Matter of Enquiry by the Repreſentative Body of this People——It is natural to ſuppoſe, that when the Inhabitants of this Town ſaw thoſe Laws which had been enacted for their Security, & which they were ambitious of holding up to the Soldiery, eluded, they ſhould more commonly reſent for themſelves——and accordingly it has ſo happened; many have been the Squabbles, between them and the Soldiery; but it ſeems their being often worſted by our Youth in thoſe Rencounters, has only ſerv'd to irritate the former——What paſſed at Mr. Gray's Rope-walk, has already been given the Public, and may be ſaid to have led the Way to the late Cataſtrophe——That the Rope walk Lads when attacked by ſuperior Numbers ſhould defend themſelves with ſo much Spirit and Succeſs in the Club-way, was too mortifying, and perhaps it may hereafter appear, that even ſome of their Officers were unhappily affected with this Circumſtance: Divers Stories were propagated among the Soldiery, that ſerv'd to agitate their Spirits; particularly on the Sabbath, that one Chambers, a Sergeant, repreſented as a ſober Man, had been miſſing the preceeding Day, and muſt therefore have been murdered by the Townſmen; an Officer of Diſtinction ſo far credited this Report, that he enter'd Mr. Gray's Rope-walk that Sabbath; and when required of by that Gentleman as ſoon as he could meet him, the Occaſion of his ſo doing, the Officer reply'd, that it was to look if the Serjeant ſaid to be murdered had not been hid there; this ſober Serjeant was found on the Monday unhurt, in a Houſe of Pleaſure——The Evidences already collected ſhew, that many Threatnings had been thrown out by the Soldiery, but we do not pretend to ſay that there was any preconcerted Plan, when the Evidences are publiſhed, the World will judge——We may however venture to declare, that it appears too probable from their conduct, that ſome of the Soldiery aimed to draw and provoke the Townſmen into Squabbles, and that they then intended to make uſe of other Weapons than Canes Clubs or Bludgeons.

Our Readers will doubtleſs expect a circumſtantial Account of the tragical Affair on Monday Night laſt; but we hope they will excuſe our being ſo particular as we ſhould have been, had we not ſeen the Town was intending an enquiry and full Repreſentation thereof.

On the Evening of Monday, being the 5th Current, ſeveral Soldiers of the 29th Regiment were ſeen parading the Streets with their drawn Cutlaſſes and Bayonets, abuſing and wounding Numbers of the Inhabitants.

A few minutes after nine o'clock, four youths, named Edward Archbald, William Merchant, Francis Archbald, and John Leech, jun. came down Cornhill together, and ſeparating at Doctor Loring's corner, the two former were paſſing the narrow alley leading to Murray's barrack, in which was a ſoldier brandiſhing a broad ſword of an uncommon ſize againſt the walls, out of which, he ſtruck fire plentifully. A perſon of a mean countenance armed with a large cudgel bore him company. Edward Archbald admoniſhed Mr. Merchant to take care of the ſword, on which the ſoldier turned round and ſtruck Archbald on the arm, then puſhed at Merchant and pierced thro' his cloaths inſide the arm cloſe to the arm pit and grazed the ſkin. Merchant then ſtruck the ſoldier with a ſhort ſtick he had, & the other Perſon ran to the barrack & bro't with him two ſoldiers, one armed with a pair of tongs the other with a ſhovel: he with the tongs purſued Archbald back thro' the alley, collar'd and laid him over the head with the tongs. The noiſe bro't people together, and John Hicks, a young lad, coming up, knock'd the ſoldier down, but let him get up again; and more lads gathering, drove them back to the barracks where the boys ſtood ſome time as it were to keep them in. In leſs than a minute 10 or 12 of them came out with drawn cutlaſſes, clubs and bayonets, and ſet upon the unarmed boys and young folks, who ſtood them a little while, but finding the inequality of their equipment diſperſed.——On hearing the noiſe, one Samuel Atwood, came up to ſee what was the matter, and entering the alley from dock ſquare, heard the latter part of the combat, and when the boys had diſperſed he met the 10 or 12 ſoldiers aforeſaid ruſhing down the alley towards the ſquare, and aſked them if they intended to murder people? They anſwered Yes, by G—d, root and branch! With that one of them ſtruck Mr. Atwood with a club, which was repeated by another, and being unarmed he turned to go off, and received a wound on the left ſhoulder which reached the bone and gave him much pain. Retreating a few ſteps, Mr. Atwood met two officers and ſaid, Gentlemen, what is the matter? They anſwered, you'll ſee by and by. Immediately after, thoſe heroes appeared in the ſquare, asking where were the boogers? But notwithſtanding their fierceneſs to naked men, one of them advanced towards a youth who had a ſplit of a raw ſtave in his hand, and ſaid damn them here is one of them; but the young man ſeeing a perſon near him with a drawn ſword and good cane ready to ſupport him, held up his ſtick in defiance, and they quietly paſſed by him up the little alley by Mr. Silſby's to Kingſtreet, where they attacked ſingle and unarmed perſons till they raiſed much clamor, and then turned down Cornhill ſtreet, inſulting all they met in like manner, and purſuing ſome to their very doors. Thirty or forty perſons, moſtly lads, being by this means gathered in Kingſtreet, Capt. Preſton, with a party of men with charged bayonets, came from the main guard to the Commiſſioners houſe, the ſoldiers puſhing their bayonets, crying, Make way! They took place by the cuſtom-houſe, and continuing to puſh to drive the people off, pricked ſome in ſeveral places; on which they were clamorous, and, it is ſaid, threw ſnow balls. On this, the Captain commanded them to fire, and more ſnow-balls coming, he again ſaid, damn your Fire, be the conſequence what it will! one ſoldier then fired, and a townſman with a cudgel ſtruck him over the hands with ſuch force that he dropt his firelock; and ruſhing forward aimed a blow at the Captain's head, which graz'd his hat and fell pretty heavy upon his arm: However, the ſoldiers continued the fire, ſucceſſively, till 7 or 8, or as ſome ſay 11 guns were diſcharged.

By this fatal manœuvre, three men were laid dead on the ſpot, and two more ſtruggling for life; but what ſhewed a degree of cruelty unknown to Britiſh troops, at leaſt ſince the houſe of Hanover has directed their operations, was an attempt to fire upon or puſh with their bayonets the perſons who undertook to remove the ſlain and wounded!

Mr. Benjamin Leigh, undertaker in the Delph Manufactory, came up, and after ſome converſation with Capt. Preſton, relative to his conduct in this affair, adviſed him to draw off his men, with which he complied.

The dead are Mr. Samuel Gray, killed on the ſpot, the ball entering his head and beating off a large portion of his ſkull.

A mulatto man, named Criſpus Attucks, who was born in Framingham, but lately belonged to New Providence and was here in order to go for North Carolina, alſo killed inſtantly; two balls entering his breaſt one of them in ſpecial goring the right lobe of the lungs, and a great part of the liver moſt horribly.

Mr. James Caldwell, mate of Capt. Morton's veſſel, in like manner killed by two balls entering his back.

Mr. Samuel Maverick, a promiſing youth of 17 years of age, ſon of the widow Maverick, and an apprentice to Mr. Greenwood, Ivory-Turner, mortally wounded a ball went through his belly, & was cut out at his back: He died the next morning

A lad named Chriſtopher Monk, about 17 years of age, an apprentice to Mr. Walker Shipwright; wounded, a ball entered his back about 4 inches above the left kidney, near the ſpine, and was cut out of the breaſt on the ſame ſide; apprehended he will die.

A lad named John Clark, about 17 years of age, whoſe parents live at Medford and an apprentice to Capt. Samuel Howard of this town; wounded, a ball entered juſt above his groin and came out at his hip, on the oppoſite ſide, apprehended he will die.

Mr Edward Payne, of this town, Merchant, ſtanding at his entry door, received a ball in his arm, which ſhattered ſome of the bones.

Mr. John Green, Taylor coming up Leverett's Lane, received a ball juſt under his hip, and lodged in the under part of his thigh, which was extracted.

Mr. Robert Patterſon a ſeafaring man who was the perſon that had his trowſers ſhot through in Richardſon's affair, wounded; a ball went through his right arm, and he ſuffered great loſs of blood.

Mr. Patrick Carr, about 30 years of age, who work'd with Mr. F—d, Leather Breeches maker in Queen-ſtreet wounded, a ball enter'd near his hip and went out at his ſide.

A lad named David Parker, and apprentice to Mr. Eddy the Wheelwright, a ball entered in his thigh.

The People were immediately alarmed with the Report of this horrid Maſſacre, the Bells were ſet a Ringing, & great Numbers ſoon aſſembled at the Place where this tragical Scene had been acted; their Feelings may be better conceived than expreſs'd; and while ſome were taking Care of the Dead and Wounded, the Reſt were in Conſultation what to do in thoſe dreadful Circumſtances.——But ſo little intimidated were they, notwithſtanding their being within a few Yards of the Main-Guard, and ſeeing the 29th Regiment under Arms, and drawn up in King Street; they kept their Station and appear'd as an Officer of Rank expreſs'd it, ready to run upon the very Muzzles of their Muſkets.——The Lieut. Governor ſoon came into the Town-Houſe, and there met ſome of his Majeſty's Council, and a number of Civil Magiſtrates; a conſiderable Body of the People immediately entered the Council Chamber, and expreſſed themſelves to his Honor with a Freedom and Warmth becoming the occaſion. He uſed his utmoſt Endeavours to pacify them, requeſting that they would let the matter ſubſide for the Night, and promiſing to do all in his Power that Juſtice ſhould be done, and the Law have its Courſe; Men of Influence and Weight with the People were not wanting on their part to procure their Compliance with his Honour's Requeſt by repreſenting the horrible Conſequences of a promiſcuous and raſh Engagement in the Night, & aſſuring them that ſuch Meaſures ſhould be entered upon in the Morning, as would be agreeable to their Dignity, and a more likely way of obtaining the beſt Satiſfaction for the Blood of their Fellow-Townſmen.——The Inhabitants attended to theſe Suggeſtions, and the Regiment under Arms being ordered to their Barracks, which was inſiſted upon by the People, they then ſeparated & returned to their Dwellings by One o'Clock. At 3 o'Clock Capt Preſton was committed, as were the Soldiers who fir'd, a few Hours after him.

Tueſday morning preſented a moſt ſhocking Scene, the Blood of our Fellow Citizens running like Water thro' King-Street, and the Merchants Exchange the principal Spot of the Millitary Parade for about 18 Months paſt: Our Blood might alſo be track'd up to the Head of Long Lane, and through divers of other Streets and paſſages.

At eleven o'clock the inhabitants met at Faneuil-Hall, and after ſome animated ſpeeches becoming the occaſion, they choſe a committee of 15 reſpectable Gentlemen to wait upon the Lieut. Governor in Council, to requeſt of him to iſſue his Orders for the immediate removal of the troops.

The Meſſage was in theſe Words:

THAT it is the unanimous opinion of this meeting that the inhabitants and ſoldiery can no longer live together in ſafety; that nothing can rationally be expected to reſtore the peace of the town & prevent further bloodſhed and carnage, but the immediate removal of the Troops; and that we therefore moſt fervently pray his Honor that his power and influence may be exerted for their inſtant removal.

His Honor's Reply, which was laid before the Town then adjourn'd to the Old South Meeting-Houſe, was as follows,

Gentlemen,

I AM extremely ſorry for the unhappy differences between the inhabitants and troops, and eſpecially for the action of the laſt evening, and I have exerted myſelf upon that occaſion that a due enquiry may be made, and that the law may have its courſe. I have in council conſulted with the commanding officers of the two regiments who are in the town. They have their orders from the general at New-York. It is not in my power to countermand theſe orders. The Council have deſired that the two regiments may be removed to the Caſtle. From the particular concern which the 29th regiment has had in your differences, Col. Dalrymple who is the commanding officer of the troops has ſignified that that regiment ſhall without delay be placed in the barracks at the Caſtle until he can ſend to the general and receive his further orders concerning both the regiments, and that the main guard ſhall be removed, and the 14th regiment ſo diſpoſed and laid under ſuch reſtraint that all occaſion of future diſturbances may be prevented.

The foregoing Reply having been read and fully conſidered——the queſtion was put, Whether the Report be ſatiſfactory? Paſſed in the Negative, (only 1 diſſentient) out of upwards of 4000 Voters.

It was then moved and voted John Hancock Eſq; Mr Samuel Adams, Mr. William Molineux, William Phillips Eſq; Dr. Joſeph Warren, Joſhua Henſhaw, Eſq; and Samuel Pemberton, Eſq; be a Committee to wait on his Honour the Lieut. Governor, and inform him, that it is the unanimous Opinion of this Meeting, that the Reply made to a Vote of the Inhabitants preſented his Honor in the Morning, is by no Means ſatisfactory; and that nothing leſs will ſatisfy, than a total and immediate removal of all the Troops.

The Committee having waited upon the Lieut. Governor agreeable to the foregoing Vote; laid before the Inhabitants the following Vote of the Council received from his Honor.

His Honor the Lieut. Governor laid before the Board a Vote of the Town of Boſton, paſſed this Afternoon, and then addreſſed the Board as follows.

Gentlemen of the Council,

"I lay before you a Vote of the town of Boſton, which I have juſt now received from them, and I now aſk your Advice what you judge neceſſary to be done upon it."

The Council thereupon expreſſed themſelves to be unanimouſly of opinion, "that it was abſolutely neceſſary for his Majeſty's ſervice, the good order of the Town, and the Peace of the Province, that the Troops ſhould be immediately removed out of the Town of Boſton, and thereupon adviſed his Honor to communicate this Advice of the Council to Col. Dalrymple, and to pray that he would order the Troops down to Caſtle-William." The Committee alſo informed the Town, that Col. Dalrymple after having ſeen the Vote of Council, ſaid to the Committee, "That he now gave his word of Honor that he would begin his Preparations in the Morning, and that there ſhould be no unneceſſary delay until the whole of the two Regiments were removed to the Caſtle."

Upon the above Report being read, the Inhabitants could not avoid expreſſing the high Satiſfaction it afforded them.

After Meaſures were taken for the Security of the Town in the Night by a ſtrong Military Watch, the Meeting was Diſſolved.

The 29th Regiment have already left us, and the 14th Regiment are following them, ſo that we expect the Town will ſoon be clear of all the Troops. The wiſdom and true Policy of his Majeſty's Council and Col. Dalrymple the Commander appear in this Meaſure. Two Regiments in the midſt of this populous City; and the Inhabitants juſtly incenſed: thoſe of the neighbouring Towns actually under Arms upon the firſt Report of the Maſſacre, & the Signal only wanting to bring in a few Hours to the Gates of this City many Thouſands of our brave Brethren in the Country, deeply affected with our Diſtreſſes, and to whom we are greatly obliged on this Occaſion—No one knows where this would have ended, and what important Conſequences even to the whole Britiſh Empire might have followed, which our Moderation and loyalty upon ſo trying an Occaſion, and our Faith in the Commander's Aſſurances have happily prevented.

Laſt Thurſday, agreeable to a general Requeſt of the Inhabitants, and by the Conſent of Parents and Friends, were carried to their Grave in Succeſſion, the Bodies of Samuel Gray, Samuel Maverick, James Caldwell, and Criſpus Attucks, the unhappy Victims who fell in the bloody Maſſacre of the Monday evening preceeding!

On this Occaſion moſt of the Shops in Town were ſhut, all the Bells were ordered to toll a ſolemn Peal, as were alſo thoſe in the neighbouring Towns of Charleſtown, Roxbury, &c. The Proceſſion began to move between the Hours of 4 and 5 in the Afternoon; two of the unfortunate Sufferers, viz. Meſſ. James Caldwell and Criſpus Attucks, who were Strangers, borne from Faneuil-Hall, attended by a numerous Train of Perſons of all ranks; and the other two, viz. Mr. Samuel Gray, from the Houſe of Mr. Benjamin Gray, (his Brother) on the North ſide, the Exchange, and Mr. Maverick, from the Houſe of his diſtreſſed Mother Mrs. Mary Maverick, in Union Street, each followed by their reſpective Relations and Friends: the ſeveral Hearſes forming a Junction in King Street, the Theatre of that inhuman Tragedy! proceeded from thence thro' the Main-Street, lengthened by an immenſe Concourſe of People, ſo numerous as to be obliged to follow in Ranks of ſix, and brought up by a long train of Carriages belonging to the principal gentry of the Town. The Bodies were depoſited in one Vault in the middle Burying-ground; The aggravated Circumſtances of their Death, the Diſtreſs & Sorrow viſible in every Countenance, together with the peculiar Solemnity with which the whole Funeral was conducted, ſurpaſs Deſcription.

With fire enwrapt, ſurcharg'd with ſudden death,
Lo, the pois'd tube convolves it's fatal breath
The flying ball with heav'n directed force,
Rids the free ſpirit of it's fal'en corſe.
Well fated ſhades! let no unmanly tear
From pity's eye diſtain your honor'd bier:
Loſt to their view, ſurviving friends may mourn,
Yet o'er thy pile ſhall flames celeſtial burn;
Long as in Freedom's cauſe the wiſe contend,
Dear to your country ſhall your fame extend,
While to the world the letter'd Stone ſhall tell,
How Caldwell, Attucks, Gray and Mav'rick fell.

A military watch has been kept every night at the town-houſe and priſon, in which many of the moſt reſpectable gentlemen of the town have appeared as the common ſoldier, and night after night have given their attendance.

A Servant Boy of one Manwaring the Tide-waiter from Quebec is now in Goal, having depoſed that himſelf, by the order and Encouragement of his Superiors had diſcharged a Muſket ſeveral Times from one of the Windows of the Houſe in King-Street, hired by the Commiſſioners and Cuſtom Houſe Officers to do their Buſineſs in; more than one other Perſon ſwore upon Oath, that they apprehended ſeveral Diſcharges came from that Quarter.——It is not improbable that we may ſoon be able to account for the Aſſaſſination of Mr. Otis ſome Time paſt; the Meſſage by Wilmot, who came from the ſame Houſe to the infamous Richardſon before his firing the Gun which kill'd young Snider, and to open up ſuch a Scene of Villainy acted by a dirty Banditti, as muſt aſtoniſh the Public.

NEW-YORK, March 8.

By a Gentleman that left the Iſland of Jamaica January laſt, we have a Confirmation of a Spaniſh Veſſel carrying off one of their Pilots, but that he was ſoon ſent back, the veſſel having got in among the Keys, and was in real Diſtreſs, ſo that we have very little Reaſon to expect War on that Account.

HARTFORD, March 19.

The Public are caution'd to be- rare of falſe Paper Money, as there re Bills paſſing about of ſeveral Emiſſions and Denominations, which ave been altered from leſs to grea- er, particularly 1ſd. Bills into 10s: os. &c.) As there is a Reward of Ten Pounds offered by Govern- hent to whoever ſhall make Diſ- overy, ſo that the Perſons guilty f ſuch Practices may be convicted, is hoped ſome Perſon will be induced to detect the Authors of this Miſchievous Villany.

Inſerted by particular Deſire, as a Supplement to the Piece ſign'd A Freeman, inſerted in the Courant, No. 269.]

rom the NEW-LONDON GAZETTE.

To the PUBLIC.

Attended at the late meeting of the reſpectable body of merchants at Middletown, in the colony of Connecticut, on the 20th of February laſt; and it was too obvious not to be obſerved, that a few of thoſe ſort of people known by the name of Grumbletonians, attended ſaid meeting, on whom, and their conduct, I muſt beg leave to make a few remarks. The firſt was an elderly gentleman, who by the ſhaking of his head I judged to be turned of three ſcore and ten; and on my enquiring who he was, I was given to underſtand by one of my neighbours, that he was one of the firſt three of the g———n party in the colony of Connecticut, whom Mr. Freeman deſcribes as above; and on ſeeing him riſe and ſhake his venerable head, and ſpeak to the following effect, I thought my neighbour's knowledge of his true character was well grounded. He broke the ice (for it was in the winter) by ſaying, that he truſted that this was not intended for a political meeting, and that he hop'd there was no "politics in it," nor that there was no change of government affairs intended, &c. and that he hoped the meeting would act with a great deal of caution, and the like, and concluded at that time.——Indeed by the general run of his diſcourſe, I much doubted of his being a gentleman of liberal education, (but this I ſubmit to the gentlemen who heard him.)

I further obſerved, that this good old g———n gentleman, agreeable to his true g———n principle (which he and his party imbibe) ſpake and manifeſted his diſlike of every thing that was projected; which made me think of the man that in town-meeting deſired liberty to build a houſe on the ice; to which one of his neighbours, an old g———n, (for there were ſome of thoſe ſort of folks formerly, as well as at this day) ſaid, that if there was any privilege in granting him his requeſt, he thought that he had as good a right to it as any man in town.

A DREAM.

LAST Night as I lay in Bed, ruminating on the late Maſſacre (as we are inform'd by the Soldiers) of the Inhabitants of Boſton, and being anxiouſly concerned for the ſafety of ſome of my Friends there, I fell into a calm Slumber, and Dream'd, that the Inhabitants of Boſton had ſeiz'd all the C———rs of the Cuſtoms, their Servants, &c. (one only excepted) and had put them altogether into Leaden Canoes, with Iron Paddles, which they had previouſly prepared and had Reſhipp'd them Home, conſigned (as it is ſaid) with proper Credentials, either to the —— or G——— B———.

For the Solution of the above Dream, we impatiently wait the arrival of the Poſt, which is Hourly expected.

Hartford, March 13, 1770.

AT a general meeting of the proprietors of the ſeveral towns granted by his excellency Benning Wentworth, Eſq; late governor of the province of New Hampſhire, lying on the weſt ſide of Connecticut river, and north of the province of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, being warned by advertiſement in the ſeveral public papers in New England & New-York, and conven'd at the houſe of Charles Burrall, Eſq; in Canaan, on the 8th day of March, A.D. 1770. in order to agree upon the beſt method to defend ſaid Hampſhire grants, againſt other claimers that pretend to hold ſaid lands under patents from the governor of New-York.——Capt. Samuel Elmer was choſen Chairman, and Mr. Solomon Whitney was choſen Clerk.——Alſo, at the ſame meeting it was voted, that we will defend the ſaid Hampſhire title, to the utmoſt of our ability, againſt all other claimers whatever, as far as it can be defended by law or equity.——And whereas ſeveral writs of ejectments are now ſerved by thoſe claimants, under the governor of New York, on ſome of thoſe now ſettled on ſaid lands under ſaid governor Wentworth's grant, and money being now wanted to carry on and defend ſaid caſes, now depending: Therefore it is further voted and agreed, that each proprietor pay the ſum of half a dollar, on a right, to be uſed for the purpoſe of defending the ſaid cauſes depending; and that Capt. Stephen Fay of Bennington, Capt. David Wadkins of Arlington, Jeremiah French of Mancheſter, Benjamin Gardner of Pownel, Bliſs Willobough of Shaftſbury, Reuben Harman for Reufort and Poller, Thomas Bullen of Durham, John Strong of Paxton, Stephen Calkins of Derby, Capt. Samuel Elmer of Sharon, Charles Burrall, Eſq; of Canaan, Benjamin Ferris of the Oblong, Samuel Hungerford of New-Fairfield, Samuel Brown of Stockbridge, Samuel Averil of Kent, John Averts of Saliſbury, Phineas Sheldon of Suffield, John Burling of New York, Edward Burling of Weſt Cheſter, Ebenezer Fiſk of Farmington, Abraham Thomſon of New-Haven, Col. Nathan Stone, of Cumberland County, Col. —— Bailey of Oxbow Town, Daniel Rindie of Fairfield, and John Sharrer of Fiſh-Kills, a Committee to receive of each proprietor, the ſum of half a Dollar———to deliver the ſame to Charles Burrall, Eſq; who is appointed Treaſurer, and Receiver-General of all monies ſo collected; and ſaid Committe and Treaſurer, are hereby directed to apply ſo much of the money ſo collected, as he or they ſhall ſee needful, to the ſaid purpoſe of defending ſaid Hampſhire title.——And, the ſaid committee and treaſurer are to be accountable to this meeting, or to the ſaid proprietors that ſhall pay the ſame, for all monies ſo collected. And whereas the deciſion of the cauſes now depending, will probably be a preſident for the whole of ſaid lands, therefore it is ſtrongly recommended by this meeting to every proprietor, to pay ſaid ſum of half a dollar, ſince he will eventually, really pay it to defend his own rights.——Voted, that the proceedings of this meeting be printed in this and the neighbouring governments.

At the ſame time ſaid meeting, for a further conſultation on the affair before them, was adjourn'd to the ſecond Wedneſday of May next, at the houſe of Charles Burrall, Eſq; in ſaid Canaan.

The beforegoing is a true copy of the votes and agreements of ſaid Meeting.

Teſt, SOLOMON WHITNEY,
Clerk for ſaid Meeting.

A Letter from a married Daughter to her Mother.

My ever honoured and dear Mother,

WHEN I laſt paid my duty to you, at your houſe you aſked me what made me ſo dull and melancholy. The queſtion made my very heart bleed; and it was with much difficulty I compoſed myſelf, ſo as not to diſcover the anguiſh of my mind. But a wounded ſpirit, who can bear? Who can conceal? But leſt you ſhould be overwhelmed with my ſorrow, I can aſſure you, which is the only alleviation, it is n t my guilt, but my misfortune. To ſay all in a word, my huſband is unkind——Unkind did I ſay? He is cruel to himſelf, and in that unkind to me. You may read his deſtiny and the cauſe of my grief, in his face. I never ſaw him quite drunk, but often peeviſh or ſottiſh. When the horrors of poverty and diſgrace ariſe in my mind, I am all apprehenſion.—A thouſand diſmal phantoms croud upon my mind; and if I allow myſelf to anticipate the dreadful realities of his future doom, I am almoſt diſtracted. Dear Mamma, let your judicious pen afford ſome counſel, if no comfort, to your ſorrowful daughter.

The MOTHER's ANSWER.

My Deareſt Daughter,

YOUR caſe is indeed pitiable, and was it not alleviated by the conſideration you mention, as inſupportable by me, as it is by you. Therefore my preſent advice ſhall principally relate to yourſelf. And it may be comprehended in one word——Preſerve your own innocency.

Be not ſurpriſed at my advice. Grey-headed experience can inform of many temptations, that do not occur in younger life, eſpecially in the married ſtate.

Dulciſſa had as fair a character, in her maiden ſtate as any young lady in town. But when her huſband took to drinking, to relieve the anguiſh of her mind, ſhe fell into the ſame deteſtable vice herſelf. How doleful a ſight is a woman drunk! Nature don't afford ſo affecting a ſpectacle!

I confeſs, nothing can be imagined, that ought ſo ſenſible to touch a generous mind, as the conſideration of his own vicious practices, ruining a charming creature, that was the deſire of his eyes and the delight of his ſoul. But ſuch are generally void of this reflection; and the experiment is infinitely dangerous. But the more general folly is that of upbraiding, eſpecially in women of ſpirit: which has the ſame effect as pouring oil on fire. Therefore avoid all unkind treatment as you would a dagger pointed at your heart. There are, perhaps, no circumſtances in which a ſenſible, prudent woman can be placed, except jealouſy, that acquire more delicacy in a wife's conduct, than theſe we are conſidering. If ſhe loves her huſband, as ſurely ſhe ought, it will put her upon the conſtant exerciſe of that charity that covers a multitude of ſins; and engage her in the uſe of all the means that revelation and reaſon ſuggeſt to reclaim him. And in order to this, ſhe muſt endeavour to keep alive her affection for him, which will neceſſarily be in danger of being cooled if not quite extinguiſhed. But if that fatal criſis be not arrived, there may be ſome hope. As her tryals muſt be very great, ſhe muſt arm herſelf with meekneſs, patience and ſilence, without which nothing can avail. His temper muſt be ſtudied, and his humour complied with, as far as it innocently may. A little daſh of coquetry will ſometimes go farther, even with a man of ſenſe, than the graver arts of prudence and diſcretion. Never remonſtrate, but when he is in perfect good humour, and then do it with all the addreſs you are capable of. This requires every ſenſible art chaſtened with all the delicacy that Chriſtian purity inſpires, with a heart lifted up to that gracious Being, who bends a willing ear even to the interceſſions of ſinners, for thoſe more deeply involved, if made, in a penitent ſenſe of their own guilt, and an ardent deſire of the reformation of themſelves and others.

I know my daughter, this advice is croſs to fleſh and blood, and requires great fortitude of mind, as well as prudence. But I am perſuaded it will have a better effect than the maxims of the world. If you fail of ſucceſs, you cannot looſe your reward, for if your huſband is not the better man, you will certainly be a better woman; & enjoy peace & ſerenity of mind. The contrary courſe will be all ſtorm, horror and diſmal expectation, without the leaſt alloy.

A ſoft word breaketh the bone. He that ruleth his own ſpirit, is better than he that taketh a city: and ſhe that reclaimeth a vicious huſband, getteth to herſelf a pearl of great price, and her name ſhall be remembred with honour: She ſhall be numbered with Deborah, Judith and Mary. The angel of peace ſhall attend her. Glory ſhall dwell in her tent, and her lamp ſhall not be put out forever——The nobles of the land ſhall marry her daughters, and her ſons ſhall ſit in the ſeat of honour. Her beauty ſhall flouriſh like the tree of life, and ſhe ſhall be tranſplanted into the Paradiſe of God.

Your ſympathiſing, and affectionate Mother (Connecticut) Mary Wiſewood.

Farmington, March 10, 1770.

WE the Subſcribers being appointed by the Hon. Court of Probate for the Diſtrict of Farmington, Commiſſioners to receive and adjuſt the Claims of the Creditors to the Eſtate of Abigail Stedman, late of ſaid Farmington, deceaſed (repreſented inſolvent) we therefore hereby notify the Creditors to ſaid Eſtate, to bring in their Claims and Demands to us on the laſt Tueſdays of April and May next, at one of the Clock in the Afternoon on each Day at the Dwelling Houſe of Noah Woodruff in Farmington, at we will Attend the buſineſs on each of ſaid Days, at ſaid Time and Place.

Joſhua Woodruff, } Commiſ-
Gad Stanly. } ſioners.

Notice is hereby given that RUTH, the wife of Aaron Bacon, late of Litchfield, hath abſented herſelf from my bed and board, and I am thougtful that ſhe is determining to run me in debt——Theſe are therefore to forbid any perſon crediting her on my account, for I am determined not to pay any debt that ſhe ſhall contract.

AARON BACON.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

Will be ſold at PUBLIC VENDUE, on Tueſday the third day of April next, at the houſe of Col. Marſh, Innholder in Litchfield.

ABOUT One Hundred Acres of good Land, part whereof is under improvement, with a convenient dwelling houſe thereon, now in the poſſeſſion of Joel Clemons, and which is advantageouſly ſituated about three miles weſt of the Court-Houſe in Litchfield, near the Iron-Works, on the New-Milford road——Said ſale will be made for caſh in hand, by

OLIVER WOLCOTT.

March 3, 1770.

TO THE PUBLIC.

MY laſt advertiſement not giving the ſatiſfaction I hoped, ſhall not adopt that plan, but continue to ride in the ſame manner as before, once a fortnight.——ALL perſons indebted to me are deſired to ſettle their accounts, thoſe that were to pay in Flax and Grain, are requeſted to bring them immediately, or I muſt be obliged to purchaſe them of others with Caſh, in which caſe I muſt exact the money of them——I ſhall refuſe no kind of ſpecies that may be brought me, deſigning to make the pay as eaſy to my cuſtomers as poſſible.

WILLIAM STANTON.

Hartford, March 12, 1770.

AT the Upper Mills in Hartford Farmers may receive Money for a quantity of good clean WHEAT, from Three Shillings and Nine pence to Four Shillings a Buſhel, as the quality of the wheat is——about five hundred Buſhels, wanted to manufacture for a tryal.

LOST

LAST Wedneſday, ſuppos'd about FOUR POUNDS lawful mony, of Paper Bills, wrapt up in a News-Paper.——Whoever has found the ſame, and will return it to the Subſcriber, ſhall be handſomely rewarded.

JAMES BUNCE.

Lately Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Printing Office in Hartford.

VISIBLE Saints lawful Right to Communion in Chriſtian Sacraments, Vindicated. (In Way of Anſwer to a Sermon, entitled, Chriſtian Baptiſm, delivered at Hanover, in New Jerſy, Nov. 4th, 1764. By the Rev. Jacob Green, A. M. In a Letter to a Friend: In three parts.

By GEORGE BECKWITH, A.M.
Paſtor of a Church in Lyme, Connecticut.

WE the Subſcribers being appointed Commiſſioners, to receive and examine the claims of the creditors of the eſtate of John Lee Sherman, late of Saliſbury in Litchfield County deceas'd. We ſhall attend that buſineſs at the Dwelling-Houſe, of capt. Samuel Moore, Innholder in ſaid Saliſbury, on the firſt and ſecond Tueſday's in April next, from two of the clock in the afternoon of ſaid days until ſeven.

P.

Joſhua Jewel, } Commiſ-
Thomas Chittenden. } ſioners.

Febr. 20, 1770 270

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by the Printers hereof price Half a Piſtareen,

Obſervations on a
Pamphlet entitled,
Remarks on Dr. GALE's Letter to
J. W. Eſq; Sign'd E. D. of which
The Hon. ELIPHALET DYER,
Is the reputed Author.
Shewing, from the Matters therein contained, that ſuch an Imputation is highly injurious to the Character of that worthy Patriot.
By Benjamin Gale, A. M.

HARTFORD:
Printed by GREEN & WATSON,
near the Great-Bridge.

MONDAY MARCH 26, 1770.

Numb 274.

THE
Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

Meſſ. GREEN & WATSON,

Pleaſe to inſert in your next, the following Letter from the aſſociated Paſtors of the Church in Springfield, to the Elders and Meſſengers of the Churches convened at Somers, Sept. 20th, 1769.

Reverend and Beloved,

AS it is of importance to the intereſt of religion, that the churches of Chriſt ſhould maintain a harmony; ſo to this end, it is neceſſary there ſhould be a friendly correſpondence among their paſtors and repreſentatives, and that they ſhould be allowed freely, and without offence, to communicate their thoughts to each other, upon any matters which nearly concern the Kingdom of CHRIST.

Impreſs'd with theſe ſentiments, we write to you upon the ſubject of your late proceedings at Somers, not doubting but you, influenced by the ſame ſentiments, will receive our letter with candor.

We have been favoured with a ſight of your reſult of September laſt, in which we find ſome things quite unexpected to us, which we imagined proceeded from ſome miſtake, or want of due information, or from your not having time for a thorough conſideration of the ſtate of things at Somers. And we truſt you will not think it vanity or arrogance in us, if we ſuppoſe that by reaſon of our vicinity, we may in ſome reſpects, better underſtand the ſtate and circumſtances of the town than gentlemen at a conſiderable diſtance; though at the ſame time, we will not deny that the gentlemen at a diſtance, may be as impartial as thoſe in the vicinage. If then we can be ſo far aiding to each other, and to the town, that its true intereſt ſhall be promoted, it will be matter of joy.

You were convened at the call of a number of perſons that have ſeperated from the church and covenanted among themſelves, whom you call the congregational church explicitly covenanting.——You will allow us to ſay, gentlemen, we doubt the regularity of your call, which was neither by the town, nor by the church, but only by a ſeperate party: for we know of no eccleſiaſtical conſtitution, that provides for the calling an ordaining council in any other way than by the church, where there is a church incorporated; nor has any other uſage been known among us—nor does it appear to us reaſonable, that a party, ſeperating from the church and covenanting among themſelves, ſhould be allow'd to call a council to ordain a miniſter over the whole community, at leaſt ſo far as to ſubject them to the ſupport of him.

You have owned this ſeperate party as a regular church—Allow us to query, gentlemen, whether you were not too haſty? A church that has been long owned by ſiſter churches, is always to be preſumed regular, 'till ſhe appears otherwiſe: but a new church that ſets up in oppoſition to another, muſt appear regular before ſhe is acknowledged to be ſuch. We therefore beg leave to enquire, have you examined the manner in which, and the reaſons for which this new ſociety ſeperated? Have you given opportunity to their late brethren to offer their objections againſt them, and ſhow the irregularity of their conduct? Have you ſeen recommendations of particular members? Does it appear that none of them were ſcandalous, under cenſure, or inhabitants of other towns? We apprehend that theſe are things proper to be enquired into.

This new ſociety has in fact either with or without cauſe ſeparated from the ſtanding church. If there was cauſe for the ſeparation, then the ſtanding church is irregular in giving it. If there was no cauſe then the ſeparate ſociety is irregular in breaking off without cauſe.

You ſay, the church of Somers are, and long have been without an explicit church covenant; which you ſeem to ſuppoſe to be a ſufficient reaſon for the conduct of the party, that have covenanted among themſelves.

But in this matter, gentlemen, you have been ſo unhappy as to be miſinform'd. The church of Somers have had from the beginning, and ſtill have an explicit covenant. When it was formed, they, as is common for new churches, ſubſcribed ſaid covenant; and the original is ſtill to be ſeen, and ſince that members have been admitted from time to time, as uſual upon their common conſent. And it is indeed ſurpriſing that you ſhould repreſent them as not being in covenant.——If they are not explicitly in covenant, we queſtion whether you can find a church in Chriſtendom that is ſo. You ſuggeſt whether their living without the ſpecial ordinances of the goſpel has not provoked God to leave them, in their diſtreſſing circumſtances.—But, gentlemen, we muſt do this diſtreſs'd church the juſtice to aſſure you, that we never obſerved, in the abundant acquaintance we have had with them, any diſpoſition to live without ordinances. They have long been ſeeking and labouring for them, and their diſtreſs is that they cannot enjoy them, their living without therefore is not the cauſe of their diſtreſs.

There is a man preaching among them, that has been cenſured, ſilenced, and declared unworthy of chriſtian communion. While he remains among them, they can't enjoy ordinances in a ſtated regular manner. They have laboured for his removal, but been defeated——whoever contributes to his continuance there, contributes to the continuance of their diſtreſs. Is not your inſinuation unkind and uncharitable?

We find that you have judged it beſt (all things conſidered) that Mr. Ely continue to preach at Somers, and have adviſed all people to attend his miniſtration, till you meet again. Had we been call'd to judge and adviſe in this matter, we muſt have judged and adviſed otherwiſe, for the following reaſons.

1. The oppoſition to Mr. Ely in the town. His opponents are nearly equal in number, and not inferior in reputation, and intereſt, to his adherents: and it ſeems to us that ſuch an oppoſition is a ſufficient reaſon againſt his continuance there.

2. The diſſolution of his relation, as paſtor elect, both to the church and town. The church have long ago revoked their call. There has been a council called by the church, and explicitly agreed to by Mr. Ely and his adherents, and virtually conſented to by the town; which council has adviſed that his relation to Somers be entirely diſſolved——Whereupon Mr. Ely himſelf acknowledged it to be diſſolved, and the town conſidered it as being ſo, & did not pretend to hold him by virtue of a former agreement; but after his departure, recalled him by a new vote, in which vote the church has never concurred.—After this the town called a council for his ordination, which council after looking into the ſtate of their affairs, and the character, conduct and qualifications of the man, not only diſſolved the relation anew, but actually ſilenced him. After all this we could not have thought it adviſable that he ſhou'd continue at Somers any longer.

3. The character of the candidate.—You know, gentlemen, that it is of importance to the honour of the miniſtry, the intereſt of religion, and the peace of the church, that none be encouraged to preach, but men of a good character, and competent qualifications. The Apoſtle, you remember allows none to be introduced into ſacred office, but ſuch as have a good report. But, gentlemen, Mr. Ely has for years paſt lain under a very bad report. Wherever he has been preaching, whether near or remote, there is great complaint of his imprudence, and miſconduct, from the more ſober, and ſerious ſort of people. He cannot therefore be regularly introduced, until the ſcandal of theſe reports be removed. But this is not all. There was a council called in September 1768, by the agreement of the church on the one part, and Mr. Ely and his adherents on the other, to hear and determine all matters of difficulty: before which council he was found guilty of lying, and a ſeries of ſcandalous imprudences, and other faults. And, gentlemen, had you been preſent at the hearing of theſe matters, as ſome of us were, we are ſure that you would have thought the council treated him with great candor and tenderneſs.——In April laſt, another council, choſen wholly by Mr. Ely and his adherents, found him guilty of uttering ſome very ſhocking expreſſions in public; and delivering erronious and dangerous doctrine, and alſo deficient in many eſſential qualifications for the miniſtry, ſuch as prudence, aptneſs to teach, knowledge, a good report, &c. and accordingly ſilenced him, & adviſed to his ſtudying under the direction of ſome able divine, 'till he could recommend himſelf for a new licence.——After this the aſſociation which recommended him, withdrew their recommendation, and declared him unfit for chriſtian communion, in conſequence of their having found him guilty of forgery, lying, and ſuch villanous behaviour, as is ſeldom to be heard of, even in men who make no profeſſion of religion. Now we apprehend that Mr. Ely ought not to preach, nor any people to hear him, 'till the judgments of theſe reſpectable bodies are ſatisfied et removed, which as yet they never have been. He did indeed conſent to the confeſſion preſcribed by the firſt council in September 1768. But he afterwards, as is credibly affirmed, retracted the confeſſion, by declaring he was not conſcionably though legally guilty, and the crimes he was convicted of before the other judicatures; he never as we can learn, has pretended to confeſs; ſo that the cenſures, ſtill lie and muſt lie upon him, until he either profeſſes his repentance; or upon a new hearing before ſome eccleſiaſtical judicature regularly called is found innocent. Now, gentlemen, we don't learn that you have pretended, to go into a regular hearing of theſe articles. You don't ſay that he has cleared up theſe matters and proved his innocence, or that he has made a full, and public profeſſion of his repentance. You will therefore permit us to ſay, we were ſurpriſed to find you had adviſed to his preaching. We muſt repeat it, gentlemen, we think he can't regularly preach, and no people can regularly attend on his preaching, until either the judgments of theſe bodies are reverſed by ſome other judicature, upon a full and thorough hearing of the articles and evidence; or until he has given ſome public ſubſtantial proof of his repentance, and in this way obtains a new recommendation.

You ſay, having examined the candidate with reſpect to his knowledge and experimental acquaintance with divinity, you find him ſound in the faith, and ſo far accompliſhed for the work of preaching the goſpel, that you judge it beſt (all things conſidered) that he continue to preach at Somers. But why ought you not to have examined his moral character, the evil reports that every where follow him, and the criminal facts of which he has been convicted? Integrity of life, a fair character, a good report, a prudent behaviour, are (in our opinion) as neceſſary qualifications, as thoſe which you mention. It ſeems you have examined him, and find him in ſome reſpects accompliſhed, but yet your expreſſion imports that you did not find him very well accompliſhed even in theſe reſpects, but ſo far that you think it beſt all things conſidered, that he ſhould continue to preach. But we are at a loſs what things conſidered can make it beſt that a man ſhould preach, who is not well accompliſhed in theſe reſpects and others too.

You don't recommend him to the churches in general, but you find him ſo far accompliſhed, that you think it beſt he ſhould continue to preach at Somers.——Why at Somers, gentlemen. Is Somers perfectly good, or is it incurably bad? That you imagine a man may be accompliſhed far enough to preach there, when you can't recommend him to other churches. We ſhould have thought there were ſufficient reaſons againſt his preaching any where, but eſpecially at Somers where is ſo great an oppoſition to him; and from whence he has by two councils been directed to depart. How cou'd you, gentlemen, adviſe a man to continue to preach there, who has by councils of his own chuſing been ordered to deſiſt, and who in contempt of their advice, has continued to preach, even when he was under cenſure and a ſolemn interdiction.

His conduct before, and ſince your ſeſſion at Somers, in preaching in the congregation of profeſſed Seperatiſt's, and in entering into the charges of neighbouring miniſters, and preaching without their knowledge or conſent, ſhews him to be a perſon not to be truſted with a licenſe to preach.

We rely upon your wiſdom and integrity, gentlemen, that at your adjourn'd ſeſſion, you will not only forbear to ordain this poor unhappy youth, who, we are ſure, cannot ſoon give the world ſatiſfactory proofs of his repentance, after ſuch a courſe of wicked conduct; but that you will alſo revoke what you have we imagine, too haſtily done; both in encouraging his preaching, and alſo in acknowledging this ſeperate ſociety as a regular church.

We doubt not, gentlemen, but you have the intereſt of religion, the peace of the church, and the honour of the miniſtry at heart; and would (as well as we) be reluctant to do any thing knowingly and intentionally to promote diſorderly ſeperations, or to encourage an ignorant and vicious man in profeſſing the miniſterial character, which ought to be always ſacred to truth and virtue.

Stephen Williams, } Moderator, in the name and at the deſire of the ſouthern aſſociation in the county of Hampſhire.

The aſſociated paſtors of the churches in the ſouth part of the county of Hampſhire to the Elders and Meſſengers of the churches convened at Somers, September 20, 1769, and ſtand adjourn'd to the third Wedneſday in next February.

Springfield, Jan. 10, 1770

NEW-YORK, March 12.

Between 11 and 12 o'clock laſt Thurſday Night a terrible Fire broke out in Scotch-Street, in this City. 'Tis ſaid to have begun in a large Wooden Building belonging to Mr. Jonathan Hampton, where ſome Carpenters had been at Work, and the place of Meeting of the St. John's Lodge, who have loſt all their Jewels and other Furniture. The Inhabitants, with their uſual Alertneſs on ſuch Occaſions, aſſiſted by the Officers and Soldiers of the 16th Regt. a great Number of Seamen from the Ships in the Harbour, and many of the Inhabitants of Brooklyn, on Long Iſland, with their Engine, uſed their utmoſt Endeavours to extinguiſh the Flames, but found their Efforts much baffled by the Narrowneſs of the Street, a Scarcity of water, being far from any of the Rivers, and the great Difficulty of getting to the Fire. The Flames from Mr. Hampton's Houſe, it being very high, ſoon extended acroſs the Street, and burnt with great Fury, carrying every Thing before it, being all Wooden Houſes; but about one o'clock, the Engines being well ſerved, and every Perſon preſent having exerted himſelf to the utmoſt, the Fire was happily ſubdued, but not without the Loſs of the following Houſes, and almoſt every Thing they contained, viz.

Jonathan Hampton's Houſe, Widow Campbell's Houſe, John Ball's Houſe, occupied by the Widow M'Dougall; a Houſe belonging to Capt. Witter, a Houſe belonging to Stephen Uſtick; a Houſe belonging to Tunies Scheack, wherein the Widow Johnſton, James Winderſon, and one Patterſon, lived; a Houſe in the Poſſeſſion of Jacob Brothers, owned by William Beekman; Adrian Bogart's Bolting-Houſe; a Store-Houſe belonging to Walter Franklin, with a Quantity of Logwood therein; two Houſes belonging to Daniel Amar, wherein the ſaid Amar, and one James, a Pilot, lived; a Houſe owned and occupied by —— Cherdevoyne; a Houſe belonging to one Hopkins; and three others the property of John Van Zandt, Cooper.

The above Fire is ſaid to have been the greateſt that ever happened in this City, and what makes the Loſs greater, is, that the Sufferers in general are in every indigent Circumſtances; therefore 'tis not doubted but the opulent in this Place will be liberal in contributing to the aſſiſtance of the Diſtreſſed, many of whom are left without a Bed to lay on, or a Second Shirt or Coat to their Backs.

BOSTON, March 15 1770.

Extract of a Letter from Briſtol, Dec. 4, 1769.

"The repeal of American Revenue Acts ſeems more and more dubious, from the report of our head mens diſpoſition to enforce them;—we ſhall ſoon learn more of the miniſtry's intentions, reſpecting that intereſting matter.—The rumor of a war with France is not credited here."

Extract of a Letter from London, Dec. 6.

"I have little news to tell you. There is a dead calm of Politics at preſent, the town being ſtill empty, and not likely to be full, till after the holidays.——The Earl of Dunmore, brother-in-law to Lord Gower, is appointed to ſucceed Sir Henry Moore, and will ſhortly embark for New-York. Our King appears ever anxiouſly diſpoſed to make his people happy, and nothing now prevents a total repeal of the revenue Acts, but a falſe pride, which will not ſuffer us to acknowledge that we have been in the wrong. The dignity of P——t, ſay they muſt be ſupported, and a repeal at this juncture would evince to all the world, that we had attempted to infringe the rights of the people; and therefore, they have gone on adding to the heap of grievances, rather than openly confeſs their errors. It is now, however, a general opinion, that all things will be ſettled early in the next ſeſſion, to the mutual ſatiſfaction of both countries. The papers of the day contain little beſides invectives againſt Governor Bernard, and panegyrics upon Wilkes, the one for fighting againſt Liberty, and the other in favour of it,—from the ſame principle."

Laſt night died Patrick Carr, of the wounds he received in the tragical Affair on Monday Night the 5th inſtant.

By Capt. Schermerhorn arrived at New-York, from South Carolina, we have received a Paper which contains

His MAJESTY's Moſt Gracious SPEECH

To both Houſes of PARLIAMENT,

On Tueſday the Ninth Day of January, 1770.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

IT is with much concern, that I find Myſelf obliged to open this Parliament with acquainting you, that the Diſtemper among the Horned Cattle, has lately broke out in this Kingdom, notwithſtanding every Precaution that could be uſed for preventing the Infection from foreign Parts. Upon the firſt Notice of its actual Appearance, My next attention was to ſtop, if poſſible, its further Progreſs, and as the Succeſs of thoſe Endeavours muſt, in all Probability, have been intirely defeated, by any the leaſt Degree of Delay in the Application of them, I thought it abſolutely neceſſary, with the Advice of My Privy Council, to give immediate Directions for every Step to be taken, that appeared moſt capable of checking the inſtant Danger of the ſpreading of the Infection, until I could have an opportunity of conſulting My Parliament upon ſome more permanent Meaſures for ſecuring us againſt ſo great a calamity: And to your immediate and moſt ſerious Conſideration, I earneſtly recommend this very important Object.

I have given My Parliament repeated Aſſurances, that it has always been My fixed Purpoſe, to preſerve the general Tranquility, maintaining, at the ſame time, the Dignity and Honor of My Crown, together with the juſt Rights and Intereſt of My People. The uncommon Burthens which My Subjects have born ſo chearfully, in order to bring the late War to a happy Concluſion, muſt be an additional motive, to make me vigilant to prevent the preſent Diſturbances in Europe from extending to any Part, where the Security, Honour, or Intereſt, of this Nation, may make it neceſſary for My Crown to become a Party. The Aſſurances I receive from the other Great Powers, afford Me reaſon to believe that My Endeavours will continue to be ſucceſsful; I ſhall ſtill make the General Intereſt of Europe the Object of My Attention; And while I ſteadily ſupport My own Rights, I ſhall be equally careful, not to acknowledge the claims of any other Powers, contrary to the Limitations of the late Treaties of Peace.

It is needleſs for me to recommend to the ſerious Attention of My Parliament the State of My Government in America. I have endeavoured, on My Part, by every Means to bring back My Subjects there, to their Duty and to a due Senſe of Lawful Authority. It gives Me much Concern to inform you, that the Succeſs of My Endeavours has not anſwered My Expectations, and that, in ſome of My Colonies, many perſons have embarked in Meaſures highly unwarrantable, and calculated to deſtroy the Commercial Connection between them and the Mother Country.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

I have ordered the proper Eſtimates to be laid before you; I am perſuaded that your Affection for My Perſon and Government, & your Zeal for the Public Good, will induce you to grant ſuch Supplies, as are neceſſary; and you may be aſſured, that on My Part, they ſhall be managed with the ſtricteſt Economy.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"As the Welfare and proſperity of my People have always been the Object of my Wiſhes, and the Rule of my Actions, ſo I am perſuaded, from my Experience of your conduct, that you will be governed in your proceedings by the ſame Principles; my ready Concurrence and Support, in every Meaſure that may ſerve to promote thoſe Ends, you may always depend upon. On you it would be now, more than ever, incumbent to avoid all Heats and Animoſities among yourſelves, and to cultivate that Spirit of Harmony, which becomes thoſe who have but one common Object in their View, and which may be moſt likely to give Authority and Efficacy to the reſult of your Deliberations: ſuch a conduct, on your parts, will, above all Things, contribute to maintain in their proper Luſtre, the Strength, the Reputation, and the Proſperity of this Country; to ſtrengthen the Attachment of my Subjects to that excellent Conſtitution of Government, from which they derive ſuch diſtinguiſhed Advantages; and, to cauſe the firm Reliance and Confidence, which I have in the Wiſdom of my Parliament, as well as in the Zeal for the true Intereſt of my People, to be juſtified and approved both at Home and Abroad."

BOSTON, March 22.

Saturday Capt. Chalmers arrived here after a ſhort Paſſage from St. Ubes. He informs, that he failed laſt November from Glaſgow for Bourdeaux in France, which laſt place he left the 1ſt of January, and that the chief topick of converſation among the French, when he came away, was an approaching war with England.

NEW-HAVEN, March 16.

We have had this week, ſome the moſt daring thefts committed in this town, that were known among us, and tho' the utmoſt induſtry has been uſed to recover the ſtolen goods, and bring the thieves to juſtice, yet not the leaſt diſcovery had been made, when this paper was put to preſs. The thefts, are as follows.——

On Monday Night laſt the Houſe of Mr. Jeſſe Leavenworth was broke open, and rob'd of ſundry articles of wearing apparel, to the amount of upwards of 20l. The next night the houſe of Capt. Stephen Mansfield, was broke open and rob'd of ſeveral large and ſmall ſilver ſpoons, and a ſilver tankard, a number of ſhirts and ſhifts, a new long red cloak, and ſundry other articles. And laſt night the Houſe of Mr. Doolittle clock maker, was rob'd of a number of ſilver watches.

HARTFORD, March 26

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Gibralter, to his friend in Norwich, dated the 17th of December, 1769.

"——I Now undertake to give you an account of what paſſes here, (or at leaſt what is reported) and firſt, you are to take notice, that the Ruſſians and the Greeks are of the ſame religion——That there are ſaid to be more Greeks in Europe than Turks, and in all the iſlands in the Archipelagoes—four Greeks to one Turk, now the empreſs of Ruſſia, has had her emiſſaries for more than 12 months paſt, in every part of Turkey, where the Greeks are. She has at this time, not leſs than 40 generals in the very heart of Turkey, trying to bring about a revolution: and in order to animate the Greeks to ſhake of the Turkiſh yoke, ſhe has fitted out a large fleet, conſiſting of 40 ſhips of the line, beſides frigates and ſtore ſhips, the firſt diviſion of this fleet paſſed by laſt week, except 5 ſail, which ſtopped here a few days, and has ſince ſailed. We hourly expect the ſecond diviſion, which is ſaid to be 15 ſail, 25 having paſſed us—their firſt place of rendezvous is at Minorca; there the commander in chief is to meet them from Leghorn. This general has been to Conſtantinople——has come down through every part of Turkey, where he choſe to viſit—he travels in the Greek dreſs, as do all the reſt of the Ruſſian generals now in Turkey. They all ſpeak the Greek language, by which means they paſs unſuſpected, this general is he who brought about the revolution, and is the Empreſs's particular favourite, and is her ſelf in command——we are told that as ſoon as the Ruſſian fleet makes its appearance up the arches, the Greeks will directly revolt from the Turks, and join the Ruſſians; if ſo, the Ruſſian fleet will ſail directly from Conſtantinople down the Helleſpont, into the black ſea. If once this is accompliſhed, the Turks will have no footing in Europe. This is the grand deſign of the empreſs of Ruſſia; for ſhe does not ſcruple to ſay (as we are informed) that ſhe would drive the Turks over the Helleſpont.——The laſt battle fought between the Ruſſians and the Turks, the former came of victorious, though vaſt numbers were killed on both ſides. The French are fitting out 15 ſail of the line at Toulon, it is ſaid to join the Turks. Capt. ——, in one of our frigates, is cruiſing off Toulon, to watch the motions of the French. We are alſo inform'd there is another fleet fitting out at Breſt.

"It is the opinion of our politicians here, that unleſs the Ruſſians and Turks make a peace this winter, all Europe will be brought into a War before the next.——"

Meſſ. Green & Watſon,

By giving the following a place in your Connecticut Courant, you may be inſtrumental to the promotion of juſtice, as well as oblige yours, and the publics humble ſervant,

The Author.

Thoughts offered to public conſideration, relative to the preſent unjuſt and oppreſſive method of maintaining and ſupporting the Highways, or public roads.

Queſtion. WHat are highways made for, and what is the uſe of public roads?

Anſwer. For the uſe of the public, and for the conveniençe of performing buſineſs, and conſequently, for the uſe of every particular member of the public, which is every man in natural life.

Q. And upon whom does reaſon and juſtice caſt the burden of maintaining thoſe highways, or public roads, which is no ſmall burden, and no little expence? Can it be caſt upon men of little or no intereſt or poor men? Or is it caſt upon the whole public body, rich and poor reciprocally as they are concerned in the public affairs? Surely not upon thoſe poor men, and conſequently upon the whole public body.

Now that the preſent method is caſting the burden upon poor men as above mentioned, is pretty eaſily demonſtrated, while numbers of men of ſmall intereſt, and that have but little uſe for public roads, have numerous families, which by the law, as it now ſtands, makes their taxes for highway maintainance, great and burthenſome, while others that have great eſtates, and great uſe for thoſe roads, do little, and ſome nothing at all; which is unequal and very unjuſt: And may it not be ſaid of thoſe great men, as it was of the Phariſees of old, "wo to you, for you bind heavy burdens and grievous to be borne and lay them on men's ſhoulders, but you will not touch them with ſo much as one of your fingers?"

And now, as I have undertaken to recite the grievance which poor men groan under, I will alſo undertake to preſcribe a method for the freemen of this corporation to come into, in order, if poſſible, to obtain ſome relief, viz. let them ſignify by their votes, or otherwiſe to their ſeveral repreſentatives, at their annual meeting in April next, in what manner they chooſe to have the highways ſupported; which muſt of neceſſity be ſomething different from the preſent method, and let them implore their repreſentatives, that they will uſe their influence to ſee to it that the ſame might be put into execution—and if we were thus united, it ſeems our moſt reſpectable legiſlative authority would ſo far compaſſionate us, as to grant us, at leaſt, ſome relief.

ANTILOQUUS.

WANTED, by

Geo. Phillips,

of Middletown,

A NUMBER of HORSES, ſuitable for Barbadoes Market.

To be Sold for CASH by

Nat. Buel,

of Saliſbury.

FIVE POT-ASH KETTLES, Ten Tons of Pig-Iron, one Forge Hammer and Anvil, a Cloathiers Plate, three large Iron Kettles, and a number of Cart-Boxes, all manufactured at Saliſbury Furnace.

N.B. An order drawn upon me by Capt. Comfort Sage of Middletown, to the value of Forty Pounds, or by Mr. Charles Dibble of Goſhen, for Twentyfive Pounds, will be as well accepted as the CASH, for any of the above articles.

A THEFT!

WHEREAS on the night after the 16th inſtant, the Shop of Aſa Foot of Colcheſter, was broken up, and the following pieces of Cloth, ſtolen, viz. One piece of of 12 & half yards—One ditto of 5 yds.—And one piece of Black, of 7 & half yds.—And one piece of a Mouſe colour of 3 yds—The laſt piece a little cowey, all of them ſhear'd—And one piece of 5 yds. Milldy'd, not ſheard.——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Thief, and give notice to the ſubſcriber, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice, & the goods recover'd, ſhall have FIVE DOLLARS reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

ASA FOOT.

Colcheſter, March 17, 1770.

Unanimous's Piece mention'd in the Paper No. 272.

THE friends of the conſtitution and liberties of this colony, in New London and Windham counties, ſend compliments to the ſons of liberty in the other counties, and aſſure them, that they are firmly attached to the rights of the government, and continue inveterate enemies to ſtamp acts, and revenue taxes, and officers; and are inſeperably united againſt all oppreſſors, and their abettors——They cannot be reconciled to thoſe who are unfriendly to the civil and religious privileges of the people——They are determined to unite againſt all thoſe who have appeared unfavourable to their intereſts in the time of the ſtamp-act, who have not avowedly and openly diſapproved their conduct in that affair——They expect the further aſſiſtance of their friends in the colony, at the approaching election of their rulers, on the firſt monday after the firſt tueſday, in April——They are aware of the arts of the partizans of certain gentlemen to divide the freemen in their votes——They are ſenſible that all the hopes of a particular party, rely upon the diſunion of the friends of liberty; and that they can make no head againſt the combined voices of the ſons of liberty through the colony——To avoid the fatal conſequences which may enſue to their liberties upon a diſunion, they have determined to vote for the preſent adminiſtration to the ſame offices they now ſuſtain, for the enſuing year; without any alteration from the determination of the general aſſembly laſt October——They therefore deſire the mutual voice, and united votes of their brethren in the other counties, to ſecure the government from the introduction of the perſons into the adminiſtration, whom by far the greater part of the colony, eſteem as favourable to parliamentary encroachments——The foundation of this opinion is laid on facts, which all the freemen of the corporation are acquainted with——They wiſh the general attendance of the freemen upon the day of electing their civil rulers; that the inhabitants may be governed by officers of their own choice——They are firmly reſolved upon a union, for the preſent adminiſtration to their preſent poſts; and pray that all the freeholders in the colony may unite with them, to avoid thoſe dangerous effects which have enſued to the government of New York by a negligent choice of their preſent, mercenary houſe of aſſembly——The chief deſign of this addreſs is to inform their brethren of their reſolutions in general——They hope that every freeman will follow the dictates of his own conſcience, and vote for ſuch perſons as are friendly to the welfare of the colony——A union they conſider as much ſafer for the ſtate than diviſion, and ſuppoſe every voter holden to conſider what will, in the iſſue, be the beſt intereſt of the people, when he gives his voice.

Join or Die!

UNANIMOUS.

Farmington, March 10, 1770.

WE the Subſcribers being appointed by the Hon. Court of Probate for the Diſtrict of Farmington, Commiſſioners to receive and adjuſt the Claims of the Creditors to the Eſtate of Abigail Stedman, late of ſaid Farmington, deceaſed (repreſented inſolvent) we therefore hereby notify the Creditors to ſaid Eſtate, to bring in their Claims and Demands to us on the laſt Tueſdays of April and May next, at one of the Clock in the Afternoon on each Day at the Dwelling Houſe of Noah Woodruff in Farmington, as we will Attend the buſineſs on each of ſaid Days, at ſaid Time and Place.

Joſhua Woodruff, } Commiſſioners.
Gad Stanly, }

AT a general meeting of the proprietors of the ſeveral towns granted by his excellency Benning Wentworth, Eſq; late governor of the province of New Hampſhire, lying on the weſt ſide of Connecticut river, and north of the province of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, being warned by advertiſement in the ſeveral public papers in New-England & New-York, and conven'd at the houſe of Charles Burrall, Eſq; in Canaan, on the 8th day of March A.D. 1770, in order to agree upon the beſt method to defend ſaid Hampſhire grants, againſt other claimers that pretend to hold ſaid lands under patents from the governor of New-York.——Capt. Samuel Elmer was choſen Chairman, and Mr. Solomon Whitney was choſen Clerk.——Alſo, at the ſame meeting, it was voted, that we will defend the ſaid Hampſhire title, to the utmoſt of our ability, againſt all other claimers whatever, as far as it can be defended by law or equity——And whereas ſeveral writs of ejectments are now ſerved by thoſe claimants, under the governor of New York, on ſome of thoſe now ſettled on ſaid lands under ſaid governor Wentworth's grant, and money being now wanted to carry on and defend ſaid caſes, now depending. Therefore it is further voted and agreed, that each proprietor pay the ſum of half a dollar, on a right, to be uſed for the purpoſe of defending the ſaid cauſes depending; and that Capt. Stephen Fay of Bennington, Capt. David Watkins of Arlington, Jeremiah French of Mancheſter, Benjamin Gardner of Pownel, Bliſs Willoughby of Shaftſbury, Reuben Harman for Rauſort and Pollet, Thomas Bullen of Durham, John Strong of Paxton, Stephen Calkins of Darby, Capt. Samuel Elmer of Sharon, Charles Burrall, Eſq; of Canaan, Benjamin Ferris of the Oblong, Samuel Hungerford of New-Fairfield, Samuel Brown of Stockbridge, Samuel Averil of Kent, John Averts of Saliſbury, Phineas Sheldon of Suffield, John Burling of New York, Edward Burling of Weſt Cheſter, Ebenezer Fiſk of Farmington, Abraham Thomſon of New-Haven, Col. Nathan Stone, of Cumberland County, Col. —— Bailey of Oxbow Town, Daniel Rhodes of Fairfield, and John Sharrer of Fiſh-Kills, a Committee to receive of each proprietor, the ſum of half a Dollar——to deliver the ſame to Charles Burrall, Eſq; who is appointed Treaſurer, and Receiver-General of all monies ſo collected: and ſaid Committee and Treaſurer, are hereby directed to apply ſo much of the money ſo collected, as he or they ſhall ſee needful, to the ſaid purpoſe of defending ſaid Hampſhire title.—And the ſaid committee and treaſurer are to be accountable to this meeting, or to the ſaid proprietors that ſhall pay the ſame, for all monies ſo collected. And whereas the deciſion of the cauſes now depending, will probably be a preſident for the whole of ſaid lands, therefore it is ſtrongly recommended by this meeting to every proprietor, to pay ſaid ſum of half a dollar, ſince he will eventually, really pay it to defend his own rights.——Voted, that the proceedings of this meeting be printed in this and the neighbouring governments.

At the ſame time ſaid meeting, for a further conſultation on the affair before them, was adjourn'd to the ſecond Wedneſday of May next, at the houſe of Charles Burrall, Eſq; in ſaid Canaan.

The before going is a true copy of the votes and agreements of ſaid Meeting.

Teſt. SOLOMON WHITNEY.
Clerk for ſaid Meeting.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kinds, by the Printers hereof.

Notice is hereby given that RUTH, the wife of Aaron Bacon, late of Litchfield, hath abſented herſelf from my bed and board, and I am thoughtful that ſhe is determining to run me in debt——Theſe are therefore to forbid any perſon crediting her on my account, for I am determined not to pay any debt that ſhe ſhall contract.

AARON BACON.

Will be ſold at PUBLIC VENDUE, on Tueſday the third day of April next, at the houſe of Col. Marſh, Innholder in Litchfield.

ABOUT One Hundred Acres of good Land, part whereof is under improvement, with a convenient dwelling houſe thereon, now in the poſſeſſion of Joel Clemons, and which is advantageouſly ſituated about three miles weſt of the Court-Houſe in Litchfield, near the Iron-Works, on the New-Milford road——Said ſale will be made for caſh in hand, by

OLIVER WOLCOTT.

March 3. 1770.

Hartford, March 12, 1770.

AT the Upper Mills in Hartford Farmers may receive Money for a quantity of good clean WHEAT, from Three Shillings and Nine pence to Four Shillings a Buſhel, as the quality of the wheat is——about five hundred Buſhels wanted to manufacture for a tryal.

WE the Subſcribers being appointed Commiſſioners, to receive and examine the claims of the creditors of the eſtate of John Lee Sherman, late of Saliſbury in Litchfield County deceas'd. We ſhall attend that buſineſs at the Dwelling-Houſe, of capt. Samuel Moore, Innholder in ſaid Saliſbury, on the firſt and ſecond Tueſday's in April next, from two of the clock in the afternoon of ſaid days until ſeven.

Joſhua Jewel, } Commiſſioners.
Thomas Chittenden. }

Febr. 20, 1770. 270

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by the Printers hereof price Half a Piſtareen,

Obſervations on a Pamphlet entitled,
Remarks on Dr. GALE's Letter to J. W. Eſq; Sign'd E. D. of which The Hon. ELIPHALET DYER, is the reputed Author.
Shewing, from the Matters therein contained, that ſuch an Imputation is highly injurious to the Character of that worthy Patriot.
By Benjamin Gale, A. M.

Lately Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Printing Office in Hartford,

VISIBLE Saints lawful Right to Communion in Chriſtian Sacraments, Vindicated. (In Way of Anſwer to a Sermon, entitled, Chriſtian Baptiſm, delivered at Hanover, in New Jerſy, Nov. 4th, 1764. By the Rev. Jacob Green, A. M. In a Letter to a Friend. In three parts.

By GEORGE BECKWITH, A.M.
Paſtor of a Church in Lyme, Connecticut.

HARTFORD:
Printed by GREEN & WATSON,
near the Great-Bridge.

MONDAY April, 2, 1770.
THE Connecticut COURANT.
Numb 275.
Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

To the impartial PUBLIC.

A Piece ſign'd Unanimous, made its Appearance in the laſt Courant, of ſo extraordinary a Kind, that, like other excentrical Productions, it is hard to fit it with a Name, expreſſive of its real Nature——Call it a CARD, the ſenſe (if any) runs thus——"The Friends to Liberty in Windham and New London Counties, (which by the way, we muſt ſuppoſe are all the Inhabitants) ſend their Compliments to the Freemen of the four other Counties, and (a great Condeſcention of Complaiſance) inform them, they are determined that the ſame Gentlemen now in Office ſhall be re elected, for the Year enſuing, & therefore expect (or require) their full, punctual Attendance on the Monday after the firſt Tueſday in April, then to give us ſuch further Aſſiſtance, as we ſhall ſtand in need of.—We expect, Gentlemen you will all act agreable to your own Conſciences——but then you are to conſider, at the ſame Time, there can be no Diviſion of Sentiment, or Diſſent from our above Determination, but what will be fatal to the Colony, and therefore muſt on no Conſideration be tolerated."——

Call it an Addreſs from thoſe two Counties in a ſerious Manner to the other Four, and it is a moſt glaring Inſult on the Common Senſe of every impartial, independant Freeman, not in the Counties addreſſed, or rather dictated to only, but to thoſe in the Counties pretendedly addreſſing.

Suppoſe it the notable Performance of ſome pretended (ſay) real Friend of the Gentlemen in Power—by having Recourſe to Facts that have not the leaſt Foundation, ſave in the Fumes of his own hot, enthuſiaſtical Imagination. By aſſerting that the two Counties of Windham and New London have agreed on certain Men for the Rulers of the Colony the Year enſuing, he muſt do thoſe worthy Gentlemen the higheſt Injury, and they may with Propriety ſay, they are wounded in the Houſe of their "Friend." To conſider the Author as an Incendiary, may be thought ſevere. The little Ability ſhewn in this motly Piece, will in a great Meaſure excuſe him. Happy is he, if in his own Breaſt, the Conſciouſneſs of his Deſign will go as far.

Of this the Public may be aſſured, that the uniting the two Counties aboveſaid inſinuated, is a mere Pretence, a political Fetch, to amuſe the honeſt and undeſigning, juſt at this period——But ſuppoſing the whole to be really as he has repreſented—can there be a more open, high handed Attempt to violate and deſtroy the equality, the independency, the liberty of the ſubject—if one man may dictate to another, can the perſon dictated to, be ſaid to be free?——Are not all combinations deſtructive of the freedom of elections? They ever have been ſo, in every ſtate, and have finally deſtroyed them——Shall two counties, thus dictate to four, nay, putting an inſtance, ſhall five dictate to one, in ſuch a manner?—The ſuppoſition is too abſurd, to ſpend a moments time upon——Every Freeman of this colony, has the ineſtimable privelege, of acting for himſelf—eſpecially in the important point of chooſing his own rulers.

How pernicious and deteſtable, is every, even the leaſt attempt to abridge them of it——every attempt of this kind, is in effect high treaſon againſt the rights of Freemen.——Never can we be too much on our guard, againſt ſuch a deſigning man or men, who with liberty on the lip, harbour, the moſt tyrannical deſigns in heart——The inſtance given, of a New-York aſſembly being venal, I leave this "patriot of an hour," and the "aſſembly" thus charged to ſettle at their pleaſure; and ſhall only obſerve, that parties at preſent, run high, in that city, and province; and that the almoſt ſole foundation, and what gave riſe to them, has been their ſetting up candidates at, and long before the day of election, publiſhing in the papers propoſals for combinations, (though I have never ſeen one, ſo weak, and contemptible as this under conſideration) and their actually agreeing, and combining who to vote for, beforehand.——From the like unhappy ſituation, into which every one of ſuch a diſpoſition as this writer appears to be of, endeavours to plunge us—it is the duty of all, who wiſh well to this colony, to do all in his power to preſerve us.——For this purpoſe I have troubled the public with the above obſervations on this piece, which at any other period, or under almoſt any other circumſtances, would have deſervedly died unnoticed, and paſs'd into oblivion, with the ſilent contempt of the public.

[1.] OBSERVATOR.

A TOKEN for the Author of the piece ſign'd Unanimous, to which is ſuffix'd this motto, "JOIN OR DIE!"

Dum vitant ſtulti Vitia in contraria currunt.

NOT ſo, my friend Unanimous! "Join or Die." doſt thou ſay? with the O dreadful [!] ſuffix'd? and is this the language with which thou doſt preſume to addreſs a free people? doſt thou think this won't give umbrage even in a profeſs'd friend to the cauſe of liberty?——Perhaps I too, may be of the ſame ſentiment with thyſelf, and may wiſh for the ſame eſtabliſhment as to adminiſtration—as true a friend to liberty, I dare ſay. But what then?—why ſhould we paw in the valley, ſmell the battle a far off, ſound the alarm of war, and cry murder, if at the ſame time we are not under at leaſt ſome apprehenſions? there is policy in war, 'tis true; but whether an attempt to ſtir up faction, ſcatter the ſeeds of diſcord, blow up the flames of jealouſy, and hold out the ſignal for an engagement to battle, in a peaceable ſtate, where there is no appearance of danger, or even ſo much as the leaſt ſhadow of any (and all this under the maſk and vizzard of patronizing the cauſe of liberty) be more the part of a politician than a madman, and don't tend rather to enſlave, than eſtabliſh in liberty a free people, may poſſibly be made a queſtion—And perhaps thou art yet to be taught, that even if politicks ſhould be ſeaſoned with moderation, there would be nothing treaſonable in the compoſition.

Menaces of Death, thrown out promiſcuouſly upon a free people, & held up to public view as an object of terror,——to frighten and diſmay, in order to enforce a compliance; are high-ſeaſoned viands to ſenſible ſtomachs, and will be likely to have but cold influence to gain Proſelytes to LIBERTY's cauſe!————High conditions, harſh demands theſe! to inforce allegiance to that GODDESS whoſe very conſtitution is FREEDOM, and who will never deign to acknowledge any for her votaries but ſuch whoſe true characteriſtic is to be more free in nothing than in being free in the very act of inliſting to her ſervice; and won't willingly ſubmit, that the monſter t—r—y, by aſſuming her ſhape ſhould uſurp her empire——the point thou would'ſt ſeem deſirous of gaining (or rather eſtabliſhing) may indeed be good and ſalutary, but thou art to be told, that the method thou takeſt is no ways warrantable or commendable, nor ſuch as can ever paſs uncenſured by the judicious and ſenſible.

Liberty 'tis true is the darling of the human ſpecies even dearer than life, without which no people on earth can be proſperous or happy; nor can the greateſt degree of zeal in her cauſe ever expoſe any to her reſentment, ſo be it is ſuitably tempered with moderation and regulated by wiſdom: but nothing can be more exerciſing or grievous to her trueſt advocates, than to find that any of her pretended friends ſhould have the weakneſs and vanity to fancy that ſhe needs to call in the aſſiſtance of any ungenerous artifices, and even to make uſe of comminations and threats to eſtabliſh her juriſdiction even among a people who are ſettled upon her baſis——No, my friend——let reaſon, wiſdom and cool deliberation in thy head, have the aſcendency of animoſity and raſhneſs in thy breaſt; nor think to put thyſelf ſo forward in dealing out Anecdotes of policy or documents of government, till after thou haſt learnt the policy of governing thyſelf.

But tell me———my friend———didſt thou really mean by the MOTTO of thy performance, to furniſh out the true picture—complexion——and expreſs effigies——ſpeak the language and exemplify the genius and ſpirit of that reſpectable body thou doſt profeſs to perſonate? or rather whoſe tool thou aſſumeſt to be?——ſooner may'ſt thou expect to receive their chaſtiſements for thy temerity, than their thanks for thy ſervices.

PACIFICUS.

Meſſ. GREEN & WATSON,

Pleaſe to inſert the following and you will oblige one of your conſtant cuſtomers.

I Obſerve in your laſt paper, a piece ſign'd Unanimous—It is a little ſurprizing that this Unanimous ſhould undertake to dictate the whole colony, in the choice at the next Freemans meeting; & yet when I look back, and recollect paſt things, I remember this to have been the conſtant practice of this ſaid Eaſtward Unanimous, for more than fifty years. The firſt that I remember was began in order to diſplace governor Saltonſtall, for taking the Queen's Arms from the Soldiers that went to Wood Creek, (though ordered by her Majeſty Queen Ann) and depoſiting of them in his own garret, till further order. There indeed was a mighty ſtir, but proved abortive. The next thing I remember, was another mighty ſtir by this ſame Unanimous, to diſplace governor Talcott, and for no other reaſon that I ever heard, but becauſe he was ſeventy years old; and circular letters were ſent all over the colony for that purpoſe, but he happily eſcaped the ſnare of the fowler. The next was governor Law, in the New light time becauſe he was an oppoſer, as he was call'd—and every body knows how gov. Wolcott was diſplac'd by this ſame Unanimous, on account of the Spaniſh money, tho' it afterwards appear'd he was perfectly innocent. And governor Fitch, may thank this ſame gentleman, for diſmiſſing him from ſo much trouble. So that you may obſerve, upon the whole, that all the commotions in the colony with reſpect to the choice, of our rulers, for more than fifty years, have been occaſioned by this ſame eaſtward Unanimous. I would hereby caution all my brethren, the freemen in our colony, to beware of this crafty enterprizing Unanimous, and hearken to the dictates of your own conſcience, rather than the dictates of this gentleman.

(Sign'd) A Weſtward Unanimous.
Connecticut, March 28 1770.

LONDON, December 30.

It is ſaid the miniſtry are endeavouring, with the greateſt aſſiduity, to fix the laſt Junius upon Mr. Wilkes.

We are well informed that a certain law officer has given it as his opinion that a much talked of production is not Treaſon, but a High Miſdemeanor.

It was yeſterday reported, that the author of the laſt Junius is known, and that proper meaſures were taking in order to come at his perſon.

We hear that the officers on furlow, belonging to the garriſons of Gibraltar and Minorca, have received orders to join their regiments with all poſſible expedition.

A great man abſolutely declared this week that Junius's laſt letter had operated totally different from it's intentions; for that "thereby the miniſtry were now become immoveable."

It is reported that a Great Perſonage has within theſe few days had the real name of Junius, with the intelligence properly authenticated, ſent by an anonymous hand, through the channel of the common poſt.

The national debt of this and our ſiſter kingdom, Ireland, ſeems to terrify ſeveral among the moneyed men, who, in our preſent diſtractions, with ſo heavy a burthen, do not think their property would be over ſafe in the publick funds in caſe of another war as expenſive as the laſt.

We are aſſured that ſome advices of great importance are hourly expected from Madrid.

We are credibly informed, that the Kings of France and Spain are to have a perſonal conference in a few months, but in the dominion of which power we cannot yet determine.

We are informed that the laſt advices from his Excellency the Earl of Harcourt, our ambaſſadour at the court of Verſailles, contain matters of an extraordinary nature, and very alarming to our miniſtry.

The premium of inſurance on outward bound ſhips and goods continues daily to advance.

It is ſaid, that ſhould the adviſe of Lord Chatham be taken on an important ſubject, Mr. Wilkes will certainly take his ſeat without a diſſolution of parliament.

It is ſaid that a noble Lord, who lately matched a certain call off Dutcheſs is in the Jockey phraſe, already ſick of the lay & would willingly pay forfeit.

We are well informed that a certain unpopular American Governor has refuſed the offer of a Peerage.

We are well informed, that Lord Chatham intends to ſupport an entire new character on an enſuing occaſion.

A correſpondent remarks, that Junius, in all his letters never once ſhowed he wanted a head, till his laſt long laboured epiſtle, in which he ſtruck at the ſupreme head both in church and ſtate.

We are aſſured from undoubted veracity, that the preſent ſtate of the nation will undergo a very ſerious conſideration at an enſuing meeting.

LONDON,

Jan. 6. Yeſterday the York ſhire, Worceſter-ſhire, Somerſetſhire, Herefordſhire, Northumberland, and Newcaſtle petitions, were preſented to his Majeſty.

A proteſt from the town of Liverpool was yeſterday preſented to his Majeſty at St. James's, againſt the petition now ſoliciting in the ſaid town, deſiring his Majeſty, for certain reaſons, to diſſolve the preſent parliament, which proteſt concludes as follows:—

"To ſay that the houſe of commons is partial, unjuſt, or corrupt, or does any thing out of malice, is, in our opinion, highly criminal, and tends to raiſe a ſcandal, upon the whole nation, whoſe repreſentatives they are. For theſe reaſons we cannot approve the matter, manner, or intent, of theſe petitions, and hope to be juſtified in making public the reaſons for our diſſent thereto. Our actions, in the moſt perilous and critical times, have proved us to be faithful ſubjects; and, we truſt, our conduct and candour in this affair, muſt prove us to be good citizens."

A council was holden this morning at the Cockpit Royal, when ſeveral important regulations, previouſly neceſſary to the meeting of parliament, were determined upon.

It is now confidently aſſerted, that the celebrated Junius has ſet out on his travels into foreign parts.

A certain nobleman, who labours under a very dangerous complaint, is not expected to live many days.

The Duke of Bedford's diſorders are reported to be an aſthma and a dropſy.

Some of our patriotick petitioners begin to be alarmed, leſt the parliament ſhould in earneſt be deſolved, and their ſeats come to be re-purchaſed, which would make them look as wiſe as the Iriſh patriots did on a like occaſion. It is ſuppoſed therefore, that they will be content with the King's ſending his parliament to Coventry for a month, as the French king has formerly ſent his to Pontoiſe. But ſome think it better that a bed of juſtice ſhould be holden at St. James's, the commons and their journal ſent for, and all their preſumptuous votes about the Middleſex elections ſtruck out by his Majeſty's command, after the example of his royal brother at Verſallies.

Yeſterday the following gentlemen waited upon his Majeſty at St. James's, with the petition of the citizens of Briſtol, and were graciouſly received, viz. Sir, William Codrington, Bart. Richard Hippeſley Cox, Eſq; Mr. Henry Cruger, and Mr. Samuel Span, merchant of that city. The two laſt gentlemen were deputed by their fellow citizens to preſent it.

We hear that Lord Chatham has a plan in contemplation, which, if executed, will entirely reconcile all parties, and give univerſal ſatisfaction.

A report ſtrongly prevails that a number of very eminent merchants have a ſcheme in agitation for preſenting a petition, ſetting forth the neceſſity of taking the American affairs under immediate conſideration.

We are informed that the Briſtol petition was ſigned by 2445 freemen.

The petition of the country of York, (which is ſigned by near 11,000 freeholders) was preſented to his Majeſty by the following gentlemen, viz. Sir, James Ibbitſon, the Sheriff, Sir, Marmaduke, Wyvil, Sir, George Armytage, and Sir, William Anderſon, Barts. John-Stephenſon Hall, John-Sylveſter Smith, Richard Wilſon, Benjamin Ferrend, John Melnes and Samuel Shore, Eſqrs. His Majeſty was pleaſed to receive the ſame very graciouſly.

NEW-YORK, March 29.

Laſt Saturday night, about 11 o'Clock, 14 or 15 Soldiers were ſeen about Liberty Pole in this City, which one of them had aſcenced, with an intent to take off and carry away the Top-maſt and Vane; as ſoon as they were diſcovered, five or ſix young Men, who were accidentally croſſing the Green at that Time made up towards the Pole, to ſee what they were about, but they were immediately attacked and driven off the Green by the Soldiers; who finding they were diſcovered, and being apprehenſive that the Inhabitants would be alarmed, they made off.

Soon after ſome perſons went into Town, and acquainted their friends with the Proceedings of the Soldiers; upon which 14 or 15 Perſons came up to the Green, and going to the Pole, were there ſurrounded by about 40 or 50 Soldiers, with their Cutlaſſes drawn; upon which 4 or 5 of them retreated to the Houſe of Mr. Bicker, and were followed by Part of the Soldiers, who immediately called out for the Soldiers, from the Barracks; upon which they were joined by a very conſiderable Body that came over the Barrack Fence—Mr. Bicker ſeeing himſelf and Family in Danger, and expoſed to the Inſults of a licentious and brutal Soldiery, ſtood with his Bayonet fixed, determined to defend himſelf to the laſt Extremity, and declared he would ſhoot the firſt Man, who ſhould attempt to enter; they ſeveral Times attempted to force the under Door, the upper Door being open, which Mr. Bicker kept ſhut, by fixing the Point of his Bayonet againſt it, while they kept cutting and hacking the Barrel of his Gun, in attempting to cut him down with their Cutlaſſes—but he ſoon after got the upper Door ſhut and barred; upon which they ſtrove to break open the Front Windows; (which were alſo ſhut, one of which they forced open, broke the Panes of Glaſs, and cut all the Frame to pieces in order to get into the Houſe.—Some people who were in the Houſe, ſeeing the eminent danger to which Mr. Bicker and his family were expos'd, got out the back Way and ran to alarm the Citizens. The Chapel Bell was immediately rung, upon the hearing of which, the Soldiers retreated precipitately.—A Number of the Citizens were up all night, and under Arms which probably prevented any miſchief being done, as they repeatedly ſwore they would ſet fire to the Houſe, and burn or deſtroy every perſon in it. Col. Robertſon, the Commanding Officer of the Regiment repaired to the Barracks, as ſoon as he had notice of the Diſturbance; he immediately ordered the Centinels to be confined, and remained up all night to prevent any further miſchief being done; and as a number of the inhabitants nightly guarded the Pole, till the Tranſports with the Soldiers were ſailed—They were diſaffected in effecting their Deſigns againſt it, altho' they poſitively ſwore they would carry off ſome part of it with them.

BOSTON, March 29 1770.

A prime ſailing Schooner, owned and commanded by Capt. Andrew Gardner, has been hired by this Town, to carry to England, a full Repreſentation of the tragical Affair on the Evening of the 12th of this Month. We hear ſhe ſails To-morrow.

DUBLIN.

Dec. 26. The SPEECH of His Excellency GEORGE Viſcount TOWNSHEND, Lord Lieutenant General, and General Governour of Ireland, to both Houſes of Parliament at Dublin, on Tueſday the 26th day of December, 1769

My Lords and Gentlemen,

THE attention you have ſhewn to the great objects which have been particularly recommended by me to your conſideration, and the proviſions which have been made for the ſafety and ſecurity of this kingdom, call upon me not only to expreſs my approbation of but to thank you, as I now do, for your conduct in theſe particulars.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

It is with great pleaſure that I thank you, in his Majeſty's name, for the ſupplies which you have granted, and proviſion you have made for the preſent eſtabliſhment, the public credit, and the ſafety of this kingdom.

When I firſt met you in parliament, as I knew, and could rely upon it, that nothing could move from his Majeſty but what would be expreſſive of his conſtant and ardent deſire to maintain and preſerve every conſtitutional right to his people, I little thought that any thing would happen during the courſe of this ſeſſion, that could poſſibly affect the juſt Rights of his Majeſty, and of the Crown of Gt. Britain, ſo as to afford his Majeſty any juſt cauſe of diſſatisfaction and make it neceſſary for me ſpecially, to aſſert and vindicate thoſe rights.

It is therefore with great concern that I have ſeen and obſerved in the Votes and Journals of the Houſe of Commons, printed by your order; a late proceeding by you, of ſuch a nature, and of ſuch effect with reſpect to the Rights of his Majeſty and the Crown of Great Britain as to make it neceſſary for me, on this day, and in this place, to take notice, of, and animadvert thereupon: I mean, the vote and reſolution of the twenty firſt day of November laſt by which you, Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons, declare, that a bill, entitled, An Act for granting to his Majeſty the ſeveral duties, rates, impoſitions and taxes thereupon particularly expreſſed, to be applied to the payment of the intereſt of the ſums therein provided for, and towards the diſcharge of the ſaid principal ſums, in ſuch manner as is therein directed, which had been duly certified from hence to his Majeſty, and by his Majeſty, had been tranſmitted in due form, under the Great Seal of Great Britain, & which had been read a firſt time by you, and which was rejected by you on that day, was ſo rejected becauſe it did not take its riſe in your houſe.

This vote and this reſolution of yours declaring that the ſaid bill was rejected, becauſe it did not take its riſe in your houſe, being contrary to the acts of parliament of this kingdom, of the 10th of Henry the VII. and the 3d and 4th of Philip and Mary, and the uſage and practice ever ſince and intrenching upon the juſt rights of his Majeſty and the Crown of Great Britain, to tranſmit ſuch bills to be treated of and conſidered in parliament here; I am now to aſſert his Majeſty's Royal Authority, and the rights of the Crown of Great Britain, in this reſpect and in ſuch a manner as may be moſt publick and therefore I do here, in full parliament, make my publick Proteſt againſt the ſaid vote and reſolution of the Houſe of commons by which you Gentlemen of that Houſe, declare that the ſaid bill was rejected by you, becauſe it did not take its riſe in your houſe, and againſt the entries of the ſaid vote and reſolution, which remain in the journals of the Houſe of Commons: And I do require the clerk of this houſe now to read my ſaid proteſt, and to enter it in the journals of this houſe, that it may there remain to future ages, as a vindication of the Undoubted right and authority of his Majeſty, and of the rights of the Crown of Great Britain, in this particular.

In this proteſt, I think myſelf warranted in all reſpects, and if it needed as I conceive it doth not any other ſtrength than that which it derives from the ſtatutes which I have mentioned, and from the uſage and practice ever, ſince, it would be found in that precedent which appears in the journals of this houſe, of the 3d day of November, 1692 under the reign of that glorious and immortal Prince King William the III. the great deliverer of theſe kingdoms and the conſtant and magnanimous aſſertor and preſerver of the civil and religious rights of mankind.

LONDON, December 15.

We hear that, in conſequence of a printed hand-bill diſperſed on Saturday laſt in Spitalfields, to deſire a meeting of the journeymen weavers in Moorfields to-morrow morning, being ſent to one of his Majeſty's principal Secretaries of State, letters were immediately wrote to the acting Magiſtrates in the different diviſions, to apprize them of the ſame, that every branch of the civil power might be exerted, to prevent, as far as poſſible, ſuch tumultuous aſſemblies.

TO BE SOLD at public Vendue, on Thurſday the 12th day of April inſtant, at five of the clock afternoon, at the houſe of Mr. Moſes Butler, innholder in Hartford,

A Lot of Land in Hartford, in about 2 Miles of the State-Houſe, at a Place call'd Rocky Hill containing about 90 Acres Said Lot will make a good Farm, as the ſame is well proportion'd for plowing, paſturing and mowing Land, and Wood and Timber growing thereon ſufficient to ſupply one Family, and is well watered. Alſo a Lot of Land lying in the South Meadow containing about two Acres. Said Lands will be ſold for ready Money, or ſhort Credit for good Security. Any Perſon inclined to purchaſe the ſame by private Sale, before ſaid Day, or wants further Information about the Premiſes, are deſired to apply to the Subſcriber,

JAMES NICHOLS.

Hartford, April 2, 1770.

STOLEN from the Subſcriber of Green-Buſh, near Albany, on the 21ſt Day of March laſt, two Mares, one of a Fox Colour, with a large white Streak down her Face, about 14 Hands high, natural Trotter about 8 Years old, her hind Feet white, low in fleſh, long Neck, large Tail, with a Lock of Hair cut out of the Middle, cloſe to the Dock, which may be diſcovered by a critical Examination; a Lump on the Middle of her Back which looks like a Wind-Gall. The other of a Bay Colour about 13 & half hands High, natural Trotter, ſhort thick Legs, well built a Switch Tail, thick buſhy Main, a ſmall Star in her Forehead ſhod before, about 9 Years old. Whoever ſhall take up the Thief, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's Goals, ſo that he may be brought to Juſtice, and the Beaſts recovered ſhall have Seven Pounds New York Currency Reward paid by me,

April 2. ROBERT RILEY.

STOLEN from the Subſcriber of Hartford, on the night after the 28th inſt. a dark brown MARE, near 14 hands high, five years old, ſhod before, both paces and trots can't ſee with one of her eyes, the hair on one or both her thighs a little wore off with the geers, no brand. She had on a good ſaddle without a houſen, and a bridle.—Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Mare and thief, and ſecure him, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice, and the Mare, &c, recovered, ſhall have TWO DOLLARS reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JOSEPH BERNARD.

Hartford, March 30.

THE Creditors of the eſtate of Cornelious Brown, late of Norfolk deceas'd, are deſired to take notice, that whereas the ſetting of the Commiſſioners for examining ſaid creditors claims has been legally advertiſed; this is to give further notice, that ſaid commiſſioners will ſet by adjournment, on the ſecond Tueſday of April next, at the houſe of Giles Pettibone, Innholder in Norfolk.

March 20, 1770.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

HARTFORD:
Printed by GREEN & WATSON.

The following LONDON Advices are from the South-Carolina Gazette of March 3, 1770.

LONDON, Dec. 18.

WE hear a deſign is on foot to augment the Salaries of all his Majeſty's Governors in the Weſt Indies and North-America, for the better ſupport of their Dignity, as his Majeſty's repreſentatives in their ſeveral governments.

Dec 26. We hear the reſult of the many Cabinet councils lately holden, is a fixed reſolution Not to diſſolve the parliament.

We are well informed that Lord Chatham has declared in public, as well as to his Lordſhip's private friends, that he ſhall never reſt ſatisfied until the gaſh that has been given to the conſtitution, in the Middleſex election, is healed.

It having been a matter of doubt lately in many companies whether the news-papers reach the royal preſence; we can aſſure our readers, that all the papers are every day laid before his Majeſty; and that he not only peruſes the news part, but every political eſſay that appears.

Dec. 28. The preſent patriotick toaſt is—May his——be no longer like a clergyman's horſe.

The unfortunate captain Gordon, who was lately executed at Breſt, was an officer in one of our marching regiments, on the Iriſh eſtabliſhment, and poſſeſſed of an eſtate of 800 l. per annum. Having ſome time ſince fought a duel at Lucas's coffee houſe, Dublin, and killed his man, he was obliged to go abroad, to avoid being brought to juſtice by the friends of the unfortunate perſon he engaged with.

London, December 30. Letters from Dantzick inform us, that orders have been by her imperial majeſty to fit out another fleet of twelve ſhips of the line with the utmoſt expedition, the command of which, it ſaid, will be given to Mr. Koſmin, a Ruſſian officer, who was educated in the Britiſh navy under the late admiral Warren.

A bett of 100 guineas was yeſterday evening made at a coffee houſe not far from Charing croſs, that the author of Junius would be in cuſtody before the firſt of next February.

The whole Ruſſian fleet, which is gone to the Mediterranean, is built of fir timber, without any oak. The ſhips were deſigned by an Engliſh builder, and are, much of the ſame conſtruction as our ſeventy four gun ſhips were formed about twenty years ago. In conſequence of the Ruſſian ſhips being wholly of fir-timber, they are able to carry a much greater weight.

Yeſterday John Wilkes, Eſq; gave a grand entertainment to a great number of gentlemen, at his apartments in the King's bench priſon among whom were many members of the Bill of Rights Society.

We hear that a patriotick party are very ſanguine in their hopes of being able to bring about the expulſion of a certain military gentleman.

The Friends of the Miniſtry, and thoſe who are denominated the Flying Squadron, having found, in moſt parts of the country, ſuch a thorough diſapprobation of their meaſures laſt winter, that ſeveral of them (whoſe future elections are problematical) will not attend at the beginning of an enſuing meeting, but wait till the firſt heat is over, in order to diſcover on which ſide is the beſt of the lay.

It is believed, by thoſe who have an opportunity of judging, that the laſt letter of Junius has put matters in ſuch an agitation, as muſt bring them to a criſis with the miniſtry; either they muſt make the ſafeſt retreat they can, or they muſt collect ſufficient force to put an effectual check to ſuch bold attacks. Whether either of them can be eaſily effected, ſome doubt.

WANTED, by

Geo. Phillips,

Of Middletown.

A NUMBER of HORSES, ſuitable for Barbados Market.

To be ſold for CASH by

Nat. Buel,

of Saliſbury.

FIVE POT-ASH KETTLES, Ten Tons of Pig-Iron, one Forge Hammer and Anvil, a Cloathiers Plate, three large Iron Kettles, and a number of Cart Boxes, all manufactured at Saliſbury Furnace.

N.B. An order drawn upon me by Capt. Comfort Sage of Middletown, to the value of Forty Pounds, or by Mr. Charles Dibble of Goſhen, for Twentyfive Pounds, will be as well accepted as the CASH, for any of the above articles.

A THEFT!

WHEREAS on the night after the 16th inſtant, the Shop of Aſa Foot of Colcheſter, was broken up, and the following pieces of Cloth, Stolen, viz. One piece of 12 & half yards—One ditto of 5 yds.—And one piece of Black, of 7 & half yds.—And one piece of a Mouſe colour of 7 yds—The laſt piece a little cowey, all of them ſhear'd—And one piece of 5 yds. Milldy'd, not ſheard.——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Thief, and give notice to the ſubſcriber, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice, & the goods recover'd, ſhall have FIVE DOLLARS reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

ASA FOOT.

Colcheſter, March 17, 1770.

Farmington, March 10, 1770.

WE the Subſcribers being appointed by the Hon. Court of Probate for the Diſtrict of Farmington, Commiſſioners to receive and adjuſt the Claims of the Creditors to the Eſtate of Abigail Stedman, late of ſaid Farmington, deceaſed (repreſented inſolvent) we therefore hereby notify the Creditors to ſaid Eſtate, to bring in their Claims and Demands to us on the laſt Tueſdays of April and May next, at one of the Clock in the Afternoon on each Day at the Dwelling Houſe of Noah Woodruff in Farmington, as we will Attend the buſineſs on each of ſaid Days, at ſaid Time and Place.

Joſhua Woodruff, } Commiſ-
Gad Stanly, } ſioners.

AT a general meeting of the proprietors of the ſeveral towns granted by his excellency Benning Wentworth, Eſq; late governor of the province of New-Hampſhire, lying on the weſt ſide of Connecticut river, and north of the province of the Maſſachuſetts Bay being warned by advertiſement in the ſeveral public papers in New-England & New-York, and conven'd at the houſe of Charles Burrall, Eſq; in Canaan, on the 8th day of March A.D. 1770, in order to agree upon the beſt method to defend ſaid Hampſhire grants, againſt other claimers that pretend to hold ſaid lands under patents from the governor of New-York.——Capt. Samuel Elmer was choſen Chairman, and Mr. Solomon Whitney was choſen Clerk.——Alſo, at the ſame meeting it was voted, that we will defend the ſaid Hampſhire title, to the utmoſt of our ability, againſt all other claimers whatever as far as it can be defended by law or equity——And whereas ſeveral writs of ejectments are now ſerved by thoſe claimants, under the governor of New-York, on ſome of thoſe now ſettled on ſaid lands under ſaid governor Wentworth's grant, and money being now wanted to carry on and defend ſaid caſes, now depending. Therefore it is further voted and agreed, that each proprietor pay the ſum of half a dollar, on a right, to be uſed for the purpoſe of defending the ſaid cauſes depending; and that Capt. Stephen Fay of Bennington, Capt. David Wadkins of Arlington, Jeremiah French of Mancheſter, Benjamin Gardner of Pownel, Bliſs Willobough of Shaftſbury, Reuben Harman for Reufort and Pollet, Thomas Bollon of Durham, John Strong of Paxton, Stephen Calkins of Darby, Capt. Samuel Elmer of Sharon, Charles Burrall, Eſq; of Canaan, Benjamin Ferris of the Oblong, Samuel Hungerford of New-Fairfield, Samuel Brown of Stockbridge, Samuel Averil of Kent, John Averts of Saliſbury, Phineas Sheldon of Suffield, John Burling of New York, Edward Burling of Weſt Cheſter, Ebenezer Fiſk of Farmington, Abraham Thomſon of New-Haven, Col. Nathan Stone, of Cumberland County, Col. —— Bailey of Oxbow Town, Daniel Rindge of Fairfield, and John Sharrer of Fiſh-Kills, a Committee to receive of each proprietor, the ſum of half a Dollar——to deliver the ſame to Charles Burrall, Eſq; who is appointed Treaſurer, and Receiver-General of all monies ſo collected: and ſaid Committee and Treaſurer, are hereby directed to apply ſo much of the money ſo collected, as he or they ſhall ſee needful, to the ſaid purpoſe of defending ſaid Hampſhire title.—And the ſaid committee and treaſurer are to be accountable to this meeting, or to the ſaid proprietors that ſhall pay the ſame, for all monies ſo collected. And whereas the deciſion of the cauſes now depending, will probably be a preſident for the whole of ſaid lands, therefore it is ſtrongly recommended by this meeting to every proprietor, to pay ſaid ſum of half a dollar, ſince he will eventually, really pay it to defend his own rights.——Voted, that the proceedings of this meeting be printed in this and the neighbouring governments.

At the ſame time ſaid meeting, for a further conſultation on the affair before them, was adjourn'd to the ſecond Wedneſday of May next, at the houſe of Charles Burrall, Eſq; in ſaid Canaan.

The before going is a true copy of the votes and agreements of ſaid Meeting.

Teſt. SOLOMON WHITNEY,
Clerk for ſaid Meeting.

Lately Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Printing-Office in Hartford,

VISIBLE Saints lawful Right to Communion in Chriſtian Sacraments, Vindicated. (In Way of Anſwer to a Sermon, entitled, Chriſtian Baptiſm, delivered at Hanover, in New Jerſy, Nov. 4th, 1764. By the Rev. Jacob Green, A. M. In a Letter to a Friend. In three parts.

By GEORGE BECKWITH, A.M.
Paſtor of a Church in Lyme, Connecticut.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by the Printers hereof price Half a Piſtareen,

Obſervations on a
Pamphlet entitled,
Remarks on Dr. GALE's Letter to
J. W. Eſq; Sign'd E. D. of which
The Hon. ELIPHALET DYER,
Is the reputed Author.
Shewing, from the Matters therein contained, that ſuch an Imputation is highly injurious to the Character of that worthy Patriot.
By Benjamin Gale, A. M.

MONDAY April, 9, 1770.

Numb 276.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

CESAR, when maſter of the Roman empire, riding one day with ſome of his courtiers, through an inconſiderable village in Italy, the inhabitants of which were collected, in order to make choice, of their town officers.

One of his Friars obſerved in a merry, but contemptuous way, on the great ſolicitude of the candidates, to obtain poſts, which to him appeared ſo very trifling and inſignificant.

Ceſar made this ſerious reply. Trifling as this village, and this contention appear to you——I had rather be the firſt man in it, than the ſecond man in Rome.——Human nature is in every age and nation much the ſame. The ſituation of the actors, the taſte, dreſs, or complexion of the times making all the difference there really is, which at moſt is merely extrinſical.——There is no nation, but has in it, many Ceſars, who nevertheleſs from the circumſtances of the times, live and dye in obſcurity, yet under different ſituations, or meeting with incidents fortunate for the ſame purpoſe, would act the ſame part on the ſtage of the world.——We read that when the Prophet told Hazael of the inhuman barbarities of which he would one day be guilty, and the miſeries he would bring on the children of Iſrael——Hazael however his heart was ſtock'd with the ſeeds of ambition and cruelty, yet from his rank in life, having hitherto had neither the opportunity, nor temptation of acting ſuch a part, ſhudders at the idea, and expoſtulating with the Prophet for the hard thot's he entertained of him cries out, Is thy ſervant a Dog that he ſhould do thus? The Prophet's reply is the moſt laconic, pointed, and expreſſive, any language is capable of;——The LORD hath ſhewed me, that thou ſhalt be King of Aſſyria.

Moſt men form very wrong judgments of themſelves, and of their fellowmen by viewing them and their actions in a very wrong point of light, and through a fallacious medium.——The real character, and principles of men are but ſeldom aſcertained from their more public actions, and performances. Elevated on a Theatre, with the world for ſpectators, art, deſign, and often diſguiſe attend the moſt they ſay or do, and caſt an impenetrable veil over the heart, and ſecret ſprings of action.—To find theſe out we muſt attend them behind the ſcenes——Obſerve them when undreſs'd of offices, parade, and ſhow——follow them into the ſtill vale of private life, and domeſtic retirement, and there carefully watch the minutiæ of their behaviour, whilſt off their guard, which an appearance in public, never fails of putting on, in a greater, or leſs degree.

With what freedom, and ſeverity do we cenſure the corruption, the partiality, and tyranny of men in power, courtiers, and miniſters of ſtate;——yet on an attentive view of the conduct, and the motives that influence the conduct, of many in Colonies, Towns, and even Pariſhes we may often find the actions complained of in higher life, in miniature.——The man who ambitiouſly purſues preferment, and uſes indirect means to obtain it, in the ſmalleſt town or ſociety; would the ſcene changed, and the higheſt offices in the kingdom, as much in his reach uſe the ſame, in a proportionably greater degree.

The man who in private life is dogmatical, and ſupercilious to his inferiors, who is overbearing, and impatient, of having his opinion diſſented from in ſmaller communities, or ſociety; and from being accuſtomed to implicit ſubmiſſion, expects it from all; would exert theſe qualities in their moſt full, and fatal extent, in the character of a grand Signior, an abſolute King, a Baſhaw or a prime Miniſter.

The man who in the lower ſcenes of political life, labours to promote to offices of truſt, honor or profit, (though of no more importance than thoſe of a common Juſtice of the Peace, or Grand jury man) men whom he knows are moſt notoriouſly unequal to them, and ignorant even of the firſt principles of the employ, barely on account of relation, family connections, or the like—who by intrigue, and influence, effects the deſign, introduces the ignorant, contemptible blunderer, and introduced ſupports, and upholds him.—The man who does this may not improperly be ſtiled, Lord Bute below ſtairs——elevated to the ſame ſtation and poſſeſs'd of equal power and influence, the effects will be the ſame.——Nothing (ſay the Philoſophers) in the material world, is great, or ſmall; but as it bears proportion to greater, or leſs ſurrounding objects—ſimilar to this holds good, in the civil, moral actions of men.

[H.] OBSERVATOR.

By the brig Rainbow, arrived at Baltimore, Maryland, from Cork, we received a Cork paper as late as the 22d of Jan. from which we have the following advice.

LONDON, Jan. 9.

The humble ADDRESS of the Right Hon. the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament aſſembled.

Die Martis, 9°. Januarii, 1770.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, in parliament aſſembled, return your Majeſty our humble thanks for your moſt gracious Speech from the throne.

We beg leave to aſſure your Majeſty, that it is with the greateſt concern we have underſtood that the diſtemper among the horned cattle has lately broke out in this kingdom. We deſire to expreſs our gratitude for your Majeſty's paternal care and attention to the welfare of your people, in the ſteps which it has pleaſed your Majeſty to take, with the advice of your Privy Council, to check the inſtant danger of the ſpreading of the diſtemper, upon the firſt notice of its appearance; and to aſſure your Majeſty, that we will immediately enter into the moſt ſerious conſideration of this very important object, and will exert our utmoſt endeavours in taking ſuch effectual meaſures, as may ſecure us againſt ſo great a calamity.

We return your Majeſty our thanks for the repeated aſſurances your Majeſty has been pleaſed to give us, of your fixed purpoſe to preſerve the peace; maintaining, at the ſame time the dignity of your crown, & the intereſts of your people. We have a dutiful ſenſe of your Majeſty's provident attention to prevent the neceſſity of involving your ſubjects in freſh difficulties, after the great burthens to which they ſo chearfully ſubmitted, in order to bring the late war to a happy concluſion; and we have great ſatisfaction in finding, that the aſſurances given to your Majeſty by the other great powers of Europe afford reaſon to believe, that, without prejudice either to the honour of your crown, the rights of your people, or the general intereſts of Europe, it may ſtill be in your Majeſty's power to continue to your ſubjects the farther enjoyment of the bleſſings of peace.

We aſſure your Majeſty, that we will take into our moſt ſerious conſideration the ſtate of your government in America. We beg leave to expreſs our utmoſt concern, that the ſucceſs of your Majeſty's endeavours to bring back your ſubjects there to a due ſenſe of lawful authority, have not anſwered your Majeſty's expectations. We ſhall be ready to give every aſſiſtance in our power for rendering effectual theſe your Majeſty's gracious intentions, and for diſcountenancing thoſe unwarrantable meaſures practiſed in ſome of your Majeſty's colonies, which appear calculated to deſtroy the commercial connection between them and the mother country.

We think it our duty to aſſure your Majeſty, that we are thoroughly ſenſible, that the welfare of your people has ever been the object of your wiſhes, and the rule of all your actions; and that we will endeavour to deſerve the favourable opinion, which your majeſty is graciouſly pleaſed to expreſs, of our being governed by the ſame principle. That we have a perfect reliance on your Majeſty's promiſed ſupport in ſuch meaſures, as may ſerve to promote thoſe ends. That as it is peculiarly incumbent upon us at preſent, to avoid heats and animoſities among ourſelves, ſo we ſhall endeavour to cultivate that harmony, which is ſo neceſſary to the common cauſe, and which alone can render our deliberations reſpectable & effectual; being fully perſuaded, that ſuch a conduct, on our part, muſt greatly contribute to the happineſs and proſperity of this country, and to eſtabliſh a due ſenſe of the very diſtinguiſhed advantages of our happy conſtitution, as well as a firm attachment to it; and muſt juſtify, both at home and abroad, your Majeſty's gracious confidence in the wiſdom of your parliament, and in their zeal for the true intereſts of your people.

His Majeſty's moſt gracious anſwer.

My Lords,

I thank you for this affectionate and loyal addreſs. Your reſolution to enter immediately into the conſideration of ſuch meaſures as may beſt ſecure us againſt the ſpreading of the diſtemper among the horned cattle, affords me great ſatisfaction.

I have ſtrong reliance on your determination to give me every aſſiſtance in your power to ſupport my government in America.

Your aſſurances of duty and loyalty towards me, and your reſolution to cultivate harmony amongſt yourſelves, give me very ſincere pleaſure.

The humble addreſs of the houſe of commons to the King.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

We your Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament aſſembled, beg leave to return your Majeſty our humble thanks for your moſt gracious ſpeech from the throne.

We cannot but look upon it as a very ſerious misfortune, that, notwithſtanding every precaution which could be uſed for preventing the communication of the infectious diſorder among the horned cattle from foreign parts, that moſt alarming diſtemper appears to have again broke out in ſome parts of the kingdom: At the ſame time, we are truly ſenſible of your Majeſty's paternal care and vigilence for the ſecurity of your people, in having given the earlieſt directions for every meaſure to be purſued, that might be moſt likely to give an immediate check to the firſt ſpreading of the infection; and we will not fail to take this important matter into our immediate conſideration; and to make ſuch proviſions as ſhall appear beſt calculated to carry into effectual and compleat execution your Majeſty's ſalutary intentions; thereby, as far as by human means can be accompliſhed, to guard againſt the danger of ſo great a calamity becoming general.

Your faithful commons have too juſt a ſenſe of the bleſſings of peace, and feel with your Majeſty, too tender a concern for the eaſe of their fellow ſubjects, not to rejoice at the proſpect which the aſſurances given by the other great powers of Europe afford to your Majeſty, that the preſent diſturbances will not extend to any part where the ſecurity, honour, or intereſt of this nation, may make it neceſſary for your Majeſty to become a party. We have the fulleſt confidence that your Majeſty will ever be mindful of thoſe important objects; and we obſerve, with great ſatisfaction your Majeſty's wiſe attention to the general intereſts of Europe, in your determination not to acknowledge any claims of any of the other powers of Europe, contrary to the limitations of the late treaties of peace.

We ſincerely lament, that your Majeſty's endeavours to bring back your ſubjects in America to a juſt ſenſe of their duty, have hitherto proved ſo little ſucceſsful. The ſtate of your Majeſty's government there does undoubtedly well deſerve the ſerious attention of parliament; and no endeavours ſhall be wanted on our part, to make effectual proviſions againſt the unwarrantable meaſures carried on in ſome of your Majeſty's colonies, which are ſo irreconcilable to every principle of commercial ſubſerviency to the intereſt of the mother country that ought to prevail in colonies, and which, by attempting to ſubject the higheſt legal authority to the controul of individuals tend to ſubvert the foundation of all government.

Your Majeſty may be aſſured, that we will with the utmoſt chearfulneſs and diſpatch grant the neceſſary ſupplies for the ſervice of the current year.

We acknowledge with the warmeſt gratitude that the welfare of thoſe kingdoms has been the conſtant object of your Majeſty's wiſhes and the unvaried rule of your actions. Permit us, Sir, at the ſame time, to offer to your Majeſty our moſt dutiful thanks for the favourable opinion which your majeſty is pleaſed to entertain of the conduct of your parliament; and to aſſure your Majeſty, that we will ſteadily perſevere in ſuch principles as are moſt agreeable to the true ſpirit of his free conſtitution, and invariably purſue ſuch meaſures as are moſt conducive to the real happineſs of the people.

Earneſtly deſirous of juſtifying to all the world your Majeſty's gracious declaration of your confidence in us, we will make it our ſtudy to avoid all heats and animoſities, and to cultivate that harmony amongſt ourſelves, which, we are truly ſenſible, is at this time peculiarly neceſſary, to give weight to our deliberations, to eſtabliſh the proſperity, and to maintain in its true luſtre the reputation, of this country.

And while we on our part are faithfully executing the truſt repoſed in us, by endeavouring to the utmoſt of our power to promote theſe good ends, we truſt that all who live under this happy conſtitution will be convinced how indiſpenſably it is their duty to pay that obedience to the laws, and juſt reverence to lawful authority, by which alone their own rights can be preſerved, and the diſtinguiſhed bleſſings which they enjoy above all other nations be rendered ſecure and permanent.

It is aſſured that the petition of the town of Liverpool was ſigned by 1200 perſons, & the proteſt by 200 only. The whole number of freemen belonging to that place, we are told, is but 1500. It is farther ſaid, that the proteſt was drawn up here, and ſent down to be ſigned.

The laſt letters from Breſt mention, that the general talk in all the principal ſea-ports of France was of an approaching war with England.

Jan. 10. Monday night there was a meeting of the miniſter's friends at the Cockpit (as uſual) previous to the opening the ſeſſion of parliament, when the number preſent was 449.

At a meeting of the gentlemen in oppoſition, at the Thatched houſe tavern, in St. James's 29 new members were preſent.

Jan. 11. A certain ſp—ch, from its not mentioning a word of ſome late petitions, has occaſioned great ſpeculations in the political world.

Tueſday the Lord Mayor was carried, though very much indiſpoſed to the houſe of Commons in his chair.

The ſpeech of a noble lawyer on a late occaſion, is, we are told, univerſally extolled by thoſe who heard it.

A correſpondent ſays, "early on yeſterday morning the laſt ſtab was given to expiring———."

It is currently reported, that Junius is retired to the ſouth of France, in order to ſpend a few weeks with the lords H——d and B——. The former, we hear, has engaged him to ſettle ſome of his accounts, which he finds himſelf under a neceſſity of adjuſting before he can conveniently return to E———.

On a diviſion that aroſe on a very important queſtion on Tueſday, in a numerous aſſembly, the majority againſt the queſtion was 254, and the minority for the queſtion of the ſame nature and tendency, the majority againſt the queſtion were nearly to the minority for the queſtion as three to one.

Lord Chatham ſpoke long, and with great ſpirit and force, and replied to the ſeveral arguments uſed againſt him in the courſe of the debate.

Yeſterday petitions from the following places were preſented to his Majeſty at St. James's, viz. Devonſhire, Derbyſhire, Glouceſterſhire, Wiltſhire, and Herefordſhire.

We find by letters from Vienna, that the Emperor and his mother differ greatly in politics. The Empreſs queen, it ſeems, wants to ſtrengthen the alliance with France, by the ceſſion of ſome barrier towns in Flanders to that crown; whilſt, on the contrary, the Emperor is unwilling to contribute to the aggrandizement of that monarchy, and thinks an alliance with Pruſſia would be more conducive to the peace & welfare of Germany. The oppoſition of ſentiment is ſaid to have occaſioned a coolneſs between thoſe royal perſonages; and it is even reported that the Empreſs has taken the reſolution to retire into a convent.

Another account ſays that a diſagreement ſubſiſts between the courts of Vienna and Verſailles.

Jan. 12. The names of the following lords will be revered from the 9th inſt. to lateſt Poſterity, as friends to the Britiſh conſtitution, and aſſertors of the rights of their fellow ſubjects: The Dukes of Richmond, Portland, Mancheſter and Northumberland, The Marquis of Rockingham. The Earls of Suffolk, Stamford, Abingdon, Scarborough, Albermarle, Tankerville, Aylesford, Macclesfield, Effingham, Buckinghamſhire, Fitzwilliams, Temple, Randor and Chatham.—The Viſcount Torrington.——The Lords Abergavenny, Byron, Craven, Boyle, Trevor, King, Monſon, Chedworth, Edgecumbe, Forteſcue, Ponſonby, Lyttleton, Waycombe, Groſvenor, Milton, Camden.

The odds on Tueſday were 89 to 36, and 254 to 138.

It is ſaid that Lords Temple, Lyttleton, the Marquis of Granby, and Mr. Grenville, have had very frequent conferrences with the Earl of Chatham.

A perſon of great eminence in the law has joined the minority, as has alſo another great lawyer.

It is ſaid, that a certain military commander of the higheſt rank, who has ever been deſervedly a favourite with the people, has joined the minority, and declared that "he ſhall ever look upon his conduct, during the laſt year, as the moſt reproachful ære of his life."

It is ſaid, that one of our Eaſt-India ſhips, lately arrived, having occaſion in her paſſage to call at Mauritius, found there four French men of war, with ſeveral frigates, and a number of land forces on board. The Engliſh Captain was not ſuffered to go on ſhore in the day, but was permitted to pay his compliments in the night to the Governour, under a covered way, from whence he was obliged to return again before day light to his own ſhip.

N E W-Y O R K, April 9.

Extract of a Letter from Philadelphia.

Capt. Nuttle, in the Brig Juliana, left Liſbon February 18—And by ſundry Letters from thence, we learn that on the 14th the Packet arrived from England, which brought Accounts, that the Duke of Grafton had reſigned, and that Lord Camden and Chatham, was to take the Lead in the Miniſtry.—And that the Parliament had prohibited the Exoportation of Grain from England for 12 Months longer.

Boſton, April 2.

It will perhaps be ſurpriſing to the People of the Neighbouring Provinces to be told, that there is not above one ſeller of Tea in the Town of Boſton, who has not ſigned an Agreement not to diſpoſe of any more of that article, until the late Revenue acts are repealed.

The Betſey, Capt. Andrew Gardiner, hired by this Town, to carry a particular Account of the late horrid Maſſacre, ſail'd Yeſterday for London.

We hear three of the C———rs are ſkulking about the Country; and that the good People of the Province avoid them as they would Beaſts of Prey.

The People of the Province are at a loſs know what is become of the Perſon reputed the King's Attorney; he not having been viſible at the Superior Court now ſitting in Boſton for a conſiderable Time paſt.

C A M B R I D G E, March 21.

This day the Reverend Samuel Locke late Paſtor of the Church of Shelburne, was inſtalled Preſident of Harvard College.

There was a Proceſſion from Harvard-Hall to the Meeting Houſe in the following order:

The Students of the College
Reſident Graduates
The Librarian, with the College Seal, Records and Charter; and the Butler with the Keys.
The Reverend Corporation
The Profeſſors and Tutors in their proper Habits
His Honor, the Lieut. Governor and the Preſident elected
The Honorable and Reverend Overſeers
The Honorable Houſe of Repreſentatives
The Reverend Clergy
A conſiderable Number of reſpectable Gentlemen.

The Solemnity was began with Prayer by the Rev. Mr Appleton. After which his Honor the Lieut. Governor, as Preſident of the Overſeers introduced Mr. Locke into his Office by a Latin Speech; delivering to him the Seal, Keys, Books and Charter, and ſeating him in the Preſident's Chair. The Preſident then delivered a Latin Oration, to which his Honour made a ſhort Reply. This was ſucceeded by a Latin Oration, pronounced by Mr. Dunbar, a ſenior Bachelor. The Rev. Mr. Pemberton made another Prayer; and the Solemnity was concluded with a Hymn and an anthem performed by the young Gentlemen of the College.

After the public Exerciſes were over, the Proceſſion returned to Harvard Hall, where an elegant entertainment was provided for his Honor the Lieut. Governor——the Overſeers of the College——the Houſe of Repreſentatives——and the other Gentlemen who honoureded the Solemnity with their Preſence.

The whole was conducted with Decency and Propriety, to the Satisfaction of all preſent.

HARTFORD, April 9.

Wedneſday the 18th inſt. is appointed by Authority, to be obſerved as a day of public Faſting and Prayer, thro'out this Colony.

A few days ſince, the wife Mr. Ebenezer McGrigory of Enfield, was ſafely delivered of three daughters at a birth, which weigh'd 18lb. 2 ozs. The Mother with the Children, are like to do well.

ADVERTISEMENT.

To be paid while you'd ſay Jack Robinſon,

A Reward of ONE THOUSAND POUNDS, Rhode-Iſland Currency, by me the Subſcriber, to any Perſon or perſons that ſhall apprehend Shan-Ap-Morgan(Shentleman of Wales) who eloped from his Bed and Board on Friday the 16th Inſtant, without the leaſt Provocation on one Part, and in direct Oppoſition to his Maſter's Orders on the other. As it is apprehended he is gone beyond Sea to prevent his being broght to Juſtice for ſundry heinous Crimes that will ſpeedily become public, all charitable and well diſpoſed People on this and the other Side the Water, are earneſtly requeſted for the good of the Public, to uſe their utmoſt Endeavours to ſtop ſaid Shan-ap-Morgan, that he may be dealt with according to the attrocioufneſs of his Crimes, in order to prevent in future ſuch hanious Offenders from breaking the ſacred Bonds of Society, and the Orders of their Maſters with Impunity: He is about five feet ten inches high, ſquare ſhoulder'd, and of a ſallow Complection, ſome what pock mark'd, an undetermined croſs, inconſiſtent, unpromiſing Countenance; very aukward in his Walk and Addreſs!—ſpeaks with a trembling Tone, and very inconnected in his Mode of Expreſſion——When he tells a Story makes it very long, and never to the Purpoſe; is very fond of miſquoting Acts of Parliament to ſhew his Knowledge where they have no Connection, and always looks very much frighted.

The ——— and other great Men in England are repueſted not to countenance ſaid Fugitive, as they may depend upon it he never was a Man of Truth! Honor! or Honeſty! Or he would have rewarded me (agreeable to Promiſe) for my Jaunt to St. Euſtatia.

GREGORY CORNELL.
Rhode-Iſland, March 19.

THE very beſt BOHEA TEA and INDIGO, to be Sold by DANIEL COTTON, near the Court-Houſe in Hartford.

TO BE SOLD BY

James Tiley,

GOLDSMITH, at his Shop, juſt below Meſſ. Lathrop & Smith's Store in King Street Hartford.

CYPHER'd and Brilliant Stone Ear-Rings ſet in Gold, ditto in Silver, Cypher'd and Brilliant Stone Buttons, Stone Rings, and a variety of other Articles.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY.

AS an apprentice to a Chaiſe and Harneſs maker in Hartford, a likely LAD, about 12 or 14 years of Age.——Enquire of the PRINTERS.

ALL Perſons in the Town of Hartford, poſſeſſed of Steel-yards or Weights are hereby notified to bring them to the ſubſcriber to be tried by the Standard according to law.

THOMAS SLOAN Sealer of Weights.
Hartford, April 9. 1770.

WHereas application has been made to me the ſubſcriber, a Juſtice of Peace for the county of Litchfield, by more than a 16th part of the proprietors of STOW, near Onion River, a townſhip granted by Benning Wentworth, Eſq; late governor of New-Hampſhire, deſiring to warn a meeting of ſaid proprietors, to ſee if they will chooſe a committee, to ſurvey, and bound out ſaid townſhip; and lay out a home lott, or firſt diviſion to each right. Theſe are therefore to notify the proprietors of ſaid Townſhip to meet together at the houſe of Mr. Elias Read, innholder in Saliſbury, on the fourth Tueſday of April next, at one of the clock afternoon for the purpoſe aforeſaid, and to do any other buſineſs proper to be done, at ſaid meeting. Dated at Sharon, the 23 day of March, 1770.

DANIEL GRISWOLD, Juſt. Pacis.

Weathersfield, 5 April, 1770.

WE the ſubſcribers appointed by the hon. court of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners, to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Mrs. Grace Goodrich, late of Weathersfield deceas'd; (the eſtate being repreſented inſolvent) We ſhall attend that buſineſs, on the laſt monday of April inſtant, and on the firſt monday's of June and Auguſt next, at the dwelling houſe of Joſeph Richards, jun. in ſaid Weathersfield from 2 to 8 o'clock in the afternoon on each of ſaid days.

Daniel Andrus. } Commiſſioners.
Joſeph Richards, jun.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

From the Connecticut Journal, &c.

To the FARMER and GRASIER.

SOME time laſt Spring an unuſual diſtemper ſeized ſome horn cattle in my neighbourhood: The ſymtoms much like what are among us called the ſtaggers. Amputating a part of the tail generally ſucceeded well; eſpecially if the beaſt bled freely. It failing in a few inſtances, and a good natured farrier adviſing to perform the opperation at the other extremity, I immediately tied up a cow, that was ſo reduced that ſhe could ſcarcely ſtand, applied a ſaw to her left horn, and took it off about an inch and half above the hair. To my great ſurprize, the horn was perfectly hollow and bloodleſs: ſcarce a veſtige remained of the bony ſubſtance that compoſes the cells that uſually contain a quantity of blood: the other horn was taken off cloſe to the hair, and appeared in the like condition. I applied powder'd brimſtone mixed with tar, which was repeated three or four days. The cow recovered and made a good piece of beef.

Some deep Politicans of my acquaintance fancy that in his Majeſty's Speech at the opening of the preſent ſeſſion of Parliament, Horned Cattle are to be underſtood in ſome myſtical ſenſe; and are portentious of ſome notable event ſpeedily to take place in the political world But ſuch a whim is derogatory to majeſty, and I would by no means have my countrymen indulge ſuch idle fancies. As to the foregoing narrative, I declare on the word of a farmer that I do literally mean Horn Cattle, and them of the neat kind, and not Sheep or Goats.

JOHN HUBERD.

New-Haven, 27th March 1770.

NEW-HAVEN, March 30.

The following melancholly Accident happened at Long Iſland, on the 29th Inſtant, viz. As Four Perſons, whoſe Names were Richard Brown, Samuel Brown, (two Brothers) Peter Brown, and John King, all belonging to the Oyſter-Ponds, and near Neighbours, were returning from on board a Brig that was laying near the Fire Place, ſo called, off Eaſt Hampton, (on board of which they had been to viſit ſome Friends juſt returned from a Voyage) the Boat in which they were, overſet at about 40 Rods diſtance from the Shore, and filled; when they were heard to call for help! but before any aſſiſtance could be afforded them they were all unfortunately drowned.

BOSTON, March 26.

We are fallen into ſuch Times, that a Scrip from a S——y of S——e ſhall have ſo much Weight with a G——r in C——l as to lead him to act counter to clear Charter Right and a plain Act of the Province.

It is ſaid that the infamous Shan Robinſon has abſented himſelf from his Station and Duty, not meerly without Leave: from the Lords of Trade, or whoever are his Superiors in Office at Home—— Does there not appear a Quam Deus Vult perdere prius dementat in the whole of this Don Quixots late conduct——The honorable Mr. P. is regaling himſelf with his Friends at Cambridge, and Meſſieurs Burch and Hulton appear'd Yeſterday at Salem, and 'tis ſaid their Honors intend to Tour as far as Portſmouth in New-Hampſhire.

Extract of a Letter from Rhode-Iſland, 15th March 1770.

"A Young Fellow from this Place well known for a debauch'd and profligate Life, has (upon his firſt Application obtain'd an office at New-York with a Salary of Fifty Pounds Sterling per Ann. This Perſon it is ſaid, (and I believe with great Truth) was a Pimp and Procurer to the infamous J. R——n; and therefore probably may ſerve in a double Capacity in his new Appointment in Order to favor the myſterious Deſigns of his new Appointment Patron who it ſeems (by this and ſome other Appointments) has a wonderful Influence over his Brother C——ts, ſo that by placing Pimps, and ſending Spies, mighty Matters are to be expected from their Services."

TO BE SOLD at public Vendue, on Thurſday the 19th day of April inſtant, at five of the clock afternoon, at the houſe of Mr. Moſes Butler, innholder in Hartford,

A Lot of Land in Hartford, in about 2 Miles of the State-Houſe, at a Place call'd Rocky Hill containing about 90 Acres. Said Lot will make a good Farm, as the ſame is well proportion'd for plowing, paſturing and mowing Land, and Wood and Timber growing thereon ſufficient to ſupply one Family, and is well watered. Alſo a Lot of Land lying in the South Meadow, containing about two Acres. Said Lands will be ſold for ready Money, or ſhort Credit for good Security. Any Perſon inclined to purchaſe the ſame by private Sale, before ſaid Day, or wants further Information about the Premiſes, are deſired to apply to the Subſcriber.

JAMES NICHOLS.

Hartford, April 2. 1770.

STOLEN from the Subſcriber of Green Buſh, near Albany, on the 21ſt Day of March laſt, two Mares, one of a Fox Colour, with a large white Streak down her Face, about 14 Hands high, natural Trotter about 8 Years old, her hind Feet white, low in Fleſh, long Neck, large Tail, with a Lock of Hair cut out of the Middle, cloſe to the Dock, which may be diſcovered by a critical Examination; a Lump on the Middle of her Back which looks like a Wind-Gall. The other of a Bay Colour, about 13 & half hands High, natural Trotter, ſhort thick Legs, well built a Switch Tail, thick buſhy Main, a ſmall Star in her Forehead, ſhod before, about 9 Years old Whoever ſhall take up the Thief, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's Goals, ſo that he may be brought to Juſtice, and the Beaſts recovered ſhall have Seven Pounds New York Currency Reward paid by me,

April 2. ROBERT RILEY.

THE Creditors of the eſtate of Cornelious Brown, late of Norfolk deceas'd, are deſired to take notice, that whereas the ſetting of the Commiſſioners for examining ſaid creditors claims has been legally advertiſed; this is to give further notice, that ſaid commiſſioners will ſet by adjournment, on the ſecond Tueſday of April next, at the houſe of Giles Pettibone, Innholder in Norfolk.

March 20, 1770.

STOLEN from the Subſcriber of Hartford, on the night after the 28th inſt. a dark brown MARE, near 14 hands high, five years old, ſhod before, both paces and trots, can't ſee with one of her eyes, the hair on one or both her thighs a little wore off with the geers, no brand. She had on a good ſaddle without a houſen, and a bridle.——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Mare and thief, and ſecure him, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice, and the Mare, &c. recovered, ſhall have TWO DOLLARS reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JOSEPH BERNARD.

Hartford, March 30.

Farmington, March 10. 1770.

WE the Subſcribers being appointed by the Hon. Court of Probate for the Diſtrict of Farmington, Commiſſioners to receive and adjuſt the Claims of the Creditors to the Eſtate of Abigail Stedman, late of ſaid Farmington, deceaſed (repreſented inſolvent) we therefore hereby notify the Creditors to ſaid Eſtate, to bring in their Claims and Demands to us on the laſt Tueſdays of April and May next, at one of the Clock in the Afternoon on each Day at the Dwelling Houſe of Noah Woodruff in Farmington, as we will Attend the buſineſs on each of ſaid Days, at ſaid Time and Place.

Joſhua Woodruff, } Commiſ-
Gad Stanly. } ſioners.

To be Sold for CASH by

Nat. Buel,

of Saliſbury.

FIVE POT-ASH KETTLES, Ten Tons of Pig-Iron, one Forge Hammer and Anvil, a Cloathiers Plate, three large Iron Kettles, and a number of Cart Boxes, all manufactured at Saliſbury Furnace.

N.B. An order drawn upon me by Capt. Comfort Sage of Middletown, to the value of Forty Pounds, or by Mr. Charles Dibble of Goſhen, for Twentyfive Pounds, will be as well accepted as the CASH, for any of the above articles.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by the Printer, hereof price Half-a-Piſtareen,

Obſervations on a

Pamphlet entitled,

Remarks on Dr. GALE's Letter to

J. W. Eſq; Sign'd E. D. of which

The Hon. ELIPHALET DYER,

Is the reputed Author.

Shewing, from the Matters therein contained, that ſuch an Imputation is highly injurious to the Character of that worthy Patriot.

By Benjamin Gale, A. M.

Lately Publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Printing-Office in Hartford.

VISIBLE Saints lawful Right to Communion in Chriſtian Sacraments, Vindicated. (In Way of Anſwer to a Sermon, entitled, Chriſtian Baptiſm, delivered at Hanover, in New-Jerſy, Nov. 4th, 1764. By the Rev. Jacob Green, A. M. In a Letter to a Friend. In three parts.

By GEORGE BECKWITH, A.M.
Paſtor of a Church in Lyme, Connecticut.

HARTFORD:
Printed by GREEN & WATSON,

MONDAY, APRIL 16, 1770. Numb 277.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

From the New-Hampſhire Gazette, March 23. 1770.

IN our obſervations on American grievances in a former Paper, we obſerved the miſery and ruin that ever attended tyranny wherever it prevailed; the horrid ſcenes of barbarity and murder committed by the tyrants of Rome; and that this would be our caſe, if tyranny prevailed in America: But little did we think our predictions would ſo ſoon be accompliſhed!——The ſtreets of BOSTON have already been bathed with the BLOOD of innocent AMERICANS! Shed by the execrable hands of the diabolical tools of Tyrants!—O AMERICANS! this BLOOD calls loud for VENGEANCE! the cry reaches Heaven! And ought to be heard by all on earth!—We are taught by ſad experience, " Not to put confidence in man, " nor in princes;" Innocence is no longer ſafe, we are now obliged to appeal to GOD, and to our ARMS for defence!——Let it be the DETERMINED RESOLUTION of every man, that a ſtanding army ſhall never be permitted in AMERICA, without the free conſent of the Houſe of Commons, in the province where they reſide. Standing armies have ever proved deſtructive to the Liberties of a People, and where they are ſuffered, neither life nor property are ſecure, for the ruling Tyrant when he pleaſes can ſeize the one, and take away the other. Therefore my countrymen, let us at this important criſis, act like men, and like chriſtians; act worthy the deſcendants of our illuſtrious anceſtors, who ſuffered hunger, cold, and nakedneſs, and every hardſhip human nature is capable of, and even Death itſelf, to purchaſe a quiet habitation for themſelves and poſterity; beſides ſhedding ſeas of blood in defending their country againſt their enemies. Surely 'tis beneath us, who are the poſterity of ſuch Heroes, to live when liberty is dead! or even to ſurvive it a day!—To be a Slave, is far below the character of an ENGLISHMAN, and is even a diſgrace to human nature!

In this province, we have been tho't by ſome, to have been too cold in the American cauſe, but be aſſured, we have not beheld with indifference, the multiplied oppreſſions heaped on the Americans; the moſt flagrant violation of their Rights; the innumerable inſults offered to this brave and loyal people, by the dirty minions of Tyrants: And above all, the BLOOD that has been ſhed by thoſe deteſtable wretches!——No! Our reſentment, (like Subterraneas fires which burn long conceal'd) will at laſt burſt forth with a devouring irreſiſtable flame!—We receive every injury done to America, as done to ourſelves; we are all one body, and an injury done to a member, is equally an inſult to the whole. Therefore the blood ſhed at Boſton, is the blood of America! and it equally concerns all America to defend the town; to ſee that their grievances are redreſſed, their injuries and loſſes compenſated. No compenſation can be made for the lives that have been loſt, but there may be for their loſſes otherways; and all America is bound in duty and intereſt to ſee that it be done.

As the Maſſachuſetts Houſe of Commons is now ſitting, we truſt, that illuſtrious Aſſembly, will grant ſome relief to Boſton; and we hope our King and this Parliament, will do themſelves the HONOR, and Boſton the JUSTICE, amply to compenſate them for their unparallelled injuries and aggravated ſufferings.

Whatever Acts may be repealed let us not reſt ſatisfied until compenſation has been made for the injuries we have received; and G. Britain gives up all pretenſions to a right to tax us, and eſpecially diſavows any right to keep a ſtanding army in the colonies without their conſent. As this violation of our conſtitution, has already been attended with the moſt alarming and horrid conſequences, we expect that every Houſe of Commons in America, will RESOLVE, " That if ever a ſtanding army ſhould again be ſent into the colonies, and ſhould refuſe obedience to the civil authority where they reſide, they ſhall be deemed enemies and traitors."

What an affront and mortification, it muſt be to an Engliſhman, whoſe Liberty is juſtly dearer to him than life, when he is inſulted and abuſed by the ſoldiery, and the hearts-blood of his countrymen ſhed by them, is running in the ſtreets! to be told by the KING's Repreſentative, the Captain-General of the province, " That he has no authority over the troops to order them out of town, but he will requeſt the military officer to take care of his men."——O ſhocking Thought! That the ſupreme authority of the land ſhould be trampled on by a lawleſs army, and the firſt magiſtrate in the province, become a humble petitioner to a Lieutenant Colonel of a Regiment, " That he would be graciouſly pleaſed to remove his Soldiers before all the inhabitants are murdered!"—This wants a Name!—! This will leave a ſtain of Infamy on the preſent Adminiſtration, which all the Revolutions of time will never efface!——In theſe circumſtances, I aſk, in the name of reaſon, " Where is our Engliſh Liberty?"—This is a ſtate of Slavery to perfection! Not one ray of Fredom remains, nor even the ſhadow of a ſhade!——

CONSIDERATION.

New-Hampſhire, March 12.

WESTMINSTER, Jan. 23.

HIS Majeſty being come to the Houſe of Peers, and ſeated on the Throne in his Royal Robes with the uſual ſolemnities, commanded Sir Francis Molyneux, Gentlemen Uſher of the Black Rod, to let the Commons know, it is his Majeſty's pleaſure they attend him immediately. Who being come, Sir Fletcher Norton was preſented as their Speaker to his Majeſty, who was graciouſly pleaſed to approve their choice.

A council is ſummoned to meet on Tueſday next, at the Cockpit, Whitehall.

L O N D O N.

Jan. 24. It is certain that Lord Cambden, before he attended the houſe of Lords on Monday, had a long conferrence with a great Perſonage.

It is whiſpered that a motion will be made for an addreſs to remove the M—y.

The following account is ſaid to be authentic: Lord Morden the late Lord Chancellor, (ſince Lord Cambden's removal was determined on) received hourly invitations from the Miniſtry to accept the ſeals; which he not only declined, but aſſured ſeveral members in the oppoſition (particularly Lord Rockingham) that he never would or could, on terms which he could not but look on as derogatory to his particular ſentiments as well as the intereſt of his country. On Wedneſday morning laſt he received a particular meſſage, immediately from his M——y, deſiring his attendance at the Queen's Palace, and there was ſo warmly ſolicited by him in perſon, that unable to withſtand ſuch repeated requiſitions, he aſſented. On his way home called at Lord Rockingham's, when meeting ſeveral members in the oppoſition, he told them what had happened, at which they one and all upbraided him, in ſuch poignant terms, with his infidelity, that he was inſtantly taken ill; from whence he was immediately removed to his own houſe, where he continued ſo till Saturday Evening, when he died. The Duke of Grafton being informed of this circumſtance, about eight o'clock the ſame evening, he with Lord Weymouth, and ſeveral others at the head of adminiſtration, immediately waited on his M——; when it was there reſolved, that the Seals ſhould not be perſonally diſpoſed of till after the enſuing term.

Mr. De Grey, we hear, has declined excepting the Seals, on account of his ill ſtate of health.

The laſt Lord Chancellor was the only one that died in that high office (except Lord Talbot) theſe 150 years.

On Monday and yeſterday Lord Cambden was at the houſe of Peers.

We hear it was reſolved yeſterday by the ſupporters of the bill of rights to take into conſideration the ſtate of Mr. Wilkes's affairs at their next meeting, that there may be no impediment to his enlargement from priſon at the expiration of his ſentence.

Jan. 25. Yeſterday died at his houſe in Downing ſtreet, Weſtminſter, the Right Hon. Sir, John Cuſt, Bart. Speaker of the Hon. Houſe of commons, in the late parliament, and re elected in the preſent to that office, which he diſcharged with great ability and integrity, till he was lately obliged to reſign it on account of his ill ſtate of health.

On Saturday next, we hear, comes on to be argued at the Cockpit, Whitehall, the complaints of a certain town in America againſt a particular perſon.

It is ſaid there are eighteen articles of complaint:

Mr Serjeant Glynn, and Mr. Lewis are the council retained by the above town.

The Minority now, with theſe who are gone over within a few days paſt, with a noble military commander, are ſaid to amount to 250.

We are informed, that when the S—r G—l waited upon the primier to reſign, he had this compliment paid him, "That he would very willingly accept of his reſignation, and that of as many of his friends as choſe it." Nevertheleſs Mr. D——g ſtill officiates as S—r G—l, as that office connot be vacated without a writ of ſuperſedeas.

We hear that Dr. Muſgrave arrived in town on Tueſday, and the ſame evening was admitted to a conference of ſeveral Great Perſonages.

Letters from Vienna aſſure, that by the laſt advices from Conſtantinople, Kerim Can, the Regent, of Perſia, was prepairing to invade ſome of the Turkiſh provinces; that the Montenegrins had gained ſeveral advantages in Dalmatia; and that the Georgians ſhewed tokens of being determined to throw off the Ottoman yoke.

Letters from Venice mention, that the Grand Signior had cauſed it to be notified to the Senate, that he will account the giving a reception of Ruſſian men of war in any of the ports of the Republic, as a declaration of war againſt himſelf.

This morning Sir, Edward Hawke had a long conference with his Gracce the Duke of Grafton, and afterwards preſided at a board of Admiralty.

A correſpondent ſays, "A great officer of ſtate is much chagrined to ſee Lord C——n bear the loſs of his important and lucrative poſt with eaſe and indifference, and appear at court ſo frequently, paying his reſpects to a great perſonage with a pleaſing unembaraſſed countenance; the ſure indication of goodneſs of heart, and rectitude of action."

It is reported that the above Nobleman has declared to his friends, that he ſhall not refuſe to reſume his office, if it ſhould be tho't that his ſervices can any way contribute to the real honour and advantage of his country.

We are told that ſeveral principal practitioners in the court of Chancery have actually put on mourning to teſtify their ſorrow for the loſs of Lord Cambden, who they ſay, by his diſmiſſion from that court, is in effect dead to them.

We are told that the patriotic party of both Aſſemblies have conſultations almoſt every morning before they repair to their reſpective ſeats.

Jan. 27. Letters from Liſbon inform, that a reconciliation between that court ond the Holy See, has been publiſhed there in form, and a trade opened with the Subjects of the eccleſiaſtical ſtate, to the great joy of both nations.

Letters from Paris mention, that the new Comptroller General of the finances, whom the French look upon as another Sully, told the King a few days ago, "That it was impoſſible to lay any new burthens upon his people, already ſinking under their load; and that he muſt ſeek reſources in œconomy and in the coffers of the financiers, which contained all the money of the kingdom."

Yeſterday the Earl of Waldegrave kiſſed her Majeſty's hand, on being appointed Maſter of the Horſe to her Majeſty.

We hear that yeſterday Sir Geo: Younge, and Sir Piercey Brett, reſigned their places as Lords of the Admiralty.

It is ſaid that the time granted to produce proper evidence in ſupport of certain complaints, was ſo ſhort, that, therefore, the council will move on Saturday for further time.

It is ſaid, that Mr. Cuſhing and Mr. Otis are the principal objects of a certain private man's reſentment, and of miniſterial vengeance.

It is ſaid the Right Hon. George Onſlow has entered his declaration againſt the Rev. Mr. Horne, and laid his damages at 10,000l. The cauſe is expected to come on next term.

They write from Genoa, that a French man of war, having come to anchor there, inſiſted on being ſaluted by an Engliſh that was then in the harbour, which occaſioned a briſk altercation between them, and would probably have been attended with ſerious conſequences, had not the Conſuls of the two nations interfered, and found means to put an end to the diſpute.

Jan. 27. We hear that the betts in a political ſociety, on a popular queſtion, were 180 to 224.

The ſum of 1,175,224l. will, it is alſo ſaid, be wanted for the land ſervice of the preſent year.

It is now confidently aſſerted, that Lord Manſfield will be appointed Lord Chancellor of Great-Britain.

BOSTON, April 9.

Laſt Saturday the Juſtices of the Superior Court of Judicature, ſitting in this Town, were pleaſed to admit to bail, Edward Manwaring, J. Monroe, &c. all indicted for murder on the terrible evening of the 5th of laſt month! Query. By what ſyſtem of law did the court admit thoſe perſons to bail? If there is reaſon to think by the evidence hitherto appearing, that they are innocent, why were they not tried? Upon this ſuppoſition, ought they not to be fully acquitted? if they are guilty, ought they not to be hanged?——As the court of general goal delivery was actually ſitting, what neceſſity was there, if innocent, of holding them in confinement a day longer? if guilty, how could they be admitted to bail—ſub judice lis eſt.—The Blood ſpilt loudly calls for the Vengeance of the law: if the cry is not duly attended to, may we not expect the vengeance of heaven. We deſire not that theſe Trials may be unreaſonable carried on; at the ſame time we have a right to demand that Juſtice be not unreaſonably delay'd.

Laſt Friday Ebenezer Richardſon was brought into the Superior Court in order for his Trial, having been indicted by the Grand Jury for the cruel murder of the unfortunate young Snider, on the 22d of February, but the Trial was poſtpon'd!

It is ſaid that S. F. Eſq; was made to underſtand by an anonimous Letter handed into his houſe by an unknown perſon, that ſomebody could ſware ſomething in favor of a moſt infamous and abandoned Villain; and that this was the ſole ground of the unparrallelled Lenity ſhewn to him the laſt Week.

Extract of a letter from London, January 26.

"There is nothing, as yet, done by Parliament in our American affairs,——Altho' the Miniſtry had a Majority in Both Houſes, viz. in Houſe of Lords 53, and in the Houſe of Commons 116, yet the Minority are gaining Ground daily, and it's thought will get the Lead ſoon; if ſo, the Americans will have every Thing they can wiſh or aſk for.——We are apprehenſive our American Affairs won't come on ſoon enough to ſave the Spring Trade: for as the orders ſent here, are not to ſhip any Goods before the Acts are totally repealed, we are fearful it will be the laſt of March or beginning of April before the Acts are repealed.—The Duke of Grafton and Lord Weymouth are for the repeal, L. Hillſborough is betterly againſt it.—Should the Minority get a little further a head, there will be a total Change in the Adminiſtration.

"If the Duty on Tea ſhould not be taken off, ſeveral of the Houſes here will be in the Sudds; for in full Expectation of the Tea, &c. they have given out their orders to a great Amount.————Notwithſtanding the talk of a French War ſoon, its all vaniſhed. The French as well as ourſelves are not in a Capacity of going to War ſoon."

A Maſter of a Veſſel writes from London of the 27th of January, That there then appeared ſo little Proſpect of the Revenue-Acts being repealed, that he ſhould ſoon ſail from that Place in his Ballaſt.

A Gentlemen from Newport ſays, that the 8th of February was the Day fixed upon by the Parliament for entering upon the Conſideration of American affairs.

HARTFORD, April 16.

Laſt Wedneſday Morning departed this Life, Æt. 27. Elizabeth Watſon, Wife of Ebenezer Watſon, one of the Printers of this Paper.

The Freemen of this Town, at their Annual Meeting on Monday laſt, made choice of Col. JOHN PITKIN, and Mr. BENJAMIN PAYNE, to Repreſent them in General Aſſembly, on the 10th of May next.

Meſſ. Green & Watſon,

IN your paper of March 26, you publiſhed a letter from the Southern Aſſociation in the county of Hampſhire, to the Elders & Meſſengers of ſeveral churches who were convened at Somers, Sept. 20. 1769.

The Aſſociation therefore deſire you, to inform the Public, in your next Paper, that they wrote ſaid Letter without any expectation or intention of its being made public, and that it was inſerted in your Paper without their direction or knowledge.

At an Aſſociation at Wilbraham,

Signed by order of the Aſſociation,

JOSEPH LATHROP.

April 11, 1770.

TO BE SOLD BY

Philip Mortimer,

Of Middletown, ſundry pieces of Land, viz.

One piece or parcel

Lying in Eaſt Windſor, containing 98 acres, 18 of which is choice meadow, the other wood land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Weſt on the country road, north on land belonging to Mr. Ellſworth, eaſt partly on Scantick river, and ſouth on a highway.——TWO other pieces lying in Weathersfield, containing about twenty acres, being choice paſture land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſt on land of James Mitchel's, weſt on land of Gerſhom Nott's, ſouth partly on land of Moſes Deming's, and partly on James Curtiſs's land, and north on Moſes Deming's.—THE other piece containing about ſix acres, butted eaſt on land of Moſes Deming, weſt on land of Francies Hanmor, north partly on land belonging to Gerſhom Nott, and partly on James Curtiſs's, and ſouth partly on land belonging to Thomas Wells, and partly on Francies Hanmors land.——ONE other piece lying in Middletown, containing thirty acres, conſiſting of plow land, paſture and meadow land, butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſterly on land of the heirs of Daniel Merwin, weſterly on land of Juſtus Webſter, north on land of Joſeph Barns, and ſouth on land of Miles Merwin. For further particulars enquire of ſaid Mortimer.

277 up the 3m.

WE the ſubſcribers, being appointed, by the hon. Judge of Probate for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Joſeph Gillet, late of Hartford deceas'd, (ſaid eſtate being repreſented inſolvent) We ſhall attend that buſineſs at the houſe of Mr. William Sedgwick, of ſaid Hartford, on the firſt Monday of May, and the firſt Mondays of June and Auguſt next, at two of the clock in the afternoon, on each of ſaid days.

Noah Webſter,
Ebenezer Crosby. } Commiſſioners.

April 14. 1770.

THE night after the 11 of April, 1770, was ſtolen out of the ſtable of Iſaac Ford of Hebron, a black Mare, about 11 or 12 years old, about 14 hands high, paces and trots, has ſome white in her forehead, ſome white hairs on her dock, cloſe to her rump, ſhod all round, and a white ſpot on her left ſide.——Whoever ſhall ſecure ſaid Mare and Thief, ſo as ſaid Ford can have them, ſhall have Five Dollars Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

ISAAC FORD.

NOTICE is hereby given, to all the members of the Medical Corporation, that the laſt meeting ſtands adjourn'd to the Tueſday preceeding the general Election, and as matters of importance, will then lie before the Corporation, 'tis hoped that all its members will duely attend.

Litchfield, 9th April.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon. Judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Litchfield, commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Friend Grant, late of ſaid Litchfield, deceas'd (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the Court Houſe in ſaid Litchfield, on the firſt, ſecond and third Monday's of June A. D. 1770. at one of the clock afternoon, on each of ſaid days.

John Pierce,
Reuben Smith,
Abraham Bradley, } Commiſſioners.

April 11, 1770.

T. Hopkins,

HAS juſt receiv'd a freſh Aſſortment of Engliſh Goods, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable Terms, at his Store, oppoſite the North Meeting-Houſe Hartford.

N. B. He has likewiſe for Sale good Bohea Tea, Indigo and Coffee.

VANITATIS VITÆ

How gay at firſt life's chearful dawn
Attracts our raviſh'd ſight ;
Whilſt on it's flow'ry fields are drawn
Fair ſcenes of ſoft delight ?
With joy alert, we ſwift aſcend,
With trifling baubles pleas'd ;
On ſuch our youthful fancies bend,
By theſe our wants are eas'd.
Next learning, with majeſtic port,
Allures us to her ſide :
With ardour we her favours court,
Neglecting ought beſide.
Thro' ev'ry maze we boldly ſtray,
And ranſack all her ſtore ;
In toilſome ſtudies ſpend each day,
Yet, panting, ſigh for more !
On manhood's ſtage we next appear,
And think to roll in joy ;
But Oh ! how oft ſharp woes ſevere
Our darting hopes deſtroy ?
Ten thouſand croſſes round us riſe,
Misfortune's meagre train :
With Gorgon horrors frights our eyes,
And fills our ſouls with pain.
Thro' thorny paths thus forc'd to go,
With grief we journey on ;
Lamenting at each pungent throe,
That e'er our lives begun.
Too ſoon we find that all thoſe joys,
For which life's flame we waſte,
Are but deluſive empty joys,
Which vaniſh e'er we taſte.
Next hoary age, with wrinkl'd brow,
Spoils ev'ry pleaſing ſenſe ;
Our youthful ſpirits ceaſe to flow,
And ſink to indolence.
The gout, the dropſy, ſtone, & rheums,
With ev'ry tort'ring pain ;
Our ſtrength and faculties conſumes,
While help's invok'd in vain.
So, when death's awful king appears,
We aſk no pow'r to ſave ;
But meet his dart, devoid of fears,
And court the gloomy grave.
Then who would aſk life ? Painful boon !
Tho' ſeeming joys invite,
When we reflect, they jade, how ſoon !
And woe ſucceeds delight.
Let virtue then our pilot prove,
Thro' the hard toilſome way ;
Then we'll like autumn's ſpoils remove,
And gently glide away. W. W.

Weſtminſter, Jan. 22. The Lord Mansfield, who had by virtue of a commiſſion under the Great Seal, been appointed to ſupply the place of Lord Chancellor or Lord Keeper in the houſe of Peers, took his place this day accordingly.

At the Court at the Qeen's Houſe, the 21ſt day of Jan. Preſent. The King's moſt Excellent Majeſty in council.

His Majeſty, having conſtituted Sir Sidney Stafford Smythe, Knight, one of the Barons of his Majeſty's Court of Exchequer, the Hon. Henry Bathurſt, Eſq; one of the Juſtice of his Majeſty's Court of Common Pleas, and Sir Richard Aſton, Knt. one of the Juſtices of his Majeſty's Court of King's Bench, Lords Commiſſioners for the cuſtody of the Great Seal, was this day pleaſed in council to deliver to them the Great Seal ; and the ſaid Lords Commiſſioners did thereupon take the oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, and alſo the oath as Lords Commiſſioners for the cuſtody of the Great Seal.

THE very beſt BOHEA TEA and INDIGO, to be Sold by DANIEL COTTON, near the Court-Houſe in Hartford.

TO BE SOLD BY

James Tiley,

GOLDSMITH, at his Shop, juſt below Meſſ. Lathrop & Smith's Store in King-Street Hartford.

CYPHER'd and Brilliant Stone Ear-Rings ſet in Gold, ditto in Silver, Cypher'd and Brilliant Stone Buttons, Stone Rings, and a variety of other Articles.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY,

AS an apprentice to a Chaiſe and Harneſs maker in Hartford, a likely LAD, about 12 or 14 years of Age.——Enquire of the PRINTERS.

WHereas application has been made to me the ſubſcriber, a Juſtice of Peace for the county of Litchfield, by more than a 16th part of the proprietors of STOW, near Onion River, a townſhip granted by Benning Wentworth, Eſq; late governor of New-Hampſhire, deſiring to warn a meeting of ſaid proprietors, to ſee if they will chooſe a committee, to ſurvey, and bound out ſaid townſhip ; and lay out a home lott, or firſt diviſion to each right. Theſe are therefore to notify the proprietors of ſaid Townſhip, to meet together at the houſe of Mr. Elias Read, innholder in Saliſbury, on the fourth Tueſday of April next, at one of the clock afternoon, for the purpoſe aforeſaid, and to do any other buſineſs proper to be done, at ſaid meeting. Dated at Sharon, the 23 day of March, 1770.

DANIEL GRISWOLD, Juſt. Pacis.

Weatherſfield, 5 April, 1770.

WE the ſubſcribers appointed by the hon. court of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners, to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Mrs. Grace Goodrich, late of Weatherſfield deceas'd ; (the eſtate being repreſented inſolvent) We ſhall attend that buſineſs, on the laſt monday of April inſtant, and on the firſt monday's of June and Auguſt next, at the dwelling houſe of Joſeph Richards, jun. in ſaid Weatherſfield, from 2 to 8 o'clock in the afternoon on each of ſaid days.

Daniel Andrus, } Commiſſioners.
Joſeph Richards jun.

ALL Perſons in the Town of Hartford, poſſeſſed of Steel yards or Weights, are hereby notified to bring them to the ſubſcriber to be tried by the Standard according to law.

THOMAS SLOAN, Sealer of Weights.

Hartford, April 9, 1770.

STOLEN from the Subſcriber of Green-Buſh, near Albany, on the 21ſt Day of March laſt, two Mares, one of a Fox Colour, with a large white Streak down her Face, about 14 Hands high, natural Trotter, about 8 Years old, her hind Feet white, low in Fleſh, long Neck, large Tail, with a Lock of Hair cut out of the Middle, cloſe to the Dock, which may be diſcovered by a critical Examination ; a Lump on the Middle of her Back which looks like a Wind-Gall. The other of a Bay Colour, about 13 & half hands High, natural Trotter, ſhort thick Legs, well built a Switch Tail, thick buſhy Main, a ſmall Star in her Forehead, ſhod before, about 9 Years old. Whoever ſhall take up the Thief, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's Goals, ſo that he may be brought to Juſtice, and the Beaſts recovered ſhall have Seven Pounds New-York Currency Reward paid by me,

April 2. ROBERT RILEY.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by the Printers hereof price Half-a-Piſtareen,

Obſervations on a

Pamphlet entitled,

Remarks on Dr. GALE's Letter to J. D. Eſq; Sign'd E. D. of which The Hon. ELIPHALET DYER, is the reputed Author.

Shewing, from the Matters therein contained, that ſuch an Imputation is highly injurious to the Character of that worthy Patriot.

By Benjamin Gale, A. M.

To be Sold for CASH by

Nat. Buel,

of Saliſbury.

FIVE POT-ASH KETTLES, Ten Tons of Pig-Iron, one Forge Hammer and Anvil, a Cloathiers Plate, three large Iron Kettles, and a number of Cart-Boxes, all manufactored at Saliſbury Furnace.

N.B. An order drawn upon me by Capt. Comfort Sage of Middletown, to the value of Forty Pounds, or by Mr. Charles Dibble of Goſhen, for Twentyfive Pounds, will be as well accepted as the CASH, for any of the above articles.

Lately Publiſhed, and is to be ſold at the Printing-Office in Hartford.

VISIBLE Saints lawful Right to Communion in Chriſtian Sacraments, Vindicated, (In Way of Anſwer to a Sermon, entitled, Chriſtian Baptiſm, delivered at Hanover, in New-Jerſy, Nov. 4th, 1764. By the Rev. Jacob Green, A. M. In a Letter to a Friend. In three parts.

By GEORGE BECKWITH, A. M. Paſtor of a Church in Lyme, Connecticut.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

THE Creditors of the eſtate of Cornelious Brown, late of Norfolk deceas'd, are deſired to take notice, that whereas the ſitting of the Commiſſioners for examining ſaid creditors claims has been legally advertiſed ; this is to give further notice, that ſaid commiſſioners will ſet by adjournment, on the ſecond Tueſday of April next, at the houſe of Giles Pettibone, Innholder in Norfolk.

March 20, 1770.

HARTFORD:
Printed by GREEN & WATSON.

MONDAY, APRIL 23, 1770.

Numb 278.

THE

Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

Jonn Chapman

From the LONDON CHRONICLE.

An Anecdote of FRANCIS D'O, formerly a PRIME MINISTER of FRANCE.

FRANCIS D'O was ſuperintendant of the finances in the reign of Henry III. His abilities, though in other reſpects mean, were great in inventing funds to oppreſs the poor. He was at firſt in the army, but fancying, as he ſaid himſelf, that more money might be got by one daſh of the pen, than by the command of a regiment, he quitted the field for the cabinet. He procured himſelf a palace in the finances, and gradually aroſe to the dignity of a ſuperintendant or director. He made himſelf a compleat maſter of the buſineſs of the Treaſury, and was remarkable for that low ſpecies of cunning, which qualifies a man to be a complete rogue in a place which demands the greateſt integrity. This appeared from the immenſe ſums he expended upon palaces, gardens, Pictures, jewels, and harlots. He ridiculed his predeceſſors in office as a parcel of fools, who knew not how to make the beſt uſe of their places, and as unfit for their truſts, becauſe they could not accumlate a fortune out of the purſes of twenty millions of perſons. Tho' he had this degree of cunning, he was reſolved not to truſt entirely to it for his ſafety, but endeavoured to caſt an everlaſting veil over his frauds, by embarraſſing the public accounts ſo much, that they were deemed inexplicable.

In the year 1578, the eſtates of Burgundy ſent a petition to the King, by their deputies, requeſting him to conſent to a reduction of their taxes, and particularly to relieve them from the prodigious burthen which was occaſioned by the erection of new offices, employments and penſions.

Abbe Lupin, one of the debuties, enforced the petition with a ſpeech, in which he inveighed both againſt the taxes themſelves, and likewiſe againſt the arbitrary and oppreſſive methods of collecting them ; adding that remarkable ſentence of Tiberius, " That the good ſhepherd does not devour his ſheep, but is content to ſheer them moderately, when they abound in wool ;" and concluded with the reply of the orator Hibreas to Marc Antony, when he commanded the taxes of Aſia to be doubled ; " You muſt then, ſaid Hibreas, oblige the land to yield a double harveſt, and a double vintage."

The other deputies ſpoke to the ſame effect, but without making any impreſſion on Francis D'O. He applied himſelf to their paſſions, to make them relinquiſh their application, when he found himſelf unable to bias their underſtanding. He repreſented their petition as a ſeditious libel, and as tending to excite the King's ſubjects to rebellion. But as no words can diſplay his inſolence in a better light than his own, we ſhall give them to the reader in a tranſlation almoſt literal.

The Reply of FRANCIS D'O to the Deputies of the States Burgundy.

" It is dangerous to be the bearers of public complaints to the throne ; becauſe ſuch remonſtrances charge the King with ignorance or injuſtice, & ought to be received as the dawnings of a rebellion. The King will never pardon ſuch as have offended him, and made themſelves the vehicles by which the diſcontents of the public have been conveyed to his ear. He never was ſo liberal of his favours as to thoſe, who ſhewed themſelves ready to execute his will, and would by any means be inſtrumental in rending his power more abſolute. It is a miſtaken piece of Generoſity for men to pique themſelves upon promoting the intereſt of the nation, while they take this opportunity of advancing their private intereſt. In effect, what is the public, but a term made uſe of to impoſe upon the minds of the week and good natured, and which men of ſenſe never make uſe of but to impoſe upon the people ? A People who are worthy of favours, and incapable of gratitude to thoſe who promote their welfare—eſpecially to that part of them, who bear the weight of Taxes, and the expences of office and employments, now the objects of their complaints. As for the People, they only conſiſt of tradeſmen and peaſants, perſons born for ſervitude, and who like beaſts, ought to bear the burthens, and be ſubſervient to the pleaſures of their ſuperiors.—The people can give nothing but reputation, a mere phantom, which has no exiſtence but in the mouths of the rabble, or in the writings of idle and melancholic writers, who were ſtarving when they wrote them."

This ſpeech was worthy of a Prime Miniſter of France ; a Prime Miniſter of England durſt not have made ſuch a one. It had indeed its proper effect upon the deputies ; it did not ſilence their patriotiſm, but it rouzed it. They replied to it with all the freedom of Engliſhmen, and they convinced the French Miniſter, that oppreſſion will awake thoſe paſſions it is intended to cruſh and that a rational ſoul was never intended by the God of nature to animate the boſom of a ſlave.

Friday laſt arrived at Newport, Rh. Iſland, Capt. Nixon, in a Brig from London ; by whom we have a public Print of Jan. 27, from which the following articles are extracted.

LONDON, January 27.

IT is ſaid, that it is a point reſolved on, to ſettle nothing reſpecting the general ſituation of American affairs, till the formal complaints of a certain town in America, againſt their late G———, are heard and determined ; and that lenitent or contrary meaſures will take place, according as acquittal or condemnation is the fate of the accuſed.

It is reported that Mr. Thurloe is appointed Solicitor General, in the room of Mr. Dunning.

A certain Great Aſſembly ſat till thre o'clock on Friday morning.

It is ſaid the ſum of 383,248l. will be wanted to maintain the forces in the Plantations for the current year.

On Thurſday ſevennight a conference was held at a houſe in Groſvenor ſquare, at which, among other things, it was ſettled, that, ſhould the preſent oppoſition ſucceed, L——d C——m, L——d T——ple, and the M——s of R——m, would be created Dukes and hold each a cabinet office; that G. G——lle, under the controul of the three Dukes, ſhould appear as oſtenſible miniſter, at the head of the Treaſury, and to render the preſent adminiſtration permanent, that all thoſe who call themſelves the K——g's friends in both houſes ſhould be turned and forever kept out of office. The reſult of this conſpiracy againſt the authority of the S——n was ſoon after communicated to a G——t P——e, and he declared, with dignified reſentment, that, as he was conſulted in the arrangement, he was determined to prevent its taking place; and that the inſolence of their deliberations in private had fixed him, in the reſolution of NEVER employing them in the public councils of the nation.

It is affirmed, that, at a conference held within theſe two days between two Great Perſonages, one of whom lately held the moſt diſtinguiſhed poſt in the law, and the other a great martial employment, it was mutually agreed that no conſideration ſhould tempt either of them to reſume his place without the other; nor both of them, without a thorough change of men and meaſures.

It is reported that Mr. Thurloe is appointed Solicitor-General, in the room of Mr Dunning.

A motion has been made in a certain Society for an amendment in their proceedings, & that they ſhould for the future be guided by law and cuſtom; which was then objected to. Another motion was made in the ſame Society, that their proceedings relative to a certain expulſion was according to their law and cuſtom, which, on a diviſion, was carried by a majority of 44 only.

A further ſum of 366 914l. will be wanted to defray the current expence of the office of ordnance of land ſervice in 1770.

An Auguſt Aſſembly agreed on Wedneſday to a very prudent and humane regulation, purporting that ſhould be a ſtanding rule for the Sp---r to depart the ch--r whenever the calls of nature ſhould require his abſence, and that the H——e ſhould ſtill continue ſitting. The want of ſo provident a regulation, is thought to have haſtened the death of the late Sp---r.

The chairman of a certain Aſſembly publicly declared on Wedneſday that he was determined to have the orders of the H—e punctually obſerved, and if he found he could not effect it, he would inſtantly reſign.

That a certain great Commoner was not committed for a certain ſpeech, in a certain place, is ſaid to have greatly diſconcerted the meaſures of Oppoſition; for the members of the Minority ſeem now to make no great ceremony in acknowledging, that a commitment of any one of their party muſt have been a ſtroke which could not have failed terminating (by an additional cry of perſecution) in their long fought-for triumph over Ad——n.

Lord Hardwick, who went down to his country ſeat in Cambridgeſhire, in high diſguſt with his brother, the new Chancellor, the day before he died, was ſent for up to town, and arrived in Bloomſbury-Square about three hours before the Chancellor expired. The ſudden and unexpected event of Mr York's accepting the ſeals, joined with the equally ſudden and unexpected death of his brother, has thrown Lord Hardwick into a violent fever, and may probably be attended with bad, if not fatal conſequences.

Yeſterday morning the remains of Mr. Yorke, late Lord Chancellor, were carried from his houſe in Bloomſbury-Squre, to the burial vault of the family, near Whipple in Cambridgeſhire.

The Hon. Mrs. Yorke now lies dangerouſly ill, in conſequence of the ſhock ſhe received from the ſudden death of the Late Lord Chancellor.

We are aſſured, that Lady B---p P---r, ſiſter to the Hon. Mrs. Y——, has been commiſſioned to acquaint that Lady of the K—g's moſt gracious intentions, that the Peerage intended for her deceaſed huſband ſhall be confered upon her, in her own right, deſcending to the heirs male of the late Mr. Y——; or, if ſhe rather choſe it, ſhould be, in due time, conferred upon the elder ſon, inſtead of herſelf.

Yeſterday was held a Board of Ordnance, when General Conway was preſent.

Counſellor Cuſt, brother to the late Speaker, is gone down to Grantham to offer himſelf as a candidate for that borough, in the room of Sir John Cuſt. It is reported he will be ſtrongly oppoſed by the Rutland family intereſt.

We are informed, that Genera Paoli has actually received ſome important diſpatches from the Senate of Genoa.

It is remarked, that General Paoli ſcarcely now ſtirs out any where; and that his Excellency's time, night as well as day, is almoſt wholly ſpent in writing and ſending away packets and diſpatches; from whence ſome perſons ſeem to conjecture, that ſomething of importance, in which the fortune of the General muſt be materially concerned, is certainly at no very diſtant period.

Yeſterday a mail arrived from New-York, brought by the Harriot Packet, Capt. Oak.

This day a wardmote will be held at Girdlers-Hall, for the election of an Alderman of Baſſiſhaw Ward in the room of Sir William Baker, Knt. deceaſed.

It was reported yeſterday, though we hope without foundation, that notwithſtanding the great care lately taken to prevent the diſtemper among the horned cattle from ſpreading, a cow yeſterday fell down in Fore-ſtreet, near Moorfields, ſo bad with the diſtemper, that ſhe was obliged to be killed on the ſpot.

Our advices from Edinburgh acquaint us, that on the 18th inſtant the Court of Juſticiory reſumed the trial of Mungo Cumpbell, indicted for the Murder of the Right Hon. the Earl of Eglington, when their Lordſhips found the libel relevant, and appointed Monday the 5th of February next for examination of witneſſes.

Lieutenant Brown of the ſecond battallion of the Royal Artillery, is appointed Adjutant in the Room of —— Williamſon, Eſq; appointed a full captain.

We hear that on Thurſday Sir George Yonge and Sir Percy Brett reſigned their places as Lords of the Admiralty.

Letters from Paris mention, that the new Comptroller General of the Finances, whom the French look upon as another Sully, told the King a few days ago, "That it was impoſſible to lay any new burthens upon his people, already ſinking under their load; and that he muſt ſeek reſources in œconomy, and in the coffers of the financiers, which contained all the money of the Kingdom."

We hear from Carmarthen, that on Monday the 8th inſtant, William Williams, of the town of Llandovery, mercer, together with twelve other perſons, diſguiſed in waggoners frocks and armed with piſtols, ſwords, cutlaſſes, and caſed tucks, came to the dwelling houſe of William Powel, of Glanareth, in the county of Carmarthen, Eſq; and knock'd at the back door; upon its being opened William Williams and two of the villains, ruſhed into the parlor (whilſt others ſtood centry on the kitchen door with a drawn ſword and piſtols) where Mr. Powell was ſitting with three of his neighbours, and immediately ſtabbed him in nine different parts of his body till his bowels came out, cut off his noſe, and almoſt one of his hands; the people who were with him were ſo frightened, that they made no reſiſtance, but immediately run out; the aſſaſſins then retreated without attempting to hurt any other perſon. One of the Villains were taken up and confeſſed the whole, and that they were thirteen in number; and that they were all hired by the ſaid William Williams to murder Mr. Powell, and not to rob the houſe. This William Williams, in auguſt 1768, went with Mr. Powell's wife, and took her, and her children from the boarding-ſchool to London; and Mr. Powell was obliged to apply to the Court of King's Bench for a Habeas Corpus to get at his Children; and, by the recommendation of the Court, allowed her 100l. per annum for a ſeparate maintenance. This Williams had ſeveral ſchemes in order to take away Mr. Powell's life, and attempted to ſhoot him ſeveral times; the villains met on the ſeventh in Charles David Morgan's houſe, and continued there till they went the following evening to murder Mr. Powell. After the act was done, Williams declared he would ſoon poſſeſs himſelf of Mr. Powell's fortune. It was much to be feared that many more were concerned. One of the villains was diſpatched by Williams that very night, to inform Mrs. Powell's brother with what was done, and ordered him to come and take poſſeſſion of the eſtate; but Mr. Powell having made a will, and appointed guardians over his children, their ſcheme was defeated.

HARTFORD, April 23.

Arrived at Boſton this Week from London the Capts. Davies, Lyde, Freeman, and Bryant, and Mocey at Marblehead; and at New-York, the Lord Hyde Packet with the January Mail, and the Harriot Capt. Lee, with the Feb. Mail; by whom we have the public Prints to the 25th of February.

⁂ The Number of lengthy Advertiſements which we have receiv'd this Morning oblige us to leave out a great number of articles brought by the above Veſſels which were prepared for this Paper till our next.

Hartford, April 20, 1770.

RUN away laſt night from the ſubſcribers two journeymen ſhoemakers, viz. One from Thomas Newhall, named Thomas Griffiths, about 21 years of age, about 5 feet 9 inches high, wears his own ſhort dark colour'd hair, full face, the great toe on his right foot has been put out of joint, and ſtands conſiderably higher than the other—had on a blue duffle great coat, a grey ratteen ſtrait-body'd coat, green ratteen double breaſted waiſtcoat, and a pair of black flower'd everlaſting breeches.

The other from Moſes Smith, named Samuel Merriman, about 5 feet 6 inches high, round face, wears his own hair, had on a light grey colour'd coat without lining, two pair leather breeches, his other cloaths forgot. Whoever ſhall take up one or both of the above fellows, and return them to their Maſters, ſhall have Twenty Shillings reward for each, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

Thomas Newhall,
Moſes Smith.

AT the deſire of a number of gentlemen belonging to the company of military adventurers, that a meeting of ſaid company may be called and held, at ſome ſuitable time and place. Theſe are therefore according to ſaid deſire, to warn and give notice, to all the gentlemen members of ſaid company, in theſe and the neighbouring colonies, that they meet together by themſelves, or their agents, at the court houſe in Hartford in the colony of Connecticut, on Thurſday the 24th day of May, at 9 o'clock in the morning, then and there to conſider of, and act upon ſuch matters as may then be laid before ſaid meeting, relative to the affairs of ſaid company, more eſpecially to conſider of, and act upon the following matters, viz.

1. To inquire what monies have been ſupplied to General Lyman, and what return any of the ſaid company, either as a committee or a private perſon, have received from him during his reſidence in Great-Britain.

2. To receive and examine the accounts of Capt. John Coleman late of Hartford deceaſ'd, who was heretofore by ſaid company, choſen their treaſurer, and acted as ſuch till his death; and to chooſe ſome other perſon to act in that capacity for the future, who may alſo if needful, ſettle ſaid Colemans accounts.

3. To appoint a committee who may be inſtructed to write to General Lyman, to inform the company of what he has already done, or what proſpects he has of doing or obtaining any thing for the advantage of ſaid company. To call on thoſe gentlemen who were appointed a committee, to receive the ſubſcriptions of thoſe who entered themſelves of ſaid company, to ſettle their accounts of the ſame, and pay over ſuch ſum or ſums of money, as may ſtill remain in their hands, to the treaſurer that ſhall be appointed in order that the ſame may be applied for the benefit of the company, either by forwarding the ſame to General Lyman, or otherwiſe, as the company ſhall direct.

4th. Thoſe gentlemen who have any books or papers that properly belong to, or may be thought to be of ſervice to ſaid company are deſired to bring or ſend the ſame to ſaid meeting, that they be lodg'd in the hands of the Clerk of ſaid company for their uſe and benefit.

5th. To tax ſaid company to raiſe ſuch ſums as may be thought needful, to advance the future intereſt of ſaid company, and do and tranſact any other buſineſs proper for ſaid meeting.

DANIEL SHELDON,
Clerk for ſaid Company.

Hartford, 20th April, 1770.

STrayed or Stolen from the ſubſcriber at Litchfield, a brown or browniſh red Mare three years old, ſhod before, paces and trots, branded with 9 on her four ſhoulder. Whoever will bring Mare and Thief (if ſtolen) or Mare if ſtrayed, ſhall be well rewarded for the trouble and pains, by

DAVID BEECH.

Litchfield, 24 April.

This may inform the PUBLIC.

THAT SAMUEL FARNSWORTH of Hartford, has two likely Stallions, which, he intends to keep the enſuing ſeaſon, to cover Mares. The one is the noted horſe lately the property of Neil McLean, jun. and is counted by them that are judges, to be the ſwifteſt horſe on the continent, to take him on the three gates, pace, trot, and run. The latter is a very large thick heavy horſe, bred in Canada. Thoſe gentlemen that will favour me in bringing their Mares, ſhall charge only the bare ſum of Six Shillings for the ſeaſon, which will be greatfully acknowledged, by their, very humble ſervant, SAMUEL FARNSWORTH.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon. Judge of probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Auguſtin Stanly, late of Hartford deceas'd (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice that we ſhall attend that buſineſs, on the firſt Mondays in October and November, and on the third Monday in Jan. next, at the Dwelling-Houſe of the deceas'd, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, on each of ſaid days.

Benjamin Colton,
George Kellogg } Commiſſioners.

Hartford, April 21.

NOtice is hereby given, to all the proprietors of the Townſhip of Panton, in the province of New Hampſhire, that at a legal meeting of ſaid proprietors, holden on the firſt Tueſday of Dec. 1765, a tax was voted of Ten Shillings L. Money, on each right, and I the ſubſcriber being choſen collector to gather ſaid tax. Do give public notice to ſaid proprietors, that they pay their rate or tax to me, on or before the ſecond Wedneſday of May next, or the rights of thoſe that are delinquent, or ſo much as will pay the tax and incident charges, will be ſold at public vendue, at the houſe of Charles Burrall, Eſq; in Canaan on ſaid Wedneſday. Dated at Canaan, the 15th day of March, 1770. David Holcomb, jun. Collector.

LOST

ON Friday the 20 of inſtant April, between the North Meeting-Houſe in Hartford, and Mr. Wyards of Farmington, a leather Pocket Book, ſtamp'd Conſtantinople, containing two Ten Shilling bills, date forgot, a good Ivory comb, with a wooden caſe, 3 letters directed to the Nine Partners, and ſeveral to Maj. Durkee of Suſquehannah, beſides ſeveral orders. Whoever has found the ſame, and will return it to me at Suſquehannah, ſhall have One Dollar reward.

JESSE KINNE.

STray'd or ſtolen from Jonathan Belding of Canaan, on the night before the Faſt, a dark brown Mare, her right eye white, three white feet, branded on her left thigh thus, ɔ or what is call'd a half moon, natural trotter, a cub on her back, about 8 years old, ſhod all round. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Mare, if ſtray'd, or Mare and thief if ſtolen, and return them to Roſſeter Belding of Hartford, or Jonathan Belding of Canaan ſhall have Two Dollars reward, and all neceſſary charges paid.

WE the ſubſcribers, being appointed, by the hon. Judge of Probate for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Joſeph Gillet, late of Hartford deceas'd, (ſaid eſtate being repreſented inſolvent) We ſhall attend that buſineſs at the houſe of Mr. William Sedgwick, of ſaid Hartford, on the firſt Monday of May, and the firſt Mondays of June and Auguſt next, at two of the clock in the afternoon, on each of ſaid days.

Noah Webſter,
Ebenezer Crosby. } Commiſſioners.

April 14, 1770.

The NEWS-PAPER.

'TIS truth (with deference to the college)
News-papers are the ſpring of knowledge,
The general ſource thro'out the nation,
Of every modern converſation.
What would this mighty people do,
If there, alas! were nothing new?
A news-paper is like a feaſt.
Some diſh there is for every gueſt;
Some large, ſome ſmall, ſome ſtrong, ſome tender,
For every ſtomach, ſtout or ſlender.
Thoſe who roaſt beef and ale delight in
Are pleas'd with trumpets, drums, & fighting.
For thoſe who are more puny made
Are arts and ſciences, and trade;
For fanciful and amorous blood
We have a ſoft poetic food;
For witty and ſatyrick folks
High ſeaſon'd, acid, bitter jokes;
And when we ſtrive to pleaſe the mob,
A jeſt, a quarrel, or a job.
If any Gentleman wants a wife,
(A partner, as 'tis term'd, for life)
An advertiſement does the thing,
And quickly brings the pretty thing.
If you want health, conſult our pages,
You ſhall be well, and live for ages;
Our empiricks, to get them bread,
Do every thing but raiſe the dead.
Lands may be had, if they are wanted,
Annuities of all ſorts granted.
Places, preferments, bought and ſold,
Houſes to purchaſe, new and old,
Ships, ſhops, of every ſhape and form,
Carriages, Horſes, ſervants ſwarm,
No matter whether good or bad,
We tell you where they may be had.
Our ſervices you can't expreſs,
The good we do you hardly gueſs;
There's no want of human kind,
But we a remedy can find.

BOSTON, April 9.

It is ſaid that upon the Queſtion whether to admit Manwaring and others (indicted for Murder) to Bail laſt Week, only three of the Judges Cuſhing and Oliver were in Favour of the Queſtion, and Judge Lynde againſt it.——It is poſſible therefore if there had been a full Bench upon this important Occaſion, the Queſtion might have been otherwiſe ruled.

The Town of Boſton at their late Meeting, Voted an humble Petition to the Lieutenant Governor in Council, praying a ſpecial Appointment of Juſtices for the Trial of the Perſons indicted for being Principals in the late execrable Maſſacre, in the Room of two of the honorable Bench of Aſſizes, taken off by bodily Indiſpoſition. But the Deciſion thereon, if any has not yet tranſpired.

We are told that his H——r the C——f J——e cannot act in that Station at this important Criſis; his Commiſſion being entirely ſuperceded by that of C——r in C——f. If this be a Fact, Does not the public loſe at leaſt a fifth Part of the Wiſdom of the S——r C——t, at a Time when, if ever, the whole is abſolutely neceſſiary.

CASH given for clean Cotten and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

WHereas application has been made to me the ſubſcriber, a Juſtice of Peace for the county of Litchfield, by more than a 16th part of the proprietors of STOW, near Onion River, a townſhip granted by Benning Wentworth, Eſq; late governor of New-Hampſhire, deſiring to warn a meeting of ſaid proprietors, to ſee if they will chooſe a committee, to ſurvey, and bound out ſaid townſhip, and lay out a home lott, or firſt diviſion to each right. Theſe are therefore to notify the proprietors of ſaid Townſhip, to meet together at the houſe of Mr. Eliaſ Read, innholder in Saliſbury, on the fourth Tueſday of April next, at one of the clock afternoon for the purpoſe aforeſaid, and to do any other buſineſs proper to be done, at ſaid meeting. Dated at Sharon, the 23 day of March, 1770.

DANIEL GRISWOLD, Juſt. Pacis.

THE very beſt BOHEA TEA and INDIGO, to be Sold by DANIEL COTTON, near the Court-Houſe in Hartford.

TO BE SOLD BY

James Tiley,

GOLDSMITH, at his Shop, juſt below Meſſ. Lathrop & Smith's Store in King-Street Hartford.

CYPHER'd and Brilliant Stone Ear-Rings ſet in Gold, ditto in Silver, Cypher'd and Brilliant Stone Buttons, Stone Rings, and a variety of other Articles.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY,

AS an apprentice to a Chaiſe and Harneſs maker in Hartford, a likely LAD, about 12 or 14 years of Age.——Enquire of the PRINTERS.

Weathersfield, 5 April, 1770.

WE the ſubſcribers appointed by the hon. court of Probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners, to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Mrs. Grace Goodrich, late of Weathersfield deceas'd; (the eſtate being repreſented inſolvent) We ſhall attend that buſineſs, on the laſt monday of april inſtant, and on the laſt monday's of June and Auguſt next, at the dwelling houſe of Joſeph Richards, jun. in ſaid Weathersfield, from 2 to 8 o'clock in the afternoon on each of ſaid days.

Daniel Andrus, } Commiſſioners.
Joſeph Richards, jun. }

ALL Perſons in the Town of Hartford, poſſeſſed of Steel-yards or Weights, are hereby notified to bring them to the Subſcriber to be tried by the Standard according to law.

THOMAS SLOAN, Sealer of Weights.
Hartford, April 9. 1770.

NOTICE is hereby given, to all the members of the Medical Corporation, that the laſt meeting ſtan s adjourn'd to the Tueſday preceeding the general Election, and as matters of importance, will then lie before the Corporation, 'tis hoped that all its members will duely attend.

Litchfield, 9th April.

HARTFORD:
Printed by GREEN & WATSON.

T. Hopkins,

HAS juſt receiv'd a freſh Aſſortment of Engliſh GOODS, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable Terms, at his Store, oppoſite the North Meeting-Houſe Hartford.

N. B. He has likewiſe for Sale good Bohea Tea, Indigo and Coffee.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon Judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Litchfield, commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Friend Grant, late of ſaid Litchfield, deceas'd (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the Court Houſe in ſaid Litchfield, on the firſt, ſecond and third Monday's of June A. D. 1770, at one of the clock afternoon, on each of ſaid days.

John Pierce, }
Reuben Smith, } Commiſſioners.
Abraham Bradley, }

April 11, 1770.

TO BE SOLD BY

Philip Mortimer,

Of Middletown, ſundry pieces of Land, viz.

One piece or parcel

Lying in Eaſt Windſor, containing 98 acres, 18 of which is choice meadow, the other wood land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Weſt on the country road, north on land belonging to Mr. Ellſworth, eaſt partly on Scantick river, and ſouth on a highway.——TWO other pieces lying in Weathersfield, containing about twenty acres, being choice paſture land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſt on land of James Mitchel's, weſt on land of Gerſhom Nott's, ſouth partly on land of Moſes Deming's, and partly on James Curtiſs's land, and north on Moſes Deming's.—THE other piece containing about ſix acres, butted eaſt on land of Moſes Deming, weſt on land of Francies Hanmer, north partly on land belonging to Gerſhom Nott, and partly on James Curtiſs's, and ſouth partly on land belonging to Thomas Wells, and partly on Francies Hanmors land.——ONE other piece lying in Middletown, containing thirty acres, conſiſting of plow land, paſture and meadow land, butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſterly on land of the heirs of Daniel Merwin, weſterly on land of Julius Webſter, north on land of Joſeph Bates, and ſouth on land of Miles Merwin. For further particulars enquire of ſaid Mortimer.

277 op 3m.

THE night after the 11 of April, 1770, was ſtolen out of the ſtable of Iſaac Ford of Hebron, a black Mare, about 11 or 12 years old, about 14 hands high, paces and trots, has ſome white in her forehead, ſome white hairs on her dock, cloſe to her rump, ſhod all round, and a white ſpot on her left ſide.——Whoever ſhall ſecure ſaid Mare and Thief, ſo as ſaid Ford can have them, ſhall have Five Dollars Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

ISAAC FORD.

MONDAY, APRIL 36, 1756. Numb 279.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

Advices by the laſt Veſſels from LONDON.

DANTZICK, January 18.

ACcording to ſome unqueſtionable advices juſt received, moſt of the ditches that are between Bender and Baita are filled up with the dead bodies of the Ruſſian ſoldiers, who were either killed, or died of the diſorders which prevail among them; the number of them is ſaid to amount to twenty thouſand.

Advices from the ROBINHOOD SOCIETY.

THE laſt time I was at the club, was on Tueſday ſe'nnight. I was in the upper room, where matters of public concern are alſo debated with freedom, but with ſomewhat more decency and regularity than is uſually obſerved in the lower room:—In this ſociety (I mean the upper chamber) there are ſome ſpeakers who would have made a diſtinguiſhed figure in the Grecian or Roman republics, and many of their ſpeeches are ſuch as would have done honour to the moſt celebrated orators of antiquity; there is Charles Prattley and Juſtice MacMurray, either of whom wou'd have made a Cicero; and above all, there is old Will Chatwell that wields the whole thunder of Demoſthenes!

" [illegible]
And younger hearings are quite raviſhed,
So voluble is his diſcourſe."

George Allworthy, the preſident, had juſt been there; I came in too late to hear him ſpeak, but was informed that he had talked to the ſociety concerning the diſtemper among the horned cattle, and the late commotions in America; giving them alſo much good advice for their future conduct, and particularly recommending harmony and unanimity.——Soon after 'Squire Allworthy was gone, old Will Chatwell roſe up, and leaning forward on a crutch headed cane, delivered himſelf to the following effect:

Speech of Will Chatwell, in the Upper Club Room of the Robinhood Society.

IF, I attempt to ſpeak this Day, and in this Society, it is becauſe I am impelled to ſpeak, I feel an Impulſe, which I cannot reſiſt: And I ſhou'd not have been eaſy in my own mind, if I had not ſtepped forth at this alarming Criſis, to give my public Teſtimony in behalf of the People of England, and to declare my free Opinion of the diſtreſſed State of our Affairs in every part of the Globe.

* * * * * * * * * * *

* * * * * * * * * * *

After a peace, by which we abandoned, (ſhamefully abandoned!) our Allies, I tho't, till this Day, that we were again on the ſlippery Edge of a new War,——without Allies abroad, and without Unanimity at Home.——If we turn our eyes towards America, the Proſpect is equally diſtreſsful.—Much has been ſaid of the Diſobedience of the Colonies to the Mother Country.——My opinion, with regard to America, is the ſame now, it ever was.——My opinion this, is we ought to do juſtice, before we expect Obedience——I feel the warmeſt regard for America: I love the Americans because they love Liberty! Liberty has ſpread, like a vine, from this Country to the Colonies: Liberty flouriſhes in the Wilds of America! I honor the Plant; I revere the Tree; and I would cheriſh the Branches——As to any tumults that may have happened in America, they are the Ebullitions of Liberty; they are only ſome breakings out in the Skin of the body politic, which if rudely reſtrained and improperly checked, may ſtrike inwardly, and endanger the vitals of the conſtitution.

* * * * * * * * * * *

* * * * * * * * * * *

The other Parts of the Speech relate to his Sentiments with regard to the club in the lower room.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, to his Friend in Marblehead, dated Feb 17 1770.

" The Affair of the Revenue Acts comes on again in the Houſe next Wedneſday the 21ſt Inſt. and it ſeems now pretty generally beleived that altereat will take place; and that the Article of Tea will be included; but if it ſhould, it is apprehended that it will be ſaddled here with at leaſt an Equivalent. We hope however a little Time will now inform us what we have to expect."

Extract of another Letter from a Gentleman in London, to his Friend in Marblehead, dated February 24, 1770.

" We have now the Mortification to acquaint you that the conſideration of the American Acts in the Houſe is again poſtponed to the 5th of March; and whether that will be deciſive or not, Time can only diſcover. Theſe repeated Delays are extremely diſagreeable, while we are kept in ſuch an uneaſy Suſpence. If not determined on ſoon, the Spring Shipping will be totally ruined."

BOSTON, April 19, 1770.

All the Letters we hear of, intimate that only the Duties on Paper Glaſs, and Painters Colours, will be taken off.

LONDON,

I consequence of the thoughts of an approaching War, perſons in power are daily ſolicited for commiſſions in the army and navy.

It is ſtrongly reported, that ſome very unpleaſing accounts are received from our Ambaſſador at Conſtantinople.

Accounts from Vienna declare, that advice has been received from Conſtantinople, that the Grand Signior will certainly put himſelf at the head of his troops early in the ſpring, and That two of the moſt reſpectable Powers in Europe, have engaged to furniſh him with twenty ſhips of the line, in caſe the Ruſſians ſhould commence hoſtilities in the Mediterranean.

LONDON, Feb. 12 1770.

Friday the Earl of Halifax was appointed Lord Privy Seal.

The Hon. Thomas Robinſon (ſon of Lord Grantham) is appointed one of the joint Vice-Treaſurers of Ireland, in the room of Lord Cornwallis, reſigned; place of 3400l per annum.

Admiral Holborne Charles Fox, ſon of Lord Holand, and Lord Liſburne are appointed Lords of the Admiralty, Char'es Townſhend, Eſq; removed to the Treaſury in the room of Jeremiah Dyſon, Eſq: Sir George, Yonge, and Sir Piercy Breit.

Thomas Pownall, Eſq; Secretary to the Board of Trade, it is ſaid, will be made one of the Lords of Trade, in the room of the Hon. Thomas Robinſon and brought into Parliament.

We are aſſured that a certain Premier has declared that, " He will never give up, till he meets with a man to ſucceed him, who is of his way of thinking and ſuperior abilities."

We are informed, upon good authority, that the Premier of a certain maritime board has publickly, declared, he will not reſign his employment into the hands of any miniſter; but as in the late cauſe of a great lawyer go out when he receives a ſpecial mandate for that Purpoſe from the Great Perſonage who appointed him to the office, and not till then.

Both Houſes of Parliament roſe on Friday at four o'clock, having adjourned to this day.

This day it is expected the Houſe of Commons will be very full.

In a certain Society this day the ſtate of the nation, it is ſaid will be taken into conſideration.

It is rumoured, that a great Aſſembly will be prorogued previous to the 18th of next April.

It is whiſpered, that one of the drafts of a bill now depending is to exclude a certain individual from ever holding and place of truſt or profit, with pains and penalties, &c.

The expreſſion of one of the Sh-r ffs, on a late occaſion, was this "That he ſhould refuſe in future to pay the ſaid tax in a country that was not repreſented."

We are aſſured that a certain perſon, whoſe intereſt connects him with the C——t, received a ſevere reprimand for his conduct, in withdrawing himſelf from a particular place, and taking his relation with him, when a late queſtion of importance was to be decided.

A quarrel between a noble Houſe, not far from Charing croſs, and the Butean family, relative to the marriage ſettlement of L—— P—— with a daughter of the latter, has entire'y ſeperated their domeſtic, as well as political principles.

We hear that a certain great man, who has lately altered his political conduct, has thereby ſo exaſpered a very great Perſonage, that he has ſtruck him out of a certain liſt with his own hand. And it is ſaid, he will be deprived of all his civil and maritime appointments.

A patriotic nobleman has delivered it as his opinion in a late c--ncil, that notwithſtanding the preſent unhappy diviſions at home and the exhauſted ſtate of our finances, the firſt blow that ſhall be ſtruck by France and Spain againſt the Ruſſians, muſt at all events be conſidered as a declaration of war againſt Great Britain; and we hear the majority of the members preſent acquieſced in his reaſons.

It is through the Intereſt of the Y—ke family, we are informed that a certain Knight of the Bath will be borough of Newport in the Iſle of Wight.

We are informed, that a certain great Perſonage has declared himſelf againſt conferring any more titles or honours on ſuch Commoners whoſe claim to them is their riches and not their deſcent.——It is further ſaid, this reſolution is the conſequence of ſome late very extraordinary applications.

We hear, ſo great a coolneſs ſubſiſts at preſent between two foreign Ambaſſadors, that they have not ſpoke together for ſome time, either at Court or public places.

The cauſe between the Right Hon. George Onſlow and Mr. Horne, will certainly come on at the next Surry aſſizes. The Court of Common Pleas on Thurſday laſt over ruled a motion made by Mr. Serjeant Glynn, as Council for Mr. Horne, to change the place of trial from being true, that the proſecution againſt that gentleman is dropped.

A treaty of marriage is talked of between his Grace the Duke of Devonſhire, and Lady Almeria Carpenter.

On Saturday Thomas Auſtin was committed to Newgate by the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, he ſtanding indicted for the wilful murder of Allen M'Coy, late a ſeaman on board the Black Prince, of Briſtol, near Anamaboe, on the coaſt of Africa, and alſo for running away with the ſaid ſhip. He was taken at Boſton in New England.

Arrived, The Sabina, Ronat, from Boſton.

In the Houſe of Commons on Monday February 29, the firſt Queſtion was upon the Uſage of the Houſe, whether a Member had a Right to ſeparate a double Queſtion which contained two Propoſitions without a Reſolution of the Houſe) paſſed in the Negative 243 174. After which Lord North propoſed that the Queſtion ſhould be divided. Upon the firſt ſeparated Queſtion, that the Houſe was obliged to proceed according to the Law of the Land and the Uſage of Parliament the Houſe was unanimous. In the ſecond Queſtion, that the Houſe in their Proceedings againſt Mr. Wilkes had acted according to the Law of the Land and the Uſage of Parliament pro 237, con 159, majority 78.

When theſe two laſt Queſtions joined in one, were divided upon in the Committee on February 7, the Day after the Reſignation of the Duke of Grafton was made public, the Numbers were 246, 180, majority 40.

Deal, February 18. Arrived and ſailed for the River, the London Packet, Ca'eff, from Boſton.

We are informed that a patriotic dignitary of the church greatly advanced in years, has bequeathed the bulk of his fortune, which is ſaid to be upwards of 80 000l. except a few legacies, to a popular patriot.

One day laſt week a motion was made in the Court of King's-Bench, for leave (which was granted) to any juſtice of the Peace to accept the diſcharge of John Wilkes, Eſq; on the 18th of April, when the time of his confinement expires, as the Judges will at that time be all on their reſpective circuits.

An evening paper of Saturday night ſays, that ſome very preſſing and earneſt invitations to a popular patriot, have been received from ſeveral parts on the other ſide of the atlantic.

Notwithſtanding what is aſſerted, with ſeeming confidence, that the A——n affairs will not be taken into conſideration this ſeaſon, we are led to believe, from ſome late Acts of C——l, that the time is approaching when thoſe matters will become the ſubject of public deliberation, and in all probability, of much contention, warmth, and diviſion.

It is ſaid that a very great Perſonage has ſignified his intentions of viſiting his German dominions this ſummer, if party quarrels ſhould ſubſide.

As the ſecond queſtion was debating on Friday night laſt in a certain Society, a diviſion was propoſed by a Member, on account of the late hour, and the waſte of ſpirit they muſt neceſſarily have undergone during the former debate, when L—d C——m roſe up, and ſaid he was directly againſt that motion; for, added that N——n, "Tho' I am here ſuffering more than any other L— in the aſſembly, on account of my infirmities, I am willing to ſtay ſomewhat longer, that I might have, at leaſt, the pleaſure to ſee the ſun riſe on ſuch proceedings."

Feb. 24. Thurſday morning his Excellency Sir Francis Bernard, Bart. Governor of Maſſachuſetts Bay, had a conferrence for near an hour and half with the Right Hon. the Earl of Hillſborough, at his houſe in Hanover-ſquare, on the ſubject of recent diſpatches from Boſton in New England.

Yeſterday (and not before) the Right Hon. the Earl of Halifax, kiſſed his Majeſty's hand on being appointed Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, in the room of the Earl of Briſtol.

Orders have this week been diſpatched from Lord Hillſborough's office to the Governors of all our Weſt-India Iſlands, to put their reſpective governments in the beſt poſture of defence.

We hear, that on Tueſday laſt an extraordinary cauſe, relating to a diſpute reſpecting military command, betwixt a governor of a Province in the Southern part of North-America, and a Colonel of his Majeſty's forces, was determined in the Court of Common Pleas in favour of the former who was defendant. The damages in the above cauſe was laid for ten thouſand pounds.

A correſpondent aſſures us, that there are twenty-two Weſt-India planters in a certain Aſſembly, and ſix in the London Tavern Club, all ſtrenuous advocates for the liberties of this country; whilſt in the Weſt Indies they hold at leaſt ſix thouſand men in ſlavery and chains. Such is the virtue of Britiſh air, that it humanizes the greateſt tyrants on earth whilſt here.

Letters from Paris, which arrived by yeſterday's mail, aſſert, that the Khan of Tartary has fallen upon a body of 8000 Ruſſians near Soroka, and after an obſtinate diſpute, entirely routed them.

It is ſaid that the Petition of the American Merchants, praying that the Parliament will repeal all the laws for internal taxation, is in conſequence of a plan concerted between ſome of the principals in that trade and A——n. This mode of redreſs is entirely diſagreeable to the Americans, & has been declared ſo by many of them who are now in England.

WHereas on the 23d of inſtant April, one Steele as he call'd his name, a ſtranger, ſlim fellow European born, about twenty years old, of a thin viſage, has had the ſmall pox, had on a blue coat, trim'd with flower'd braſs buttons, with a cape, a lightiſh colour'd jacket and breeches, wore his hair——Came to the houſe of the ſubſcriber in Hartford, and rode a large bay horſe, about nine years old, paces and trots well, white face and two hind feet, no brand, his off fore hough ſp'it from the hair to the toe of his foot, bro't a ſaddle and bridle with ſaid horſe——Said fellow pretended to be a traveller——After he had tarried a day or two, in the night ſeaſon, he broke open my deſk and ſtole from thence about twenty ſhillings in caſh, and ſundry articles of goods out of my houſe, and then ran off. After purſuing him ſometime, I recovered ſaid horſe, but the thief eſcaped. And as this horſe ſaddle and bridle is ſuppoſed to be ſtolen, whoever ſhall appear to make out a juſt claim to the ſame, may have them again upon ſatisfying the ſubſcriber, and paying the charge of this advertiſement.

JOHN STEELE.

Hartford, April 27. 1770.

THe ſubſcriber takes this method to inform the public, that he has removed with his family from Connecticut to Albany, and keeps a public houſe a little way weſt from the City Hall, in the houſe where Thompſon formerly kept a tavern, adjoining the houſe where Sawyer and Aſhburn formerly kept an Engliſh Tavern. If any perſons from New-England will oblige him with their cuſtom, may depend upon having civil treatment, and as reaſonable as any in the city.

Eliſha Benedict.

N. B. My Sign is John Wilkes, Eſq;

Hartford, April 27.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon judge of probate for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners to receive & examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Moſes Williams, late of Hartford, deceas'd, (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the houſe of Daniel Pitkin, inholder in ſaid Hartford, on the laſt tueſdays of May, June, July and Sept. next, from two to ſix o'clock afternoon on each of ſaid days.

Jonathan Stanly,
Daniel Pitkin. } Commiſſioners.

CASH given for clean Cotten and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

NOTICE is hereby given, to all the members of the Medical Corporation, that the laſt meeting ſtands adjourn'd to the Tueſday preceeding the general Election, and as matters of importance, will then lie before the Corporation, 'tis hoped that all its members will duely attend.

Litchfield, 9th April.

Printed by GREEN & WATSON.

BOSTON, April 26.

By Letters from London, brought by Capt. SCOTT in ſix Weeks it appears that the Duties on Paper, Glaſs, and Painters Colours, were taken off, the Duty on Tea remains. On the 5th March, when the Affair came on in a great Aſſembly, L. N—h began the debate, ſaying, the laſt year the Miniſtry had in Conſideration the complaints of the Americans againſt the late duties, and were of opinion that ſuch of them as were laid upon Britiſh Manufactures were uncommercial, and ought to be repealed. This was ſignified to the colonies by a circular letter; notwithſtanding which, they had been very refractory, and had entered into illegal combinations hurtful to themſelves as well as their Mother-country; and thereby they were intitled to no favour. Never heleſs as the Merchants of London trading to America had given in a petition upon this ſubject, and this day was appointed to conſider it he was content that the duties on Glaſs, Painters Colours and Britiſh Paper ſhould be repealed upon commercial principles only.—But he could not conſent to the repeal of the Duty on Tea, not only becauſe it was not a Britiſh manufacture, but becauſe it was inſiſted upon in the way of denying the Right of Parliament to tax the Colonies. It was not conſiſtent with the policy, dignity or honour of G. Britain to give way to the obſtinacy of America. He was not at all influenced by the American Aſſociations; they muſt be broke up; they had already brought diſtreſs on that Country, by the riſe of goods, and great quantities of goods were now going over. But as he was in the Cabinet when the circular letter was adviſed, tho' he had doubted of the propriety of it, he tho't himſelf obliged to make good the aſſurances it had given, tho' the Americans had forfeited the benefit of it; and if it was not for this obligation, perhaps he ſhould have tho't otherwiſe of the propoſal he made now. The Americans complained without reaſon, and had forgot the many indulgencies of Great-Britain in giving bounties upon almoſt every thing imported from America.——He added that there was a Treaty with the Eaſt India Company depending, which might poſſibly in its conſequences produce a repeal of the duty upon Tea; but he would engage for nothing. L. N—h was the only perſon on the ſide of the Miniſtry that ſpoke in favor the partial repeal; tho' ſome miniſterial men ſpoke againſt any repeal.

Mr. B-ckf—d, L—d M—r, moved for an amendment, ſo as to include the whole Act, urging that the Americans would not be ſatisfied without it; therefore the keeping the duty upon Tea was anticommercial, as it would hurt the Commerce of Great Britain.

Gov. [illegible]——ll ſpoke to the ſame purpoſe, and ſaid he did not aſk the repeal as a favour to America; not to repeal would be favour to Americans, as it would make them induſtrious, and raiſe manufactories; He propoſed it as a commercial object in favour of this Country. He denied that the Aſſociations were at an end, and offered to produce letters to ſhow they were not, and juſtified the legality of them. He complained that the Military was put above the Civil power, and ſaid that if any Miniſter would maintain that ſuperiority, he pledged himſelf that he would impeach him.

Col. M-ch y ſpoke next, and ſaid, that the Repeal of the Stamp Act had made the Americans wanton in their claims againſt Great Britain.——That three quarters of the Boſtonians would be againſt the combinations, if they could act for themſelves.——That notwithſtanding the cry againſt the Trooops, many prayed for their continuance for the ſake of the money they bro't in.——That the Military were ſo far from being ſuperior to the civil, it was the very reverſe; for when a Soldier had committed a trivial crime, the Juſtices firſt fined him more than he could pay, and then ſold him for non payment.——That the moſt illegal part of the conduct of the Americans aroſe from the encouragement they received from hence.

Mr. G——nv—le ſaid, that the queſtion put him under great difficulties. He had always diſapproved of this Act and thought it an improper one. But he was convinced that the Repeal of it at this time and under the preſent circumſtances, would give a wound to the Authority of Great Britain: If he ſhould vote againſt the Repeal he ſhould ſhow his approbation of an act which he did not like; if he voted for the repeal, he ſhould appear to aſſent to the pretenſions of the Americans, which he could not approve of: He had therefore nothing to do but to decline voting at all. He accordingly left the houſe with ſome of his friends.

It is ſaid that ſeveral other Members ſpoke, and among them two leading men in the miniſterial party againſt any repeal at all. The firſt Queſtion was for the Repeal of the whole Act, when it paſſed pro 142, con 204, majority 62. The ſecond queſtion was for the Repeal of Glaſs, Colours and Britiſh Paper: there were ſome Noes, but not enough to encourage a Diviſion. There was upon this occaſion, as much the repeal of the Stamp-Act, a great departure from the arrangement of parties; and therefore it is probable that there was no deſire on either ſide to diſtinguiſh the Voters.

HARTFORD April 30.

We hear that the Rev. Mr. Stephen Johnſon of Lyme, is nominated by his Honor the Governor, to preach the anniverſary Election Sermon at Hartford, on the 10th Day of May next.

This is to give public Notice, That

KNIGHT SEXTON,

(Near the Great Bridge in Hartford)

W*ILL have in Readineſs for the Subſcribers, the Piece written by the Rev Samuel Langdon, D. D. of Portſmouth in New Hampſhire, againſt Mr. Sandeman, at the Time of the next General Election in this Town. It is likely a conſiderable Number of Sets of this late Publication may be purchaſed at the ſame Time, by ſome that are not Signers. At the ſame Place may be had a Variety of other Books.*

T*HE Subſcriber intending to open School ſoon, deſires his Cuſtomers to ſend their Children into his Houſe, the Week after the Election, for he will be ready to ſerve them then.*

ISAAC BULL.

Litchfield, April 28, 1770.

P.S. Strangers may depend on good Uſage.

R*UN away from his Maſter, Nicholas Brown, on the Night after the 22d Inſtant, an Apprentice Boy named James Robinſon, about 18 Years of Age, about 5 Feet 4 Inches high, wears his own brown Hair, dark Complexion, looks down, ſpeaks grum. Had on when he went away a light colour'd homeſpun mix'd Coat, commonly called Pepper and Salt, a ſtriped Waiſtcoat, light colour'd Breeches, a Pair of Calf ſkin Pumps. He ſtole and carried with him two Books of Leaf Gold. Whoever ſhall take up and return ſaid Boy to his Maſter, ſhall have Ten Shillings Reward, paid by*

NICHOLAS BROWN.

Hartford, April 30. 1770.

From the MASSACHUSETTS GAZETTE.

The following may be depended on as fact.

T*HAT ſome time in the beginning of January laſt, ſeveral men being together in the woods at Epſom in New-Hampſhire, found a bear in his den. They had ſeveral dogs with them, who were ſo intimidated by the threats of the bear, who, conſidering his houſe as his caſtle, menaced inſtant deſtruction to the audacious animal that ſhould attempt a forcible entry upon his habitation, that none of them could be perſuaded to undertake the hazardous enterprize. The men, hoping, by exciting his vindictive diſpoſition, to provoke him to the imprudence of a ſally to puniſh their inſolence, offered many contemptuous inſults to him and his habitation: But he, conſcious that, conſidering the ſuperior force of the beſiegers, his citadel was his only ſafety, wiſely curbed his natural haſty temper, and reſolved to act entirely upon the defenſive. This reſolution diſconcerted all the meaſures of the aſſailants. While they were deliberating and ſettling the plan of their future operations, a young man, driving a yoke or two of oxen came to them, & propoſed to go himſelf into the den, & faſten a chain to the hind legs of the animal, and draw him out with the oxen. The youth, a chain being faſtened about his middle, in order ſpeedily to withdraw him from military execution, in caſe of a ſummary proceeding againſt him by martial law, took a chain in his hand, boldly entered the gloomy abode, faſtened the chain as was propoſed, and returned in ſafety: the invective animal, ſurprized, as it ſeems, at the intrepidity of the youth, having made no reſiſtance.... At the firſt effort of the oxen, the chain ſlipped off from the bear's legs, and defeated the impatient hopes of the party. Our young adventurer, with the like precautions as before, now a ſecond time viſited the region of darkneſs, fixed the chain effectually, and returned to his companions. The oxen were obliged to pull pretty hard to diſlodge the animal from his dwelling, he endeavouring ſtill to keep poſſeſſion by cloſely embracing the roots of trees which ſupported his roof; but at length ſuperior force obliged him to quit his hold, and he was drawn by the cattle into the midſt of his enimies, whoſe unprovoked fury ſoon put a period to his life. Such was the unfortunate end of this* TRUE BORN SON OF LIBERTY!

(The gentleman that ſent the above informs the Printer that the Dreſs the Story is put in may perhaps make it diverting to ſome.——That the ſuſpicious part of mankind may perhaps ſuppoſe it to be a political Fable; but no ſuch thing is deſigned, the Printer may be aſſured upon the Honor of the Writer.)

Hartford, April 20, 1770.

RUN away laſt night from the ſubſcribers two journeymen ſhoemakers, viz. One from Thomas Newhall, named Thomas Griffiths, about 21 years of age, about 5 feet 9 inches high, wears his own ſhort dark colour'd hair, full face, the great toe on his right foot has been put out of joint, and ſtands conſiderably higher than the other——had on a blue duffils great coat, a grey fatteen ſtrait-body'd coat, green ratteen double breaſted waiſtcoat, and a pair of black flower'd everlaſting breeches.

The other from Moſes Smith, named Samuel Merriman, about 5 feet 6 inches high, round face, wears his own hair, had on a light grey colour'd coat without lining, two pair leather breeches, his other cloaths forgot. Whoever ſhall take up one or both of the above fellows, and return them to their Maſters, ſhall have Twenty Shillings reward for each, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

Thomas Newhall,
Moſes Smith.

WE the ſubſcribers, being appointed, by the hon. Judge of Probate for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Joſeph Gillet, late of Hartford deceas'd, (ſaid eſtate being repreſented inſolvent) We ſhall attend that buſineſs at the houſe of Mr. William Sedgwick, of ſaid Hartford, on the firſt Monday of May, and the firſt Mondays of June and Auguſt next, at two of the clock in the afternoon, on each of ſaid days.

Noah Webſter,
Ebenezer Crosby, } Commiſſioners.

April 14, 1770.

STray'd or ſtolen from Jonathan Belding of Canaan, on the night before the Faſt, a dark brown Mare, white face her right eye white, three white feet, branded on her left thigh thus, ɔ or what is call'd a half moon, natural trotter, a nub on her back, about 8 years old, ſhod all round. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Mare, if ſtray'd, or Mare and thief if ſtolen, and return them to Roſſeter Belding of Hartford, or Jonathan Belding of Canaan ſhall have Two Dollars reward, and all neceſſary charges paid.

LOST

ON Friday the 20 of inſtant April, between the North Meeting-Houſe in Hartford, and Mr. Wyards of Farmington, a leather Pocket Book, ſtamp'd Conſtantinople, containing two Ten Shilling bills, date forgot, a good Ivory comb, with a wooden caſe, 3 letters directed to the Nine Partners, and ſeveral to Maj. Durkee of Suſquehannah, beſides ſeveral orders. Whoever has found the ſame, and will return it to me at Suſquehannah, ſhall have One Dollar reward.

JESSE KINNE.

NOtice is herby given, to all the proprietors of the Townſhip of Panton, in the province of New Hampſhire, that at a legal meeting of ſaid proprietors, holden on the firſt Tueſday of Dec. 1765, a tax was voted of Ten Shillings L. Money, on each right, and I the ſubſcriber being choſen collector to gather ſaid tax. Do give public notice to ſaid proprietors, that they pay their rate or tax to me, on or before the ſecond Wedneſday of May next, or the rights of thoſe that are delinquent, or ſo much as will pay the tax and incident charges, will be ſold at public vendue, at the houſe of Charles Burrall, Eſq; in Canaan, on ſaid Wedneſday. Dated at Canaan, the 15th day of March, 1770. David Holcomb, jun. Collector

This may inform the PUBLIC.

THAT SAMUEL FARNSWORTH of Hartford, has two likely Stallions, which he intends to keep the enſuing ſeaſon, to cover Mares. The one is the noted horſe lately the property of Neil McLean, jun. and is counted by them that are judges, to be the ſwifteſt horſe on the continent, to take him on the three gates, pace, trot and run. The latter is a very large thick heavy horſe, bred in Canada. Thoſe gentlemen that will favour me in bringing their Mares, ſhall charge only the bear ſum of Six Shillings for the ſeaſon, which will be gratefully acknowledged, by their very humble ſervant, SAMUEL FARNSWORTH.

STrayed or Stolen from the ſubſcriber at Litchfield, a brown or browniſh red Mare three years old, ſhod before, paces and trots, branded with 7 on her four ſhoulder. Whoever will bring Mare and Thief (if ſtolen) or Mare if ſtrayed, ſhall be well rewarded for the trouble and pains, by

DAVID BEECH.

Litchfield, 20 April.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon. Judge of probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Auguſtus Stanly, late of Hartford deceas'd (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice that we ſhall attend that buſineſs, on the firſt Mondays in October and November, and on the third Monday in Jan. next, at the Dwelling-Houſe of the deceas'd, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, on each of ſaid days.

Benjamin Colton,
George Kellogg. } Commiſſioners.

Hartford, April 21.

AT the deſire of a number of gentlemen belonging to the company of military adventurers, that a meeting of ſaid company may be called and held, at ſome ſuitable time and place. Theſe are therefore according to ſaid deſire, to warn and give notice, to all the gentlemen members of ſaid company, in theſe and the neighbouring colonies, that they meet together by themſelves, or their agents, at the court houſe in Hartford, in the colony of Connecticut, on Thurſday the 24th day of May, at 9 o'clock in the morning, then and there to conſider of, and act upon ſuch matters as may then be laid before ſaid meeting, relative to the affairs of ſaid company, more eſpecially to conſider of, and act upon the following matters, viz.

1. To inquire what monies have been ſupplied to General Lyman, and what return any of the ſaid company, either as a committee or a private perſon, have received from him during his reſidence in Great-Britain.

2. To receive and examine the accounts of Capt. John Coleman late of Hartford deceas'd, who was heretofore by ſaid company, choſen their treaſurer, and acted as ſuch till his death; and to chooſe ſome other perſon to act in that capacity for the future, who may alſo if needful, ſettle ſaid Colemans accounts.

3. To appoint a committee who may be inſtructed to write to General Lyman, to inform the company of what he has already done, or what proſpects he has of doing or obtaining any thing for the advantage of ſaid company. To call on thoſe gentlemen who were appointed a committee, to receive the ſubſcriptions of thoſe who entered themſelves of ſaid company, to ſettle their accounts of the ſame, and pay over ſuch ſum or ſums of money, as may ſtill remain in their hands, to the treaſurer that ſhall be appointed in order that the ſame may be applied for the benefit of the company, either by forwarding the ſame to General Lyman, or otherwiſe, as the company ſhall direct.

4th. Thoſe gentlemen who have any books or papers that properly belong to, or may be thought to be of ſervice to ſaid company are deſired to bring or ſend the ſame to ſaid meeting, that they be lodg'd in the hands of the Clerk of ſaid company for their uſe and benefit.

5th. To tax ſaid company to raiſe ſuch ſums as may be thought needful, to advance the future intereſt of ſaid company, and do and tranſact any other buſineſs proper for ſaid meeting.

DANIEL SHELDON,
Clerk for ſaid Company.

Hartford, 20th April, 1770.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon. Judge of Probate, for the diſtrict of Litchfield, commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Friend Grant, late of ſaid Litchfield, deceas'd (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the Court Houſe in ſaid Litchfield, on the firſt, ſecond and third Monday's of June A. D. 1770, at one of the clock afternoon, on each of ſaid days.

John Pierce,
Reuben Smith,
Abraham Bradley, } Commiſſioners.

April 11, 1770.

T. Hopkins,

HAS juſt receiv'd a freſh Aſſortment of Engliſh Goods, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable Terms, at his Store, oppoſite the North Meeting-Houſe Hartford.

N. B. He has likewiſe for Sale good Bohea Tea, Indigo and Coffee.

THE night after the 11 of April, 1770, was ſtolen out of the ſtable of Iſaac Ford of Hebron, a black Mare, about 11 or 12 years old, about 14 hands high, paces and trots, has ſome white in her forehead, ſome white hairs on her dock, cloſe to her rump, ſhod all round, and a white ſpot on her left ſide.——Whoever ſhall ſecure ſaid Mare and Thief, ſo as ſaid Ford can have them, ſhall have Five Dollars Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

ISAAC FORD.

WHereas application has been made to me the ſubſcriber, a Juſtice of Peace for the county of Litchfield, by more than a 16th part of the proprietors of STOW, near Onion River, a townſhip granted by Benning Wentworth, Eſq; late governor of New-Hampſhire deſiring to warn a meeting of ſaid proprietors, to ſee if they will chooſe a committee, to ſurvey, and bound out ſaid townſhip; and lay out a home lott, or firſt diviſion to each right. Theſe are therefore to notify the proprietors of ſaid Townſhip, to meet together at the houſe of Mr. Elias Read, innholder in Saliſbury, on the fourth Tueſday of April next, at one of the clock afternoon, for the purpoſe aforeſaid, and to do any other buſineſs proper to be done, at ſaid meeting. Dated at Sharon, the 23 day of March, 1770.

DANIEL GRISWOLD, Juſt. Pacis.

MONDAY, MAY 7, 1770.

Numb 280.

THE

Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

CAMBRIDGE, April 25, 1770.

On the 7th Inſtant, his Honor the Lieutenant-Governor was pleaſed to ſend the following Meſſage to both Houſes of Aſſembly.

Gentlemen of the Council, and
Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives.

THE Secretary will lay before you ſeveral Papers which I have received from one of His Majeſty's Juſtices of the Peace, and divers other Perſons, Inhabitants of the town of Glouceſter, and which relate to a very diſorderly riotous Tranſaction in the ſaid town. A Perſon appears to have been moſt inhumanly treated, for ſeeking redreſs in a courſe of law, for former injuries received. As this Information comes to me while the General Court is ſitting I have thought it proper to communicate it to the Houſe of Repreſentatives, as well as to his Majeſty's Council, that if any Act or Order of the whole Legiſlature ſhall be judged neceſſary for ſtrengthening or encouraging the Executive powers of Government, there may be an opportunity for it. I muſt obſerve to you that a number of Perſons of the ſame Town were proſecuted and fined at the Superior Court for the County of Eſſex, in June laſt, for injuring the Perſon and Property of the preſent Complainant in a barbarous manner, and if it be truly repreſented, that the ſame Perſons have been concerned in this ſecond Offence, it is a great aggravation of their Crime and a Defiance of the Laws and the Authority of Government.

Council Chamber, T. HUTCHINSON.
April 7, 1770.

On Tueſday laſt Mr. Hancock, Col. Warren, Major Hawley, Mr. Spooner, and Mr. Remmington, a Committee of the Houſe of Repreſentatives, waited on his Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, with the following Anſwer to the foregoing Meſſage.

May it pleaſe your Honor,

THE Houſe of Repreſentatives, have taken into due Conſideration your Meſſage of the 7th Inſtant, with the Papers laid before them by the Secretary, agreeable to your Direction.

We aſſure your Honor that we have the utmoſt abhorrence of all diſorderly and riotous Tranſactions.—It is the Diſpoſition as well as the Duty of this Houſe to take the moſt effectual Meaſures to diſcountenance them; and to ſtrengthen and encourage the executive Officers in the exerciſe of all their lawful powers of government. Nothing therefore ſhall be wanting on our part for the promoting of theſe Purpoſes, whenever any further Steps ſhall appear to us to be neceſſary: at preſent it is the Opinion of the Houſe, that the laws now in being, duly executed would be fully ſufficient; and to add to the ſeverity of the proviſion made by them, without an apparent and very urgent Neceſſity, might put into the Hands of the Civil Magiſtrate a power that would be dangerous to the Rights and Liberties of the People.

When Complaints are made of Riots and Tumults, it is the Wiſdom of Government, and it becomes the Repreſentatives of the People eſpecially to inquire into the real Cauſes of them: If they ariſe from Oppreſſion, as is frequently the Caſe, a thorough Redreſs of Grievances will remove the cauſe, and probably put an end to the Complaint. It may juſtly be ſaid of the People of this Province, that they ſeldom if ever have aſſembled in a tumultuous Manner, unleſs they have been oppreſſed: it cannot be expected that a People accuſtomed to the Freedom of the Engliſh Conſtitution will be patient, while they are under the Hand of Tyranny and arbitrary Power: They will diſcover their reſentment in a manner which will naturally diſpleaſe their Oppreſſors; and in ſuch a Caſe, the ſevereſt Laws and the moſt rigorous Execution will be to little or no Purpoſe: The moſt effectual method to reſtore Tranquility would be to remove their burdens, and to puniſh all thoſe who have been the Procurers of their Oppreſſion.

Your Honor in your Meſſage has pointed us to an Inſtance, which you are pleaſed to call "a very diſorderly and riotous Tranſaction in the Town of Glouceſter": But we cannot think it conſiſtent with the Juſtice of this Houſe to come into Meaſures which may imply a cenſure upon individuals, much leſs upon a community hitherto unimpeached in point of good order; or even to form any Judgment upon the Matter, until more Light ſhall appear than the papers accompanying your Meſſage afford. The Houſe cannot eaſily conceive what ſhould determine your Honor ſo particularly to recommend this inſtance to the Conſideration of the aſſembly, while others of a much more heinous nature and dangerous tendency, have paſſed altogether unnoticed in your Meſſage; Your having received the information while the General court is ſitting, cannot alter its Nature and importance, or render it more or leſs neceſſary to be conſidered by the Legiſlature: The Inſtance, admitting it to be truly repreſented in all its aggravating Circumſtances, certainly cannot be more threatning to Government than thoſe Enormities which have been notoriouſly committed by the Soldiery of late; and in many inſtances have ſtrangely eſcaped Puniſhment, tho' repeated more than a ſecond time, and in defiance of the laws and authority of Government.

A military Force, if poſted among the People, without their expreſs Conſent, is itſelf one of the greateſt grievances, and threatens the total ſubverſion of a free conſtitution: Much more, if deſigned to execute a ſyſtem of corrupt and arbitrary Power, and even to exterminate the Liberties of the Country.—The Bill of Rights paſs'd immediately after the Revolution, expreſly declares, that "the raiſing and keeping a ſtanding Army within this province, in a Time of Peace, without the conſent of Parliament is againſt Law: & we take this Occaſion to ſay with Freedom, that the raiſing and keeping a ſtanding Army within this Province, in a Time of Peace, without the Conſent of the General Aſſembly, is equally againſt Law. Yet we have ſeen a Standing Army procured, poſted and kept within this Province, in a Time of profound Peace, not only without the conſent of the People, but againſt the Remonſtrance of both Houſes of Aſſembly! Such a ſtanding Army muſt be deſign'd to ſubjugate the People to arbitrary Meaſures: It is a moſt violent infraction of their natural and conſtitutional Rights; It is an unlawful Aſſembly of all others the moſt dangerous and alarming: And every inſtance of its actually reſtraining the Liberty of any individual, is a crime which infinitely exceeds what the Law intends by a Riot. Surely then, your Honor cannot think this Houſe can deſcend to the conſideration of matters comparatively trifling, while the capital of the province has ſo lately been in a ſtate of actual impriſonment, and the Government itſelf is under Dureſs. The fatal effects which will forever attend the keeping a ſtanding army within a civil Government, have been ſeverely felt in this province: They landed in an hoſtile Manner, and with all the Enſigns of Triumph! And your Honor muſt well remember that they early inveſted the Manufactory Houſe in Boſton; a capacious Building, occupied by a number of Families, whom they beſieg'd and impriſon'd. The extraordinary Endeavors of the Chief Juſtice of the Province, to procure the admiſſion of Troops into that Houſe in a manner plainly againſt Law, will not eaſily be eras'd from the Minds of this People: Surely your Honor could not be ſo fond of a Military Eſtabliſhment, as willingly to interpoſe in a Matter which might poſſibly come before you as a Judge: To what elſe can ſuch aſtoniſhing conduct be imputed, unleſs to a ſudden Surprize and the Terror of military Power in the Chief Juſtice of the Province, which evidently appear'd to have alſo arreſted the inferior Magiſtrate.

We ſhall not enlarge on the multiplied Outrages committed by this unlawful Aſſembly; in frequently aſſaulting his Majeſty's peaceable and loyal ſubjects; in beating and wounding the Magiſtrate when in the Execution of his Office; in reſcuing priſoners out of the hand of Juſtice; and finally, in perpetrating the moſt horrid Slaughter of a Number of inhabitants, but a few Days before the Sitting of this Aſſembly, which your honour muſt undoubtedly have heard of.—But, not the leaſt Notice of theſe outrageous Offences has been taken; nor can we find the moſt diſtant Hint of the late inhuman and barbarous Action, either in your Speech at the opening of the preſent Seſſion, or even in this Meſſage to both houſes. Theſe violences ſo frequently committed, added to the moſt rigorous and oppreſſive Proſecutions carried on by the Officers of the Crown againſt the Subjects, grounded upon unconſtitutional Acts, and in the Court of Admiralty, uncontroul'd by the Courts of common Law, have been juſtly alarming to the people.——

The Diſorder which your Honor ſo earneſtly recommends to the conſideration of the Aſſembly, very probable took its riſe from ſuch Provocations: the Uſe therefore which we ſhall make of the Information in your Meſſage ſhall be to inquire into the Grounds of the peoples uneaſineſs, and to ſeek a radical Redreſs of their Grievances. Indeed it is natural to expect, that while the terror of Arms continues in the Province, the Laws will in ſome degree be ſilent: But when the Channels of Juſtice ſhall be again opened, & the Law can be heard, the Perſon who has complained to your Honor, if he has truly repreſented his Caſe, will have his Remedy. We yet entertain hopes that the Military Power ſo grievous to the people, will ſoon be removed from the Province, to ſtations where it may better anſwer the Deſign for which it was originally rais'd. Till then, we have nothing to expect but that Tyranny and confuſion will ſtill prevail, in Defiance of the Laws of the Land, and the juſt and conſtitutional Authority of Government.

We cannot avoid before we conclude, to expreſs the deepeſt concern, that while the People are loudly complaining of intolerable Grievances, the General Aſſembly itſelf has juſt Reaſon to remonſtrate a violent and repeated infringement of their own Conſtitutional Rights; In order to avoid the moſt flagrant Impropriety of its being kept in a garriſoned Town it was the laſt Seſſion as it were, driven from its ancient and legal Seat; and even now it is held in this place at a diſtance from its offices and Records, and ſubject to the greateſt Inconveniences, without any neceſſity that we can conceive of the leaſt apparent Reaſon. Theſe alarming conſiderations have awakened and fix'd our attention; & your Honor cannot think we can very particularly attend to things of leſs Moment, within the Juriſdiction of the Executive Courts, at a time when in faithfulneſs to our Conſtituents, our Minds are neceſſarily employed in Matters which concern the very Being of the Conſtitution.

* * *

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 18.

WE intend oppoſing here the Ruſſian fleet, nineteen ſhips of war, eight of which are ready, and the reſt on the point of being built. The Ruſſian Reſident, with his retinue, is conducted to Demotica; and Count Potocki, with his, to Ruſzczyk.

Laſtezow, Feb 2. A courier from Moldavia has juſt brought to Count Romanzow advice that on the 18th ult. a body of 5000 Ruſſians had attacked near Fora 8000 Turks, of whom 3000 were left dead on the ſpot. This courier was charged with ſome valuable effects taken in this action from the Turks, ſome of which are for our General in Chief, and the others for the other Generals. We have no doubt that the Ruſſians will ſoon make themſelves maſters of the fortreſs of Brohilow; and that the Valachians will ſend Deputies to Peterſbourgh, to implore her Imperial Majeſty's protection.

LONDON.

Feb. 27. The Venus, Hamilton, from N. York to Dublin, is loſt near the Marks at Formby; the people are ſaved, except one man, who was ſtarved on board by cold: The cargo remains on board, but has been under water ſome days.

His Majeſty has appointed Francis Gabriel de Ruvynes, Eſq; to be a Major in America only.

Feb. 28. Tueſday the Supporters of the Bill of Rights dined at the London Tavern in Biſhopſgate ſtreet; Mr Serjeant Glynn in the chair, according to the choice of the laſt meeting. After dinner they examined into the ſtate of Mr. Wilkes's affairs, and came to the reſolution of removing every obſtacle which could poſſibly interfere with his enlargement at the expiration of his ſentence.

At the laſt meeting it is ſaid the amount of Mr. Wilkes's debts was reduced to about four thouſand pounds; and it further appeared that a Miniſterial agent has bought up ſixteen hundred pounds, which he is determined not to give a diſcharge for under twenty ſhillings in the pound.

Monday an expreſs was ſent off from the Admiralty Office, for Commodore Foreſt, Commander in Chief of the Leeward Iſlands ſquadron in the Weſt Indies.

Dummer Andrews Eſq; is appointed Regiſter of the Vice Admiralty Court lately eſtabliſhed at Charleſtown South Carolina.

The prevailing toaſt now upon the continent of America (which certainly ought to be adopted by all true friends to their country on this ſide the Atlantic) is, "May the King have his right, and none of his ſubjects a right to complain."

It is ſaid that a great conteſt has ariſen, within theſe few days, between two diſtinguiſhed Noblemen, in relation to the Government of Placentia in Newfoundland, vacant by the death of Otho Hamilton, Eſq;—Lord B—— having appointed one of his friends to that important poſt, and Lord H—— having preſented it to another; and we hear both the Gentlemen are ſtrenuouſly ſupported by their different patrons.

March 3. A celebrated foreign politician makes the following ſtriking remark upon the Engliſh Conſtitution: The laws, (ſays he) do not indicate, with proper perſpicuity and explicitneſs how far the rights of each of the three legiſlative powers extend: There are three things in England without any known limits; the King's prerogative; the liberties of the people; and the privileges of the Parliament. This, of courſe, muſt ſometimes make the Government vague and unſtable, and bring on confuſion: for how natural is it and it has more than once been actually the caſe, that the King, the people, and the Parliament, having no determined limits, ſhould be for extending their reſpective prerogatives, liberties and privileges, to an improper length. The conſequences of ſuch attempts have been violent conteſts and parties, which have divided the nation, and produced innumerable evils inteſtine wars, and revolutions.

The trade of the Colonies is really the trade of Great Britain herſelf; the profits thereof center here: It is one grand ſource from whence money ſo plentifully flows into the hand of the ſeveral manufacturers, and from thence into the coffers of landholders thro'out this kingdom; It is, in ſhort, the ſtrongeſt chain of connection between Britain and her Colonies. The embarraſſments, difficulties & inſupportable burdens under which this trade has laboured, have already made the Americans prudent frugal, and induſtrious; and ſuch a ſpirit in the Coloniſts, muſt ſoon, very ſoon enable them to ſubſiſt without the manufactures of Great-Britain, the trade of which, as well as its naval power, has been greatly promoted and ſtrengthened by the luxury of the Colonies; conſequently any meaſures that have a tendency to injure, obſtruct, and diminiſh the American trade and navigation, muſt have the ſame effect upon that of Great-Britain, and, in all probability, prove her ruin.

We are aſſured that Lord North has had the happineſs ſince he has been at the head of affairs, to give great ſatisfaction to both parties, by his candid and ſpirited conduct.

A CARD.

OLD England ſends her bleſſings to her ſons, the Agents and Advocates for N. America, conjuring them by all they hold dear and ſacred to themſelves and to their poſterity, to act as it becomes them—with firmneſs—yet with decency, upon the approaching important occaſion; and if they aſk nothing inconſiſtent with a parent's juſtice to herſelf—or tenderneſs to her other children to grant, they may ſafely rely upon her protection and favor. The mode of their prayer will either increaſe or leſſen the number of their relations—who wiſh to join them in a hymn of praiſe and thankſgiving—rather than to ſee them cloathed with ſackcloth and aſhes. Be wiſe in time.

LONDON.

March 8. Yeſterday at half after eleven the Sheriffs attended at St. James, to know his Majeſty's pleaſure when he would be waited on with the City addreſs Remonſtrance, and Petition; they waited till twenty minutes after two, when the levee being over, they with the Remembrancer, were admitted into the cloſet, when Mr. Sheriff Townſend addreſſed himſelf to his Majeſty in the following words:

'May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

'By order of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Livery, of the City of London, in Common hall aſſembled, we took the earlieſt opportunity as was our duty, to wait upon your Majeſty; and being prevented by one of your Majeſty's houſhold, who informed us, that it was your Majeſty's pleaſure to receive us this day, wait on your Majeſty humbly to know when your Majeſty will pleaſe to be attended with an humble Addreſs, Remonſtrance, and Petition.'

To which his Majeſty was pleaſed to return the following Anſwer,

'As the caſe is entirely new, I will take time to conſider of it, and tranſmit you an anſwer by one of my principal Secretaries of State.'

The Addreſs Remonſtrance, and Petition of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, Common Council, and Livery of the City of London, in Common Hall aſſembled, read by the Town Clerk in Guildhall on Tueſday.

To the KING's Moſt Excellent Majeſty.

"May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

"WE have already in our Petition dutifully repreſented to your Majeſty the chief injuries we have ſuſtained. We are unwilling to believe that your Majeſty can ſlight the deſires of your people, or be regardleſs of their affection, and deaf to their complaints; yet their complaints remain unanſwered; their injuries are confirmed; and the only Judge whom the Revolution has left removable at the pleaſure of the Crown, has been diſmiſſed from his high office for defending in parliament the law and the conſtitution. We therefore venture once more to addreſs ourſelves to your Majeſty as to the father of your people, as to him who muſt be both able and willing to redreſs our grievances; and we repeat our application with the greater propriety, becauſe we ſee the inſtruments of our wrongs, who have carried into execution the meaſures of which we complain, more particularly diſtinguiſhed by your Majeſty's royal bounty and favour.

"Under the ſame ſecret malignant influences, which, through each ſucceſſive adminiſtration has defeated every good, and ſuggeſted every bad intention, the majority of the —— of —— have deprived your people of their deareſt rights.

They have done a deed, more ruinous in its conſequences than the levying of ſhip money by Charles the Firſt, or the diſpenſing power aſſumed by James the Second: A deed which muſt vitiate all the future proceedings of this ——; for the Acts of the Legiſlature itſelf can no more be valid without a legal —— of ——, than without a legal Prince upon the Throne.

"Rep——s of the people are eſſential to the making of laws; and there is a time when it is morally demonſtrable that men ceaſe to be r——s. That time is now arrived. The preſent —— of —— do not rep——nt the people. We owe to your Majeſty an obedience, under the reſtrictions of the laws, for the calling and duration of Parliaments; and your Majeſty owes to us, that our repreſentation, free from the force of arms or corruption, ſhould be preſerved to us in them.

"It was for this we ſucceſsfully ſtruggled under James the Second; for this we ſeated, and have faithfully ſupported your Majeſty's Family on the Throne.

"The people have been invariably uniform in their object; though the different mode of attack has called for a different defence.

"Under James the ſecond they complain'd that the ſitting of P——t was interrupted, becauſe it was not corruptly ſubſervient enough to his deſigns. We complain now, that the ſitting of this —— is not interrupted, becauſe it is corruptly too ſubſervient to the deſigns of your Majeſty's miniſters. Had the —— under James the Second been as ſubmiſſive to his commands, as it is at this day to the dictates of a miniſter, inſtead of clamours for its meeting, the nation would have rung, as now, with outcries for its diſſ——n. The forms of the Conſtitution, like thoſe of Religion, were not eſtabliſhed for the form's ſake, but for the ſubſtance. And we call God and men to witneſs, that as we do not owe our liberty to thoſe nice and ſubtle diſtinctions, which places and penſions, and lucrative employments have invented; ſo neither will we be cheated of it by them: but as it was gained by the ſtern virtue of our anceſtors, by the virtue of their deſcendants, it ſhall be preſerved.

"Since, therefore, the miſdeeds of your Majeſty's miniſters in violating the freedom of E——n, and depraving the noble conſtitution of P——t are notorious, as well ſubverſive of the fundamental laws and liberties of this realm; and ſince your Majeſty, both in honour and juſtice, is obliged inviolably to preſerve them, according to the oath made to God and your ſubjects at your coronation; We your remonſtrants aſſure ourſelves that your Majeſty will reſtore the conſtitutional government and quiet of your people, by d—— this P——, and removing thoſe evil miniſters for ever from your councils."

LONDON, March 10. 1770.

Lord Chatham in his Speech on Friday laſt, the 2d of March inſtant obſerved, "That he would tell the warmeſt friends of America, that they had gone too great lengths, and puſhed matters much too far. How far they intended to proceed, he was at a loſs to determine, but thus much he would aſſert, and abide by, that if America was determined to ſet at defiance all the acts of trade and navigation of this country, they would not be able to find in this kingdom a more determined oppoſer."

On Friday during the debates on the neceſſity of augmenting the navy, in a certain great aſſembly, there was the moſt ſpirited ſpeaking known a great while, praticularly by Lord S——k and the E. of C——m. This laſt nobleman obſerved in the ſupport of the meaſure, "What a lamentable ſtate this oppreſſed nation was reduced to; that its internal rights were not only openly violated, and trampled on, but her conſequence in the connection ſhe ſtood to Europe, ſuffered to droop and languiſh—that conſequence, which a few years ago gave her the authority of dictating to the Belligerant powers of the world. We are now, ſays he, debating on affairs of ſo conſtitutional a texture, of ſuch ſelf-evident policy, that only conſidering our ſituation merely as an iſland, it is amazing how the utility of an augmentation can be conteſted; but when we add, the many recent inducements we have had beſides; ſuch as the reduction of Corſica by the French, the increaſe of their marine, and the general reform made in all their military departments, it becomes a perfect phænomenon." He concluded his oration, which laſted above an hour, in the following remarkable words: "And though this affair, my Lords, ſeems to be ſo unſettled amongſt us, as to become a ſubject of debate, whether we ſhall put on the armour of defence or not, (a queſtion, at worſt, if carried in the affirmative which cannot be conſidered but as an act of prudence) I do pledge myſelf to this Right Hon. Houſe, for the truth of what I am going to aſſert, that, at this very hour that we are ſitting together, there has been a blow of hoſtility ſtruck againſt us, by our old inveterate enemies the French, in ſome part of the world."

BOSTON, April 30.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in London dated the begining of Feb. 1770.

AS to publick affairs, the Miniſtry are tottering—Duke of Grafton reſign'd, but ſupports the ſame deſpotic ſyſtem. Lord North made firſt Lord of the Treaſury, and continues alſo Chancellor of the Exchequer.——Lord Chatham, laſt night when debating on the ſtate of the Nation, was great indeed, I might ſay divine—He told the Houſe that they might, they ought to preſerve this Conſtitution from farther violation; they might by eſpouſing the cauſe of the injur'd people effectually reſtore to them their laſt privilege, (meaning the Middleſex Election,) and that it was their duty to ſupport the conſtitution with conſtitutional weapons, and prevent the neceſſity of the people's appeal to Heaven——He told them, that he with a few of his friends were not aſhamed to ſtand forth the profeſſed Champions for the injured Freeholders; that he from day to day, from ſeſſion to ſeſſion, from year to year, while his life remained, ſtand, and remain the unalterable advocate for them; that he was fix'd in his reſolution to proteſt (if thoſe of his opinion were unhappily a minority) againſt the proceedings; that the proteſt ſhould be ſent thro' the whole Kingdom, that the people might ſee a few of the Lords of the Realm were ready to ſhare their fate and if neceſſary, riſe with them into open oppoſition.—Such greatneſs, ſuch eloquence ſurely never met together in one man—He has many foibles; but he is a human creature——He, not many days ſince, declared himſelf ready to unite with any ſet of men who would readily endeavour to promote harmony, peace and concord, but that if the conſtitution was not ſoon repair'd; if ſome thing was not done ſpeedily to redreſs the people, he wiſh'd to ſee diſcord go forth; and that the people might try the experiment, whether they were ſtronger than the Tools of a diſpotic Miniſtry.——The Lord Chancellor has openly join'd Lord Chatham in this oppoſition——Lord Shelbourne is a real friend to America; his reſignation was owing to his holding ſentiments too favorable for the repeal of the duties on certain articles in the late revenue act only, without the leaſt demand for the removal of the Commiſſioners: nor can they be brought to take a large ground ſo that future applications might with propriety be made in the like manner; whereas, I humbly conceive, it was the duty of the London Merchants to acquaint Parliament, that the Commerce of America can never be reſtored, or fix'd on a firm and reſpectable footing, while the operation of any revenue Laws exiſts in America.——

Meſſ. Green & Watſon.

Pleaſe to inſert the following, and a number of your readers will be obliged.

WHile the merchants in our chief towns, are ſacrificing their intereſt for the good of America: we cant but be aſtoniſhed, to ſee a few ſo ſtupid to the good of their country, as to neglect manufacturing their own cloaths. While theſe noble ſons of liberty, the merchants, have reſolved not to import goods from Europe, why does not every one among us join with theſe patriots, to preſerve the liberties of America; by manufacturing their own cloaths ſince 'tis ſo much cheaper? Lately was purchaſed a ſmall quantity of wool, which was made into cloth, which coſt 4/9 hap per yd. it was half as wide as broad cloth, had it been as wide as broad cloth, the coſt muſt have been no more than 9/7 per yd. a yard of which is tho't by good judges, to be equal in all reſpects to broad cloth at 18s. per yd. in the country ſhops. We hope this may influence the daughters of liberty, to cloath their families the following winter, from the ſoft fleece.

This Is to requeſt all perſons that have any demand againſt Mrs. Ann Morſon (late of Hartford deceas'd) Capt. Geo. Smith and John Walker, as they were executors of the laſt will and teſtament, of Dr. Normand Moriſon late of Hartford deceas'd: to bring in their accounts againſt either, or all, of us as executors aforeſaid, unto Capt. George Smith in Hartford, or John Walker in Bolton, the only ſerving executors, by the firſt day of June next, in order for ſettlement. JOHN WALKER.

Hartford, May 1. 1770

Wanted Immediately.

A Perſon that can be well recommended, to take the care of a ſmall FARM, in the new country, by Connecticut river, for ſix months, and a very generous reward will be given.——Inquire of the PRINTERS.

STRAYED or Stolen, from the Subſcriber, out of the South Meadow in Hartford, ſometime about December laſt, a black Horſe COLT, three years old coming, branded with I. C. on the left thigh, trots all, middling ſize.——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Colt, and ſend word to the ſubſcriber, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JOSEPH CHURCH.

Hartford, May 5.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon. Judge of probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Auguſtus Steely, late of Hartford deceas'd (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice that we ſhall attend that buſineſs, on the firſt Mondays in October and November, and on the third Monday in Jan next, at the Dwelling-Houſe of the deceas'd, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, on each of ſaid days.

Benjamin Colton, }
George Kellogg } Commiſſioners

Hartford, April 22.

HARTFORD, May 7.

Laſt Night about 11 o'Clock, departed this Life, in the 47th Year of his Age, Mr. Richard Edwards, of this Town.

TO BE SOLD BY

Philip Mortimer,

O. Middletown, ſundry pieces of Land, viz.

One piece or parcel

Lying in Eaſt Windſor, containing 98 acres, 18 of which is choice meadow, the other wood land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Weſt on the country road, north on land belonging to Mr. Ellſworth, eaſt partly on Scantick river, and ſouth on a highway.——TWO other pieces lying in Weathersfield, containing about twenty acres, being choice paſture land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſt on land of James Mitchel's, weſt on land of Gerſhom Nott's, ſouth partly on land of Moſes Deming's, and partly on James Curtiſs's land, and north on Moſes Deming's.—THE other piece containing about ſix acres, butted eaſt on land of Moſes Deming, weſt on land of Francies Hanmor, north partly on land belonging to Gerſhom Nott, and partly on James Curtiſs's, and ſouth partly on land belonging to Thomas Wells, and partly on Francies Hanmors land.——ONE other piece lying in Middletown, containing thirty acres, conſiſting of plow land, paſture and meadow land, butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſterly on land of the heirs of Daniel Merwin, weſterly on land of Juſtus Webſter, north on land of Joſeph Baros, and ſouth on land of Miles Merwin. For further particulars enquire of ſaid Mortimer.

277 np 3m.

CASH given for clean Cotten and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

Hartford, April 27 1770.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon. judge of probate for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners to receive & examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Moſes Williams, late of Hartford deceas'd, (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the houſe of Daniel Pitkin, innholder in ſaid Hartford, on the laſt tueſdays of May, June, July and Sept. next, from two to ſix o'clock afternoon on each of ſaid days.

Jonathon Stanly,
Daniel Pitkin. } Commiſſioners.

The ſubſcriber takes this method to inform the public, that he has removed with his family from Connecticut to Albany, and keeps a public houſe a little way weſt from the City Hall, in the houſe where Thompſon formerly kept a tavern, adjoining the houſe where Sawyer and Aſhburn formerly kept an Engliſh Tavern. If any perſons from New-England will oblige him with their cuſtom, may depend upon having civil treatment, and as reaſonable as any in the city.

Eliſha Benedict.

N. B. My Sign is John Wilkes, Eſq.

T. Hopkins,

HAS juſt receiv'd a freſh Aſſortment of Engliſh Goods, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable Terms, at his Store, oppoſite the North Meeting-Houſe Hartford.

N. B. He has likewiſe for Sale good Bohea Tea, Indigo and Coffee.

This is to give public Notice, That

KNIGHT SEXTON,

(Near the Great Bridge in Hartford)

WILL have in Readineſs for the Subſcribers, the Piece written by the Rev Samuel Langdon, D. D of Portſmouth in New-Hampſhire, againſt Mr. Sandeman, at the Time of the next General Election in this Town. It is likely a conſiderable Number of Sets of this late Publication may be purchaſed at the ſame Time, by ſome that are not Signers. At the ſame Place may be had a Variety of other Books.

THE Subſcriber intending to open School ſoon, deſires his Cuſtomers to ſend their Children into his Houſe, the Week after the Election; for he will be ready to ſerve them then.

ISAAC BULL.

Litchfield, April 28, 1770.

P.S. Strangers may depend on good Uſage.

RUN away from his Maſter, Nicholas Brown, on the Night after the 22d Inſtant, an Apprentice Boy named James Robinſon, about 18 Years of Age, about 5 Feet 4 Inches high, wears his own brown Hair, dark Complexion, looks down, ſpeaks grum. Had on when he went away a light colour'd homeſpun mix'd Coat, commonly called Pepper and Salt, a ſtriped Waiſtcoat, light colour'd Breeches, a Pair of Calf ſkin Pumps. He ſtole and carried with him two Books of Leaf Gold. Whoever ſhall take up and return ſaid Boy to his Maſter, ſhall have Ten Shillings Reward, paid by

NICHOLAS BROWN.

N. B. All maſters of Veſſels are forbid carrying off ſaid boy, as they muſt anſwer the conſequences at their peril.

Hartford, April 30, 1770.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY;

AS an apprentice to a Chaiſe and Harneſs maker in Hartford, a likely LAD, about 12 or 14 years of Age.——Enquire of the PRNTERS.

TO BE SOLD BY

James Tiley,

GOLDSMITH, at his Shop, juſt below Meſſ. Lathrop & Smith's Store in King-Street Hartford.

CYPHER'd and Brilliant Stone Ear-Rings ſet in Gold, ditto in Silver, Cypher'd and Brilliant Stone Buttons, Stone Rings, and Stone Lockets, with a variety of other Articles.

WHereas on the 23d of inſtant April, one Steele as he call'd his name, a ſtranger, ſlim fellow European born, about twenty years old, of a thin viſage, has had the ſmall pox, had on a blue coat, trim'd with flower'd braſs buttons, with a cape, a lightiſh colour'd jacket and breeches, wore his hair——Came to the houſe of the ſubſcriber in Hartford, and rode a large bay horſe, about nine years old, paces and trots well, white face and two hind feet, no brand, his off fore hough ſp'it from the hair to the toe of his foot, bro't a ſaddle and bridle with ſaid horſe——Said fellow pretended to be a traveller——After he had tarried a day or two, in the night ſeaſon, he broke open my deſk and ſtole from thence about twenty ſhillings in caſh, and ſundry articles of goods out of my houſe, and then ran off. After purſuing him ſometime, I recovered ſaid horſe, but the thief eſcaped. And as this horſe ſaddle and bridle is ſuppoſed to be ſtolen, whoever ſhall appear to make out a juſt claim to the ſame, may have them again upon ſatisfying the ſubſcriber, and paying the charge of this advertiſement.

JOHN STEELE.

Hartford, April 27, 1770.

AT the deſire of a number of gentlemen belonging to the company of military adventurers, that a meeting of ſaid company may be called and held, at ſome ſuitable time and place. Theſe are therefore according to ſaid deſire, to warn and give notice, to all the gentlemen members of ſaid company, in theſe and the neighbouring colonies, that they meet together by themſelves, or their agents, at the court houſe in Hartford, in the colony of Connecticut, on Thurſday the 24th day of May, at 9 o'clock in the morning, then and there to conſider of, and act upon ſuch matters as may then be laid before ſaid meeting, relative to the affairs of ſaid company, more eſpecially to conſider of, and act upon the following matters, viz.

1. To inquire what monies have been ſupplied to General Lyman, and what return any of the ſaid company, either as a committee or a private perſon, have received from him during his reſidence in Great-Britain.

2. To receive and examine the accounts of Capt. John Coleman late of Hartford deceas'd, who was heretofore by ſaid company, choſen their treaſurer, and acted as ſuch till his death; and to chooſe ſome other perſon to act in that capacity for the future, who may alſo if needful, ſettle ſaid Colemans accounts.

3. To appoint a committee who may be inſtructed to write to General Lyman, to inform the company of what he has already done, or what proſpects he has of doing or obtaining any thing for the advantage of ſaid company. To call on thoſe gentlemen who were appointed a committee, to receive the ſubſcriptions of thoſe who entered themſelves of ſaid company, to ſettle their accounts of the ſame, and pay over ſuch ſum or ſums of money, as may ſtill remain in their hands, to the treaſurer that ſhall be appointed in order that the ſame may be applied for the benefit of the company, either by forwarding the ſame to General Lyman, or otherwiſe, as the company ſhall direct.

4th. Thoſe gentlemen who have any books or papers that properly belong to, or may be thought to be of ſervice to ſaid company are deſired to bring or ſend the ſame to ſaid meeting, that they be lodg'd in the hands of the Clerk of ſaid company for their uſe and benefit.

5th. To tax ſaid company to raiſe ſuch ſums as may be thought needful, to advance the future intereſt of ſaid company, and do and tranſact any other buſineſs proper for ſaid meeting.

DANIEL SHELDON,
Clerk for ſaid Company.

Hartford, 20th April, 1770.

STrayed or Stolen from the ſubſcriber at Litchfield, a brown or browniſh red Mare three years old, ſhod before, paces and trots, branded with 9 on her fore ſhoulder. Whoever will bring Mare and Thief (if ſtolen) or Mare if ſtrayed, ſhall be well rewarded for the trouble and pains, by

DAVID BEECH.

Litchfield, 20 April.

MONDAY, MAY 14, 1770. Numb 281.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the Freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

CAMBRIDGE, April 28.

On Thurſday laſt his honor the Lieutenant Governor was pleaſed to direct the Secretary of the Province to read to the houſe of Repreſentatives in their own Chamber the following Meſſage——A Copy of which the Secretary laid on the Table; and then by Order of his honor, he declared the Great and General Court to be Diſſolved.

Gentlemen of the houſe of Repreſentatives,

ON the 7th Inſtant I received a Letter from James Davis, Eſq; a juſtice of peace for the county of Eſſex, informing me of a riot in the town of Glouceſter, and of a high handed and cruel aſſault and battery upon one Jeſſe Savil. This Letter was accompanied with a Petition from the ſaid Jeſſe Savil, and another petition from ſeveral of the Inhabitants of Glouceſter complaining of this riot, all which I laid before the Council for their advice——The Council being informed that ſome of the perſons complained of had been convicted of the like Offence in June laſt, at the Superior Court held at Ipſwich, adviſed me to lay the Papers before the Houſe of Repreſentatives. The Secretary carried them down, and I ſent a ſhort meſſage to you at the ſame time. Had you paſſed over this meſſage without any notice, or had you only ſignified to me that you thought the Laws in being ſufficient for preventing riots, you would have heard nothing more from me upon the ſubject. But under colour of anſwering my meſſage you have ſent me a long remonſtrance, a very ſmall part of which can with any propriety be ſaid to be an anſwer to the meſſage I ſent you. You charge me with endeavouring, as Chief Juſtice in the year 1768, to procure the admiſſion of troops into the manufactory houſe, in a manner plainly againſt law. This is a heavy charge, but it is highly injurious, and without the leaſt foundation. As I am informed the clerk of the houſe has already furniſhed one of the Printers with a copy of your remonſtrance, I am obliged in order to prevent or remove the obloquy which muſt otherwiſe lie upon me, to relate circumſtances of the affair you refer to. The Governor had for ſome days been endeavouring to prevail on the Council to join with him in providing quarters for the troops: at length the Council adviſed that a Houſe belonging to the Province ſhould be cleared, in part whereof one Mr. Brown remained a tenant at ſufferance and into other parts whereof certain perſons, ſome of them of bad fame, had intruded. The Governor had been informed that theſe people had been inſtigated to keep poſſeſſion of the Houſe by force, notwithſtanding the advice of Council. On Wedneſday the 19th of October, he deſired me, to go to the houſe and acquaint the People with the vote or advice of Council, and to warn them of the conſequences of their refuſal to conform to it, and he ſaid he thought it probable they might be prevailed on to remove, and all further trouble would be prevented. The Sheriff was directed to attend me, I went and acquainted Mr. Brown with the determination of the Governor and Council, and told him that in my opinion they had the authority of government in the receſs of the General Court, to direct in what manner the Houſe ſhould be improved, and adviſed and required him to remove without giving any further trouble; he replied that without a vote of the whole General Court he would not quit the Houſe. I told him he made himſelf liable for the damage which might be cauſed by his refuſal, and he and his abettors muſt anſwer for the conſequences. I remember that two perſons were in the Houſe and whilſt I was ſpeaking to Mr. Brown came into the yard. One of theſe perſons, whoſe name I afterwards found to be Young, intereſting himſelf in the buſineſs. I aſked him what concern he had in the affair? his reply was, that he came there as a witneſs——Nothing material paſſed further nor was any thing ſaid of my appearing as Chief Juſtice. I returned to the Governor, and informed him of the refuſal of the people to quit the Houſe; and upon his aſking my opinion what was the next proper ſtep, I acquainted him that the Superior Court was to be held at Cambridge the Tueſday following, and that I thought it adviſeable to let the affair reſt, and I would then conſult with the other Juſtices of the Court upon it. I ſuppoſed it would reſt accordingly, and went the ſame day to my Houſe in the country, where I remained until Friday, when I came again to Town, and then was firſt informed that the Sheriff had entered the Houſe by force. I do not remember any ſort of attempt by the Sheriff, to take poſſeſſion of the Houſe by force whilſt I was preſent. Your meſſage is drawn in ſuch a manner, as to lead the reader to think, that what you call the beſieging and impriſoning theſe families in the manufactory houſe, and my appearing there with the ſheriff, were parts of one and the ſame action; and that the latter preceded the former. The leaſt I can ſay is, that it was incautious and unkind in you to receive and ſuffer to be publiſhed for truth, upon ſuch ſlight evidence, what moſt certainly is not true, and to charge me with illegality, when no part of my conduct upon that occaſion was illegal, or in any degree unwarrantable or out of character.

Your examining into my actions before I came to the Chair, muſt raiſe a very ſtrong preſumption that you have nothing material to alledge againſt me ſince that time; for my nonfeſance in not laying before you facts notorious thro'out the province, and into which a due enquiry was making in a regular way, can never juſtly be imputed to me as a fault; and though you profeſs your diſlike of ſitting at Cambridge, yet when you conſider that I can ſee nothing in the Conſtitution of the government, nor in law to make it neceſſary for the court to meet at any uncertain place, and that I know it is his Majeſty's pleaſure I ſhould meet you at Cambridge, I flatter myſelf you will concur with me in opinion, that I am under obligations to hold the Court there; eſpecially if you attend to my commiſſion, which has been publiſhed and is of record; for in expreſs words I am authorized and impowered to exerciſe and perform all and ſingular the powers and authorities contained in the commiſſion, to the governor, according to ſuch inſtructions as are already ſent, or hereafter ſhall from time to time, be ſent to him, or as I ſhall receive from his Majeſty. Your exception therefore, if it has any grounds, ought to be made to the commiſſion, and not to my acts in the due execution of it.

There are no other parts of your remonſtrance which can with any propriety be applied to me; they extend much farther, to the authority of the King and of the Parliament. I can foreſee no advantage can ariſe from my engaging in a controverſy with you upon theſe points. I have induſtriouſly avoided it. I have avoided giving you any occaſion for it, I wiſh you had avoided ſeeking the occaſion. It is incumbent on me to tranſmit this remonſtrance to be laid before his Majeſty, [illegible] the other proceedings of the Seſſion: I ſhall do it without any Comment: It needs none.

T. HUTCHINSON.

Council-Chamber,
Cambridge, 26 April, 1770.

LONDON.

Extract of a letter from Edingburgh, Mar. 2.

"MR. Campbell has engroſſed all our converſation for ſome time paſt. He certainly will be remembered as a very extraordinary man. On Tueſday evening he received ſentence of death with a compoſure and reſolution that aſtoniſhed every one who ſaw him. When he was carried back to the priſon he appeared not at all diſconcerted; on the contrary he took an inventory of ſome things belonging to him, converſed in his uſual way, and drank a glaſs very chearfully. He was ſeen to ſtrip and go to bed, before the door of his room was locked upon him. Yeſterday morning the Rev. Mr. Roſs went to the priſon about nine o'clock to enquire for him, but upon his door being open he was found hanging, quite dead. It was expected that he would take this method to avoid the ſhame of being brought to the gallows, but that he would not have done it ſo ſoon. It is ſaid that the reaſon for being ſo haſty was, that he underſtood he was the very next day to be put in irons and cloſely confined."

A curious queſtion aroſe with regard to the diſpoſal of his body. His ſentence was to be hanged on the 11th of April, and his body there-after to be given to Dr. Monro for diſſection. Now as he had effectually prevented the execution of the firſt part of his ſentence, how could that part of it conſequent to the 11th of April take place? It was argued, that his having committed ſuicide, and a ſufficient cauſe for his body; and that ar-per-takers are actually engaged for that purpoſe.

The following is a genuine letter from Mungo Campbell, to an intimate friend.

"You tell me, my friend and fellow ſoldier, it is the opinion of the ableſt lawyers, that I muſt ſuffer. You are my friend indeed! You know the very temper of my ſoul, and hate a flattering thought! what indignity to a man's mind to be ſoothed with all the little pleaſing hopes that might ſupport a woman!! If I am to meet misfortune, let her wear her blackeſt garment firſt! You aſk me how my mind ſtands? Perfectly tranquil. It was my misfortune to be thrown into that unhappy ſituation, where the great laws of nature run counter to thoſe of ſociety. But though the force of the former proved, unfortunately for me, ſtronger than thoſe of the latter, yet my ſoul is unconſcious of murder. Had I never fallen, and had Lord Eglington never attempted to go round me, (with an intention as I thought, to over power me, and ſeize my arms) I never would have fired till he had proceeded to violence: But his rank, which ever ought to uſe its inferiors with gentleneſs; the ſuperiority of his ſtrength put in competition with an old man; the number of his attendants; and the perturbation of mind my fall occaſioned— I ſay, theſe added to the moſt mortifying of all inſults, the perſiſting to demand, and force my arms, will, to a mind like your's that never brooked affront, eaſily account for the accident. Had he asked me to pluck my heart out and lay it in his hand, it might been done; but to give up my arms, it was impoſſible! Woe to the man who firſt ſaid to his fellow creature, Yield up your arms! The dignity of human nature did ſurely never warm his breaſt. Bone down as I am, even now, with age, infirmities, and misfortunes, my ſoul revolts at the idea! To cold blooded caſuiſts, who can make diſtinctions between the diſgrace of giving up one's arms, and cowardice, I have nothing to ſay; no fire can warm their ſouls to the feelings of a man! They were not born in a country, where even to be ſuſpected of cowardice, is to be deteſted; they were not bred in camps to a profeſſion, where it is infamy indelible; they never received from the hands of a dying father, the weapons of his defence.—— "Take theſe, my ſon, they are all I have to give; they have been thy father's fortune, and may be thine; part with your life, but never part with theſe." But why do I thus idly talk to you whoſe ſoul has long been warmed with that celeſtial fire that dignifies mankind! bear with my weakneſs, and I will not detain you long. It has been ſaid that in other countries I would be acquitted; I do not believe it. The laws of all ſocieties are made, and wiſely made, to counteract that ſtrong impulſe of nature to be ſelf righted. If I have tranſgreſſed thoſe laws, I muſt pay the forfeit. They know but little of me, who think I either wiſh or mean to beg life. Ignominy! Ignominy! my friend, is what alone I wiſh to ſhun——and what I will ſhun. If no other means are to be deviſed remember it is from your friendly hand that laſt obligation is expected by

Tolbooth, Feb 24 M. C.

It is confidently reported at the Weſt end of the town, that the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, Common Council, &c. will be permitted to wait on his Majeſty with the Remonſtrance, eſpecially as the diſſenting part of the Aldermen and Liverymen are determined to preſent a Proteſt to the throne diametrically oppoſite to the ſentiments therein contained; but that the day their preſenting it will be kept as ſecret as poſſible, to avoid ſuch kind of treatment as the Addreſſers lately met with.

It is reported that there were very warm debates on Wedneſday, in a great though private meeting, relative to the receiving or rejecting the Remonſtrance, which was not then determined; but that the point was expected to be ſettled yeſterday, and an anſwer ſent to the Lord Mayor.

LONDON, March 10, 1770.

The WHISPERER. [No. IV.]

BRITONS, awake! ariſe! at the voice of liberty, of truth and nature: This voice is ſounding through ENGLAND; and muſt be heard. Break the chains, which bind and diſgrace you; CHAINS, that have been forged by tyranny, upon the anvil of impoſture.

AFTER the k— had cloſeted, and prevailed on Mr. Y—e to accept the ſeals, he ſent immediately for the D— of G— and upon his entering the room; ran eagerly to him and ſaid, with an exulting kind of Joy, G——n, "I have done what all of you could not do, I have ſent for Y—e, he has been here, and carried away the ſeals with him." Then, Sir we are ſafe, replied the proſtituted D—e, and ſhall be able to carry every thing agreeable to your Will; there will be nothing wanting now, but a reſolution in your M—— to ſupport at all events the preſent min—ry. They both gloried in the venal acquiſition; and the k— told him he would; in ſpite of all oppoſition; even at the riſque of his C——n and L——e.

The P——ſs D——s of W—— was immediately made acquainted with the great power, firmneſs, and reſolution of her ſon, and almoſt fainted with exceſs of joy. The k— ſaw her two or three hours after, when ſhe expreſſed her approbation of what he had done, in theſe ſignificant words— G——e you are now worthy of being called my ſon. In this manner the k—, his M——r and their Min—rs, glory in their in——y, and ſeem determined to ſupport at the riſque of their own ſecurity; and the peace of the Engliſh nation, the arbitrary and deſpotic meaſures they have adopted. Lord —— G——n was too honeſt for their purpoſe, he was violently forced out of his office; and the k—— corrupted the integrety of Mr. Y——e before he could be prevailed upon to ſucceed him. The complaints and grievances of the People are not thought worthy the k——'s notice, he acts by the advice of his M——r, and ſhe inſiſts upon it that he ſhall treat them with the contempt they deſerve. Nay, ſhe has even uſed threats; and explain to him the conſequence of complying with the requeſts of the people, after he had been previouſly conſulted upon the Mid——x E——n, and paſſed his word, that he would ſupport the Min—try in it. She told him, if he gave way to theſe clamours; he would certainly be deſerted by thoſe who meant to ſtand by him, and by that means make himſelf appear infamous in the eyes of the world; and as for her ſhe ſhould ever hold him in the greateſt contempt.

The flattering tongue of this infernal Hecate, has artfully inſinuated itſelf into the favour of her ſon, (through his w—k—ſs) and by falſe lights drawn him into meaſures, and conceſſions, derogatory to the honor of his C——n, and ruinous both to his family and to his ſubjects: but he muſt be very deficient in capacity, either as a ruler, or a rational creature, ſhould he continue deaf to the remonſtrances of a people who are the origin of his power, the ſource of his riches, and the natural defence of his perſon, crown and dignity: and become like Richard the Second who risked the affections of his ſubjects, and brought his dominions into contempt, by ſupporting or conniving at the proceedings of Lord Chancellor Poole, Chief Juſtice Treſilian, and the Duke of Ireland: a wretched Miniſtry! men raiſed from mean eſtates by ſpecial favour, and advanced to the degree of Privy Counſellors. Men of venal and corrupt Principles, and infected with the inſatiable itch of avarice, they deſpiſed the ſovereign under whoſe authority they acted; neglecting the intereſt of the nation; exhauſted the public treaſure, and almoſt totally enſlaved the people.

When theſe things were openly diſcovered; it was not the deep intrenchment of the Privy council, nor thoſe batteries, masked by the authority of the captivated King, that could defend them againſt the righteous lips of a Periſhing nation. Are the ſame proceedings in G——e the T——d and his Miniſters, to paſs unnoticed, and the nation to be enſlaved, at this day. Forbid it Heaven. The complaints of the people muſt be heard, their grievances muſt be redreſſed; if not, the Crown of England muſt expire under the miſeries of anarchy; or the Liberties of the People periſh in the gulph of arbitary power.

If the K— would peruſe, and ſeriouſly conſider the reigns of his predeceſſors, and the reigns of all former princes, he would clearly diſcern, that thoſe placed their confidence in the affections of their people, and governed according to the eſtabliſhed Laws of the land, were ever the moſt proſperous and happy; and that thoſe who through their own miſtaken notions of government; or through the ſeducement of wicked miniſters, (or wicked mothers) in order to eſcape the puniſhment due to their crimes, contended for an arbitary power, and put their truſt in mercenary troops, were always unhappy, inglorious, and infamous.

Let the K— look back to the time of Edward the Third, he will there ſee the miſeries which attended that brave Prince in the firſt Part of his reign (when he was very young) through the treachery of his Mother, and the criminal connection between her and Roger Mortimer, Earl of March; he will there find a ſtriking picture of h——f, with this difference, Edward was wiſe and valiant, he is w—k and Pu——us. He will there ſee his Mo——r and L—d B—e, properly delineated. He will there ſee the unhappy condition of a Prince under the government of his mother. Let him exert the ſpirit of Edward, confine his M——r to a monaſtry, (where ſhe may do Penance) and hang L—d B——e at Tyburn; then he will fulfil that part of his coronation Oath, where he promiſes to cauſe Law and juſtice to be executed in mercy and truth, in all his judgments when required.

The WHISPERER would adviſe his M——y not to put any ſort of dependance in the addreſs privately handed about by Sir L—— Æ——ſs, from Sc——d, where they aſſure him 20 000 S——h are ready to aſſiſt him and join 2d R——t of G——s, whenever requeſted.

Will not hiſtory afford his M———, numberleſs inſtances of mercenary armies, ſeting aſide the legal ſucceſſion of Princes in a reigning family? Nay, of their placing the Crown on the head of one of a different houſe. Beſides, he muſt entertain a mean, and deſpicable opinion of the ſpirit courage, and bravery of the Engliſh nation, to believe that 30,000 rebellious S———ts will ever be able to enſlave this country. O, unhappy P—e to be thus deluded and deceived by the treachery of Scotchmen, and the artifices of your M———r. Be aſſured, Sir, you ſeek any Power to deſtroy the Liberties and conſtitution of this country, it will prove fatal to yourſelf, and to your family. The People of England will not much longer remain paſſive under the preſent meaſures of government. How debaſed? how contemptiable! muſt we be, ſhould inſenſibility appear in the midſt of univerſal deſolation.

HARTFORD May 14.

Laſt Thurſday agreable to Charter the General Election of the Governor and Company of this Colony was held in this Place, when the following Gentlemen were duly elected by the Votes of the Freemen, (except the Governor, who not having a Majority of Votes, the Aſſembly proceeded to a Choice, when,

The Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Eſq; was choſen & appointed Governor.
The Hon. Matthew Griſwold, Eſq; Deputy-Governor.

ASSISTANTS.
Hezekiah Huntington, Eſq;
Shubael Conant, Eſq;
Eliſha Sheldon, Eſq;
Eliphalet Dyar, Eſq;
Jabez Huntinton, Eſq;
William Pitkin, Eſq;
Roger Sherman, Eſq;
Robert Walker, Eſq;
Abraham Davenport, Eſq;
William-Samuel Johnſon, Eſq;
Joſeph Spencer, Eſq;
Zebulon Weſt, Eſq;
George Wyllys, Eſq; Secretary.
John Lawrence, Eſq; Treaſurer.

ROLL of Repreſentatives of the ſeveral Towns in the Colony of Connecticut, choſen to attend the General Aſſembly of the Governor, and Company of ſaid Colony holden at Hartford, the ſecond Thurſday, (10th) May, 1770. VIZ.

Hartford County.
HARTFORD.
COL. John Pitkin, Mr Benjamin Payne.
Farmington.
Col. John Strong, Col Iſaac Lee.
Haddam.
Col. Hez. Brainard, Capt. Jab. Brainard.
Suffield,
Capt. Samuel Kent, Capt John Granger.
Simsbury.
Mr. John Owen, Capt. Jon. Humphreys.
Colcheſter,
Capt. Henry Champion, Mr. Daniel Foot.
Windſor,
Capt. Joſiah Biſſell, Capt Joſiah Phelps.
Tolland.
Capt. Zebulon Weſt, (choſen Aſſiſtant)
Capt. Samuel Chapman.
Bolton
Capt. Benjamin Talcott, Capt. Joel White.
Somers.
Mr. Reuben Siker, Mr. Samuel Raynolds.
Eaſt-Haddam.
Mr. Dan. Brainard, Capt. Chriſtopher Holmes
Stafford,
Capt. Iſaac Pinney, Mr. Nathan Johnſon.
Wilington,
Mr. Moſes Holmes, Capt. Abner Barker.
Hebron,
Capt. David Barber, Capt. Obediah Horsford.
Weatherſfield
Hon. John Cheſter, Capt. Eliſha Williams.
Middletown,
Hon. Jabez Hamlin, Speaker,
Mr. Richard Alſop.
Eaſt Windſor,
Maj. Eraſtus Wolcott, Capt. Cha. Ellſworth
Chatham,
Mr. Eben. White, Mr. Nath. Freeman.
Glaſtenbury,
Mr. John Kimberly, Mr. Jonathan Welles.
Enfield,
Mr. Edward Collins, Capt. Ephraim Terry.

New Haven County.
New Haven.
Col. Nathan Whiting, Mr. Joſh. Chandler.
Milford,
Capt. John Fowler, Maj. David Baldwin.
Durham.
Col. Elihu Chauncey, Capt. James Wadſworth.
Derby,
Capt. John Holbrook, Mr. Joſeph Hull.
Branford.
Mr Joſiah Rogers, Mr. James Barker.
Guilford.
Capt John Elliot, Mr. John Burgis.
Walingford.
Capt. Macock Ward, Capt. Reuben Atwater.
Waterbury,
Mr. Tho. Matthews, Capt. Samuel Hickox
New-London County.
New-London.
Hon. Gurdon Saltonſtall, Mr. Wm Hilhouſe.
Norwich
Mr. Eliſha Fitch, Mr. Chriſtopher Leffingwell,
Lyme.
Mr. John Lay 2d. Capt. Joſeph Mather.
Stonington,
Mr. Charles Phelps, Capt. Phineas Stanton.
Preſton.
Mr. Robert Crary, Capt. John Tyler.
Groton,
Capt. Benadam Gallup, Capt. Moſes Fiſh.
Saybrook
Capt. Hez. Whitteſey, Maj John Murdock.
Killingworth
Mr. Benjamin Gale, Mr. Theo. Morgan.
Fairfield County.
Fairfield,
Capt. David Burr, Hon. Ebenezer Silliman.
Stamford,
Mr. Benjamin Weed, Maj. David Waterbury
Norwalk,
Mr. Thomas Belden, Mr. Joſeph Platt.
Danbury.
Mr. Joſeph P. Cook, Capt. Daniel Taylor,
Greenwich.
Mr. Amos Mead, Capt. John Mead.
Reading,
Capt. Stephen Mead, Mr. Lem. Sanford,
Ridgfield.
Mr. Samuel Olmſtead, Mr. Philip B. Bradly.
New Fairfield.
Capt James Potter, Mr. Nehem. Beardſley.
Newtown.
Capt. Henry Glover, Mr. Daniel Booth.
Stratford.
Capt. Theoph. Nichols, Capt. Sam. Adams.
Windham County.
Windham.
Mr. Nathaniel Wales, Capt. Jonath. Budd.
Lebanon.
Maj. William Williams, Clerk
Capt. Joſeph Trumbull,
Canterbury.
Capt. Jabez Fitch, Mr John Curtiſs.
Plainfield.
Capt. Jonath. Douglaſs, Mr. John Pierce.
Pomfret.
Capt. Ebenezer Williams, Mr. Sam. Craft.
Aſhford
Capt. Benjamin Sumner, Mr. Ezra Smith.
Killingley
Mr. Bryant Brown, Mr. Ebenezer Leonard.
Voluntown.
Capt. Robert Dixon, Mr. Samuel Stewart.
Woodſtock
Capt. Eliſha Child, Mr Manaſſah Hoſmer.
Coventry.
Mr. Phineas Strong, Mr. Richard Hale.
Mansfield.
Mr. Conſtant Southworth, Mr. Ed. Freeman.
Litchfield County.
Litchfield.
Mr. Abraham Kilborn, Mr. David Welch.
Saliſbury,
Mr. Joſhua Porter, Capt. James Landon.
New Milford.
Maj Bushnel Boſtwick, Capt Sam. Canfield.
New Hartford.
Capt. Iſaac Kellogg, Capt. Abel Merrells.
Torrington.
Mr. John Cook, Mr. Noah Wilſon.
Harwinton
Maj. Abijah Catlin, Capt. Daniel Catlin.
Woodbury.
Mr. Daniel Sherman, Capt. Benjamin Stiles.
Cornwall.
Mr Joſhua Pierce, Capt. Thomas Porter.
Canaan.
Mr John Whitney, Capt. Tarball Whitney.
Sharon.
Mr Simeon Smith, Capt. Thomas Pardee.
Kent.
Mr. John Ranſom, Capt. Joſeph Pratt.
Goſhen.
Capt. Samuel Naſh, Capt. Edmond Beach.

At the General Election held at Newport laſt Wedneſday, the following Gentlemen were choſen,

Hon. JOSEPH WANTON, Eſq; Governor,
Hon. DARIUS SESSIONS, Eſq; Dep. Gov.
Henry Ward Eſq; Secretary;
Oliver Arnold, Eſq; Attorney General,
Joſeph Clark, Eſq; Treaſurer.

The gentlemen members of the ſociety for promoting arts, agriculture, trade and commerce in this colony, are deſired to remember their meeting ſtands adjourned at Hartford, the 22d day of inſtant May, when it is hoped a general attendance will be given, not only by the members of the ſociety in particular, but by all without exception who wiſh well to the above ſociety. As it is undoubted, that a partial repeal of the revenue acts has been paſſed: it may be of very great importance, to take into conſideration the preſent ſtate of the colony, with reſpect to the nonimportion agreement in general; and the determinations of the merchants in the other colonies, reſpecting their future conduct in this important affair.

BOSTON, May 10

Laſt Thurſday the Premium of Four Guinies on the beſt Piece of Broad Cloth bro't to Edes & Gill's Printing Office for Sale, of 12 Yards long and 7 Quarters Wide, was adjudged to Mr. Toby Cambridge & co. of Lynn, who from the 1ſt of june 1769 to may 1ſt 1770 have made upwards of 500 yards of Broad cloth from 5 and a half to 8 Quarters wide; and upwards of 3000 yards of narrow Cloths from the 1ſt of April 1769 to the 1ſt of April 1770. --And the Premium of Two Guineas was adjudged to Mr. Abel Golding of Marlborough for the beſt Piece of Serge, which in the Opinion of the Judges far ſuppaſſes any Piece imported from Great Britain for at leaſt ten years paſt.

We hear the 29th Regiment now quartered at the Barracks on caſtle Iſland, have received Orders to march for Providence, the firſt Diviſion of which is to ſet off in a Day or two; Tranſports are to be ready at Providence to carry them to New-York, from thence they are to proceed to Amboy in New-Jerſey, where it is ſaid they are to be quartered.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by the Printers hereof, for ready Money only,
The Connecticut Colony
LAW-BOOK,
Containing all the Laws now in Force in this Colony.

Pot-Aſh and Salts.

CASH and Weſt India Goods to be given for good merchantable POT ASH and dry SALTS, by
LATHROP & SMITH,
At their Store in Hartford.

TO BE SOLD BY

Philip Mortimer,

Of Middletown, ſundry pieces of Land, viz.

One piece or parcel

Lying in Eaſt Windſor, containing 98 acres, 18 of which is choice meadow, the other wood land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Weſt on the country road, north on land belonging to Mr. Ellſworth, eaſt partly on Scantick river, and ſouth on a highway.——TWO other pieces lying in Weathersfield, containing about twenty acres, being choice paſture land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſt on land of James Mitchel's, weſt on land of Gerſhom Nott's, ſouth partly on land of Moſes Deming's, and partly on James Curtiſs's land, and north on Moſes Deming's. THE other piece containing about ſix acres, butted eaſt on land of Moſes Deming, weſt on land of Francis Hanmer, north partly on land belonging to Gerſhom Nott, and partly on James Curtiſs's, and ſouth partly on land belonging to Thomas Wells, and partly on Francis Hanmers land.——ONE other piece lying in Middletown, containing thirty acres, conſiſting of plow-land, paſture and meadow land, butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſterly on land of the heirs of Daniel Merwin, weſterly on land of Joſhua Webſter, north on land of Joſeph Bacon, and ſouth on land Miles Merwin. For further particulars enquire of ſaid Mortimer.

277 ep 3m.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

Hartford, April 27 1770.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon. judge of probate for the diſtrict of Hartford commiſſioners to receive & examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Moſes Williams, late of Hartford deceaſ'd, (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the houſe of Daniel Pitkin, inholder in ſaid Hartford, on the laſt tueſdays of May, June, July and Sept. next, from two to ſix o'clock afternoon on each of ſaid days.

Jonathan Stanly,
Daniel Pitkin. } Commiſſioners.

The ſubſcriber takes this method to inform the public, that he has removed with his family from Connecticut to Albany, and keeps a public houſe a little way weſt from the City Hall, in the houſe where Thompſon formerly kept a tavern, adjoining the houſe where Sawyer and Aſhburn former is kept an Engliſh Tavern. If any perſons from New-England will oblige him with their cuſtom, may depend upon having civil treatment, and as reaſonable as any in the city.

Eliſha Benedict.

N. B. My Sign is John Wilkes, Eſq;

This is to give public Notice, That

KNIGHT SEXTON,

(Near the Great Bridge in Hartford)

WILL have in Readineſs for the Subſcribers, the Piece written by the Rev. Samuel Langdon, D. D. of Portſmouth in New-Hampſhire, againſt Mr. Sandeman, at the Time of the next General Election in this Town. It is likely a conſiderable Number of Sets of this late Publication may be purchaſed at the ſame Time, by ſuch that are not Signers. At the ſame Place may be had a Variety of other Books.

THE Subſcriber intending to open School ſoon, deſires his Cuſtomers to ſend their Children into his Houſe, the Week after the Election, for he will be ready to ſerve them then.

ISAAC BULL.

Litchfield, April 28, 1770.

P.S. Strangers may depend on good Uſage.

RUN-away from his Maſter, Nicholas Brown, on the Night after the 22d Inſtant, an Apprentice Boy named James Robinſon, about 18 Years of Age, about 5 Feet 4 Inches high, wears his own brown Hair, dark Complexion, looks down, ſpeaks gruff. Had on when he went away a light colour'd homeſpun mill'd Coat, commonly called Pepper and Salt, a ſtriped Waiſtcoat, light colour'd Breeches, a Pair of Calf ſkin Pumps. He ſtole and carried with him two Books of Leaf Gold. Whoever ſhall take up and return ſaid Boy to his Maſter, ſhall have Ten Shillings Reward, paid by

NICHOLAS BROWN.

N. B. All maſters of Veſſels are forbid carrying off ſaid boy, as they muſt anſwer the conſequences at their peril.

Hartford, April 30, 1770.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY,

AS an apprentice to a Chaiſe and Harneſs maker in Hartford, a likely LAD, about 12 or 14 years of Age.——Enquire of the PRNTERS.

TO BE SOLD BY

James Tiley,

GOLDSMITH, at his Shop, juſt below Meſſ. Lathrop & Smith's Store in King-Street Hartford.

CYPHER'D and Brilliant Stone Ear-Rings ſet in Gold, ditto in Silver, Cypher'd and Brilliant Stone Buttons, Stone Rings, and Stone Lockets, with a variety of other Articles.

WHereas on the 23d of inſtant April, one Steele as he call'd his name, a ſtranger, ſlim fellow European born, about twenty years old, of a thin viſage, has had the ſmall pox, had on a blue coat, trim'd with flower'd braſs buttons, with a cape, a lightiſh colour'd jacket and breeches, wore his hair——Came to the houſe of the ſubſcriber in Hartford, and rode a large bay horſe, about nine years old, paces and trots well, white face and two hind feet, no brand, his off fore hough ſp it from the hair to the toe of his foot, brô't a ſaddle and bridle with ſaid horſe——Said fellow pretended to be a traveller——After he had tarried a day or two, in the night ſeaſon, he broke open my deſk and ſtole from thence about twenty ſhillings in caſh, and ſundry articles of goods out of my houſe, and then ran off. After purſuing him ſometime, I recovered ſaid horſe, but the thief eſcaped. And as this horſe ſaddle and bridle is ſuppoſed to be ſtolen, whoever ſhall appear to make out a juſt claim to the ſame, may have them again upon ſatisfying the ſubſcriber, and paying the charge of this advertiſement.

JOHN STEELE.

Hartford, April 27, 1770.

Hartford, April 20, 1770.

RUN away laſt night from the ſubſcribers two journeymen ſhoemakers, viz. One from Thomas Newhall, named Thomas Griffiths, about 21 years of age, about 5 feet 9 inches high, wears his own ſhort dark colour'd hair, full face, the great toe on his right foot has been put out of joint, and ſtands conſiderably higher than the other——had on a blue duffil great coat, a grey ratteen ſtrait-body'd coat, green ratteen double breaſted waiſtcoat, and a pair of black flower'd everlaſting breeches.

The other from Moſes Smith, named Samuel Merriman, about 5 feet 6 inches high, round face, wears his own hair, had on a light grey colour'd coat without lining, two pair leather breeches, his other cloaths forgot. Whoever ſhall take up one or both of the above fellows, and return them to their Maſters, ſhall have Twenty Shillings reward for each, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

Thomas Newhall,
Moſes Smith.

This may inform the PUBLIC,

THAT SAMUEL FARNSWORTH of Hartford, has two likely Stallions, which he intends to keep the enſuing ſeaſon, to cover Mares. The one is the noted horſe lately the property of Neil McLean, jun. and is counted by them that are judges, to be the ſwifteſt horſe on the continent, to take him on the three gates, pace, trot and run. The latter is a very large thick heavy horſe, bred in Canada. Thoſe gentlemen that will favour me in bringing their Mares, ſhall charge only the bear ſum of Six Shillings for the ſeaſon, which will be gratefully acknowledged, by their very humble ſervant, SAMUEL FARNSWORTH.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon. judge of probate, for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Auguſtus Stanly, late of Hartford deceas'd (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice that we ſhall attend that buſineſs, on the firſt Mondays in October and November, and on the third Monday in Jan. next, at the Dwelling-Houſe of the deceas'd, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, on each of ſaid days.

Benjamin Colton,
George Kellogg. } Commiſſioners.

Hartford, April 21.

STRAYED or Stolen, from the Subſcriber, out of the South-Meadow in Hartford, ſometime about December laſt, a black Horſe COLT, three years old coming, branded with I. C. on the left thigh, trots all, middling ſize.——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Colt, and ſend word to the ſubſcriber, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JOSEPH CHURCH.

Hartford, May 5.

Wanted Immediately,

A Perſon that can be well recommended, to take the care of a ſmall FARM, in the new country, by Connecticut river, for ſix months, and a very generous reward will be given.——Inquire of the PRINTERS.

MONDAY, MAY 21, 1770.

Numb. 282.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

Pot-Aſh and Salts.

CASH and Weſt-India Goods to be given for good merchantable POT ASH and dry SALTS, by

LATHROP & SMITH,
At their Store in Hartford.

OBSERVATOR, [No. III.]

"Silence! coeval with eternity,
"Thou wert e'er nature's ſelf began to be:
"'Twas one vaſt nothing all, and all ſlept
"faſt in thee."

THE moſt celebrated of the antient philoſophers directed all who meant to be initiated into the myſteries of his doctrine, firſt to paſs a certain period in learning the art of ſilence in ſubordinate ſchools erected for that purpoſe; from whence after becoming maſters of this art, they were admitted into his academy, to receive with becoming gravity, and taciturnity, the ſublime or inſipid; the plain and obvious, or intricate and myſterious tenets, or doctrines of his ſchool;—A vaſt advantage this both to inſtructor and pupil, and much is it to be lamented that ſo uſeful an inſtitution has been allowed ſo far to drop, as it is at this day.

Silence is among the beſt poets conſidered as much more expreſſive than any language whatever; in the moſt affecting dramatic performances when all the powers of diction fail, a ſolemn ſilence enſuing, affects the audience more than the higheſt wrought expreſſions of the author or actor. This is obſervable in the moſt celebrated dramatic writers; from the inimitable author of the book of Job down to the preſent day; and by the way, right glad would the world have been if ninety nine hundredth's of the authors who in that period have exhibited their works to the world, had entertained ſo high an opinion of ſilence, as to have made their exit ſub ſilentio——Though in fine writing occaſional ſilence is both beautiful and of uſe, yet I would by no means recommend it to theological diſputants, or party writers on any occaſion whatever—Silence would inſtantly leſſen the attention of the populace, introduce reflection and a moſt diſagreeable train of conſequences, ruinous in the end to the good cauſe—Phyſicians may, and do make a very advantageous uſe of ſilence—the ſilent, ſolemn air of the doctor, entering a ſick man's chamber, the dumb ſignificance which overſpread his countenance whilſt feeling his pulſe, the important phiz aſſumed whilſt examining the patient's tongue, or water, the unintelligible ſtile of preſcriptions, and the myſterious characters they are envelop'd with, are of the laſt conſequence to the practitioner, and never fail proving in perfection—thrice glad would the ſurviving friend, or recovering patient be, did the ſame ſilence, & inexplicable myſtery attend the doctors demand, and apothecarys bill. But who in his ſenſes ever made uſe of an art longer than it was of uſe, pleaſure or profit? Lawyers except in ſilent demurrers, in a conto progreſsi, and ſome of the [illegible] of the bar can never practice ſilence to advantage.——Politicians of the true modern ſtamp avail themſelves of the greateſt benefits from a judicious practice of this art.——Among the antients it is true, in their popular ſtates, Rhetoric was of uſe, and public ſpeaking eſteemed a neceſſary attainment for the man who aimed at preferment, but in theſe as in our deſpotic governments, the ballance is much in favor of ſilence: and thanks to our ingenious improvements on the antients, it is now diſcovered that ſilence is equally beneficial to the popular ſtateſman, as eloquence formerly, and even much more ſo——Every public ſpeaker muſt form certain principles of his own, or adopt thoſe of others, or expect to be hiſs'd as an empty declaimer——This is a nice point, and on this, depends his future exiſtance in a popular ſtate, and if the popular notions of things happen, to be variable or uncertain, it requires the greateſt art, and addreſs in a public ſpeaker, to ſteer himſelf clear of popular diſapprobation. Again every cauſe tried, every ſubject diſcuſs'd, it muſt have two ſides, ſo two events muſt attend the ſpeakers, victory or defeat.——The more intereſting the cauſe, the more important the ſubject, as conqueſt will be proportionally more elevating, ſo defeat will be the more ſenſibly, and keenly felt, whilſt the ſilent ſtateſman riſks nothing——the courſer that never ſtarted, was never diſtanced; & a conteſt in which it is a glory even to be defeated is at beſt very ideal. Cicero, when ſpeaking of his favourite ſubject, after having exhauſted the whole circle of mental accompliſhments natural and acquired, to form his orator, goes largely into the perſonal & exterior, ſuch as ſtature geſture, port, air and even dreſs——It is to be remembered this great maſter of ſpeaking, paid for his eloquence, with the price of his head, whilſt the ſilent Atticus lived peaceably under every public commotion, and died in peace.——The ſilent ſtateſman at the ſame time that he needs not Cicero's large, and expenſive inventory of acquirements mental and perſonal, runs no hazard of ſuch misfortunes as often confound and overwhelm the orator; perſonal acquirements indeed are in a great degree neceſſary, ſuch as a certain importance of countenance, which hard to be deſcribed, happily is ſo frequently practiſed, as to render an attempt at the diſcription unneceſſary. In ſhort, it is that countenance which ſomehow impreſſes on the multitude the ſentiments of the ſoldier in Shakeſpear of Coriolanus expreſs'd after he had been introduced to his maſter viz. "He look'd ſo, "I was ſure there was more in him, than I "thought for.——Geſture indeed, on which Cicero enlarges, is alſo neceſſary here but the whole ſyſtem of it, is little more than important ſhruggs, ſignificant Nods, knowing ſmiles, and the familiar ſqueeze of the hand.——Some ſuperficially ingenious men, in inquiring into the cauſes of the decay of eloquence, among the moderns have aſſigned as the cauſe among many, the [illegible] of their [illegible] has been [illegible] by that incomparable humoriſt the late Mr. Yorick alias Sterne, and with how much juſtice is not at preſent my buſineſs to examine.——I am to have done at once, with this part of the ſilent Stateſman's perſonal or exterior. A Wigg is certainly of the laſt importance; yes, I inſiſt upon it, a Wigg. I pray your [illegible] and witlings not to be angry, it is unbecoming your characters, and inconſiſtent with your intereſt; for you will get nothing by it, but my forgiveneſs; which you are here aſſured of, not only as a chriſtian but as an author being certain that my hiſtory of the introduction, riſe, temporary growth and declenſion, with the preſent ſtate of Wiggs, and the effects moral and phyſical, which they have had on the heads of mankind, in different ages, which I am now preparing for the preſs, will [illegible] rights.

OBSERVATOR.

N. B. Some extracts from this hiſtory will be in my next.

Pomfret, 15 February, 1770.

Meſſ. GREEN & WATSON,

Pleaſe to give the following a place in your Papers, and you'll oblige many of your readers.

WE in this government for ſome years paſt, have very loudly complain'd of the conduct of public affairs in a neighbouring government, as being inconſiſtent with the privileges of free ſubjects, and the ſacred oath they are under as freemen of the corporation to which they belong: but we ſhould do well to conſider, whether we are not running very faſt into the ſame practices. It is well known, that for a long ſuite of years, we were happily united in our public affairs, and I believe it may be truly affirm'd, that until within theſe few years, we have been by far the moſt peaceable and happy government on this continent. But alas! it has ſo happened of late, that a ſpirit of contention, diſcord and ill will, has broken in among us, to the great diſquiet of the government and endangering the ruin thereof, which has been the great grief of all well wiſhers to the ſame; which ſtrifes and animoſities, have by a number of buſy gentlemen in divers parts of the government, by many artifices (ſome of which were not the moſt juſtifiable, to ſay no worſe of them) been endeavouring to keep them up; and the public will do well to conſider, whether the preſent efforts of the Suſquehannah company, to get a grant or releaſe, from the government, of their right to the lands lying on the river of that name; is not by ſome at the leaſt ſet on foot and carried on with a view to keep up the animoſity in the government, and to anſwer their friends party deſigns, rather than with any reaſonable proſpect of acquiring, and holding thoſe lands; and we are told many pompous ſtories of the fertility of thoſe lands lying on the branches of the Suſquehannah, and that the lands ſtill weſt of their purchaſe, are much richer, and would be an inexhauſtible ſource of wealth to this colony, if they would but ſet up their claim; and many gentlemen are ſo ſanguine, as to affirm, that neither Penn, or any one elſe, would ever pretend to diſpute the government in the caſe, but would immediately give up; nay we are told, that a naked quit claim only, of lands lying weſt of ſaid purchaſe, (and of only a ſmall part of what the government may juſtly claim and hold) £.10,000 lawful money, would be depoſited in the public treaſury of the colony, in leſs than three month's time, with much more to the ſame purpoſe; theſe are very fine ſtories (if true) and excellently well adapted to draw in the giddy and unthinking multitude, to favour their cauſe, but I truſt they are too flimſey to catch wiſe men. For I imagine that Mr. Penn, whether his title be good or bad, he believes that he has a good and legal title: and without doubt has able council to adviſe with, who moſt probably (as he is a good rich client) encourage him that his title is good, and 'tis well known he does not want money to defend his cauſe, and he well knows that the colonies do not ſtand on the beſt terms with the government at home. He alſo very well knows that in caſe the matter ſhould ever come in queſtion at home, that beſides his vaſt intereſt, he will have the whole body of Quakers to back his claim. What probability therefore is there, that he would tamely give it up to the government? And as to any gentlemen depoſiting their money for quit claim deeds only; every one that has learn'd the firſt rudiments of law, know that a mere releaſe or quit claim to one that is not in poſſeſſion, (there being no eſtate for ſuch releaſe to operate upon) is void, and conveys nothing. I look on that therefore, as a weak and idle imagination, and ſuch as no man acquainted with theſe things can believe. Beſides the long non-claim and actual ſettlements, made with the province of New York, (with many other weighty reaſons that might be urged) ſeems to put our right (if any we ever had) at a greater diſtance. Moreover it is plain to me, that if our claim was even ſo clear and indiſputable, and nothing ſtood in the way of our immediately entering upon, and holding all that our patriots pretend we have right to; it would not be for the health of the government, to recognize ſuch claim. For it would put the government into ſuch a ſhape and make it ſo large (and as other governments intervene betwixt us and thoſe lands) as would render it very inconvenient, nay I preſume impoſſible for us to govern any number of inhabitants, that ſhould ſettle on thoſe lands. Again, ſhould we acquire thoſe lands, it would be a means of drawing us off much money, and many of our valuable inhabitants, which in a country, already too thinly inhabited, and but poor, would be an irreparable loſs. In fine, I believe that ſhould ſuch a thing happen, it would in the end remove the ſeat of government into that new world, and whether that would be for the health of the government let the candid judge.

I conclude therefore, that the more deſcerning of the company, have two things principally in view, viz. firſt, that as they have a ready expended a conſiderable ſum of money in their purchaſe, & ſending an agent to the court of Great Britain, &c. they imagine (and that with good reaſon) that if they can get a grant, or only a releaſe from the government, it will render thoſe lands vendible, and ſo they will thereby have it in their power to get up their money again. Secondly, they hope that by the increaſe of the company, and their addreſs, they ſhall be able to govern all the elections in this colony, and if they can't hold that government, yet they will endeavour to make ſure of holding this; and I dare ſay that thoſe gentlemen that have had the addreſs, already to make this that was at firſt declared to be only a private affair to become a government affair already, will (if they can but double their number) lead the government where they pleaſe. Beſides all this, if the government have any right to thoſe lands, it is a common right, which every member of the community ought equally to enjoy, with the reſt of his fellow citizens: 'tis therefore not equal and juſt for the aſſembly to grant thoſe lands to any individuals whatever; and if thoſe gentlemen's hypotheſis be true, that thoſe lands be within the government, then it neceſſarily follows, that the very purchaſe, was a violation of a known public law of the community: it ſeems therefore (all things conſidered) that the company cannot with a very good grace, come and aſk the favour.

Again, it ſeems that for the government, in any manner to intermeddle with the affair, will be a very dangerous ſtep, and will in the end, involve the government in the defence of thoſe lands: for if any number of inhabitants, ſhould get fixed there, and an Indian war ſhould happen, if no other law, yet the law of common humanity, would neceſſarily draw the government in.

Upon the whole therefore, I hope the aſſembly will ſtear clear of the buſineſs, and by no means take a ſtep that will bring the government into danger. And I hope and truſt that the free electors of this corporation will not ſuffer themſelves to be impoſed upon, by any plauſible pretence whatever; but will in their elections, conduct themſelves, agreeable to the ſacred oath they are under, and give their votes, ſo as ſhall conduce to the beſt good of the government; without any ſiniſter views whatever. And will from time to time, fall upon ſuch conciliating meaſures as ſhall reconcile all parties; which is the hearty deſire of their friend and well-wiſher,

A Son of Liberty.

BOSTON,

Tueſday ſe'nnight arrived at Boſton the Brig Commodore hood, Capt. Cummins, in 6 weeks from LONDON, by whom we have public Prints of the 12th of March, which is 4 Days later than our laſt by Capt. Scott: The following Articles are extracted therefrom.

[Capt Cummins inform us, that the Remonſtrance, &c of the Livery of London, was preſented to his Majeſty, but being on the day he ſailed could bring no printed account of it; Capt. Cummins was one of the ſpectators, and ſays, the Lord Mayor went in the ſtate coach, Aldermen, &c. in their coaches, about 2 o'clock on the 14th of March; the proceſſion was from the manſion houſe, and the carriages reached beyond St. Paul's Church, ſaid to be above a mile; the greateſt concourſe of people ever known there together accompanying them: When they arrived at his Majeſty's palace at St James's, and the Lord Mayor alighted from his coach, three cheers were given, as alſo three more on his return, and likeneſs on his arrival at the manſion houſe when the people diſperſed without committing any diſorder: Capt. Cummins heard that the Remonſtrance, &c. was graciouſly received, that his Majeſty would give an anſwer, after laying it before his Council.]

LONDON, March 12.

Some additional circumſtances relating to the reception of the Sheriffs at St. James's.

WHILST in the Sheriffs waiting on Wedneſday, Lord Denbigh came up to the City Remembrancer, and aſked him whether the Addreſs, &c. was ſigned and ſealed, or how it was authenticated? The Remembrancer ſaid, he was a city officer, and that it was no part of his office to give Lord Denbigh an anſwer to his queſtion. Lord Denbigh then went to Mr. Sheriff Townſhend, and aſked him whether the buſineſs which brought him there was not new and ſingular; and whether the city had ever preſented a Remonſtrance to a King before? Mr. Townſhend replied with another queſtion, Did ever a King of England before turn a deaf ear to the petitions of 60,000 freeholders, and his back on thoſe who preſented them? Lord Denbigh then aſked, what made a corporate act? Mr. Townſhend, laughing, anſwered, an act of the Corporation, to be ſure.

On Thurſday evening the Sheriffs received the following letter from Lord Weymouth:

"Gentlemen

St James's March 8 1770.

"The King commands me to inform you, in conſequence of the meſſage which you brought yeſterday to St. James's, that he is always ready to receive applications from any of his ſubjects; but as the Remonſtrance and Petition, ſeems entirely new, I am commanded to enquire of you in what manner it is authenticated, and what the nature of the Aſſembly was, in which this meaſure was adopted?——When you furniſh me with anſwers to theſe queſtions, I ſhall ſignify to you his Majeſty's further pleaſure,

I am Gentlemen,

Your moſt obedient,

Sheriffs of London. Humble ſervant,

WEYMOUTH."

Friday noon at twenty minutes after twelve, the Sheriffs went to St. James's. About one, Lord Bollingbroke, the Lord in waiting, came: The Remembrancer told him, that the Sheriffs of London were attending his Majeſt's pleaſure, and that they required an audience. Some time after Lord Bollingbroke came out, and enquired of the Sheriffs whether he was to tell his Majeſty that they came with a freſh meſſage, or with a meſſage? The Sheriffs anſwered, with a meſſage. Soon after the two Secretaries of States, Lord Rochford and Lord Weymouth, came to the Sheriffs. Lord Weymouth aſked them, Whether they had received his letter, which was written by his Majeſt's order?

Sheriffs. We have.

Lord Weymouth. His Majeſty deſires to know whether you come in conſequence of that letter, or whether you come on any freſh buſineſs.

Sheriffs. We come in conſequence of that letter.

Lord W. Would it not be more proper to ſend an anſwer in writing through me?

Sheriffs. We act miniſterially. As Sheriffs of London we have a right to an audience, and cannot communicate to any other perſon than the King, the ſubject of our meſſage.

Lord W. I do not diſpute your right to an audience, but would it not be better and more accurate to give your meſſage to me in writing?

Sheriffs. We know the value and conſequence of the citizens right to apply immediately to the King, and not to a third perſon; and we do not mean that any of their rights and privileges ſhall be betrayed by our means.

His Majeſty's levee began at a quarter paſt two, at which time the two Secretaries came to the Sheriffs, and Lord Weymouth ſaid, "His Majeſty underſtanding that you come miniſterially, authorized with a meſſage from the City of London, will ſee you as ſoon as the levee is over."

As ſoon as the levee was over, the Sheriffs were introduced into the King's cloſet. The King did not, as uſual, receive them alone, but Lord Gower, Lord Rochford, and Lord Weymouth were preſent. Mr. Sheriff Townſhend addreſſed his Majeſty in theſe words:

"May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

"When we had laſt the honor to appear before your Majeſty, your Majeſty was graciouſly pleaſed to promiſe an ANSWER by one of your Majeſty's principal Secretaries of State; but we had yeſterday QUESTIONS propoſed to us by Lord Weymouth. In anſwer to which, we beg leave humbly to inform your Majeſty, that the application which we make to your Majeſty, we make as Sheriffs of the city of London, by the direction of the Livery in Common hall legally aſſembled. The Addreſs, Remonſtrance and Petition, to be preſented to your Majeſty by their Chief Magiſtrate, is the act of the citizens of London in their greateſt Court; and is ordered by them to be authenticated as their act."

To which his Majeſty was moſt graciouſly pleaſed to reply, in theſe moſt gracious condeſending words to the City of London:

"I will conſider of the anſwer you have given me."

Whereupon the Sheriffs withdrew.

When the Sheriffs went into the cloſet, the City Remembrancer, according to his office and duty, would have attended them; but Lord Bollingbroke (like a Swiſs porter) rudely ſhoved him back, inſiſting upon it that he had not a right to go in, and ſhould not enter there.——When the Sheriffs audience was ended, the Remembrancer, like a man, an Engliſhman, and a worthy officer of a great and powerful city, very ſpiritedly and [illegible] told Lord Bollingbroke, that his [illegible] had done wrong; for that as Remembrancer, attending the Sheriffs, he had a right to enter the cloſet with the Sheriffs. Lord Bollingbroke ſaid, it might perhaps be ſo; but that he had never been in waiting on ſuch an occaſion before, and hoped he never ſhould again.

The reception of the Sheriffs at St. James's on Friday occaſioned, it is ſaid a meeting of ſeveral patriotic Noblemen and Gentleman, at the houſe of the Rt. Hon. the Lord Mayor on Friday afternoon and Saturday morning.

The opinion of the Public appears greatly divided as to the event of the Remonſtrance from the City to the King——Some think it cannot fail to inforce a compliance with what is required in it; others think it will ſubject the pricipal agents concerned in it to heavy puniſhments.——The Protracted delay made in the receiving it, does not augur favourable to its ſucceſs, or the indemnity of its promoters; as it may be preſumed to ariſe from the motive of gaining time to conſider of the mode of proceeding, as to thoſe points. An intention to grant the prayer of it ſeems to demand no procraſtination.

A correſpondent writes, that he has doubts as to the authenticity of the Remonſtrance which has appeared in the papers, for though the ſpirit and freedom of it may be every way conſiſtent with the temper of the times, yet its being publiſhed to the world before it was preſented, is ſuch a breach of the common rules of decency and good manners, that the Livery cannot be ſuppoſed capable of ſuch behaviour. He alſo aſſerts, that the Chancellor's being the only Judge at the Revolution left in the Power of the Crown, is not true, as they were all in the power of the Crown till his preſent Majeſty, greatly to his honor, put them out of it.

It is thought, that if a certain Remonſtrance ſhould be referred to the conſideration of a great Aſſembly, it will certainly be ordered to be burnt by the common hangman, as the beſt anſwer that can be given to it.

A Correſpondent ſays, The credulity of the preſent times is really aſtoniſhing, and I bluſh for my countrymen when I ſee them ſwallow the greateſt abſurdities. Who in his ſenſes will believe, that there is the leaſt truth in the account publiſhed in all the papers, of the converſation that paſſed at St. James's laſt Wedneſday? Is it poſſible to ſuppoſe a man of Mr. T——ſh——nd's delicacy could be brought to inſult his S—gn? Or if that unlikely circumſtance ſhould have happened, could he forget the duty he owes himſelf and aſſert a direct falſhood? Or could he have ſo ſmall an idea of the conſequence of an Alderman, as to affirm that the act of the Livery of London "is the act of the Citizens of London in their greateſt Court?". Theſe things cannot be; the Alderman muſt know in the firſt place, that the Livery of London and the Citizens of London are diſtinct bodies; and he muſt know too, that the greateſt Court of the Citizens, is a meeting of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council and not the Livery.

The American Merchats and Agents are much at a loſs how to act with regard to the exportation of goods to the colonies, as they are very doubtful whether any goods will be received without a total repeal takes place, which ſeems not to be the intention with reſpect to tea.

BOSTON, May 17.

A Letter from London, mentions, that it was tho't the Eaſt India Company would ſettle the affair with the Miniſtry relative to Tea, ſo that the Duty on that article might be taken off there and four pence half penny to be paid there upon the Exportation of it from thence.

This Morning the 29th Regiment quitted the Barracks at Caſtle Iſland, and landed at Dorcheſter Neck, from thence they are to march to Providence.

HARTFORD, May 21.

On the 5th of this Inſtant, Departed this Life in the 82 year of her age, Mrs. Eliſabeth Marſh of Montague.——She has left Children, Grand Children, and Great Grand Childeen 103 89 ſtill ſurvive, of which number 67 attended her funeral on the 7th Inſtant.

WHEREAS great improvement, hath of late been made in this Colony in Manufacturing and Dreſſing woolen Cloth, and as that Branch of Buſineſs is of great importance to the publick, and ſtill capable of further improvment, provided proper attention be given thereto; and thoſe concerned therein, would generouſly communicate, their ſkill to each other; and as the ſubſcriber hath for many years paſt, & ſtill practices the buſineſs of a cloathier in Hartford in all its branches, and humbly conceives that he hath made conſiderable improvement therein, by various experiments, but is not ſo vain as to think that he hath arrived to that degree of knowledge in ſaid buſineſs, but that he might receive further improvement from the ſkill of others, being deſirous that all uſeful ſkill that hath or may be obtained, might be defuſed among the fraternity, for the general good, would propoſe that there be a meeting of the Cloathiers in this colony, in caſe they ſhould judge proper, attended at ſome ſuitable time & place, for the purpoſe of informing one another, of any new improvements in ſaid art, and that for the future it be ſo agreed, that all new acquiſitions of knowledge in ſaid buſineſs be communicated to all that are properly accompliſhed, and regolarly introduced into ſaid buſineſs, thoſe that approve of the aforeſaid propoſal, are deſired to agree upon and affix the time and place of ſaid meeting.

JAMES TAYLOR.

Hartford, May 17th 1770.

THIS is to inform the public, that the Subſcriber has a quantity of Tartar Emetic, and ſundry other Medicines on hand which he will diſpoſe of for caſh only.

JAMES THOMPSON.

N. B. Any Perſon who is in the leaſt ſuſpicious of their Dogs running mad, may by applying the above, have the worm cut from the Tongue of ſaid animal which will effectually obviate the dagerous conſequoences, which commonly follows.

WHereas five of the proprietors of the town of Wincheſter, have made application to me the ſubſcriber, to warn a meeting of ſaid propietors, to come into ſome meaſures to raiſe money to defray and pay the expence of the governments committee for clearing the road, and to tranſact and do any other buſineſs that ſhall be tho't proper to be done at ſaid meeting. Theſe are therefore to warn all the proprietors of ſaid Wincheſter, to meet at the houſe of Joſeph Flagg, innholder at Hartford, on the 14th day of June next, at two of the clock in the afternoon, to conſider what they will do relating to the above-mentioned particulars.

Thomas Hoſmer, Proprietors Clerk.

Dated May 18, 1770.

THIS is to notify the Suſquehannah company to meet at Hartford on Wedneſday the 6th Day of June next, at nine of the Clock in the Morning. And as the Affairs then to be tranſacted may be of utmoſt Importance to ſaid Company, it is hoped there will be as univerſal an Attendance as poſſible.

Eliphalet Dyer.
Samuel Gray,
Jedediah Elderkin,
Nathaniel Wales jun.
} Committee.

By the direction of the Court of Probate.

TO be ſold at public vendue, all the real eſtate of Elijah Kent, late of Suffield deceas'd for the benefit of the creditors to ſaid eſtate, under the incombrance of the Widows thirds being rendered Inſolvent, ſaid Vendue will be attended at the dwellinghouſe of ſaid deceas'd on the laſt Tueſday of June next to begin at two o'clock in the afternoon.

Samuel Kent,
Aaron Hitchcock.
} Adminiſtrators on ſaid Eſtate.

RANGER,

A FINE Engliſh STALLION, of the Barbary breed, a fine dapple colour, riſing of 15 hands high, & is allowed by good judges, to be the compleateſt horſe that was ever brought to America.——Will cover this Seaſon, at the moderate price of Two Dollars the leap, or Five Dollars the ſeaſon. He is kept by Capt. JAMES NICHOLS, who has good Paſture for Mares at a moderate Price.

 Moſt Sorts of BLANKS, commonly uſed in this Colony, may be had at the P. Office.

the levee was over, the Sh duced into the King's cloſet. ot, as uſual, receive them a Gower, Lord Rochford, and th were preſent Mr. Sheriff dreſſed his Majeſty in theſe eaſe your Majeſty,

e had laſt the honor to appear jeſty. your Majeſty was gra- to promiſe an ANSWER by jeſty's principal Secretaries of t had yeſterday QUESTIONS by Lord Weymouth. In an- we beg leave humbly to inform that the application which we Majeſty, we make as Sheriffs London, by the direction of Common hall legally aſſem- ddreſs, Remonſtrance and Pe- reſented to your Majeſty by giſtrate, is the act of the ci- on in their greateſt Court; by them to be authenticated is Majeſty was moſt graciouſly y, in theſe moſt gracious con to the City of London: ſider of the anſwer you have the Sheriffs withdrew.

heriffs went into the cloſet, mbrancer, according to his would have attended them; gbroke (like a Swiſs porter) him back, inſiſting upon it that ght to go in, and ſhould not —When the Sheriffs audience Remembrancer, like a man, , and a worthy officer of a rful city, very ſpiritedly and Lord Bollingbroke, that his one wrong; for that as Re- tending the Sheriffs he had a the cloſet with the Sheriffs. roke ſaid, it might perhaps he had never been in wait- occaſion before, and hoped he ain.

n of the Sheriffs at St. James's ioned, it is ſaid a meeting of Noblemen and Gentleman, the Rt. Hon. the Lord May afternoon and Saturday morn-of the Public appears great, o the event of the Remon- City to the King——Some fail to inforce a complience quired in it; others think it pricipal agents concerned in iſhments.——The Protracted he receiving it, does not au- to its ſucceſs, or the indemni ers; as it may be preſumed he motive of gaining time to mode of proceeding, as to An intention to grant the ms to demand no procraſtinadent writes, that he has doubts nticity of the Remomſtrance ared in the papers, for though freedom of it may be every with the temper of the times, ubliſhed to the world before d, is ſuch a breach of the f decency and good manners, cannot be ſuppoſed capable r. He alſo aſſerts, that the ing the only Judge at the the Power of the Crown, they were all in the power ll his preſent Majeſty, great- put them out of it.

It is thought, that if a certain Remonſtrance ſhould be referred to the conſideration of a great Aſſembly, it will certainly be ordered to be burnt by the common hangman, as the beſt anſwer that can be given to it.

A Correſpondent ſays, The credulity of the preſent times is really aſtoniſhing, and I bluſh for my countrymen when I ſee them ſwallow the greateſt abſurdities. Who in his ſenſes will believe, that there is the leaſt truth in the account publiſhed in all the papers, of the converſation that paſſed at St. James's laſt Wedneſday? Is it poſſible to ſuppoſe a man of Mr. T——ſh——nd's delicacy could be brought to inſult his S—gn? Or if that unlikely circumſtance ſhould have happened, could he forget the duty he owes himſelf and aſſert a direct falſhood? Or could he have ſo ſmall an idea of the conſequence of an Alderman, as to affirm that the act of the Livery of London "is the act of the Citizens of London in their greateſt Court?". Theſe things cannot be; the Alderman muſt know in the firſt place, that the Livery of London and the Citizens of London are diſtinct bodies; and he muſt know too, that the greateſt Court of the Citizens, is a meeting of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council, and not the Livery.

The American Merchats and Agents are much at a loſs how to act with regard to the exportatſon of goods to the colonies, as they are very doubtful whether any goods will be received without a total repeal takes place, which ſeems not to be the intention with reſpect to tea.

BOSTON, May 17.

A Letter from London, mentions, that it was tho't the Eaſt India Company would ſettle the affair with the Miniſtry relative to Tea, ſo that the Duty on that article might be taken off there and four pence half penny to be paid there upon the Exportation of it from thence.

This Morning the 29th Regiment quitted the Barracks at Caſtle Iſland, and landed at Dorcheſter Neck, from thence they are to march to Providence.

HARTFORD, May 21.

On the 5th of this Inſtant, Departed this Life in the 82 year of her age, Mrs. Eliſabeth Marſh of Montague.——She has left Children, Grand Children, and Great Grand Childeen 103, 89 ſtill ſurvive, of which number 67 attended her funeral on the 7th Inſtant.

WHEREAS great improvement, hath of late been made in this Colony in Manufacturing and Dreſſing woolen Cloth, and as that Branch of Buſineſs is of great importance to the publick, and ſtill capable of further improvment, provided proper attention be given thereto; and thoſe concerned therein, would generouſly communicate, their ſkill to each other; and as the ſubſcriber hath for many years paſt, & ſtill practices the buſineſs of a cloathier in Hartford in all its branches, and humbly conceives that he hath made conſiderable improvement therein, by various experiments, but is not ſo vain as to think that he hath arrived to that degree of knowledge in ſaid buſineſs, but that he might receive further improvement from the ſkill of others, being deſirous that all uſeful ſkill that hath or may be obtained, might be defuſed among the fraternity, for the general good, would propoſe that there be a meeting of the Cloathiers in this colony, in caſe they ſhould judge proper, attended at ſome ſuitable time & place, for the purpoſe of informing one another, of any new improvements in ſaid art, and that for the future it be ſo agreed, that all new acquiſitions of knowledge in ſaid buſineſs be communicated to all that are properly accompliſhed, and regularly introduced into ſaid buſineſs, thoſe that approve of the aforeſaid propoſal, are deſired to agree upon and affix the time and place of ſaid meeting.

JAMES TAYLOR.

Hartford, May 17th 1770.

THIS is to inform the public, that the Subſcriber has a quantity of Tartar Emetic, and ſundry other Medicines on hand which he will diſpoſe of for caſh only.

JAMES THOMPSON.

N. B. Any Perſon who is in the leaſt ſuſpicious of their Dogs running mad, may by applying the above, have the worm, cut from the Tongue of ſaid animal which will effectually obviate the dagerous conſequences, which commonly follows.

WHereas five of the proprietors of the town of Wincheſter, have made application to me the ſubſcriber, to warn a meeting of ſaid propietors, to come into ſome meaſures to raiſe money to defray and pay the expence of the governments committee for clearing the road, and to tranſact and do any other buſineſs that ſhall be tho't proper to be done at ſaid meeting. Theſe are therefore to warn all the proprietors of ſaid Wincheſter, to meet at the houſe of Joſeph Flagg, innholder at Hartford, on the 14th day of June next, at two of the clock in the afternoon, to conſider what they will do relating to the above-mentioned particulars.

Thomas Heſmer, Proprietors Clerk.

Dated May 18, 1770.

THIS is to notify the Suſquehannah company to meet at Hartford on Wedneſday the 6th Day of June next, at nine of the Clock in the Morning. And as the Affairs then to be tranſacted may be of utmoſt Importance to ſaid Company, it is hoped there will be as univerſal an Attendance as poſſible.

Eliphalet Dyer,
Samuel Gray,
Jedediah Elderkin,
Nathaniel Wales jun. } Committee.

By the direction of the Court of Probate.

TO be ſold at public vendue, all the real eſtate of Elijah Kent, late of Suffield deceas'd for the benefit of the creditors to ſaid eſtate, under the incombrance of the Widows thirds being rendered Inſolvent, ſaid Vendue will be attended at the dwellinghouſe of ſaid deceas'd on the laſt Tueſday of June next to begin at two o'clock in the afternoon.

Samuel Kent,
Aaron Hitchcock. } Adminiſtrators on ſaid Eſtate.

RANGER,

A FINE Engliſh STALLION, of the Barbary breed, a fine dapple colour, riſing of 15 hands high, & is allowed by good judges, to to be the compleateſt horſe that was ever brought to America.——Will cover this Seaſon, at the moderate price of Two Dollars the leap, or Five Dollars the ſeaſon. He is kept by Capt. JAMES NICHOLS, who has good Paſture for Mares at a moderate Price.

 Moſt Sorts of BLANKS, commonly uſed in this Colony, may be had at the P. Office.

LONDON,

They write from Edingburg, that there was found in the appartment of Mungo Campbell, after he had deſtroyed himſelf, a very affecting letter addreſſed to his wife.

Extract of Letter from Peterſburgh, dated January 30.

"As there is no appearance of a ſpeedy re eſtabliſhment of peace between the two Empires, we foreſee that the approaching campaign will be more ſharp and bloody than the laſt war."

Extract of a Letter, by the laſt mail, from the Hague, to a Merchant of this City, dated Feb 30.

"Things are carrying on here in ſuch a manner, that it is not doubted but a war with Europe is near at hand; for it remains no longer a ſecret that the French and Spaniſh Ambaſſadors have both ſtrongly ſolicited the States General for their aſſiſtance in caſe either of their principals ſhould be attacked; But this has abſolutely been refuſed; whereupon they were as ſtrongly preſſed to obſerve a ſtrict neutrality, which I believe is moſt agreable to the Dutch in general, as thereby they will enjoy the benefit of trade. On the other hand, the King of Pruſſia ſeems (by the demands he has made) to think, that if a war ſhould break out, it will be incumbent on us to take part in it; on which account we have augmented our forces, both by ſea and land, that we may be prepared for the event."

Some of the lateſt Articles by Capt. Scott.

LONDON, March 3

Wedneſday came on the hearing of the allegations againſt Sir Francis Bernard, at the Cockpit, Whitehall.

We are aſſured, that although a certain Baronet is expected to be acquitted of all American accuſations, he was on Thurſday noon informed, by the Earl of H——, that it was not his M—j—y's intentions to employ him any more in America, but that he might hope for employment of his abilities, in his Maſter's ſervice, elſewhere.

A cele is drawn up, and expreſſed in very warm and urgent terms, by the Council for the people of the town of B—n in A——a, which is to be laid before a certain Board in a few days, and from whoſe opinion thereon much is expected.

March 8. A noble Lord in a certain place lately declared, that he was firmly perſuaded the colonies would revolt from the mother country, if they could find any government leſs arbitrary then hers, ready to take them under its protection; but as they could not, the former need not be afraid of inforceing its parental authority over such ungrateful, unnatural, and diſobedient children.

Late laſt night, after the breaking up of an illuſtrious aſſembly, above twenty expreſſes were ſent off to the merchants of the different ports, in order to diſpatch them to North America: So anxious are the commercial people of this metropolis to inform our brethren of the ſucceſs which has attended the application of our friends from the other ſide of the Atlantic.

The court party had a great majority in the Houſe of commons on Monday.

A patriotick member obſerved on Monday, when a motion was made to poſtpone the further hearing of American affairs, that it was much to be apprehended they would put the buſineſs off once too often.

In a certain political club debates on Monday laſt ran high on repealing three acts of that club's laying impoſitions on their friends acroſs the Atlantic.——The two firſt were repealed, but on the diviſion for the third, viz. Whether the Americans ſhall drink tea freely? the numbers were for repealing it 142, againſt repealing it 204.

Fifteen principal American Merchants, we hear, have declared themſelves ſatisfied with the ſteps that have been taken relative to the colonies.

Mr. Turner, ſon of Mr. Alderman Turner, is appointed to the office in Jamaica, for which Mr Vaughan ſolicited.

It is now very confidently aſſerted, that the Parliament will certainly riſe before the 18th of April.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by the Printers hereof, for ready Money only,

The Connecticut Colony

LAW-BOOK,

Containing all the Laws now in Force in this Colony.

THe ſubſcriber takes this method to inform the public, that he has removed with his family from Connecticut to Albany, and keeps a public houſe a little way weſt from the City Hall, in the houſe where Thompſon formerly kept a tavern, adjoining the houſe where Sawyer and Aſhburn formerly kept an Engliſh Tavern, If any perſons from New-England will oblige him with their cuſtom, may depend upon having civil treatment, and as reaſonable as any in the city.

Eliſha Benedict.

N. B. My Sign is John Wilkes, Eſq;

Hartford, April 27 1770

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon judge of probate for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners to receive & examine the claims of the creditors to the eſtate of Moſes Williams, late of Hartford deceas'd, (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the houſe of Daniel Pitkin, inholder in ſaid Hartford, on the laſt tueſdays of May, June, July and Sept. next, from two to ſix o'clock afternoon on each of ſaid days.

Jonathan Stanly,
Daniel Pitkin. } Commiſſioners.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

STRAYED or Stolen, from the Subſcriber, out of the South-Meadow in Hartford, ſometime about December laſt, a black Horſe COLT, three years old coming, branded with I. C. on the left thigh, trots all, middling ſize.——Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Colt, and ſend word to the ſubſcriber, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JOSEPH CHURCH.

Hartford, May 5

This Is to requeſt all perſons that have any demand againſt Mrs. Ann Morſon (late of Hartford deceas'd) Capt Geo. Smith and John Walker, as they were executors of the laſt will and teſtament of Dr. Normand Moriſon late of Hartford deceas'd: to bring in their accounts againſt either, or all, of us as executors aforeſaid, unto Capt. George Smith in Hartford, or John Walker in Bolton, the only ſurving executors, by the firſt day of June next, in order for Settlement.

JOHN WALKER.

Hartford, May 2. 1770

Wanted Immediately,

A Perſon that can be well recommended, to take the care of a ſmall FARM, in the new country, by Connecticut river, for ſix months, and a very generous reward will be given.——Inquire of the PRINTERS.

THE Subſcriber intending to open School ſoon, deſires his Cuſtomers to ſend their Children into his Houſe, the Week after the Election, for he will be ready to ſerve them then.

ISAAC BULL.

Litchfield, April 28, 1770.

P.S. Strangers may depend on good Uſage.

TO BE SOLD BY

James Tiley,

GOLDSMITH, at his Shop, juſt below Meſſ. Lathrop & Smith's Store in King-Street Hartford.

CYPHER'd and Brilliant Stone Ear-Rings ſet in Gold, ditto in Silver, Cypher'd and Brilliant Stone Buttons, Stone Rings, and Stone Lockets, with a variety of other Articles.

TO BE SOLD BY

Philip Mortimer,

Of Middletown, ſundry pieces of Land viz.

One piece or parcel

Lying in Eaſt Windſor, containing 98 acres, 18 of which is choice meadow, the other wood land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Weſt on the country road, north on land belonging to Mr. Ellſworth, eaſt partly on Scantick river, and ſouth on a highway.——TWO other pieces lying in Weathersfield, containing about twenty acres, being choice paſture land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſt on land of James Michel's, weſt on land of Gerſhom Nott's, ſouth partly on land of Moſes Deming's, and partly on James Curtiſs's land, and north on Moſes Deming's. THE other piece containing about ſix acres, butted eaſt on land of Moſes Deming, weſt on land of Francis Hanmer, north partly on land belonging to Gerſhom Nott, and partly on James Curtiſs's, and ſouth partly on land belonging to Thomas Wells, and partly on Francis Hanmers land.——ONE other piece lying in Middletown, containing thirty acres, conſiſting of plow land, paſture and meadow land, butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſterly on land of the heirs of Daniel Merwin, weſterly on land of Joſhua Webſter, north on land of Joſeph Barns, and —ſouth on land Miles Merwin. For further particulars enquire of ſaid Mortimer.

277 ep 3m.

NOTICE is hereby given to the gentlemen Members of the Medical Corporation in Litchfield County, that at their adjourn'd Convention of ſaid Corporation on the 8th Day of May A. D. 1770 Voted a tax of 3s. for each member to be paid to the Treaſurer of ſaid Corporation at the next convention on the ſecond Tueſday of June next, it is hoped that all the members will attend.

L O N D O N.

They write from Edinburgh, that there was found in the apartment of [illegible] after he had destroyed himself, a very affecting letter addressed to his wife.

Extract of a Letter from Petersburgh, dated January 30.

"As there is no appearance of a speedy re-establishment of peace between the two empires, we foresee that the approaching campaign will be more sharp and bloody than [illegible]."

Extract of a Letter by the last mail from the Hague, to a Merchant of this City, dated Feb. 3.

"Things are carrying on here in such a manner, that it is not doubted but a war with France is near at hand; for it remains no longer a secret that the French and Spanish Ambassadors have both [illegible] the States-General for their alliance, [illegible] of their principals should be attacked, but this has absolutely been refused, [illegible] strongly prefer'd [illegible] the city, which [illegible] is most agreeable to the Dutch in general, as thereby they will enjoy the benefit of trade. On the other hand, the King of Prussia seems (by the declaration he was made) to think, that if a war should break out, it will be incumbent on us to take part in it; on which account we have augmented our forces both by sea and land, that we may be prepared for the event."

Some of the latest Articles by Capt. Scott.

L O N D O N, March 3.

Wednesday came on the hearing of the allegations against Sir Francis Bernard at the Cockpit, Whitehall.

We are assured, that although a certain Baronet is expected to be acquitted of all [illegible] he was [illegible] lately been informed by the Earl of H—— that it was not his M—j—y's intentions to employ him any more in America, but that he might hope for employment of his abilities in his Master's service elsewhere.

A case is drawn up, and expressed in very warm and pungent terms, by the Council for the people of the town of B—n, [illegible] which is to be laid before a certain Board in a few days, and from whose opinion there is much expected.

March 8. A noble Lord in a certain place lately declared, that he was firmly persuaded the colonies would revolt from the mother country if they could find any government less arbitrary than hers ready to take them under its protection; but as they could not, the former need not be afraid of inforceing its parental authority over such ungrateful, unnatural and disobedient children.

Late last night, after the breaking up of an illustrious assembly above twenty expresses were sent off to the merchants of the different ports in order to dispatch them to North America. So anxious are the commercial people of this metropolis to inform our brethren of the success which has attended the application of our friends from the other side of the Atlantic.

The court party had a great majority in the House of commons on Monday.

A patriotick member observed on Monday, when a motion was made to postpone the further hearing of American affairs, that it was much to be apprehended they would put the business off once too often.

In a certain political club debates on Monday last ran high on repealing three acts of that club's laying impositions on their friends across the Atlantic.——The two first were repealed, but on the division for the third, viz. Whether the Americans shall drink tea freely? the numbers were for repealing it 142, against repealing it 304.

Fifteen principal American Merchants, we hear, have declared themselves [illegible] with the steps that have been taken here to the colonies.

Mr. Turner, son of Mr. Alderman Turner, is appointed to the office in Jamaica, for which Mr. Vaughan [illegible].

It is now very confidently asserted, that the Parliament will certainly rise before the 14th of April.

Just Published, and to be sold by the Printers hereof, for ready Money only,

The Connecticut Colony

LAW-BOOK,

Containing all the Laws now in Force in this Colony.

T[illegible]

N. B. Mr. [illegible]

Hartford, April [illegible] 1770.

WE the subscribers being appointed by the hon. judge of probate for the district of Hartford, commissioners to receive and examine the claims of the creditors to the estate of Moses Williams, late of Hartford, deceased, represented insolvent, do hereby give notice, that we shall attend to said business at the house of Daniel Pitkin [illegible] in said Hartford, on the last Tuesdays of May, June, July and Sept. next, from two to six o'clock afternoon on each of said days.

Jonathan Stan[illegible]
Daniel Pitkin } Commissioners.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

STRAYED or Stolen, from the Subscriber, out of a pasture in Hartford, sometime in [illegible] a black horse [illegible] three years old [illegible] on the left [illegible] trots all [illegible] middling size.——Whoever shall take up said horse and send word to the subscriber, shall be handsomely rewarded, and all necessary charges paid, by

JOSEPH CHURCH.

Hartford, May 5.

This Is to request all persons that have any demand against Mrs. Ann Morison (late of Hartford deceased) Capt. George Smith and John Walker, as they were executors of the last will and testament of the Normand Morison late of Hartford deceased, to bring in their accounts against either or all of us as executors aforesaid, unto Capt. George Smith in Hartford, or John Walker in Bolton, the only surviving executors, by the first day of June next, in order for settlement.

JOHN WALKER.

Hartford, May 1, 1770.

Wanted Immediately,

A Person that can be well recommended, to take the care of a small FARM, in the neighbourhood of Connecticut river, for [illegible], and a very generous reward will be given.——Enquire of the PRINTERS.

THE Subscriber intending to open [illegible] desires his Customers [illegible] their Children into his [illegible] the Week after the Election, [illegible] ready to receive them there.

ISAAC BULL.

[illegible], April 18, 1770.

[illegible] may depend on good [illegible]

TO BE SOLD BY

James Tiley,

GOLDSMITH, at his Shop just below Mess. Lathrop & Smith's Store in King-Street Hartford.

CYPHER'D and Brilliant Stone Ear-Rings set in Gold, ditto in Silver, Cypher'd and Brilliant Stone Buttons, Stone Rings, and Stone Lockets, with a variety of other Articles.

TO BE SOLD BY

Philip Mortimer,

[illegible] of land, viz.

One piece or parcel

lying in [illegible] containing 98 acres, 18 of which is choice meadow, the other wood land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. West on the country road, north on land belonging to Mr Ellsworth, east partly on Scantick river, and south on [illegible].——TWO other pieces lying in [illegible] containing about twenty acres, being choice pasture land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. East on land of Jonas Michels, west on land of [illegible] Nott's, south partly on land of Moses Hemings and partly on James Curtiss's land, and north on Moses Deming's. ONE other piece containing about six acres, butted east on land of Moses Deming, west on land of Francis Hanmer, north partly on land belonging to Gersham Nott, and partly on James Curtiss's, and south partly on land belonging to Thomas [illegible], and partly on Francis Hanmer's land.——ONE other piece lying in Middletown containing thirty acres, consisting of plow land, pasture and meadow land, butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Easterly on land of the heirs of Daniel [illegible], westerly on land of Joshua Wheeler, north on land of Joseph Bacon, and south on land of Miles Merwin. For further particulars enquire of said Mortimer.

[illegible] 3m.

NOTICE is hereby given to the gentlemen Members of the Medical Corporation in Litchfield County, that at their adjourned Convention of said Corporation on the 8th Day of May A. D. 1770 Voted a tax of 3s. for each member to be paid to the Treasurer of said Corporation at the next convention on the second Tuesday of June next; it is hoped that all the members will attend.

MONDAY, June 4, 1770.

Numb. 2

THE

Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freshest Advices Both Foreign and Domestick.

Jedh Strong Esq:

HARTFORD, May 28, 1770.

TUESDAY last the gentlemen members of the society for promoting arts, agriculture and commerce, within this colony, met pursuant to adjournment from Middletown in February last; the following premiums or donations were voted to be given by the society, viz. Twelve pounds lawful money, to the person who shall raise the greatest number of bushels of good merchantable wheat from four acres of land, lying in one intire piece in this colony in the year 1771.——Nine pounds to the person raising the second greatest number of bushels, and six pounds to the person raising the third greatest number of bushels as above.——Twelve pounds to the person raising the greatest quantity of good Flax, fit for family use, from one acre of land lying in one intire piece in this colony in the year 1771.——Nine pounds to the person who shall raise the second greatest quantity, and six pounds to the person raising the third greatest quantity under the above regulation.——Twelve pounds to the person who shall shear on or before the 15th day of June 1771 the greatest quantity of Wool from twenty sheep in this colony, owned in the colony as early as the 15th of June 1770, and to have been the property of the claimer early as the [illegible].——Nine pounds to the person shearing the second greatest quantity, and six pounds to the person who shall shear the third greatest quantity under the like restrictions.——Twelve pounds to the person who shall make the greatest number of yards of Woolen-Cloth in this colony, from the 1st of June 1770, until the 1st of June 1771, Flannels excepted.——Nine pounds to the person who shall make the second greatest number of yards, and six pounds to the person making the third greatest number of yards as above.——Ten pounds to the person who shall weave the first hundred pair of Stockings in this colony.——Twelve pounds to the person who shall make the greatest number of nails from 4d. to 20d. inclusive in this colony from the 1st of June 1770, until the 1st of June 1771.——Nine pounds to the person making the second greatest number in said term of time, and six pounds to the person who shall make the third greatest number.——Eight pounds to the person who shall on or before the 15th day of June 1771 shear the greatest quantity of Wool from twenty Ewe Sheep, having lambs the same season, the sheep to have been the property of the claimer, early as the 1st of November 1770.——Six pounds to the person shearing the second greatest quantity, and four pounds to the person shearing the third greatest quantity as above regulated.

The society then appointed Doct. Solomon Smith their Treasurer, to receive the several sums that have already, or may hereafter be subscribed for these and such like generous purposes.

Also determined on the mode of proof to be pursued by the claimants of any of the above donations, and chose a committee to adjudge the same, and draw on the treasurer therefor. The names of the committee, with the mode of proof, and time of their meeting will be soon and seasonably published.——As the design is universally allowed to be generous, and tending to the public emolument in a very extensive degree—Gentlemen who have not already subscribed, and are willing to assist in promoting these purposes, are desired to deposit their donations with said treasurer, or with Gurdon Saltonstall, Esq; of New-London, Charles Phelps, Esq; of Stonington, Mr Edward Mott, of Preston, Christopher Leffingwell, Esq; Norwich, Mr Richard Alsop, of Middletown, Mr Adam Babcock, of New Haven, Fisher Gay, Esq; Farmington, or Charles Burrall, Esq; Canaan. The society after appointing Messieurs Matthew Talcott, Richard Alsop and Silas Deane, a committee for corresponding with the Gentlemen in trade, or others in the neighbouring colonies, on the promoting arts, commerce, &c. &c. adjourned to New-Haven, to meet on the first Tuesday of February next, at which time, (as the subscription has a favourable aspect hitherto) it is expected larger and more extensive donations may be made by the society.

Messrs. Green & Watson,

As those lights which frequently appear in the North, called the Aurora Borealis, have occasioned much speculation and enquiry; and the thoughts of many have been exercised in searching after the cause of them, [illegible] any philosophical [illegible] upon them, I make no doubt [illegible] the curiosity of many of your readers [illegible] gratified by inserting the following extract in your public paper.

A probable [illegible] of the Aurora Borealis.

"WHEN the air, with its vapours [illegible] from the Ocean between the tropics, [illegible] to ascend in the polar regions, and [illegible] contact with the vapours arising there, the electrical fire they brought begins to be communicated, and is seen in clear nights, being first visible where it is first in motion, that is, where the contact begins, or in the most northern part; from thence the streams of light seem to shoot southerly, even up to the zenith of northern countries; but though the light seems to shoot from the north southerly, the progress of the fire is really from the south northerly, its motion beginning in the north, is the reason that it is seen there first. For the electrical fire is never visible but when in motion, and leaping from body to body, or from particle to particle through the air; when it passes through dense bodies it is unseen. When a wire makes part of the circle, in the explosion of the electrical phial, the fire though in great quantity, passes in the wire invisibly, but in passing along a chain, it becomes visible as it leaps from link to link. In passing along leaf gold, it is visible, for the leaf gold is full of pores, hold a leaf to the light and it appears like a net, and the fire is seen in its leaping over the vacancies; and as when a long canal is filled with still water, is opened at one end in order to be discharged, the motion of the water begins first near the opened end, and proceeds towards the close end, so the electrical fire discharged into the polar regions, perhaps from a thousand leagues length of vaporiz'd air, appears first where 'tis first in motion, viz. in the most northern part, and the appearance proceeds southward, though the fire really moves northward, &c."

TO BE SOLD BY

James Tiley,

GOLDSMITH, at his Shop just below Mess. Lathrop & Smith's Store in King Street Hartford.

CYPHER'D and Brilliant Stone Ear-Rings set in Gold, ditto in Silver, Cypher'd and Brilliant Stone Buttons, Stone Rings, and Stone Lockets, with a variety of other Articles.

THIS is to notify the Susquehannah company to meet at Hartford on Wednesday the 6th Day of June next, at nine of the Clock in the Morning. And as the Affairs then to be transacted may be of utmost Importance to said Company, it is hoped there will be as universal an Attendance as possible.

Eliphalet Dyer,
Samuel Gray,
Jedediah Elderkin,
Nathaniel Wales jun. } Committee.

ALL Persons indebted to the subscriber of Torrington, are desired to make a settlement within one month from the date hereof, or expect trouble without further notice.

JOHN BURR.

Torington May 28 1770.

RANGER,

A FINE English STALLION of the Barbary breed, a fine dapple colour, rising of 15 hands high. He is allowed by good judges, to be the compleatest horse that was ever brought to America.——Will cover this Season, at the moderate price of Two Dollars the leap, or Five Dollars the season.——He is kept by Capt. JAMES NICHOLS, who has good Pasture for Mares at a moderate Price.

WHereas five of the proprietors of the town of Winchester, have made application to me the subscriber, to warn a meeting of said proprietors, to come into some measures to raise money to defray and pay the expence of the government's committee for clearing the road, and to transact and do any other business that shall be thought proper to be done at said meeting. These are therefore to warn all the proprietors of said Winchester, to meet at the house of Joseph Flagg, innholder at Hartford, on the [illegible] day of June next, at two of the clock in the afternoon, to consider what they will do relating to the above mentioned particulars.

Thomas Hosmer, Proprietors Clerk.

Dated May 18, 1770.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

LONDON, March 20

COPIES of a circular order from the Grand Signior for the obſervation of a day of humiliation, throughout all the provinces of his empire, in conſequence of the uncommon ſucceſs of his enemies, have lately been publiſhed, in which the ſtricteſt abſtinence is enjoined to all true Muſſulmen. The Mufti, and thoſe belonging to the church, were to appear dreſſed as penitents, and in all public places to implore the aſſiſtance of the Almighty. At Mecca the ſepulchral urn of Mahomet was to be expoſed to the people with very ſingular ceremonies. The inhabitants and pilgrims were to march ſix times round the urn, ſinging, in a doleful manner, the ſong of calamity; a ſolemn and generous proceſſion, of 25 miles round, was to conclude the whole in the following order. I. Six hundred perſons cloathed in habits ſtained with blood, their heads uncovered, their feet naked, bearing urns filled with the bones of the dead, armed with broken ſpears, bows, arrows, &c. II. Three hundred penitents in garments covered with blood and aſhes, making loud lamentations, beating their breaſts, &c. III. Six hundred men naked from the head to the middle, flaſhing their ſhoulders and ſides with branches of thorns, till their blood runs down to the ground. IV. The urn of the Prophet borne by thirty Spahis, without turbans, ſurrounded by thirty Pachas, with drawn ſcymitars in their hands, to aſſaſſinate upon the ſpot, whoever ſhould have the preſumption to regard with irreligious eyes the aſhes of Mahomet, and to throw their bodies immediately to the dogs for food. V. At every ſixth part of a mile they cut the throat of a Jew, and flay an aſs, ſo that during the proceſſion, one hundred and twenty five Jews, and as many aſſes left, on the road, bathed in their blood. VI. Thirty Pachas, defiled with the blood of the Jews, bearing horſe whips, with which they continually ſtrike the ground, in order to raiſe the duſt. VII. Three hundred Janiſaries with ſtaves, intreating mercy of God. VIII. The Viſir, with a ſky coloured turban, mounted on a lame jack aſs, which he continually ſtrikes on the head with a bulruſh, crying Pardon, O Lord, my ingratitude! IX. A cheſt filled with gold which is diſtributed to the poor. X. The ſolemnity is cloſed with a multitude, hermits, penitents, &c. who cut themſelves with knives, and invoke the deity to give them power over their enemies.

ITALY.

Leghorn, Feb. 17. A Muſcovite man of war, of 72 guns, entered our port the day before yeſterday, and another of 60 guns, arrived here this day. We learn from the crew, that the Ruſſian Admiral had diſpatched ſeveral frigates from Port Mahon for the Archipelago, and that he himſelf departed in order to follow them the third inſtant. Some veſſels are ſtill at Mahon, waiting for the arrival of Admiral Elphinſtone, after which they are to join the Ruſſian fleet at the Iſle of Wiſdom, and proceed on their rout to the Archipelago.

Genoa, Feb. 26. They are daily ſending great quantities of troops and ammunition from different ports in Spain to the Colonies of that monarchy in America: and our letters from that kingdom ſay, that a rupture between England and Spain is much apprehended.

From the frontiers of Italy, March 6. The laſt letters from the Levant mention, that the Ruſſian fleet had appeared at the iſlands of Cephalonia and Zante, in the Jonic ſea, and that they had ſailed with a fair wind for the Morea.

LONDON, March 24.

By a gentleman lately arrived in town from Carthagena, we have advice, that in that harbour are ſeveral firſt rate men of war, beſides frigates ready to put to ſea at few hours notice. The ſame gentleman ſays, he was aſſured that in every other port of Spain there were men of war and frigates, all well manned, and ready for immediate ſervice.

We learn from very good authority, that the Earl of Hillſborough aſſerted, a few days ſince, that all American matters will ſhortly be ſettled in a manner entirely ſatisfactory to all parties

March 27. The reports of the day reſpecting Lord Chatham are very contradictory: Some ſay his Lordſhip is extremely ill with the gout at Hayes; others that he is much better, was expected in town this day, and would declare in a certain aſſembly his authority, for having aſſerted ſome time ago in the ſame place, "That the French had ſtruck a blow againſt Great Britain in ſome part of the globe."—and it is alſo ſaid, that he would diſcloſe a ſcene that would thunder ſtrike certain Great Perſonages with terror and confuſion.

Several large mooring chains and ſwivels are now fabricating at Woolwich, to be ſhipped for Gibraltar and Port Mahon.

LONDON, March 20.

Warſaw March 7. A courier is juſt arrived with Advice of another conſiderable advantage which the Ruſſians have gained over the Turks. The new Grand Vizir had received orders from the Grand Signior to uſe his utmoſt endeavors to oblige the Ruſſians to retire from the provinces of Moldavia and Walachia, or at leaſt to prevent their paſſing the Danube; and knowing moreover that Lieut. De Stoffein was upon the march towards Brailawt detached 20,000 men who croſſed that river at Siliſtria, in order to advance to Bachareſt the capital of Walachia. The Ruſſian General receiving intelligence of theſe motions, immediately quitted Brailaw, and went to Dairgowa to wait for the enemy. The latter ſoon after arrived, attacked the Ruſſians with great ſpirit, but without ſucceſs. In the heat of the action Major Gen. Potenſkin took the enemy in flank with ſo much ſucceſs, that they were entirely defeated. Their loſs in killed and wounded is about 3000 men, and 2000 taken priſoners; moſt of their cannon and baggage likewiſe fell into the hands of the conquerors. The latter being willing to improve their victory, are taking proper meaſures to drive the Turks from both ſides the Danube.

Another account ſays, that the above action happened on the 18th of February, that 3000 Turks were left dead upon the ſpot, and 2000 taken priſoners.

March 27. A foreign Ambaſſador at our Court is ſaid to have demanded a categorical anſwer, relative to the intentions of Great Britain, ſhould the King his Maſter find it abſolutely neceſſary to oppoſe the Ruſſian court in the preſent war againſt the Grand Seignior.

There is certain advice that the King of Pruſſia has marched four battalions into Poland.

LONDON,

This morning, and not before, Admiral Elphinſton ſet out for Portſmouth, having received orders to haſten the departure of the Ruſſian fleet for the Mediterranean.

The laſt diſpatches from Murry, the Britiſh ambaſſador at Conſtantinople, confirm the accounts already publiſhed of the great warlike preparations of the Turks; and add, that the Grand Seignor will cut a more reſpectable figure at ſea this ſummer, than at any time ſince the eſtabliſhment of the Ottoman navy.

EPIGRAM.

SAYS Gouty to Gawkee, "Pray what do you mean?"
Says Gawkee to Gouty, "to mob King and Queen."
Says Gawkee to Gouty, "pray what's your intention?"
Says Gouty to Gawkee, "to double my PENSION."

HARTFORD, June 4.

Extract of a Letter from a gentleman in London, to his friend in Boſton, March 29.

"A certain periodical paper called the Whiſperer, No. 5 and 6, having been laid before the lower room of the Robinhood Society. The club came to the following reſolution: "That the ſaid paper is a falſe, ſcandalous, and ſeditious libel, moſt inſolently affronting and calumniating his M— and his r—— f——y, preſuming even to throw out menaces againſt the K— endeavouring to create in his M. a diſtruſt of his people, as well as to alienate the affections of the people from his M. and tending to excite the moſt dangerous attempts againſt his M.'s perſon, and againſt the preſent happy eſtabliſhment of the government of theſe k——s in his M.'s illuſ——s h—— e." After which, it was ordered, that the ſaid reſolution be communicated to the upper room at a conference, and their concurrence deſired thereto; whereupon a meſſenger was ordered from the lower room to deſire a conference upon a matter of ſuch importance to the dignity of the c—n, and the honour of his M.'s perſon and g——t; and the meſſenger being returned, reported that the upper room had agreed to the ſaid conference; upon which a committee was appointed to manage the ſame, who laid the 5th and 6th numbers of the Whiſperer, together with reſolution of the lower room before them.——The lower room alſo reſolved, that an h——le a——s be preſented to his M. that he will be gr——ly pleaſed to give directions to his Att——y Gen——l, to proſecute the author or authors, the printer or printers, and the publiſher or publiſhers, of the ſcandalous, falſe, and ſeditious libel, in order that they may be brought to condign puniſhment for the ſame.

It, is ſaid that the author or publiſher of the Whiſperer is not to be found. They are only ſold by a Parcel of children, one of whom ſays he is Meſſer Moore the publiſher.

LEFT in the Store of the ſubſcriber of Hartford, a pair of Silver Shoe Buckles.——The owner may have them again, on proving his property, and paying for this Advertiſement, by applying to
WILLIAM KNOX.
Hartford, June 4, 1770.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by the Printers hereof, for ready Money only,

The Connecticut Colony

LAW-BOOK,

Containing all the Laws now in Force in this Colony.

Pot-Aſh and Salts.

CASH and Weſt-India Goods to be given for good merchantable POT-ASH and dry SALTS, by
LATHROP & SMITH,
At their Store in Hartford.

BOSTON, May 31, 1770.

YESTERDAY being the Anniverſary of the day appointed by the Royal Charter for the Election of Councellors for this Province, the Great and General Court or Aſſembly met at Harvard College in Cambridge, at Nine o'Clock in the Morning; when the uſual Oaths were adminiſtred to the Gentlemen who were returned to ſerve as Members of the Honorable Houſe of repreſentatives, who alſo ſubſcribed to the Declaration.

Previous to the Choice of Councellors, Letters were read, from the Hon. BENJAMIN LINCOLN, Eſq; the Hon. JOHN HILL, Eſq; the Hon. GAMALIEL BRADFORD, Eſq; reſigning their Seats at Council Board, on account of their Age and Bodily Indiſpoſition.

The following gentlemen were elected Councellors for the enſuing Year, viz.

For the late Colony of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

The HONORABLE
SAMUEL DANFORTH, Eſq;
ISAAC ROYAL, Eſq;
JOHN ERVING, Eſq;
* WILLIAM BRATTLE, Eſq;
* JAMES BOWDOIN, Eſq;
THOMAS HUBBARD, Eſq;
HARRISON GRAY, Eſq;
JAMES RUSSELL, Eſq;
ROYALL TYLER, Eſq;
JAMES PITTS, Eſq;
SAMUEL DEXTER, Eſq;
* JOSEPH GERRISH, Eſq;
* THOMAS SANDERS, Eſq;
* JOHN HANCOCK, Eſq;
* ARTEMAS WARD, Eſq;
* BENJAMIN GREENLEAF, Eſq;
* JOSHUA HENSHAW, Eſq;
* STEPHEN HALL, Eſq;

For the late Colony of PLYMOUTH.
* JAMES OTIS, Eſq;
WILLIAM SEVER, Eſq;
* JERATHMEEL BOWERS, Eſq;
* WALTER SPOONER, Eſq;

For the late Province of MAINE.
NATHANIEL SPARHAWK, Eſq;
JOHN BRADBURY, Eſq;
JEREMIAH POWELL, Eſq;

For SAGADAHOCK.
* JAMES GOWEN, Eſq;

At Large.
* JAMES HUMPHRY, Eſq;
* GEORGE LEONARD, Eſq;

The Gentlemen with this [*] were not of the Council laſt Year.

The liſt of Councellors choſen Yeſterday being this day agreeable to the direction of the Royal Charter, preſented to the Lieutenant-Governor, His Honor was pleaſed to conſent to the Election of the Gentlemen before mentioned, except the Hon. JOHN HANCOCK, Eſq; and JERATHMEEL BOWERS, Eſq;

JOSEPH GERRISH Eſq; declined going to the Board.

NEW-YORK, May 31.

We hear that John Clay and Jacob Oſborne, the two Criminals who were to have been executed the 18th Inſt. have received his Honor the Lieut. Governor's Pardon.

We have undoubted Intelligence, not only that it was certain the Duty on Tea, would not be taken off, the laſt Seſſion of Parliament, but that the Repeal of the Duties on Paper, Glaſs, and Painters Colours, was not to take Place before December next. So that the Non-Importation Agreement, to anſwer the End, muſt neceſſarily ſubſiſt, at leaſt till after the Seaſon for next Fall Goods will be over.

MAY 21, 1770.

Paſſage-Boat.

THIS is to inform the public, that I the ſubſcriber have provided a good BOAT convenient for paſſengers, which will ſail in the following manner, from the date above-mentioned every other week, viz. from Saybrook on Monday to Middletown, and from Middletown to Sagg-Harbour on Wedneſday, and from Sagg-Harbour back again on Friday, wind and weather permitting.——The fare for man and horſe is one dollar, and for a ſingle paſſenger, is half a dollar.——All gentlemen paſſengers, who are inclined to favour him with their cuſtom, will meet with good uſage, from their humble ſervant,
JEREMIAH LORD.

TO BE SOLD BY
Philip Mortimer,
Of Middletown, ſundry pieces of Land, viz.

One piece or parcel

Lying in Eaſt Windſor, containing 98 acres, 18 of which is choice meadow, the other wood land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Weſt on the country road, north on land belonging to Mr. Ellſworth, eaſt partly on Scantick river, and ſouth on a highway.——TWO other pieces lying in Weathersfield, containing about twenty acres, being choice paſture land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſt on land of James Mitchel's, weſt on land of Gerſhom Nott's, ſouth partly on land of Moſes Deming's, and partly on James Curtiſs's land, and north on Moſes Deming's. THE other piece containing about ſix acres, butted eaſt on land of Moſes Deming, weſt on land of Francies Hanmor, north partly on land belonging to Gerſhom Nott, and partly on James Curtiſs's, and ſouth partly on land belonging to Thomas Wells, and partly on Francies Hanmors land.——ONE other piece lying in Middletown, containing thirty acres, conſiſting of plow land, paſture and meadow land, butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſterly on land of the heirs of Daniel Merwin, weſterly on land of Juſtus Webſter, north on land of Joſeph Bates, and ſouth on land Miles Merwin. For further particulars enquire of ſaid Mortimer.
277 ap 3m.

Meſſ. GREEN & WATSON

The incloſed are a few lines compoſed ſome time paſt with no deſign of publication; but ſince many who were acquainted with the eminent perſon, whoſe death occaſioned them, have deſired copies of them; I thought it would not be diſagreeable to the public to ſee them in your paper

On the death of Mr. Jonathan Lyman, written May 4th 1767, exactly one year after his death.

"How often we talk'd down the Summers ſun,
"And cool'd our paſſions by the breezy Stream!
"How often thaw'd & ſhortned winter's Eve!" YOUNG

THIS is the day, the lamentable day,
On which my muſe her yearly debt ſhall pay
Once has the ſun his annual courſe perform'd,
Once winter froze the earth, and ſummer warm'd:
Since cruel death has robb'd the world & me,
The world of truth, honor and honeſty;
Me of a friend moſt worthy and moſt dear,
Cordial as worthy virtuous as ſincere.
All the freſh pleaſures of the blooming ſpring,
The joys which chearful May was wont to bring,
All vaniſh at the thought of my loſt friend,
His pleaſant life and its untimely end.
O friendſhip's ſtrong indiſſoluble ties!
Stronger than death, & higher than the ſkies!
Friendſhip! juſt repreſentative of bliſs
Of future future life, by few enjoy'd in this.
Once by indulgent bounteous gracious heav'n,
To me was this exceeding bleſſing giv'n;
But now I've loſt th' ineſtimable prize.
Perpetual torrents guſh from my ſwol'n eyes
Mountains of pond'rous grief before me riſe
But view my friend beyond his earthly pain,
My loſs is his ineſtimable gain.
Free from all trouble free from all complaints
He talks with angels & he walks with ſaints,
No more he feels, nor fears the chaſt'ning rod
But in eternal hymns of praiſe employ'd
Stands near the throne of our almighty God.
He and that Choir unceaſing anthems ſing,
To their all gracious prophet prieſt & king.
My brother JONATHAN! how much diſtreſs'd
Is my ſoul heart with love for thee impreſs'd
My pungent grief, Angels I hope approve,
Thy love to me ſurpaſſed woman's love.*
How grievous then with ſuch dear friend to part
So ſweet his converſe, & ſo kind his heart
Say happy ſpirits — In your realms above,
Do ye forget the friendſhip and the love,
That purer happineſs, that bliſs refin'd,
Which warms the heart & gratifies the mind.
Since friendſhip is an intellectual joy,
'Tis what the power of death can ne'er deſtroy
The king of Terrors can't diſſolve the ſoul,
But leaves it's properties and motions whole.
When I ſhall reſt upon my earthly bed,
My name forgot, or number'd with the dead,
Then may my ſoul obtain ſome humbler place,
In thoſe bright manſions of eternal peace,
Near the bleſs'd ſoul of my departed friend,
Where love ſo well begun may never end,
Where human friendſhip adds to heav'nly bliſs
Their peace intire, ſecure their happineſs
As in this world our kindred ſouls were join'd
In heav'n our love will be increas'd refin'd
Where heart ſhall vie with heart, and voice, with voice
In rapt'rous Anthems and eternal joys.

* 2 Sam I 26

STray'd or ſtolen from the ſubſcriber of Farmington, about three weeks ago, a bay Mare 3 years old branded with the letter X on her left ſhoulder, a ſtar in the fore head, halter broke, dock'd and trim'd.——Whoſoever ſhall take up ſaid beaſt, and ſend word to the ſubſcriber, ſhall be reaſonably rewarded by
MOSES ANDRUS.
Farmington, May 28, 1770.

Lathrop & Smith,

Have juſt Imported from LONDON, and have for ſale at their Store in Hartford, the following BOOKS, at as low a rate as they are uſually ſold in Boſton or New-York.——N. B. Thoſe articles marked thus [*] are to be Sold for very little more than the Prime Coſt.

DIVINITY.
ADDISON's Evidences
Berry Street Sermons
Burnham's pious memorials
Butler's Analogy
Bibles of various ſizes
Cruden's Concordance New Edition.
Common Prayer Books
Dodd's Common-Place Book
Doddrige's Family Expoſitor
——Riſe & Progreſs
——Power and Grace
——Life
——Regeneration
——Sermons to young ——Tracts (People
——Educat. of Children
——Hymns
Davis's Sermons
Derham's Phyſico Theology
Edwards on Orig[illegible]
[illegible] Sermons
Flavel's Works
Guyſe's Paraphraſe
[illegible] ſmall Concordance
Henry on the Bible
Hall's Contemplations
Hervey's Dialogues
——Letters
——Meditations
Henry on Prayer
——On the Sacrament
Lowmans Ritual of the Hebrew Worſhip
*Manton's Works 5 Vol. ſecond Hand
Newton on the Propheciſs
Owen on the 130 Pſ.
Pool's Annotations
Pſalters and Primmers
Perſall's Contemplations
Prideaux's Connection
Paradiſe Loſt & Regain'd
Pilgrims Progreſs
Ray's Phyſico Theology
Seed's Sermons 4 Vol.
Sherlock's Dean Sermons
——On Death
——On the Future State
——On Judgment
Sandeman's Letters
Tate & Brady's Pſalms
Taylor on Original [illegible]
Teſtaments
Tillotſon's Sermons in 12 Vol.
Venn's compleat duty of man
Willſon on the Sabbath
Watts's whole Works in 6 vol.
——58 Sermons with Hymns
——World to come
——Lyric Poems
——Scripture Hiſtory
——Philoſophical Eſſays
——Ruin & Recovery
——Orthodoxy and Charity
——Redeemer and Sanctifyer
——Guide to Prayer
——Hymns and Pſalms
Wells's geography of the Bible
Weſt and Littleton on the Reſurrection
Welles's Vindication of Preſbyt. Ordination
Whitefield's Hymns
Wollaſton's Religion of Nature
Young's Centaur
——Satyres
——Night Thoughts
——Reſignation
Arnolds Compleat Pſalmodiſt
[illegible] Pſ. Singers help
Tanſur's Royal Melody
Williams's Pſalmody

LAW
Attorney's Practice in Court Com. Pleas
Do. in King's Bench
Bacon's Abridg. 5th V.
Burn's Juſtice
Compleat Juryman
Every Man his own Lawyer
Hawkin's Pleas of the Crown
Hale's Hiſtory of the Common Law
Holt's Reports
Jacob's Law D'y.
Law of Evidence
Trials per Pais
Wood's Inſtitutes

PHYSIC, SURGERY, &c.
Allen's Synopſis
Arbuthnot on Aliments
Aſtruc's Diſeaſes of Children
Armſtrong on diſeaſes of Infants
Alexanders experimental Eſſays
Brook's Diſpenſatory
Ditto on Fevers
Brook's Pract. of Phyſic
——Introduction do
Boerhaave's Materia Medica,
Power of Medicine
Aphoriſms
Lectures 6 Vol.
Medical Correſpondence
Chamberlain's Midwifery
Cheyne on Health
Do Engliſh Malady
Cheſelden's Anatomy
Drake's ditto
Diſſertation on Drowning
Elaboratory laid open
*Friend's Hiſt. Phyſic
Emmenologia
Fuller's Pharmacopia Extempora
Gibſon on Fevers
Gooches Surgery
Gilchriſt on Sea Voyages
Huxham on Fevers
Hillary on the Small Pox
Heiſters Surgery
Harveies Midwifery
James's Diſpenſatory
Kiel's Anatomy
Ledran's Obſervations
Lobb's Practice
Langriſh on Muſcular Motion
Morgan's Principles of Medicine
Medical Obſervations
Do Tranſactions
——Eſſays
Quincy's Diſpenſatory
Sanctorious
Lexicon
Robinſon on Conſumptions
Shaw's Boerhaave
Diſpenſatory
Practice of Phyſic
Schomberg's Abridgment of Van Swieten's Commentaries
Smellies Midwifery
Sharp's Surgery
Swan's Sydenham
Smith on the Nerves
Tiſſot on Health.
Turner's Surgery
*Van Swieten's Commentaries on Boerhaave's Aphoriſms
Do 11th, 13th & 14th Vol by themſelves
*Winſlow's Anatomy
Wainwright on the Non Naturals

SCHOOL BOOKS.
Ainſworth's Latin Dictionary
Young's do
Art of Sp. king
Baileys Dictionary
Chambers ditto
Coles Latin Dictionary
Cockers Arithmetick
Cooks Compting Houſe
Clarks Grammar
——Juſtin
——Introduction
——Corderius
——Eraſmus
——Cornelius Nepos
——Eutropius
Cheevers Accidence
Dilworths Arithmetick
——Spelling Book
Dyches Dictionary
Dictionary of Arts and Sciences
Dixons Spel. Book
Davidſons Virgil and Horace
Fiſhers Arithmetick
Hills do
Guthries Cicero
Greek Lexicon
——Grammar
——Teſtament
Gordons Grammar
Horace in Uſum Delphini
Johnſons Dictionary
Lillys Grammar
Latin Teſtament
Lock on Underſtanding
Martins Grammar
Pocket Dictionary
Preceptor
Rudimans Rudiments
Salmons Grammar
——Gazetteer
Tulleys Orations
Do In Uſum Delph.
Virgil in Uſum ditto
Weſt India Pilot
Young Mans Companion
Young Students Pocket Library

HISTORY.
European Settlements in North America.
Kimbers Hiſtory of England.
Life of Marlborough
Lockman's Hiſtory of the Perſecutions
Martial Review of the late Wars
Neals Hiſtory of New England.
Do. of the Puritans
Newberys Hiſtory of England.
Preſent State of G. B.
Do Do of Europe
Rapins Hiſtory of England Abridged
Robinſon Cruſoe
Smolletts Hiſtory of England
Continuation of Do. by itſelf
Travels of Cyrus
Tour thro' G. Britain
Thomſons Travels

MISCELLANY
Art of preſerving health
Amelia
Adventurer
Boyles Adventures
Cato's Letters
Connoiſſeur
Duhamels Huſbandry
Dialogues of the Dead
Ellis's Practical Farmer
Friendly Inſtructor
Free-Maſons Pocket-Companion
Female Spectator
Family Inſtructor
Gardeners Calender
Gentleman Inſtructed
Grandiſon Sir Charles
Gaudentio de Lucca
Handmaid to the Arts
Hutchinſon on Beauty and Virtue
Do on the Paſſions
Hiſtory of Nourjahad
Idler
Letters to married Women
London Magazines bound or unbound
Lady's Library
* Moral Tales
Mrs. Rowes Letters
Pamela in Miniature
Pomphrets Poems
Popes Eſſay on Man
——Works in 9 Vols
Pamela
Religious Courtſhip
Seneca's Morals
Serm. to young Women
Thompſons Seaſons
Univerſal Spectator
* Vicar of Wakefield
Virtue the ſource of Pleaſure
World in 4 Vols
Young Lady Conducted. &c. &c. &c.
A great variety of ſmall books for Children
* Tragedies Operas, &c

By the direction of the Court of Probate.

TO be ſold at public vendue, all the real eſtate of Elijah Kent, late of Suffield deceas'd for the benefit of the creditors to ſaid eſtate, under the incumbrance of the Widows thirds being rendered Inſolvent, ſaid Vendue will be attended at the dwelling houſe of ſaid deceas'd on the laſt Tueſday of June next to begin at two o'clock in the afternoon.

Samuel Kent,
Aaron Hitchcock. } Adminiſtrators on ſaid Eſtate.

AT an adjourn'd meeting of the New-Hampſhire proprietors, held at the houſe of Charles Burrall, Eſq; in Canaan, on the 9th day of May, A. D. 1770, it appears by the returns made to this meeting, that the ſums of money already collected, by the committee appointed by ſaid proprietors, at our laſt meeting to collect half a Dollar on each right, are inadequate for the purpoſe of defending ſaid New-Hampſhire title. And whereas the trial of the cauſes depending between the New-Hampſhire and N. York claimers comes on at Albany, at the ſupream court to be held there on the fourth Tueſday of June next, before which time a large ſum of money muſt be had, or the cauſes then depending muſt fall to the ground, and perhaps the whole Hampſhire title with them. Therefore it is once more earneſtly recommended to every individual New-Hampſhire proprietor that hath any regard to his own intereſt, not by any means to neglect paying ſaid half a dollar on a right, ſo that the ſame may be depoſited with Charles Burrall, Eſq; treaſurer, by the tenth day of June next, ſince by ſo ſmall a ſum he may at this time, have ſo valuable an intereſt defended. And it is hoped that no one will on this urgent occaſion, forfeit his intereſt in ſaid lands, for fear of loſing 3/. only. And the whole meeting pledge their honor that the money ſhall be faithfully uſed for the defence of ſaid Hampſhire title and for nothing elſe.——Voted that the proceedings of this meeting be printed in this and the [illegible] papers.——Voted that this meeting be adjourned to the ſecond Wedneſday of October next, at the houſe of Capt. Stephen Fay in Bennington. The foregoing is a true copy of the proceedings of ſaid meeting. Teſt, Solomon Whitney, Clerk for ſaid meeting.

☞ The time money is really wanted, is by the tenth day of June next.

Lanbier Leſcoiet,

(Clock and Watch maker from Paris),

TAKES this opportunity to inform the public, that he makes, mends and cleans all ſorts of Clocks and Watches, at his Shop in Kingſtreet Hartford, at the ſign of the Clock, at as reaſonable a rate as they can be done in any part of America, and all gentlemen favouring him with their cuſtom, may depend upon being ſerv'd in the beſt manner.

N.B. Said Leſcoiet, has for ſale a repeating WATCH of his own make, which he will warrant to be of the beſt kind, it being no way larger, than a common Watch, though its parts are more numerous.

OIL, and BLUBBER, of the beſt Quality, Suitable for Tanners uſe, To be Sold by

Joſeph Barrett,
Of Hartford.

Whereas Betty Ned,

So called, to whom I was once married, hath for ſeveral years eloped from my bed and board, and has had children by other men, hath run me in debt, and am informed ſhe intends to do ſo again.——THIS is to notify all perſons not to credit her one penny on my account, for I will not pay any debt that ſhe may contract. JOHN CALE.

Hartford, May 19, 1770.

MONDAY, June 11, 1770.

Numb 285.

THE
Connecticut COURANT:

Containing the freſheſt Advice Both Foreign and Dome[illegible]

NEW-YORK, May 31.

Monday Evening arrived the Ship Britannia, Capt Thomas Miller, in 6 weeks from the Downs May the 25th Lon. 66 38. ſpake the Sloop Rainbow, Capt Solomon Phips, 12 Days from Caſco-Bay bound to Bermudas. The London Papers to the 16th April, by Capt. Miller, give us the following Advices, viz

LONDON, April 7

THE queſtion upon which the Min—ty became the M—j—y, yeſterday ſe'nnight, has not yet been clearly explained. A motion having been made by Mr G—lle for leave to bring in a bill for the more equitable deciſion of conteſted elections; the ſame was granted, but the min—try thought fit to oppoſe its paſſing, not perhaps becauſe they did not approve it, but becauſe they might think it was giving a branch of the m——l prerogative. It had been a cuſtom of which all m—s had availed themſelves from the time of the Revolution down to the preſent p——; to determine conteſted elections by numbers; and as the m——r could, in former P——ts, always command a majority, the deciſions in conteſt were ſure to be carried in favour of the man whom the m——r approved; inſomuch that during the Tory m—y of Q. Anne, there was not one inſtance of a Whig member's being admitted upon petition; and during the miniſtry of Sir R. Walpole, it is well known, that the loſs of the Chippenham election was the loſs of his power as a miniſter. To prevent theſe ſhameful proceedings for the future, the bill in queſtion provides, that 45 members ſhall be appointed by the Houſe as a ſelect committee, to inquire into the merits of the election in conteſt, out of which number each candidate ſhall have a right to except againſt fifteen; ſo that the number of fifteen will at laſt only remain to decide the conteſt; and theſe are, upon oath, to determine according to the evidence that ſhall be produced before them. A more equitable bill than this the mind of man could not have ſuggeſted. It was not therefore to be wondered that it met the countenance of a very great majority, and the rather, as the principle upon which it was oppoſed could have weight only with a few. This bill will, in its conſequences, operate farther than at firſt view it may ſeem, as it effectually ſtrikes at the root of bribery and corruption; for as there is already a law as ſtrong as words can frame it, againſt bribery and corruption, the ſlighteſt proof of any ſuch influence will now diſqualify any member from ſitting in the Houſe, and no m——r will be able to defend him.

April 14. Yeſterday the Houſe of peers adjourned to Thurſday the 26th inſt and the Houſe of Commons to Tueſday the 24th.

It is ſaid that a certain declaration in an auguſt aſſembly, made by a patriotic Peer, will be queſtioned after the holidays.

At the meeting of an auguſt aſſembly after the holidays, when the temporary buſineſs is gone through, the lately delivered petitions and remonſtrances will be farther conſidered.

At Guildhall yeſterday, after the Town-Clerk had read aloud the King's anſwer to the Remonſtrance, with the reſolutions and addreſs of the Houſe of Commons thereon; as likewiſe the reſolutions of the Goldſmiths Grocers, & Weavers; a motion was made and ſeconded, that the King's anſwer ſhould be entered on the City Journals which was agreed to.

The Lord Mayor thereon obſerved, 'That the anſwer received to the remonſtrance was a very harſh one; ſo much ſo, that in the whole hiſtory of England, it perhaps, could not be parallel'ed. Notwithſtanding this, he ſaid, he could not arraign his Majeſty, but his M——rs; who, on this, as well upon every other occaſion, treated the opinions of the people with inſolence and diſreſpect. As a proof of the affability of the King, he urged their having all had the honour to kiſs his hand.

He mentioned 'the danger he had run in ſupporting the late reſolutions of the Livery in a certain aſſembly, on which occaſion (he ſaid) he had been threatened with confinement, ſequeſtration of his effects, and even with baniſhment; and which threats he really believed would have been put in execution but for the ſpirited ſupport of another of the city's repreſentatives, Mr. Trecothick, and the two worthy Sheriffs, with ſome other gentlemen.

In regard to the reſolutions of the Goldſmith's Weavers, and Grocers he ſaid, 'That their reflections were as illiberal as untrue, as that, as well as every act of the Livery, was not done clandeſtinely or inſidiouſly, but in the face of open day, and with the joint concurrence (one only excepted) of the moſt reſpectable citizens in the world.'

He concluded with obſerving 'That he had accepted the office of Lord Mayor, with a determination to ſupport the dignity of it as an honeſt man, & their faithful guardian, and that, though they were charged with a deſign to promote riots and diſturbances in the city, he would, on every occaſion, take care to exert his authority to prevent them, and therefore recommended them ſtrongly to preſerve peace as much as poſſible the enſuing holiday week.'

The authenticity of a certain remonſtrance having been queſtioned, a correſpondent informs us, that if ſome kind of anſwer is not given to it, it has been reſolved to preſent another ſigned by the electors.

The proteſt againſt a remonſtrance of a certain city is ſigned it is ſaid, by near 2000 perſons, which is ſuppoſed to be the effect of undue influence.

Certain companies who have made ſome late extraordinary reſolutions, we hear, are likewiſe preparing a proteſt againſt the remonſtrance to be ſigned by the liveries of their reſpective companies.

From the Daily Advertiſer London April 16.

LYAR'S CORNER

It is confidently reported, that it is at all a ſettled point to releaſe Mr. Wilkes on Monday or Tueſday next, government agreeing for once in opinion with that gentleman, in the article of preventing any riotous aſſembling of the Populace on this occaſion.

Lond. Packet, April 12.

It is confidently ſaid that Lord Camden will have the Seals again in a few days, and

That the Earl of Chatham will ſhortly be appointed firſt Lord of the Treaſury. Ditto.

Great wagers are depending at the weſt end of the town that war will be declared againſt France and Spain in ſix Months time. Pub. Adv. April 13.

A report prevailed yeſterday morning that a certain colonel will vacate his ſeat by the acceptance of a place, when a new writ will be iſſued for the county, in order to give a patriotic gentleman an opportunity of being re-choſen.

Gazetteer, April 11.

It is confidently reported that the Min—ſtry begin to fall out with one another, which the adverſe party will take advantage of, and leap into the ſaddle.

Mid Journal, April 12.

The preſent plan talked of for an accommodation between the majority and minority is ſaid to be the production of Lord Lyttleton. Ditto, ditto.

On a ſtrict calculation it appears that above forty of his M jeſty's ſubjects have been killed by the ſoldiery in different parts of the kingdom within theſe three years.

Lond. Even Poſt, April 14.

No courier having hitherto arrived at the Ruſſian ambaſſador's with advice of the reduction of Brailow, the report concerning the ſame is now become doubtful. It is the ſame with reſpect to another rumour which prevailed, viz that the Ruſſian troops, commanded by general Panin, have taken the fortreſs of Bender by aſſault.

We hear that Mr. Wilkes has ſent circular letters to all his friends, requeſting them to exert their utmoſt Influence to preſerve good order among the people on the day of his releaſment.

It is ſaid that Miſs Wilkes will accompany her father on an excurſion for a few days into the country.

We hear that the ſeveral clubs which have elected Mr. Wilkes one of their members, have all made contributions for the total diſcharge of that gentleman's debts.

They write from Cirinceſter in Glouceſterſhire, that the ladies there are ſo zealous in the cauſe of Mr. Wilkes, that they intend giving a ball to the gentlemen on the night of Mr Wilke's releaſment, and that they have already diſperſed tickets for that purpoſe.

Friday the 13th March; ſailed from Spithead, Admiral Elphinſton, with the Ruſſian ſquadron under his command, conſiſting of ſix ſhips of the line and three tranſports.

A private letter from Amſterdam mentions that one hundred tons of tea were actually ſhipped on board a Dutch veſſel, the latter end of March laſt, for Euſtatia, with deſign to be ſold to the North American veſſels which conſtantly reſort there.

They write from Hamburgh, that the Court of Peterſburgh ſeem ſomewhat alarmed for the fate of the Ruſſian ſquadron ſhould it be attacked by the French and Spaniſh fleets, which had occaſioned the holding divers Councils, at the breaking up of which, Couriers were diſpatched to the different Northern Courts in alliance with her Majeſty.

L O N D O N,

April 6 On Saturday laſt the following lines, wrote in large characters, were ſeen ſtuck up againſt the walls of St. James's Palace, viz.

A PROPHECY.

" A cold winter,—a mild ſpring ;
" A bloody ſummer ;—a DEAD ——."

The above being taken notice of it is ſaid one thouſand pounds reward will be offered to find out the author.

From the Middleſex Journal, March 22.

To the PRINTER.

WHAT Lord Chatham ſaid in a ſelect company laſt Friday, has been much miſrepreſented in the other papers ; I was preſent, and will report to you literally, what he did ſay.

Lord Chatham.

" The civil Liſt is appropriated in the firſt place to the ſupport of the civil government, and in the next, to the honour and dignity of the crown ; in every other reſpect the minute and particular expences of the Civil Liſt are as open to parliamentary examination & enquiry, in regard to the application and abuſe, as any other grant of the people, to any other purpoſe ; and miniſters are equally or more culpable for incurring any unprovided expence, and for running in arrear this ſervice, as for any other. The preambles of all the Civil Liſt acts prove this, and none but children, novices or ignorants, will ever act without proper regard to it, and therefore, I can never conſent to increaſe fraudulently the civil eſtabliſhment, under pretence of making up deficiencies, nor will I ever bid ſo high for Royal favour ; and the Miniſter who is bold enough to ſpend the people's money, before it is granted (even though it were not for the purpoſe of corrupting their repreſentatives) and thereby leaving the people of England no other alternative but either to diſgrace their ſovereign by not paying his debts, or to become the prey of every unthrifty and corrupt Miniſter, ſuch miniſter deſerves death.

" The late good old King had ſomething of humanity, and amongſt many other royal and manly virtues he poſſeſſed juſtice, truth, and ſincerity in an eminent degree ; ſo that he had ſomething about him, by which it was poſſible for you to know whether he liked you, or diſliked you.

" I have been told, that I have a penſion, and that I have recommended others to penſions ; it is true, and here is a liſt of them, you will find there the names of General Amherſt, Sir Edward Hawke, and others of the ſame nature ; they were given as rewards for real ſervices, and as encouragement to other gallant heroes.—They were honourably earned in a different ſort of campaigns than thoſe at Weſtminſter ; they were gained by actions full of danger to themſelves, of glory and benefit to this nation ; not by corrupt votes of baſeneſs and of diſtruction to their country. You will find no ſecret ſervice there ; and you will find that when the warrior was recompenſed the member of parliament was left free.——You will likewiſe find a penſion of 1500l. a year to Lord Cambden. I recommended him to be Chancellor ; his public and private virtues were acknowledged by all ; they made his ſtation more precarious. I could not reaſonably expect from him that he ſhould quit the Chief Juſticeſhip of the Common Pleas, which he held for life, and put himſelf in the power of thoſe who were not to be truſted, to be diſmiſſed from the Chancery, perhaps the day after his appointment. The public has not been deceived by his conduct. My ſuſpicions have been juſtified, his integrity has made him once more a poor and a private man ; he was diſmiſſed for the vote he gave in favour of the Right of election in the ſubject."

Here the North Britiſh Lord, who made a remarkable declaration about the revolution, and talked of foreign force, called Lord Chatham to order. The Confrerie of Sixteen and the Magpies clamoured——to the – to the bar. L—— M——t moved, that Lord Chatham's words ſhould be taken down.

Lord Chatham.

" I neither deny, retract or explain theſe words. I do re affirm the fact, and I deſire to meet the ſenſe of the houſe ; I appeal to the honor of every Lord in this ——, whether he has not the ſame conviction."

Lord Rockingham, Lord Temple, and many other Lords, did on their honour moſt ſolomnly affirm the ſame.

Lord S——h and Lord W——h would have withdrawn the motion ; but L. M——t, encouraged by Lord M——d, perſiſted and moved in Erſe, that nothing had appeared to juſtify ſuch an aſſertion.

Lord Chatham.

" My words remain unretracted unexplained, and reaffirmed I deſire to know whether I am condemned or acquitted ; and whether I may ſtill preſume to hold up my head as high as the noble Lord who moved to have my words taken down."

To this no anſwer was given.

Lord Chatham.

" If I am to go off acquitted, I do now declare to you, that there are many men to impeach, and many meaſures to arraign for the ſecurity of this nation, and the very exiſtance of our laws and conſtitution ; and, by God's bleſſing, I will arraign and impeach them."

In this ſame ſelect company on the ſame days, a certain L–d was hard driven on a former declaration he had made, viz That he never had diſcloſed and never would diſcloſe his opinion on the Middleſex Election, but that it ſhould be buried with him in his grave. He was forced at laſt to add—except in private intimate confidence.

Let thoſe laugh here, who never laugh'd before ;
Let thoſe who always laugh'd, now laugh the more.

PROVIDENCE, May 26.

The Merchants of Newport have come to a Reſolution to renew their Importations of Britiſh Manufactures, and by the laſt Papers from thence we find freſh Aſſortments of Engliſh and India goods Advertiſed for Sale.——Some Perſons from Connecticut came to Town a few Days ſince, with a large Sum of Money, in order to purchaſe Goods ; but failing of a Supply here, they proceeded immediately to Newport.

Extract of a letter from Portſmouth, New-Hampſhire.

" I rejoice to hear that the ſpirit of Liberty with you retains its Fervor, notwithſtanding the numerous Efforts of the Sons of Corruption to oppoſe your glorious Deſigns. May you go on and proſper! May you be the Inſtruments, in the Hand of Providence to ſave this ſpreading Empire from Slavery and Miſery ; while the Tools of Tyrany meet that Puniſhment which is due to their aggravated Guilt. You juſtly obſerve that, 'had our Efforts been unanimous and ſpirited, we ſhould long e'er now have obtained Relief." " This Union, however difficult to obtain, muſt be endeavoured by unwearied and unceaſing Application.

" The Merchants here have received a Letter from the Merchants at Boſton on the affair of Non Importation, but have not yet come to a final Reſolution. Happy ſhould we be, had we a generous HANCOCK here to lead the Way ! Such a Bleſſing is reſerved for Boſton. The Inhabitants of this Province are in general as true Friends to Liberty as thoſe in the other Colonies, had they as powerful Leaders."

Mr. PRINTER, New-York, May 19.

The following, though of an old Date, was received but yeſterday : I beg you will communicate it to the Public, through the Canpel of your next Paper, & oblige your's &c. P. London, Feb 7. 1770.

—" To be free, I grow more and more tired of my Country, and I ſhall be more and more in the Love with the Colonies, if they have carried their Point ; but I ſhall be grieved to my very Soul if they at length faint and crouch to the Burthen of unconſtitutional Impoſitions : I am fearful of them, and yet encourage myſelf to hope that they will hold out. Perſeverance, Union, and ſteadineſs muſt bring them Redreſs, and nothing beſides will do it.—The full Removal of American Grievances is not expected in general : It is thought that the Miniſtry will attempt the Repeal only of ſome, and not of all the Taxes, and that the Duty on Tea, and the Board of Commiſſioners will be continued to prove the Authority, and maintain the Right of England's taxing them ; ſhould this be the Caſe, you muſt renew your Aſſociations againſt trading with us, for if the Miniſtry once find you are to be wearied out, they will be always ſo, and you will have your Chains rivetted. The Time for your conteſting the Point with them is very favourable to you, through our party Diviſions and other Circumſtances, and ſuch an Opportunity may not ſoon offer again.—The Oppoſition to the Miniſtry is encreaſing in Weight and Conſequence as well as Numbers : Many of them (it is to be apprehended) are no Friends to America, but may help her from ſiniſter Views ; and will be glad of a Handle through her Aſſiſtance for overthrowing the Miniſtry.——The miniſterial Blunder in the Iriſh Parliament, is, and muſt be the Means of encreaſing the Oppoſition. The preſent Court Syſtem muſt be demoliſhed, or Liberty will ſicken and die.

" Liberty, it is likely, will erect its Standard in America, for the Sons of Liberty in all Quarters and of all Nations to flock to. February 7.

P. S. Talking yeſterday with Mr. ——,* I gathered, that the Merchants here would, as it were, ſit down quiet with a Repeal of the Duties, the Tea excepted :—That you are to be ſoothed with the Hopes of that's being repealed after a Time, by the Influence of the Eaſt India Company, and that the Troops ordered, would be ſent : To which I replied, that if ſo, the Merchants betrayed you, and I hoped that you would make them ſuffer for it by returning every Article, and ſo loading them with Freight out and in. The Merchants here want in general, Reſolution and Spirit, and you muſt force them into it ; would they exert themſelves properly, they would have greater Weight, but the Miniſtry have Tools among them, who are managed to betray the reſt."

* This is a very conſiderable Houſe in London.

Extract of a Letter from Philadelphia, May 19 1770

" Agreeable to Promiſe, I take this Opportunity to inform you of the Reſult of the Committee at Bradford's laſt Night, which was, " That no Reſolutions reſpecting Importation, be entered into before the 5th of next June, in order that they may have an Opportunity of being made acquainted with the Sentiments of their Siſter Provinces. That a Committee of twenty one Merchants (then appointed) in the intervening Time, prepare a Liſt of ſuch Articles of Merchandiſe as they ſhall think neceſſary to import, to be produced at a general Meeting on ſaid 5th of June."

" The Favourers of an Importation were our principal Dry Good Merchants. The principal Oppoſers, Perſons who were not Importers, or if any amongſt 'em are, but ſmally ſo Now ſay the principal Merchants ' We are immediately injured from a Non Import. We particularly are aggrieved, and ſhou'd not ſuffer any Perſon who has not ſigned our former Reſolutions or Agreement, or who is but triflingly concerned in trade to have any Voice in our Reſolutions.' Is this reaſoning patriotically ? Is there the ſmalleſt Appearance of Juſtice in ſuch an arbitrary Argument ? Shall a few Men becauſe they are extenſive, in particular Imports, (admit they cannot accumulate from a temporary Ceſſation of Importation as many Thouſands as their Avarice would dictate), ſhall they, I [illegible], ſhall ſuch Canker Worms of provincial [illegible]aſtry and Emolument have it in their power to form Reſolves apparently deſtructive of the Rights of every true Inhabitant in the Government ?——I am afraid many will ſay they have a Right to do ſo ; and I grant from one Principle they have, but at ſuch an important Criſis as this, I ſhall never think I am right, except when I indulge a contrary Opinion."

WILLIAMSBUR May 24.

By the maſter of a Veſſel from the Weſt-Indies, arrived at Hampton laſt Friday, we are informed that, being ſcarce of Water, and off the Havannah, he went into the harbour with his boat, in order to procure a ſupply ; but was immediately ordered out although the water was ſent after him. He counted in that Harbour, two and twenty ſhips of the line, moſt of which arrived there a few days before.

BOSTON, June 7.

On Monday laſt Capt. Spelling arrived here in 16 Days from St. John's, Newfoundland, who informs, that two days before he ſailed two Veſſels arrived there from Pool or Dartmouth in England, one in 19 the other in 18 days Paſſage.—They informed, that the Account of the Maſſacre here on the 5th of March laſt, was got Home, and publiſhed in the papers.

Several Letters from London and Briſtol mention that 'Adminiſtration had determined the Duty on Tea ſhould not be taken off this Seſſion of Parliament'.

Extract of a Letter from London, dated April 13.

" On Wedneſday laſt died our worthy and reſpectable Friend Mr. DE BERDT, after a ſhort Illneſs, which aroſe rather from a univerſal Decay, than from any other Cauſe.——He was too great a Character for me to deſcribe. He poſſeſſed every good Quality which makes human Nature great and amiable." Mr. Dennis Deberdt was in the 77th Year of his Age.——He had been Agent for the Houſe of Repreſentatives of this Province ſeveral Years paſt.

HARTFORD, June 11.

We hear from Hatfield, that on ſunday morning the 3d inſtant, about 7 o'Clock, departed this life, after a long Series of waſting illneſs, the Reverend TIMOTHY WOODBRIDGE, Paſtor of the Church in that Place (in the LVII year of his age, and 31ſt of his miniſtry) greatly lamented by all his acquaintance, more eſpecially by the people of his miniſterial charge, with whom he had always lived in the greateſt harmony unity and friendſhip——And that his Funeral was to be attended on the Wedneſday following.

Laſt Saturday departed this life, after a lingering & painful illneſs, the Rev'd. NATHANIEL HOOKER, Paſtor of the Weſt Church in this Town——We hear his Funeral is to be attended this Day.

Laſt Wedneſday arrived at New-London from Barbadoes, Captain John Bigelow, in whom came paſſenger, Mr. Samuel Wyllys of this town, who for ſeveral years paſt, has reſided in London.

Laſt Friday the General Aſſembly of this Colony broke up——having ended the buſineſs of the Spring Seſſions.

We hear from PAQUONNUCK, a pariſh in the weſtern part of Windſor, that about half an acre of the ſurface of the ground there, has lately ſunk, or fallen to a conſiderable depth below the common ſurface or level ; not unlike to what is frequently occaſioned by Earth-Quakes, though attended with no eruptions either of water or fire : for which event no natural cauſe has as yet been aſſign'd—And it is more unaccountable, as the ground that is ſunk was not contigious to, or bordering upon any precipiece or declivity, nor adjacent to any collection of water that ſhould occaſion it to ſink.

P. Verſtille,

of Wathersfield.

Has juſt received his Stored GOODS, together with all his Coarſe Woolens excepting nine pieces Bazes, and ſix pieces Duffles, which he ſold on the 20th February laſt, and in order for a quick Sale will ſell them Cheap for CASH only, VIZ.

BROAD Cloth's of the moſt faſhionable colours 3 4 6 4 7-4 8 4 plane and ſnap Coatings German Serges ſorted colours Blue and Green Ratteens Planes ſorted colours Turbans and Maſks Satrin Hatts and Bonnetts black Taffitys blak Ducape black blue green and crimſon Perſian Taffitys Fans black and white bone Lace Damaſens for Waiſtcoats Devonſhire Kerſeys Half Thicks Flowered Serges Wilton Cloths of the moſt Faſhionable Colours Sagathys ſorted ſingle and double Camblets Sprig Camblets Figurd ſtuffs Black & Colourd Crapes Dorſetteens Mecklingburgs Brilliant Dreſdens Dreſdenets Miſſinets Martinico Luteſtring half yard and yard wide Poplins ſorted Colours Grezetts Broſioes black Bombazeens black & Cloth Coloor'd Draw Boys brown and olive colourd Fuſtians brown & white Buckrams Cotton & Linnen Checks of all widths red and white blue and white ſtripe Hollands Pelong Sattins green and ſtraw colourd Saſſnetts Sheard and thick Muſlins black and white Catgut black Parſinets black and figurd Capuchine Silks Mens and Womens leather Gloves and Mitts Womens ſilk Gloves and Mitts 3 4 & 7 8 Bed Ticking Chintz and Callicoes Linnen Cotton & Silk Handkerchiefs black Cravatts Snail Trimmins Head Flowers Necklaces and Ribbons Silver Tippets 3 4 7 8 and yard wide Hollands Dowlas and Ruſſia Linins white figurd Dimotys for childrens Blankets ſtripe and ſpotted Swanſkins Draggetts and white Flannels Mens and Womens Cotton & Thread Hoſe black blue and cloth colourd knitt patterns for Breeches Flowerd Lawn and Kenting Handkerchiefs Qualitys Ferrets and Galloons Horn Mettle Twiſt and Basket Buttons Twiſt and ſowing Silk wide and narrow Tapes Writing and Preſs Paper Paper hangings for Rooms Looking Glaſſes Shalloon of all colours Tammys and Durants of ditto Callamancoes ditto 6 4 and 8 4 blankets 6 4 & 8 4 ſpotted Ruggs Ravens Duck, Oznabrigs and Ticklingburg beſt G. B. Wool Cards Silk knee ſtraps Pewter & Braſs Penknives Table Knives & Forks Sleeve Buttons and Sciſſors Temple and other Spectacles Shoe and Knee Buckles Kippins Snuff Pepper and Allſpice Copperas an aſſortment of Glaſs and Nottingham Ware, &c.

N B Moſt of the above Articles may be had at the Store of STEPHEN MEKRS, oppoſite the North Meeting Houſe in Hartford.

STOLEN or Stray'd from the ſubſcriber, of the great Nine-Partners, on the 28th inſt. a light brown horſe, about 14 hands high, about ſix years old, a natural trotter, a ſtar in his forehead, black main, tail and leggs, the main hanging on the left ſide, his right hind foot white, and a lump about the bigneſs of a walnut on his left ſide.—Whoever ſhall take up the ſaid horſe ſo that the owner may have him again, ſhall have TWO DOLLARS reward, or if he is ſtolen, the thief ſecured, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice ſhall have FIVE DOLLARS reward, and all reaſonable charges paid, by

WILLIAM CORNWELL.

May 30, 1770.

WE The ſubſcribers being appointed a committee by the general aſſembly of the colony of Connecticut, in May laſt, upon the petition of Charles Dewey of Hebron, againſt Benjamin Taylor and others, to examine into the claims of the parties, to a certain large tract of land in ſaid Hebron, antiently granted by Capt. John Maſon, aſſignee of Uncus, Owanico and Joſhua Sachems, and portion thereof to make, &c.—Theſe are to notify all perſons concerned, to attend the ſaid buſineſs, at the dwelling-houſe of Mr. Joſeph Waters in ſaid Hebron, on the 6th day of Auguſt next, when and where we ſhall enter on ſaid buſineſs. Dated at Hartford, 5th June, 1770.

JABEZ HAMLIN,
ZEBULON WEST,
NATHANIEL WALES, jun.
} Committee

HARTFORD, June 6.

At Meeting of the principal Merchants and Traders of the Colony of Connecticut. Taking into Conſideration the late Extraordinary and unprecedented Conduct of a large Number of the Merchants and Traders of the Town of NEW-PORT, in the Colony of RHODE-ISLAND, in breaking Through & Violating the Non-Importation Agreement, come into, and obſerved elſewhere throughout America; they by their Conduct declaring to the World the preference they give to their own preſent little SORDID VIEWS of ſelf INTEREST, before the preſent and future INTEREST, LIBERTY and WELL-BEING of AMERICA.—That ſuch a Conduct is juſtly alarming to the whole Continent, has tended to weaken that Union on which the Succeſs of all our Efforts ſo much depends, has given our Enemies both at Home and Abroad an advantage againſt us and juſtly incurred the Cenſure of every well-wiſher to AMERICA.

VOTED and Reſolved that for the future, and until the Revenue acts are Repealed, or until they ſhall make Public ſatisfaction for their late and preſent Conduct, we will not have any Connection or Dealing with the Inhabitants of the Town of New-Port, directly or indirectly, and will not only Diſcountenance, but withdraw all Connection from thoſe of this Colony, who ſhall hold any Traffic or Deal with them.—And thoſe of this Colony who ſhall preſume to Trade or Deal with the Merchants of the Town of New-Port, or any Perſon from thence, muſt expect to be conſidered as joining with thoſe Betrayers of their Country.

AND at the ſame Meeting Information being given, that two Perſons belonging to Hartford, had lately purchaſed Goods of the Importers at New-Port, and had opened them for Sale, they were de[illegible] to attend the Meeting, which [illegible] accordingly did; and it ap[illegible]ing on the Examination, that [illegible] Goods amounted to but a [illegible] Sum, and the Perſons con[illegible] they had acted Inadvertent[illegible] [illegible] that they had done, and Re[illegible] up ſaid Goods to be Stored, [illegible] on their Honor to [illegible] Connection with ſaid Im[illegible] [illegible] the future, but firmly [illegible] the before-mentioned [illegible] Goods reſigned, were [illegible] Stored, and the Af-

AT the ſame Meeting a number of Gentlemen were appointed a Committee, or Deputation to attend the propos'd General Conference of the Merchants on the Continent, at Norwalk, on the 18th Inſtant.

TO BE SOLD BY

James Tiley,

GOLDSMITH, at his Shop, juſt below Meſſ. Lathrop & Smith's Store in King-Street Hartford.

CYPHER'd and Brilliant Stone Ear-Rings ſet in Gold, ditto in Silver, Cypher'd and Brilliant Stone Buttons, Stone Rings, and Stone Lockets, with a variety of other Articles.

ALL Perſons indebted to the ſubſcriber of Torrington, are deſired to make a ſettlement within one month from the date hereof, or expect trouble without further notice.
JOHN BURR.
Torington May 28 1770

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

OIL and BLUBBER, of the beſt Quality, Suitable for Tanners uſe, To be Sold by

Joſeph Barrett,

Of Hartford.

Whereas Betty Ned,

So called, to whom I was once married, hath for ſeveral years eloped from my bed and board, and has had children by other men, hath run me in debt, and am informed ſhe intends to do ſo again.——THIS is to notify all perſons not to credit her one penny on my account, for I will not pay any debt that ſhe may contract.
JOHN CALIS.
Hartford, May 19. 1770.

STray'd or ſtolen from the ſubſcriber of Farmington, about three weeks ago, a bay Mare 3 years old branded with the letter X on her left ſhoulder, a ſtar in the forehead, halter broke, duck'd and trim'd.——Whoſoever ſhall take up ſaid beaſt and ſend word to the ſubſcriber, ſhall be reaſonably rewarded by
MOSES ANDRUS.
Farmington, May 28, 1770.

MAY 21. 1770.

Paſſage-Boat.

THIS is to inform the public, that I the ſubſcriber have provided a good BOAT convenient for paſſengers, which will ſail in the following manner, from the date above-mentioned every other week, viz. from Saybrook on Monday to Middletown, and from Middletown to Sagg Harbour on Wedneſday, and from Sagg Harbour back again on Friday, wind and weather permitting.——The fare for man and horſe is one dollar, and for a ſingle paſſenger, is half a dollar.——All gentlemen paſſengers, who are inclined to favour him with their cuſtom will meet with good uſage, from their humble ſervant,
JEREMIAH LORD.

By the direction of the Court of Probate,

TO be ſold at public vendue, all the real eſtate of Elijah Kent, late of Suffield deceas'd for the benefit of the creditors to the eſtate, under the incumbrance of the Widows thirds being rendered Inſolvent, ſaid Vendue will be attended at the dwellinghouſe of ſaid deceas'd on the laſt Tueſday of June next to begin at two o'clock in the afternoon.

Samuel Kent.
Aaron Hitchcock. } Adminiſtrators on ſaid Eſtate.

Lanbier Leſcoiet,

(Clock and Watch maker from Paris)

TAKES this opportunity to inform the public, that he makes, mends and cleans all ſorts of Clocks and Watches, at his ſhop in Kingſtreet Hartford, at the ſign of the Clock, at as reaſonable a rate as they can be done in any part of America, and all gentlemen favouring him with their cuſtom, may depend upon being ſerv'd in the beſt manner.

N.B. Said Leſcoiet has for ſale a repeating WATCH of his own make, which he will warant to be of the beſt kind, it being no way larger, than a common Watch, though its parts are morenumerous.

TO BE SOLD BY

Philip Mortimer,

Of Middletown, ſundry pieces of Land, viz.

One piece or parcel

Lying in Eaſt Windſor, containing 98 acres, 18 of which is choice meadow, the other wood land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz West on the country road, north on land belonging to Mr. Ellſworth, eaſt partly on Scantick river, and ſouth on a highway.——TWO other pieces lying in Weathersfield, containing about twenty acres, being choice paſture land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſt on land of James Mitchel's, weſt on land of Gerſhom Nott's, ſouth partly on land of Moſes Deming's, and partly on James Curtiſs's land, and north on Moſes Deming's. THE other piece containing about ſix acres, butted eaſt on land of Moſes Deming, weſt on land of Francies Hanmor, north partly on land belonging to Gerſhom Nott, and partly on James Curtiſs's, and ſouth partly on land belonging to Thomas Wells, and partly on Francies Hanmors land.——ONE other piece lying in Middletown, containing thirty acres, conſiſting of plow land, paſture and meadow land, butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſterly on land of the heirs of Daniel Merwin, weſterly on land of Joſias Webſter, north on land of Joſeph Baros, and —ſouth on land Miles Merwin. For further particulars enquire of ſaid Mortimer.
277 np the 3m.

Pot-Aſh and Salts.

CASH and Weſt-India Goods to be given for good merchantable POT ASH and dry SALTS, by

LATHROP & SMITH,
At their Store in Hartford.

LEFT in the Store of the ſubſcriber of Hartford, a pair of Silver Shoe Buckles.——The owner may have them again, on proving his property, and paying for this Advertiſement, by applying to
WILLIAM KNOX.
Hartford, June, 4, 1770.

HARTFORD:
Printed by Green and Watſon.

4

MONDAY, JUNE 18, 1770.

Numb 280.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

Since our laſt arrived here Captains Jacobſon and Jenkins, from London, and Duckett from Briſtol: by whom we have the following Advices from the Public Prints viz.

L O N D O N, April 10.

MONDAY Mr. Alderman Trecothick made a motion in a certain Aſſembly for leave to bring in a bill to repeal the Act for laying duties on Teas imported into America. It was ſtrongly oppoſed by Mr. C—ſt the Eaſt India Director, who ſaid, the Eaſt-India Company wiſhed that Act might remain unrepealed. He was anſwered by the worthy Lord Mayor in a very ſenſible and ſpirited manner. Lord C—e objected to the motion, as being diſorderly, having received a negative when debated a few days ago; and therefore it could not be brought on again this ſeſſion. His Lordſhip then moved a previous queſtion, which was, That the order of the day might be read, when there appeared, For the queſtion 80
Againſt it 52

April 3. His Majeſty has been pleaſed to grant unto Ward Hollowell, of Boſton in New England, merchant, and his heirs, licence and authority to change his name of Hallowell to that of Nicholas Boylſton.

On Wedneſday the aſſizes ended on the Crown ſide at Hereford, when 9 Priſoners were tried for the murder of William Powell, Eſq. ſix of whom received ſentence of death, and were ordered for execution on Friday laſt, and their bodies to be diſſected; but two were afterwards ordered to be hung in chains near the place where the murder was committed; and three were acquitted. The names of thoſe left for execution were, William Sniggott, David Lewellid, William Charles, David Morgan, William Morris, William Walter Evan, and David Morgan. This trial laſted from ſeven in the morning till eight at night.

We hear Mrs. Powell of Wales, will not be tried as an accomplice, for the murder of her huſband, there being no proof yet that will reach her; Williams, who committed this horrid fact, with a view to obtain at once the poſſeſſion of Mr. Powell's wife and fortune has for the preſent eluded juſtice, by abſconding, nor can he be heard of, notwithſtanding the indefatigable endeavours of the gentlemen of the country.

On Friday the convicts were conveyed to execution by the Sheriffs about 12 o'clock, and turned off about half an hour paſt one. Morris was in a fit, and quite inſenſible, before he came to the gallows, where he was obliged to be held up whilſt the halter was placed round his neck. Sniggot begged earneſtly to be buried in a church yard. The others appeared penitent and reſigned; and David Morgan addreſſed the ſpectators in Welch; deſiring them to take warning by his fate, and not to ſuffer wicked men to lead them into villany. Four of their bodies were delivered to the ſurgeons to be diſſected, and two are to be hung in chains in ſome part of the county of Hereford.

We hear a great perſonage has deſired a conference with Lord Camden on an affair of importance; and a report is calculated that this upright Lawyer will be reinſtated in the poſſeſſion of the Seals.

April 13. Wedneſday night died the Right Hon. the Marquis of Monthermer, only ſon of his Grace the Duke of Montague, at his Grace's houſe in Privy Garden, Whitehall.

Wedneſday ſeveral ballad ſingers were taken up ſinging a new ſcandalous ballad called the Whiſperer Extraordinary.

A motion was made yeſtereday in the Lower Rooms of the Robinhood Society by L——e S——ge, for leave to bring in a bill for the encouragement of the Mancheſter Linen-manufacture, by granting the ſame bounties as are allowed to the Iriſh and Scotch manufactures. His L——p ſupported his motion by procuring two witneſſes to prove the decline of the Mancheſter manufacture ſince the Scotch and Iriſh had received the aid of Parliament; but Mr. B——ke, Mr. F——ler, and many other gentlemen were of opinion that a parliamentary ſupport given to the Mancheſter manufactory would greatly injure, if not totally ruin thoſe eſtabliſhed in Scotland and Ireland; however, the queſtion being put it paſſed in the affirmative.

It is a circumſtance very well known that the Hon. Charles York was appointed Chancellor, and received the Seals only two days before he died; whereupon a Gentleman obſerved to the Duke of G——n, that the Seals could travel faſter than his Grace's race horſes. How do you make that out? ſaid the Duke. Becauſe, replied the other, they have been to York and back again in two days.

A man who was lately taken up for a Burglary, on his examination was aſked, What profeſſion he was of? When he anſwered, a Gentleman: A Gentleman, ſays the Juſtice, ſeeing his ragged condition, What do you mean by a Gentleman, or what ſort of a Gentleman are you? Why I am an Anti Miniſterial Writer:——Pray what is that? Why I am employed by the Committee at the London Tavern to chalk 45 on all the coaches in London, and ſometimes, ſays the fellow, I add Wilkes and Liberty, to keep up the ſpirit of the times.

April 13. Yeſterday at eleven o'clock, there was a moſt numerous and reſpectable meeting of the Livery at Guildhall, agreeable to the Lord Mayor's precepts, to receive the report of his Majeſty's anſwer to their humble Addreſs, Remonſtrance, and Petition; likewiſe to take into conſideration ſome late reſolutions and orders of the Courts of Aſſiſtants of the Companies of Goldſmiths, Weavers, and Grocers.

The Lord Mayor, attended by the two Sheriffs, Sir William Stephenſon, Alderman Croſby, a great number of the Common-council, and City Officers, took the chair a quarter after one; when ſilence being proclamed by the Common cryer, the Lord Mayor came forward, and opened the buſineſs of the Hall as follows:

Gentlemen of the Livery,

"I have called you together on this day to receive the report of his Majeſty's anſwer to your humble Addreſs, Remonſtrance, and Petition, with the Reſolutions, and their Addreſs in conſequence; as likewiſe to take into conſideration ſome late Reſolutions and orders of the Courts of Aſſiſtants of the Companies of Goldſmiths, Weavers, and Grocers. As I have ſeveral obſervations to make on theſe ſubjects, I ſhall decline them for the preſent, till your Town clerk reads them to you regularly; then ſhall beg your patient hearing for ſome time."

This ſpeech being received with univerſal acclamations, the Town Clerk read aloud the King's Anſwer to the Remonſtrance, with the Reſolutions and Addreſs of the Houſe of Commons thereon; as likewiſe the Reſolutions of the Goldſmiths, Grocers, and Weavers: After this was done, a motion was made and ſeconded, that the King's anſwer ſhould be entered on the City Journals, which was agreed to nem. con.

The Lord Mayor then agreeable to his promiſe, came forward a ſecond time, and deſcanted on theſe proceedings. He obſerved, "That the anſwer received from the K— was a very harſh one; ſo much ſo, that in the whole hiſtory of England, it perhaps could not be parlleled. Notwithſtanding this, he ſaid, he could not arraign his M——y, but his Miniſters; who, on this, as well as every other occaſion, treated the opinions of the people with inſolence and diſreſpect. As a proof of the affability of the King, he urged their having all the honour to kiſs his hand. In reſpect to the H—— of C——, he obſerved, that as their proceedings claſhed ſo notoriouſly with the rights of the people, he ſhould ſay nothing farther on that head, but that he hoped it was univerſally known, that he, along with their two worthy Sheriffs, made a manly ſtand againſt that reſolution: which, if they had not, along with ſeveral other worthies who aſſiſted them, God only knows what would be the conſequenc, as he had been threatened with an impeachment, with ſequeſtration of his effects, and even with baniſhment.

In regard to the Reſolutions of the Goldſmiths, Weavers, and Grocers, he ſaid, "That their reflections were as illiberal as untrue, as that, as well as every act of the Livery, was not done clandeſtinely, or invidiouſly, but in the face of open day, and with the joint concurrence (one only excepted) of the moſt reſpectable citizens in the world."

His Lordſhip concluded with an exhortation to them, as the holidays were comming on, to behave with order and decorum, as he was reſolved (if it was his brother) to puniſh any one who ſhould tranſgreſs. His Lordſhip ſpoke for near three quarters of an hour.

After which the following motions were made, and ſeconded, "That the King's anſwer, along with the reſolution of the Goldſmiths, Weavers, and Grocers, ſhould be referred to the conſideration of the laſt Committee of the Livery; and that the thanks of this Hall be given to the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, Aldermen, &c. who preſented the Remonſtrance; and this laſt to be printed in all the public papers;" which being univerſally agreed to (one hand only excepted) the buſineſs of the day concluded

The perſon's name who diſſented is Graham, formerly a ſtationer in the Minors, ſaid to be inſane.

Mr. Alderman Croſby, in a handſome ſpeech, aſſured the Livery, "That nothing but illneſs ſhould have prevented him from attending at the laſt Common Hall, and accompanying the Lord Mayor with the Addreſs to St. James's."

The City of London have retain'd Mr. Dunning Mr. Wedderburne, and Mr. Serjeant Glynn, in the cauſe which will be tried between the City and the Companies who have denied the authenticity of the Lord Mayor's precept, upon all occaſions except elections.

A motion was made by a patriotic gentleman, to poſtpone the conſideration of the bill for repealing the American duties till tomorrow fortnight. This motion being objected to warm debates enſued, and the queſtion being put, there appeared for the queſtion 9, againſt it 15.

L O N D O N, April 19.

To the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Middleſex.

Gentlemen,

I Obey the ſtrong impulſe of a lively Gratitude, when I thus employ the firſt Moments of my Liberty to thank you for the many favours you have conferred on me during a long, cruel, and unmerited Impriſonment. My Sufferings the two laſt Years were endeared to me, as well as truly honorable, by the ſupport and Protection of the Friends of Freedom. The Trial was, indeed, long and ſevere, but the moſt happy Conſequences have followed. The favourable opinion you were pleaſed at firſt to entertain of my Integrity and Fortitude, has been confirmed on a variety of Occaſions, and I have experienced as frequent proofs of your unwearied zeal for your country, & ſteady regard to me. I will go on with the ſame ſpirit in the cauſe of a brave and free people. To their ſervice, to the defence of the law, and to the preſervation of the religious and civil liberties of the whole Britiſh empire, the remainder of my life ſhall be dedicated. I rely ſolely and entirely on your protection, and I will form no connection which may in the ſmalleſt degree, warp me from my duty to you, either as to be dependant of a Miniſter, or even as the ſervant of the Crown; for I think a Repreſentative of the people ought to be perfectly free and unbiaſſed, in order more effectually to keep every miniſter in awe, and to impoſe encroachment of the prerogative, againſt which the Houſe of Commons was eſtabliſhed as a firm barrier. I will therefore know no influence in Parliament but that created by the conſtitution, that of the conſtituents over their Repreſentative, and I do not mean to acknowledge any other conſtituents than thoſe patriotic friends, by whoſe favour I am the legal Member for the County of Middleſex.

I reflect, Gentlemen, with great ſatisfaction, that the many tedious months of my harſh confinement were not uſeleſsly employed in the common cauſe of public Freedom. I have enjoyed in priſon the fruits of my long labours, the glory of deſtroying that dreaded engine of arbitrary power ſo cruelly employed of late, and ſo often fatal to our countrymen, a General Warrant. After every delay of privilege and chicane from May 1763, an upright jury in laſt November declared a Secretary of State guilty. No puniſhment, however, has reached that firſt and great offender. The treaſury paid the fine, and the whole expence of the proſecution, and he has been even rewarded with the cuſtody of the Privy Seal. The very ſame abilities of my worthy collegue, Mr. Serjeant Glynn, were exerted through the whole of this important cauſe. To his indefatigable zeal, and love of legal Liberty, every ſubject of this empire owes the moſt eſſential obligations. I have taken care that all the proceedings of this great ſtruggle of the people againſt the uſurped power of miniſters ſhall be entered in the proper court, & I hope the Record will remain unaltered to our lateſt poſterity, as a complete triumph over deſpotiſm.

I feel with indignant ſorrow that I have not been equally ſucceſsful in another national concern which I had at heart, I mean a ſtrict parliamentary enquiry into the horrid Maſſacre of our countrymen in St. George's fields, on the fatal 10th of May 1768. I gave to the public all the original papers reſpecting that wicked ſhedding of innocent blood, by which the land is defiled, and I offered to bring the evidence to the bar of the Houſe of Commons. The only hope which now remains to us, is, that the virtue of a future parliament, faithful to the truſt repoſed in them by the people, will ſoon purſue the murderers, that juſtice will at length overtake them, and that the moſt ſhocking of all crimes will not be left unpuniſhed.— The horror of the action is ſtill freſh in the mind of every man of humanity, and I hold it to be the greateſt reproach of our age and nation, that ſo many of our fellow ſubjects have been baſely murdered by an inhuman ſoldiery in St. George's fields, and other hired ruffins at Brentford, without a ſingle victim to the public juſtice of our country, to the future ſecurity of our laws, or the violated laws of God and man.

The ſtate of this country, Gentlemen, is truly alarming. The Houſe of Commons have not only rejected a member choſen by a majority of freeholders, but likewiſe obtruded upon you a perſon whom you never elected. They have openly aſſumed the whole legiſlative power. By their vote they have declared an incapacity, where the law of the land and common right rendered the party eligible to Parliament. This proceeding is a direct attack both on the form and eſſence of the conſtitution, a flagrant violation of the fundamental privileges of Engliſhmen, and a robbery committed upon every elector of the kingdom, even in the moſt invaluable of his poſſeſſions, the right of repreſentation in the Houſe of Commons. You have petitioned, you have remonſtrated, in the ſpirit of the true Sons of Liberty, but in vain. The reaſon is moſt manifeſt. The meaſure of my expulſion and incapacity was previouſly ſettled in the Cabinet, and only brought to Parliament by the Miniſter in order to go thro' the common forms, as other buſineſs in the uſual courſe of the ſeſſion. The nation, however, are not the dupes of this artifice, and they regard the preſent Houſe of Commons as no longer a juſt and fair repreſentative of the collective body of the electors of this united kingdom, and therefore they do not hold that the power and authority of a legal houſe of parliament is inherent in the Aſſembly now ſitting at Weſtminſter.

I am happy, Gentlemen, to leave a baneful priſon without the leaſt ſpark of anger or reſentment againſt the authors of all my ſufferings. I have no malice nor revenge to gratify. I feel no paſſion but that of gratitude to my friends, and my only enemies ſhall be thoſe of my country, thoſe who ſtill manifeſt a rooted, unrelenting malice againſt the liberties of this kingdom, and who endeavour to entail ſlavery on us and our poſterity. If my perſecutions are not ended I will continue to bear up as a man firm and determined in the beſt of cauſes, nor for your ſakes will I ſcruple to dare all the vengeance of thoſe wretched Miniſters who are now the rulers over us, but poſſeſs neither the confidence, nor eſteem of the people. If his Majeſty be graciouſly pleaſed to liſten to the cries of a loyal but injured nation, and to remove a moſt corrupt and deſpotic Adminiſtration who are every day baſely and deſperately ſtabbing the vitals of the conſtitution, I ſhall then hope to live among you in the enjoyment of the firſt bleſſing and moſt ſovereign good, Liberty, both perſonal and political, and when I can no longer be uſeful to my country, to die happy in the applauſe of the friends of freedom and of England.

I am with deference and regard,
Gentlemen, your faithful, and
obedient humble ſervant,

April 18 1770. JOHN WILKES.

March 19. A correſpondent has ſent us the following being the genuine copy of a letter written by a noble Earl in the oppoſition, in excuſe for not accepting the Lord Mayor's invitation on the 23d inſt.

To the LORD MAYOR, &c.

"I am honoured with a card from your Lordſhip, inviting me to an entertainment at the Manſion houſe on the 23d inſt. My deſire of ſhewing every mark of reſpect to the chief magiſtrate of this city upon ſo public an occaſion, and the example of many noble friends, with whoſe opinions I am well inclined to concur, make it a very unpleaſant taſk for me to decline your invitation.

"When Lord Rockingham and his friends adminiſtered the affairs of this country, I was, by his Majeſty's favour, appointed to a department, in which, during the courſe of my endeavours in an office much above my merits, I had an occaſion of obſerving the integrity, and (as I think) the ability of thoſe, who then filled the great, and active offices of the ſtate; with theſe I have ſince joined in the meaſures of the ſucceeding adminiſtration, and to the preſent period have continued to oppoſe; but this I have done upon general, temperate, and conſtitutional principles; not with a view to embroil the ſtate, or diſtreſs my ſovereign, to whoſe perſon I bear all poſſible allegiance, and whoſe virtues I hold in conſummate veneration.

"The vehement meaſures to which oppoſition has now carried ſome amongſt us, and in particular the appeal which you, my Lord Mayor, have preſſed and obtruded upon the Throne, does in my eyes appear ſo unjuſtifiable a ſtep, that I am reſolved to be no man's companion in it; and I feel myſelf at this criſis called upon by every duty, whether as a Lord of Parliament, a man of property, a father of a family, or a ſubject, to teſtify my abſolute diſſent from and abhorrence of reſolutions of ſuch evil tendency.

"For theſe reaſons, my Lord Mayor, I am obliged to decline the honour of dining with your Lordſhip and your noble gueſts on the 23d of this month, and am, &c. &c. &c.

D———.

A certain patriotic nobleman has all along declared it to be the moſt ill-adviſed meaſure that could be adopted by the miniſtry, to pave the way for introducing the Ruſſians, as a maritime power, in the Mediterranean ſea.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THERE having been a report ſpread abroad, that I had purchaſed goods of one Capt. Aborn, of Rhode Iſland, in violation of the agreement entered into by the Merchants in this colony, which report was as groundleſs as it is injurious, yet as reports of that kind ſeldom fail to find ſome credulous enough to believe them, unleſs the contrary is made clearly to appear. I have therefore with a view, that the public might be diſabuſed, and my own character (which I apprehended ſenſibly affected thereby) cleansed of ſo foul a ſtain, tho't fit to give a juſt & impartial repreſentation of the real facts, which were in ſome meaſure the occaſion of ſaid report; they are as follows. Sometime in April laſt, I met with ſaid Capt. Aborn at Hartford, and ſold him a quantity of Wheat, and at the ſame time deſired him to bring me a ton of Pot Mettle when he ſhould come again; on the 24th of May, I ſaw a brother of the ſaid Aborn at Hartford, and inquired of him about the ſaid capt. Aborn, and by him was informed that he was in the river, upon which I wrote him that in caſe he had any Indigo or Tea, undiſpoſed of, that I ſhould take it as a favour to have the offer of it, after which the merchants here upon information that the merchants in Rhode-Iſland had broke through the non importation agreement; came into a reſolution not to deal with, or have any connection with the people of that colony, until ſuch time as they came to a ſenſe of their fault in that reſpect, and return to their duty; on the 6th inſtant being bound a journey from home, and concluding that ſaid Aborn would likely come up before my return, I ordered my clerk, who was entruſted with the care of my buſineſs, not to receive any tea or indigo from him, or any thing but the iron ware. That on the 8th day of June, ſaid Aborn came to Rocky Hill, and ſent word that he was there, and requeſted that the iron ware might be ſent for, upon which my clerk ſent a team and ordered the teamſter not to bring any thing but the iron ware, yet nevertheleſs the ſaid Aborn of his own volition, after he was repeatedly refuſed by the carter, inſiſted upon ſending a ſmall bag of tea, containing about 30 weight, and about 60 weight of indigo, which being brought to my ſtore my young man inadvertently ſold a few pounds of the tea, on the 13 day I returned from my journey, and upon being made acquainted with the affair immediately, without any intimation from any perſon, forbid any other ſale of ſaid articles, and, on being informed that Capt. Solomon Cowles had acquainted my Clerk that he underſtood in converſation with Mr. Dean, one of the committee of Importation, that in caſe the goods had been previouſly agreed for, they undoubtedly would be allow'd to be ſold (notwithſtanding ſaid reſolution) as he conceived that would not be contrary to the ſpirit thereof. I therefore applied to ſaid Cowles, to know further about the matter, who gave me an account ſimilar to what he had before to my Clerk; but knowing the indigo and tea were not contracted for, I determined not to ſell any of ſaid articles, and accordingly repeated my orders to that purpoſe, to my young man, and do ſolemnly declare, that never one ounce of ſaid indigo or tea, was ever ſold by my direction or conſent. Immediately thereupon I received from the ſaid Mr. Dean, a letter, acquainting me that he was informed that I had, contrary to the aforeſaid agreement, imported from Rhode-Iſland a cheſt of tea and other articles, and was ſelling them, and that thereby I had given great offence, and warning me to explain the matter to prevent conſequences of a diſagreeable nature. Upon the being conſcious to myſelf of my own innocence in the matter, I ſet out immediately for Hartford, and waited on ſome of the gentlemen of the committee there, and then went to Wetherſfield and let Mr. Deane know the ſtate of the affair, and requeſted a meeting of the gentlemen committee, and others concerned in trade as ſoon as might be, who accordingly met at Mr. Bulls, at Hartford, on the evening of the 14th, and with great candour heard the whole matter, and after proper enquiry into the evidence relative thereto, one and all declared they were fully ſatiſfied with my conduct, as it appeared on the evidence, that I had not in any manner acted any thing contrary to ſaid reſolution, or been privy to any deſign to counteract the ſame, but notwithſtanding they determined that ſaid Aborn had not in ſending out ſaid indigo and tea in my abſence, when he had been previouſly informed that he would not be allowed to make any further trade, and ſaid articles not being contracted for, before ſaid agreement was come into, had acted a part incompatible with that of a gentleman, and in derogation to that he had heretofore ſuſtained among us, & ordered that ſaid goods ſhould be ſent back to Rocky Hill, and there ſtored, which determination I readily acquieſced in, and the next day ſent back not only the indigo and tea, but the iron ware alſo, and have ſtored them with captain David Webb, at ſaid Rocky Hill, and taken his receipt therefor, to remain until the ſaid Aborn ſhall call for them, or the matter reſpecting Rhode-Iſland is ſettled, and liberty given, by the trade to diſpoſe of them, this being a true repreſentation of the facts, muſt leave the impartial public to judge whether I have done any one act, for which I ought to be blamed, to whom I appeal, and doubt not of an acquittal.

I would alſo greatfully acknowledge the friendly treatment, and candour of the gentlemen who met to inquire into this affair, & am theirs and the publics humble ſervant,

FISHER GAY.

Farmington, June 16 1770.

The foregoing repreſentation of Mr Gay's is truly as the affair appeared to us, and we are fully ſatiſfied of the truth of them.

Richard Alsop, }
Caleb Bull, } Committee.

HARTFORD, June 18.

Situation and Places of the Sun, and primary Planets, on the 21 of June, A.D. 1770.

Sun. Its declination North, 23 degrees, 29 minutes Longitude in the firſt degree of the ſign Cancer.

Saturn, A bright Star now viſible in the weſtern part of the Hemiſphere, ſets about 25 degrees north of weſt, half after 9 in the evening nearly the apparent bigneſs of a Star of the firſt Magnitude, longitude 22 deg. in Leo.

Jupiter, A very ſplendid Star in the ſouth eaſt, about two hours and half high at 9 o'clock in appearance brighter and larger than Saturn: longitude 18 degrees in Sagitarius.

Mars, Riſes about one hour and half after Midnight, 10 deg. north of eaſt: longitude 24 deg in Aries.

Venus, A very large and bright Star, now viſible in the weſtern part of the Hemiſphere; ſets about 9 in the evening, about 24 deg north of weſt—longitude 23 deg. in Cancer.

Mercury, Sets about half after 8 at evening. 'tis ſcarce viſible by reaſon of an immerſion in the Sun's rays: its apparent progreſs now towards the Sun: longitude 14 deg. in Cancer.

'Tis obſervable that Saturn, Venus and Mercury, are now ſituated nearly together. Jupiter and Mars more remote.

Laſt Wedneſday the wife of Mr. John Lankton of Springfield was delivered of two ſons at a birth, both of which, together with the mother, ſoon after died and were buried the Friday following in one coffin.

Laſt Saturday a Fellow who ſays his name is Livingſton, was committed to the goal in this place for a rape commited on the body of a young woman in Bolton.

Shephard & Hunt,

TAKE this method to acquaint their cuſtomers and others, that they have juſt imported from LONDON, a general aſſortment of Drugs and Medicines, which they have for ſale at their Apothecary Store in Northampton—Eſſence of Pepper Mint—Eau de Luce—Beſt Turkey Figs—Choice new Currants. &c. &c.

Northampton, June 16, 1770.

Whereas my Wife Elizabeth behaves herſelf in ſuch a froward and undutiful manner towards me, violating all conjugal duty, and endeavours to run me in debt and undo me.——This is to notify all perſons whatever, not to harbour or entertain her, or to truſt or credit her on my account, as I will not pay any one penny that ſhe may contract.

ZACHARIAH SEYMOUR.

Hartford June 11. 1770.

TO BE SOLD BY

Jonathan Wadhams,

of Goſhen.

ONE piece of Land, containing about 60 acres with a good Houſe and Barn ſtanding thereon, with a good Orchard & Well, and is well ſituated in the town, and lies on the country road that leads to Canaan——For further particulars inquire of ſaid Wadhams.

Goſhen, 1 June 1770.

Strayed or Stolen,

FROM the Subſcriber in Hartford, on the 15th inſtant, a light bay, or cheſtnut colour'd MARE, five years old, 14 hands high, ſome white in her face and noſe, high life, tail ſomewhat long, paces and trots, fore feet ſhod, a little galled on one ſhoulder.——Whoever ſhall take up, and tranſmit ſaid Mare to the Subſcriber, ſhall be well paid for charge and trouble, by Nehemiah Strong.

June 18. 1770.

PURSUANT to a vote of the proprietors of the townſhip of Wincheſter, at their meeting holden at Hartford, the 14th inſt. I give this public notice, that no perſon or Perſons as a committee or therwiſe, preſume to ſpend or repair at the coſt of the proprietors the north road (ſo called) through ſaid townſhip of Winchaſter, without firſt giving the proper notice, or being employed by me,

DAVID AUSTIN.

June 13. 1770.

N*OTICE is hereby given to all claimants and others, who are in any wiſe concerned in white pine logs, that now are or may be in Connecticut river, or at any mills or landings upon or near ſaid river, that they are required to give into the hands of Capt. Samuel Willis of Middletown immediately, certificates of their having been regularly ſurveyed by one of his Majeſty's officers properly authorized ſo to do; and that they were adjudged by them unfit for his Majeſty's uſe. And further that they give in at the ſame time a depoſition, that they are poſſeſſed of no white pine logs, but what are contain'd in ſaid certificates.*

JOS. LORING, jun.
Deputy to the Hon. John Wentworth, Eſq

P. Verſtille,

of Wathersfield.

Has juſt received his Stored Goods, together with all his Coarſe Woolens excepting nine pieces Bazes, and ſix pieces Duffles, which he ſold on the 20th February laſt, and in order for a quick Sale will ſell them Cheap for CASH only, VIZ.

BROAD Cloth's of the moſt faſhionable colours 3 4 6 4 7-4 8-4 plane and ſnap Coatings German Serges ſorted colours Blue and Green Ratteens Planes ſorted colours Devonſhire Kerſeys Half Thicks Flowered Serges Wilton Cloths of the moſt Faſhionable Colours Sagathys ſorted ſingle and double Camblets Sprig Camblets Figurd Stuffs Black & Colourd Crapes Dorſenteens Mecklingburgs Brilliant Dreſdens Dreſdenets Miſſinets Martinico Luteſtring half yard and yard wide Poplins ſorted Colours Grezetts Brolioes black Bombazeens black & Cloth Colour'd Draw Boys brown and olive colourd Fuſtians brown & white Buckrams Cotton & Linen Checks of all widths red and white blue and white ſtripe Hollands Pelong Sattins green and ſtraw colourd Sarſinetts Sheard and thick Muſlins black and white Catgut black Parſinets black and figurd Capuchine Silks Mens and Womens leather Gloves and Mitts Womens ſilk Gloves and Mitts 3 4 & 7 8 Bed-Ticking Chintz and Callicoes Linnen Cotton & Silk Handkerchiefs black Cravatts Snail Trimmins Head Flowers Necklaces and Ribbons Silver Tippets

Turbans and Maſks Sattin Hatts and Bonnetts black Taffitys blak Ducape black blue green and crimſon Perſian Taffitys Fans black and white bone Lace Damaſcus for Waiſtcoats 3 4 7 8 and yard wide Hollands Dowlas and Ruſſia Linins white figurd Dimotys for childrens Blankets ſtripe and ſpotted Swanſkins Draggetts and white Flannels Mens and Womens Cotton & Thread Hoſe black blue and cloth colourd knitt patterns for Breeches Flowerd Lawn and Kenting Handkerchiefs Qualitys Ferrets and Galloons Horn Mettle Twiſt and Baſket Buttons Twiſt and ſowing Silk wide and narrow Tapes Writing and Preſs Paper Paper hangings for Rooms Looking Glaſſes Shalloon of all colours Tammys and Durants of ditto Callamancoes ditto 6 4 and 8 4 blankets 6 4 & 8 4 ſpotted Ruggs Ravens Duck, Oznabrigs and Ticking long beſt G R. Wool Cards Silk knee ſtraps Pewter & Braſs Penknives Table Knives & Forks Sleeve Buttons and Sciſſors Temple and other Spectacles Shoe and Knee Buckles Kippins Snuff Pepper and Allſpice Copperas an aſſortment of Glaſs and Nottingham Ware, &c.

N B. Moſt of the above Articles may be had at the Store of STEPHEN MEERS, oppoſite the North Meeting Houſe in Hartford.

STOLEN or Stray'd from the ſubſcriber, of the great Nine Partners, on the 28th inſt. a light brown horſe, about 14 hands high, about ſix years old, a natural trotter, a ſtar in his forehead, black main, tail and leggs, the main hanging on the left ſide, his right hind foot white, and a lump about the bigneſs of a walnut on his left ſide.—Whoever ſhall take up the ſaid horſe ſo that the owner may have him again, ſhall have TWO DOLLARS reward, or if he is ſtolen, the thief ſecured, ſo that he may be brought to juſtice ſhall have FIVE DOLLARS reward, and all reaſonable charges paid, by

WILLIAM CORNWELL.

May 30, 1770.

WE The ſubſcribers being appointed a committee by the general aſſembly of the colony of Connecticut in May laſt, upon the petition of Charles Dewey of Hebron, againſt Benjamin Taylor and others, to examine into the claims of the parties, to a certain large tract of land in ſaid Hebron, antiently granted by Capt. John Maſon, aſſignee of Uncus, Owanico and Joſhua Sachems, and portion thereof to make, &c.—These are to notify all perſons concerned to attend the ſaid buſineſs, at the dwelling houſe of Mr Joſeph Waters in ſaid Hebron, on the 6th day of Auguſt next, when and where we ſhall enter on ſaid buſineſs. Dated at Hartford, 5th June. 1770.

JABEZ HAMLIN,
ZEBULON WEST,
NATHANIEL WALES, jun. } Committee

Lanbier Leſcoiet,

(Clock and Watch maker from Paris)

TAKES this opportunity to inform the public, that he makes, mends and cleans all ſorts of Clocks and Watches at his ſhop in Kingſtreet Hartford, at the ſign of the Clock, at as reaſonable a rate as they can be done in any part of America, and all gentlemen favouring him with their cuſtom, may depend upon being ſerv'd in the beſt manner.

N B. Said Leſcoiet has for ſale a repeating WATCH of his own make, which he will warant to be of the beſt kind, it being no way larger than a common Watch, though its parts are more numerous.

TO BE SOLD BY

Philip Mortimer,

Of Middletown, ſundry pieces of Land, viz

One piece or parcel

Lying in Eaſt Windſor, containing 98 acres, 18 of which is choice meadow, the other wood land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz West on the country road, north on land belonging to Mr. Ellſworth, eaſt partly on Scantick river, and ſouth on a highway.——TWO other pieces lying in Weathersfield, containing about twenty acres, being choice paſture land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſt on land of James Mitchel's, weſt on land of Gerſhom Nott's, ſouth partly on land of Moſes Deming's, and partly on James Curtiſh's land, and north on Moſes Deming's. THE other piece containing about ſix acres, butted eaſt on land of Moſes Deming, weſt on land of Francies Hanmor, north partly on land belonging to Gerſhom Nott, and partly on James Curtiſs's, and ſouth partly on land belonging to Thomas Wells, and partly on Francies Hanmors land.——ONE other piece lying in Middletown, containing thirty acres, conſiſting of plow land, paſture and meadow land, butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſterly on land of the heirs of Daniel Merwin, weſterly on land of Juſtus Webſter, north on land of Joſeph Barns, and —ſouth on land Miles Merwin. For further particular of enquire of ſaid Mortimer.

277 · np · the 3m.

HARTFORD:
Printed by Green and Watſon.

Pot-Aſh and Salts.

CASH and Weſt-India Goods to be given for good merchantable POT ASH and dry SALTS, by

LATHROP & SMITH,

At their Store in Hartford.

LEFT in the Store of the ſubſcriber of Hartford, a pair of Silver Shoe Buckles.——The owner may have them again, on proving his property, and paying for this Advertiſement, by applying to

WILLIAM KNOX.

Hartford, June, 4, 1770.

TO BE SOLD BY

James Tiley,

GOLDSMITH, at his Shop just below Meſſ. Lathrop & Smith's Store in King Street Hartford.

CYPHER'd and Brilliant Stone Ear-Rings ſet in Gold, ditto in Silver, Cypher'd and Brilliant Stone Buttons, Stone Rings, and Stone Lockets, with a variety of other Articles.

MAY 21, 1770.

Paſſage-Boat.

THIS is to inform the public, that I the ſubſcriber have provided a good BOAT convenient for paſſengers, which will ſail in the following manner, from the date above-mentioned every other week, viz. from Saybrook on Monday to Middletown, and from Middletown to Sagg Harbour on Wedneſday, and from Sagg-Harbour back again on Friday, wind and weather permitting.——The fare for man and horſe is one dollar, and for a ſingle paſſenger is half a dollar.——All gentleman paſſengers, who are inclined to favour him with their cuſtom will meet with good uſage, from their humble ſervant,

JEREMIAH LORD.

STray'd or ſtolen from the ſubſcriber of Farmington, about three weeks ago a bay Mare 3 years old branded with the letter X on her left ſhoulder, a ſtar in the forehead halter broke dock'd and trim'd.——Whoſoever ſhall take up ſaid beaſt, and ſend word to the ſubſcriber, ſhall be reaſonably rewarded by MOSES ANDRUS.

Farmington, May 28, 1770.

OIL and BLUBBER, of the beſt Quality, Suitable for Tanners uſe, To be Sold by

Joſeph Barrett,

Of Hartford.

ALL Perſons indebted to the ſubſcriber of Torrington, are deſired to make a ſettlement within one month from the date hereof, or expect trouble without further notice. JOHN BURR.

Torington May 28 1770.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

MONDAY, JUNE 25, 1770.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Numb 287.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

WHEREAS the general aſſembly held at Hartford in May laſt, appointed us the ſubſcribers agents to inquire after all debts dues, demands owing to the governor and company, by bill, bond, or any other ſecurity, and all fees, fines and forfeitures, & to ſettle with the former agents, king's attornies, and the managers of the government lottery and ferry point wharf lottery, & with the naval officers, and all other dues and demands whatſoever, except what relates to treaſurer Talcott's accounts. And alſo to conſider and allow all ſuch ſettlements and abatements as ſhall appear juſt and reaſonable, which by ſaid aſſembly were refer'd to the auditors to ſettle and adjuſt, as though they had been preſented before the firſt day of September laſt.——We do therefore according to the direction of ſaid aſſembly, notify all perſons concern'd, to meet us at the ſtate houſe in Hartford, on the ſecond Tueſday of July next and exhibit their accounts that the ſame may be adjuſted and ſettled accordingly.

John Cheſter,
Jabez Hamlin,
William Williams,

Hartford, June 8 1770.

To the Printer of the PUBLIC LEDGER.

LONDON, March 14

How doth the City ſit ſolitary? She that was great among the Nations, and Princeſs among the Provinces, her own feet ſhall carry her afar off to ſojourn.

JEREMIAH.

The Merchants ſhall weep over her, for no man buyeth her Merchandize any more, her Merchandize of Silver, of Cloth, and Purple, or Scarlet, or Silk, or Braſs, or Iron; for the Merchants which deal in theſe things ſhall ſtand afar off ſaying, Alas! this great City; for in one hour is our Riches and our Trade come to naught. All the Inhabitants of the Weſt ſhall be aſtoniſhed at thee, for thy Riches and thy Fairs! thy Merchandise, and thy Mariners; thy Pilots, and thy Caulkers; ſhall fall in the day of thy ruin.

SUCH was the prediction concerning Tyre, whoſe ruin was partly effected by luxury, but principally by the corruption and other vices of its rulers, whoſe whole aim was the oppreſſion of the People, and therefore many thouſands of its Merchants and Manufacturers embarked for Carthage, one of its Colonies, where the arts ſoon flouriſhed in the ſame degree as they declined at Tyre, which ended in its ruin.

The fall of the Mother Country, and the riſe of its Colony, in the above inſtance, ought to be a warning to us, but inſtead of this by our miſtaken policy, we are encouraging our Mechanicks and Manufacturers to embark for North America, where an army, which coſts this kingdom near five hundred pounds a year, is ſent to ſupport Officers in the collection of comparatively a Barley Corn: An Army compoſed of Manufacturers raiſed at Leeds, Halifax, Mancheſter, Norwich, Birmingham, Sheffie'd, &c. Such are the pains which Adminiſtration takes to compleat our ruin, by tranſplanting our Manufactures to the Colonies, where every man deſerting from our Army, is better and of more value than his weight in gold.

The miſtaken meaſure of firſt paſſing a Stampt-Act, and ſecondly to impoſe duties on our own manufactures or any other goods for the purpoſes of a revenue, in order to be applied to the payment of Judges of Vice Admiralty, 600l. ſterling a year, but who never tried a cauſe; as well as to allow ſalaries to Judges independant of the People; alſo to Commiſſioners of Cuſtoms, and many others and even to ſupport the Army when ſuch revenue become equal to it. This a hoſt of civil and military Officers and Soldiers would all be ſupported on the property of the Colonies, and taken from them without their own conſent, and this Army of Locuſts would be independent of the Colonies. They have therefore reſolved to counteract thoſe Acts, by taking none of our goods: Thus the Landholder, the Merchant, the Mariner, and Manufacturer, are now but juſt beginning to feel their calamity; for the coloniſts, to prevent a duty to be raiſed upon them have not only entered into aſſociations not to have any more of our goods, but have even returned thoſe that were arrived by Captains Winne Faulkner, and a great quantity per the Lydia arrived at Briſtol, and other parts. In ſhort, the impoſing a Stamp Duty, ſending them Judges of Vice Admiralty, Provincial Judges with advanced ſalaries, Commiſſioners of Cuſtoms, with their thouſands a year each, with all their train of Leeches, and laſtly an Army to be paid by the Colonies, has altogether ſo diſguſted them, that when the troops and ſquadron came before Boſton, the alarm run through that Continent, that Boſton was taken by the Engliſh

To reconcile the Colonies to the Mother Country, to recover their affections, reſtore our trade with them, to deſtroy their manufactures, and be ſincerly one people, and united to them as heretofore, may be thought an arduous undertakeing; but with great ſubmiſſion to the Miniſtry, and to the Public, I think nothing ſo eaſy, if truth, right reaſon and juſtice, be our guide It is,

1ſt. Repeal the Act which impoſes a duty on Britiſh, or any other goods in America, for the purpoſes of a Revenue: Be content to take their money for your manufactures through your Merchants.

2d Aboliſh the board of Commiſſioners of Cuſtoms with all their train; attract their trade by your lenity, for the country is too extended to do it by compulſion.

3d. Withdraw your Judges of Vice admiralty, and the ſalaries lately given to Provincial Judges, as well as penſions.

4th. Call home your army for, they are both a burthen to this kingdom and the colonies, amongſt whom a traitor was never born.

5th. and laſtly. Whenever this kingdom wants American aid, let the King order his Vicegerant in his name to require ſuch from the repreſentatives of the people, who have never been wanting in duty and loyalty, and aſſiſtance to King William, Queen Anne, and George the Second, when they gave peace to this Kingdom by the conqueſt of Cape Breton, and in the late war they had 20 000 men in the field againſt the enemies of their Sovereign, as well as upwards of 20 000 ſeamen

If ſuch ſentiments as theſe be adopted, all will immediately be at peace and quiet and ſuch who are at preſent inclined to reſtore harmony, may be aſſured that it can never obſerve reproach to correct human policy and error, but on the contrary, they will be entitled, and muſt receive the thanks of this kingdom and America. Yours,

NICHOLAS RAY.

CHARLES TOWN, April 27.

The congreſs with the Cherokee Indians, mentioned in our laſt, began at Congarees, on Tueſday the 10th inſtant, when the conferences were opened by John Stuart Eſq; his Majeſty's Superintendant of India affairs, in preſence of Sir William Draper, Capt. Collins, Col. Howarth, and many other gentlemen. The Indians were Occonoſtota or the Great Warrior, Willanawaw Prince of Chote, Ottaſſite Ouſtenecka or Judd's Friend, Sallone the Young Warrior, Eccuy the Good Warrior of Keowee, the Wolf beloved Man of Deowee, Chenista Warrior of Sugar-Town, ſeveral Warriors of inferior rank, and a great number of young fellows and others. They behaved in a very friendly manner, but expreſſed great uneaſineſs on account of encroachments on their hunting grounds, on the ſide of Virginia. They alſo complained of the number of white hunters who deſtroy their game, and of the great number of looſe white men who ſwarm in their towns, ſubject to no controul or juriſdiction, and they requeſted the ſuperintendant to ſend Mr. Cameron into the nation, that he might bring the traders into ſome order, and lay them under proper regulations as formerly. The conferences ended on the 18th, and the Indians were then preparing to return home in very good temper, and well pleaſed with their treatment.

Some days before the Warriors left the Over Hill towns, a party of Indians returned from hunting, among whom was the late beloved Man or Prince of Chote, called by the Indians Governor of the nation. In the woods they met a White man in great diſtreſs, and almoſt ſtarved with hunger, ſome of the party ſhewed an inclination to kill him, which the Prince did not object to, but rather ſeemed to encourage; an Indian woman however took the white man under her protection, fed him and brought him ſafe into the town, and on her arrival, gave information to the Warriors of the part the Prince had acted regarding him. A general meeting was immediately called, at which all the cheifs aſſiſted, who unanimouſly depoſed the Prince for his ſaid behaviour, and elected in his room Willanawaw, Warrior of Toquo, as a perſon well diſpoſed and attached to his white brethren.

The King has been pleaſed to iſſue ſix writs of mandamus, ſeverally directed to the governors or commanders of his provinces in the ſouthren diſtrict of North America, viz. Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Eaſt Florida and Weſt Florida, appointing the Hon. John Stuart, Eſq. ſuperintendant of Indian affairs in the ſaid diſtrict, to be a member of each of his Majeſty's council's in the ſaid provinces reſpectively, as a counſellor extraordinary and on Monday laſt the Superintendant was accordingly ſworn in and took his ſeat as a member of his Majeſty's council for this province.

May 4. The party of Shawaneſe Indians, formerly mentioned, is ſtill in the Creek county. Oucconoſtatota, and other principal warriors and cheifs of the Cherokees, refuſed to receive any of their Talks or to have any thing to do with them.

From Weſt Florida we learn, that two white men had been killed between Mobilla and the Creek country. The Mortar and other Creek Head men diſclaimed any knowledge of the murders, and declared their readineſs to deliever up the murderers ſhould they be diſcovered to be of their nation. The ſix companies of the 31ſt regiment were arrived from St. Auguſtine at Penſacola, which laſt named place we are informed is immediately to be put in a ſtate of Defence and that Brigadier Haldiman commending his Majeſty's forces in the ſouthern diſtrict is ſailed for Penſacola from St Auguſtine. The Spaniards have eſtabliſhed and garriſoned ſeveral poſts on the lakes Maurepas and Pontchartrain and other places on the frontiers of Weſt Florida ſo that it is almoſt impoſſible for any of the French Inhabitants of New Orleans to get out of the country

L O N D O N

April 19. Tueſday evening about ſix o'clock, Mr. Wilkes left the King's Bench priſon. In order to blind the populace who had aſſembled before the priſon he had hired, and a gentleman went out in a coach [illegible] which drew the attention of the populace for ſome time on which Mr. Wilkes with a friend ſtept into a poſt chaiſe with four Horſes and th[illegible] as faſt as they could, [illegible] were [illegible] before they had gained the Windmill [illegible] where the people, at firſt, inſiſted [illegible] taking out the horſes in order to draw the carriage about in triumph but he avoided it [illegible] and was at laſt permitted to purſue his journey

On Tueſday night the houſes in the Borough of Southwark, the town of Newington and great part of Lambeth were illuminated and [illegible] rang on account of Mr. Wilkes's enlargement

A Court of Aldermen is to be ſummoned to meet [illegible] at Guildhall, in order to [illegible] John Wilkes Eſq; Alderman of Farringdon Ward without; after which he [illegible] elegantly entertained by the Lord Mayor at the Manſion Houſe.

Cadiz, March 2. By letters from Mexico we have an account of the deaths of the Abbe d'Auteroche, and one of the two officers of the Spaniſh Marine, who had ſailed with that gentleman to the iſland of California. They fell ſick, with every one who accompanied them, on the 4th of June the very day after they had made their obſervation of the Tranſit of Venus over the Sun.

This obſervation, according to the ſame letters, was made with all poſſible advantages, the day being extremely fine, and the air remarkable ſerene. We learn, moreover, that the Sieur Paly, the famous geographer, who was among thoſe who fell ſick happily arrived, on the 24th of October, at Port St. Blaiſe, in the White Sea, with all thoſe who had the good fortune to eſcape the epidemic diſeaſe with which they were viſited.——Much is expected from the ſucceſs of the obſervation which was the grand object of the voyage of theſe Aſtronomers.

Briſtol, April 21. Wedneſday night, on account of the enlargment of Mr. Wilkes, entertainments, were provided in different parts of this city and illuminations appeared, ſome from inclination and others for the preſervation of their windows.

St James's April 16. The King has been pleaſed to appoint Soame Jenyns, Edward Eliot, John Roberts, W. Fitzherbert, Robert Spencer, (commonly called Lord Robert Spencer) George Greville (commonly called Lord Granville) and Wm Northey, Eſquires, to be Commiſſioners for trade and Plantations.—— Gaz

L O N D O N.

April 14. A ludicrous correſpondent aſſures us that when the anſwer of a great perſonage to the City Remonſtrance was read in Guildhall on Thurſday laſt, two of the greateſt men in this metropolis, Meſſrs. Gog and Magog, were obſerved to ſhed tears

A gentleman juſt arrived from Riga informs us, the Ruſſians are all in high ſpirits on account of the approaching ſummer campaign, as by all human appearance the final concluſion of the Turkiſh Empire in Europe will be terminated before next Chriſtmas-day.

We are aſſured that there is no preſent proſpect of Lord Camden's having the Seals returned him; and ſo far from that nobleman's having had private conferences of late with a Great Perſonage, reſpecting his reſtitution to office, as has been lately ſaid, he has not been once at court within this laſt month.

The reports of a coalition of parties are now univerſally believed to have their foundation in truth.

Yeſterday afternoon a buttock of beef was laid down to be Roaſted at the Manſion houſe, for the entertainment on Monday next, which weighed exactly 45 ſtone.

The ſame time a pigeon pye was prepared which conſiſted of 145 pigeons, for the ſame entertainment.

It may appear at firſt ſight wholly ridiculous to make any additional comment on the number, forty five; and yet it ſhould really ſeem as if that celebrated number muſt have more than ordinary connection with the affairs of Mr. Wilkes, ſome how or other. Who can read over the laſt advertiſment from the Society of the Bill of Rights, without joining in this obſervation? The Society mention but ſix or ſeven money articles about the patriot, and three of them contain the number forty five. They ſay they have compromiſed 14345*l.* of his debts; that there remains 5445 to be compromiſed [and which, by the bye, too, to make another 45, is 5445 read either backward or forward] and that ſince the meeting of the 13th of March, they have received in ſubſcriptions, for Mr. Wilkes's uſe, 945*l*.

H A R T F O R D.

Meſſieurs PRINTERS,

By inſerting the following Character you will do juſtice to the Memory of him who is the Subject of it; and 'tis to be hoped do no Diſſervice to the Public.

THE Rev'd Mr. NATHANIEL HOOKER, late Paſtor of the Church in the weſt Society in Hartford deceas'd, was born at Hartford December 15, A.D. 1737; he was the Son and eldeſt Child of Capt. Nathaniel Hooker of Hartford deceas'd, and of Mrs. Eunice Hooker, who was the Daughter of the Hon. Joſeph Talcott, Eſqr formerly Governor of the Colony of Connecticut; and was a Deſcendant from the Rev'd, Pious & Famous Mr. Thomas Hooker, who was the firſt Settled Miniſter in the Town of Hartford. His Deſcent and family Connexions on both Sides were reſpectable and reputable.

In very early Life he diſcovered a Genius diſtinguiſhingly Sprightly, ready and Active, and a Diſpoſition very hopeful & promiſing; which appeared eſpecially in an Uncommon fondneſs and propenſity to Books and Study, together with the Swift and eaſy Progreſs he made in the firſt Rudiments of Learning;—Encouraged by ſuch hopeful Beginnings, his Parents ſoon put him under Advantages for Neceſſary Preparations for Some public Seminary of Learning; And Accordingly September 10 A.D. 1751 he was received as a well Qualified Member into Yale College in the 14th Year of his Age. Where during his State of Education, he improv'd to ſo good Advantage his Time and Talents in the Purſuit of his Accademical Studies, and the Acquiſition of Uſeful and profitable Literature, as gave him the deſerved Reputation of an Accompliſh'd and univerſal Scholar. His Behaviour and Deportment were not only unexceptionable, but ſuch as recommended him as well to the Notice and Reſpect of his Inſtructors and Superiors, as to the good Eſteem and Affection of his Equals and fellow Students, and (in a word) as a worthy Member of that reſpectable Society: Accordingly after having gone through the Ordinary Courſe of Accademical Studies, he was dignified with the Uſual Honours of the College September 10, A.D. 1755, in the 18th Year of his Age. Being thus recommended to public Notice and Improvement, and being deſirous to be imploy'd in ſome good and laudable Profeſſion for the honour of GOD and the Good of Mankind, he made Divinity his Choſen and favourite Study, in which tho' but a very youth, he ſoon made ſo good Proficiency, as that it was tho't adviſable he ſhould offer himſelf upon Examination for Approbation as a Candidate for the work of the Goſpel Miniſtry, which he did Accordingly, and received a Licence. After which he was ſoon Apply'd to by the Weſt Society of Hartford, as a Probationer for Settling, and after a proper Time of Tryal, was unanimouſly Elected and Choſen by the Suffrages of both Church and Society as their Paſtor, and ordained to the Work of the Miniſtry among them, in December A.D. 1757, in the 20th Year of his Age: to the great Satiſfaction and mutual Comfort of both Miniſter and People, with whom he ever lived in the ſtricteſt Harmony, Unity and Friendſhip——His Mien and Deportment were natural, free, eaſy and unaffected; his Countenance, Meaning and Engaging, but without diſguiſe or Diſſimulation; his Fancy quick and lively, his Imagination ſtrong, active and fruitful, even beyond what is Common; of a retentive Memory, ſound Judgment, delicate Taſte, quick and eaſy Invention, which being well improved by Application and Study, furniſhed him with a happy Talent and diſtinguiſhing Abilities at Compoſition, in which he Shone with a peculiar Luſtre upon whatever Subject he Undertook——He was well acquainted with, and had a peculiar Taſte for Painting Rhetoric, Oratory and Poetry, in the three former of which (eſpecially) he was himſelf a good Proficient; he was well acquainted with Books, and with Authors both Antient and Modern, and eſpecially with thoſe of the Hiſtorical Kind and never ſeemed more in his Element than when reading or writing; for Amuſement, Novels and Dramatic Subjects were his Entertainment; he was well acquainted with human Nature, with Men and Things; In converſation he was affable, humane, eaſy of acceſs Free, Civil, and Courteous, as well as Inſtructive and Entertaining. In his general Conduct he ſhow'd a Great and Magnanimous ſpirit, generous, benevolent, kind and hoſpitable; a Sincere, Undiſguiſed, honeſt, open and true hearted Friend; a lover of his Country and of good and Virtuous Men In his Religious Sentiments he was to a good Degree Catholic and Charitable, not unreaſonably biggotted to any Favourite opinions Sect Party or Profeſſion.

In the Various Parts of his Miniſterial Character he approved himſelf the Studious, Diligent, Conſtant and faithful Miniſter and Servant of Jeſus Chriſt, his Lord and Maſter. As a Sermonizer he was correct, conciſe methodical Scriptural, and Rational; his Diſcourſes were well Studied and well Connected; and he performed the offices of the Sanctuary in ſuch ſort as by the Bleſſing of GOD, had a natural Tendency to Adminiſter Grace and Godly Edifying to the Hearer; As a Preacher he was Eloquent, Engaging, and of a Pathetic and winning Addreſs, and had a peculiar Talent at touching and moving the Paſſions of his Auditory as the Occaſion, or Nature of the Subject ſhould require; he had a free and eaſy Utterance, & a beautiful and manly Style; his Diſcourſes were embelliſhed with Elegant and well Choſen words, well Turned Periods and pertinent Sequences; and (in a word) was by the beſt Judges allow'd to be one of the moſt accompliſhed Preachers of the Day.

AND to ſum up all; May it not be Added that the Virtuous Qualifications of the ſincere Chriſtian;—The accompliſh'd ſcholar;—The facetious Gentleman;—The zealous Patriot:—The faithful Miniſter;—The affectionate Huſband;—The tender Parent;—The truſty and conſtant Friend, ſeemed to combine to furniſh out the neceſſary Lineaments for forming the true complexion of his general Character.

In the former part of his Miniſtry he for ſeveral Years (tho' naturally of a ſlender Conſtitution) enjoyed Life and Health to a comfortable Degree which to a People whoſe Expectation from him were great, offered a hopeful proſpect of his being continued a laſting Bleſſing among them; But about 3 years before his Death he was thrown into a weak, languid and declining State, in Conſequence of the unkind Operation of ſome mercurial Preparations, for the Removal of ſome glandular Obſtructions in his Throat to which he was ſubject and by a Complication of unuſual Nervous Diſorders (which ſeemed gradually to increaſe & prey upon his Conſtitution to the Day of his Death) his Animal Syſtem, ſeemed to be ſo univerſally Diſordered and Broken as not only to baffle the ſkill of the moſt able Phyſicians, but alſo to render his Life a ſcene of Pain, Trouble and Diſtreſs, more eſpecially the laſt Seven Months of it; when by Reaſon of the Prevalence of the Diſeaſe he was not only rendered uncapable of Public ſervice, but moſtly confin'd to his Room, and a great part of the Time to his Bed—This was the moſt affecting, trying and diſtreſſing Part of the whole ſcene, as he was deprived of all Reſt and Eaſe by Night and Day, and frequently in ſuch a Delirium as to be deprived of all Reaſon. A few weeks before his Death, tho' very feeble and almoſt reduced to a Skeleton, he ſeemed for the moſt Part to have the calm Exerciſe of his Reaſon, tho' in a much more feeble Degree than had been uſual, during which Interval tho' his Thoughts were much upon Death and the Eternal ſtate, which he view'd as very nearly approaching, yet he ſeem'd no ways Terrify'd at the ſolemn Proſpect, but with a becoming Chriſtian Fortitude and Calmneſs reſign'd himſelf to the Sovereign Will of Heaven, truſting in the mercy of GOD, thro' the Merits of CHRIST for Eternal Reſt and Happineſs: and on Saturday the 9th of June 1770 Departed this Life, in the XXXIII Year of his Age, and 13th of his Miniſtry.

THUS a Period was put to the Life and Uſefulneſs of ſo Promiſing, ſo Worthy and Valuable a Man in the Meridian of Life. A Great Breach thus upon his Family! A heavy Stroke to his Flock! Senſibly felt, and deeply to be lamented by them by the Miniſtry, and by the Church of GOD!—His Funeral was decently ſolemnized on the Monday after his Death, at which a Sermon was delivered by the Rev'd Mr. PERRY of Eaſt-Windſor, to a very Numerous and Crouded Auditory, Convened from that & the Neighbouring Towns, ſuitable to the Mournful Occaſion—His virtuous Conſort is left a Sorrowful Widow with one only Child, a likely Daughter of about nine Years old. Q. D. C.

Stat ſua cuique Dies
Breve et irreparabile Tempus
Omnibus eſt Vita:
At Famam extendere Factis
Hoc Virtutis Opus.

B O S T O N, June 21

Monday laſt arrived here Capt Hall from London, in whom came Paſſengers Mr. John Nazro, Dr. Dawſe with ſundry other Perſons, among them was Patrick Smith, with the Goods he reſhipped laſt Year, and for which the trade here then paid the Freight Home

The reports from London are, that the Duty on Tea will be taken off this Seſſion of Parliament;—— and the Board of Commiſſioners be removed.

By the papers brought by Capt. Hall from London, and Capt. Davis from Falmouth, we find, That the Advice of the Maſſacre on the 5th of March in this Town, was received in England the 22d of April, by Capt. Robſon: The next day his Excellency Sir Francis Bernard, Governor of Maſſachuſetts Bay, had a Conference for near three Hours, with the Rt. Hon. Earl of Hillſborough Secretary of ſtate for the colonies, relative to the extraordinary News: That evening an authentic account from the Boſton Gazette, was publiſhed, with the Proceedings of the town in conſequence thereof; as alſo, a letter directed to Gov. Pownall, ſigned by a committee choſen by the Town, giving a general account of the Maſſacre, to prevent any bad Impreſſion from accounts that might be ſent by ſuch as ſhou'd miſrepreſent the Facts.—The Paragraphs from the papers are to the 30th of April:—The prints of the 28th alſo contain the ſubſtance of a Letter from Boſton, "relative to the unhappy affair between the Townſmen and the ſoldiers, on the 5th of March;" with a Narrative, &c. to which is added, the caſe of Capt. Preſton, theſe differ from the accounts publiſhed here. [The accounts being lengthy Muſt be omitted till next week].

H A R T F O R D, June 25.

On the 6th Inſtant were collected at the Houſe of the Rev'd Joſeph Perry in Eaſt-Windſor, upwards of 30 of the Fair Sex, in Order for a Spinning Match——towards the Cloſe of the Day they preſented [illegible] Party with 188 Skeins of well wrought Yarn, as the Fruits of that Day's Induſtry. The Skeins were Linen and Tow principally——the Reſt fine Worſted. One of the Company ſpun 30 Knots of Worſted, and carded 6 Pounds of Tow—another of them ſpun 80 Knots of Tow.—The ſame's Induſtry and Generoſity now related, are truly commendable, and worthy of Imitation.

THE ſubſcriber begs leave to aquaint the public, that he has opened a ſchool in Mr. Caldwell's ſhop where will be taught Reading; Writing; Vulgar & Dicimal Arethmetic; the Extraction of the roots; ſimple and Compound intereſt; how to purchace or ſell annuities, leaſes for lives or in reverſion, freehold eſtates, &c. at ſimple or Compound intereſt. The Italien Method of book keeping, menſuration of ſuperficies and ſolids; ſurveying; gauging, dialling, plain and ſpheric tregonomitry, navigation and other branches of the Mathematics. Thoſe who are pleas'd to honour him with the care of educating their Children, may depend on having them treated in the moſt tender manner, punctually waited upon, and carefully inſtructed, and to merit their approbation and give general ſatisfaction ſhall be the conſtant ſtudy of their Obedient Humble Servant

JONH MILLER

N. B. He will attend a Morning School from 7 to half after 8 for young Ladies who are deſirous further to improve themſelves in Writing & Accounts; and write for gentlemen at his leaſure hours.

Taken up laſt Friday,

a black Mare, about 10 years old, fourteen hands high, paces and trots, branded with D P on the left Shoulder, ſhe was once owned by the Wid. Ruſt who keeps a public Houſe in Eaſt Hartford, who diſpoſed of her to one Keney. The Owner may have her again on proving his Property and paying Charges, by applying to Elizabeth Ruſt.

N. B. There is a Mare Colt with her of a light Bay Colour, about two Years old, a Slit in her Face, no Brand.

Notice is hereby given,

to the Creditors of John Hopſon of Colcheſter, an inſolvent Debtor, that they meet at the Houſe of John Tainter, Innholder in Colcheſter on the 24th Day of July next, to take into Conſideration ſundry Notes of Hand in Favour of ſaid Hopſon, againſt one Aſahel Strong, and determine whether they will divide ſaid Notes amongſt themſelves as they now are, or have them collected before Diviſion is made thereof, &c. when and where the Subſcribers will attend.

Humphry Lyon,
Charles Foot, } Truſtees.
Joſeph Iſham, jun.

June 22 1770

The Subſcriber de-

ſires his Cuſtomers in the County of Berkſhire, to meet him at the houſe of Mr. William Beement in Great Barrington on the 18th Day of July next, at 6 o'clock Afternoon, to ſettle Accounts—Thoſe that cannot attend themſelves, are deſired to ſend ſome other perſon properly qualified (viz. with the CASH) to act in their Behalf.

William Stanton.

P. S. I ſhould be glad to have as many perſonally attend as conveniently can, having ſome new Propoſals to make.

Litchfield, 15th June, 1770.

owner may have him again, [illegible]

bject he Undertook——He was well ted with, and had a peculiar Taſte inting Rhetoric, Oratory and Poetry, three former of which (eſpecially) he nſelf a good Proficient; he was well red with Books, and with Authors ntient and Modern, and eſpecially oſe of the Hiſtorical Kind, and never more in his Element than when read writing; for Amuſement, Novels and ic Subjects were his Entertainment; well acquainted with human with Men and Things; In con n he was affable, humane, eaſy of ree, Civil, and Courteous, as well as ive and Entertaining. In his general he ſhow'd a Great and Magnanimous enerous, benevolent, kind and hoſpi a Sincere, Undiſguiſed, honeſt, open e hearted Friend; a lover of his y and of good and Virtuous Men In gious Sentiments he was to a good Catholic and Charitable, not unrea biggotted to any Favourite opinions ty or Profeſſion.

e Various Parts of his Miniſterial r he approved himſelf the Studious, Conſtant and faithful Miniſter and of Jeſus Chriſt, his Lord and Maſter. monizer he was correct, conciſe metho iptural, and Rational; his Diſcourſes ll Studied and well Connected; and rmed the offices of the Sanctuary in as by the Bleſſing of GOD, had a Tendency to Adminiſter Grace and difying to the Hearer; As a Prea was Eloquent, Engaging, and of a and winning Addreſs, and had a pe ent at touching and moving the of his Auditory as the Occaſion, or f the Subject ſhould require; he had d eaſy Utterance, & a beautiful and yle; his Diſcourſes were embelliſh Elegant and well Choſen words, ned Periods and pertinent Sequen (in a word) was by the beſt Judg d to be one of the moſt accompliſh icers of the Day.

o ſum up all; May it not be Ad the Virtuous Qualifications of the riſtian;—The accompliſh'd Scho he facetious Gentleman;—The triot;—The faithful Miniſter;— ionate Huſband;—The tender Pa The truſty and conſtant Friend, combine to furniſh out the ne ineaments for forming the true n of his general Character.

former part of his Miniſtry he for ears (tho' naturally of a ſlender n) enjoyed Life and Health to a e Degree which to a People whoſe from him were great, offered a oſpect of his being continued a ſing among them; But about 3 e his Death he was thrown into guid and declining State, in Con the unkind Operation of ſome Preparations, for the Removal glandular Obſtructions in his which he was ſubject and by tion of unuſual Nervous Diſorders ned gradually to increaſe & prey Conſtitution to the Day of his Animal Syſtem, ſeemed to be y Diſordered and Broken as not ls the ſkill of the moſt able Phy alſo to render his Life a ſcene uble and Diſtreſs, more eſpeci Seven Months of it; when by e Prevalence of the Diſeaſe he rendered uncapable of Public moſtly confin'd to his Room, part of the Time to his Bed— e moſt affecting, trying and diſ of the whole ſcene, as he was all Reſt and Eaſe by Night and Day, and frequently in ſuch a Delirium as to be deprived of all Reaſon. A few weeks before his Death, tho' very feeble and almoſt reduced to a Skeleton, he ſeemed for the moſt Part to have the calm Exerciſe of his Reaſon, tho' in a much more feeble Degree than had been uſual, during which Interval tho' his Thoughts were much upon Death and the Eternal ſtate, which he view'd as very nearly approaching, yet he ſeem'd no ways Terrify'd at the ſolemn Proſpect, but with a becoming Chriſtian Fortitude and Calmneſs reſign'd himſelf to the Sovereign Will of Heaven, truſting in the mercy of GOD, thro' the Merits of CHRIST for Eternal Reſt and Happineſs: and on Saturday the 9th of June 1770. Departed this Life, in the XXXIII Year of his Age, and 13th of his Miniſtry.

THUS a Period was put to the Life and Uſefulneſs of ſo Promiſing, ſo Worthy and Valuable a Man in the Meridian of Life. A Great Breach this upon his Family! A heavy Stroke to his Flock! Senſibly felt, and deeply to be lamented by them by the Miniſtry, and by the Church of GOD!—His Funeral was decently ſolemnized on the Monday after his Death, at which a Sermon was delivered by the Rev'd Mr PERRY of Eaſt-Windſor, to a very Numerous and Crouded Auditory, Convened from that & the Neighbouring Towns, ſuitable to the Mournful Occaſion.—His virtuous Conſort is left a Sorrowful Widow with one only Child, a likely Daughter of about nine Years old. Q. D. C.

Stat ſua cuique Dies
Breve et irreparabile Tempus
Omnibus eſt Vitæ:
At Famam extendere Factis
Hoc Virtutis Opus

BOSTON, June 21

Monday laſt arrived here Capt Hall from London, in whom came Paſſengers Mr. John Nazro, Dr. Dawſe with ſundry other Perſons, among them was Patrick Smith, with the Goods he reſhipped laſt Year, and for which the trade here then paid the Freight Home

The reports from London are, that the Duty on Tea will be taken off this Seſſion of Parliament; —— and the Board of Commiſſioners be removed.

By the papers brought by Capt. Hall from London, and Capt. Davis from Falmouth, we find, That the Advice of the Maſſacre on the 5th of March in this Town, was received in England the 22d of April, by Capt. Robſon: The next day his Excellency Sir Francis Bernard, Governor of Maſſachuſetts Bay, had a Conference for near three Hours, with the Rt. Hon. Earl of Hillſborough Secretary of State for the colonies, relative to the extraordinary News: That evening an authentic account from the Boſton Gazette, was publiſhed, with the Proceedings of the town in conſequence thereof; as alſo, a letter directed to Gov. Pownall, ſigned by a committee choſen by the Town, giving a general account of the Maſſacre, to prevent any bad Impreſſion from accounts that might be ſent by ſuch as ſhou'd miſrepreſent the Facts.—The Paragraphs from the papers are to the 30th of April:—The prints of the 28th alſo contain the ſubſtance of a Letter from Boſton, "relative to the unhappy affair between the Townſmen and the ſoldiers, on the 5th of March;" with a Narrative, &c. to which is added, the caſe of Capt. Preſton, theſe differ from the accounts publiſhed here. [The accounts being lengthy Muſt be omitted till next week].

HARTFORD, June 25.

On the 6th Inſtant were collected at the Houſe of the Rev'd Joſeph Perry in Eaſt-Windſor, upwards of 30 of the Fair Sex, in Order for a Spinning Match——towards the Cloſe of the Day they preſented Party with 188 Skeins of well wrought Yarn, as the Fruits of that Day's Induſtry. The Skeins were Linen and Tow principally——the Reſt fine Worſted. One of the Company ſpun 30 Knots of Worſted, and carded 6 Pounds of Tow—another of them ſpun 80 Knots of Tow.—The female Induſtry and Generoſity now related, are truly commendable, and worthy of Imitation.

THE ſubſcriber begs leave to acquaint the public, that he has opened a ſchool in Mr. Caldwell's ſhop where will be taught Reading; Writing; Vulgar & Decimal Arethmetic; the Extraction of the roots; ſimple and Compound intereſt; how to purchace or ſell annuities, leaſes for lives or in reverſion, freehold eſtates, &c. at ſimple or Compound intereſt. The Italian Method of book keeping, menſuration of ſuperficies and ſolids; ſurveying; gauging, dialing, plain and ſpheric tregonomitry, navigation and other branches of the Mathematics. Thoſe who are pleas'd to honour him with the care of educating their Children, may depend on having them treated in the moſt tender manner, punctually waited upon, and carefully inſtructed, and to merit their approbation and give general ſatisfaction ſhall be the conſtant ſtudy of their Obedient Humble Servant JONH MILLER.

N. B. He will attend a Morning School from 7 to half after 8 for young Ladies who are deſirous further to improve themſelves in Writing & Accounts; and write for gentlemen at his leaſure hours.

Taken up laſt Friday,

a black Mare, about 10 years old, fourteen hands high, paces and trots, branded with D P on the left Shoulder, ſhe was once owned by the Wid. Ruſt who keeps a public Houſe in Eaſt Hartford, who diſpoſed of her to one Keney. The Owner may have her again on proving his Property and paying Charges, by applying to Elizabeth Ruſt.

N. B. There is a Mare Colt with her of a light Bay Colour, about two Years old, a Slit in her Face, no Brand.

Notice is hereby given,

to the Creditors of John Hopſon of Colcheſter, an inſolvent Debtor, that they meet at the Houſe of John Tainter, Innholder in Colcheſter on the 24th Day of July next, to take into Conſideration ſundry Notes of Hand in Favour of ſaid Hopſon, againſt one Aſahel Strong, and determine whether they will divide ſaid Notes amongſt themſelves as they now are, or have them collected before Diviſion is made thereof, &c. when and where the Subſcribers will attend.

Humphry Lyon,
Charles Foot,
Joſeph Iſham, jun. } Truſtees.

June 22 1770

The Subſcriber deſires

his Cuſtomers in the County of Berkſhire, to meet him at the houſe of Mr. William Beement in Great Barrington on the 18th Day of July next, at 6 o'clock Afternoon, to ſettle Accounts—Thoſe that cannot attend themſelves, are deſired to ſend ſome other perſon properly qualified (viz. with the CASH) to act in their Behalf.

William Stanton.

P. S. I ſhould be glad to have as many perſonally attend as conveniently can, having ſome new Propoſals to make.

Litchfield, 15th June, 1770.

Shephard & Hunt,

TAKE this method to acquaint their cuſtomers and others, that they have juſt imported from LONDON, a general aſſortment of Drugs and Medicines, which they have for ſale at their Apothecary Store in Northampton—Eſſence of Pepper Mint—Eau de Luce—Beſt Turkey Figs—Choice new Currants, &c. &c.

Northampton, June 16, 1770.

Whereas my Wife Elizabeth

behaves herſelf in ſuch afroward and undutiful manner towards me, violating all conjugal duty, and endeavours to run me in debt and undo me——This is to notify all perſons whatever, not to harbour or entertain her; or to truſt or credit her on my account, as I will not pay any one penny that ſhe may contract

ZACHARIAH SEYMOUR.

Hartford, June 11, 1770.

TO BE SOLD BY

Jonathan Wadhams,

of Goſhen

ONE piece of Land, containing about 30 acres with a good Houſe and Barn ſtanding thereon, with a good Orchard & Well, and is well ſituated in the town, and lies on the country road that leads to Canaan——For further particulars inquire of ſaid Wadhams.

Goſhen, 1 June 1770.

LEFT in the Store of the ſubſcriber of Hartford, a pair of Silver Shoe Buckles.——The owner may have them again on proving his property, and paying for this Advertiſement, by applying to

WILLIAM KNOX.

Hartford, June, 4, 1770.

TO BE SOLD BY

James Tiley,

GOLDSMITH, at his Shop, juſt below Meſſ. Lathrop & Smith's Store in King Street Hartford.

CYPHER'd and Brilliant Stone Ear-Rings ſet in Gold, ditto in Silver, Cypher'd and Brilliant Stone Buttons, Stone Rings, and Stone Lockets, with a variety of other Articles.

MAY 21, 1770.

Paſſage-Boat.

THIS is to inform the public, that I the the ſubſcriber have provided a good BOAT, convenient for paſſengers, which will ſail in the following manner, from the date above-mentioned every other week, viz. from Saybrook on Monday to Middletown, and from Middletown to Sagg Harbour on Wedneſday, and from Sagg-Harbour back again on Friday, wind and weather permitting.——The fare for man and horſe is one dollar, and for a ſingle paſſenger, is half a dollar.——All gentlemen paſſengers, who are inclined to favour him with their cuſtom will meet with good uſage, from their humble ſervant,

JEREMIAH LORD.

P. Verſtille,

of Wathersfield.

Has juſt received his Stored GOODS, together with all his Coarſe Woolens excepting nine pieces Bazes, and ſix pieces Duffles, which he ſold on the 20th February laſt, and in order for a quick Sale will ſell them Cheap for CASH only, VIZ.

BROAD Cloth's of the moſt faſhionable colours 3 4 6 4 7-4 8 4 plane and nap Coatings German Serges ſorted colours Blue and Green Ratteens Planes ſorted colours Devonſhire Kerſeys Half Thicks Flowered Serges Wilton Cloths of the moſt Faſhionable Colours Sagathys ſorted Single and double Camblets Sprig Camblets Figurd Stuffs Black & Colourd Crapes Dorſetteens Mecklingburgs Brilliant Dreſdens Dreſdenets Miſſinets Martinico Luteſtraing half yard and yard wide Poplins ſorted Colours Grezetts Brolines black Bombazeens black & Cloth Colourd Draw Boys brown and olive colourd Fuſtians brown & white buckrams Cotton & Linnen Checks of all widths red and white blue and white ſtripe Hollands Pelong Sattins green and ſtraw colourd Saſſinetts Sheard and thick Muſlins black and white Catgut black Parſinets black and figurd Capuchine Silks Mens and Womens leather Gloves and Mitts Womens ſilk Gloves and Mitts 3 4 & 7 8 Bed Ticking Chintz and Callicoes Linnen Cotton & Silk Handkerchiefs black Cravatts Small Trimmins Head Flowers Necklaces and Ribbons Silver Tippets Turbans and Maſks Sattin Hatts and Bonnetts black Taffitys blak Ducape black blue green and crimſon Perſian Taffitys Fans black and white bone Lace Damaſcus for Waiſtcoats 3 4 7 8 and yard wide Hollands Dowlas and Ruſſia Linins white figurd Dimotys for childrens Blankets ſtripe and ſpotted Swanſkins Draggetts and white Flannels Mens and Womens Cotton & Thread Hoſe black blue and cloth colourd knitt patterns for Breeches Flowerd Lawn and Keoting Handkerchiefs Qualitys Ferretts and Galloons Horn Metile Twill and Basket Buttons Twill and ſowing Silk wide and narrow Tapes Writing and Preſs Paper Paper hangings for Rooms Looking Glaſſes Shalloon of all colours Tammys and Durants of ditto Callamancoes ditto 6 4 and 8 4 blankets 6 4 & 8 4 ſpotted Ruggs Ravens Duck, Oznabrigs and Ticklingburg beſt G. B. Wool Cards Silk knee ſtraps Pewter & Braſs Penknives Table Knives & Forks Sleeve Buttons and Sciſſors Temple and other Spectacles Shoe and Knee Buckles Kippins Snuff Pepper and Allſpice Copperas an aſſortment of Glaſs and Nottingham Ware, &c.

N. B. Moſt of the above Articles may be had at the Store of STEPHEN MEERS, oppoſite the North Meeting Houſe in Hartford.

Pot-Aſh and Salts.

CASH and Weſt-India Goods to be given for good merchantable POT ASH and dry SALTS, by

LATHROP & SMITH,

At their Store in Hartford.

WE The ſubſcribers being appointed a committee by the general aſſembly of the colony of Connecticut, in May laſt, upon the petition of Charles Dewey of Hebron, againſt Benjamin Taylor and others, to examine into the claims of the parties, to a certain large tract of land in ſaid Hebron, anticently granted by Capt. John Maſon, aſſignee of Uncus, Owanico and Joſhua Sachems, and partition thereof to make, &c.—Theſe are to notify all perſons concerned, to attend the ſaid buſineſs, at the dwelling-houſe of Mr. Joſeph Waters in ſaid Hebron, on the 6th day of Auguſt next, when and where we ſhall enter on ſaid buſineſs. Dated at Hartford, 5th June, 1770.

JABEZ HAMLIN,
ZEBULON WEST,
NATHANIEL WALES, jun. } Committee

Lanbier Leſcoiet,

(Clock and Watch maker from Paris)

TAKES this opportunity to inform the public, that he makes, mends and cleans all ſorts of Clocks and Watches, at his ſhop in Kingſtreet Hartford, at the ſign of the Clock, at as reaſonable a rate as they can be done in any part of America, and all gentlemen favouring him with their cuſtom, may depend upon being ſerv'd in the beſt manner.

N. B. Said Leſcoiet has for ſale a repeating WATCH of his own make which he will warant to be of the beſt kind, it being no way larger than a common Watch, though its parts are more numerous.

TO BE SOLD BY

Philip Mortimer,

Of Middletown, ſundry pieces of Land, viz.

One piece or parcel

Lying in Eaſt Windſor, containing 98 acres, 18 of which is choice meadow, the other wood land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Weſt on the country road, north on land belonging to Mr. Ellſworth, eaſt partly on Scantick river, and ſouth on a highway.——TWO other pieces lying in Weathersfield, containing about twenty acres, being choice paſture land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſt on land of James Mitchel's, weſt on land of Gerſhom Nott's, ſouth partly on land of Moſes Deming's, and partly on James Curtiſs's land, and north on Moſes Deming's. THE other piece containing about ſix acres, butted eaſt on land of Moſes Deming, weſt on land of Francies Hanmor, north partly on land belonging to Gerſhom Nott, and partly on James Curtiſs's, and ſouth partly on land belonging to Thomas Wells, and partly on Francies Hanmors land.——ONE other piece lying in Middletown, containing thirty acres, conſiſting of plow-land, paſture and meadow land, butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſterly on land of the heirs of Daniel Merwin, weſterly on land of Joſiah Webſter, north on land of Joſeph Barns, and —ſouth on land Miles Merwin. For further particulars enquire of ſaid Mortimer.

277 op 3m.

STray'd or ſtolen from the ſubſcriber of Farmington, about three weeks ago, a bay Mare 3 years old branded with the letter X on her left ſhoulder, a ſtar in the forehead, halter broke, dock'd and trim'd.——Whoſoever ſhall take up ſaid beaſt, and ſend word to the ſubſcriber, ſhall be reaſonably rewarded by MOSES ANDRUS.

Farmington, May 28, 1770.

MONDAY, JULY 2, 1770. Numb. 288.

THE
Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

HARTFORD, June 29.

FOR ſeveral Evenings paſt, has been noticed in the South-Eaſtern Part of our Hemiſphere a conſpicuous COMET; 'tis eminently of the crinitial ſort; on which Account its true Phaſes, can't be ſo exactly diſcern'd, nor its Nucleus but illy defined. At a ſlight Glance it ſeems to appear with a Luſtre between that of a Nebula or lucid Vapour and that of a common Star; and of a bigneſs nearly equal to that of a Star of the the 2d Magnitude. Some particular obſervations on which, are here exhibited to the View of the Public.

Tueſday, June 26, at Evening

	deg.	min.
COMET's Longitude in CAPRICORN, - - - - -	03	45
—Lat. North, - - - -	17	24
—Declination South - -	06	05
—Right-Aſcenſion - - -	94	00
—Meridian Altitude - -	41	55
—Time of Culmination precisely at Midnight.

—Aſcenſional difference of the Comet and Sun exactly 12 Hours

Its Poſition is in the upper Part of the Scutum Sobies juſt upon the upper Border of the lower Divarication in the Via-lactea (or milky-way) a little above the middle of a right Line drawn from the (now illuſtrious) Planet Jupiter to a Star of the firſt Magnitude, in the Conſtellation Aquila, about 25 degrees from each, nearly 4 deg eaſt of the ſolſtitial Colure, and 30 above the Horizon, in a Direction from us about 40 Deg. to the South of a due eaſt Point.

Thurſday, June 28, 9 o'Clock at Evening,

	deg.	min.
—Long. in Capricorn, -	05	30
—Latitude North, - -	27	49
—Right Aſcenſion, - -	95	45
—Declination North - -	04	20
—Meridian Altitude - -	52	10
—Time of Culmination after Midnight,	7 Min.

Its Poſition is about four Degrees Weſt from a Star of the 4th Magnitude, in the extremity of the Serpent's Tail.

REMARKS, &c.

THE preſent Aſpect of this COMET in Reſpect of the Earth and the Sun is very Remarkable as it ſorm'd its aſcending Node, or, interſected the Ecliptic nearly at Right Angles, paſſing from a ſouthern to a northerd Latitude, near or upon the ſolſtitial Colure, in ſuch Sort that the Point of Interſection was in or very near to the firſt Degree in the Sign Capricorn, and if we may judge from its preſent apparent Velocity, 'tis probable this Interſection happened ſome Time on the 22d Day of this preſent Month; this being the caſe the Earth muſt at that Time be exactly or nearly in Conjunction with the Comet and Sun; or in a Right Line that Paſſes between them "And ſhould the Comet from that ſituation have ſteered and purſued a direct courſe towards the Sun it would needed to have made little or no Digreſſion to take the Earth in its way with it: That this is the true State of the Matter needs no other Illuſtration than what will ariſe from what appears in Fact from Obſervation, particularly from the Conſideration of the Comets Culminating or Southing at and near Midnight, compared with its ſeveral Latitudes and Differences of Longitude; which justly conſidered plainly import that it is and has been for ſeveral Days in a Point of the Heavens nearly Oppoſite to that of the Sun, &c. and hence on account of its proximity to this Point of Oppoſition, we may eaſily account for its being furniſhed with no viſible Appearance of any Tail, which is not becauſe it is without any but because from its preſent Attitude ‡ in reſpect of the Sun and a Spectator on the Earth the Tail can be View'd only end wave, ſo that (ſpacious and tremendous as it probably may be) it cant be View'd to any good Advantage, or ſo as to appear According to Reality any more than a View of the End of a Lengthy Cylinder would exhibit its true and juſt Appearance.

On account of its preſent remarkable Situation as forementioned, it muſt (I think) be confeſſed that 'tis not ſo eaſy a matter meerly from the apparent direction of its courſe to determine the true direction of its real Motion viz. whether 'tis now in its Acceſs towards or Receſs from the Sun or rather its Perihelion; though its apparent Increment both as to Velocity and Magnitude (ſo far as Obſervations have hitherto been made) ſeem to favour the ſuppoſition of the former If it is now making its way towards the Sun, it muſt certainly (from the Nature of its Situation) be alſo increaſing its proximity to the Earth, in Conſequence of which we may expect it will be conſtantly increaſing both as to its Apparent Magnitude, Luſtre and Velocity; if the contrary was, contrary Appearances are to be expected. Be that as it may 'tis not now poſited in the forementioned Line of Oppoſition with this Earth, but makes an Angle of 27 Deg 37 Min. with it, and tho' it may be conſtantly Increaſing its nearneſs to this Earth yet it alſo as yet conſtantly makes a Remove at a greater Diſtance from the Line of Oppoſition forementioned; it has croſs'd the Equinoctial, and in about 6 Days hence, at about half after Midnight, will Paſs over our Heads, if it continues its preſent Velocity, which by obſervation appear to be much greater than was that of the late Comet when under Obſervation.——What its Deſtination is upon the whole Time and further Obſervation only muſt determine; its preſent apparent Velocity is no Unfavourable Sign in this Matter, which for the Laſt 48 Hours, was 10 Deg 48 Min. in its Trajectory in a Direction about 5 Degrees to the Eaſt of a Due North Point, over the Celeſtial Concave. As Time and Conveniency may allow, I ſhall Endeavour (as occaſion ſhall offer,) to Exhibit ſuch Publications upon the ſubject, as I ſhall judge to be Convenient and Entertaining to the Curious Public, and with as much Preciſion, Accuracy and Brevity, as my own Ability, and the Nature of the ſubject will allow.

N. S.

---

‡ See this Matter more fully Illuſtrated in the 18 Note under the Obſervations on the late COMET, C. Courant for Sept. 18. 1769, No. 246.

To the Printers of the Colony of Connecticut.
Pleaſe to give the following a Place in your Papers, and you will oblige ſome of your Cuſtomers

THE affair of the Suſquehannah Company has become a ſubject intereſting to the colony, and ſeveral pamphlets have been lately publiſhed on the ſubject the authors of which appear not fully to have underſtood the true State of the caſe; many of their remarks being founded on a miſtake of facts; and the general aſſembly of the colony in October laſt, appointed a committee to inquire into all matters relating to the title of the colony to the lands contained in the charter, who in May laſt reported ſeveral matters relative thereto, not before generally known to the preſent inhabitants. I would therefore give the public the following brief ſtate of the caſe; which I think may be ſupported by original papers or records, viz. After the diſſolution of the North Virginia Company, incorporated in the year 1606, King James I. by letters patent, dated Nov. 3 1620 granted to the duke of Lenox and others, to the number of 40, by the name of the council eſtabliſhed at Plymouth in the county of Devon, for the planting, ruling, ordering and governing of New-England in America, and to their heirs, ſucceſſors and aſſigns forever, all that part of America, lying and being in breadth, from forty degrees of northerly latitude, from the equinoctial line, to 48 degrees of the ſaid northerly latitude, incluſively, and in length of, and within all the breadth aforeſaid, throughout the main lands from ſea to ſea, if not poſſeſſed or inhabited by any other Chriſtian Prince or ſtate nor within the limits of the ſouthern colony ——This Company, by deed, dated March March 19th. 1627 8, granted that part of ſaid tract of land which contained the old colony of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, to Sir Henry Roſwell, and others.—And Dr. Douglas, in his Summary, vol. 2. p. 160, ſays, that Robert, Earl of Warwick having obtained a grant, Anno 1630, from the Council of Plymouth, procured a patent from King Charles I of lands in New England, from Narraganſet river as the ſea coaſt runs, toward Virginia 40 leagues, and eaſt and weſt from ſea to ſea &c. The Earl of Warwick by his deed, dated March 19th, 1631, recorded in the records of this colony, granted the ſame lands to William, Viſcount, Say and Seal, Lord Brooks and nine others, their heirs and aſſigns and aſſociates, with all juriſdictions, rights and royalties, liberties, freedoms and immunities, powers, privileges franchiſes, &c. which the ſaid Earl of Warwick had, or might uſe, &c. (This deed was called the old patent for Connecticut) About the year 1635 the Lords Say and Seal, Brooks, &c. ſent over John Winthrop Eſq; (afterwards governor of this colony) to take poſſeſſion of the lands on Connecticut river, and commiſſioned him to be governor, and inſtructed him to procure a number of able men, for making fortifications, building houſes, &c. for their own accommodation, and ſuch as might receive men of quality. They accordingly built a fort at Say-Brook Anno. 1636, ſome people from the Maſſachuſetts Bay, went and ſettled at Hartford, Weathersfield, Windſor, &c. In 1637, Mr. Eaton, Mr. Davenport, with a number of others ſettled at New Haven, and places adjacent. Theſe people formed themſelves into two voluntary juriſdictions, the one called the juriſdiction of Connecticut, the other the colony of New-Haven. About the ſame time the Company of Lord Say and Seal &c. ſent over George Fenwick, Eſq; who took the overſight of the fort, and ſettlements at Say-Brook, till December 5th, 1644, when affairs in England had taken ſuch a turn, that thoſe noble Lords and Gentlemen had no [illegible], and Mr. Fenwick their agent, ſold their title to the juriſdiction of Connecticut for about ſixteen hundred pounds, and Mr. Fenwick joined with the colony, and was choſen an aſſiſtant. The colony went on exerciſing the powers of government, claiming under the grant from the Earl of Warwick, until the reſtoration, when they applied, by Mr. Winthrop their agent, to King Charles II in 1661, for a charter, which was granted April 23, 1662. 'Tis evident, that this charter was then conſidered as a confirmation of their former title to the lands therein deſcribed, with a further grant of privileges of government, & the grantees were conſidered as ſucceſſors of the company of Lord Say and Seal, &c. For it appears by their petition to the King, for a charter, that they claim under that title, which they ſay, they had obtained for a large ſum of money; they likewiſe by a letter to Lord Say and Seal, deſire his aſſiſtance in obtaining a charter, and he in anſwer, adviſed Mr. Winthrop to apply to the Earl of Mancheſter for his aſſiſtance; and ſays, "I have deſired him to acquaint you where you may ſpeak with Mr. Jeſſop, who when we had the patent, was our clerk, & he I believe is able to inform you beſt about it, and I have deſired my Lord to wiſh him ſo to do; I do think he is now in London."—And by the charter itſelf, it appears that they had obtained the lands for great and valuable conſiderations, and ſome part of it by conqueſt, &c. And at the concluſion of the charter mention is made of other gifts or grants by us, or any of our progenitors or predeceſſors heretofore made to the ſaid Governor and Company &c. And King Charles II in his letter to the Governor and Council of Connecticut, dated April 23 1664, uſes theſe words, "Having according to the Reſolution we declared to Mr. John Winthrop, at the time when we renew'd your charter, ſent theſe perſons of [illegible] abilities," &c.—And the governor and general aſſembly, in their anſwer to a letter from the commiſſioners, Anno. 1665, concerning Hamilton's claim, to the lands eaſt of Connecticut river by virtue of a deed from the Plymouth Company, dated Anno 1635 ſay "We humbly conceive that the original patent grant from royal authority to the Lord Say and Seal, and other nobles and gentlemen, which we purchaſed at a dear rate, is lately ratified and confirmed by our gracious ſoverign under the broad ſeal of England—the grant to Connecticut was precedent to that of Duke Hamilton ſeveral years, which gives us to conclude, that propriety of title will be ſettled upon priority of grant" &c. And it appears by the records of the commiſſioners of the united colonies, that the people of New Haven, as early as Anno 1642 purchaſed land of the Indians, on both ſides Delaware river, and built a trading houſe there; and Anno 1649 laid claim to thoſe lands which they ſay neither the Dutch, or Swedes had any juſt title to.

The patent to the Duke of York, of the land in the province of New York and New Jerſey, bears date March 12, 1663 4 and the grant of Penſylvania was made March 4 1680 1, both of them ſubſequent to the charter of Connecticut. The Dutch were in poſſeſſion of New-York, at the time of the grant to the council of Plymouth and continued their poſſeſſion under the ſtates of Holland, until September 1664, when it was taken by the Engliſh. It was retaken by the Dutch, Anno 1673, and reſtored to England, in February 1673 4. And as it was poſſeſs'd by a foreign power when the aforeſaid patent was made to the Duke of York, to remove all diſputes about the validity of that grant, King Charles II was adviſed to make a new grant of it to the Duke which he did June 29, 1674. And for the ſame reaſon thoſe lands did not paſs by the charter to this colony; they were alſo excepted in the grant to the council of Plymouth, from which our title is derived, and this accounts for the neceſſity of the ſettlement of the line between this colony and New-York, which cannot affect the title of this colony to the lands contained in the charter, lying weſt of that province. The diſpute ſettled by commiſſioners, Anno 1664, between the province of New York, and this colony, was about juriſdiction of ſettlements then made: and it was accordingly agreed, that all plantations weſt of the line, then ſettled, ſhould be under the juriſdiction of New York, and the plantations eaſt of ſaid line under the juriſdiction of Connecticut.

The foregoing facts, [illegible] are moſt of the difficulties [illegible] of this colony, to [illegible] the charter, lying weſt [illegible] New York, mentioned in [illegible] pamphlet lately printed [illegible] thoſe mentioned in an [illegible] lately printed at New [illegible] ſaid concerning the [illegible] then bounds of the [illegible] the colony bounded by the ſea [illegible] think the words of the charter contain ſufficient certainty, by which deſcribe the lands to be that part of our dominions in New England, in America, bounded on the eaſt by Narraganſet river, commonly called Narraganſet bay, where the ſaid river falleth into the ſea, and on the northerly the line of the Maſſachuſetts plantation, and on the ſouth by the ſea; and in longitude as the line of the Maſſachuſetts colony running from eaſt to weſt, that is to ſay, from the ſaid Narraganſett bay on the eaſt, to the ſouth ſea on the weſt. The ſouthern extent of New England, being 40 degrees north latitude the latitude granted by the charter cannot exceed that limit. There is another objection made by ſome, which ſeems to deſerve notice, viz. That if the colony once had a title to the lands in queſtion, they loſt it by non uſer. A grant of powers of government may be forfeited by non uſer, becauſe 'tis neceſſary that government ſhould always be kept up; but that lands ſhould be forfeited by non uſer of the owner, when no other perſon is in poſſeſſion of them, (unleſs it is made a condition in the grant) is a new doctrine. The opinion of Mr. Pratt, mentioned in the New York pamphlet, was founded on an ex parte, and very partial repreſentation of the caſe, as appears by the ſtate, and therefore, what the opinion of that great lawyer would have been, upon a true and full, ſtate of the caſe is not known.

And in anſwer to the enquiry made by the author of thoſe pamphlets, why the aſſembly ſhould grant to the Suſquehannah company the lands on Suſquehannah river, by them purchaſed of the Indians, in caſe ſaid lands do belong to the colony, or why all the inhabitants ſhould not be benefited by them, as well as that company. I would obſerve, that it has been the conſtant uſage of the aſſembly, (excepting the diſpoſal of a few townſhips in the northweſt part of Litchfield county) freely to grant the lands to ſuch perſons as have applied for grants, in order for ſettlement. That this aſſembly hold the lands in truſt for the inhabitants; that the Suſquehannah company are a reſpectable part of the inhabitants of this colony, that they pray for a grant of only a part of the ungranted lands; that they have been at great expence in purchaſing the native right to thoſe lands, which purchaſe was approved by the aſſembly, in May 1755; and that there are other ungranted lands contained in the charter, ſufficient to ſupply the other inhabitants, when any of them ſhall think fit to ſettle upon them. The memorial of the Suſquehannah Company is continued, till October next; and the committee appointed laſt October to enquire into the title of the colony, &c. is re-appointed to make further enquiry.

LONDON, April 25.

A proteſt of an extraordinary nature with reſpect to North America, is ſaid to have lately been received by the miniſtry, which has occaſioned much altercation in a great council.

The upper room of the Weſtminſter club is expected to be particularly full on Monday, as each member has been adviſed that ſome matters of utmoſt conſequence are appointed to come under conſideration.

April [illegible]. It is now confidently ſaid, that the American duty on Tea will be repealed before the expiration of the preſent ſeſſion, by which all the grievances complained of by the Colonies, will be completely redreſſed. The reaſon given for this is, as the preſent M——y expect ſoon to reſign, they will not ſuffer their ſucceſſors in office to have glory of promiſing ſo popular an Act.

April 30. A letter from Col. Dalrymple, at Boſton to a General officer, his Friend, in England, mentions, that if the Troops had not retired out of town at Boſton at the Time they did, the moſt terrible and fatal Conſequences would moſt certainly have happened; as [illegible] had abſolutely Determined to [illegible] Attack upon the Military [illegible] in order to revenge the cruel and wanton [illegible] of their Countrymen [illegible] that the Soldiers who committed [illegible] Boſton would be [illegible] juſtice.

[illegible] by the barley, [illegible] New-England aſſert, [illegible] the ſoldiers of the twenty ninth [illegible] had been heard to declare ten days [illegible] that there would be blood ſhed on the 5th of March: "That others were heard to ſay on the Friday and Saturday preceding, "That many would dine on Sunday who would not ſup on Monday and Tueſday night." And that ſeveral had warned their particular acquaintance among the town people during the preceding week,—Not to ſtir abroad on the Monday following, as there would be bloody work in the ſtreets on that day."

The Miniſtry expect, That if Captain Preſton, and the ſoldiers, who committed the late murders at Boſton, are condemned, That the Lieutenant Governor (Hutchinſon) will reprieve them during the King's pleaſure, which may occaſion another Porteus's affair) and it is reported, that the miniſterial plan now is to cenſure, ſome ſay to break Colonel Dalrymple for leaving his poſt without orders; that is, he ſhould not have quitted the town but have maintained full poſſeſſion of it at all events.—What the Colonel did was probably the moſt humane, as well as the moſt prudent: for if this report is true, ſuch cenſure or puniſhment would be conſidered as an example to other officers and ſoldiers, to maſſacre the people without ceaſing, till all reſiſtance and diſpute is finally ended.—A notable confeſſion, of the vindictive ſpirit of CARLTON Houſe.]

May 5. The late anarchous proceedings at Boſton, in New England, will, we hear, be taken into conſideration on Tueſday next.

To the PRINTERS.

AS the public were made acquainted with the receiving, and ſtoring Mr. Verſtille's goods in December laſt, it ſeemed but right that the proceeds for giving them up ſhould be publiſhed in the ſame manner.—This the gentlemen in trade propoſed at their meeting when they releaſed the goods, but it has been omitted by one means or other ſo long that had not Mr. Verſtille by his advertiſement either through the natural confuſion of his ideas, or with deſign; ſo held up the matter up to view, that this whole proceeding is greatly miſrepreſented it might perhaps with propriety have paſſed unnoticed.—The public are deeply intereſted in every thing, that immediately affects the non-importation agreement, and therefore have a right to deſire, and expect an explanation of every ſeeming inconſiſtency of conduct, in thoſe who are more immediately before in this important engagement—purſuant therefore to the deſire of the trade, ſhall give in a few words the motives for aſſigning Mr. Verſtille his goods, and explain the preamble to his advertiſement.—When Mr Verſtille was firſt called upon, he had never ſigned any non importation agreement, he however came in, and agreed to reſign his goods to be ſtored, and treated as other goods were at Boſton and elſewhere under the circumſtances—It will be needleſs to mention at large, the trouble this affair gave the neighbouring towns through the winter, it is well known (and by thoſe immediately acquainted) known to have aroſe principally from the double conduct or rather correſpondence of his friend and adviſer, or principal in Boſton, Mr. Gilbert Deblois.—It is ſufficient to ſay that in February laſt, Mr. Verſtille, after failing in his attempts to recover his goods, prefer'd a memorial at large to the general meeting of Merchants at Middletown, ſetting forth among other things, that there had been a partial releaſing of ſtored goods in Boſton, and thereupon praying his might be given up, which he urged the ſtronger, on account of their being imported before his coming into the agreement—It appeared in that meeting, that Bohea and Duffles had been given up in Boſton, expreſsly for the purpoſe of carrying on the Fiſhery, and the ſentiments of the meeting, ſeeming to be divided, concerning the propriety of giving up thoſe articles to Mr. Verſtille's

---

NOTICE is hereby given to all claimants and others, who are in any wiſe concern'd in white pine logs, that now are or may be in Connecticut river, or at any mills or landings upon or near ſaid river, that they are required to give into the hands of Capt. Samuel Willis of Middletown immediately, certificates of their having been regularly ſurveyed by one of his Majeſty's officers properly authorized ſo to do; and that they were adjudged by them unfit for his Majeſty's uſe. And further that they give in at the ſame time a depoſition, that they are poſſeſſed of no white pine-logs, but what are contain'd in ſaid certificates.

JOS LORING, jun.
Deputy to the Hon. John Wentworth, Eſq;

PURSUANT to a vote of the proprietors of the townſhip of Wincheſter, at their meeting holden at Hartford, the 14th inſt. I give this public notice, that no perſon or perſons as a committee or otherwiſe, preſume to ſpend or expend at the coſt of the proprietors the north road (laced out) through ſaid townſhip of Wincheſter, without firſt giving me proper notice, as being employed by me.

DAVID AUSTEN.
June 19, 1770.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any kind, by the Printers hereof.

WE The ſubſcribers being appointed a committee by the general aſſembly of the colony of Connecticut, in May laſt, upon the petition of Charles Degsby of Hebron, againſt Joſeph Taylor and others, to examine into the claims of the parties, to a certain large tract of land in ſaid Hebron anciently granted by Capt. John Maſon, al- [illegible] of Uncas, Owaneco and Joſhua [illegible] thereof, and partition thereof to make, &c.—Theſe are to notify all perſons concerned, to attend the ſaid buſineſs, at the dwelling-houſe of Mr. Joſeph Waters in ſaid Hebron, on the 6th day of Auguſt next, when and where we ſhall enter on ſaid buſineſs. Dated at Hartford, 7th June, 1770.

JABEZ HAMLIN,
ZEBULON WEST,
NATHANIEL WALES, jun.

CYPHER'd and Brilliant Stone Ear-Rings ſet in Gold, ditto in Silver; Cypher'd and Brilliant Stone Buttons, Stone Rings, and Stone Lockets, with a variety of other Articles.

TO BE SOLD AT
James Tiley,
GOLDSMITH, at his Shop, juſt below Meſſ. Lathrop & Smith's Store in King-Street Hartford.

conſequence of ſuch a giving up to Meſſieurs Alſop, Plummer, Way, Bull and Deane, propoſed and agreed to give Mr. Verſtille the money for theſe articles, and engage to the public they ſhould be ſtored on their own account and riſque, until an importation ſhould take place, in conſequence of a total repeal of the revenue acts ſo called.——The money was accordingly paid, but the goods remain in the ſame ſtore they were firſt depoſited in, and orders given not to deliver them but under the above condition.—At this period, we thought this troubleſome affair would reſt for the future, eſpecially as Mr. Verſtille expreſs'd his ſatisfaction at the treatment he had now met with. In May he applied for the reſt of his goods; and gave this for his reaſon that theſe gentlemen in Boſton, who had the goods, which they imported before their ſigning the agreement ſtored, had them now given up, on their engaging to import no more, until a general importation ſhould take place, and as he engag'd the ſame, he tho't he had a right to his goods.—The majority of the committee though of opinion they might juſtly have detained the goods, as Boſton was not the ſole place they had agreed to be directed by, yet as Mr. Verſtille had all along ſaid that town and the treatment goods under ſuch circumſtances ſhould meet with there, principally in his view, in his firſt reſigning determined it beſt to give him up his goods, as he had already engaged in the Non importation agreement, and then repeatedly aſſured the committee of his abiding by it.——This is fully the facts as they ſtand, and what neceſſity Mr. Verſtille had for aſſerting in his advertiſement in the manner he has, or even of any advertiſement at all at a time when the very opening of goods, in like ocean, that flies every where in an inſtant; the public will judge.—The non-importation agreement is of that conſequence, if we may believe the beſt authority we can have for it in Great Britain, that our all, our preſent, and future liberty depends upon it, more than on every other circumſtance in our favor.——Every one muſt be either friend or foe to the ſucceſs of it, there is no middle way, to be neuter here is criminal; and that every tranſaction relative to ſo important an affair might ſtand in a true light, is the deſign of this publication. By order of the Committee of Merchants.

Hartford, June 1770.

HARTFORD, July 2.

On Monday laſt Lieut. governor Hutchinſon was pleaſe to prorogue the great and general court or aſſembly of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay, till Wedneſday the 25th of this inſtant July, then to meet at Cambridge.

The Merchants in Boſton, at an adjourn'd meeting held the 18th ult. unanimouſly reſolv'd not to have any trade or commercial intercourſe whatſoever with the Merchants of New-Hampſhire, while they are counteracting the laudable exertions of the other colonies, for the common good, by continuing their importation of European goods, and have recommended the like reſolution to the other Colonies and Provinces upon the Continent.

THE people concerned in trade, reſiding in the principal trading towns on Connecticut river, having received a letter from the committee of merchants in Boſton, to the committee of correſpondence in the colony of Connecticut, with the Boſton Evening Poſt, containing an account of the ill conduct of the Merchants of Portſmouth in New-Hampſhire, in continuing their importations, to the great prejudice of American liberty; notwithſtanding repeated ſolicitations to the contrary; ſetting forth, that the people of Boſton, had agreed to break off all commercial intercourſe with the people of ſaid Portſmouth, and requeſting that the people of Connecticut will concur in the aforeſaid meaſures.——It's unanimouſly agreed that we will, from this time, break off all commercial intercourſe with the ſaid people of Portſmouth, until their conduct is more conſiſtent with the public good of America, or until the revenue acts ſhall be repealed; and that we will uſe our utmoſt endeavours, that the ſame ſhall be punctually obſerved throughout this colony.

Montague, June 21. 1770.

Meſſ. Green & Watson,

By inſerting the following in your News Paper you will oblige your conſtant reader.

LAST week as John Gore a young man, of about twenty years of age, of undoubted veracity, in company with Daniel Burnham, a middle aged man, both of ſaid Montague, were walking on the banks of Connecticut river: the former was ſurprized with the ſight of a monſtrous ſerpent, about four feet in length, which on inſpection he found to have two heads; one of which jumped nimbly at a ſtick, which he put near him, in the frightful manner of a Rattle Snake. They both viewed him, while alive, and after they had killed him, his eyes, they thought, appeared more piercing than either of the ſpecies he repreſented. Upon inſpection, they found one of his heads, ———(for he had a head at each end) and had ſo body juſt in the form of a large yellow rattle ſnake, and the other end together with the head, exactly reſembling a large black ſnake, his length and other dimenſions being a mean between the two ſpecies. There was a common anus for diſcharging the excrements about the middle of the belly, where the two ſpecies of this double formed monſter joined. A farther deſcription of this frightful monſter I am not able to give, as the ſhocking ſight of this venemous reptile ([illegible]) prompted them, to throw him precipitately into the river.——As the narrator cannot recollect, that he has either read or heard, of any ſuch double formed animal before, and has called him a monſter, the learned philoſophers and naturaliſts, are deſired to inform him whether or not, he is right in the appellation; or whether there is really ſuch a ſpecies of ſerpents exiſting; Or 2dly, whether as there was two compleat heads externally appearing, there was not a double ſet of ſenſes, a double brain, a double ſet of nerves, with attendant animal ſpirits, and conſequently a double perception.—3dly Whether he had not two hearts a double ſet of arteries and veins, and conſequently a double circulation of the blood, and how far the arterial blood may be ſuppoſed to be protruded towards the middle of the ſerpent, before it was returned by the veins.——And 4thly whether this was not a monſtrous offſpring, proceeding from the unnatural coition of a male and female ſerpent of the rattle ſnake and black ſnake kind.

Aaron Van Horn,

Hereby informs the Public, that he has again ſet up and carries on the SCYTHE making buſineſs in all its branches, and has furniſhed himſelf with a compleat ſtock for that Purpoſe.——Any gentlemen who will oblige him with their cuſtom, may depend on being well uſed, by their humble ſervant.

AARON VAN HORN.

N. B. He will warrant them to be good for a ſmall conſideration more than his common price.

Springfield June 28, 1770.

WANTED Immediately, a Journeyman SADDLER, who is well qualified to take the whole care of a Shop. Such a one may hear of a good place by applying to the Northfield POST or to the PRINTERS hereof——None need apply without he can bring a good recommendation.

N. B. He will (if required) have his wages paid him every week.

Northfield, June 22 1770.

MAY 21. 1770.

Paſſage-Boat.

THIS is to inform the public, that I the ſubſcriber have provided a good BOAT convenient for paſſengers which will ſail in the following manner, from the date above-mentioned every other week, viz. from Saybrook on Monday to Middletown, and from Middletown to Sagg Harbour on Wedneſday, and from Sagg Harbour back again on Friday, wind and weather permitting.——The fare for man and horſe is one dollar, and for a ſingle paſſenger, is half a dollar.——All gentlemen paſſengers, who are inclined to favour him with their cuſtom will meet with good uſage, from their humble ſervant,

JEREMIAH LORD.

WHEREAS the general aſſembly held at Hartford in May laſt, appointed us the ſubſcribers agents to inquire after all debts dues demands owing to the governor and company by bill bond, or any other ſecurity, and all fees, coſts and forfeitures, due to [illegible] with the former agents, king's attornies, and the managers of the Government lottery the ferry point wharf lottery, & with the naval officers, and all other dues and demands whatſoever, except what relates to treaſurer Talcott's accounts. And alſo to conſider and allow all ſuch ſettlements, and abatements as ſhall appear juſt and reaſonable, which by ſaid aſſembly were refer'd to the auditors to ſettle and adjuſt, as though they had been preſented before the firſt day of September laſt.——We do therefore according to the direction of ſaid aſſembly, notify all perſons concern'd, to meet us at the ſtate houſe in Hartford on the ſecond Tueſday of July next and exhibit their accounts that the ſame may be adjuſted and ſettled accordingly.

John Cheſter,
Jabez Hamlin,
William Williams.

Hartford, June 3 1770.

Lanbier Leſcoiet,

(Clock and Watch maker from Paris.)

TAKES this opportunity to inform the public, that he makes, mends and cleans all ſorts of Clocks and Watches at his Shop in Kingſtreet Hartford, at the ſign of the Clock, at as reaſonable a rate as they can be done in any part of America, and all gentlemen favouring him with their cuſtom, may depend upon being ſerved in the beſt manner.

N B. Said Leſcoiet has for ſale a repeating WATCH of his own make which he will warrant to be of the beſt kind, it being no way larger, than a common Watch, though its parts are more numerous.

STOLEN or Stray'd from the ſubſcriber, of the great Nine Partners, on the 28th ulti. a light brown horſe, about 14 hands high, about ſix years old, a natural trotter, a ſtar in his forehead, black main, tail and leggs, the main hanging on the left ſide, his right hind foot white, and a lump about the bigneſs of a walnut on his left ſide.—Whoever ſhall take up the ſaid horſe ſo that the owner may have him again, ſhall have TWO DOLLARS reward, or if he is ſtolen, the thief ſecured ſo that he may be brought to juſtice ſhall have FIVE DOLLARS reward, and all reaſonable charges paid, by

WILLIAM CORNWELL.

May 30, 1770.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

OIL and BLUBBER, of the beſt Quality, Suitable for Tanners uſe, To be Sold by

Joſeph Barrett,

Of Hartford.

∴ For Capt. Preſton's Caſe ſee the fourth Page.

TO BE SOLD BY

Philip Mortimer,

Of Middletown, ſundry pieces of land, viz.

One piece or parcel

Lying in Eaſt Windſor, containing 98 acres, 28 of which is choice meadow, the other wood land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Weſt on the country road, north on land belonging to Mr Ellsworth, eaſt partly on Scantick river, and ſouth on a highway.——TWO other pieces lying in Wethersfield, containing about twenty acres, being choice paſture land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſt on land of James Mitchel's, weſt on land of Gerſhom Nott's, ſouth partly on land of Moſes Deming's and partly on James Curtiſs's land, and north on Moſes Deming's. THE other piece containing about ſix acres, butted eaſt on land of Moſes Deming, weſt on land of Francis Hammon, north partly on land belonging to Gerſhom Nott, and partly on James Curtiſs's, and ſouth partly on land belonging to Thomas Wells, and partly on Francis Hammons land.——ONE other piece lying in Middletown, containing thirty acres, conſiſting of plow-land, paſture and meadow land. Butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſterly on land of the heirs of Daniel Merwin, weſterly on land of Joſiah Webſter, north on land of Joſeph Butler and —ſouth on land Miles Merwin. For further particulars enquire of ſaid Mortimer.

L O N D O N.

CASE of Capt. THOMAS PRESTON of the 29th Regiment.

IT is Matter of too great Notoriety to need any Proofs, that the Arrival of his Majeſty's Troops in Boſton was extremely obnoxious to it's Inhabitants. They have ever uſed all Means in their Power to weaken the Regiments, and to bring them into Contempt, by promoting and aiding Deſertions, and with Impunity, even when there has been the cleareſt Evidence of the Fact and by groſly and falſly propagating Untruths concerning them. On the Arrival of the 64th & 65th, their Ardour ſeemingly began to abate; it being too expenſive to buy off ſo many; and Attempts of that Kind rendered too dangerous from the Numbers.——But the ſame Spirit revived immediately on its being known that thoſe Regiments were ordered for Halifax, and hath ever ſince their Departure been breaking out with greater violence. After their Embarkation, one of their juſtices, not thoroughly acquainted with the people and their Intentions, on the Trial of the 14th Regiment, openly and publicly, in the hearing of numbers of people, and from the Seat of Juſtice declared 'that the ſoldiers muſt now take care of themſelves, nor truſt too much to their arms for they were but a handful; that the Inhabitants carried weapons concealed under their Cloaths, and would deſtroy them in a moment if they pleaſed.' This, conſidering the malicious Temper of the people, was an alarming Circumſtance to the Soldiery. Since which ſeveral Diſputes have happened between the Towns People and Soldiers of both Regiments, the former being encouraged thereto by the countenance of even ſome of the Magiſtrates and by the protection of all the party againſt Government. In general ſuch diſputes have been kept too ſecret from the Officers. On the 2d inſtant, two of the 29th going through one Gray's Rope-Walk, the Rope-makers inſultingly aſked them if they would empty a Vault. This unfortunately had the deſired Effect by provoking the Soldiers, and from Words they went to Blows. Both Parties ſuffered in this affray, and finally, the Soldiers retired to [illegible] The Officers, on the firſt [illegible] tranſaction, took every [illegible] their power to prevent any ill Conſequences. Notwithſtanding which, ſingle quarels could not be prevented; the Inhabitants conſtantly provoking and abuſing the Soldiery. The Inſolence, as well as utter Hatred of the Inhabitants to the Troops, increaſed daily; inſomuch, that Monday and Tueſday, the 5th and 6th inſtant, were privately agreed on for a general Engagement; in conſequence of which ſeveral of the Militia came from the Country, arm'd to join their Friends, menacing to deſtroy any who ſhould oppoſe them. This Plan has ſince been diſcovered.

On Monday night about Eight o'clock two Soldiers were attacked and beat. But the Party of the Towns People, in order to carry Matters to the utmoſt Length, broke into two Meeting-Houſes, and rang the Alarm Bells, which I ſuppoſed was for Fire as uſual, but was ſoon undeceived. About nine ſome of the Guard came to and informed me, the town Inhabitants were aſſembling to attack the Troops, and that the Bells were ringing as the Signal for that Purpoſe, and not for Fire, and the Beacon intended to be fired to bring in the diſtant People of the Country. This as I was Captain of the Day, occaſioned my repairing immediately to the Main Guard. In my Way there I ſaw the People in great Commotion, and heard them uſe the moſt cruel horrid Threats againſt the troops. In a few Minuets after I reached the Guard, about an hundred people paſſed it, and went towards the Cuſtom-Houſe, where the King's Money is lodged. They immediately ſurrounded the Sentinel poſted there, and with Clubs and other Weapons threatened to execute their Vengence on him. I was ſoon informed by a Townſman, their Intention was to carry off the Soldier from his Poſt, and probably murder him. On which I deſired him to return for further Intelligence; & he ſoon came back and aſſured me he heard the Mob declare they would murder him. This I feared might be a Prelude to their plundering the King's Cheſt. I immediately ſent a non commiſſione Officer & 12 Men to protect both the Sentinel & the King's Money, and very ſoon followed myſelf, to prevent (if poſſible) all Diſorder; fearing leſt the Officer and Soldiery by the Inſults and Provocations of the Rioters ſhould be thrown off their Guard and commit ſome raſh Act. They ſoon ruſhed through the People, and, by charging their Bayonets in half Circle, kept them at a little Diſtance. Nay, ſo far was I from intending the Death of any perſon, that I ſuffered the troops to go to the Spot where the unhappy Affair took place, without any Loading in their Pieces, nor did I ever give orders for loading them. This remiſs Conduct in me perhaps merits Cenſure; yet it is Evident, reſulting from the Nature of things, which is the beſt and ſureſt that can be offered, that my intention was not to act offenſively, but the contrary Part, and that not without Compulſion. The Mob ſtill increaſed, and were more outrageous one againſt another, and calling out, 'come on, you Raſcals, you bloody backs, you Lobſter Scoundrels; fire if you dare, G—d damn you fire & be damn'd, we know you dare not;' and much more ſuch Language was uſed. At this Time I was between the ſoldiers & the Mob, parleying with & endeavouring all in my power to perſuade them to retire peaceably; but to no purpoſe. They advanced to the points of the Bayonets, ſtruck ſome of them, and even the Muzzles of the Pieces, and ſeemed to be endeavouring to cloſe with the ſoldiers. On which ſome well behaved Perſons aſked me if the Guns were charged: I replied, yes. They then aſked me if I intended to order the Men to fire; I anſwered no by no Means; obſerving to them, that I was advanced before the Muzzles of the Men's Pieces, and muſt fall a Sacrifice if they fired; that the Soldiers were upon the Half cock and charged Bayonets, and my giving the word fire, under thoſe Circumſtances, would prove me no Officer. While I was thus ſpeaking, one of the Soldiers, having received a ſevere blow with a ſtick, ſtept a little on one ſide, and inſtantly fired, on which turning to and aſking him why he fired without orders, I was ſtruck with a Club on my arm, which for ſome time deprived me of the Uſe of it; which Blow, had it been placed on my Head, moſt probably would have deſtroyed me. On this a general Attack was made on the Men by a great Number of heavy Clubs, and Snow Balls being thrown at them by which all our Lives were in imminent danger, ſome perſons at the ſame time from behind calling out, 'Damn your Bloods, why don't you fire?' Inſtantly three or four of the Soldiers fired, one after another, and directly after three more in the ſame confuſion and Hurry.

The Mob then ran away, except three unhappy Men who inſtantly expired, in which Number was Mr. Gray, at whoſe Rope Walk the prior Quarrel took place; one more is ſince dead, three others are dangerouſly, and four ſlightly wounded. The whole of this melancholy Affair was tranſacted in almoſt 20 Minutes. On my aſking the Soldiers why they fired without Orders, they ſaid they heard the word "Fire" and ſuppoſed it came from me. This might be the Caſe as many of the Mob called out "Fire, fire," but I aſſured the Men that I gave no ſuch order, that my words were, "Don't fire, ſtop your Firing:" In ſhort it was ſcarce poſſible for the ſoldiers to know who ſaid fire, or don't fire or ſtop your firing. On the People's aſſembling again to take away the dead Bodies the Soldiers ſuppoſing them coming to attack them were making ready to fire again, which I prevented by ſtriking up their Firelocks with my Hand. Immediately after a Townſman came and told me that 4 or 5000 People were aſſembled in the next ſtreet, and had ſworn to take my Life with every Man's with me; on which I judged it unſafe to remain there any longer, and therefore ſent the party and Sentry to the Main Guard, where the ſtreet is narrow and ſhort, there telling them off into Street Firings, divided and planted them at each end of the ſtreet to ſecure their Rear, momently expecting an attack, as there was a conſtant cry of the Inhabitants, "To Arms—run with your Guns," and the Town Drums beating to Arms. I ordered my Drum to beat to Arms, and being ſoon after joined by the different companies of the 29th Regiment, I formed them as the Guard into Street Firings. The 14th Regiment alſo got under Arms, but remained at their Barracks. I immediately ſent a Serjeant with a Party to Col. Dalrymple, the Commanding Officer, to acquaint him with every Particular. Several officers going to join their Regiment were knocked down by the Mob, one very much wounded, and his Sword taken from him. The Lieutenant Governor and Col. Carr ſoon after met at the Head of the 29th Regiment, and agreed that the Regiment ſhould retire to their Barracks, and the People to their Houſes; but I kept the Pique to ſtrengthen the Guard. It was with great difficulty that the Lieutenant Governor prevailed on the People to be quiet and retire: At laſt they all went off excepting about an Hundred.

A Council was immediately called, on the breaking up of which three Juſtices met, and iſſued a Warrant to apprehend me and eight Soldiers. On hearing of this Procedure, I inſtantly went to the Sheriff and ſurrendered myſelf, though for the Space of four Hours I had it in my power to have made my eſcape, which I moſt undoubtedly ſhould have attempted, and could have eaſily executed, had I been the leaſt conſcious of any Guilt.

On the Examination before the Juſtices, two Witneſſes ſwore that I gave the Men orders to fire; the one teſtified he was within two Feet of me; the other, that I ſwore at the Men for not firing at the firſt Word. Others ſwore they heard me uſe the word "Fire," but whether do or do not fire they could not ſay; others, that they heard the word "Fire," but could not ſay if it came from me. The next day they got five or ſix more to ſwear I gave the word to fire. So bitter and inveterate are many of the Malcontents here, that they are induſtriouſly uſing every Method to fiſh out evidence to prove it was a concerted Scheme to murder the Inhabitants. Others are infuſing the utmoſt Malice and Revenge into the People who are to be my Jurors by falſe Publications, Votes of Towns and all other Artifices, that ſo from a ſettled Rancour againſt the Officers and Troops in general, the Suddenneſs of my Trial after the Affair, while the People's Minds are all greatly inflamed, I am though perfectly innocent, under moſt unhappy Circumſtances having nothing in Reaſon to expect but the loſs of life in a very ignominious Manner, without the interpoſition of his Majeſty's Royal Goodneſs.

THE ſubſcriber begs leave to acquaint the public, that he has opened a ſchool in Mr. Caldwell's ſhop where will be taught Reading; Writing; Vulgar & Decimal Arithmetic; the Extraction of the roots; ſimple and Compound intereſt, how to purchaſe or ſell annuities, leaſes for lives, or in reverſion, freehold eſtates, &c. at ſimple or Compound intereſt. The Italian Method of book keeping, menſuration of ſuperficies and ſolids; ſurveying; gauging, dialling, plain and ſpheric trigonometry, navigation and other branches of the Mathematics. Thoſe who are pleas'd to honour him with the care of educating their Children, may depend on having them treated in the moſt tender manner, punctually waited upon and carefully inſtructed, and to merit their approbation and give general ſatiſfaction ſhall be the conſtant ſtudy of their Obedient Humble ſervant. JONH MILLER.

N. B. He will attend a Morning Shool from 7 to half after 8 for young Ladies who are deſirous further to improve themſelves in Writing & Accounts; and write for gentlemen at his leaſure hours.

Notice is hereby given,

to the Creditors of John Hopſon of Colcheſter, an inſolvent Debtor, that they meet at the Houſe of John Tainter, Innholder in Colcheſter on the 24th Day of July next, to take into Conſideration ſundry Notes of Hand in Favour of ſaid Hopſon, againſt one Aſahel Strong, and determine whether they will divide ſaid Notes amongſt themſelves as they now are, or have them collected before Diviſion is made thereof, &c. when and where the Subſcribers will attend.

Humphry Lyon,
Charles Foot, } Truſtees.
Joſeph Iſham, jun.

June 22. 1770.

The Subſcriber deſires

his Cuſtomers in the County of Berkſhire, to meet him at the houſe of Mr. William Bement in Great Barrington on the 18th Day of July next, at 6 o'Clock Afternoon, to ſettle Accounts.—Thoſe that cannot attend themſelves, are deſired to ſend ſome other perſon properly qualified (viz. with the CASH) to act in their Behalf.

William Stanton.

P. S. I ſhould be glad to have as many perſonally attend as conveniently can, having ſome new Propoſals to make.

LEFT in the Store of the ſubſcriber of Hartford, a pair of ſilver Shoe Buckles.——The owner may have them again, on proving his property, and paying for this Advertiſement, by applying to

WILLIAM KNOX.

Hartford, June 4. 1770.

Taken up laſt Friday,

a black Mare, about 10 years old, fourteen hands high, paces and trots, branded with D P on the left ſhoulder, ſhe was once owned by the Wid. Ruſs who keeps a public Houſe in Eaſt Hartford, who diſpoſed of her to one Kenny. The Owner may have her again on proving his Property and paying Charges, by applying to Elizabeth Ruſs.

N. B. There is a Mare Colt with her of a light Bay Colour, about two Years old, a Slit in her Face, no Brand.

Acrostic Nymph

ONDAY, July 9, 1770.

Numb 289

THE Connecticut COURANT.

ntaining the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

HARTFORD, July 9

Obſervations on the Comet continued.

urday, June 30th, 9 o'Clock at Evening

	deg.	min.
COMET's Long. in Capricorn.	22	30
Latitude North,	64	15
Declination North,	42	14
Right Aſcenſion,	282	45
Meridian Altitude from the northern Part of the Horizon,	89	45

[illegible] very near, or upon the Throat of [illegible] and about 5 Deg from a Star of the [illegible] Magnitude in its Wing, more north eaſt. [illegible] Near a Line drawn from thence to a [illegible] of the 4th Magnitude in the Swan's Wing.

ay, July 1ſt, 9 o'Clock at Evening

	deg.	min.
ngitude in Gemini, about	05	00
titude North,	67	26
lination North,	80	30
Aſcenſion about	350	00
ltitude from the northern Part of the Horizon about	47	02

[illegible] within about 7 Deg (eaſtward. [illegible] of [illegible] Star a little below the [illegible] from that to a Star of the 4th Magnitude in Cepheus's Heel, nearer the former.

ednesday, July 4, 3 o'Clock Morning

	deg	min
Longitude in Taurus	26	30
Latitude North,	21	20
Declination North,	44	59
Right Aſcenſion	85	30
Aſcenſional Difference of Comet and Sun.	15	30

Poſition about three quarters of a Degree th of a Star of the 2d Magnitude, in iga's right Shoulder, about 8 Deg from elta, and 3 eaſt of the ſolſtitial Colure. true Luſtre not well diſtinguiſhed, by on of Increaſing day light, which is alſo ficient to render its Tail Inviſible.

REMARKS, &c.

T appears that this Comet while under Obſervation has Paſs'd over an Arch in the vens of 140 Degrees, which wants but of compleating half a Circle. This gth it has run in 7 Days and 6 Hours ppears that the general Direction of its arent Courſe along its Trajectory Path, been nearly in a ſtrait Line from S. by to N. by E. The ſeveral Degrees of Vey with which it has Apparently moved e firſt Obſerved are as follow (viz)

	deg.	min.
the firſt 24 Hours after Obſervation, it moved about	04	00
the ſecond 24 Hours, about	07	00
ne next 48 Hours,	37	45
e next 24 Hours,	43	30
next 54 Hours,	46	45

When laſt under Obſervation it was about Degrees above the Horizon, and 40 Eaſt North, and no more than 26 Degrees from the Body of the Sun; And did probably paſs from a Northern to a Southern Latitude (thus forming its Deſcending Node) ſome Time on the 5th of this Month; Interſecting the Ecliptic about the 3d Degree in Cancer making therewith an Angle of About 78 Degrees; its Courſe tho' nearly in the ſame Line as heretofore, is Notwithſtanding now towards the South, it having paſs'd more than 90 Deg from our Zenith. Hence as it Daily paſſes our Meridian (between the Hours of 12 and 1 o'clock, it gains further towards the South, though inviſible to us. It was in, or near its Perigee, Or, leaſt Diſtance from the Earth, on Sunday P. M. July 1ſt, when its Poſition was near the North Star. It has probably paſs'd the Sun, a few Degrees to the Weſtward of its Body; and is moſt likely in its return from it, having Paſs'd its Perihelion; no more to be an object of Obſervation, unleſs it ſhould ſometime hence Emerge from below the ſouthern Horizon.

N. S.

ERRATA.

§¶§ In the Laſt Paper, firſt Col. againſt Right Aſcenſion firſt mentioned, read 274. And againſt the ſecond mentioned Right Aſcenſion, read 275° 45′.

BOSTON, June 28.

This Morning arrived here the Fair Lady, Capt. Lamson, in 7 weeks from Briſtol: We have a Briſtol Print of May 10; as alſo a London Print of May 8 by Capt. Lee arrived here from Falmouth: From theſe papers we have extracted the following Articles, viz.

LONDON May 7, 1770

From the LONDON GAZETTE of May 7.

VIENNA, April 7.

WE learn from the Frontiers of Turkey, that a Camp of about 140,000 Turks is forming in the Environs of Conſtantinople; that in the Capital alone 30 000 Turks had taken Arms; and that for Security Sake the greateſt Part of the Grand Seignior's Treaſure has been carried from the Seraglio to a Fortreſs, ſituated three Days Journey from the city.

LONDON, May 5 to 8.

It is aſſerted, that the parliamentary enquiry into the late diſturbances at Boſton in New England, muſt be ſuſpended till the arrival of ſome papers, in anſwer to thoſe lately diſpatched for a reſpectable perſonage here.

We are informed, that Governor Bernard will embark for his government of the Maſſachuſet's Bay, on board of one of the men of war appointed to convoy four Regiments to North America, preparations, it is ſaid, being actually making by his Excellency for that purpoſe.

We are aſſured, that at the C——l with regard to the preſent ſtate of affairs in America, very coercive means were adviſed, and adopted, and are now preparing to be employed.

The future reſources of the Boſtonians by calling in the people from the neighbouring towns to aſſiſt them in their late adopted meaſures, is, we hear, to be prevented by cutting off the communication of the town and country by a fort, which can be ſo erected as to anſwer that end effectually.

It is ſaid, that it has been determined on, in caſe any further violence ſhall have been committed at Boſton, before the arrival of the freſh troops, that all the inhabitants ſhall be deprived of their fire arms.

It is ſaid that the M——y are ſo much diſſatisfied with the Lieut. G——r of a certain Colony, in Regard to his Conduct on a late Occaſion, that he will ſpeedily be recalled.

It is rumoured, that the Chief Governor of a certain Colony, on his being lately required to repair to the ſame was ſo much afraid to comply with the Demand that he begged leave to retire on a penſion, which was refuſed.

It is aſſerted at the Weſt-End of the Town, that his Grace the Duke of Ancaſter will be appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and that his Grace the Duke of Beaufort will ſucceed him as Maſter of the Horſes to the King.

Both Houſes are expected to ſit late every Night next Week till they break up for the preſent Seſſion. On which Account it may reaſonably be inferred, that affairs of great Importance are to be agitated.

The Journals of the Houſe of Lords May 1 (inſerted in the papers) mention, that the Earl of Chatham preſented to the Houſe a Bill, intitled, A Bill for reverſing the adjudication of the Houſe of Commons, whereby John Wilkes, Eſq. has been adjudged incapable of being elected a Member to ſerve in that preſent Parliament, and the Freeholders of the County of Middleſex have been deprived of one of their legal Repreſentatives: The Bill was read the firſt time: The ſecond time it was objected to; and the Queſtion was put and reſolved in the negative 89 to 43, and afterwards the Bill was reſolved to be rejected.

The 43 proteſting Lords publiſhed their Diſſentient.

The proteſting Lords is now the Toaſt drank in all patriotic Companies.

A great patriot of high Rank in his laſt Oration ſaid, that he conſidered the Freedom of Election and the Right of petitioning the Throne, as the eyes of the Conſtitution; that the one, in the caſe of the Middleſex Election, had been totally put out; and the other, by a certain Anſwer to a late Remonſtrance, had received ſuch a Blow that it had a very dangerous Film grown over it, and that it would require the Abilities of a very able political Oculiſt to remove it.

A certain great Man, in his Harangue on Friday in a certain Society, ſpeaking of a certain Anſwer, ſaid, that he did not mean any thing perſonal to the baneful Advice that he deteſted, and ſpoke againſt; not but that if the Adviſer would ſtep forth and declare himſelf, he ſhould then perſonally announce his Sentiments. While he was ſpeaking the above he had his Eye on a certain W—— P——k, "and Felix trembled."

MINUTES of the H—ſe of C—m—ns, 26th April, 1770.

MR. Tr——th——k moved for an addreſs to the King for a Narrative & all accounts received by the treaſury, &c. relative to the late diſturbances in Boſton; alſo for orders and inſtructions ſent to America ſince the 24th June laſt.

Mr. B—ckf—d ſeconded the motion, and reſerved a right to ſpeak upon the ſubject, if others did: Accordingly afterwards, obſerved upon the ill policy of the American revenue laws——and the ill conduct of government towards the people there;——they are not ſubject to the people of Gr. Britain, but ſubjects in common with them.——General Gage's commiſſion is illegal, and ſupercedes all charters in that country; and placing the military above the civil power, is matter that deſerved the immediate conſideration of parliament; and he wiſhed to have a day appointed for an inquiry into the ſtate of the colonies.

Lord N——th was deſirous that the houſe might have a narrative of the diſturbances in America; and that his only objection to the motion was, that the words "all accounts relative" &c. would expoſe the names, and might ſubject to ill treatment the perſons who had given the information.

Mr. B—ke acknowledged the propriety of concealing the names of thoſe that had wrote, that they ſhould not be expoſed to ſuffer as thoſe had done, where letters had been laid before the houſe the laſt ſeſſions, and copies of them procured and forwarded by one Boſum or Bollan——On the other hand, he thought that garbled letters would not afford the houſe full information; but upon the whole declared he ſhould be ſatisfied with a narrative. He ſneered at the miniſtry for having in the laſt heedleſsly expoſed the intelligence of the King's officers in America, in laying before the houſe letters that were not required——Who aſk'd for that extraordinary letter of Governor Bernard's that recommended a total alteration of the conſtitution of the Maſſachuſetts government?——It was laid upon the table unaſked for; & the advice it contained too faithfully followed, for to that governor is principally owing the preſent unhappy ſituation of your affairs in America——To what a wretched paſs are affairs brought by the laſt three years ſhameful and weak conduct of adminiſtration!——Great-Britain, from being rever'd by all nations, has ſubmitted to one of her colonies,——two regiments have had an ignominious retreat from their ſtation, and are actually priſoners of war at Caſtle William and liable to be ſtarved out by the Boſtonians!——Adminiſtration may probably tell you that you ſhould adviſe them what meaſures to purſue with America——I will not give it——let them throw up the reins of government which they are unable to guide, and not wait until they drop out of their hands thro' indolence, or torn from them by force.

Gen. M——cky recommended to the houſe to be ſatisfied with a narrative of the affairs of Boſton, that the King's faithful officers there ſhould not be expoſed and diſcouraged from giving accouts, as it was their duty from time to time to furniſh to government——That expoſing their letters in the laſt ſeſſions was cruel, and if again practiſed would prevent any intelligence from thence that that already many avoided writing, and ſuch as did write were exceedingly cautious therein.

Mr G——v——He ſpoke againſt expoſing the names of the letter writers————————lamented the unhappy fate of affairs in America, which he did not think himſelf chargeable with being the occaſion of, altho' he had often been reflected on in that reſpect: For, ſaid he, with regard to the ſtamp act, the repeal of which has given riſe to the untoward ſituation of your affairs in America——I will take upon me to declare, that had I been ſuffered to continue in office at that time, I would forfeit 100 lives if the act had not gone down in America——I need not again give my opinion what your conduct ſhould be towards that country, you all know it.

Lord B—ch—mp oppoſed the motion in all parts, not willing to expoſe thoſe that have wrote, and not judging that garbled letters and accounts can give the houſe due information.

Col B—re faulted the meaſure of ſending troops, and repreſented the conduct of adminiſtration towards America weak and improper; had he been ſent upon the command inſtead of Col. Dalrymple he would have landed the troops at Caſtle William, then ſent to know the ſtate of the town, which, if in actual rebellion, he would have treated as enemies, but not otherwiſe carried his men thither——He ſpoke highly of Gov. Hutchinſon, and commended the prudence of Col Dalrymple in withdrawing the troops,——but at the ſame time lamented the diſgrace brought upon Great-Britain, by improperly placing troops where they had been obliged to retreat from their poſt in an ignominious manner, and become priſoners of war at Caſtle William.

Lord B—ngt—n gave an account of the Boſton affair, that the centinel at the cuſtom-houſe was firſt attacked, &c.——that he was glad the troops had retreated from Boſton, being in his opinion no longer uſeful there, becauſe there was no magiſtracy that would act with them that the government is a democracy, and all civil officers choſen by the people,——that in his opinion a royal council is neceſſary for a more proper diviſion of powers of government.

Wm. B—ke faulted the policy and conduct of adminiſtration towards America in the language of B—re and B—ke.

Mr. D—ſ—n openly propoſed an amendment to Mr T——th—ck's motion, and deſired to confine it to a narrative in ſuch wiſe as to ſave the names of the letter-writers.——and that finally obtained.

April 26 The miniſtry are now in a very uncommon dilemma, the news from Boſton has greatly perplexed them; and whilſt the council is divided with regard to the neceſſary meaſures to be taken for quelling ſuch an alarming tumult, the advices from Paris ſtill more diſturb them, as the French ſeem diſpoſed to avail themſelves of our unhappy miſunderſtandings at home a abroad, in order to ſtrike ſome very cap blow againſt us. In the mean time th have the mortification to find that M Wilkes ſtill maintains his ſo juſtly acquir popularity; and that notwithſtanding all artifices that have been practiced, he is n ſwore in, and acts in ſo capital a Charac as an Alderman of this opulent city. T Carltonhouſe Junto, who keep a regular co reſpondence with Lord Bute, have tranſm ted to him every particular relative to t conduct of the oppoſition; and we are w aſſured, that Mungo wrote to him on Tu day, to lay aſide all thoughts of returning England for ſome time, as, in the preſe critical ſituation of affairs, his appearance he might be dangerous not only to himſe but to all thoſe in power.

We cannot vouch for the authenticity the following paragraph, which a correſp dent has ſent us: Yeſterday morning t extraordinary expreſſes were ſent off f the Admiralty to Portſmouth and Plymou ſaid to contain orders for the expediti the ſeveral ſhips of war deſigned for Nor America; theſe ſhips are to touch at Cork with ſome tranſports, in order to convey conſiderable number of military forces, the quelling the late diſturbances which ha pened at Boſton: as no conceſſions whatev will now be made to any remonſtrance t may arrive from that place.

We are well aſſured a cabinet c——l w held laſt night to conſider of the recepti which ſhould be given to Mr. Wilkes on Wedneſday, when he will certainly appe to claim his ſeat in the H—— of C—— in quality of member for Middleſex.

We hear this day the Earl of Chatham attended the Houſe of Peers, in order to introduce a motion of great importance, and i was expected the Houſe would ſit late.

To Lord CHATHAM.

My Lord,

AS an Engliſhman I have frequently taken the liberty of calling on you t aſſiſt in ſaving your country, whoſe oppreſſions are too numerous to be reſiſted, unleſ ſtrenuouſly ſupported by thoſe illuſtrious men who, in theſe corruptive times, have pledged themſelves to the people, whoſe virtu and integrity all good men, and friends t liberty, revere and admire. At the head o this band is your Lordſhip, born with fin talents, and a perfect knowledge of that equal balance, by which the rights of th kingdom can either be ſupported or defended.——My Lord, on the ſide of publ freedom, is the beſt and richeſt blood in th three kingdoms, whilſt your enemies are tyrants, cowards and oppreſſors; evaders t law and juſtice. My Lord, they are me who delight in blood and murder; witneſ St. George's fields, and the butchers of Boſton. The eyes of all Europe are on you Our enemies dread your uprightneſs, and al good men confide in it.——America, my Lord, now claims your protection, from a the horrors of a provoked reſentment. Harangue the houſe you belong to with unceaſing eloquence, and conſider that the lives o thouſands may poſſibly be of your Lordſhip's ſaving Like Cato live, or boldly die, defending the people——I cannot conclude without paying my grateful reſpects to thoſe illuſtrious friends who cheriſhed and ſupport you.

PORTIUS.

Fribourg, in Switzerland, April 18.

The Prince of Diesbach died here this Day, in the 104th Year of his Age.

BOSTON, Jul

On the 6th and 7th of June they had at Charleſtown in South C[illegible], the [illegible] violent Storm ever known there at that Seaſon of the Year; which did great Damage to the Fortifications: Wharves and Shipping. The Loſs 'tis ſaid, exceeds 10 000l. Sterl.

CAMBRIDGE June 27, 1770.

Mr. DRAPER,

LAST evening, about half after nine I diſcovered a Comet in the S. E. about 30° high, near the milky-way. It was almoſt in the line between the laſt ſtar but one in the tail of Serpens, and the moſt weſtren ſtar in the croſs of Scutum Sobieſk, but more eaſterly, and nearer the latter than the former. It look'd like a ſtar ſhining thro' a miſt or thin cloud, but I could diſcover no tail. It was juſt in oppoſition to the Sun, being in 5° Capricorn and had 17° 40 N. Lat. being oppoſite to the Sun, its tail was projected behind its body. It may therefore have a conſiderable one, tho' we cannot diſcern it, on account of its ſituation.

J. WINTHROP.

NEW-YORK, July 5

On Monday Morning laſt at the Houſe of Mr. Hollingſhead in Burlington, New Jerſey, departed this Life, in the 56th Year of his Age, JAMES PARKER, Eſq; late of this City Printer, Comptroller, and Secretary of the Poſt Office for the Northern Diſtrict of the Britiſh Colonies. He has carried on the Printing Buſineſs chiefly in New York and ſome Time in New Jerſey, for about 30 Years, and was eminent in his Profeſſion.

NEWPORT, July 2.

Laſt Thurſday arrived the Brig Revenge, Capt. Evan Malbone, in 19 Days from Nichola Mole, on Hiſpaniola, and Yeſterday arrived the Brig Polly, Capt. Giles Stanton from the ſame place, by whom we are inform'd that on Sunday the 3d of June, there was a terrible Earthquake in that Iſland, which had intirely thrown down every houſe in Portau Prince except one, burying a great number of the inhabitants in the ruins, 500 of whom had been dug out:——The town of Leogane was almoſt intirely deſtroyed with moſt of the plantations adjacent: Pet. tegnava, Grandguava and Cild Sac. ſuffered greatly: A Village called Croix De Bouquets containing about a hundred families, two leagues from Portau Prince, had wholly ſunk and diſappeared, their being nothing but water to be ſeen in its place; the plantations being alſo deſtroyed for many miles round it. There were 80 perſons in the hoſpital at Portau Prince, all of whom were kill'd by the fall of the houſe except one man A large Inn, about 2 miles from Leogane, with a number of people in it, was inſtantly taken in by the opening of the earth, ſo that no remains of it could be ſeen.

The Trembling of the earth laſted about two Days, all which Time great Numbers of people, who had eſcaped out of the Towns, continued ſitting and walking on the Hills and Sides of the Mountains, in continual Fear of being ſwallowed down.——Many Veſſe's in the Harbours had their Cargoes ſhifted by the Violence of the Shock, in ſuch Manner that ſome of the Hogſheads were found ſtanding on their Heads, but the Veſſels and People on Board received no Hurt.

A very high Mountain ſtanding cloſe by the ſhore was thrown into the Sea, which cauſed a ſwell to riſe to the height of 130 Feet above the common Surface:——another large Mountain about 2 miles from Portau Prince, back in the country, was blown up into the Air, leaving a large Baſon of Water 3 or 4 Fathom deep. Capt's. Malbone and Stanton felt the Shock pretty hard at the Mole, about 130 or 140 Miles from Portau Prince, but no damage was ſuſtained at that Place.

NEW HAVEN, July 6.

Laſt Friday night died ſuddenly, at the weſt pariſh, in this town, Miſs Jane Seymour, youngeſt Daughter of Thomas Seymour, Eſq; of ſaid Hartford, deceas'd.

The next day died at Green Field, in Fairfield, of a lingering Diſorder, the Rev Seth Pomeroy, Paſtor of a Church in that Place.

HARTFORD, July 9.

On the 21 of June, Mr. Aaron Buſh of Weſtfield was married to the amiable Miſs Keziah Ely of Springfield.

LONDON, May 5.

By the torrents that lately poured from the mountains, by the melting of the ſnow on Pyreneës, two whole towns have been overflowed, more than 1200 houſes carried away, and the bridges of St. Eſprit and Dax totally eraſed.——On this melancholy occaſion 600 of the inhabitants were driven to the tops of towers and ſteeples, where they were forced to remain for three days without any ſuſtenance. The loſs in the neighbourhood of Bourdeaux, Dax and Bayonne, is inconceivable and the diſtreſs of the unfortunate people, who loſt their all by this inundation is inexpreſſible

The Raguſans have fitted out a ſquadron of 30 ſhips of force, in order as it is ſaid, to join the Ruſſians againſt the Turks.

Letters from Paris tell us, there are frequent private conſerrences at court, whereby it is imagined that ſomething very important is on the tapis. there is much talk of entering into freſh alliances, and it is given out that the peace cannot poſſibly laſt long, meaſures being privately taken to carry on a new war. Their troops are ſaid to be in as good a condition as can be deſired, and can be augmented in a very ſhort time. Their naval force begins to vie with G. Britain; ſo that, if neceſſity ſhould require it, France might, at a very ſhort notice, engage afreſh with greater advantage than ſhe begun the late war.

It is expected that a Noble Lord will make a motion in a great aſſembly this day, in favour of Mr. Wilkes.

About two o'clock this morning an extraordinary courier arrived at the ſecretary of ſtate's office from Sir Andrew Mitchil, the Britiſh ambaſſador at the court of Berlin, with diſpatches of the greateſt importance.

Strayed or Stolen out of a Paſture in Torrington, ſometime in the month of May laſt, a brown Mare, about 14 hands high, a ſtar in her forehead, hind feet white paces and trots well, no brand as I remember, about eight years old. Whoever will take up ſaid Mare, and return her to the ſubſcriber, ſhall have Five Dollars Reward, paid, by TIMOTHY THRALL.

Windſor, July 3 1770.

AN ACCROSTIC. (NewLondon Gaz. June 15.)

R ETURN to Earth with Joy and Mirth, my long abſconded Muſe return.
A nd ſhadow forth the Praiſe and Worth of that bright Nymph for whom I burn.
C ome join ye Loves in Cyprian Groves, Elyſian Fields, and Halcyon Days,
H er generous Spirit and general Merit deſerve extenſive endleſs Praiſe.
E ach future Day, 'till Life's Decay, (and diſtant be that fatal Hour!)
L et Providence her Innocence reward with Pleaſures evermore.

M ercy and Truth adorn her Youth, whilſt Fortune ſmiles, and Friends careſs
C ontent with what the Fates allot, ſhe more than Riches doth poſeſs.
N o vaſt Eſtate, however great, is equal to ſuch Charms of Mind!
E nvy may rage, and Battle wage, in vain, if ſhe to me proves kind:
I f ſhe was mine, a Prize divine? I aſk no more, ye Powers above!
L et her but ſmile, and Time beguile each future Day ſhall better prove;
E ternities could not ſuffice to ſatiate ſuch a mutual Love.

Regions of Fancy,
June, 1770.

I am, Dear Self,
Yours, &c.

In SOLILOQUY.

Tiffany's Almanack

for the year 1771.

Containing above what Almanacks commonly contain, viz. the Moons Southing and Age, the Suns Declination every day of the year, Rules to find the Vulgar Notes, Kings of England &c. The Popes and Emperors ſince the Conqueſt, an account of the Counties, Cities, Market Towns, Pariſhes, Colleges in England and Wales, an account of Years, Months Weeks, Days, Explanation of the Solar Syſtem, Southing of Stars. The whole being curiouſly done, ſo that any perſon may be acquainted in Aſtronomical calculations. Which will be to be ſold at this Office early next fall any Traders or Shop Keepers may be ſupplied at a reaſonable rate

WE the ſubſcribers

Being appointed by the hon court of Probate for the diſtrict of Sharon, commiſſioners to examine the claims and demands of the creditors to the eſtate of Abel Wright, late of Kent deceas'd; do accordingly hereby notify the creditors of ſaid eſtate to bring in their claims and demands on ſaid eſtate, on the firſt Tueſdays of Auguſt, September and October next following, at the dwelling Houſe of Peter Mills, Innkeeper in ſaid Kent, as we ſhall attend on ſaid buſineſs, at ſaid times and place.

Eliphalet Comſtock } Commiſſioners.
Robert Ranſom, }

Kent. June 25, 1770.

LOST,

ON Saturday the 7th Inſtant, between the Hours of 12 and 1 o'Clock, at the Ferry Bank on the Weſt Side the River in Hartford, a Red Morrocco Pocket Book, containing £ 6 in Paper Bills of this Colony, with ſeveral Papers of Conſequence to the Owner. Whoever ſhall find and return ſaid Book with its Contents, to the Printers hereof, ſhall have Three Dollars Reward, and no Queſtions aſked.

Shephard & Hunt,

TAKE this method to acquaint their cuſtomers and others, that they have juſt imported from LONDON, a general aſſortment of Drugs and Medicines, which they have for ſale at their Apothecary Store in Northampton—Eſſence of Pepper Mint—Eau de Luce—Beſt Turkey Figs—Choice new Currens &c &c

Northampton, June 16 1770.

Aaron Van Horn,

Hereby informs the Public; that he has again ſet up and carries on the SCYTHE making buſineſs in all its branches, and has furniſhed himſelf with a compleat ſtock for that Purpoſe.——Any gentlemen who will oblige him with their cuſtom, may depend on being well uſed, by their humble ſervant.

AARON VAN HORN.

N. B. He will warrant them to be good for a ſmall conſideration more than his common price.

Springfield June 28, 1770.

Taken up laſt Friday,

a black Mare, about 10 years old, fourteen hands high, paces and trots, branded with D P on the left Shoulder, ſhe was once owned by the Wid. Ruſt who keeps a public Houſe in Eaſt Hartford, who diſpoſed of her to one Keney. The Owner may have her again on proving his Property and paying Charges, by applying to Eliſabeth Ruſt.

N.B. There is a Mare Colt with her of a light Bay Colour, about two Years old, a ſlit in her Face, no Brand.

PURSUANT to a vote of the proprietors of the townſhip of Wincheſter, at their meeting holden at Hartford the 14th inſt. I give this public notice, that no perſon or Perſons as a committee or therwiſe, preſume to ſpend or repair at the coſt of the proprietors the north road (ſo called) through ſaid townſhip of Wincheſter, without firſt giving the proper notice, or being employed by me,

DAVID AUSTIN.

June 13 1770.

NOTICE is hereby given to all claimants and others, who are in any wiſe concern'd in white pine logs, that now are or may be in Connecticut river, or at any mills or landings upon or near ſaid river that they are required to give into the hands of Capt. Samuel Willis of Middletown immediately, certificates of their having been regularly ſurveyed by one of his Majeſty's officers properly authorized ſo to do; and that they were adjudged by them unfit for his Majeſty's uſe.—And further that they give in at the ſame time a depoſition that they are poſſeſſed of no white pine logs but what are contain'd in ſaid certificates.

JOS LORING, jun.

Deputy to the Hon. John Wentworth, Eſq;

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

THE ſubſcriber begs leave to acquaint the public, that he has opened a ſchool in Mr. Caldwell's ſhop where will be taught Reading; Writing; Vulgar & Dicimal Arethmetic; the Extraction of the roots; ſimple and Compound intereſt, how to purchace or ſell annuities, leaſes for lives, or in reverſion, freehold eſtates, &c. at ſimple or Compound intereſt: The Italian Method of book keeping, menſuration of ſuperficies and ſolids; ſurveying; gauging, dialling, plain and ſpheric tregonomitry, navigation and other branches of the Mathematics. Thoſe who are pleas'd to honour him with the care of educating their Children, may depend on having them treated in the moſt tender manner, punctually waited upon and carefully inſtructed, and to merit their approbation and give general ſatisfaction ſhall be the conſtant ſtudy of their Obediant Humble Servant.

JONH MILLER

N. B. He will attend a Morning Shool from 7 to half after 8 for young Ladies who are deſirous further to improve themſelves in Writing & Accounts; and write for gentlemen at his leaſure hours.

Notice is hereby given,

to the Creditors of John Hopſon of Colcheſter, an inſolvent Debtor, that they meet at the Houſe of John Tainter, Innholder in Colcheſter on the 24th Day of July next, to take into Conſideration ſundry Notes of Hand in Favour of ſaid Hopſon againſt one Aſahel Strong, and determine whether they will divide ſaid Notes amongſt themſelves as they now are, or have them collected before Diviſion is made thereof, &c. when and where the Subſcricers will attend.

Humphry Lyon,
Charles Foot,
Joſeph Iſham, jun. } Truſtees.

June 22, 1770

TO BE SOLD BY

Philip Mortimer,

Of Middletown, ſundry pieces of Land, viz.

One piece or parcel

Lying in Eaſt Windſor, containing 98 acres, 18 of which is choice meadow, the other wood land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Weſt on the country road, north on land belonging to Mr. Ellſworth, eaſt partly on Scantick river, and ſouth on a highway.——TWO other pieces lying in Weathersfield, containing about twenty acres, being choice paſture land, and is butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſt on land of James Mitchel's, weſt on land of Gerſhom Nott's, ſouth partly on land of Moſes Deming's, and partly on James Curtiſs's land, and north on Moſes Deming's. THE other piece containing about ſix acres, butted eaſt on land of Moſes Deming, weſt on land of Francies Hanmor, north partly on land belonging to Gerſhom Nott, and partly on James Curtiſs's, and ſouth partly on land belonging to Thomas Wells, and partly on Francies Hanmors land.——ONE other piece lying in Middletown, containing thirty acres, conſiſting of plow-land, paſture and meadow land, butted and bounded as followeth, viz. Eaſterly on land of the heirs of Daniel Merwin, weſterly on land of Juſtus Webſter, north on land of Joſeph Bates and —ſouth on land Miles Merwin. For further particulars enquire of ſaid Mortimer.

277 op

WE The ſubſcribers being appointed a committee by the general aſſembly of the colony of Connecticut in May laſt, upon the petition of Charles Dewey of Hebron, againſt Benjamin Taylor and others, to examine into the claims of the parties, to a certain large tract of land in ſaid Hebron, antiently granted by Capt. John Maſon, aſſignee of Uncus, Owanico and Joſhua Sachems, and partition thereof to make, &c.—Theſe are to notify all perſons concerned, to attend the ſaid buſineſs, at the dwelling-houſe of Mr. Joſeph Waters in ſaid Hebron, on the 6th day of Auguſt next when and where we ſhall enter on ſaid buſineſs. Dated at Hartford, 5th June, 1770.

JABEZ HAMLIN,
ZEBULON WEST,
NATHANIEL WALES, jun. } Committee

WANTED Immediately a Journeyman SADDLER, who is well qualiſied to take the whole care of a Shop such a one may hear of a good place by applying to the Northfield POST or to the PRINTERS hereof——None need apply without he can bring a good recommendation.

N B. He will (if required) have his wages paid him every week.

Northfield June 25 1770

WHEREAS the general aſſembly held at Hartford in May laſt, appointed us the ſubſcribers agents to inquire after all debts dues, demands owing to the governor and company, by bill, bond, or any other ſecurity, and all fees, fines and forfeitures & to ſettle with the former agents, king's attornies, and the managers of the Government lottery and ferry point wharf lottery, & with the naval officers, and all other dues and demands whatſoever, except what relates to treaſurer Talcott's accounts. And alſo to conſider and allow all ſuch ſettlements and abatements as ſhall appear juſt and reaſonable, which by ſaid aſſembly were refer'd to the auditors to ſettle and adjuſt, as though they had been preſented before the firſt day of September laſt——We do therefore according to the direction of ſaid aſſembly, notify all perſons concern'd, to meet us at the ſtate houſe in Hartford, on the ſecond Tueſday of July next, and exhibit their accounts that the ſame may be adjuſted and ſettled accordingly.

John Cheſter,
Jabez Hamlin,
William Williams,

Hartford, June 8, 1770.

STOLEN or Stray'd from the ſubſcriber, of the great Nine Partners, on the 28th inſt a light brown horſe, about 14 hands high, about ſix years old, a natural trotter, a ſtar in his forehead, black main, tail and leggs, the main hanging on the left ſide, his right hind foot white, and a lump about the bigneſs of a walnut on his left ſide.—Whoever ſhall take up the ſaid horſe ſo that the owner may have him again, ſhall have TWO DOLLARS reward, or if he is ſtolen, the thief ſecured ſo that he may be brought to juſtice ſhall have FIVE DOLLARS reward, and all reaſonable charges paid, by

WILLIAM CORNWELL.

May 30, 1770.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

MONDAY, JULY 16, 1770.

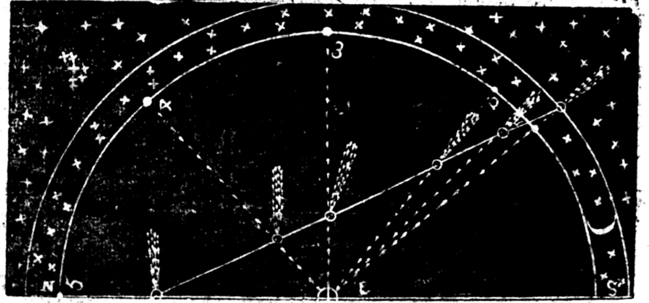
Numb 290

THE

Connecticut COURANT

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

A DIAGRAM exhibiting (though not the moſt Accurate yet) a ſufficiently true Repreſentation of the late Deſcent, &c. of the COMET towards this Earth, in its way towards the Sun, deducible from Obſervations made from June 26, to July 4, A.D. 1770



EXPLANATION.

THE Baſe or Horizontal Line N E S muſt be underſtood to run nearly from South by Weſt, to North by Eaſt (the Direction in which the Comet paſs'd over the Earth) in which let E be the Earth. The interior Arch S 3 N is an Azymuth Circle, or a Line extended from the fore mentioned Points of the Horizon over our Heads, and vertical in all its Parts to the ſaid horizontal Line, ſhewing the Comets apparent Trajectory Courſe in its Geocentric Orbit along the Starry Regions; on which the ſeveral white Spots mark'd 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and the Arches intercepted by them, repreſent the Apparent Places of the Comet in the Heavens, as view'd from the Earth, at the ſeveral Times of Obſervation, and the Diſtances paſs'd over in thoſe ſeveral Periods. (See the laſt Paper)——The dotted Lines, repreſent the various Directions in which it was view'd from the Earth, at the ſeveral Times of Obſervation; the firſt or Southermoſt of which, directs to the Place where the Comet was firſt ſeen, making with the Horizon an Angle of 41 Degrees 55 Minutes, equal to the then Meridian Altitude of the Comet.——The Oblique plain Line, with the Figure of the Comet at various Stages, repreſents the Deſcent it made from the Starry Regions in its Line of Approximation towards the Earth, in its way to the Sun, or to its Perihelion; And its ſeveral Stages on ſaid Line, ſhew its proportionate Proximity to the Earth at the particular Times of Obſervation reſpectively.

REMARKS, &c.

BY way of Remark would only add here, that the Viſible Arch which this Comet paſs'd over in the Heavens during the 12 Hours immediately before and after its Perigee or, its neareſt diſtance from the Earth, imports its real Motion to have been amazingly Swift and Rapid as it paſs'd by our Earth; for the determining of which to a good degree of Accuracy, nothing further can be requiſite than to be certain as to the true Diſtance it was then at from the Earth; which though that may not be a very eaſy Matter to determine with Preciſion, yet even on ſuppoſition it was no more than one quarter Part ſo diſtant as the Sun, 'tis demonſtrably true it muſt have gone at no leſs Rate than that of ELEVEN THOUSAND MILES per Minute, which is more than 11 Times ſwifter than the mean motion of the Earth in its Annual Orbit, and ſo in a like Proportion (directly) According as its Diſtance was greater or leſs than as above ſuppoſed——As it was then much Nearer to us than when firſt Obſerved, it would doubtleſs have exhibited a much more illuſtrious Appearance had it not been that its true Luſtre was very much diminiſhed by the Increaſing light of the Moon at ſome Times, and Day Light at others.

N. S.

From the NEW-YORK MERCURY.

Mr. GAINE,

At different times, for ſeveral years paſt, his majeſty's ſubjects in this part of the world, have been alarmed with the apprehenſions of France's making attempts to excite the Indians to take up the Hatchet againſt their new maſters. The general opinion has been, that the French would carry on their ſchemes clandeſtinely by the river Miſiſippi; while a few have imagined that they would ſend a ſtrong fleet up St. Lawrence, and try openly to regain their old poſſeſſions in Canada: Neither of which conjectures has proved true; tho' we have no room left to doubt of their hoſtile intentions: *For it has lately been diſcovered that they have found means to ſeduce our hitherto moſt faithful allies, the warlike Mo*HAWKS, to their intereſt; and to make them (if their own words accompanied by their corresponding actions, may be relied on) the moſt inveterate enemies of the commercial intereſt of Great-Britain. Indeed the bad policy of the Engliſh government, in impoſing duties on their own manufactures imported into the colonies, has had no ſmall ſhare in alienating the affections of this brave nation.

By Strong

New-York, June 27th, 1770.

WHEREAS it was diſcovered yeſterday that ſome Goods were offered for Sale in this City, by one David Hills, of Maſſachuſetts-Bay, who ſaid he purchaſed them at Boſton and Newport: a few of the inhabitants and the Committee of Inſpection, waited on the Culprit, and after having expatiated on the Nature and Heinouſneſs of his Crime, adviſed him to make a full and honeſt Confeſſion of all the Goods he had already ſold, — to whom, — the Places where, and of whom he had purchaſed them at Boſton and Newport; and to ſtore what he had left: In conſequence of which he voluntarily delivered into the Poſſeſſion of Mr. [illegible] of this City, to be under the direction of the Committee, three Barrels containing (as he ſaid) 174 Packs of Pins a parcel of Silk Handkerchiefs, and ſundry other Articles and promiſed to appear before the Committee, who were warned to attend in order to make what further Diſcovery he could, and by ſhewing their juſt abhorrence of ſuch conduct to prevent the like clandeſtine Practice for the future.——But whether to defeat the propoſed critical enquiry (by frightning the man to make off) whether from the natural malignity of their Hearts, or for the ſake of Plunder, or from a falſe Zeal to acquire the title of Sons of Liberty; or other unknown Cauſes, ſome lawleſs Ruffians, laſt night between one and two o Clock, diſguiſed like Thieves & Robbers, came to the Houſe of the ſaid Jonas [illegible], and found Means to prevail on him to open the Street Door, and afterwards the Door of the Room where the ſaid Goods were confidentially depoſited; which they carried out ſome little diſtance, ſet fire to them, and then went off. The Committee therefore in juſt Indignation of the above recited riotous Conduct, which they conſider as a high Inſult offered them, and through them to all the worthy fellow Citizens they have the honour to repreſent; flatter themſelves every good Member of Society will not only manifeſt on the preſent and every other ſimilar Occaſion, a due Abhorrence of ſuch villanous Proceedings; but do all that in him lies to bring the Authors, Aiders and abettors of ſo unwarrantable an Act to ſpeedy Juſtice.

James Desbroſſes jun.	Iſaac Low,
John Alſop,	Thomas Wm Moore,
John Broome,	Henry Remſen jun,
William Neilſon,	John Har. Cruger,
Thodorus Van Wyck,	John Thurman jun
Walter Franklin,	Thomas Walton,
John Murray,	Peter T Curtenius,
Jacob Watſon,	Hubert V Wagenen,
Theophilact Bache,	Joſeph Bull,
Thomas Franklin jun.	Edward Laight,
	Charles M Evers.

N. B. Samuel Verplank, out of Town.
Committee of Inſpection.

I Agree with the reſt of the Committee in condemning the act of burning the Goods, as highly unwarrantable and unlawful, but differ from them in the latter Part of the Advertiſement; ſo far, that I would not chooſe to manifeſt my abhorrence by doing all that in me lies to diſcover the Authors, Aiders, and Abbettors thereof, (even if I knew them) ſo as to bring them to ſpeedy Juſtice, becauſe I think what they did proceeded rather from Imprudence or an intemperate zeal, than from a real malignity of Heart; and therefore I cannot recommend the ſeeking of a Diſcovery to others, when I would not do it myſelf. It was with the above Exception I did ſign the Advertiſement of the Committee.

PETER T. CURTENIUS.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Connecticut, who is one of the largeſt Traders in dry Goods in that colony.

There is nothing in life that gives a clearer Demonſtration of the inſtability of human Affairs, than the conduct of New York —— they have ſunk their Credit by their conduct, as far as I can learn.—with this, and all the other New England Governments;——you have had Meeting after Meeting, Cabal after Cabal,——dictated to your Neighbours in a haughty Strain,——value yourſelves high on the Honour you have to be New Yorkers.— the only people who have ſtood to the Non Importation Agreement, all this,——this Week,—— the next convinces the World of the reverſe: for my part, I am ſorry for New-York, a place I value ſo highly;——if they import before the other Governments, ——for altho' Non Importation is no Virtue in us, (as we import none of any Value at any Time,) yet we value our Rights as high as any others;— and as you have of late, got all our Trade, we look on you as our wall of defence, reſpecting the Non Importation, —as far as it relates to the Preſervation of our Liberties.——There are ſeveral Letters in Town from New Jerſey and other Places, of the ſame Import.

We hear that anſwers to the propoſals from this city for altering the Non-Importation Agreement, and opening the Trade to Great Britain, except for Tea or other Articles, on which a Duty is exacted, have been received from Boſton, Philadelphia &c And that they have unanimouſly and abſolutely rejected the ſaid propoſal,——being reſolutely determined firmly to adhere to the Non Importation Agreement as it ſtands; and that the People of Connecticut and New Jerſey have determined to have no further Dealings with this Place, unleſs the ſaid Agreement is ſtrictly maintain'd. And as the Condition upon which the people here ſign'd for the propoſed Alteration, was that Boſton and Philadelphia approved and came into the Meaſure, their Refuſal puts an End to the Meaſure propoſed, ſo that the Non Importation Agreement remains in full force, and will doubtleſs continue ſo, till the End is obtain'd.

On Monday Night laſt, a horrid Murder was committed in this City, by perſons unknown, upon a ſtranger, who came here a few Days ago from Middletown, in Connecticut, Paſſenger in a Veſſel. He was drinking late that Night in a publick Houſe, and it is ſaid had a conſiderable Sum of Mony about him, for the ſake of which it is ſuppoſed he was murder'd, by a Man, who undertook to conduct him to his Lodgings, and has ſince abſconded. The Body was found next morning and appear'd to have been ſtrangled and the Scull broke. They Coroner's Inqueſt ſat Yeſterday on the Body, but we have not heard their Verdict.

Such a Spirit of Induſtry prevails among the Inhabitants of the Town of Lancaſter, in Pennſylvania, that upwards of 27,739 Yards of Linens, Stuffs, &c have been manufactured in that town ſince the firſt of May, 1769.

QUEBEC, May 17, 1770.

On Saturday, the 12th inſtant, a Coroner's Inqueſt was held on the Bodies of William Perguilly, John Hilly, Margaret and Elizabeth Southerland, James, Alexander, Elizabeth and Ann Donallie, who, at about 8 o'Clock the Evening before were in a ruinous old ſtone building, near the Intendant's Palace, which inſtantly falling inwards, buried them under the Ruins; and tho' the greateſt Aſſiſtace was given to get them out, by the King's Troops who were quarter'd nigh, and all other Perſons, yet let every humane Heart make due Allowance for any Impropriety then tranſacted, the dreadful cries and groans of dying Sufferers confuſing all around; ſo that inſtead of taking Weight from off them, many at firſt enter'd in upon the Ruins; however, ſeveral were taken out alive, but ſoon expir'd; one Man and a child were taken out unhurt; a Woman eſcap'd by caſting herſelf out at a Window; another child was much bruis'd and hurt in the ſkull, whoſe life is deſpair'd of——The Wife and three children of Mr. Donnaili, were all burried in a Coffin together.—The Sight was truly Shocking to behold eight Perſons lying dead, cruſh'd and bruis'd in the Manner they were; and it is hoped every one, for the future, will take Warning from this Tragical Scene, and not venture their Lives in ſuch dangerous old decay'd Buildings.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &c.

Lathrop & Smith,

Apothecaries in HARTFORD,

Have juſt Imported from LONDON,

A LARGE and freſh aſſortment of the beſt Drugs—Chemical Galenical, and Patended Medicines (that may be depended upon to be genuine)—Spices of all ſorts—— Amputating Inſtruments in neat Shagreen Caſes ——Surgeons Pocket Inſtruments—— Lancets —Syringes——Bell metal Mortars, of various ſizes, &c &c. Where alſo may be had, the very beſt of Tortuga Salt, by the Buſhel or larger Quantity—Barbadoes Rum by the Hogſhead or Gallon—Beſt Barbadoes Sugar by the Barrel or ſmaller Quantity—— French Brandy——Geneva (by the Caſe or Quart—and a variety of other cheap Spirits— Choice old Madeira, Malaga and Clarret Wine —Figgs——Raiſins——Tamarinds——Chocolate—Coffee—Rice—Oat Meal—French and Pearl Barley Sago—Powdered Salop ——Choice Hard Soap by the Box or Cake —Indigo——Verdigreaſe——Copperas—— Allum——Madder——Red Saunders—— Redwood——Logwood, &c. &c. &c.

N.B. Said Lathrop & Smith, will give the Caſh for good Merchantable POTASH, and SALTS of LYE.

To be Sold (at VENDUE*) by* Saul Alvord at his Dwelling Houſe in Bolton, on the laſt Thurſday in July 1770 at 4 o'Clock in the Afternoon.

ONE Acre of LAND, with a good HOUSE and BARN thereon, lying near the Meeting-Houſe in Bolton, a Convenient place for a Tradeſman, eſpecially for a Hatter which is much wanted there.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

BOSTON, July 12.

urday laſt Capt. Conſtant Freeman ar here in 7 weeks from Briſtol, in whom paſſenger Capt. Andrew Gardner, with ches from divers perſons in anſwer to he carried expreſs from hence, cong the horrid Maſſacre on the 5th of h laſt; and which, we hear are to be efore the Town at their meeting to ow.——'Twas a wiſe ſtep this melis took in ſending an expreſs home; l Capt Gardner's arrival in England, e 2d of May, Adminiſtration were made lieve by falſe accounts, and miſrepreions, that there was a ſettled plan in nhabitants here to maſſacre the Kings ——'Tis ſaid, ſeven ſhips of the d four regiments, were ordered to ready with the greateſt diſpatch, to ce the two regiments then at Caſtle in order to retake the Engliſh at the coſt of which expedition was y ſaved by Capt. Gardner's timely a ——Capt. Gardner left London the of May, at which time 'twas thought u y on Tea would not be taken off, eho' the Commiſſioners were recalled. is reported, that a maſter of a Veſſel d at Salem on Tueſday Evening from Weſt Indies, 7 Days before his arrival a Veſſel from Liſbon bound to Phila the Maſter of which informed him, the Revenue Act was totally repealed; at he had it in a London Print of the of May.

EW-YORK, July 12.

erday ſail'd the Earl of Halifax Packet, with the Mail for Falmouth, She orders from the Merchants here for eral Importation of Goods, except the article TEA, (on which the Duty laid he Parliament for raiſing a Revenue in ries remains unrepeal'd) and all other s on which a Duty for the like Purpoſe be laid. Theſe orders are in conſeoe of a late Alteration in the Non-Imtion Agreement, which, ſince the Peo of Boſton and Philadelphia have refuſed conſent to, has been made, upon the cription of About 800 of the Inhabi which the oppoſite Party who were a the alteration, ſay is but about a fourth of the people who had a right to vote this occaſion; but who thinking the ceedings irregular, refuſed to ſign on any

They intend to publiſh a proteſt with names ſubſcribed, as alſo of the princion the other ſide.

HARTFORD, July 16.

or about 10 days paſt, there has increaſ nd prevailed in this and ſome of the hbouring Towns, ſuch Multitudes of a of Browniſh Streaked Worm, as have very deſtructive to the Fruits of the h. They frequently appear in ſuch ms as to almoſt cover the Surface of the in ſome Places and feed greedily on all of Herbage that comes in their way, her in Gardens or Fields, eſpecially the r, where they make ſuch a waſte among Graſs as threatens a great Diminution if almoſt the total Deſtruction of whole s——'Tis obſerved that their General ſe is to the Weſtward. And we hear the ſame kind of Vermine do alſo a d in Diſtant parts of the Country both h and South.

he Boſton and other Papers, contain melancholy accounts of the damage by the above Worms, which deſtroy e green vegitable that comes in their way.

An Extract from the Boſton Weekly News-Letter.

His Honor the Lieut. Governor has Iſſu'd out a Proclamation aſſuring a Reward of FIFTY POUNDS from the public Treaſury to any Perſon or Perſons who ſhall effectually Inform againſt, or detect the Author or Authors of a wicked Conſpiracy which was Diſcovered by the Contents of an Anonymous Letter left at the Houſe of Henry Barnes, Eſq; of Marlborough directed to him, threatning to fire his Shop & Deſtroy all his Subſtance that he had on Earth, to take his Body and Tar it, and if nothing elſe but Death will do he ſhould certainly have it if he did not Shut up his Shop, and forbear ſelling and importing Goods. To the receiving of which Letter in Manner as aforeſaid, the ſaid Henry Barnes made Solemn Oath before one of his Majeſty's Juſtices of the Peace.

A Writer in the Eſſex Gazette, ſpeaking of the late comet, ſays. "The apparent motion of this Comet has been truly aſtoniſhing, for its velocity has increaſed in ſix days time from two degrees to about five and forty degrees in twenty four hours, the reaſon of which amazing apparent rapidity is doubtleſs its having lately paſſed its perigee, when it was as near to the Earth as it can come during its preſent revolution.

Laſt Monday Night the houſe of Seth Wetmore, Eſq; of Middletown was broke open and rob'd of Women's wearing Apparel to the Amount of 30l.——the Thief was taken the next Morning, and commitmitted to the Goal in this Place.

THIS may certify the public, that the Sloop Packet, Joſeph Viol maſter, now lying at Rockyhill Landing in Weathersfield, is the property of Mr. Henry Bowers merchant in Swanzy, and that all, and ſingular the goods and merchandize on board her, and that have been ſold out of her, ſince her arriving in this colony were the property of the ſaid Henry Bowers and by him purchaſed in Boſton, and elſewhere in the province of the Maſſachuſetts Bay. Teſt, Jerathmeal Bowers, jun.

Sworn before me,
this 11th day of July 1770 }
Thomas Belding, Juſt. Pacis.

A RECEIPE.

To cure the WHOOPING COUGH, which has been tried with ſucceſs.

TAKE dried Colts-Foot, a good handful, cut them ſmall, and boil them in a Point of Spring water, till Half the water is boilded away, then take it off the fire; when almoſt cold, ſtrain it through a cloth, ſqueezing the Herbs as dry as you can; throw the Herbs away, and diſſolve in the Liquor Half an Ounce of Sugar Candy, finely powdered; when diſſolved, add to them one Spoonful and an Half of the Tincture of Liquorice——of which give a Child five Years old one Spoonful three or four times a day. Grown Perſons may take four Spoonfuls at a time, and as often. It will cure in two or three days.

TO be Sold, a Quantity of good FLEECE WOOL, by NATHANEL BURNHAM, in Eaſt-Hartford for Caſh or Country Produce.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon. court of Probate for the diſtrict of Sharon, commiſſioners to examine the claims and demands of the creditors to the eſtate of Abel Wright, late of Kent deceas'd; do accordingly hereby notify the creditors of ſaid eſtate to bring in their claims and demands on ſaid eſtate, on the firſt Tueſdays of Auguſt, September and October next following, at the dwelling Houſe of Peter Mills, Innkeeper in ſaid Kent, as we ſhall attend on ſaid buſineſs, at ſaid times and place.

Eliphalet Comſtock, }
Robert Ranſom, } Commiſſioners.
Kent, June 25, 1770.

LONDON, MAY 8.

This morning ſome advices were received from his Majeſty's Conſul at Scanderoon by the way of Venice, which mention that a revolt was premedited in Syria and Paleſtine to throw off the Turkiſh yoke.

Sunday laſt the Right Hon. the Lord Mansfield received the ſacrament at Queen's ſquare chappel, to qualify himſelf the Speaker of the Houſe of Lords.

To morrow we are informed, Mr. Alderman Wilkes will go to the houſe of Commons, accompained by a ſelect Number of independent and reſpectable Gentlemen Freeholders of Meddleſex, to demand his ſeat, as Member of the ſaid county.

To morrow being the day that Mr. Wilkes is expected to demand his ſeat in the Houſe of Commons, we hear all the peals of bells in the Bills of Mortality, will ring a Dumb Adminiſtration.

The treaty of alliance between the courts of Berlin and Peterſborgh is finally concluded: On which 20 000 Pruſſians are on their march into Poland, to reinforce the Ruſſian army in that kingdom.

It is ſaid, that the diſpatches lately received from France were relative to the permiſſion given by the Goverment to ſome officers and inferior ſeamen to ſerve on board the Ruſſian fleet.

By letters lately received from a Gentleman now on his travels into Greece, there is an account that the White Iſland in the Bay of Santerini, which, in 1707, roſe out of the ſea, to the aſtoniſhment of all Europe, has lalely been obſerved to have received very conſiderable increaſe.——This added to the accounts received in France of the diſappearance of the Iſland of St. Helena; and in Holland, of the removal of the mountains in Bohemia; together with the freſh erruption of Mount Veſuvius, after an intermiſſion of two years only, a thing never before known, affords matter of ſerious contemplation to ſpeculative people, and it is ſaid, that the Jewiſh Rabbies have conceived hopes, that theſe preſages are forerunners of the completion of an antient prophecy, that is expected about the preſent æra, to be fulfilled in favour of the reſtoration of their nation to the promiſed land.——It is very remarkable that the famous Mr. Whiſton predicted ſome very conſiderable alteration in the appearance of the earth about the year 1770.

Since the Americans are become Oeconomiſts, and intend to lay aſide the cuſtom of drinking Tea, it were to be wiſhed for the public good, that Engliſh ladies would introduce into faſhion the ſalutary plants that are the gowth of this country, inſtead of deſtroying their conſtitutions by the exceſſive uſe of a preni cious Eaſt India vegetable

By Strong

BOSTON, July 5.

ON friday morning laſt information was given to the Committee of inſpection of land carriage at the ſouth end, that at about 4 o'clock two Waggons were heard driving out of the town; and being ſuſpected they were laden with Tea and Goods imported contrary to the agreement of the Trade, they were purſued and overtaken in Little Cambridge;—the Owner Mr Ebenezer Cutlar of Oxford in the County of Worceſter, accompanying them:—A number of people collected, and inſiſted on the Waggons returning to town:—To this Mr. Cutler objected at firſt, but at length he conſented, as alſo to put the Goods under the care of the Committee of Inſpection, to be ſtored until a general Importation ſhould take place; they being (as he ſaid) imported by Theophilus Lillie. Another waggon with Goods, belonging to ſome Gentlemen in Lancaſter, was alſo overtaken at the ſame place, and brought back as far as the fortification;—but upon the owner's ſatiſfying the committee that there were no Goods but what had been delivered out and allowed of by the Trade, the waggoner was permitted to proceed on his Way to Lancaſter.——By the time the two waggons entered the town, more people collected, and having Mr. Cutler on Horſe back he preceded the waggons, thro' the main ſtreet to the North part of the Town, buzzing as they paſſed the corners of the public ſtreets; Arriving at the North end Mr. Cutler alighted, and went into a houſe, where the committee of Inſpection met him, and where he ſigned an agreement to ſtore the Goods; he was to accompany them on foot to the public ſtore, the weather being then exceeding hot, and mid day: Here an additional number of people aſſembled, who inſiſted on his going in the waggon with the Goods, which being contrary to the minds of the Committee, one of the moſt reſpectable members to prevent diſturbances, took a ſeat behind him: They then proceeded up to the town Dock, and arriving at the public ſtore, the Goods were very dexteriouſly depoſited therein, and Mr. Cutler diſmiſſed as likewiſe the waggoners with their waggons, after promiſing not to cart any more Goods for any Importers.

It has been noted, that Mr. Cutler had the preceding Day, acted at leaſt a very imprudent Part, in that he had in the morning diſcourſed with ſeveral perſons concerning buying Tea, and repeatedly declared to one of the Committee of land carriage at the ſouth end that he would buy Tea, or what he pleaſed and of whom he pleaſed, without any regard to any honorable Committee man or men: The ſame afternoon he boaſtingly ſhewed a bag of Tea containing about a dozen pound; when the Committee man told him, "he tho't the offences he offered him as an individual, deſerved reſentment; but when thro' him, he meant to inſult the Community he looked upon himſelf in honour obliged to inform the people of his behaviour."—Conſiderable paſſed on this head, when he agreed to deliver the Tea into the cuſtody of a friend, till the Trade ſhould be open; and then departed.

The bag of Tea was by Mr Cutler's conſent taken out of his friend's hands, in which he lodged it, and was expoſed to the public as the Waggons paſs'd the ſtreets, and likewiſe committed to the public ſtore.

In the laſt South Carolina Papers, we find, that the Merchants ſtill adhere ſtrictly to their Agreement of Non Importation: They have given Notice, that Ann & Benjamin Mathews in Tradd ſtreet, Subſcribers to the Reſolutions in January laſt imported 50 packages of goods from London, inhibited by the ſaid Reſolutions; that they voluntarily agreed to ſtore the ſame, till a general Importation ſhould take place; but ſince opened and diſpoſed of many of ſaid Goods; and they having been ſince ineffectually tho' repeatedly, applied to, to make proper ſatiſfaction to the Public, for ſuch ſhameful Breach of their ſacred Contracts, but refuſed: The General Committee after all poſſible Lenity and Forbearance ſhewn, found themſelves reduced to the Neceſſity of Advertiſing the ſaid Ann & Benjamin Mathews as Violaters of the Reſolutions as Parties audaciouſly counter acting the united Sentiments of the whole body of the People, not only in that, but all the Northern provinces.——Meſſrs William Glen & Son having alſo been guilty of a Breach of the Reſolutions, which they repreſented as an Act of Inadvertency rather than Deſign, did after a voluntary Acknowledgment, make a ſufficient Atonement for their Fault, and were reſtored to the public's Favour and confidence.

Maryland diſapproves of the propoſal from New York, of going into Importation excepting Articles which pay a Duty, and adhere to their Agreement of Non importation till the whole Act is repealed.

The Freeholders, Merchants and Traders of New Brunſwick in New Jerſey have come into Reſolves, to operate with the other Colonies in reſpect of Non Importation; and to have no Commerce with Rhode Iſland.

On the 17th Inſtant, the Merchants and Traders and other inhabitants in general, at Lancaſter, in the Province of Pennſylvania, entered into and ſubſcribed an Agreement againſt the Importation of Britiſh Goods or dealing with thoſe that do, ſimilar to the Agreements of moſt of the Britiſh Colonies in America. In many other Places they are taking Meaſures to add ſtrength and Permanence to this important Agreement.

Aaron Van Horn,

Hereby informs the Public, that he has again ſet up and carries on the SCYTHE making buſineſs in all its branches, and has furniſhed himſelf with a compleat ſtock for that Purpoſe.——Any gentlemen who will oblige him with their cuſtom, may depend on being well uſed, by their humble ſervant.

AARON VAN HORN.

N. B. He will warrant them to be good for a ſmall conſideration more than his common price.

Springfield June 28, 1770.

WANTED Immediately, a Journeyman SADDLER, who is well qualified to take the whole care of a Shop. Such a one may hear of a good place by applying to the Northfield POST or to the PRINTERS hereof.——None need apply without he can bring a good recommendation.

N. B. He will (if required) have his wages paid him every week.

Northfield, June 25. 1770.

WE The ſubſcribers being appoint a committee by the general a ſembly of the colony of Connecticut, in M laſt, upon the petition of Charles Dewey Hebron, againſt Benjamin Taylor and other to examine into the claims of the parties, a certain large tract of land in ſaid Hebron anciently granted by Capt. John Maſon, a ſignee of Uncus, Owanico and Joſhua S chems, and partition thereof to make, &c.—These are to notify all perſons concerned, attend the ſaid buſineſs, at the dwellin houſe of Mr. Joſeph Waters in ſaid Hebro on the 6th day of Auguſt next, when a where we ſhall enter on ſaid buſineſs. Date at Hartford, 5th June, 1770.

JABEZ HAMLIN,
ZEBULON WEST,
NATHANIEL WALES, jun.

THE ſubſcriber begs leave to aquaint th public that he has opened a ſchool Mr. Caldwell's ſhop where will be taugh Reading; Writing; Vulgar & Dicimal A rethmetic; the Extraction of the roots ſimple and Compound intereſt, how to pur chace or ſell annuities, leaſes for lives, in reverſion, freehold eſtates, &c. at ſimp or Compound intereſt. The Italian Metho of book keeping, menſuration of ſuperficie and ſolids; ſurveying; gauging, dialling plain and ſpheric tregonometry, navigatio and other branches of the Mathematic Thoſe who are pleas'd to honour him wi the care of educating their Children, ma depend on having them treated in the mo tender manner, punctually waited upon an carefully inſtructed, and to merit their ap probation and give general ſatisfaction ſh be the conſtant ſtudy of their Obedient Hu ble Servant. JOHN MILLER.

N. B. He will attend a Morning Sho from 7 to half after 8 for young Ladies wh are deſirous further to improve themſelve in Writing & Accounts; and write for ge tlemen at his leaſure hours.

Notice is hereby given, to the Creditors of John Hopſon Colcheſter, an inſolvent Debtor, that the meet at the Houſe of John Tainter, Inn holder in Colcheſter on the 24th Day July next, to take into Conſideration ſundr Notes of Hand in Favour of ſaid Hopſon againſt one Aſahel Strong, and determin whether they will divide ſaid Notes amongſt themſelves as they now are, or hav them collected before Diviſion is made thereof, &c. when and where the Subſcribers will attend.

Humphry Lyon,
Charles Foot,
Joſeph Iſham, jun. } Truſtees.

June 20. 1770.

Strayed or Stolen out of a Paſture in Torrington, ſometime in th month of May laſt, a brown Mare, about 1 hands high, a ſtar in her forehead, hind fee white, paces and trots well, no brand as remember, about eight years old. Whoeve will take up ſaid Mare, and return her t the ſubſcriber, ſhall have Five Dollars Reward, paid, by TIMOTHY THRALL.

Windſor, July 3. 1770.

MONDAY, JULY 23, 1770.

Numb 291.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

CONNECTICUT, July 19, 1770.

TO THE GENTLEMEN MERCHANTS AND TRADERS IN THE CITY OF NEW-YORK

THE following Letter with an Obſervation or two on your late reſolution e publiſhed without the leaſt apology.——he little weight, the opinion, arguments d even intreaties of this and the neighbouring colonies have had with certain gen lemen among you, determined on importati n, require and demand of each colony, a indication of the part, they have jointly, well as ſeverally acted, in this important fair.——I deſign a letter or two more o the ſubject; in which, a ſtrict regard to uth, and an impartial repreſentation of cts, will render me intirely fearleſs of of ending.——My obſervations on facts, if not ertinent, will be diſregarded, if not juſt, ill be eaſily anſwered.

Hartford, 19th June, 1770.

the Committee of Merchants in New York.

GENTLEMEN,

YOURS of the 16th acknowledging the receipt of ours of the 6th, and incloſing a copy of yours of the 16th inſtant, to the trade at Boſton; we received by your expreſs he contents of which, were equally ſurrizing to all we communicated them to, as ourſelves; we confeſs ourſelves unhappy, ever differing from the ſentiments, of our ethren, embarked in the ſame cauſe, eſpe ally from ſo reſpectable a number, as the erchants, &c. of New York, yet we can t but candidly, make a few remarks on our late propoſal, and give you our ſenti ents, and the ſentiments of thoſe in trade, d others we have converſed with on the bject, which we depend you will receive ith equal candor. As the propoſal you ave been pleaſed to make to Boſton, & com nicate to us, ſeems to have originated from e ſenſe of the people of New-York collect d in conſequence of printed advertiſements ſt circulated, give us leave to ſay; we take e ſtate of this important affair, to be ſome ow, very unhappily miſunderſtood, and re reſented in the advertiſement. That the artial repeal of the duties, was never moved r, or conſidered as a conciliating meaſure, ith regard to the colonies, is evident to us, om the public declaration of the Miniſtry in e houſe of Commons; and the declared eſign, and intent in leaving the duty on Tea nrepealed, until another ſeſſion of parlia ent, ſpeaks too plainly to be, as we con eive miſunderſtood. As to the determinati n againſt importing Tea at all, until the du y is taken off, we cannot ſee the great uti ity of ſuch a reſolution, if your propoſal akes place, ſince ſuch a prohibition, will ever intereſt the honeſt labourers, and Ma ufacturers of Great Britain in our favour, nor any one ſett of men ſave the Eaſt India company, whoſe intereſt and that of the nation, are already almoſt incompatible.——The giving up at this period, will fully confirm the predictions of many in Great Britain, concerning our ability for carrying our reſolutions through; diſcourage our friends at home ſtrengthen an adminiſtration inimical to us already, and forever fatally barr, all future aſſociations on the continent, for any public purpoſes of the like nature——One more word on the ſubject, if even when a whole continent were on the watch, Britiſh goods though totally, and intirely excluded, have found their way undiſcovered in among us, in ſome inſtances, what may we expect, when the doors, are thus widely laid open, and none appointed to be on the guard; as an individual article, will not be of that importance, in the eyes of the public—One obſervation further on your letter, immediately to us of Connecticut. You are pleaſed to ſay the ſentiments of your inhabitants are for embracing the preſent juncture as the moſt favourable we may perhaps ever hear of makeing a decent and honorable retreat—As we never engaged in this matter but from principle we are ſtill convinced of the juſtice of the cauſe, as great extenſive ſucceſs has already attended our joint efforts and an intire ſettlement of every thing to our wiſhes is near at hand——We cannot think of a retreat in any ſence of the word as either decent or honorable.—One of the firſt American characters, now at the court of Great Britain, in his letter of the 16th April laſt, after relating the ſucceſs Mr. Trecothick's motion for taking off the duty on Tea, had met with ſays expreſly, "that had the non "importation agreement been as virtuouſly "obſerved thro out America, as it had been "in New York, the whole revenue act would "have been repealed this ſeſſion of Parliament, but adds he, let us omit cenſure, "the whole dependence of the miniſtry, reſpecting America, is on the breach of this, "which once broken diſunites you forever; "but (continues the worthy patriot) the "game is in your own hands, and I truſt "there is virtue and ſkill enough in America ſo to play it to their advantage as to "ſettle the future liberties of America on a "firm and laſting baſis; your all in my opinion depends on this."——The above referred to letter, is not now before us, but having had it repeatedly read in our hearing, the above you may rely on as part of a long letter wholly almoſt on that ſubject, a copy of which we propoſe ſending you when obtained—and we can but hope, when you calmly, and impartially reconſider the whole, with the almoſt infinite conſequences that attend it, you will be ſo candid, as to withdraw your propoſal. The univerſal conſternation, the contents and purport of your expreſs, gave the people of all ranks among us, is eaſier to be conceived than expreſs'd, nor to be conceiv'd but by thoſe, who have been preſent, at the news of ſome public misfortune firſt ſpreading——Gentlemen, we eſteem, we reſpect you, yet muſt ſpeak thus freely and truly with you on the ſubject. our direct importation have ever been ſmall our conſumption large, and (theſe acts removed) increaſing, we are but an individual amid a number of colonies, yet from the ſenſe of thoſe we have had the opportunity of conferring with on the ſhort warning we have had, you may depend Connecticut will abide by their agreement, and will be ſo far from retreating, that we ſhall conſider it as an honor to fall in ſo good a cauſe; we this day had a meeting of a conſiderable number of the traders and others upon the contents of yours, and we write you this, as the ſentiments of the meeting——We doubt not but that the trade of this colony will turn into another channel, if your merchants ſhould be the firſt to break the non-importation agreement, which we hope will not be the caſe, we ſtill are confident you will reconſider your late propoſal, and ſtand firm to the non-importation agreement, which we doubt not but you'll find to be the ſentiments of Boſton.

GENTLEMEN, as this will be with you before your intelligence from Boſton and Philadelphia will come to hand; when you propoſe taking the ſenſe of your inhabitants agin—The gentlemen preſent deſire you would publiſh to the people this letter before you take their ſentiments.

THE enemies to America both at home and abroad have at all times inſiſted that the non importation agreement was come into and kept up by intereſted perſons and for temporary views, this inſinuation has we are credibly informed done us ſenſible wrong, a relaxation at this time, and under our preſent circumſtances, we cannot but think will be to countenance this their report——We are, Gentlemen, your moſt humble ſervants,

MATTHEW TALCOTT,
RICHARD ALSOP,
SILAS DEANE, } Committee of Correſpondence.

The above letter though of the 19th of June laſt, and forwarded by expreſs remains ſtill unanſwered.——A copy for publication, tho' requeſted by the gentlemen againſt importation, has it is credibly reported been refuſed by the Chairman with this reaſon, "They "had no authority to publiſh letters received on the ſubject."

How conſiſtent this is, let every one judge after reperuſing the paſſage in the above marked in Italic's. How far it ſerves to confirm the report, that thoſe of you in the importation ſcheme, had ſome time ſince ſent home your orders for goods, in expectation of a relaxing of the colonies at the propoſed conference, and therefore being embarked in the cauſe you could not poſſibly retreat with decency or honor, or rather with intereſt and honor, and therefore deſperately puſh'd toward to ſave the former though with the intire loſs of the latter—let the world judge. —Yes, gentlemen, the world will judge. For in the face of the world, you pledg'd your honor you plighted your faith in the ſtrongeſt manner repeatedly, and confederated with the other colonies, firmly, and inviolably to abide by the non importation agreement, until we obtained full redreſs —— is the redreſs obtained?—The moſt venal importers of ye all, will not pretend it —— On the 16th of June laſt you wrote thus to Boſton "The propoſal we made to you by expreſs was of ſuch a nature as appeared to us well adapted to ſtrengthen, rather than to weaken our ſeveral non importation agreements if they ſhould be thought tenable on their preſent footing, and on the other hand to prevent any reproach, or cenſure on any colony if an alteration or amendment of their reſpective agreements ſhould be concluded on as abſolutely neceſſary by general conſent to effect the deſired purpoſes."

How far a total breaking through, will deſerve to eſcape reproach and cenſure, rather than an alteration or amendment, of abſolute neceſſity, and by general conſent —— And how far the conſent of almoſt eight hundred inhabitants of the city of NYork (no ſmall part of them, the dependants tenants or debtors of thoſe who promoted the propoſal for importation) will juſtify the breaking an agreement, which effects the liberties of three millions of free-born ſubjects and their poſterity, may be well worthy your ſerious conſideration, or rather the conſideration of every one, who prefers freedom to ſlavery, and honor to the moſt laſting, and indelible infamy

I am, Gentlemen, &c.

A Freeman of Connecticut.

P. S. When I ſay it is credibly reported that the Chairman refuſed a copy, &c. —— I might have ſaid ſeveral gentlemen have wrote to him for copies as they declare they were denied the liberty of having one from the Chairman.

LONDON, May 14

It is ſaid that the only impediment to an immediate coalition of parties, is the want of obtaining a reconciliation of a certain great Perſonage to L— T——. To evidence that, in all probability, ſuch a reconciliation will not take place, and therefore if the conjunction of intereſts hinges on that event, there is but little proſpect of its accompliſhment, we are juſt reminded of a circumſtance which happened ſome few years ago: L— T——, when he was deprived of the office of P——y S——l (which was the higheſt and laſt place he ever held under government) was ſo diſguſted, that he was determined not only to oppoſe the meaſures of the M——y, but abſolutely to paſs a perſonal affront on the Crown itſelf. Soon after an opportunity was afforded him, and he embraced it: A general review had been in Hyde Park, from which a certain great Perſonage was returning on horſeback, properly attended: L— T——, who was riding at the ſame time for the benefit of the air, and perceiving it, put ſpurs to his horſe, and arrived juſt at the time his M——y was going out of the Park, through the gate at Hyde park corner, and, without ſtaying to let his M——y paſs, rode through the gate directly before him, without paying any reſpect to, or taking the leaſt kind of notice of him. The K— obſerving this piece of rudeneſs, ſaid, if he had been aware of his L——p's intent to affront him, he would have rode over him; & afterwards declared, that in conſequence of this tranſaction he would never do buſineſs with his L——p again.

This week is expected to be a very buſy one in the Upper Aſſembly; but no further matter of conſequence will be agitated, it is believed, this ſeſſions in the Lower Aſſembly, as great part of the Members are already retired to the country for the ſummer ſeaſon.

We are informed that the further motions which a certain great man is expected to make, neither relate to the Middleſex election, nor the city Remonſtrance.

Beſides the affairs of the Colonies, which it is certain will make one object of a great man's labours next week, a limitation of the prerogative of the c——n, in one or more inſtances, will alſo excite his abilities.

It is believed that the expected inveſtigation of certain matters, will be productive of more repeals.

It is ſaid that there were ſeven different reſolutions propoſed in a certain aſſembly on American affairs this week, none of which, took place

Laſt week a lady at the weſt end of the town, who had her head dreſſed in the preſent taſte, high and large, conſiſting of hair, wool, the dreſſings of flax, &c which conſtitute a roll for a foundation, and over that a large quantity of lace one row above another; had the misfortune to ſet the whole fabrick on fire with her candle, by not making a proper allowance of diſtance from the flames; the apprehenſion of ſuch a bonfire about her ears (as ſhe owns) ſtupified her ſo much that ſhe could not ring her bell nor call for help; and had not the ſmell of the burning hair alarmed her waiting maid, who was in the next room, ſhe muſt have periſhed, and perhaps the houſe been ſet on fire. She now lies dangerouſly ill of the fright, and having her forehead, eyes, and ears, much burnt notwithſtanding the care of the ſervant who almoſt ſet herſelf on fire in extinguiſhing her lady's.

We are credibly informed that the late dog-act is under conſideration, either for repeal or amendment

Mr. E Burke was two hours and a quarter in his Speech in the Houſe of Commons on Wedneſday Evening laſt, on the American Affairs; and went thro' that complicated Buſineſs with ſo much Preciſion and Oratory, that the Perſons in the Gallery could ſcarce refrain clapping him on the Cloſe of it,

Counſellor Wedderburn, ſpeaking of American Affairs a few Days ago, ſaid, "In the Reign of Charles the Second you conquered America——In the Reign of George the Third you loſt America; for I cannot conſider it now as any Part of the Britiſh Empire"

A patriotic Earl in a late eloquent Harangue told the Leaders of Adminiſtration, that they might be aſſured there was a Thunder Bolt hanging over their Heads, red with uncommon Wrath, which would e're long fall down and blaſt the men who ow'd their Greatneſs to their country's Ruin.

A noble Lord in the oppoſition appeared on a late Occaſion to be exceedingly agitated at the Meaſures of Adminiſtration, expreſſing the utmoſt anxiety for the wounds that had been given to the Conſtitution by a corrupt ſet of Miniſters, lamenting that the efforts of his noble Brother were in vain with Men who were dead to every ſenſe of conviction: and hoped that all the world would know in what abhorrence they were held by him, and that he proteſted againſt their arbitary and ſhameful meaſures.

A patriotic Nobleman and his Friends have frequent Conſultations on the preſent ſtate of affairs in America, the reſult of which will be communicated to a Great Aſſembly the beginning of this week

It is ſaid that ſome very important Matters will be agitated in an auguſt Aſſemb this day relative to Boſton, and that the Revenue Acts will be again conſidered.

We are informed that the report of ſeveral Ships of the Line having been lately ordered to America, is entirely without Foundation, and that no meaſures of any kind will b carried into Execution on that Continent til the ſenſe of two great Aſſemblies is known.

It is thought by ſome that the Act laying duty upon Tea exported to America wil not be repealed this ſeſſion of Parliament tho' others think it will ſtill be effected before they are prorogued.

The Carlton houſe junto, it is ſaid, are collecting all their forces for the field on Tue day next, when Lord Chatham has declare he intends to make a motion in favour o the oppreſſed Americans.

We are told, that no perſon will be employed in his Majeſty's revenue in Americ who has not been firſt employed in their mother country, many of the preſent diſorder taking their riſe from the ignorance of tho in power with the duties of the officers committed to them.

May 11. Tueſday laſt a motion wa made to the Houſe of Commons, by Governor Pownall, for an addreſs to his Majeſt to have the ſtate of the military eſtabliſhme in America reconſidered and rectified. Upon this occaſion the Miniſtry declared, th the troops are withdrawn from Boſton, an will not be ſent there again, until the civ magiſtrate calls for their aſſiſtance; and th his M—jſty had given orders to have the ſta of the commiſſioners, and the military commands in that country laid before the crow lawyers, in order that it might be reviſed, rectified, & put upon a conſtitutional foo ing.

Letters from Bourdeaux bring an accou of a terrible accident that happened the on Sunday the 8th inſtant, by the raiſing the waters of the Garronne. That river w full of chalops and ſmall veſſels, laden wi the goods and moveables of poor peopl A large tree, borne down by the violen of the currant, broke the cable of an ol hulk, which ſet adrift five or ſix ſhips, an theſe drew along with them a hundred o thoſe ſmall craft, which were all driven towards the ſea. The ſight was dreadfu The crews of many of theſe veſſels happened to be aſhore; thoſe who were on boar could do nothing but pray to GOD to hav mercy upon them. Moſt of the ſmall cra periſhed with all thoſe on board: three o four of the ſhips were entirely ſunk, and every one of the reſt were either run agroun or ſhared the fate of thoſe that periſhe The whole loſs is eſtimated at ſix million of livres.

TO be Sold, a Quantity of goo FLEECE WOOL, by NATHANEL BURNHAM, in Eaſt-Hartford for Caſh or Country Produce.

BOSTON, July 19

YESTERDAY being Commencement at Harvard-College in Cambrige,—after preparatory Prayer by the Rev'd Preſident LOCKE, the Exerciſes of the Morning began with a ſalutatory Oration in Latin, then followed an Engliſh Dialogue on the Importance of Science and public Liberty:—to this ſucceeded a forenſic Diſpute on public and private Education;——then followed a Dialogue in Greek;—after which the uſual Syllogiſtic Diſputes took place;——Theſe being ended, the Audience were entertained with a Dialogue in the Chaldaic Language; the firſt of the Kind ever exhibited in America, and wholly the Product of the generous Foundation of the late Hon. *Thomas Han*ck Eſq;—A Dialogue on Virtue and Liberty cloſed the Performance of the Forenoon. In the Afternoon the Candidates for aſters of Arts held their Syllogiſtic Diſputes in Latin, and a Valedictory Oration was onounced by one of the ſame Claſs. The veral Degrees were conferred in the uſual anner, previous to the Valedictory Oration, Prayer by the Preſident, and an Anthem reformed by the Under Graduates cloſed he Entertainment of the Day.

The young Gentlemen that received their Degree of Bachelor of Arts were dreſſed in black Cloaths, entirely of the Manufacture of New-England.

We have had ſeveral Reports the Week paſt that the Revenue Acts were totally re ed. The firſt ſaid to be by a Maſt Ship ived at Caſco Bay from England: the next that a veſſel arrived at Salem from Weſt-Indies ſpoke a veſſel from Liſbon bound to Philadelphia the Maſter of which informed [illegible] Acts were [illegible] repealed the 16th of May. A third Report was that Capt Lam ert, arrived at Salem, ſpoke a Packet near George's Banks, bound to New-York, which alarmed him that the Revenue Acts were totally repealed:——But the Report we had Yeſterday was ſo circumſtantial, that no one diſputed the Truth of it, and 'twas immediately ſpread in Cambridge, where a great Number of the principal Gentlemen were attending at the Commencement: the Report was, that the Maſter of a Coaſting Veſſel ſpoke a Brig in the Bay, early that Morning and upon aſking where ſhe was from, was anſwered from London, commanded by Capt. Smith, (a Veſſel hourly expected) and upon inquiring what News? was reply'd, the Revenue-Acts were totally repealed the 25th May; and they might inform the People thereof. A Brig was then coming in, but the Tide and Wind being againſt her, ſhe came to anchor off the Caſtle: Upon which Boat went down to her, and found her to e from Rhode-Iſland: And no other Brig coming ſince, this laſt report in two hours ame to nothing; and the other reports we re afraid are alſo void of Foundation.

NEWYORK, July 19

Capt. Prince, in 30 Days from Cayanne, informs, That the French are buſily employed in adding many new Works to the Fortifications of that Place and from their Diſpoſition it is looked at as if they were at the Eve of War.

Captain Bean arrived here laſt Friday, from Port au Prince in Hiſpaniola, confirms the Account we had in our laſt of the Earthquake there, and ſays the whole Place is intirely ſunk, but that there was only Twenty-five white People loſt in the Ruins.

New-London, July 6.

By Capt. Pyner, who came to town laſt Wedneſday, [illegible] 30 Days from Ja[illegible] formed, that ſome [illegible] Joſeph Savage, in a Sloop be[illegible] Weathersfield in this Colony, [illegible] at Euſtatia, where he ſhipped a new Set of Hands, as alſo a Mate, (who was an Iriſhman) that ſoon after, in a Paſſage from thence to the Leeward, Capt. Savage was inhumanly taken up by the Mate and one of the people, as he lay aſleep on the Quarter-Deck, and thrown over-board; he immediately cried for Help, and begged for Mercy, but the Mate took up a Cutlaſs and threatened to run the firſt Man through that ſhould afford him any Aſſiſtance: They ſoon after this run the Veſſel a Shore on the North ſide of Cuba, and after Robbing her of the Caſh that was on board, which they divided among the Crew, being Four in Number (including a Boy) they p[illegible]ded a-croſs the Iſland of Cuba, and imbarked in different Veſſels for Jamaica; but while on their Paſſage, the Boy which belonged to Capt. Savage's Veſſel acquainted the Maſter of the Veſſel he was Paſſenger in of the above Murder; and upon their Arrival, the Mate, (who was prnicipally concerned in the Crime) was taken up and committed to Goal, which in few days after he broke through, and was making his Eſcape; but being again apprehended, he was to have his Trial the middle of laſt Month. The other Perſon concerned in the Murder could not be found.

HARTFORD, July 23.

Laſt Wedneſday Abner Root, a Lad about 13 Years of Age, ſon to Deacon Joſeph Root of Montague, was unhappily drowned in the Great River, in endeavouring to relieve one of his Mates, who was in danger of Sharing the ſame Fate.

On Lord's Day the 15th Inſtant, July, at Farmington, after a painful, but ſhort Illneſs, departed this Life, the amiable Conſort of Mr. SETH LEE——She lived beloved, and died lamented.

LIST of LETTERS, remaining in the Poſt-Offices Hartford. N. B. Thoſe having no Town mentioned are all of Hartford.

WILLIAM ADAMS, Eſq; Henry Allin, Eſq; Windſor, Ebenezer Buſhnell Lebanon, Patt Butler at Goſhen near Lebanon, Zachariah Bunce, Weathersfield, Capt. Daniel Bull, Capt. Edward Bulkley, Weathersfield, John Cheſter Weathersfield, Giles Cone, Haddam, Capt. Solomon Cowles Farmington, Dorotha Dert, Bolton, Dr. Dickinſon Plainfield, Col. Aaron Eliot Killingſworth, Miſs Nancy Grant Eaſt Windſor, Mark Hopkins, Eſq; Great Barington, William Holt, Jun. Windham, Silvanus Higgins Chatham, Richard Hale, Coventry, Thomas Hauſſman, Saliſbury, Dr. Daniel Honting on Woodbury, Daniel Horſford, Hebron, eriam Harper, Eaſt Windſon, Jared Inger ol, Eſq; William Judd, Eſq; Frmington, Lewis Loveridge Colcheſter, Capt. Nathaniel Loomis Windſor. John Miller, Joſeph Marvin Weathersfield, Thomas Newhall, Nathaniel Niles in Hartford in the County of Cumberland in New York Government. Benjamin Peck Colcheſter, Alexander Phelps Hebron, William Robinſon Plainfield, Capt. Samuel Roſe Weathersfield, Samuel Stillman Weathersfield, Nathaniel Stillman Weathersfield, Thomas Sumner Hebron, 2. Lemuel Sarford, Daniel Smith Goſhen, Tho's. Skinner Hebron, John Smith Goſhen, Thad. Sturge Ridgefield, Samuel Safe Wintonbury, Samuel Smith Farmington, Habbakuck Turner Coventry, Daniel Williams Goſhen, Capt. David Webb Weathersfield, Dudley Woodbridge Eaſt-Hartford.

Thoſe perſons who have letters at this Office, are deſired when they ſend for them to ſend the money for the Poſtage, without which they will not be delivered.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon court of Probate for the diſtrict of Sharon, commiſſioners to examine the claims and demands of the creditors to the eſtate of Abel Wright, late of Kent deceas'd; do accordingly hereby notify the creditors of ſaid eſtate to bring in their claims and demands on ſaid eſtate, on the firſt Tueſdays of Auguſt, September and October next following, at the dwelling Houſe of Peter Mills, Innkeeper in ſaid Kent, as we ſhall attend on ſaid buſineſs, at ſaid times and place.

Eliphalet Comſtock } Commiſſioners.
Robert Ranſom,

Kent, June 25, 1770.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &c.

Lathrop & Smith,

Apothecaries in HARTFORD,
Have juſt Imported from LONDON;

A LARGE and freſh aſſortment of the beſt Drugs—Chemical, Galenical, and Patended Medicines (that may be depended upon to be genuine)—Spices of all ſorts——Amputating Inſtruments in neat Shagreen Caſes——Surgeons Pocket Inſtruments——Lancets—Syringes——Bell metal Mortars, of various ſizes, &c. &c. Where alſo may be had, the very beſt of Tortuga Salt, by the Buſhel or larger Quantity—Barbadoes Rum by the Hogſhead or Gallon—Beſt Barbadoes Sugar by the Barrel or ſmaller Quantity——French Brandy——Geneva (by the Caſe or Quart—and a variety of other cheap Spirits—Choice old Madeira, Malaga and Clarret Wine—Figgs——Raiſins——Tamarinds——Chocolate—Coffee—Rice—Oat Meal—French and Pearl Barley Sago—Powdered Salop——Choice Hard Soap by the Box or Cake—Indigo——Verdigreaſe——Copperas——Allum——Madder——Red Saunders——Redwood——Logwood, &c. &c. &c.

N. B. Said Lathrop & Smith, will give the Caſh for good Merchantable POTASH, and SALTS of LYE.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

by [illegible]

BOSTON, July 12.

Laſt Saturday Morning arrived here from Briſtol, the Ship Juno Capt. Conſtant Freeman, which Place he left the 16th of May ; and in whom came Paſſenger Capt Andrew Gardner, who the beginning of laſt April was ſent Expreſs from this Town with a particular Account of the horrid Maſſacre committed here by the Soldiers on the 5th of March preceding, by him we have London Prints to the 14th of May ——

The NORTH BRITON, publiſhed May 12 1770 after giving a long Account of the ſeveral Nations who have loſt their Freedom by means of ſtanding Armies, which have always been conſidered as inconſiſtent with the ſpirit of a free government, goes on, and ſays ———

“THESE reflections naturally occurred to me upon conſidering the many outrages and maſſacres that have lately been committed by the army, firſt in St. George's, afterwards in Spital Fields, and now at laſt at BOSTON in New England. This laſt tragedy is at once the moſt bloody, & the moſt cruel and cowardly of any, as a preconcerted ſcheme ſeems to have been formed by the army for murdering the greateſt part, if not the whole of the inhabitants. This appears evidently from the Short Narrative of the Maſſacre, which is publiſhed by your bookſeller. The honorable Thomas Hutchinſon Eſq; Lieutenant Governor of Maſſachuſetts-Bay, the ſupreme magiſtrate in the colony, gives it under the ſeal of the province, that all the gentlemen, who took the depoſitions, are Juſtices of the Peace, and that full faith and credit is, and ought to be given to their ſeveral acts and atteſtations, both in court and without ; and the juſtices themſelves certify, that the ſeveral depoſitions contained in the Narrative, were taken before them, and have been carefully compared by them with originals & agree with the ſame ; and by theſe depoſitions it is incontestably proved, that a regular plan was laid by the army, for exciting a quarrel between them and the people, and thence taking occaſion to butcher the latter, without diſtinction of ſex or age.

William Newhall, in particular, declares, that 5 days before the maſſacre, he met 4 ſoldiers of the 29th regiment and that he heard them ſay, that there were a great many that would eat their dinners on Monday, that ſhould not eat any on Tueſday. Daniel Calfe, another evidence, declares, that two days preceding the maſſacre, a camp woman, wife to a grenadier of the 29th regiment, came into his ſhop, and, among other things ſaid, that before Tueſday or Wedneſday night, the ſoldiers would wet their ſwords or bayonets in New England people's blood. It likewiſe appears, from theſe depoſitions, that Enſign Mall, and ſeveral other officers, were privy to this black and diabolical deſign ; and Captain Preſton gave the word to fire ; and that the ſoldiers fired in conſequence ; by which fire three perſons were killed on the ſpot, two mortally wounded, who ſoon after died, and ſix others wounded, and their lives in imminent danger.

It is to be hoped, however, that Capt. Preſton, and his fellow murderers, have already met with the fate they deſerve. For, if they are reſpited, and his Majeſty pardon them, it will furniſh, I am afraid, but too juſt a handle to ſay, that however rigorouſly the laws may be executed againſt indifferent offenders, it ſeems to be laid down as a fix- [illegible] the K — obſer[illegible] [illegible] ſhall ſuffer dur- ſaid, if he had be[illegible] [illegible] have any, even intent to affro[illegible] [illegible] with the ſervants over him ; [illegible] were [illegible] with his chimney- conſequen[illegible] ſweep, or the ſcullion of his kitchen. The [illegible] of what I would infer from the above [illegible] and obſervations is, that there is now an additional reaſon, not merely for reducing, but for diſbanding the army ;—a reaſon which never exiſted before.

I omit the many other arguments which might be urged to this purpoſe, the ſaving the public money, the eaſing the burdens of the people, the reſtoring ſo many hands to trade, agriculture, and manufactures, the preventing the dangerous examples they ſet of lewdneſs, debauchery, and profaneneſs, &c.

I only inſiſt on this one argument, that if our government inſtead of a free, is become an abſolute ; inſtead of a civil, is become a military government, if our army is kept up, not to defend us againſt foreign forces, but to ſubject us to domeſtic ſlavery ; if thoſe who eat our bread may, with impunity cut our throats ; we ought to require the diſbanding of a moment. Or if our governors, with their uſual obſtinacy, ſhould refuſe to gratify us in ſo reaſonable a requeſt, it will be the duty of every man of ſentiment,——— to ſhun the company of a ſoldier ; that ſo the profeſſion being rendered, in time, as odious and contemptible, as ever it was honorable and reſpected, thoſe may be induced to diſband themſelves from ſhame, who cannot be diſbanded from any other motive : for I am afraid, we have not the courage to adopt the expedient employed by the Romans, of driving the ſoldiers into their forts and garriſons, and making a red coat in our towns, our cities, and in the open country, as uncommon a ſight as a wolf is in England.

May 3. A Tueſday two quarts of green peas was ſold in Covent garden market for 5 guineas.

It is now pretty certain that in the courſe of the preſent ſeſſion of parliament effectual meaſures will be purſued towards the prevention of appointing military Governors to the different American Provinces.

They write from Jamaica that the Spaniards are in great want of negroes at the Havannah, a peſtilential diſtemper having ſwept off upwards of 17 000 ſlaves in the iſland of Cuba during the laſt winter.

We are informed that Mr. Wilkes has purchaſed an annuity for his life with the 4000l. he obtained by his ſuit againſt L. Halifax.

May 5. It is now ſaid to be determined to ſend a very conſiderable force, as well of ſhips as men, to New England ; and it is ſaid that General Gage is to go from New-York to command them.

The two reigments that were on the murmurs of the people, removed from Boſton to Halifax ſome time ago, have received orders it is ſaid to proceed to Boſton.

We are informed, the motion was overruled for ſending a reinforcement of troops to Boſton, until the return of anſwers from Governor Hutchinſon and Col. Dalrymple, to the laſt diſpatches ſent from London.

May 8 We are informed that 20,000l. will be wanted to defray the extra expences in America.

We hear that a certain great man has declared he has ſomething yet in petto, that will put the Miniſtry to greater difficulties than any thing he has hitherto propoſed.

A friend of Mr. Wilkes's was obſerving to him that he was grown fat of late.—— “Can you wonder at that, (ſaid the Patriot) when you conſider I am an Alderman and as fond of turtle as the fondeſt of them.”

Philip Levingſton, Eſq; Speaker of the Aſſembly of New York, lately ſent his ſon to London, who is appointed Commiſſary of Weſt Florida, worth 400l. a year.

May 9. We hear that ſtrict orders have been given that no perſon, of what rank ſoever, ſhall be allowed in future to ſell out of the army, that did not purchaſe into it.

It is expected that a certain great man will ſoon meet with a ſimilar fate to that of the late Duke of D———e, for his ſpirited animadverſions on a certain anſwer.

It was aſſerted the other day, by a patriotic Earl, “that the minds of three fourths of the people were notoriouſly alienated from their allegiance, and that they were almoſt ready to prove it by their actions.”——To which a certain Duke replied, “that if nominal majority were to draw their ſwords in that confidence, he would riſk his own head on their finding themſelves confoundedly miſtaken.”

A letter from Corfu, ſpeaking of the irruption made in the Morea, ſays, “That the Ruſſians were joined by 18 000 Lacedemonians, who cut in pieces all the Turks that refuſed to ſubmit. The greateſt carnage was at Patras, where the Turks were pretty numerous, and where they made an obſtinate reſiſtance. The garriſon was nearly put to the ſword. Some few, to ſave their lives, embrac'd chriſtianity.

It is ſaid to be in agitation to allow, by a public act of the City of London, 1000l. a year out of the city chamber, to Mr. Wilkes, for his public ſervices.

By an appeal from the Rolls to the court of Chancery, on a determination in a ſuit brought by the heirs of the late Sir William Pynſent, againſt a certain Nobleman, on the will of the deceaſed, it is apprehended the great man will, from the appearance of that affair be obliged to refund 10 000l.

Yeſterday a number of people aſſembled in the Lobby of the Houſe of Commons, and the avenues adjoining, in conſequence of a report which had been ſpread that Mr. Wilkes intended to go thither that day to claim a ſeat. The croud was ſo great that the members were hindered from paſſing and repaſſing ; whereupon the gallery was ordered to be locked and the lobby to be cleared ; but Mr. Wilkes did not go to the houſe.

The examination of Capt Preſton's caſe, we hear, is put off till a more particular and authentic detail of theſe tranſactions is received.

All the letters, papers, &c. which can any way lead to the tracing the cauſes of a late melancholy event at Boſton, are ordered to be laid before a reſpectable ſociety.

A patriotic Colonel and Member of a political club, has declared both within and without doors to his friends, that notwithſtanding his anger againſt the inſtruments of the late murders, he will coolly and impartially join with the M——y in their reſearches to bring to light every particular, relative to that alarming tranſaction.——We hear that a day will be ſet apart for the above enquiry.

The new method of ſheathing with ground glaſs has anſwered ſo, that ſloops which have been ſent up the rivers Senegal and Ganges, where the worms are largeſt, are returned uninjured.

MONDAY, July 30, 1770.

Numb 292.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

Meſſrs PRINTERS.

Pleaſe to give the following a place in one of your next and you will oblige one of your conſtant readers.

CONNECTICUT, July 21, 1770.

THOUGH I make no pretenſions to any ſkill in politics, yet from a very ſmall acquaintance with human nature and moral philoſophy, ſhould not perhaps be tho't arrogant if I ſhould aſſert that mutual harmony, unanimity and concord are the great cement and connecting bands of human ſociety, ſo abſolutely neceſſary to the well being of civil communities, that without theſe, no ſuch communities can ſubſiſt, and without even a good degree of which, none can be happy or proſperous, nor ſo much as any mutual intercourſe, or commercial intereſt be upheld, ſucceſsfully managed or carried on among mankind —— And 'tis an unqueſtionable truth that the ſocial or political felicity of a people does not only originate from but does commonly bear a very near or exact proportion to the degrees of harmony, or mutual concord that takes place among them in their political ſentiments, motives or purſuits, or in ſuch matters as are accounted or held up as objects publickly intereſting or of general concernment with them—As whole communities are made up of individuals, ſo the public or general weal, is no other than the aggregate or ſum total of the good or intereſt of thoſe individuals of which they are compoſed.—To promote therefore the general good or common weal of a community in the beſt manner, no ſurer method can be deviſed or come into, than ſuch an one as won't fail in the beſt and moſt effectual manner to ſecure and promote the good of all the individuals —— And when ſuch individuals view themſelves as being under ſuch a conſtitution as this, they can't but pronounce their ſituation the moſt eligible and happy, and cordially acquieſce in it as ſuch—— All reaſonable complaints therefore from a ſenſe of public burdens, oppreſſions, grievances, impoſitions or hardſhips, as reſulting from the nature or operation of a conſtitution itſelf, or the maleficent conduct of thoſe who are principals in its adminiſtrations, can ariſe from no other quarter than the reverſe of what is above ſuppoſed ; as therefore 'tis neceſſary that the main body and every department in a community ſhould conduct in a manner to itſelf the moſt ſalutary and conducive to its own felicity, that in the firſt place, they ſhould be united in ſentiment as to where their true intereſt and ſafety lies, and what are the moſt expedient methods to promote ; and alſo that they ſhould unitedly with perſevering zeal, reſolution and conſtancy purſue, and effectually carry into execution the ſame ; ſo when either of thoſe fail, there can be no rational proſpects of ſucceſs in any popular combinations, parades or ſhowy profeſſions of zeal and reſolution in the proſecution of any popular meaſures that may be adopted as patriotic and ſalutary to the ſtate —Shou'd it be aſk'd how far it may be ſafe to repoſe a truſt or confidence in promiſing ſhews, and high profeſſions of patriotiſm, zeal and reſolution in the cauſe of the ſtate, and even poſtponing perſonal to public intereſt where theſe come in competition ?—It may perhaps be anſwered that 'tis not a little difficult to aſcertain the true bounds of ſafety here : matters of this kind are beſt proved by events which in fact do enſue. That there is ſuch a thing as a truly laudable patriotic ſpirit in contradiſtinction from one which proceeds merely from views of a private perſonal ſelfiſh nature, none can queſtion, who have any tolerable acquaintance with the hiſtory of our own or foreign nations, but then how far a ſelfiſh or private ſpirit may aſſume the appearance or put on the maſk and vizard of true patriotiſm, may be a queſtion too little conſidered, and too difficult to be reſolved. Or to what a degree this ſpirit may be ſuppoſed ever to poſſeſs the general body of a people, ſo as to be of univerſal governing influence on their practice without a ſtrong preſumption of ſome very powerful connexions of private or perſonal intereſt, may be a point not eaſily determined.——Nothing can be more evident from fact experience, and the nature of the thing than that all human affairs are alike uncertain with thoſe views, proſpects, particular fancies, humours or paſſions, which have the aſcendency and leading influence in the minds of men. Show but the man whoſe views, proſpects, fancies and paſſions, in all circumſtances are uniform and ſtable, it will not be difficult to foreſee that his conduct as to the general tenor of it will be ſo too : and as this would be the caſe with individuals ſo by a parity of reaſon it would be the ſame with the body of the community made up therewith. Hence 'tis eaſy to ſee how intereſting a matter it is in times of public danger not only that the danger ſhould be realized, but alſo that ſome ſalutary means ſhou'd be deviſed for the public ſecurity ; and that the ſame ſhould be held up to public view in a manner that will be effectual to engage the attention and perſevering purſuit of all the members of the body, ſo far as they can have any influence——ſo far as any have juſt ground of complaint on account of public adminiſtrations, ſo far it becomes them to firmly adhere to all proper and prudent meaſures that may be adviſed as to what may prove effectual to obtain redreſs, and to remove the preſent calamity, or prevent the future danger ; and ſuch as will not do this for fear of in ſome meaſure differving their own private or perſonal intereſt,——can never be entitled to the laudable character of true patriots, however forward they may heretofore have been in popular pretenſions, ſhews and profeſſions of zeal for the public ſafety. Of ſuch beneficent influence no doubt would have been the NON IMPORTATION AGREEMENT, wiſely come into by the reſpectable body of the merchants and traders in this and the neighbouring colonies, had the ſame been univerſally and perſevereingly adhered to, and prudently conducted, by all that have pretended to intereſt themſelves therein. This method properly conducted, beyond all others, would have been in its nature the moſt innocent & harmleſs, and in its tendency the moſt effectual to redreſs the calamities which are injuriouſly brought upon us——'Tis therefore greatly to be lamented, that ſuch a departure from this agreement ſhould ever have taken place, as it ſeems there has by a conſiderable party, in one of our ſiſter colonies ; and what ſhall we ſay can be done to ſuch perfidious dealers ? Has not their moſt ſolemn engagements, and plighted faith been moſt treacherouſly violated ? Have they not departed from thoſe ſolemn engagements which they were moſt forward and zealous in propagating and ſetting forward, relying on whoſe fidelity, other colonies have boldly embarked in the ſame cauſe ? Can they now reaſonably expect that they ſhall receive any treatment from their neighbours, leſs prejudicial to their intereſt,————than what they themſelves have been the moſt forward to preſcribe as the juſt reward of ſuch perfidiouſneſs ? viz. the withholding all commercial dealing or intercourſe with them, unleſs they ſhall amply and ſatisfactorily revoke what they have done of this kind, ſo prejudicial to the important cauſe for the promotion of which they have pretended ſo great a forwardneſs themſelves ; this way of ſhewing reſentment ſeems to be the moſt natural and proper, as well as the moſt harmleſs innocent and unexceptional, and what the indignity offer'd eſpecially to thoſe who have ſteadfaſtly adhered to the agreement ſeems to demand.

PACIFICUS.

CONNECTICUT, July 20, 1770.

To the Gentlemen Merchants, and Traders in New-York, who have reſolved to break the Non Importation Agreement.

IN my laſt, I publiſhed the letter, from the trade of this colony to the chairman of your committee ; and informed you, of my deſign to write again on the ſubject——happy ſhould I think myſelf if ſome gentleman of greater ability and leiſure would undertake it——much happier were there no occaſion— To vindicate this colony, in reſpect to their conduct, in the non importation agreement, is very eaſy——There are not in the colony, more than five, or ſix gentlemen, who have made any inconſiderable importations from Great Britain at any time——Theſe were ſome of the firſt that promoted, and came into the non importation agreement among us, and have with the ſtricteſt honor abided by their engagement.——The other gentlemen in trade in the colony came early into the meaſure, and engaged not to import themſelves, nor to purchaſe goods, of any one in this, or the other colonies who did import — They have been ſo ſtrict, in the obſervance of their promiſe, that ſince their firſt coming into the agreement, it has never been violated: ſave in three or four trivial inſtances, inadvertently and inconſiderately done; and in every inſtance one excepted, public ſatiſfaction has been given, and the goods ſtored ——The exception, leaſt it ſhould be magnified was nothing more than a ſmall parcel of Tea; bought in Boſton for which no ſatiſfaction has been given ——The importation by Mr. Verſtille, is not under the ſame ſituation——He was in England, when the non importation agreement took place, and his goods arriv'd before any ſuch agreement had even been offered him to ſign; yet ſuch was the ſpirit, & firmneſs of our inhabitants, that they judg'd all, equally held, to ſupport a cauſe in which all were equally intereſted; as well thoſe who had as thoſe who had not ſign'd the agreement and accordingly his goods were ſtored. ——The ſenſe of our more ſubſtantial landholders, is fully expreſs'd in the vote of our general aſſembly, in October laſt; this body it is well known, conſiſts almoſt intirely of that order of men— They voted the thanks of the houſe to the merchants of this and the other colonies on the continent, for the glorious ſtand they had made in defence of the liberty of the colonies &c. &c.——In one word, all orders and perſuaſions, however differing, in ſentiment or party, united in this important reſolution—and eſteemed themſelves happy in the harmony which then ſubſiſted through the colonies ——When Rhode Iſland violated their agreement; Connecticut joined with you and the other provinces in cenſuring them, and to this hour have refuſed to hold the leaſt commerce or deal with them——Though quite deſtitute of goods and our traders moſt of them abſolutely dependant on their trade, for the ſupport of their families; yet no motion has been made for relaxing or giving up. on the other hand, it is the voice of all orders and ranks, that as every thing depends on our preſent conduct, we had much better be without trade, for a longer term than one or even ſeven years; than by breaking over our reſolutions, to give our enemies, the greateſt advantage, they in their moſt ſanguine expectations could ever have wiſhed for—— What will be our future conduct time only will ſhew.——True it is, when I conſider the large connections between you and us; and the ſcattered and diſunited ſtate, of our traders and ſhopkeepers, with the ſtrong temptation, which the proſpect of gain, held up in your very polite letters, now circulating among your cuſtomers, acquainting them with the large aſſortments ordered out, and at their ſervice; I am fearful of the conſequences——We all know at whoſe doors the blame muſt forever lye, be it as it may——As I propoſed in my former, a vindication of the part, which this colony has acted, in this important affair, I have been thus particular;—Though no accuſation has been ever laid againſt them; yet it may not be thought improper to form a proper contraſt, when the more ſtriking parts of your's, is held up to view; which with your leave, gentlemen, I ſhall now enter on.——It is a fact well known, that when you came into the a-

The K — obſer[illegible] ſaid, if he had bee[illegible] tion you wrote to the[illegible] to affi[illegible] the other colonies recommending the meaſure, and very worthily made uſe of every argument, to form an union thro' out the continent. You will remember, that juſt before that time, your importations had been uncommonly large, and your ſtores were then overloaded with goods——that you had large accounts open in this colony, and very great ſums due from the traders in it.——How far your intereſt was for the ſuſpenſion, of importation a ſhort time; in which you might make a general ſale, of your goods on hand; call in your money from the country; and by the ſtopping trade at home ſink bills ſo below parr, that the very diſcount, in your remittances would be a living profit, it is very eaſy to ſee——It is alſo evident your intereſt, independent of the intereſt of your country would prompt you thus far.——Nothing can give us ſo good a clue, to unravel the ſecret ſprings of mens conduct as a cloſe examination, where there intereſt lies, and a careful obſervation of their behavior, when it comes to be effected nearly——your goods ſold even the moſt unſaleable of them, to the beſt advantage, your accounts in a great meaſure cloſed; your money call'd in and remitted at a profit—what is the behavior now?——Every engine employed, to break your former ſolemn agreement.——This part of your conduct is ſuch a ſtriking comment on whatever proceeded among you; that nothing can be added, to place the whole in a more glaring point of light. You have however made one plea; the ſame which has been made by every tyrant, and for every ſpecies of tyranny that ever exiſted——Neceſſity——which plea is as well founded, and no better, in fact than the ſame made by any of the moſt daring invaders, or puſſilanimous betrayers of their country hiſtory has recorded.—This plea is to thoſe well acquainted with the firſt deſign, progreſs and ſucceſs, in your breaking the agreement, perfect trifling with common ſenſe——In May you propoſed a conference, declaredly to ſtrengthen the agreement ——when this colony had come into the meaſure, and Boſton, the Jerſeys and Philadelphia, had declined ſending, ſolely on this account, that they were ſo firmly convinc'd of the utility of the plan, they had adopted; and ſo determin'd on perſeverance that they tho't it unneceſſary, even to confer on a ſubject ſo plain, though ſo important——You then wrote us the 8th of June, deſiring us, in conſequence of theſe ſentiments, of Boſton, &c not to take any further notice of the affair at that time; as you are pleaſed to ſay——"There is no doubt but the Inhabitants of the City, will ſhew equal firmneſs." ——Where gentlemen did this pretended neceſſity exiſt at this time?——Or if its birth was ſubſequent, how came its growth, ſo monſtrouſly rapid, as to require in the ſpace of one week, printed advertiſements to be firſt circulated, and then the minds of the inhabitants to be taken; "without uſing further arguments on the ſubject, pro or con" which you are pleaſed to term in your letter to Boſton an infalible method?——(indeed like the infallibility of his HOLINESS it has its riſe from contradiction and abſurdity)—to require expreſſes, to be diſpatched to Boſton and Philadelphia, to acquaint them with theſe your propoſals, of retreating as you call it, or rather even of giving up the cauſe of liberty?—Did this neceſſity exiſt any where, but in the inſatiable avarice of a few opulent Merchants, it would have ſhewn itſelf firſt in ſome other quarter——Again, you the wealthy knew your inhabitants had too much virtue, to be ſeduced with their eyes open, as therefore you had at firſt deceived them, by pretending the parliament had taken a conciliating meaſure, ſo to carry the point in character, you pretended to take the ſenſe of the neighbouring colonies, before you reſolv'd finally; yet refuſed to publiſh to the people what their opinion and reaſoning on the ſubject was, expreſly deſired—Never was there on earth exhibited, a compleater burleſque on patriotiſm——The moment private gain ceaſes, & private intereſt ſuffers, found the retreat——Though ſure in proſpect, of miniſterial ſmiles, & caſting up from the preſent ſcarcity of goods in the country, your future profits per cent——And tho' you may with theſe views before you, ſneer at the animadverſions, that have or may be made on your conduct; yet believe me, there is ſtill virtue enough left on the continent to raiſe ſuch an univerſal hiſs, on your thus leaving the ſtage, as will never be forgotten.

America will yet be ſaved and I have no doubt thoſe virtuous thoſe honorable ones (and I fondly believe they are the majority) in your city will yet be able to perſuade you to repair the defection, of which you have been guilty; by ſtill more ſtrenuous exertions than ever, in the common cauſe of liberty, with much greater pleaſure (this happening) will every one help to draw the veil of oblivion o'er what is paſt, than to expoſe and cenſure failings to which human nature is liable in greater or leſs degrees.

I am &c.

A Freeman of Connecticut

Hartford 28th July 1770

To the Gentlemen Committee, appointed by the Merchants at Mr David Bull's in Hartford, in June laſt relative to Mr. Samuel Burr's Goods, purchaſed at Newport, &c.

GENTLEMEN.

I Had the benefit of hearing all that was ſaid on both ſides, in that matter, and well remember that Mr. Burr at that time would not conſent to ſtore ſaid goods; upon which you were appointed a committee to treat further with Mr. Burr, and if he remained obſtinate you were deſired to make a full declaration of the whole matter in the Connecticut Courant: and I think the very next day I was call'd upon to wait on you and Mr. Burr, which I did with pleaſure, and the only terms you would excuſe Mr Burr on, was, that he ſhould depoſite the goods in your care on the general principle which I need not repeat, and you were to give your receipt accordingly, all which was then agreed to on both ſides, and you abſolutely receiv'd ſaid goods, and held them ſome time, and now, gentlemen, it ſeems you have given up ſaid goods, which muſt ſeem very unaccountable, until I am better inform'd; I therefore for myſelf, and in the behalf of all friends to liberty, beg you will favor the public with the good reaſon, why you ſo conducted, which I hope you will be able to do to general ſatiſfaction, which favour I hope you will not omit granting in the next paper, to oblige your very humble ſervant,

The INQUIRER.

TO be Sold, a Quantity of good FLEECE WOOL, by NATHANEL BURNHAM, in Eaſt-Hartford for Caſh or Country Produce.

BOSTON July 23.

Yeſterday arrived here the Brig Naſſau, Capt. Smith, in 8 Weeks from London by whom we have the following Advices to the 23d of May, viz

From the London Gazette

Weſtminſter, May 19 1770

THIS day his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and being in his royal robes ſeated on the Throne with the uſual ſolemnity, Sir Francis Molyneux Gentlemen Uſher of the Black Rod was ſent with a Meſſage from his Majeſty to the Houſe of Commons, commanding their attendance in the Houſe of Peers. The Commons being come thither accordingly, his Majeſty was pleaſed to make the following moſt gracious Speech:

My Lords and Gentlemen,

THE ſeaſon of the year, and the diſpatch you have given to the publick buſineſs, make it proper for me to put an end to this ſeſſion of Parliament.

The temper, with which you have conducted all your proceedings, has given me great ſatisfaction, and I promiſe myſelf the happieſt effects from the firmneſs as well as the moderation which you have manifeſted in the very critical circumſtances which have attended late deliberations

With reſpect to foreign affairs, I have nothing material to communicate to you. I will continue my endeavours to appeaſe, if poſſible, the troubles which ſtill prevail in ſome parts of Europe, or at leaſt to prevent them from ſpreading farther. In all events it ſhall be my firſt and conſtant care to watch over the intereſts, and to preſerve undiminiſhed the rights of my people

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons

I return you my thanks for the ſupplies you have ſo chearfully granted for the ſervice of the current year, as well as for your attention to make uſe of every opportunity of reducing the national debt. The proviſion you have been able to make in this ſeſſion for diſcharging ſo conſiderable a ſum without laying any further burthens on my ſubjects cannot but be highly advantageous to public credit.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I moſt earneſtly recommend to you to exert, in your reſpective countries, the ſame zeal and prudence that you have ſhewn in Parliament for promoting the peace and the welfare of the kingdom: nothing can be more favorable to the wiſhes of thoſe, who look with jealouſy on the ſtrength and proſperity of this country, as the prevalence of animoſities and diſſentions amongſt ourſelves: let it therefore be your care to diſcountenance every attempt to infuſe groundleſs ſuſpicions and diſcontents into the minds of your fellow-ſubjects: make them ſenſible of my conſtant attention to promote their happineſs, and convince them, that nothing can ſo effectually ſecure their liberties, as the maintenance of every part of our excellent conſtitution in its due force and authority.

Then the Lord Speaker, by the King's Command, ſaid,

My Lords and Gentlemen,

IT is his Majeſty's Royal Will and Pleaſure, that this Parliament be prorogued to Thurſday the 19th day of July next, to be then here held; and this Parliament is accordingly prorogued to Thurſday the 19th day of July next.

Queen's Palace, St James's Park, May 22.

THIS morning between 8 and 9 o'clock, the Queen was happily delivered of a Princeſs.

We hear her Majeſty had a very favourable time, being only a few minutes in labour. Dr Hunter delivered her Majeſty.

Her Majeſty is, God be praiſed, as well as can be expected; and the young Princeſs is in perfect health.

May 23 The Duke of Bedford remains exceeding ill, and is tho't to be in imminent danger

In the courſe of the laſt ſeſſions his Majeſty went ſeven times to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to 209 public and private bills.

NEW-YORK, July 26

Capt. Harris, in 25 Days from Cape Coaſt, in Africa, informs us, That it was ſo ſickly in the Garriſon whilſt he was there, that out of ſixty-three Men, of which it conſiſted, 43 died in twenty-one days.

The laſt Maryland Paper contains an account of the Proceedings of another of their Committees of Inſpection in the Diſtrict under their Care, by which it appears, that they, as well as the other Committees of Inſpection in that Province are extremely careful and exact in examining the Invoices of the Goods that arrive; and that every Article, however ſmall, imported contrary to the Non-Importation Agreement, is immediately ſtored and ſent home for England by the next opportunity.

BOSTON, July 26.

On Wedneſday laſt the General Aſſembly of this Province met at Harvard-College in Cambridge, agreeable to his Honor the Lieutenant Governors Prorogation.

NEW-HAVEN, July 17.

Yeſterday there was a Meeting of the Merchants, Traders and other inhabitants of this Town, occaſioned by the late inconſiſtent Behaviour of the New-Yorkers; but we have not Time to inſert Particulars.

New-London, July 27.

By Capt. William Packwood, who left Cape Nichola the 4th Inſtant, we learn, That ſince the Earthquake at the Iſland of Hiſpaniola on the 3d of June, there has been a daily trembling of the Earth, not only at Port au Prince and the Villages adjacent, but at the Cape 150 Miles diſtant,——That the Deſtruction occaſioned by the firſt Shock at Port au Prince ſurpaſſes Deſcription, and any Account of it was forbid by the General to be publiſhed in the Gazette, leaſt it might too much terrify and diſcourage the Inhabitants, moſt of whom had taken Shelter on board the Shipping for near a Fortnight after the firſt Shock, but on a ſeeming Probability that the Shocks would ſubſide Numbers of them returned to the Town with deſign to rebuild their Habitations: however, on the 20th of the Month they had another Shock ſtill more violent than the firſt, which threw down the only five Houſes that ſurvived the firſt Shock, and ſo much intimidated the Inhabitants that it was tho't the Town would be entirely abandoned, and another built in a New Spot.

We alſo learn by Capt. Packwood, that the Town of Port au Prince was computed to contain 2500 Houſes, and was the Seat of Government: That ſince the Earthquake it was very ſickly there.——The Shock was ſo great at the Cape as to ſhake off the Sheathing from ſundry Veſſels; and the Anchors of others fetch'd Way.

LIST of LETTERS, remaining in the Poſt Office Hartford. N. B. Thoſe having no Town mentioned are all of Hartford

WILLIAM ADAMS, Eſq; Henry Allen, Eſq. Windſor, Ebenezer Buſhnell Lebanon Patt Butler at Goſhen near Lebanon Zichariah Bunce, Weathersfield, Capt. Daniel Bull, Capt. Edward Bulkley, Weathersfield, John Cheſter Weathersfield, Giles Cone, Haddam. Capt. Solomon Cowles Farmington, Dorothy Dart, Bolton, Dr. Dickinſon Plainfield. Col. Aaron Eliot Killingſworth, Miſs Nancy Grant Eaſt Windſor, Mark Hopkins, Eſq. Great Barrington, William Holt, jun. Windham. Silvanus Higgins Chatham Richard Hale, Coventry, Thomas Hauffman, Saliſbury. Dr Daniel Huntington Woodbury, Daniel Horsford, Hebron, Meriam Harper, Eaſt Windſor. Jared Ingerſol Eſq; William Judd Eſq; [illegible] Lewis Loveridge Colcheſter, Capt. Nathaniel Loomis Windſor John Miller, Joſeph Marvin Weathersfield, Thomas Newhall, Nathaniel Niles in Hartford in the County of Cumberland in New York Government Benjamin Peck Colcheſter, Alexander Phelps Hebron, William Robinſon Plainfield Capt. Samuel Roſe Weathersfield. Samuel Stillman Weathersfield. Nathaniel Stillman Weathersfield. Thomas Sumner, Hebron, 2 Lemuel Sanford, Daniel Smith Goſhen. Tho's. Skinner Hebron. John Smith Goſhen. Thad. Sturge Ridgefield, Samuel Safe Wintonbury, Samuel Smith Farmington. Hebbakuck Turner Coventry Daniel Williams Goſhen, Capt. David Webb Weathersfield, Dudley Woodbridge Eaſt Hartford.

Thoſe perſons who have letters at this Office, are deſired when they ſend for them to ſend the money for the Poſtage without which they will not be delivered.

RUN-AWAY,

FROM their Maſter, Benjamin Hale of Glaſtenbury, the Night after the 29th Inſt a Negro Man and Woman, named Robin and Jin; the Negro Man about Forty Years of Age, of a middling Stature ſtrait Limb'd carried away with him one dark brown Coat one Great Coat light blue two blue Jackets, one white Cotton ditto one Beaver Hat, 5 Shirts, 2 Pair of Breeches, and ſundry other Cloaths——The Negro Woman about 34 Years of Age of a middling Size, carried away with her, 4 Gowns one white one Chince one Woollen ſtrip'd, a Shalloon Quilt of a light Blue a Pair of Stays, and many other Things; they both ſpeak good Engliſh. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Runaways, and return them to their Maſter, ſhall have Twenty Shillings Reward, paid by

BENJAMIN HALE.

Glaſtenbury, 30th July 1770.

Strong, Esq

…he K — obſer…
…id, if he had bee…
th…

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.

A Letter from the Merchants Committee of New York, to the Merchants Committee in this Place, dated July 10, 1770, with the Anſwer &c.

GENTLEMEN,

IN Purſuance of the printed Advertiſement incloſed you by our laſt Expreſs, we are directed to acquaint you, that the Senſe our inhabitants has been again taken, according to the incloſed written Propoſal from our Committee, which was not finiſhed until laſt Night; and as there appeared a great Majority for importing every Thing, except ſuch Articles as are, or may hereafter be ſubject to Duty for the Purpoſe of raiſing a Revenue in America, and, in conſequence thereof, many Orders for Goods may be ſent by the Packet to ſail To-morrow or next Day; we are ordered to give you the moſt early Advice of this Event by another Expreſs, that if your Merchants ſhould chuſe to ſend any Orders, they may avail themſelves of a Veſſel, which we hear, will be ready to ſail from your Port for London, on Saturday next. Another opportunity will alſo offer from hence for Liverpool the ſame Day.

"We are very ſorry our late earneſt Endeavours to harmonize with our Brethren of Philadelphia, have proved abortive; but we flatter ourſelves the Event will abundantly juſtify the Meaſure adopted by the Majority of our Inhabitants, altho' they appear juſt now to be ſingular in their Opinion.

We remain, with great Regard,

GENTLEMEN,

Your moſt humble ſervants."

"To the Committee of Merchants in Philadelphia.

In the foregoing Letter was incloſed the following.

THE above Perſons are requeſted by the Committee of Merchants to divide themſelve in Pairs, one of each Party; and to take the ſenſe of their Ward for, and againſt, Importation; by taking down the Names of the Inhabitants, after reading to them the following Propoſition, without uſing any other Arguments, viz.

As by the return of our Expreſſes from Boſton and Philadelphia, we are adviſed by Letters from their Committee, that a Majority of both Places are for maintaining their preſent Footing:——

Is it your Sentiments, that we ſhould alſo abide by our preſent Non-importation Agreement; or to import every Thing, except the Articles which are, or may hereafter be, ſubject to Duty?

It is expected that every Perſon, who is waited on, will candidly give his Opinion for, or againſt Importation; and that the Committee appointed to wait on them, will make a Return of their Voices to the Committee of Inſpection at Mrs. Wragg's, on Monday Evening, the 9th of July, without fail.

By Order of the Committee.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11, 1770.

GENTLEMEN,

WE are ſorry to find, by your Letter of the 10th Inſtant by Expreſs, that a Majority of your City have determined to break your Non importation Agreement; a Meaſure which we think will be prejudicial to your own, and the Liberties of all America.——Arguments are now vain.——To Poſterity, and to your Country, you muſt anſwer for the Step you have now taken— The Diſpoſition you ſhewed on a former Occaſion, and the Letters we received from you, on the paſſing of the Act of 7 Geo. III. promiſed a different Conduct——We cannot even "flatter ourſelves the Event will juſtify the Meaſure you have adopted." You have certainly weakened that Union of the Colonies, on which their Safety depends, and will thereby ſtrenghten the Hands of our Enemies, and encourage them to proſecute their Deſigns againſt our common Liberty. We cannot forbear telling you, that however you may colour your Proceeding, we think you have, in the Day of Trial, deſerted the Cauſe of Liberty and your Country.

We are, GENTLEMEN,

Your humble Servants,

And aſſured Friends,

To the Merchants Committee of New-York.

The News being ſpread that the Merchants of New York, had departed from their Non importation Agreement, and had reſolved to import every Thing, except Tea, and ſuch Articles upon which a Duty is, or ſhould hereafter be laid, the Inhabitants of this City and Suburbs, and a great Number from the County, aſſembled at the State-Houſe, and having nominate JOSEPH FOX, Eſq; Chairman, entered into the following Reſolves.

1ſt. RESOLVED, THAT the Non-importation Agreement, entered into by the Merchants and Traders of the Colonies, is a ſafe, peaceable and conſtitutional Way of aſſerting our Rights, and if perſiſted in, there is Reaſon to believe it will produce the deſired Effect, and therefore ought to be conſidered as a Bulwark of our Liberty.

2d RESOLVED, That a Breach of the Agreement at preſent, cannot be owing to any Want of real Neceſſaries, eſpecially in the Northern Colonies, and that the partial Repeal of the American Revenue Act is no juſt Foundation for deviating from the Agreement entered into, as the Claim of Right to tax us, without our Conſent is ſtill kept up, and the Duty on Tea retained, as a Teſt of that Right.

4th. RESOLVED, That the Alteration adopted by a Majority of the Inhabitants of the City of New-York is a ſordid and wanton Defection from the common Cauſe, and that by that Defection they have, as much as in them lies, weakened the Union of the Colonies, wounded the public Character of America, ſtrengthened the Hand of our Enemies and encouraged them to proſecute their Deſigns againſt our common Liberty.

5th. RESOLVED, That all the bad Conſequences that may enſue to the Liberties of America, by their Defection, are chargeable upon a prevailing Faction at New-York.

6th RESOLVED, That as a Teſtimony to the World of our Diſapprobation of the late Meaſure adopted by that prevailing Faction, we will break off all commercial Intercourſe with New-York, ſo far as not to purchaſe of any of the Inhabitants of the Colony of New-York any Goods, except Alkaline Salt, Skins, Furs, Flax and Hemp, until they return to their Agreement, or until the Act of 7th of Geo III. is totally repealed. And we pledge ourſelves each to the other, that if we know of any Perſon attempting to bring into this City, or Province, any Goods from New-York, except thoſe above enumerated, that we will immediately give Information of them, to the Merchants Committee, that their Names may be publiſhed in the News Papers——Provided always, that every Inhabitant of this Town and Province, who has Effects at New York, may have Liberty to remove them from thence provided it be done within ſix Weeks from this Date.

Philadelphia, July 14. 1770.

The following Addreſs was handed about previous to the above Meeting.

To the Inhabitants of the City and County of Philadelphia:

GENTLEMEN,

YOU are come here this Day to determine whether you will be Freemen or Slaves. The New Yorkers have betrayed a Meanneſs and Cowardice in deſerting us in the preſent important Juncture, which wants a Name. May Infamy be their Portion! And may the Names of a Bute a Grenville, a Bernard, and a Yorker hereafter be ſynonimous Words. Let no Arguments from Neceſſity or Intereſt have any Weight with you, to lead you to tread in their Footſteps. ——Much more is incumbent upon us than ever. It is our Buſineſs to ſupport our ſinking Country where they have ſtabbed it. Let us remember that we are Penſylvanians ——and Oh! let us not ſully that illuſtrious Name, by an Act that will bring Infamy and Slavery upon our Country. The Eyes of all Europe,—nay of the whole World are fixed upon us. Heaven itſelf cannot be diſintereſted in the Event of the preſent Conteſt. Let us be firm ——let us be united,——and Succeſs will crown our honeſt and manly Efforts to ſave ourſelves, and our Country from Deſtruction.

A PENNSYLVANIAN.

Philadelphia. State Houſe, July 14 1770.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &c.

Lathrop & Smith,

Apothecaries in HARTFORD,

Have juſt Imported from LONDON,

A LARGE and freſh aſſortment of the beſt Drugs—Chemical, Galenical, and Patended Medicines (that may be depended upon to be genuine)—Spices of all ſorts—— Amputating Inſtruments in neat Shagreen Caſes ——Surgeons Pocket Inſtruments——Lancetts —Syringes——Bell metal Mortars, of various ſizes, &c. &c. Where alſo may be had, the very beſt of Tortoga Salt, by the Buſhel or larger Quantity—Barbadoes Rum by the Hogſhead or Gallon—Beſt Barbadoes Sugar by the Barrel or ſmaller Quantity—— French Brandy——Geneva (by the Caſe or Quart—and a variety of other cheap Spirits— Choice old Madeira, Malaga and Clarret Wine —Figgs—Raiſins——Tamarinds——Chocolate—Coffee—Rice—Oat Meal— French and Pearl Barley Sago—Powdered Salop ——Choice Hard Soap by the Box or Cake —Indigo——Verdigreaſe——Copperas—— Allum——Madder——Red Saunders—— Redwood——Logwood, &c. &c. &c.

N. B. Said Lathrop & Smith, will give the Caſh for good Merchantable POTASH, and SALTS of LYE.

Strayed or Stolen out

of a Paſture in Torrington, ſometime in the month of May laſt, a brown Mare, about 14 hands high, a ſtar in her forehead, hind feet white, paces and trots well, no brand as I remember, about eight years old. Whoever will take up ſaid Mare, and return her to the ſubſcriber, ſhall have Five Dollars Reward, paid, by TIMOTHY THRALL.

Windſor, July 3. 1770.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

MONDAY, AUG. 6, 1770.

Numb 293.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

Meſſieurs PRINTERS.

Pleaſe to give the following thoughts on the neceſſity, nature and ends of civil government, a place in your next paper, that you will oblige your good friend.

PACIFICUS.

CONNECTICUT, JULY 30. 1770.

BY civil government here, nothing needs farther to be underſtood, than the due and proper regulation of a civil ſtate or community, ſo far as it reſpects the rights, liberties, privileges or properties of the individuals of which the community conſiſts.—— The ſpecial end and deſign of ſuch a regulation is the vindication and ſecurity of thoſe rights, &c. to thoſe individuals, by an equitable adminiſtration of juſtice and righteouſneſs among them.——And though it can't be ſuppoſed that this corrupt degenerate ſtate of human nature can ever admit of perfection in any civil adminiſtration, ſo as effectually and under all circumſtances to vindicate and ſecure to each and every individual his juſt and equitable right, yet to do this in the beſt manner, is the great end of civil adminiſtration; and that regulation which approaches the neareſt to this, is the neareſt to perfection which the nature of things will admit.—Life, breath and being, reaſon, will and diſpoſition are the common gifts of GOD to mankind; and theſe are privileges which thoſe who enjoy, may claim as their own, ſo far as that none has any right to deprive them of them (unleſs forfeited) but he who gave them; and they may improve the ſame for thoſe purpoſes, for which eſpecially they were given, (viz) the acquiſition of all thoſe media of happineſs, which will conſiſt with the will of the giver. Silently paſſing over what is eſſential to the definition either of LIBERTY or PROPERTY, 'tis ſufficient for my preſent purpoſe, to take it for granted there are ſuch things; and that theſe are natural, and common to all mankind in a greater or leſs degree.——Civil government then is for a ſecurity to mankind of what is their own; 'tis for a barrier of protection, or a bulwark of defence againſt thoſe frauds, invaſions, violences, incroachments and uſurpations upon their rights and liberties, to which, from the degenerate, depraved, corrupt, aſpiring tempers of men, they would otherwiſe be obnoxious.—For the due management and conducting of this, there muſt needs be ſome RULES adopted, to which recourſe muſt be had; which rules conſidered politically, can be no other than the LAWS by which the community is upheld; which gave birth and being to its conſtitution, being the cement or connecting Stamina or bands which hold it together.——The laws then of a ſtate are only the general RULES according to which the ſame is to be regulated and governed. And the perfection of law is no other than ſuch a complete ſyſtem of RULES, as being duly attended to, will in the beſt manner ſecure the properties, and protect and vindicate the lives and liberties of mankind.——Should it be aſk'd whence civil law has its riſe? Or on what footing does it ſtand?——The anſwer is, that of right REASON; or in other words, the common ſenſe of mankind gives birth to civil law. So that it may be ſaid that the laws of the community are nothing elſe but right reaſon properly modified, adapted and apply'd to the nature, condition and circumſtances of mankind conſidered as members of ſociety. ——LAW then in its moſt extenſive political ſenſe is only a compleat ſyſtem, ſubſtituted for, that which is the general ſenſe of mankind as to right or wrong in matters wherein men have concern with each other as members of ſociety. Not in this any novel conſtruction, but has been and ſtill is the common underſtanding of all thoſe who make any tolerable pretenſions to an acquaintance with the nature of civil policy.——But then, how comes it to paſs that REASON and the common ſenſe of mankind, have changed the nature and force of law?——Anſwer. As it is moſt fitting that the laws and rules of a community, ſhould be conformed to reaſon, ſo the general practice, uſages, cuſtoms, examples, reſolves, determinations, &c. which ſince the memory of man, have and do ſtill take place in communities, &c. which were meant to be conformed to reaſon, have determined it to be ſo, as they are the beſt judges or dictators as to determining what is right and equitable among mankind, of any that can be had. Hence the truth of a proverb,— "Cuſtom makes a law." Thus the practical conſent concurrence and accord of mankind in general, give it the ſanction of law & adopt it as ſuch. The whole force & ſtrength then of law conſiſts in the weight and authority there is in the general voice and opinion of mankind in matters of right and wrong.— 'Tis then the authority lodg'd in the body of the people that gives force to law; and thence is the authority derived to the civil magiſtracy.——All mankind in a ſtate of nature with regard to prerogative are upon an equal footing; 'tis in the nature of things impoſſible that one man ſhould be by nature ſo ſuperior to another, as to have any right of dominion over him, or warrant to abridge or deprive him of any of his rights, privileges or properties.——True indeed it is, that A. may by nature be endowed with twice the ſtrength and power of B. and may juſtly claim this his ſuperior power and ſtrength as his own right and property, conſequently a right to uſe and improve the ſame for his own benefit and advantage, and thereby to make greater acquiſitions than the other can with his ſmaller advantages; but not in any ſuch way as will in the leaſt be injurious or prejudicial to the others intereſt; his power tho' ſuperior to that of the other, ought to be ſo reſtricted by right reaſon, that he don't avail himſelf thereby to reduce the other in any meaſure to a ſtate of vaſſalage or ſlavery——ſo to do would be tyranny and oppreſſion in a true ſenſe——How comes it about then that there is any ſuch thing as prerogative in communities? or that ſome ſhould have the preeminence or aſcendency of others in point of authority and dominion? Anſwer; this is altogether derivative; originating entirely from deputation, delegation or ſubſtitution, conferred upon them by the common voice or conſent of the community, either implicit or explicit, either directly or more indirectly. The community (or governing part of it) are always preſumed to be the original conſtituents of civil magiſtracy.—— That authority with which they are veſted they derive from the community, and have none but what is thus derived, and this is by the community thus veſted with [illegible] [illegible] the general good of the body.——As the power is originally lodg'd in the body of the people; ſo they have a power to act in a way of delegating or ſubſtituting ſome individuals in their ſtead, to act either in a legiſlative or executive capacity (ſo as beſt to anſwer the ends of government) thus conveying or transferring to ſome individuals that power and authority which was originally lodged in the whole body, and which each had an equal right to.—And thus their ſubmiſſion and ſubjection to the civil magiſtracy is originally a free voluntary thing. And thus the whole affair of civil government is brought about by a general implicit compact, and conſent, of the general body politic.

[The remainder in our next.]

LONDON, May 8.

THIS day was the drawing room of the Princeſs Dowager of Wales. Any perſon of a curious and ſpeculative turn, to make obſervations on the ſcandalous venality of the Age, need only to have taken his ſtand in Pall mall about noon; and he would there have ſeen the ſons and daughters of corruption eagerly thronging to the temple of Rimmon, to pay their adorations at the ſhrine of power. He would have ſeen Lord North, the Upſtart nominal miniſter. He would have ſeen that celebrated Junto, conſiſting of Lord Egmont, the preſident; Lord Mansfield, the ſecret adviſer; Stuart Mackenzie, the real miniſter; Gilbert Elliot, his deputy, and chancellor of the exchequer in expectancy; Lord Barrington the [illegible]; Martin Dyſon, and Jenkinſon, thoſe official ſpies and ſecond rate miniſters; together with the whole profligate ſupporters of all acts of tyranny, vengeance and miſchief. And, perhaps he might have ſeen, (if the breach between the Carlton Houſe and the Bloomſbury Gang is not yet wide enough to cauſe them to ſeparate) the Lords Gower, Weymouth, Hil'ſborough, Rochford, &c. who, together with the above mentioned gentry, from the famous double cabinet; ſo ſincerely abhorred at home, and ſo univerſally deſpiſed abroad.

It is reported, that the C——ll—ſt is already near two months in arrear.

It is whiſpered, that an appeal, of an extraordinary nature, is now actually preparing by the cheifs of the minority, and will be laid before the tribunal of the People in a little time.

It is ſaid, that A———n are greatly at a loſs how to act with reſpect to the colonies; ſome adviſing lenitive meaſures as the propereſt method of bringing them to reaſon, and to ſuffer their aſſemblies to levy taxes as before; others are for coercive means of bringing them to reaſon. A writer of this day in a card to Lord N——h, ſays, "ſend directly a fleet of men of war and frigates, and block up all the refractory ports of North America; do not ſuffer a ſhip to go out, but to their mother country, until they ſubmit to the legiſlative power of Great Britain. This, and this only, will bring theſe ſtubborn people to their duty."

May 10. The late diſturbances at Boſton, have opened the eyes of the Miniſtry, to ſee the fatal conſequences of childiſh obſtinacy, with reſpect to the making them ſubject to the power of the Britiſh parliament, without an adequate repreſentation; and it is ſaid has determined them to take off the remaining tax on tea, before the expiration of the preſent ſeſſion, contrary to their late reſolve.

A correſpondent obſerves, that, "our preſent government is a ſtrange mixture of mean indigence and profuſe expence by which none are benefited but the real enemies of the country. The ſervants of the h—h—d have been almoſt ſtarved, while the tools of a deteſted Junto were fed with the fatteſt morſels.——It were heartily to be wiſhed that a certain great lady in this country would follow the example of the King France's daughter, and ſhut herſelf up in a convent for ever.

Notwithſtanding it is ſaid, and generally believed, that the national aſſemblies will be prorogued on Thurſday the 17th inſt. yet we hear, from pretty good authority, that the neceſſary buſineſs will certainly drive them into the laſt week of the preſent month.

LONDON, May 18.

——We learn from authority, the next ſeſſion of parliament will be opened with matters relating to the diſagreement at Boſton; and that no material buſineſs can be finiſhed till ſome further accounts are received, which according to expreſs orders, will be tranſmitted with the utmoſt expedition.

May 16. Monday the Earl of C———m made a motion in the Upper Room for an addreſs to the K. to deſire he would diſſolve the preſent p———t. He ſtated the public diſcontents in England, Ireland and America; affirmed that the people had no confidence in the H—— of C———s, who had betrayed their truſt, and ſhewed from the ſituation of public affairs, the great neceſſity of having a p———t on whom the people can place a proper confidence.—All Arguments were in vain, and the debates having laſted till nine o'clock, the Court Lords called for the Queſtion! and put a negative upon it, 78 to 29.

May 17. It is reported that inſtructions are preparing for the ſeveral American Governors, for purſuing proper meaſures to prevent any diſturbances which may ſeem likely to ariſe in their provinces.

We are informed that the great trial depending between a noble Lord and a certain great Perſonage for crim. con. will be tried in the ſittings after the preſent term, at the King's Bench Bar, Weſtminſter.

Monday night Lord C——m and his party effected a political manœuvre which had like to have been attended with great ſucceſs; for when Lord N--th leaſt expected it, a motion was made reſpecting the Middleſex election; which ſo alarmed the premier, that the ableſt ſpeakers of the court ſide were forced to exert their utmoſt abilities to evade the putting the queſtion for near two hours; while in the mean time meſſages were diſpatched to every quarter to ſummon the abſent members, whoſe arrival at laſt carried it by a majority.

Sir Francis Bernard, Bart. has obtained leave not to return any more to his Government.—He is to have a penſion for life of 800l. per annum.

The patent for appointing a new Governor in the room of Sir Francis Bernard, was actually making out laſt week at the Secretary of State's office, in favour of Thomas Hutchinſon, Eſq; Lieutenant-Governor of Maſſachuſetts-bay; but on the receipt of freſh letters from that part of America, it has been thought adviſeable to appoint ſome other perſon of more determined principles.

Another ſquadron of Ruſſian men of war is expected to anchor in the Humber early in the month of June, ſeveral pilots there having lately been engaged for that purpoſe, who have already ſailed for the Sound, in order to be ready to go on board as the ſhips arrive there, that no time may be loſt in the proſecution of this important expedition.

BOSTON. Auguſt 2.

On Thurſday laſt the Houſe of Repreſentatives at Cambridge unanimouſly came into a Reſolution, there being upwards of 70 Members preſent to abide by their Reſolution in the laſt Seſſion, viz. "That it is by no Means expedient to proceed to Buſineſs while the General Aſſembly is thus conſtrained to hold the Seſſion out of the Town-Houſe in Boſton."

Laſt Week arrived at Marblehead, Capt. Glover from Gibralter, 6 Weeks Paſſage: There was at Gibralter a Daniſh Fleet, conſiſting of 4 Ships of the Line, 3 Frigates, and 3 Boms: They were bound to Algier, to demand Satisfaction for ſome Captures and Inſults on the Daniſh Subjects: A very large Number of Engliſh Merchant Veſſels were at Gibralter, who were obliged to wait till the ſaid Fleet were ſupplied with Water. They had put into Cadiz, but were refuſed Supplies.

Extract of a letter from Gibraltar, dated June 3.

"This Day Arrived in this Bay a fleet of Daniſh Men of War, to the amount of Ten Sail, which are going to take Algeir from the Algerines; for theſe People have made a great Slaughter amongſt the Daniſh Merchant-Ships."

Another Letter from Gibraltar of the ſame Date mentions, Eight Sail of Daniſh Men of War and two Bomb Ketches arriving there, and that it was expected that the Turks will declare War with all Chriſtian Nations, except the Engliſh; for the Ruſſians gain ground of the Turks daily; the Turks put to Death in April laſt 18000 Greeks, on account of ſome of the Greeks in another Place rebelling and turning to the Ruſſians.

Laſt Lord's-Day ſe'nnight the Steeple of the Meeting-Houſe in Hamton was ſtruck by Lightning.—The Exerciſe being juſt over, the People collected, as many as could in the Porch—The Lightning ſtruck the Iron Spindle two or three Inches below the Vane followed that as far as it went—then burſt out the South Eaſt Side of the Spire, ſplit the lower Ball to Pieces ript off the Boards and Shingles it got to the Ogee—then ran down the North-weſt Poſt of the Tower, as far as the lower Story—then took the Girth, from thence proceeded to a Brace, which conveyed it to a ſtud within a Foot of the North-Door of the Porch, againſt which Mr. Jonathan Shaw was leaning—it left the Stud, ſtruck Mr. Shaw's Hat, made 4 ſmall Holes in it, then ſtruck his ſhoulder ran down his ſtomach and Back, went down his left Leg, and burſt out at his ſhoes, having melted his Buckle a little—He lay ſome Time for dead, but is now upon the Recovery. Eight other Perſons were ſtruck down; but throgh the Goodneſs of God, no Perſons was killed.

NEW-YORK, Auguſt 2.

Capt. Warden in 42 Days from Madeira informs us, That His Majeſty's Ship the Tweed, with Lord Dunmore, our Governor, on Board, was hourly expected there from England, in his Way for his Government.

Saturday Night laſt the Rev. Mr. Whitefield arrived here from Albany, and Monday Evening preached in the Preſbyterian Meeting Houſe.

Extract of a Letter from New-Brunſwick, dated July 24.

"We are credibly informed, from Princeton, "That the ſenior "Claſs at Naſſau-Hall, have unanimouſly agreed to appear at "their enſuing Commencement, "dreſſed in American Manufactures."——How happy ought we to eſteem ourſelves, when we ſee ſome of our Youth, who will probably fill ſome of the higheſt Stations in their Country, when their Fathers have fallen aſleep, ſo early declaring their Love to their Country; and we hope they will meet with that eſteem which is their Due, and that many at this critical Juncture, will follow their laudable Example, in encourageing our own Manufactures."

New-London, Auguſt 3.

We hear that in conſequence of the perfiduous Conduct of the Merchants in New-York, a General Meeting of the Trade of this Colony is propoſed to be held at Middletown, the 21ſt of this Month; when it is expected ſuch Steps will be taken as ſhall effectually prevent any Dealings with the Yorkers for Britiſh Manufactures, until a general Importation takes Place at Boſton, Philadelphia, &c.

HARTFORD, AUGUST 6.

We hear from Eaſtbury, that on Saturday 28th of laſt Month, one SOLOMON HOLLISTER of that place, aged about 20 Years, as he was bathing himſelf with ſome others in a Mill Pond, was unhappily drowned.—He was the third Son of the unfortunate Mr. Timothy Holliſter, who together with his Son Timothy, in the Year 1763, falling a Victim to mercileſs Cruelty, was inhumanly Maſſacred by the Savage Natives in the Suſquehannay Country.

Laſt Week were Buried in this Town the Remains of Eliſha, Sarah and Abigail Burnham, the Father and two eldeſt Daughters; the Father died on Saturday, 28th July, the eldeſt Daughter on Thurſday, and the other on Saturday following, all with the ſame Diſeaſe—a Lingering ſlow Fever, attended with a ſtrange and unuſual kind of Malignancy.—As they were all Perſons of good Reputation, ſo their Death's are much lamented.——A Lad of the ſame Family, is now Sick with the ſame Deſeaſe. A diſtreſs'd ſorrowful Family!

Extract of a Letter from ——— to his friend in this Town.

"Now will the virtue of the other colonies be put to the teſt——Now is the time, for them to demonſtrate to all the world, their unſhaken regard for the rights of mankind, themſelves and poſterity — The infamous defection of New York, calls loudly on the neighbouring governments to redouble their vigilance in ſupporting the non-importation agreement.——If you and our other neighbours, will withdraw all connection with New York you will bring us to a ſenſe of our duty very ſoon for we cannot do without you and N. Jerſey, and beſure if any inhabitants of the city of New York comes your way who have been ſo zealous promoters of the importation, to treat them as enemies to their country, unleſs they can produce proper vouchers, that they were active ſupporters of the non importation agreement ——fail not——

I am with eſteem,
GENTLEMEN,
Your friend and ſervant,
A NON IMPORTER.

Shall N. York enſlave the whole Continent?

To the Inhabitants of the Colony of Connecticut.

AT a Meeting of the Gentlemen Merchants &c, held at Hartford, on the 4th of Auguſt, 1770 it was unanimouſly agreed,

THAT the Importation of European Goods from Great Britain, lately gone into by the City of New York, is in downright Violation of the ſolemn Agreement of this Colony, and of the neighbouring Provinces come into not to import until the Acts impoſing Duties were repealed (Duty on Tea ſtill remaining) and is an infamous Breach of their of public Faith, plighted to her ſiſter Colonies not to import, and is a Practice ſo deſtructive to the natural and civil Rights and Liberties of the People of America, that we muſt hold New York, for this perfidious Breach of public Faith in the utmoſt Deteſtation and Abhorrence. And they may be aſſured that we ſhall for the future, unleſs they immediately countermand their Orders, ſent for Goods, withdraw all Commerce with them, as being our and their Country's Enemies, as we eſteem every one who engages in Importation at the preſent Juncture of Affairs, and until the Duty on Tea is taken off. And Notice is hereby given to the Gentlemen Merchants, and the Land Holders in the County of Hartford, to meet at the State Houſe in Hartford on the 9th of Auguſt Inſt. at ten of the Clock in the Forenoon, in Order that Reſolutions more full and explicit may be come into and publiſhed upon the Subject.

Sign'd by Order of the Meeting.
JAMES CHURCH, Clerk.

NOTICE is hereby given, to thoſe who have encouraged the buſineſs of a Poſt Rider from Hartford to Northfield, that one year is now nearly expired ſince this buſineſs was undertaken, and that 'tis deſired and expected, that thoſe who have ſubſcribed for the News Papers, will at the end of the year, be in readineſs to pay their reſpective ſums according to ſubſcription ———SIX SHILLINGS has been the annual price of a paper, excluſive of Poſt-Charges—It appears from tryal made, that SIX PENCE per quarter, can be but a very moderate compenſation to the Poſt, for his time, charge and trouble, for the future, in caſe he ſhould ride once a week throughout the year, except from the beginning of November, to the beginning of April, when he will ride once a fortnight——For the future it will be expected that thoſe who ſhall ſign for the Papers in thoſe parts, do pay four ſhillings at entrance; and the other four at the years end. Such as have already ſigned, may expect to have their papers continued, unleſs ſpecial orders to the contrary be received.—Upon the above conditions, all may depend upon being ſerved in the moſt faithful & beſt manner.——And as the Printers at Hartford, are under the beſt advantages for collecting the moſt intereſting and entertaining news from every quarter, and purpoſe in the beſt manner to exert themſelves for that purpoſe, 'tis to be hoped that ſtill further encouragements will be given for the continuance of a buſineſs at this day ſo intereſting and entertaining to the public.

Hartford, July 30, 1770.

STOLEN from the Subſcriber of Farmington, on the Night of the 24th Inſtant, (out of a Saddle Room) a good Hunting SADDLE, almoſt new, and Lined thro'out of a deep ruſſit Colour, white flower'd Tuff Nails, with Iron Stirrups, and a Linen Girt, a German Serge Cloth Houſen, of an Aſh Colour, bound with Leather, and a Scollop'd Leather put above the binding and ſtich'd.——Whoever ſhall return ſaid Saddle to the Owner, and ſecure the Thief, ſo that he may be brought to Juſtice, ſhall have TEN DOLLARS Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JAMES WADSWORTH.

Farmington, July 25, 1770.

RUN-AWAY,

FROM their Maſter, Benjamin Hale of Glaſtenbury, the Night after the 29th Inſt. a Negro Man and Woman, named Robin and Jin; the Negro Man about Forty Years of Age, of a middling Stature, ſtrait Limb'd, carried away with him one dark brown Coat, one Great Coat light blue two blue Jackets, one white Cotton ditto, one Beaver Hat, 5 Shirts, 2 Pair of Breeches, and ſundry other Cloaths——The Negro Woman about 34 Years of Age, of a middling Size, carried away with her, 4 Gowns, one white one Chince one Wollen ſtrip'd, a Shalloon Quilt of a light Blue, a Pair of Stays and many other Things, they both ſpeak good Engliſh. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Runaways, and return them to their Maſter, ſhall have Twenty Shillings Reward, paid by

BENJAMIN HALE.

Meſſ. PRINTERS.

The following lines wrote by the late famous Dr. BERKLEY, Biſhop of Cloyne, on the proſpect of Planting, Arts and Learning, in America, pleaſe to inſert in your Courant.

THE Muſe, diſguſted at an age and clime,
Barren of every glorious theme,
In diſtant lands now waits a better time,
Producing ſubjects worthy fame.
In happy climes, where from the genial Sun
And virgin Earth ſuch ſcenes enſue,
The force of Art, by Nature ſeems outdone,
And fancied beauties by the true.
In happy climes the ſeat of innocence,
Where nature guides and virtue rules,
Where men ſhall not impoſe for truth & ſenſe
The pedantry of courts and ſchools.
There ſhall be ſung another golden age,
The riſe of empire and of arts,
The good and great inſpiring epic rage,
The wiſeſt heads and nobleſt hearts.
Not ſuch as Europe breeds in her decay;
Such as ſhe bred when freſh and young,
When heavenly flame did animate her clay,
By future poets ſhall be ſung.
Weſtward the courſe of empire takes its way,
The four firſt acts already paſt,
A fifth ſhall cloſe the drama with the day;
Times nobleſt offspring is the laſt.

Meſſ. GREEN & WATSON,

You'll oblige one of your readers by inſerting the following in your public paper.

THAT man is dead to every laudable ſpring of action, and betrays an inexpreſſible meanneſs of ſoul, who prefers the gratification of a ſordid appetite to the ſafety and proſperity of millions —But when the principles of men are out of joint, their reaſonings and practice will commonly be ſo too——hence avaricious minds ſtick at no meaſures for the acquiſition of paltry gain, and think themſelves warranted in ſucking out the vital fluids of their country.—Their inward cravings contradict the ſenſe and meaſures of the people: and this leads them to wonder what you mean by a patriotic diſpoſition.——The idea of colour, may as eaſily be conveyed to a blind man, as an avaricious ſordid wretch inſpired with principles of patriotiſm.——There are inſtances indeed, in which the blind have received ſight, but the itch of avarice is an incureable diſeaſe, "what is bred in the bone will never be out of the fleſh.—" Men of this complexion are often times confounded, and their counſels rendered abortive, by the vigilance and zeal of the people, but they are never convinced; —As well might an Ethiopian change his ſkin, as a miſer be perſuaded to act from generous principles.——The deluſory arts that have been practiſed to vacate the non-importation agreement, are inſtances of the truth of theſe remarks; and that principles of avarice are fixed and immoveable principles. —We have no room to queſtion the ſtrength and permancy of a principle that prompts a perſon on to violate the moſt ſolemn and patriotic engagements, and renders the mind inacceſſable to every ſentiment of honor and humanity. Indeed for a perſon who is puſhing matters to this extremity to pretend he has any feelings of humanity or regard to his country would be an inſufferable inſult upon the underſtanding and eyeſight of the people. The patriotic agreement of the merchants is too ſacred and ſalutary to be tampered with; and there are none but thoſe who would rejoyce to enrich themſelves with the plunder of their country, and to fatten upon the blood of their fellow men, that would diſregard meaſures with which the life and happineſs of their country are ſo intimately connected. ——But there are no miſchiefs, which this curſed principle of avarice will not produce; —It is that has created the late diſcord and diſorders at New-York; perplex'd the meaſures of the merchants, and cauſed that noble and patriotic building to tremble at the foundation;—It is this that threatens death to the liberties of this country; ſhakes the rod of oppreſſion over the heads of Americans, and like a vulture gnaws at the vitals of the Britiſh conſtitution. Hence it is eaſy to ſee that we cannot too carefully guard againſt the baleful effects of avarice, and that avaritious men are a nuſance to the public, and ought to be view'd in the moſt contemptible light, even as conſpiring againſt the rights and liberties of mankind; and at this juncture as doing an injury to their country, for which all their ſubſtance cannot poſſibly atone ——Men of this ſize, however inſignificant in other reſpects, are of conſequence enough to be deſpiſed on account of the important miſchiefs, with which their principles are pregnant; and it is the duty of all who have the intereſt of their country at heart, to look upon them with an eye of unutterable contempt, and to exhibit a convincing teſtimony that they are not below the hatred and diſdain of their fellowmen.

It is yet in the power of the people to eſcape the ruin which hangs over our heads, for tho' ſome perhaps in almoſt every town and ſociety, are eagerly purſuing meaſures incompatible with the liberties of this country, yet by the virtue and vigilence of their neighbors, the execution of their avaritious and deteſtable deſigns may be eaſily eluded. —If therefore the people do not exert their utmoſt efforts——call forth every patriotic virtue into vigorous exerciſe——and invent every conſtitutional ſtratagem to blunder the enemies of their country, in proſecuting their ſordid deſigns, they will be left without excuſe, and their ſtupidity and irreparable loſs be lamented thro'out all generations.

PHILADELPHOS.

From the Public Ledger, April 16.

SPEECH of Sir JOSEPH YATES to William Spiggot, after his Trial at Hereford for the Murder of William Powell, Eſq.

WILLIAM SPIGGOT, you have been tried, and upon evidence that leaves not the ſmalleſt doubt, have now been found guilty of the moſt wicked, moſt ſavage, and the moſt horrid murder, that ever ſtaind the hand of man——A cool, deliberate, concerted aſſaſſination!——without a quarrel to provoke, without a paſſion to incite, without a motive to tempt you, but the blackeſt that ever diſgraced human nature—a willingneſs to earn the wages of iniquity, the execrable wages of an hireling aſſaſſin. And how hardened, how determined the preparations you made for that bloody work! Day after day projecting the deſign, till at laſt, deliberately putting on the ruſſin frock and blackened face, you daringly entered the doors of the deceaſed; and in his own houſe murdered him, with every circumſtace of ſavage barbarity: yet he had never done the leaſt wrong to you, not the ſmalleſt provocation or offence. That unfortunate man is now in his grave, and in two days you will be as cold and lifeleſs as he. But how different your departure! By your bloody hand he was wickedly murdered. You for that murder will juſtly die: It is now my duty to pronounce that dreadful ſentence; an office which to me is ever painful. I feel for the melancholy condition you are in, who are ſo ſoon to die by the hands of juſtice; but how little did you feel for the poor man you murdered! Friday next, the day after tomorrow, will in this world be your laſt; but think of the moſt dreadful day to come, when you will appear before a far more awful tribunal, before the great judge of all mankind. Think how you will ſtand before him, covered over with the blood of your fellow-creature, whom you ſo wickedly murdered, moſt daringly preſuming to deſtroy that life which the Almighty gave, and which he alone had a right to take away. You have now but two days to live, and in that ſhort time have much work to do. I therefore moſt earneſtly intreat you to employ every moment that is left you in imploring God's mercy and forgiveneſs, that your Soul may eſcape that dreadful puniſhment which laſts through all eternity. At this Bar you muſt expect no mercy. The ſentence of the law will moſt certainly be executed upon you; and that ſentence is, "That you muſt be taken from hence to the place from whence you came, and from thence on Friday next to the place of execution; that you be there hanged by the neck 'till you are dead; and that your body afterwards be delivered to the Surgeons to be diſſected. And the Lord have mercy on your Soul."

LIST of LETTERS, remaining in the Poſt-Office Hartford. N. B. Thoſe having no Town mentioned are all of Hartford.

WILLIAM ADAMS, Eſq; Henry Allin, Eſq; Windſor, Ebenezer Buſhnell Lebanon, Part Butler at Goſhen near Lebanon, Zachariah Bunce, Weathersfield, Capt. Daniel Bull, Capt. Edward Bulkley, Weathersfield, John Cheſter Weathersfield, Giles Cone, Haddam, Capt. Solomon Cowles Farmington, Dorotha Dart, Bolton, Dr. Dickinſon Plainfield. Col. Aaron Eliot Killingſworth, Miſs Nancy Grant Eaſt Windſor, Mark Hopkins, Eſq; Great Barrington, William Holt, jun. Windham, Silvanus Higgins Chatham, Richard Hale, Coventry, Thomas Hauffman, Saliſbury, Dr. Daniel Huntington Woodbury, Daniel Horſford, Hebron, Meriam Harper, Eaſt Windſor, Jared Ingerſol, Eſq; William Judd, Eſq; Frmington, Lewis Loveridge Colcheſter, Capt. Nathaniel Loomis Windſor, John Miller, Joſeph Marvin Weathersfield, Thomas Newhall, Nathaniel Niles in Hartford in the County of Cumberland in New York Government, Benjamin Peck Colcheſter, Alexander Phe[illegible] Hebron, William Robinſon Plainfield, Capt. Samuel Roſe Weathersfield, Samuel Stillman Weathersfield, Nathaniel Stillman Weathersfield, Thomas Sumner Hebron, 2. Lemuel Sanford, Daniel Smith Goſhen, Tho's. Skinner Hebron, John Smith Goſhen, Thad. Sturge Ridgefield, Samuel Safe Winterbury, Samuel Smith Farmington, Habbakuk Turner Coventry, Daniel Williams Goſhen, Capt. David Webb Weathersfield, Dudley Woodbridge Eaſt-Hartford,

Thoſe perſons who have letters at this Office, are deſired when they ſend for them to ſend the money for the Poſtage, without which they will not be delivered.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

The Connecticut COURANT.

MONDAY, AUGUST 13, 1770. [NUMB. 294.]

(Remainder of Pacificus's Piece begun in our laſt)

THAT reverence, fear, honour, obedience and reſpect, therefore which is due to the civil magiſtracy as ſuch, does not originate from any ſuperiority, dignity or authority, naturally inherent in them, but ſolely from the authority, &c. with which they are veſted by their conſtituents: for tho it be true that ſuch are always preſumed to be endowed with ſuch natural qualifications as are ſo ſuperior to the generality of the body, as to render them, perſonally worthy of ſuperior reſpect, deference, honour and eſteem, yet thoſe natural endowments (tho' qualifying properties) are not what give the power or right of dominion; tis preſumed indeed that civil magiſtrates are even perſonally worthy of ſuperior eſteem and reſpect; this is very amply teſtified by the univerſal voice of the body who are their conſtituents: for what can be the language of their electing or appointing any one to the office of civil magiſtrate, but that the ſame is endowed with thoſe excellent, virtuous and amiable qualities of wiſdom and ſkill, goodneſs and integrity, juſtice and probity, as render him worthy of being intruſted with, and equal to the execution of ſo important a truſt —— And when they act in character they may with great propriety be ſaid to be worthy of double honour: but though the civil magiſtrate is in an eminent and dignified ſtation; truly honorable and reſpectable, as well from perſonal merit, as the additional dignity derived to him by office: tho' he has a deſerved right in character to claim from others ſubjection and obedience, yet all this is to be in a proper ſubſerviency to the good of the ſtate.——Upon the whole 'tis the good, the health and ſafety of the community, they are ſpecially to regard and not their own private or perſonal intereſts; and that whether they act in a legiſlative or executive capacity: in the former they are to conſult what meaſures, what regulations, what decrees, &c. may be moſt likely to ſecure and protect the liberties, privileges and properties of the ſubjects: in the latter, faithfully to judge and reſolve between party and party, &c. agreeable to thoſe laws which are adopted by the community, or their ſubſtitutes, as rules by which the ſtate is to be regulated and govern'd—Hence 'tis eaſily underſtood of what conſequence it is to the community, that thoſe who are inveſted with power of civil adminiſtration ſhould be perſons of eminent and diſtinguiſhing accompliſhments; with ſuperior capacities and powers of mind, to underſtand what in its nature, tendency and conſequences will be moſt ſalutary to the ſtate; as alſo with probity, fidelity, goodneſs and integrity to diſcharge the reſpective truſt, repoſed in them.——Hence alſo it is clear that civil government duely regulated is toto cœlo different from tyranny and oppreſſion, ſo widely different therefrom that its original deſign is for a defence and ſecurity againſt it; the laws of a community therefore are ſo far from infringing upon the liberties of the ſubjects, that they are the great bulwark of defence and ſecurity to them; due obedience and ſubjection to law therefore is what does well comport with the greateſt liberty and freedom of the ſubject, in the true and proper ſenſe of liberty and freedom; the laws of a ſtate therefore are by no means to be looked upon or treated as burthenſome, grievous or hard conditions, impoſed by an arbitrary deſpotical uſurping power with a deſign to impoſe an unreaſonable ſubjection, obedience or ſervitude upon free ſubjects; but on the other hand as exhibiting the general reſult and verdict of reaſon and the common ſenſe of mankind as to what is right and equitable in matters of a civil kind. The due exerciſe of civil government and execution of law, is as different from tyranny and oppreſſion as the reſult of mature and deliberate reaſon, differs from the dictates of an arbitrary aſpiring paſſion for perſonal greatneſs, extent of power, and dominion over others; nor is it a truth leſs clear than important, that true liberty is as different a thing from LICENTIOUSNESS as the due exerciſe of government and ſubjection to law, is from tyranny and oppreſſion; tho' at the ſame time how far theſe by many are view'd and treated identically or as one and the ſame, is left to the judgment of the impartial to determine. Be that as it may, certain it is that, as true liberty does well conſiſt with the ſtricteſt ſubjection to law, it can't conſiſt in as be dependent upon a liberation therefrom, not in mens being ſo diſbanded from obligations of regard to theſe rules which are the life and ſupport of the community, as that they may at all times and on all occaſions act as they liſt with impunity; and purſue the promptitudes and dictates of their depraved tempers, unruly paſſions, exorbitant luſts, lawleſs ambition and avarice in all thoſe methods of injuſtice, fraud, rapine and cruelty which can be ſuggeſted by principles of corruption and wickedneſs; and yet not be accountable to the community of which they are members, and on whoſe protection they depend for their own preſervation, and the ſecurity of whatever they can call their own; 'tis the happy privilege of any ſtate to be under ſuch laws and government as will prove the beſt defence & ſecurity to what they eſteem moſt dear and valuable; but what individuals in any ſtate can have any ſecurity of theſe things unleſs the ſame is ſubject to ſome laws and regulations? If men rely upon the protection of civil government for the ſecurity of their own valuable intereſt from the ravages of others, 'tis equally reaſonable that on their parts they ſhould acknowlege their protector by paying that obedient regard thereto which it as reaſonably challenges of them; and not imagine they have themſelves a claim of protection againſt the injuries of others from the very law which they think to violate and tranſgreſs with impunity, in acts of violence and injuſtice to others.—If A. has the protection of law from the frauds and injuries of B, 'tis reaſonable that B ſhould be equally guarded by the ſame law from the invaſions of A; nor can A have any reaſonable objections to alledge againſt ſuch a protection to B, though the ſame may be contrary to his own ſuppoſed intereſt and be an abridgement of what he may call his liberty, viz. a licence to do as he liſts—Certainly the conſtitution which A is under, muſt be very lame and defective, as well as partial, if it can't ſecure to him all he has a right to challenge, without allowing him with impunity to infringe upon the rights and invade the properties of B, and ſo deny him that protection which it affords to A, & which the former has as good a claim to as the latter. Nor is it ſo very eaſy to convince how A is propely intitled to the character of the true patriot, or is more a ſon of liberty than licentiouſneſs, for his ſtrenuouſly and zealouſly pleading the cauſe of liberty, when his zeal is diſcovered in no other way more, than in acting a part which will allow of no conſtruction more favourable than that of violating thoſe laws of the community, by which the true liberties of the ſubjects are upheld and ſupported, in infringing upon the natural rights or invading the property of B,—In a word: Reaſon, is the beſt guide and ſecurity to men conſidered as individuals.——Law, as members of communities. And 'tis but a poor conſtitution whoſe laws are not ſufficient for its own protection: or, that can't admit of thoſe meaſures being paſs'd into a law which are ſo.

PACIFICUS.

LONDON.

The following is his Majeſty's Anſwer to the humble Addreſs, Remonſtrance and Petition of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons of the City of London.

I Should have been wanting to the Public as well as to myſelf if I had not expreſſed my Diſſatisfaction at the late Addreſs.

My ſentiments on that Subject continue the ſame; and I ſhould ill deſerve to be conſidered as the Father of my

People, if I could ſuffer myſelf to be prevailed upon to make ſuch an Uſe of my prerogative, as I cannot but think inconſiſtent with the Intereſt, and dangerous to the Conſtitution of the Kingdom.

The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor then addreſſed his Majeſty in thoſe Words;

Moſt gracious Sovereign,

WILL your Majeſty be pleaſed ſo far to condeſcend as to permit the Mayor of your loyal City of London to declare in your Royal preſence, on Behalf of his Fellow Citizens how much the bare Apprehenſion of your Majeſty's Diſpleaſure would, at all Times, affect their Minds; the Declaration of that Diſpleaſure has already filled them with unexpreſſible Anxiety & with the deepeſt Affliction. Permit me Sire, to aſſure your Majeſty that your Majeſty has not in all your Dominions any Subjects more faithful, more dutiful, or more affectionate to your Majeſty's Perſon and Family, or more ready to ſacrifice their Lives and Fortunes in the Maintenances of the true Honour and Dignity of your Crown.

We do therefore, with the greateſt Humility and Submiſſion, moſt earneſtly ſupplicate your Majeſty that you will not diſmiſs us from your preſense without expreſſing a more favourable Opinion of your faithful Citizens, and without ſome Comfort, without ſome Proſpect, at leaſt, of Redreſs.

Permit me, Sire, farther to obſerve that whoever has already alienated, or ſhall hereafter endeavour by falſe Inſinuations and Suggeſtions to alienate your Majeſty's Affections from your loyal ſubjects in general and from the City of London in particular, and to with-draw your Confidence in and Regard for your people, is an Enemy to your Majeſty's Perſon and Family, a Violator, of the public Peace, and a Betrayer of our happy Conſtitution as it was eſtabliſhed at the glorious and neceſſary Revolution."

The Lord Mayor waited near a Minute for a Reply, but none was given, The Humility and the ſerious Firmneſs with which the Lord Mayor uttered theſe Words filled the whole Court with Admiration and confuſion; for they found very different countenances amongſt the citizens than they expected from Lord Pomfret's Deſcription, who declared in the Houſe of Lords, that "however ſwaggering and impudent the Behaviour of the low citizens might be on their own dunghill, when they came into the Royal Preſence, their heads hung down like Bullruſhes, and they blinded with their Eyes like Owls in the Sunſhine of the Sun."

N. B. The Writer of the above Account having given great offence to ſome Perſons by inſerting in a former Paper, that—Nero fiddled whilſt Rome was burning— and an Information having been filed by the Attorney General againſt the Printer in conſequence, takes this Opportunity to declare, that it was not his Intention to falſify an hiſtorical Fact, or to give Offence to better Memories; he hopes therefore it will be admitted as a Recompence, if he now declares, that Nero did not fiddle whilſt Rome was burning.

LONDON, May 17.

His Royal Highneſs the Duke of Glouceſter's bounty of 300 guineas was diſtributed yeſterday amongſt the ſerjeants, corporals, and private men of the firſt regiment of guards, now commanded by his Highneſs in proportion to their different ranks.

The collection at the rehearſal at St. Paul's has fallen 30l. ſhort of laſt year's, whereas the collection for proſtitutes at the Magdalen exceeds that of laſt year ſome hundreds.—What a portrait is this of the manners of the age!—What a reflection upon the diſcretion of the laity, or penurioſneſs of the clergy towards their Brethren!

They write from Gallipoli, that ten thouſand Turkiſh troops had lately arrived there, and are encamped in the neighbourhood of the city, to prevent ſo important a place falling into the hands of the Ruſſians.

A gentleman who has lately returned from making a tour along the French coaſt from Marſeilles and Toulon in the Mediterranean quite to Dunkirk, relates, that the account of their naval preparations in the principal ſea ports, have been highly exaggerated, and that he remembers the circulation of ſuch falſe and alarming reports having been frequently publiſhed from ſtock jobbing motives at the concluſion of the war before laſt.

From the NEW LONDON GAZETTE.

TO THE PRINTER.

SIR, July 30, 1770.

Pleaſe to inſert in your Paper the following Accounts from Wyoming, on Suſquehannah River, which will oblige many of your Readers.

BY letters from Wyoming, of the 18th and 30th of June laſt, we have advice, that two Indian Chiefs of the Six Nations on the 13th of June laſt came to Wyoming, to viſit the ſettlers there, ſent by a Council of ſaid Nations with a belt of wampum, to confirm friendſhip.—They had been informed, that the proprietary party had reported, that they were about to make war againſt the New England People at Wyoming; which was ſo far from truth, that the ſaid Council had directed them to go to all the ſmaller tribes and parties of Indians, ſettled on Wyoming, and charge them not by any means whatever, to be induced to take any part in the general quarrel between the New England Settlers, and the proprietary party—they alſo deſired the aſſiſtance of both parties to keep the Indians out of the quarrel——They were much affected with the difficulties ſubſiſting between the ſettlers and the proprietary party, and earneſtly requeſted that there might be no fighting in the affair, but deſired the white people to ſettle the matter as brethren.

They alſo deſired that their pacific intentions might be made known to the Governor of Connecticut, and that it ſhould be publiſhed in the public papers of Connecticut and Pennſylvania.

The aboveſaid Indians freely owned the purchaſe and ſale of ſaid lands to the New England people, and that the Indians of the Six Nations are well acquainted with the ſame, and acquieſce therein.——The ſame thing was alſo exhibited to the New England ſettlers in the ſummer 1769 by an Indian Chief, who was then ſent by the Six Nations to the New-England ſettlers on Wyoming, on ſaid River, to eſtabliſh a laſting and perpetual friendſhip with them. He brought with him a belt of wampum, on the ſeveral parts of which was a repreſentation of their ſeveral tribes and caſtles, which, after a long ſpeech made thereon, he delivered to Maj. Durkee, as a full confirmation of the friendſhip of the Six Nations to them: Alſo freely owning at the ſame time, that the New England people had honeſtly and fairly bought and paid for ſaid land; and he thought upon MANY accounts it would be better for them that the New-England people ſhould ſettle there and improve ſaid lands.

HARTFORD, Auguſt 13.

At a Meeting of the MERCHANTS and LAND-HOLDERS of the County of HARTFORD, held at the STATE-HOUSE in Hartford, on the ninth Day of Inſtant Auguſt.

ALEXANDER WOLCOTT, Eſq; Chairman,

IT is unanimouſly Agreed and Reſolv'd, That it is of the greateſt Importance to Ourſelves, our Country, and to Poſterity, to the lateſt Generations, that the Non-Importation Agreement, come into by the Americans, be cloſely adhered to, and preſerved inviolate by all; and that the Principles on which it was founded, were noble, virtuous, and truly patriotic; being the only effectual Expedient to procure a Redreſs of our Grievancies, and a Removal of the unconſtitutional Duties; and that the Reaſons for coming into ſaid Agreement at firſt, ſtill continue, and operate with equal or greater Force, the Duty on Tea ſtill remaining, as a Teſt of parliamentary Power, to tax America without her Conſent.

And that the Violators of it ought to be treated with all that Contempt and Diſregard which a perfidious Breach of public Faith and Treachery to their Country's Cauſe, juſtly deſerves.

And that it is adviſable, that the Committee of Correſpondence, proceed immediately to call a Meeting of the mercantile and landed Intereſt of the ſeveral Towns in this Colony, to be conven'd at New-Haven, on the Day next after the Commencement, to conſider and Reſolve on Meaſures proper to be taken to ſupport ſaid Agreement; and alſo, to take into Conſideration, the alarming Conduct of New-York, in violating the ſame: And that the Inhabitants of the ſeveral Towns in this Colony, be deſired to meet, and chooſe ſome meet Perſon or Perſons, to attend ſaid Meeting, fully informed and inſtructed the Sentiments of their Conſtituents, with Regard to ſaid Non-Importation Agreement, and the Violators of it.

Paſs'd in ſaid Meeting, Nem Con.

Teſt JESSE ROOT, Clerk.

PURSUANT to the above Advice given, We the Subſcribers, Committee of Correſpondence, do hereby give Notice that there is to be a general Meeting of the mercantile & landed Intereſt of this Colony, at New-Haven, on the Day next after the Commencement—for the Purpoſes aboveſaid. And the Inhabitants of the ſeveral Towns in this Colony, are hereby deſired to meet together and chuſe ſome meet Perſon or Perſons to attend ſaid Meeting, fully informed & inſtructed the Sentiments of their Conſtituents in the Matters and Buſineſs of ſaid Meeting aboveſaid.

Matthew Talcott,
Richard Alſop, } Committee.
Silas Deane,

The General Aſſembly of the Maſſachuſets-Bay, ſtill refuſing to do Buſineſs, unleſs removed to Boſton.—His Honour, the Lieut. Governor on Monday laſt, prorogued them to the 5th of September next, then to meet at Harvard College, in Cambridge.

NEW-YORK, Auguſt 9.

Laſt week Mr. Applegate and Mr. Abrahams, of this City, went to the City of Brunſwick in New-Jerſey, having with them for Sale, a Quantity of Pine Apples, Limes, &c. The People of Brunſwick finding them to be Subſcribers for Importation, treated them ſo roughly, that they judged it not Safe to appear publickly, and being unable to ſell their Fruit, a great part of it ſpoil'd upon their Hands; they were glad to get off privately to avoid the Effects of the People's Reſentment,—— which Mr. Abrahams was not ſo lucky to eſcape at Woodbridge, on his return, where he was much inſulted, and duck'd in a Creek, and was likely to have been worſe uſed it not made his Eſape. We hear that two City Merchants, Subſcribers for Importation, who a few Days ago ſet out on a Journey to Philadelphia, at Woodbridge were both heartily duck'd,—— but the Particulars we have not heard.

Run away from the Subſcribers

in Plainfield, in Connecticut, the Evening after the 8th Inſt. two Negro Men, one named Boſton, about 30 Years old, a thin well ſet Fellow, of a middling Stature, very black, carried with him one check'd linen Shirt, one ſtreaked ditto, one old fine Holland ditto, one Pair Leather Breeches, one Pair ſtreaked long Breeches 4 Pair Stockins of divers Colours, one old beaver Hat, velvet Wriſtcoat, ſnuff colour'd horn Buttons, one other ditto, ſomething worn, ſtrait body'd Coat, browniſh, a new Great Coat, browniſh Colour, trim'd with flower'd Metal Buttons.——The other named Newport, a well-ſet Fellow, not quite ſo tall as the Former, and about 24 Years old, red Broadcloth Waiſtcoat, crimſon trim'd, Lincey woolcey ſtrip'd ditto, a ſtrip'd tow Shirts, Frock and Trowſers 1 Pair Cotton Stockings ſeem'd, Pair mix'd ſeem'd ditto, 2 Pair Shoes, a good Felt Hat, two Silk Handkerchiefs. Whoever will take up ſaid Fellows, and ſecure them in any of his Majeſty's Goals, ſo that we can receive ſaid Negroes, ſhall have a Reward of SIX DOLLARS, and all neceſſary Charges paid by us,

ISAAC COIT,
ROBERT KINSMAN.

N. B. It is ſuſpected ſaid Negroes have got a forg'd Paſs.

Plainfield, Auguſt 10, 1770.

Strayed or Stolen,

FROM the ſubſcriber, living at Wallingford, on the 8th day of Auguſt, a brown HORSE, 15 hands high, if he has any brand it is Y on the left ſhoulder, trots and paces, he went from the ſubſcriber at Litchfield.——Whoever will take up ſaid Horſe, and convey him to the ſubſcriber at Wallingford, or to Mr. Miles Beach, in Litchfield, if he be ſtrayed, ſhall have Two Dollars reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, and if the horſe is ſtolen, he that brings the horſe and ſecures the thief, ſhall have Ten Dollars and charges as above. There was on the horſe a Saddle with a red pluſh houſen, a huzza, a pair of Saddle Baggs, with one Shirt, two pair Stockings, one Handkerchief, one leather Ink Caſe, one Caſcal Razor, with a Soap Box and Bruſh, if any of ſaid articles ſhall be found ſeperate from the horſe, ſo that the owner may have them, the finder or conveyer ſhall be well rewarded by their humble ſervant,

MILES JOHNSON.

Wallingford, Auguſt 11, 1770.

INNOCULATION.

Doct. Tappen,

BEGS leave to acquaint the Public, that for ſome Time paſt he has been, and ſtill is Carrying on that Branch of his Profeſſion, at Kingſton, alias Sopus in Ulſter County, and Province of New York; where thoſe Gentlemen and Ladies that will favour him with their Cuſtom, may depend on the moſt ſtrict and careful Attendance, and the genteeleſt Lodgings, at the moderate Price of One Dollar and an Half per Week for Board, and Three Dollars for his Medicine, Attendance, &c. ſo that in an Ordinary way, they may be carried Through the Opperation for TEN DOLLARS. This Method has proved ſo very Succeſsful, that out of 500 and more, that have had it here, not one has Died. The ſituation of the Place is very Pleaſant and Wholeſome, and I flatter Myſelf every one may find Company that will not be diſagreeable.

PETER TAPPEN.

Stolen out of the Paſture,

the Evening of the 7th Inſtant, a large ſorrel MARE, about 15 Hands high, natural to her Pace, white in her Face, ſix years old, no Brand. Whoever will take up ſaid Mare, ſo that the Owner may have her, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and all neceſſary Charges paid——And whoever will take up ſaid Thief, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's Goals, ſo that he may be brought to Puniſhment, ſhall have Four Dollars Reward, paid by me,

WILLIAM KING, jun.

Suffield, Auguſt 9, 1770.

Colony of Connecticut, Auguſt 6, 1770.

Meſſieurs PRINTERS.

As the conduct of the Houſe of Repreſentatives of the Province of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay, (which we eſteem one of the Bulwarks of Engliſh Liberty in North America) with reſpect to furniſhing Mr. DeBerdt with the proper Evidence to ſupport their charges againſt Governor Bernard has not been fully underſtood here.——Your inſerting the following, will oblige many of your cuſtomers, and alſo your old Friend and conſtant Reader.

Amicus Bonorum.

From the BOSTON GAZETTE.

IT has been obſerved in ſome of the London papers, that Mr. DeBredt the Agent of the late Houſe of Repreſentatives, deſired that the hearing of their complaint againſt governor Bernard before the King in council, might be poſtpon'd, in order to give time for him to be furniſhed with evidence from this ſide the water,—This I believe is true; but I am at a loſs for Mr. DeBerdt's ſolicitude about the matter, for two reaſons more eſpecially: Firſt, becauſe Bernard owns the moſt material charges alledg'd againſt him, which rendered the vouchers unneceſſary; and ſecondly if he had denied them, authentic proofs were to be obtain'd at the Plantation and other Boards in England to which the Houſe refer'd him.——There he might have had atteſted copies of Bernard's letters to and from the Earls of S——e, H——h, and other Secretaries of ſtate as well as the depoſitions which he had procured to be taken here; wherein all that the Houſe have charged him with, reſpecting the moſt weighty matters of the complaint, would have been made fully to appear.——The Houſe in their letter to Mr. DeBerdt expreſly direct him to obtain authentic copies of all theſe letters and depoſitions, which they enjoin him "to claim in juſtice to an injured people," and to make a proper uſe of them.—Moſt of the material articles of complaint, as I obſerved before, Bernard confeſſes to be true; and with an air which diſcovers that he was under no apprehenſion of being cenſured by his judges (of whom my Lord of H. was one) for doing acts which he ſays "were dictated to him——by his Majeſty's ſpecial command, ſignified by his ſecretary of ſtate".——In excuſe for, or rather juſtification of his attempt to overthrow, the conſtitution of this colony, and to have the people deprived of their invaluable Charter Rights, alledg'd againſt him, he finds fault with the Right of the two houſes to elect Councellors; by which means he ſays, "the Royal Governor is ſubject to the controul of the democratic council." which no doubt was painful to a Royal Governor, of true Stuartine notions of government; and he adds, "it is a ſolecism in policy as hurtful in practice as it is abſurd in principle, and is the true cauſe of the extreme imbecility of the crown in this government." My Lord of H. could be at no loſs for evidence of Bernard's attempt to deprive the province of this Charter-Right before; neither could any of the Lords of C——l doubt of it, one would think, after ſuch an expreſs avowal of it in their own preſence.——We would not willingly ſuppoſe that Lord H—— or any other ſecretary of ſtate ever order'd Gov. Bernard to recommend the alteration of the eſtabliſhed conſtitution of the province in one of its moſt eſſential parts; tho' he vindicates himſelf by ſaying, this is one of the acts, the doing of which was dictated to him by ſpecial commands "ſignified by his——ſecretary of ſtate";——Thus alſo when the houſe charges him with ſending over depoſitions to the Miniſtry privately taken, &c. he is far from denying it; but alertly anſwers, that the depoſitions referred to muſt be thoſe which "he may be ſuppos'd to have tranſmitted to his Majeſty's miniſters in obedience to his Majeſty's commands ſignified to him for that purpoſe"; he ſays, "he is ſorry that he has not done in that reſpect ſo much as may have been expected from him", for "when he receiv'd ſuch commands, he had no power to oblidge people to give their teſtimony", which no doubt he would have been glad to have had, with a power to have inflicted pains and penalties for a refuſal; "He found it difficult to procure voluntary evidence; and therefore could not execute the King's commands with that punctuality &c." Certain it is however that he did procure the voluntary evidence of ſome perſons; and if upon the whole one could poſſible believe that Gov. Bernard was ordered to act the part he did, as he declares, it is not rational to ſuppoſe he would be condemn'd, much leſs puniſh'd, by thoſe who adviſ'd to ſuch orders, however grievous they may have been to the people of this Province; for he himſelf properly enough obſerves, that in ſuch a caſe, the charges muſt be underſtood to be directed againſt his ——'s adminiſtration—The King can do no wrong—This is a maxim all acknowlege; but his Miniſters may, for which in the former reigns ſome were made to feel the vengeance of an incenſed People—An attempt to overthrow the conſtitution, to borrow the expreſſion of another, is the higheſt crime againſt the State—This bro't an haughty Stafford to an untimely death——Little Traitors will always plead the orders of the great—The Great therefore are accountable and puniſhable. If they have given them orders to oppreſs the people; when they are made to atone for their crimes, the vermin who have crept from the dunghill and ſolac'd themſelves under their ſunſhine, will retreat & rot in their native obſcurity.

In conſequence of this complaint of the Houſe of Repreſentatives, Bernard, it ſeems, is recalled from the government, tho' the Petition like the Remonſtrance of the great city of London is deemed by ſome people, to be ſcandilous.

RUN-AWAY,

FROM their Maſter, Benjamin Hale of Glaſſenbury, the Night after the 29th Inſt. a Negro Man and Woman, named Robin and Jin; the Negro Man about Forty Years of Age, of a middling Stature, ſtrait Limb'd, carried away with him one dark brown Coat, one Great Coat light blue two blue Jackets, one white Cotton ditto, one Beaver Hat, 5 Shirts, 2 Pair of Breeches, and ſundry other Cloaths.——The Negro Woman about 34 Years of Age, of a middling Size, carried away with her, 4 Gowns, one white, one Calico, one Wollen ſtrip'd, a Shalloon Quilt of a light Blue, a Pair of Stays, and many other Things, they both ſpeak good Engliſh. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Run-aways, and return them to their Maſter, ſhall have Twenty Shillings Reward paid by BENJAMIN HALE.

STOLEN from the Subſcriber of Farmington, on the Night of the 24th Inſtant, (out of a Saddle Room) a good Hunting SADDLE, almoſt new, and Lined thro' out of a deep ruſſet Colour, white flower'd Tuff Nails, with Iron Stirrups, and a Linen Girt, a German Serge Cloth Houſen, of an Aſh Colour, bound with Leather, and a Scollop'd Leather put above the binding and ſtich'd.——Whoever ſhall return ſaid Saddle to the Owner, and ſecure the Thief ſo that he may be brought to Juſtice, ſhall have TEN DOLLARS Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JAMES WADSWORTH.

Farmington, July 25 1770.

NOTICE is hereby given, to thoſe who have encouraged the [illegible] of a Poſt Rider from Hartford to Northfield, that one year is now nearly expired ſince this buſineſs was undertaken, and that 'tis deſired and expected, that thoſe who have ſubſcribed for the News Papers, will at the end of the year, be in readineſs to pay their reſpective ſums according to ſubſcription.—SIX SHILLINGS has been the annual price of a paper, excluſive of Poſt-Charges—It appears from tryal made, that SIX PENCE per quarter, can be but a very moderate compenſation to the Poſt, for his time, charge and trouble, for the future, in caſe he ſhould ride once a week throughout the year, except from the beginning of November, to the beginning of April, when he will ride once afortnight——For the future it will be expected that thoſe who ſhall ſign for the Papers in thoſe parts, do pay four ſhillings at entrance; and the other four at the years end. Such as have already ſigned may expect to have their papers continued, unleſs ſpecial orders to the contrary be received.—Upon the above conditions, all may depend upon being ſerved in the moſt faithful & beſt manner.——And as the Printers at Hartford, are under the beſt advantages for collecting the moſt intereſting and entertaining news from every quarter, and purpoſe in the beſt manner to exert themſelves for that purpoſe, 'tis to be hoped that ſtill further encouragements will be given for the continuance of a buſineſs at this day ſo intereſting and entertaining to the public.

Hartford, July 30, 1770.

The Connecticut COURANT.

MONDAY, August 20, 1770. [NUMB. 295.]

From the London Magazine for April 1770.

To the Benevolent Society.

LADIES,

I Cannot help conſidering the conduct of the American ladies, as the ſevereſt of all ſatires upon ours, and am unſpeakably anxious to redeem the honour of our name.

From conceiving their country to have been ill-treated, they voluntarily enter into the public meaſures, and deſpiſing the capricious which the ſex ſtand chargeable, nay nobly obviating the charge, advance with their proteſt againſt the importation of an article, calculated for their own peculiar purpoſes.

When I look upon this circumſtance, how do I feel the glow of indignation on my cheek, from the conviction, that not one Britiſh female, even in the moment of hoſtilities and invaſion, ever ſacrificed an article of frippery to her reſentment againſt the French nation! That in the hour of war and devaſtation, French barbers, milliners, &c. &c. &c. are the only trades people that meet with encouragement, and that the inſtant a peace opens our ports, all our ladies of ſpirit & fortune fly over to reimburſe by their extravagance, the country that has ſo nearly ruined their own!

I earneſtly wiſh you would take this matter into conſideration, and employ your pen for the good purpoſe of awakening us to a juſt ſenſe of our meanneſs and folly, and by degrees lead us on to glorious reſolutions: our own manufactories, with our own ingenuity, would enable us to be ſufficiently adorned, & above all things make us ſenſible what a figure we ſhould make in hiſtory for only denying ourſelves idle gratifications, and caſting off the yoke of French fetters, politely called faſhions, by which we have been ſo long enſlaved; I am Ladies,

Your humble ſervant, Camilla.

From the New York Gazette, July 30, 1770.

To the Farmers of the ſeveral Counties of the Province of New-York,

Gentlemen,

IS it not Time now, for you to rouſe from your Lethargy, and view the impending Ruin which hangs over your heads, ere it burſt upon you like a torrent, when you will be forever unable to extricate yourſelves from it?—My dear Countrymen, the New-Yorkers have betrayed us, betray'd us did I ſay? nay they have ſold us! and are now actually entailing the Curſe of Slavery on us and on our Children, together with all the Inhabitants of America, born and unborn!——I need not tell you they have done it to gratify an avaricious and luxurious paſſion, which reigns predominant in their breaſts. Ariſe, my Fellow-Subjects! ariſe unanimouſly and break the curſed inchantment, which otherwiſe will forever keep you buried in a ſcandalous inaction. Break all your connections with thoſe faithleſs people; I mean thoſe Importers——Withdraw all your produce,——ſtop your cattle and ſheep which filled their markets with ſo great plenty,——let your timber ſtand, from which they have hitherto been ſupplied with fuel, for a ſhelter for the birds of the air, who will return you their thanks in melodious ſongs: In a word, bring them to their duty, which I know is in your power to do.——You can live without them, and well too, but they cannot live without you. If you ſtand in need of any thing which you cannot procure among yourſelves, you may find ſome in New-York, who have not deſerted the glorious cauſe of liberty: Trade with them; but avoid an Importer as you would the——. Liſten to none of their charms, leſt they deceive you, as he did our firſt parents. The neighbouring provinces have declared that they will hold no commerce with them. The New Yorkers, have manifeſted by their conduct, that they regard none but themſelves; yea, that they are beings, unfit for Society. My countrymen, I conjure you by all that is ſacred as you regard your own & your Children's Welfare, not to have any Dealings with any Man, by whom they may be ſupplied with the fruits of the field, until they return to their duty. And if you do this, your Names will ſhine like ſtars of the firſt magnitude, in the annals of Fame. But if you tamely ſubmit to the preſent impoſitions, you will ere long be forced to groan under a load of taxes, which will be laid on your produce, but to no purpoſe.——You will then curſe your inactivity, at a time, when you might have baffled all tyrannical meaſures.——Be reſolute then—be firm—join the glorious patriots of America, in the cauſe of Liberty: Then ſhall we put it out of the power of Earth and Hell to inſlave the free born ſons of America!

Huntington, July 19 1770. } J. P. a Farmer.

RECANTATION, No. I.

I THE Subſcriber, have maturely and deliberately conſidered the pernicious Conſequences that muſt follow a general Importation, do, in order to prevent my Name being handed down to Poſterity with Infamy and Diſgrace, hereby teſtify my Diſapprobation of ſuch Importation, and heartily deſire that my Name may be ſtruck out among thoſe Perſons who ſigned in favour of Importation, & who were ſaid to be a Majority of the Inhabitants; hereby alſo declaring, that my ſigning in Favour of ſuch Importation, was owing entirely to the Miſrepreſentation of two of the Perſons appointed to take the Senſe of the Inhabitants, and to my being at the Time of ſigning too much in Liquor to be truſted with the Diſpoſal of the common Rights of Mankind. This public Recantation I do hereby freely make, hoping that it will partly atone for my late ſilly Conduct.

Dated this 27th July, 1770.

his
Charles C. Prosser,
Mark.

N. B. It is ſaid Mr. John Dowers, and ſeveral other Gentlemen who ſigned in Favour of Importation, are about making a like Recantation.

BOSTON, Auguſt 9.

One Day laſt Week a Soldier of the 14th Regiment going a Fiſhing in a Canoe from Caſtle Iſland, accidentally fell over and was drowned.

A very melancholy Occurrence happened Yeſterday at Lynn: Two young Men and ſeven young Women, all of the Denomination of Quakers, going off in a Canoe to a Schooner that lay from the Shore, in which they were going on a Party of Pleaſure, being along ſide the Schooner, one of the Men jump'd on board, and two of the women, in a hurry to get on board alſo, got hold of the ſide of the Schooner, which made the Canoe heel down, whereupon the other Women got upon the oppoſite Side to prevent its overſetting, this occaſioned the canoe to go off from the Shooner, the two Women let go their hold, fell into the water, and ſunk; the canoe however overſet on the other ſide, but the Man left therein got on her Bottom, catched hold of the five Women by their Hands and held them, the Tide carrying them down near a mile: The Man that got on board the Schooner, who was Brother to one of the Women that ſunk, dove after them, when both catch'd hold of him, but finding he could not ſave them, diſengaged himſelf and came up almoſt ſpent: There was but 1 Man on board the Schooner when the canoe went off from the Shore, he ſeeing the Perſons floating down with the Tide, got a rope and ſwam after them, faſtened one end of the Rope to the canoe, and taking the other end between his Teeth, got to the ſhore, and towed them in, almoſt ſpent. The Names of the young Women drowned were——Baſſet and——Wood: The Body of the former has ſince been taken up.

The People on the Shore who were of the ſame Company, had no boat to go off to their Aſſiſtance.

By the Lord Hide Packet, which arrived at New York, laſt Saturday, we have the following Advices, viz.

LONDON, May 29.

An addreſs and petition from the parliament in Ireland is preparing to be brought over by ſeveral of its members to be preſented to his Majeſty.

Extract of a Letter from a correſpondent at Paris.

"To the Liſt of the French Fleet which I ſome Time ago ſent you, and which you may be aſſured is exact, you may now add to it forty others from 94 to 84 Guns, the Duke of Choiſeul having purchaſed that Number of the late Eaſt India Company. The French Fleet at this Time conſiſts of upwards of an Hundred Sail, which may be ready for the Sea in a very ſhort time, and which can be completely manned in the Space of a Week.

Yeſterday ſome Diſpatches of great Moment were received at St. James's, from the Court of Peterſburgh.

There is at this preſent Time a larger Demand for Ship Cannon and other Military Stores, than has been known for many Years in Time of Peace.

May 31. The National Debt, on the 5th of January laſt was 128,999 036 l. ſterling; the annual Intereſt of which amounts to 4.595 940 l.

☞ Other Intelligence by the Packet muſt be omitted till next Week.

PHILADELPHIA, Auguſt 9.

Extract of a letter from Wilmington, Cape-Fear, July 16.

"Incloſed is our laſt paper; you will find we have received no late accounts from England. An expreſs went through this Province ſome days ago, with diſpatches from the governor, Botetourt, of Virginia, to our governor, and the lieutenant governor of South Carolina; the intention of which (as the man informs us) was to notify to the Southern provinces, that a number of Indians had deſtroyed 20 or 30 families on the back parts of Virginia. If this is a fact, we ſhall ſoon have employment in our provinces. It would have given us much more pleaſure to have heard of a war with France and Spain, than with thoſe Savages. Be ſo kind as to inform me whether the Sons of Liberty in your province intend to adhear ſtrictly to the non-importation agreement, until the revenue acts are totally repealed? God forbid the point ſhould now be given up. I hope our countrymen have more virtue and firmneſs than to bow their necks at laſt to the yoke, after making ſo noble a ſtand. Let us perſevere, and ſucceſs (I doubt not) will attend our endeavours."

NEW-YORK, Auguſt 16.

We hear from Connecticut, that the Tavern-keepers thro' out that Colony, have fixed up a Liſt of the Names of the New York Importers, in all their Public Houſes, and have unanimouſly determined not to entertain or afford them the leaſt Succor, Aid or Aſſiſtance, in paſſing through that Government.

On the 15th ult. Sir William Johnſon Baronet, attended by Sir John, Col, Johnſon, and Clant, Doctor Shuckburg & ſeveral other Gentlemen, ſet out for the Upper Settlements beyond the German Flats, to meet the Six Nation Confederacy, and thoſe of Canada, with ſome Deputies from the Cherokees, on many important Affairs, particularly concerning a War propoſed by ſome of the Southern Indians to the Northern Nations. It is ſaid that a conſiderable number of Indians are already aſſembled on that occaſion.

By Letters from London we are informed of the Death of Robert Charles, Eſq; Agent for this Province, at the Court of Great-Britain.

HARTFORD, Auguſt 20.

On Wedneſday the 15th inſt. as the Widow Merhab Nichols of this Place was at a Corn Mill, upon ſome Buſineſs with the Miller, about 5 o'Clock P. M. ſhe was on a ſudden ſeiz'd with a Fit ſuppos'd to be of the apoplectic Kind, after which ſhe was carried into a houſe that was near, where ſhe continued in a ſpeechleſs and inſenſible State till about Sun ſet, then died, in the 68th Year of her Age.

So extreamly ſevere has been the Drought in this and many of the neighbouring Towns, that the Standing Crops are greatly threaten'd with being much cut ſhort if not wholly deſtroyed——Many Farmers have already cut up whole Fields of Indian Corn for Fodder, there being not the leaſt Proſpect of any Ears.

☞ The Public are hereby notified, that the meeting of the Merchants and Landholders in this colony is to be held at New Haven, on the 13th of September next, the day next after the Commencement.

SHARON, Auguſt 2, 1770.

YESTERDAY the heat was very extream, the Mercury aroſe in the Thermometer, in a dead ſhade, to an hundred degrees, four degrees higher than blood heat: To day it ſtood at 98° and about 5 o'clock afternoon, came on a violent Thunder guſt; the cloud aroſe in the ſouthweſt, and directed its courſe to the northeaſt. Before the cloud was vertical, and whilſt the ſun ſhone bright & clear, there proceeded out of the head of the cloud, a ſtream of Lightning, and ſtruck the Steeple of the Meeting-Houſe, and would have doubtleſs, tore it all to pieces, had it not been ſecured by an Iron Rod, which ſerved as a conductor, to carry off the Lightning, ſo that the ſteeple received no damage. At the upper end of the rod there were three ſharp points, but the lower end of the rod, lay only on the ground, and the bolt which was deſign'd to carry the lightning off, inſtead of pointing in the ground, pointed out; the point of the bolt by ſome means being broken off, ſo that when the lightning came down on the rod, it made a terrible report, tore the ground down as far as the ſolid rock, made three large furrows, and rais'd the duſt and ſmoke to an amazing degree, inſomuch that ſeveral people, who were at a few rods diſtance, imagin'd the ſteeple was tore all to pieces——In about ten or fifteen minutes after the firſt clap, there happen'd another, and ſome ſuppoſe came down the lightning rod as the other had done; for it was obſerv'd by one of the ſpectators, that around every one of the pointers, there was an atmoſphere formed, as large or larger than the blaze of a candle, which continued the whole time from the firſt to the ſecond clap, but diſappear'd as ſoon as that was over——The reaſon why the lightning made ſuch a report, and tore the ground in ſuch a manner, was doubtleſs owing, to the lower end of the rod's not being well ſecured; for inſtead of three points at the bottom as there was at the top, there was not one, and inſtead of being in the ground, it lay above the ground; and it is affirmed by thoſe that have made the experiment, that it requires as many points to throw off the lightning as to receive it. However this may ſerve as a convincing proof, of the real benefit and advantage, of lightning rods——and ſome among us, who were not fully ſatisfied of any advantage they could be, or as to the propriety of making uſe of 'em; are now by this ſurpriſing incident, fully convinced of their uſefulneſs and importance——As the preſervation of the ſteeple and meeting-houſe in this place, was doubtleſs owing, (under a kind providence) to the iron rod, though no better ſecured than ours was.

To the Merchant's Committee of Inſpection in Hartford.

GENTLEMEN,

I Cou'd not have believed you had loſt that ſpirit of vigilance with which ſome of you at leaſt ſeem'd to appear cloath'd in time paſt, had I not been well inform'd you have of late ſlid over ſome things which properly fell under your inſpection, and can find no excuſe for you, except the late unaccountable conduct of your other committee, in releaſing Mr. Samuel Burr's and Merchant Cotton's goods, being purchaſed under ſuch glaring circumſtances as they were; all which is well known to the public, and after a great ſtruggle were ſtored in the ſtricteſt manner, and on the moſt ſerious occaſion, and not acquainting the public with their reaſons for the releaſe, though call'd upon in a public manner. Are theſe the reaſons, gentlemen? Methinks I hear you whiſper yes, though with a bluſh of ſhame. If ſo, with all my heart I condole you in your loſs of time and expence, the laſt ſeven months. In vain have you roſe early, and ſat late, &c. &c. if you have thoſe among you and thoſe too from which moſt ſhould be expected, you may well now at laſt adopt Lord North's principles, and calmly ſubmit to parliamentary incroachments, and remain quiet ſpectators of your loſs of all that is valuable, whilſt the moſt worthleſs tools you have, may be imployed in tranſporting goods over land from Boſton, Rhode Iſland, &c. Thus, then, your want of Pins, Tea, Callicoes, and a few Nails for one houſe, or at the moſt for two, muſt prove ſo fatal. Purge then yourſelves from your domeſtic miniſterial tools; then may you, with a good front, join your neighbours in the colony, in the noble oppoſition of New-York's late & moſt hated reſolves, which will oblige your's and the public's aſſur'd friend and humble ſervant,

A NON-IMPORTER.

Hartford, 10 Auguſt, 1770.

Meſſ. Green & Watſon,

Pleaſe to inſert the following Queſtion in your next Paper.

Queſtion. WHAT is the difference betwixt an Importer and an Indian?

Anſwer 1. An Indian drinks Cyder——an Importer drinks the Blood of his Country.

2. An Indian is an Enemy only to himſelf——an Importer is an Enemy to America.

3. An Indian will ſometimes fulfil his Engagements——but the ſtrongeſt Cords, and the moſt ſolemn Engagements will not bind an Importer.

4. An Indian not having the Means of Light, are not ſubject to any tormenting Reflections——an Importer is eternally haunted with Apparitions, and the Horrors of a [illegible] Conſcience.

5. An Importer, covered over with Tar, would ſhine with an artificial Luſtre——whereas the black Colour of the Indian is natural.

6. How the Indians came into the Country is unknown——but if Importers ſhould have their Deſerts, there would be no Witchcraft in determining how they would go out. From whence it appears that the State of an Indian is much better than that of an Importer.

THESE are to notify all perſons whom it may concern that the meeting of the company of Military Adventurers held May 24, 1770, ſtands adjourned to the 6th day of Sept. next, to be attended at the houſe of Mr. David Bull, innholder in Hartford, at 9 o'clock in the fore-noon.—And any gentlemen who have in their cuſtody any writings or books, which concern ſaid company, are deſired and expected they will return the ſame to the clerk of ſaid company without fail, before ſaid meeting.

By Order of ſaid Meeting.

DANIEL SHELDON, Clerk for ſaid Company.

Auguſt 17 2770.

WHEREAS we the ſubſcribers being appointed a committee, by the Military Adventurers to ſettle with the receivers of all monies due to the company, give notice to all ſuch receivers that they immediately bring in all the names of the adventurers that ſubſcribed with them, and an account of the monies they have received, and account for ſuch monies with, and pay the ſame to Captain Hugh Ledlie of Hartford, treaſurer to ſaid company. And it is expected that all the receivers, do come in and ſettle at or before the adjourned meeting in Sept. next, as we cannot go on with the buſineſs, nor ſettle the companies accounts in any regular manner, until they bring in their accounts as above.

HUGH LEDLIE,
DANIEL BULL,
DANIEL PITKIN. } Committee.

Dated at Hartford, Auguſt 17 1770.

Wallingford, Aug. 10, 1770.

LAST night Stolen from the Subſcriber 4 White Holland Shirts, 2 Womens ditto, 4 Lawn Handkerchiefs, a Holland Aprons——Whoever will ſecure the Thief & things, or either of them, and give notice, ſhall be well rewarded for their trouble and coſt.

SAMUEL TYLER.

THE Subſcriber engaging in other buſineſs, purpoſes to drop that of riding in about ſix weeks, and deſires his cuſtomers would ſettle with him by that time——The accounts will all be made up to Number 300.

WILLIAM STANTON.

Stray'd from a Paſture in Hartford, about five weeks ſince, a dark ſorrel HORSE, about 9 years old, about 14 hands high, natural trotter, a ſtar in his forehead, branded on the near hip with R I. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Stray, and return him to the Printing Office in Hartford, ſhall have ONE DOLLAR reward, and all neceſſary charges paid.

Hartford, Auguſt 20, 1770.

Hartford, Auguſt 18, 1770.

THIS is to give notice to all gentlemen, merchants & captains by ſea, who have agreed to the non importation, that William Brown, Weaver, lately from London, underſtands weaving all ſorts of linnen of the fineſt ſorts, ſuch as Hollands, Lawns, Cambricks, Stuffs, Cover-lids of various ſorts; likewiſe Sale Cloaths of all ſorts, as made in England from No 1 to 8—Likewiſe Dogg, Bedticks, Bagging, and many more ſorts too tedious to mention.—He likewiſe weaves Diapers of moſt ſorts and figures. Any gentlemen that will ſet up and encourage the ſame, may depend upon an experienced workman.

WILLIAM BROWN.

P. S. The ſaid William Brown was foreman and clerk to Iriſh & Johnſon, in the London manufactory, and Spittlefields. Pleaſe to direct a few lines to William Brown, at Capt. Phelps's Queen-Street.

Dover, July 28, 1770

RUN-AWAY From Jeremiah French, of Dover, in Dutcheſs County, and Province of New York, A Swarthy Complexion Man, with large gray Eyes, his little finger upon his Right Hand ſmaller than Common, about twenty five Years of Age, had an old Beaver Hatt, with a hole in the Crown, a check'd woolen Shirt, a white flannel Jacket, with black ſpecks in it, ſhort, wide tow Trowſers and bare Legged.—Whoſoever ſhall take up ſaid Man, and ſecure him, or bring him home to me, ſhall have FIVE DOLLARS Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by me

JEREMIAH FRENCH.

N. B. His Names is Jabez Herrenton.

We the ſubſcribers, being appointed agents by the General aſſembly, held at Hartford in May laſt, to enquire after, all, debts, dues and demands owing and payable to the governor and company &c. did, according to the direction of ſaid aſſembly, notify all concern'd to meet us at the State Houſe in Hartford, on the 2d tueſday of July inſtant, to ſettle and adjuſt their accounts, &c. And many perſons concern'd not appearing according to notice given as aforeſaid, we adjourn'd our ſaid meeting until the laſt tueſday of Auguſt next, to be held at the ſame place, when and where we deſire, and further notify all concerned to come & ſettle their accounts, that we may not be obliged to commence actions againſt them for their neglect.

JOHN CHESTER,
JABEZ HAMLIN,
WM. WILLIAMS. } Committee.

Dated at Hartford, the 20th day of July, A.D. 1770.

Juſt publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Printing-Office in Hartford, a Pamphlet, entitled,

The Viſible Church, in Covenant with GOD.
FURTHER ILLUSTRATED.
Containing alſo, a brief Repreſentation of ſome other Goſpel Doctrines, which affect the Controverſy.

Interſperſed with Remarks upon ſome Things advanced by Dr. Bellamy, and Mr. Hopkins, in thoſe important Points,

By MOSES MATHER, A. M.

Stolen out of the Paſture the Evening of the 7th Inſtant, a large ſorrel MARE, about 15 Hands high, natural to her Pace, white in her Face, ſix years old, no Brand. Whoever will take up ſaid Mare, ſo that the Owner may have her, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and all neceſſary Charges paid——And whoever will take up ſaid Thief, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's Goals, ſo that he may be brought to Puniſhment, ſhall have Four Dollars Reward, paid by me,

WILLIAM KING, jun.

Suffield, Auguſt 9, 1770.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

WILLIAMSBURG, July 19.

The Boſton frigate has bro't two Veſſels into Hampton road, which ſhe ſeized in Potowmack river; for want, we hear, of proper credentials from the diſtricts in which they took their lading, although no dutiable goods were on board.

The Magdalen cutter, Capt. Collins, is arrived at Norfolk from Halifax.

Norfolk, July 16. This Day arrived here the Sloop Molly, Capt. Valentine Wightman of Rhode-Iſland, laſt from Philadelphia. Having been refuſed to trade there, he came here to try our Markets; but, upon meeting with a cold Reception he returned immediately from whence he came. We think it our Duty to ſay that the Captain behaved well.

The Ship Sharp, Capt. Spies, is going up Potowmack to load with Tobacco. She has on board 24 Bales, 18 Boxes and 9 Caſks of Goods, which have been refuſed here.

Charles-Town, (South Carolina,) July 5.

It is now ſaid, that if the Non-Importation Agreement entered into by the Colonies on this Continent (except Georgia) ſhould fail to have that Effect, which alone can reſtore trade and Confidence between them and Great-Britain, and by which the latter muſt always be, in many reſpects, very conſiderable Gainers; they, the ſaid Colonies, propoſe to ſacrifice their commerce and Intercourſe with all the Weſt-India Iſlands, from the 1ſt Day of November next, until they adopt the ſame Meaſure, and heartily unite in every other neceſſary Step towards preſerving and ſecuring the Birth-right of Engliſhmen for their Poſterity,——and it is well known, that the Weſt-Indies may be very eaſily ſtarved, by withholding the conſtant Supplies they receive from this Continent.

STOLEN from the Subſcriber of Farmington, on the Night of the 24th Inſtant, (out of a Saddle Room) a good Hunting SADDLE, almoſt new, and Lined thro' out of a deep ruſſet Colour, white flower'd Tuff Nails, with Iron Stirrups, and a Linen Girt, a German Serge Cloth Houſen, of an Aſh Colour, bound with Leather, and a Scollop'd Leather put above the binding and ſtich'd.——Whoever ſhall return ſaid Saddle to the Owner, and ſecure the Thief, ſo that he may be brought to Juſtice, ſhall have TEN DOLLARS Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JAMES WADSWORTH.

Farmington, July 25, 1770.

NOTICE is hereby given, to thoſe who have encouraged the buſineſs of a Poſt Rider from Hartford to Northfield, that one year is now nearly expired ſince this buſineſs was undertaken, and that 'tis deſired and expected, that thoſe who have ſubſcribed for the News Papers, will at the end of the year, be in readineſs to pay their reſpective ſums according to ſubſcription—SIX SHILLINGS has been the annual price of a paper, excluſive of Poſt-Charges—It appears from tryal made, that SIX PENCE per quarter, can be but a very moderate compenſation to the Poſt, for his time, charge and trouble, for the future, in caſe he ſhould ride once a week throughout the year, except from the beginning of November, to the beginning of April, when he will ride once afortnight——For the future it will be expected that thoſe who ſhall ſign for the Papers in thoſe parts, do pay four ſhillings at entrance; and the other four at the years end. Such as have already ſigned may expect to have their papers continued, unleſs ſpecial orders to the contrary be received.—Upon the above conditions, all may depend upon being ſerved in the moſt faithful & beſt manner.——And as the Printers at Hartford, are under the beſt advantages for collecting the moſt intereſting and entertaining news from every quarter, and purpoſe in the beſt manner to exert themſelves for that purpoſe, 'tis to be hoped that ſtill further encouragement will be given for the continuance of a buſineſs at this day ſo intereſting and entertaining to the public.

Hartford, July 30, 1770.

Strayed or Stolen,

FROM the ſubſcriber, living at Wallingford, on the 8th day of Auguſt, a brown HORSE, 15 hands high, if he has any brand it is on the left ſhoulder, trots and paces, he went from the ſubſcriber at Litchfield.——Whoever will take up ſaid Horſe, and convey him to the ſubſcriber at Wallingford, or to Mr. Miles Beach, in Litchfield, if he be ſtrayed, ſhall have Two Dollars reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, and if the horſe is ſtolen, he that brings the horſe and ſecures the thief, ſhall have Ten Dollars and charges as above. There was on the horſe a Saddle with a red pluſh houſen, a huzza, a pair of Saddle Baggs, with one Shirt, two pair Stockings, one Handkerchief, one leather Ink Caſe, one Caſeal Razor, with a Soap Box and Bruſh, if any of ſaid articles ſhall be found ſeperate from the horſe, ſo that the owner may have them, the finder or conveyer ſhall be well rewarded by their humble ſervant,

MILES JOHNSON.

Wallingford, Auguſt 11, 1770.

INNOCULATION.

Doct. Tappen,

BEGS leave to acquaint the Public, that for ſome Time paſt he has been, and ſtill is Carrying on that Branch of his Profeſſion, at Kingſton, alias Sopus in Ulſter County, and Province of New York; where thoſe Gentlemen and Ladies, that will favour him with their Cuſtom, may depend on the moſt ſtrict and careful Attendance, and the genteeleſt Lodgings, at the moderate Price of One Dollar and an Half per Week for Board, and Three Dollars for his Medicine, Attendance, &c. ſo that in an Ordinary way, they may be carried Through the Opperation for TEN DOLLARS. This Method has proved ſo very Succeſsful, that out of 500 and more, that have had it here, not one has Died. The ſituation of the Place is very Pleaſant and Wholeſome, and I flatter Myſelf every one may find Company that will not be diſagreeable.

PETER TAPPEN.

Run away from the Subſcribers

in Plainfield, in Connecticut, the Evening after the 8th Inſt. two Negro Men, one named Boſton, about 30 Years old, a thin well ſet Fellow, of a middling Stature, very black, carried with him one check'd linen ſhirt, one ſtreaked ditto, one old fine Holland ditto, one Pair Leather Breeches, one Pair ſtreaked long Breeches, 4 Pair Stockins of divers Colours, one old beaver Hat, velvet Waiſtcoat, ſnuff colour'd horn Buttons, one other ditto, ſomething worn, ſtrait body'd Coat, browniſh, a new Great Coat, browniſh Colour, trim'd with flower'd Metal Buttons.——The other named Newport, a well ſet Fellow, not quite ſo tall as the Former, and about 24 Years old, red Broadcloth Waiſtcoat, crimſon trim'd, Lincey wooley ſtrip'd ditto, 2 ſtrip'd tow Shirts, Frock and Trowſers 1 Pair Cotton Stockings ſeem'd, Pair mix'd ſeem'd ditto, 2 Pair Shoes, a good Felt Hat, two Silk Handkerchiefs. Whoever will take up ſaid Fellows, and ſecure them in any of his Majeſty's Goals, ſo that we can receive ſaid Negroes, ſhall have a Reward of SIX DOLLARS, and all neceſſary Charges paid by us,

ISAAC COIT,
ROBERT KINSMAN.

N. B. It is ſuſpected ſaid Negroes have got a forg'd Paſs.

Plainfield, Auguſt 10, 1770.

The Connecticut COURANT

2

MONDAY, AUGUST 27, 1770. [NUMB. 296.]

Ez. Strong

From the BOSTON GAZETTE,

Meſſs. EDES & GILL,

LET us recollect what it was that fired the reſentment of the Americans againſt, the Stamp act and the Stamp officers. Was it not becauſe their money was to have been taken out of their pockets without their conſent? Did they not then think that the ax was laid at the very root of all their liberties, juſtly concluding, that no man could be free from the moment his property was to be controul'd by the arbitary will of another? Where then is the mighty odds, between the ſtate which the ſtamp act would have brought us into, and the ſtate we are now in? Is not our property as much controul'd by the acts of parliament of the 4th and 7th of Geo. III, now in full force. I mean the molaſſes act, and tea act, as it would have been by the ſtamp act? Are the Commiſſioners of the American board of cuſtoms and their numerous train of dependents, a more harmleſs ſet of creatures than the ſtamp maſters and theirs would have been? Tell me, what difference there is between theſe acts and that? Were they not all fram'd and deſign'd for the ſame purpoſe, of giving and granting our money without even aſking our leave, as if we were not the proper owners of what we have honeſtly earn'd, and many of us with the ſweat of our brows? Is not our money, which is the heart's blood of our buſineſs, and which gives motion to every ſpring, alacrity to every heart and dexterity to every hand employed in the various arts, as plentifully running through every vein, by the force of theſe acts, as it would have done, if the ſtamp act had been executed? Can you conceive any real difference in things, or, is not the difference in names only?——Theſe are very ſerious and alarming queſtions.

When the deteſtable ſtamp-act was in being, the merchants of New York voluntarily enter'd into an agreement among themſelves; and even before it could be communicated to the other colonies, they generouſly reſolv'd to ſacrifice the temporary profits of their trade, for the ſake of ſecuring their rights as men and citizens. The ſiſter colonies were inſpired by their patriotick example, and purſued the ſame meaſure. Every one can remember how far this operated towards the repeal of the act, and thereby the ſaving America from the ruin which is threatened.

I am far from thinking however, that the act would have long remained in force, if that meaſure had never been taken; for the colonies were too intelligent as well as too numerous and I will add, too powerful, to ſubmit to any law, unconſtitutional and unnatural as that was, and big with deſtruction. They very well know, that neither the British parliament, nor any parliament under Heaven, had the leaſt ſhadow of right or authority to ſubject them to the payment of a revenue without their conſent. They therefore ſpurnd at the act; and as one man, united in driving the ignominious taſk maſters out of their political exiſtence, as the chaff is driven before the tempeſt. They reſented from the bottom of their hearts, the indignity offer'd to them, as free born ſubjects; and before the reptile vermin began to crawl, they ſtamp'd them into atoms. Such was their indignation againſt thoſe who were appointed, to hold the iron rod over them, and who were baſe enough to accept the appointment, that the people, who knew that all laws ought to be calculated for their good; and forever form the beſt judgment and purſue the beſt meaſures when their rights are invaded by pernicious laws; who can at all times maintain their own freedom or die in the attempt, the juſtly incenſed people awoke and rous'd themſelves, like the Lion hungry for prey, and as it were in an inſtant, brought the trembling miſcreants to a reſignation of the pretended power. Such was the ſpirit at that time; and this, I have always thought, was mightily influential in repealing the ſtamp act.

But what then would open a new ſcene of confuſion and blood, if it can poſſibly be avoided, conſiſtent with the ſecurity of our ſacred Rights?——It was to prevent this, that the merchants of Boſton propos'd, that the ſalutary plan of non-importation from Great Britain might again take place, till both the revenue acts ſhould be repealed.——The ſouthern colonies choſe for the preſent to confine it to the act impoſing duties on paper glaſs, painter's colours and tea——Boſton acquieſced, and all agreed, except the ſmall colonies of New Hampſhire and Rhode Iſland and plighted their faith to each other that they would not import till the ſaid act ſhould be totally repealed.——All have religiouſly adhered to their agreement beyond the moſt ſanguine expectation, except New York—The merchants of New-York, who ſtood foremoſt in the time of the ſtamp act ſome of them at leaſt to their immortal ſhame and infamy, have ever been the firſt to break the ſolemn agreement,——an agreement which promis'd the happy effect deſign'd by it, and upon which the fate of millions unborn ſeems to be ſuſpended, or the lives of multitudes at ſome time hereafter, in the fierce conteſt for liberty; for I cannot think the people of America will tamely relinquiſh their liberties——I ſay, ſome of the merchants of New York, becauſe I know all have not been gilty of this perfidy.——The reſt it is to be hoped will make a ſtand againſt their baneful influence, whatever artful and unmanly ſteps they may have taken to enſnare their honeſt and well meaning fellow-citizens, who in general, are as ſenſible as any people on the continent, but for once have been fatally too credulous——The leaſt recollection will open their eyes to ſee their miſtake——And then I am perſuaded, the city and province of New-York, who have heretofore diſcovered a laudible zeal in the common cauſe, will again act their part with firmneſs and prudence—What will it advantage a man if he imports the whole world and looſes his cuſtomers? Will G. G. and a few tories, inſure them ſucceſs?——Will the myrmidons, which we have happily got rid of, be employed to force them to purchaſe the goods, which the favourites and tools of the miniſtry may import in conſequence of an unpardonable breach of truſt? No. It is in the power of the people of New York, and GOD, be praiſed, of the people of the continent, by REFUSING TO PURCHASE, the baubles brought from the Iſland of Britain to prevent their future importation: And in doing this, they will ſave their money and their country at once.

What then is to be done on this event? I will not call it alarming; for the deſigned importations at New-York, even ſhould they be as general as they would fain have us believe, will be trifling in compariſon with the whole continent—Let the merchants in every other colony (and even Rhode-Iſland and New Hamſhire we hear are coming into the agreement) be the more firm and determin'd——If they follow the evil example of New York, they will do the very thing which the enemies of America are now hoping for. Inſtead of the leaſt abatement of their zeal, let it ſtill wax warmer and warmer. And ſo long as they are in earneſt, without wavering, in the full execution of their well laid plan, let them have the voluntary, the cheerful and the powerful aid of the BODY of the people. But, if any of them ſhould even appear to deſert the noble cauſe of the country and of poſterity, which GOD forbid!) Let them, like the parricides at New-York be diſpis'd, hated, deteſted, and handed down to all future ages, as the betrayers of their country—at the very juncture when ſhe expected complete ſalvation from their virtue.

AN AMERICAN.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

WIL
The B
Ham

(Further Intelligence by the Packet.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 3.

SINCE the inrodes the Ruſſians have made into the Morea, &c. our army hath been reinforced by 3000 men from Aſia, and conſiſts now of 150 000 men.

Three Tartars arrived here the 14th and 17th ult. diſpatched by the Pacha of Morea, with advice, that the inhabitants of that Peninſula had revolted; that the Pacha had marched at the head of 15,000 men, and had driven them to the mountains; but that the revolters being reinforced, had come from their heights, to the number of 30 000 and had forced the Pacha to retire to the fortreſs of Napoli di Romana, ſituate in the Gulph of that name.

We learn that on the 24th ult. Ali Pacha having paſſed the Danube, at the head of 12,000 men, with a view to cover the workmen employed in repairing the bridges on that river, had been attacked and defeated by the Ruſſians, and that the latter had afterwards deſtroyed the bridges.

Naples, April 4. The Greeks have made a horrible maſſacre of the Turks in the Morea, ſparing neither age nor ſex in revenge for the behaviour of the Turks when they ſeized on that country.

Otrano, May. The advices received from the Morea, by a merchant ſhip arrived here, continue ſtill unfavourable to the Muſkovites. The Turks are yet maſters of the citadels of Coron and Modon, and the conduct of the Greeks, inſtead of favouring the operations of the Ruſſians, throws difficulties in the way. The Minotes [the ancient Laedemonians] have given at Patras a proof of their pretended valour: A body of them being ordered to cover that place on the ſide of Aſia, againſt any undertakings of the Turks, who were encamped there, they thought proper to retire in the night of the 13th of April to the adjacent villages, on account of a heavy rain. The Turks were no ſooner informed of their retreat, than they advanced towards Patras, and committed their the horrible revenges above mentioned. In this attack they were joined by 10,000 Epirotes.

Trieſte, May 12. It is now no longer doubted that the Ruſſians have taken Modon and Coron in the Morea: They have bought two Grecian Polacres, and a Daniſh frigate here, which immediately ſet ſail for the Morea; the Ruſſians keep the Caſtle of Patraſo blocked up, and have made themſelves maſters of the town of Corinth. It is ſaid the Turks have killed all the Greeks in Salonica.

Warſaw, May 12. The face of affairs in this kingdom is ſo changed, that we are not only in hopes that a general confederacy will be formed, but likewiſe that the King will convoke a general Diet, which, by its wiſe reſolutions, may provide a cure for the wounds which diſcord has given the ſtate.

Venice, May 12. The laſt letters from the Levant confirm the account of the Turks being ſtill in poſſeſſion of Napoli de Romania, and Malvaſia places of conſiderable ſtrength, to which the greateſt part of the Turkiſh troops in the Morea have retired. Theſe advices add, that 12 Turkiſh veſſels have paſſed the Dardanelles, in their paſſage to the Morea, where the Greeks are daily receiving reinforcements.

Leghorn, May 9. By a ſhip juſt arrived from Tunis, we learn that the Bey has taken into cuſtody all the Greek inhabitants of that city, and the parts adjacent, and ſequeſtered all their effects.

From the Wieſſel, May 3. We have an account from the grand Ruſſian Army that they will have entirely paſſed the Nieſter about the middle of this month. The Ruſſians will now haſten their operations againſt the Turks, on every ſide, viz. The Generals Romanzow on the Danube, Panin againſt Bender, Berg againſt Crimea; Tottleben againſt Natolia when the fleet at Aſoph will aid, and afterwards in the Morea, and the head ſquadron of the Ruſſian fleet to the Archipelago, and againſt Conſtantinople itſelf. Mayor Gen. Switch has beaten a corps of Tartars near Bender in ſuch a manner that they ſhew no deſire of ſerving any more againſt the Ruſſians.

Warſaw, May 16. We have the following intelligence from the grand Ruſſian army and alſo by letters from Kaminieck, viz. A corps of 20,000 Turks ventured to croſs the Danube with a view to attack Lieut Gen. Stoffeln who was in the environs of Bucharest, but he was appriſed of their coming by the light troops, and took his meaſures ſo well, that he attacked the Turks at a time when they had the leaſt thoughts of it, which lucky event put them to flight: 3000 were killed on the ſpot, and many priſoners: The Ruſſians took likewiſe all their baggage and artillery. The battle happened the 5th inſtant not far from Brahilow.

Venice, May 19. The face of affairs ſeems entirely changed in Morea. Corinth is again in the hands of the Turks, who are recovered of the conſternation into which they were thrown on the firſt deſcent of the Ruſſians. While they were buſied with the Emprizes in re taking Patras, advice was brought them that 4000 Mainotes were marching towards Achaia. The Ottomans directly advanced to meet them and killed 2000 of them on the Spot, the reſt being totally diſperſed. By this victory the whole Duchy of Clarenz, of which Patras is the capital, is again ſubject to the Ottomans. All the letters likewiſe received from that Peninſula, as well as from Zante, being that an army of 60 000 men, headed by a Seraſkier, is already arrived at Corinth.

Trieſte, May 19. The following account is now given us of the demolition of Patras, which is deſtroyed from the very foundations. The garriſon, in the Caſtle which was blocked up made on the 13th of April, at ſeven in the morning, a ſally, which being ſupported by 6000 foot and 4000 horſe, they made themſelves maſters of the city, and put all in it, able to bear arms, to the ſword. The reſiſtance made to them was very ſmall; for the Turks having ſet fire to the city in many different places, ſuch of the unfortunate inhabitants as could not eſcape became a prey either to the flames or the ſword of the Barbarians. This carnage laſted ſeveral hours. The foreign Conſu's had the good fortune to eſcape to Zante, all except the ſon of the Engliſh Conſul, who had a good deal of difficulty to get out of the hands of the Turks; For this young Gentleman being retired to his Hotel with two Neapolitan travellers, and ſeveral women and young ladies belonging to the principal perſons of the city, to the number of about 70, a body of Albanians, armed with hatchets, endeavoured to force his gates; but he repreſenting to them that his nation was in alliance with the Porte, they conducted him to the Caſtle, together with all that were with him. In this fortreſs he ſaw a great number of perſons beheaded, and but for the arrival of the Turkiſh Commander, who knew him, wou'd have undergone the ſame fate. The Turkiſh officer ordered him to be conducted to his own apartments, where he remained till five in the evening, when he ordered him to be re conveyed to his Hotel, under a ſtrong eſcort; but on his arrival there, he found it in aſhes, ſo that about duſk, he withdrew to the ſea ſide with all his retinue, and one domeſtic and after three hours march, on the ſhore happily found a bark, into which he got with all who fled to him, and arrived ſafe at Zante.

The whole city is deſtroyed, together with all the villages around and moſt of the inhabitants murdered.

NEW-YORK, Auguſt 23.

Capt. Merſey from St. Luca, informs us, that the Daniſh Fleet mentioned in our laſt, lay at Gibralter the 4th of June, and conſiſted of four Ships of the Line, two Frigates, two Bombs, and four Tranſports with Troops, and that they were actually deſtined againſt Algiers, where it was imagined they would make an eaſy Conqueſt.

Thurſday laſt being the Anniverſary of the Birth Day of his Royal Highneſs Prince Frederick, an elegant Equeſtrian Statute of his preſent Majeſty, was erected in the Bowling-Green, in this city, near Fort George. On this occaſion, the Members of his Majeſty's Council, the City Corporation, the Corporation of the Chamber of Commerce, the Corporation of the Marine Society, and moſt of the Gentlemen of the City and Army, waited on his Honour the Lieutenant Governor, in the Fort, at his Requeſt, where their Majeſties and other loyal Healths were drank, under a diſcharge of 32 Pieces of Cannon from the Battery, accompanied with a Band of Muſic. This beautiful Statute is made of Metal, richly gilt, being the firſt Equeſtrian One of his preſent Majeſty, and is the Workmanſhip of that celebrated Statuary, Mr. Wiltons of London. We hear that in a few Days a Marble Pedeſtrian Statue of Mr. Pitt, will be erected in Wall-Street.

A CARD.

THE Merchants and Traders of the Colony of Connecticut preſent their moſt reſpectful Compliments to the Gentlemen Importers of New York, and beg that they will immediately draw out their Accounts, that they may be adjuſted and cloſed, as they are determined, to have no further Dealings with them. Such of the Importers as have Ballances in their Favour, are deſired to apply in Perſon for their Money that an Opportunity may be given to ſhew them every Mark of Reſpect, which their late patriotic conduct juſtly intitles them to,——for this Purpoſe no Money will be paid to their Attornies.

Laſt Week two New-York Importers in croſſing a brook in New Jerſey, in their Way to Philadelphia, the Bridge ſunk under them, and they were both handſomely ducked.——How enormous muſt be the Guilt of thoſe who would betray the Liberties of the Public, to advance their private Fortunes, when even a public Bridge is not able to ſupport the Weight of their Iniquities; May this be the Fate of every Wretch who would ſell his country for a Meſs of Pottage.

BOSTON, Auguſt 23.

A Gentleman from Caſco-Bay informs us, That a Veſſel was arrived there from Ireland, in 7 Weeks, and brought Dublin Prints to the 29th of June; in which he read a Paragraph under London Head, that on the 21ſt of June at 5 o'Clock in the Morning died the Right Hon. WILLIAM BECKFORD, Lord Mayor of London. And that Alderman TRECOTHICK ſucceeded him in that high Office.

New-London, Auguſt 24.

Capt. Boſworth who arrived here Yeſterday from Newport, has brought the following Certificate.

THESE may certify, That at a very full Meeting of the Trade and Inhabitants of the Town of Newport, held on Monday the 20th Day of Auguſt, 1770, it was reſolv'd to adhere to, and ſupport the Non-importation Agreement, entered into by the Inhabitants of ſaid Town on the 30th of Oct. laſt, ſo long as a Majority of the Colonies who have entered into ſimilar Agreements ſhould adhere to, and preſerve the ſame. Witneſs, JAMES CLARK, Sec'ry.

NEW-HAVEN, Auguſt 24.

We hear from Waterbury, that a Woman of that Town, who in the fourth or fifth Month of her Pregnancy, was taken with a moſt violent Longing, to eat the Fleſh from her Huſband's Arms——he indulged her in making ſeveral Attempts; but her Teeth were not ſufficient for her purpoſe; and her unaccountable Longing continued, until her Delivery, which was about three Weeks ago. The Infant refuſing the Breaſt, or any other Suſtenance uſually given to infants, it was offered the fleſh of a Fowl dipt in the Fowl's Blood, on which it has fed heartily every Day ſince its birth, and is the only Food the Child has taken, till a few Days ſince, when it eat a little Milk, mixt with Blood.

HARTFORD, Auguſt 27.

Laſt Monday departed this Life, Ephraim Burnham, a fourth Member of the diſtreſſed Family of Burnham mention'd in this Paper No. 293.

⁂ The Select-Men, and Inhabit Town, being grieved and incenſed at the of New-York, have agreed to warn a to be holden at the State-Houſe on Monday Conſider & Appoint ſome of their moſt able to Repreſent them at the General Meeting at New-Haven, in September next, and they hope that the Towns in Connection with them, will publickly ſhew in the ſame way, how nearly they join in the General Concern.

☞ The piece ſigned AMASA, muſt be omitted 'till our next

Cornelius Atherton,

Of Datcheſs County, or Province of New York, now living in the Great Nine Partners.

BEGS leave to inform the Public, and Clothiers in particular, that he follows making, repairing, & grinding Clothiers SHEARS in the very beſt manner, and as he has taken the utmoſt pains to conſtruct them after the beſt manner, ſo that they can be taken a part to be ground, without putting them out of their proper order. He hopes that ſo valuable improvement, may be a mean of incouraging thoſe gentlemen that want Shears to apply to the ſubſcriber, who will warrant them to be equal to any that can be brought from Europe any perſon in want, can be ſupplied on ſhort notice, by applying to the ſubſcriber where he now lives.

CORNELIUS ATHERTON.

Stop Thief!

Ten Dollars Reward.

BROKE open the night after the 25th inſt. the ſhop of Jabez Swift, of Saliſbury, and Stolen the following articles, viz. One piece of ſuperfine, reddiſh brown Broad-Cloth—One piece ſcarlet Ratteen—Two pieces of Hollands, one very fine—Three pieces of ſpotted Silk Handkerchiefs—Several pieces of Linnen ditto, and perhaps ſundry other articles—Alſo one 40ſ Bill, 1762 date—One 5ſ ditto.—One old Jerſey Bill—5 Dollars, and perhaps more—about 3 pints ſmall change—One pocket Accompt Book green parchment cover, with ſundry accounts in the ſame, with a large bundle of Notes, Bonds, &c. both in his own name and other perſons, as he was an attorney at law.—Whoever will apprehend ſaid Thief or Thieves, and ſecure the ſame, ſhall be entitled to the above reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by JABEZ SWIFT.

Saliſbury, Auguſt 26, 1770.

Run away from the Subſcribers

in Plainfield, in Connecticut, the Evening after the 8th inſt. two Negro Men, one named Boſton, about 30 Years old, a thin well ſet Fellow, of a middling Stature, very black, carried with him one check'd linen Shirt, one ſtreaked ditto, one old fine Holland ditto, one Pair Leather Breeches, one Pair ſtreaked long Breeches, a Pair Stockins of divers Colours, one old beaver Hat, velvet Wriſtcoat, ſnuff colour'd horn Buttons, one other ditto, ſomething worn, ſtrait body'd Coat, browniſh, a new Great Coat, browniſh Colour, trim'd with flower'd Metal Buttons.——The other named Newport, a well ſet fellow, not quite ſo tall as the Former, and about 24 Years old, red Broadcloth Waiſtcoat, crimſon trim'd, Lincey woolcey ſtrip'd ditto, 2 ſtrip'd tow Shirts, Frock and Trowſers 1 Pair Cotton Stockings ſeem'd, Pair mix'd ſeem'd ditto, 2 Pair Shoes, a good Felt Hat, two Silk Handkerchiefs. Whoever will take up ſaid Fellows, and ſecure them in any of his Majeſty's Goals, ſo that we can receive ſaid Negroes, ſhall have a Reward of SIX DOLLARS, and all neceſſary Charges paid by us

ISAAC COIT,
ROBERT KINSMAN.

N. B. It is ſuſpected ſaid Negroes have got a forg'd Paſs.

Plainfield, Auguſt 10, 1770.

re to notify all perſons whom it may con- that the meeting of the company of Military held May 24, 1770, ſtands adjourned to the Sept. next, to be attended at the houſe of Mr. innholder in Hartford, at 9 o'clock in the fore- gentlemen who have in their cuſtody any or books, which concern ſaid company, are deſired expected they will return the ſame to the clerk of ſaid company without fail before ſaid meeting.

By Order of ſaid Meeting.

DANIEL SHELDON, Clerk for ſaid Company.

Auguſt 17, 1770.

WHEREAS we the ſubſcribers being appointed a committee, by the Military Adventurers to ſettle with the receivers of all monies due to the company, give notice to all ſuch receivers that they immediately bring in all the names of the adventurers that ſubſcribed with them, and an account of the monies they have received, and account for ſuch monies, with, and pay the ſame to Captain Hugh Ledlie of Hartford, treaſurer to ſaid company. And it is expected that all the receivers, do come in and ſettle at or before the adjourned meeting in Sept. next, as we cannot go on with the buſineſs, nor ſettle the companies accounts in any regular manner, until they bring in their accounts as above.

HUGH LEDLIE,
DANIEL BULL,
DANIEL PITKIN. } Committee.

Dated at Hartford, Auguſt 17, 1770.

Wallingford, Aug. 10, 1770.

LAST night Stolen from the Subſcriber 4 White Holland Shirts, 2 Womens ditto, 4 Lawn Handkerchiefs, 2 Holland Aprons——Whoever will ſecure the Thief & things, or either of them, and give notice, ſhall be well rewarded for their trouble and coſt.

SAMUEL TYLER.

THE Subſcriber engaging in other buſineſs, purpoſes to drop that of riding in about ſix weeks, and deſires his cuſtomers would ſettle with him by that time——The accounts will all be made up to Number 300.

WILLIAM STANTON.

Stray'd from a Paſture in

Hartford, about five weeks ſince, a dark ſorrel HORSE, about 9 years old, about 14 hands high, natural trotter, a ſtar in his forehead, branded on the near hip with R I. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Stray, and return him to the Printing-Office in Hartford, ſhall have ONE DOLLAR reward, and all neceſſary charges paid.

Hartford, Auguſt 20, 1770

Hartford, Auguſt 18, 1770.

THIS is to give notice, to all gentlemen merchants & captains by ſea, who have agreed to the non importation, that William Brown, Weaver, lately from London, underſtands weaving all ſorts of linnen of the fineſt ſorts, ſuch as Hollands, Lawns, Cambricks, Stuffs, Coverlids of various ſorts; likewiſe Sale Cloaths of all ſorts, as made in England from No. 1 to 8—Likewiſe Dogg, Bedticks, Bagging, and many more ſorts too tedious to mention.—He likewiſe weaves Diapers of moſt ſorts and figures. Any gentlemen that will ſet up and encourage the ſame, may depend upon an experienced workman.

WILLIAM BROWN.

P. S. The ſaid William Brown was foreman and clerk to Iriſh & Johnſon, in the London manufactory, and Spittlefields. Pleaſe to direct a few lines to William Brown, at Capt. Phelps's Queen Street.

Dover, July 28 1770.

RUN-AWAY From Jeremiah French, of Dover, in Dutcheſs County, and Province of New York, A Swarthy Complexion Man, with large gray Eyes, his little finger upon his Right Hand ſmaller than Common, about twenty five Years of Age, had an old Beaver Hatt, with a hole in the Crown, a check'd woolen Shirt, a white flannel Jacket, with black ſpeck in it, ſhort, wide tow Trowſers and bare Legged.—Whoſoever ſhall take up ſaid Man, and ſecure him, or bring him home to me, ſhall have FIVE DOLLARS Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by me

JEREMIAH FRENCH.

N. B. His Names is Jabez Herrenton.

We the ſubſcribers, being appointed agents by the General aſſembly, held at Hartford in May laſt, to enquire after all debts, dues and demands owing and payable to the governor and company &c. did, according to the direction of ſaid aſſembly, notify all concern'd, to meet us at the State House in Hartford, on the 2d tueſday of July inſtant, to ſettle and adjuſt their accounts, &c. And many perſons concern'd not appearing according to notice given as aforeſaid, we adjourn'd our ſaid meeting until the laſt tueſday of Auguſt next, to be held at the ſame place, when and where we deſire and further notify all concerned to come & ſettle their accounts, that we may not be obliged to commence actions againſt them for their neglect.

JOHN CHESTER,
JABEZ HAMLIN,
WM. WILLIAMS. } Committee.

Dated at Hartford, the 20th day of July, A. D. 1770.

Juſt publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Printing-Office in Harford, a Pamphlet, entitled,

The Viſible Church, in Covenant with GOD.

FURTHER ILLUSTRATED.

Containing alſo, a brief Repreſentation of ſome other Goſpel Doctrines, which affect the Controverſy.

Interſperſed with Remarks upon ſome Things advanced by Dr. Bellamy, and Mr. Hopkins, in thoſe important Points.

By MOSES MATHER, A. M.

Stolen out of the Paſture

the Evening of the 7th Inſtant, a large ſorrel MARE, about 15 Hands high, natural to her Pace, white in her Face, ſix years old, no Brand. Whoever will take up ſaid Mare, ſo that the Owner may have her, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and all neceſſary Charges paid——And whoever will take up ſaid Thief, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's Goals, ſo that he may be brought to Puniſhment, ſhall have Four Dollars Reward, paid by me,

WILLIAM KING, jun.

Suffield, Auguſt 9 1770.

NOTICE is hereby given, to thoſe who have encouraged the buſineſs of a Poſt Rider from Hartford to Northfield, that one year is now nearly expired ſince this buſineſs was undertaken, and that 'tis deſired and expected, that thoſe who have ſubſcribed for the News Papers, will at the end of the year, be in readineſs to pay their reſpective ſums according to ſubſcription —SIX SHILLINGS has been the annual price of a paper, excluſive of Poſt-Charges—It appears from tryal made, that SIX PENCE per quarter, can be but a very moderate compenſation to the Poſt, for his time, charge and trouble, for the future, in caſe he ſhould ride once a week throughout the year, except from the beginning of November, to the beginning of April, when he will ride once afortnight——For the future it will be expected that thoſe who ſhall ſign for the Papers in thoſe parts, do pay four ſhillings at entrance; and the other four at the years end. Such as have already ſigned may expect to have their papers continued, unleſs ſpecial orders to the contrary be received —Upon the above conditions, all may depend upon being ſerved in the moſt faithful & beſt manner.——And as the Printers at Hartford, are under the beſt advantages for collecting the moſt intereſting and entertaining news from every quarter, and purpoſe in the beſt manner to exert themſelves for that purpoſe, 'tis to be hoped that ſtill further encouragements will be given for the continuance of a buſineſs at this day ſo intereſting and entertaining to the public.

Hartford, July 30, 1770.

The Connecticut COURANT.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1770. [NUMB. 297.]

The deprived Father's Meditation.
Written for the Comfort of a Rev. and worthy
Gentleman, on the Loſs of two Sons.

OH! for a Medicine to heal
A Parent's wounded Heart!
What can aſſwage the Pains I feel,
And Joy divine impart?

Not all the Pow'r, the Pomp and Wealth,
Which Earth and Seas can boaſt;
Not Rocks of Gems, nor Mounts of Gold,
Can equal what I've loſt.

Not the rich Stores of eaſtern Climes,
Nor Plenty of the Weſt,
Can give me back my former Hopes,
Nor make me ſo much bleſs'd.

As in the dear, paternal Love,
Deep fixed in my Soul,
As in the filial Duties paid,
Without the leaſt Controul.

To Rocks and Trees, and Vales all Day,
Diſconſolate I weep,
And all the Night my Sighs and Tears,
Supply the Place of Sleep.

But why caſt down, my troubled Mind?
Look to almighty GOD;
Bleſſed are all his gracious Gifts,
Bleſſed his chaſt'ning Rod.

In him is Fullneſs infinite,
Of Comfort and Relief:
'Tis he can heal the wounded Heart,
'Tis he can cure my Grief.

In CHRIST's atoning, cleanſing Blood
I'll waſh my Tears away,
In him I'll truſt to meet my Sons
In everlaſting Day.

BOSTON, Auguſt 13

An Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman of Diſtinction in Connecticut dated Auguſt 14, 1770

THE Conſumers of Britiſh Manufacturers here, who are chiefly Landholders begin to be ſenſible of the great Advantages of a Reſtriction of Foreign Goods in itſelf conſidered, independent of defeating the Revenue act; as tending immediately to raiſe the Value of their lands in a Demand for their produce, and directly turning the Ballance in their Favour. As to the Neceſſity of an Importation, we muſt honeſtly declare we know of none, ſave in one or two Articles which we doubt not the Colony may be ſoon ſupplied with on this Continent. This being our Situation, it is moſt probable the landed Intereſt will take the Lead in oppoſing Importation, in which caſe the Matter will be ſettled on the moſt ſolid Baſis poſſible. Many Gentlemen in New York have been aſſiduous in their Application to Individuals in trade for their cuſtom, on the Arrival of their Goods; and I have the Pleaſure to ſay from perſonal Knowledge, they have in many Inſtances been treated as their Perfidy deſerved.

Stop Thief!

Ten Dollars Reward.

BROKE open the night after the 25th inſt. the ſhop of Jabez Swift, of Saliſbury, and Stolen the following articles, viz. One piece of ſuperfine, reddiſh brown Broad-Cloth—One piece ſcarlet Ratteen—Two pieces of Holland, one very fine—Three pieces of ſpotted Silk Handkerchiefs—Several pieces of Linnen ditto, and perhaps ſundry other articles—Alſo one 40ſ. Bill, 1762 date—One 5ſ. ditto.—One old Jerſey Bill—5 Dollars, and perhaps more—about 3 pints ſmall change—One pocket Account Book green parchment cover, with ſundry accounts in the ſame, with a large bundle of Notes, Bonds, &c. both in his own name and other perſons, as he was an attorney at law.—Whoever will apprehend ſaid Thief or Thieves, and ſecure the ſame, ſhall be entitled to the above reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

JABEZ SWIFT.

Saliſbury, Auguſt 26, 1770.

Run away from the Subſcribers

in Plainfield, in Connecticut, the Evening after the 8th Inſt. two Negro Men, one named Boſton, about 30 Years old, a thin well ſet Fellow, of a middling Stature, very black, carried with him one check'd linen Shirt, one ſtreaked ditto, one old fine Holland ditto, one Pair Leather Breeches, one Pair ſtreaked long Breeches, 4 Pair Stockins of divers Colours, one old beaver Hat, velvet Waiſtcoat, ſnuff colour'd horn Buttons, one other ditto, ſomething worn, ſtrait body'd Coat, browniſh, a new Great Coat, browniſh Colour, trim'd with flower'd Metal Buttons.——The other named Newport, a well ſet fellow, not quite ſo tall as the Former, and about 24 Years old, red Broadcloth Waiſtcoat, crimſon trim'd, Lincey-woolcey ſtrip'd ditto, 2 ſtrip'd tow Shirts, Frock and Trowſers 1 Pair Cotton Stockings ſeem'd, Pair mix'd ſeem'd ditto, 2 Pair Shoes, a good Felt Hat, two Silk Handkerchiefs. Whoever will take up ſaid Fellows, and ſecure them in any of his Majeſty's Goals, ſo that we can receive ſaid Negroes, ſhall have a Reward of SIX DOLLARS, and all neceſſary Charges paid by us,

ISAAC COIT,
ROBERT KINSMAN.

N. B. It is ſuſpected ſaid Negroes have got a forg'd Paſs.

Plainfield, Auguſt 10, 1770.

Cornelius Atherton,

Of Dutcheſs County, or Province of New York; now living in the Great Nine Partners.

BEGS leave to inform the Public, and Cloathiers in particular, that he follows making repairing, & grinding Cloathiers SHEARS in the very beſt manner, and as he has taken the utmoſt pains to conſtruct them after the beſt manner, ſo that they can be taken a part to be ground, without putting them out of their proper order. He hopes that ſo valuable improvement, may be a mean of incouraging thoſe gentlemen that want Shears to apply to the ſubſcriber, who will warrant them to be equal to any that can be brought from Europe. any perſon in want, can be ſupplied on ſhort notice, by applying to the ſubſcriber where he now lives.

CORNELIUS ATHERTON.

Linſeed Oil, of the beſt

Kind, to be ſold at the Printing-Office, cheap for Caſh only.

LONDON, June 7.

YESTERDAY ſome important diſpatches arrived in town from his Excellency Cadwallader Colden, Eſq; Governor of New York.

June 13. Yeſterday a meſſenger arrived at the Queen's Houſe from Dover, who brought an account of the ſafe arrival of her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Dowager of Wales at that place, and of her embarkation on board the yacht on ſaturday, which immediately ſailed for Calais —On Friday evening after his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland had ſet out for Windſor Lodge, an expreſs was ſent to inform him, that his Majeſty deſired his attendance at the Queen's Palace, whither he came, and had a long conference with his Majeſty.

It is ſaid that preparations are making at Lutton Loo, for the reception of the Earl of Bute.

The Remonſtrance from the county of Surry, will certainly be preſented to his Majeſty at St. James's on Wedneſday next.

A letter from Calais mentions, that her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Dowager of Wales embarked at Dover on Saturday morning at eleven o'clock, and arrived at Calais at four o'clock in the afternoon of the ſame day in perfect health. At ſeven o'clock that evening her Royal Highneſs ſet out from thence for Bruſſels.

Lord Holland continues ill, but is not ſo bad as was ſuppoſed.

The Duke d'Aigillon will moſt likely ſave his life, by being maſter of the ſecret relative to the late peace: To ſave a French peer by Engliſh intereſt is unuſual and ſtrange, —and therefore (as Hamlet ſays) " as a ſtranger give it welcome.

It is ſaid that the ſolicitor to the committee of the Supporters of the Bill of Rights, has compromiſed almoſt the whole of what remained due to a certain popular Gentleman's debts at the laſt meeting of the Society.

Letters from Toulon and Marſeillis mention, that the greateſt diligence is uſing at both thoſe ports in augmenting the fortifications.

June 12. A Letter from Boſton, dated March 28 mentions the tranſactions of the 5th of that Month, and adds, that every friend of government is now left to the mercy of a mob, headed by people without property or principle, and who will ſtick at no villainy to gain their ends; which appear to be nothing leſs than to ſhake off entirely the Britiſh government. The news-mongers in Boſton dare publiſh nothing relative to the late proceedings, by which means the people are kept entirely in the dark; and as moſt letters are open which come from Boſton, by theſe ſons of liberty [an abſolute falſhood] few people dare to write their ſentiments, or even give a true account of the late operations, for fear of being maltreated by the mob.

It is privately whiſpered that a certain young Duke has made a conſiderable Advance in his Addreſſes to the Daughter of a patriotic Alderman.

June 1. It is certain Lords N——th and H———gh are two of the Committee of Noblemen which has been appointed to take into conſideration the ſtate of his Majeſty's dominions on the other ſide the Atlantic; and the third is ſuppoſed to be Lord B———n.

His Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland will hoiſt his flag on board the Venus the 6th of June and it is reported will proceed to ſea with his ſquadron before Midſummer day.

June 6, Within theſe few days an eminent houſe in the city entered Britiſh manufactures to the value of 24 000l. for American exportation; being the largeſt entry made at the Cuſtom houſe for many months, for that quarter of the world.

Paris, May 26 There has been an inſurrection at Tours on account of the ſcarcity of bread. The calamity is ſtill greater in the Leomoſen and Marche, where it is computed upwards of FOUR THOUSAND perſons have died of poverty and famine.

Paris, June 3 The Fireworks which were exhibited on Wedneſday evening in the palace of Louis the XVth on occaſion of the Dauphin's marriage ended in a diſmal cataſtrophe, by the crowd all preſſing to get away at one and the ſame time. Several perſons of the firſt condition, who were endeavouring to get to their carriages, were bruiſed and trodden under foot; and ſo great was the confuſion, that the coaches were overturned, and horſes ſmothered, 137 dead bodies were expoſed the next day to be owned, among which are two Chevaliers de St Louis. And ſuch are the accounts of the bruiſed, who died after they were with difficulty carried home, that, upon the moſt moderate conjecture, at leaſt 300 perſons are ſuppoſed to have loſt their lives on this occaſion; but it does not as yet appear that there are any Engliſh among the Number.

NEW-YORK, August 30.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in London, to his friend in New-York dated June 1.

" I have juſt been in Company with a conſiderable Virginia Merchant, who aſſures me he is now going to ſend a ſhip to Virgina fully loaded with dry Goods and that ſome other houſes were ſhipping largely to that province, in conſequence of orders received from ſome Gentlemen in Virginia, who had never come into the Non-Importation Agreement. The amazing Quantity of Goods that are daily ſhipping for Boſton, Rhode-Iſland, Halifax, and Canada, would really aſtoniſh you; it is impoſſible there can be a conſumption in the two laſt places for near the Goods that are now ſhipping, and lately gone. Surely all theſe circumſtances will be weigh'd by the judicious merchants of your province, and thoſe of Pennſylvania, who I am ſorry to ſay have been duped by all the other Provinces. I am, Your's, &c."

Another letter of the 12th June, to the ſame Gentleman in this city, from his Correſpondent in London, ſays,——" That I was this day a Spectator of a Letter wrote from Philadelphia, ordering upwards of three thouſand pounds ſterling value, in goods, without any regard to the reſtricting cauſes."

The firſt Subſcribers for the Connecticut Courant, by the Northfield Poſt are hereby informed that one Year ended with laſt Weeks Publication, being No 296 Thoſe Gentlemen that are willing to have their Papers continued and ſo Encourage a Poſt-Rider, which will be an intereſting Thing to the Public, are deſired to leave the Pay for the laſt Year, with 4 s. Lawful Money for half the Pay for the next Year, at the Places where their Papers were uſually left. 'Tis hoped that every one will be in Readineſs to make Pay for their Papers at the Time when the Money becomes due

Stolen out of the Paſture of Robert Barrit of Kenſington in Farmington, on the Night next after the 28th Day of Auguſt laſt a black HORSE, about 13 and half Hands high, natural Pacer, paces ſquare, thick ſet, ſhod all round, branded on the left Thigh with the Letters TB about 12 years old Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Horſe, and return him to the Owner, and ſecure the Thief, ſo that he may be brought to Juſtice ſhall have a reaſonable Reward, and all neceſſary Charges paid by

Robert Barret.

Kenſington, Sept. 1, 1770

RUN away from the Subſcriber the night following the 28th Inſtant a Molatto Servant named SAMPSON, about 28 Years of age, about 5 Feet 8 Inches high, had a Squaw and a Child of about 3 Years old with him. He ſtole and rode away a large black Mare, 17 Years old, paces & trots well, hath a large Bunch on each ſide of her Noſe, had but one Shoe on when ſtole together with a ruſſet breaſted Saddle, made in Imitation of a quilted Saddle. He carried or wore away with him a brown Coat and Jacket, and an old Felt Hat. Whoever will take up ſaid Servant and convey him to his maſter, at Canterbury, or ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's Goals, and do me word, ſhall have FIVE DOLLARS Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid. by DANIEL TYLER.

Canterbury, Auguſt 29 1770.

HARTFORD, September 3.

We hear from Coventry of a very ſorrowful Accident that was there diſcovered ſome time in the Evening or Night after the 29th Ult. the Particulars of which, ſo far as we can learn, are as follow. The Wife of Mr Caleb Stanley, of that Place, had been for ſome Time paſt in a low and declining State of Health, for the Recovery of which, by the Advice of Phyſicians, ſhe had frequently made Uſe of the Cold Bath; which Expedient (probably from a Principle of Modeſty) ſhe had, in ſome Inſtances, advantageouſly attempted alone, in a Ciſtern commodiouſly provided for that Purpoſe, in which, after being ſome time miſs'd by the Family ſhe was now found unhappily drown'd. As ſhe was a Perſon of exemplary Goodneſs, and of pious Converſation, ſo her Loſs is much regretted, and her Death lamented.

Mrs. Stanley was Siſter to the Widow Burnham, of the Family of Burnham, frequently mentioned in this Paper of late, who, in the Space of about a Month paſt, has been the unhappy Spectator of the Death of a Huſband and three Children; and now has this additional Sorrow from the News of the Death of her Siſter.

AT a Meeting of the Trade and Inhabitants of New port, held by adjournment, on Monday the 20*th of Auguſt* 1770.

THOMAS CRANSTON, Eſq; Moderator.

WHEREAS, in the preſent critical ſituation of America, harmony and an union in meaſures of the ſeveral Colonies is of ſo great importance for the preſervation of our invaluable rights and privileges, that without it there is the utmoſt danger of their being totally loſt: Reſolved therefore that we will cultivate the cloſeſt and ſtricteſt Union with the other Britiſh Colonies upon this Continent, and will heartily join with and ſupport them in every prudent and conſtitutional oppoſition to every attempt to ſubject us to a tax Act of the Parliament of G Britain.

Reſolved, That we adhere to and ſupport the Non Importation Agreement entered into by the inhabitants of this town on the 30th of October laſt, ſo long as a Majority of the Colonies who have entered into ſimilar agreements ſhall adhere to and preſerve the ſame.

Reſolved That the committee of correſpondence and inſpection be continued for the purpoſes of their appointment, and be requeſted and directed upon any breach of the ſaid agreement, and the refuſal of any perſon to comply therewith, to call together the trade and inhabitants of this town that every prudent and legal method may be taken to ſtrengthen and preſerve the ſaid agreement inviolate.

Reſolved, That the thanks of this meeting be given to the committee for their pains and vigilence in the ſervice of the common cauſe of America, and of this town.

Reſolved, That the committee of correſpondence and Inſpection be requeſted immediately to tranſmit Copies of the Reſolves paſſed this Day to the reſpective Committes of the ſeveral Colonies with whom they have correſponded, and to ſuch other colonies as they ſhall think proper Reſolved, That the Thanks of this Meeting be given to the ſeveral colonies upon this continent who have firmly exerted themſelves for the Preſervation of American Liberty.—And that they alſo be requeſted to cauſe the foregoing Reſolves to be printed in the Newport Mercury.

AT a very full meeting of the Merchants and Landholders in Middletown, Thurſday, Auguſt 30. 1770

MATTHEW TALCOTT, Eſq; Chairman.

THE Queſtion was then put, whether the Meeting will Appoint a Committee to attend the Meeting, to be held at New Haven, on the 13th of September next? Voted in the affirmative, Nem Con.

VOTED that Matthew Talcot, Eſq; Mr. Richard Alſop, Seth Wetmore, Eſq; and Mr. Amos Miller, be a Committee, to Repreſent this body at the ſaid Meeting at New-Haven. After which the Meeting was repeatedly call'd upon, that if any Members preſent, had any Arguments to uſe in favour of breaking through the Non Importation Agreement that they would uſe them, and they ſhould be heard upon it—But nothing in favour of it was offered.—Then Voted that the Members choſen to repreſent this Body, do uſe their utmoſt Endeavours to come into Meaſures, to ſupport the Non Importation Agreement inviolate, by ſuch Reſolves as ſhall be thought moſt proper for that Purpoſe, whereby we may avoid the fatal Effects to be feared from the alarming Conduct of the People of New-York. All paſt by a very great Majority.

Teſt BENJAMIN HENSHAW, Clerk.

Colony of Connecticut. ſs.

AT a Meeting of the Inhabitants of the Town of Farmington in Hartford County, held on the 30*th Day of Auguſt*, 1770.

AT the ſame Meeting the Inhabitants of ſaid Town, taking into Conſideration the unhappy Circumſtances of the Britiſh Colonies in America, while groaning under the arbitrary and oppreſſive Exactions of the Parliament of Great-Britain, impoſing Duties upon Tea, &c. And in particular the Requeſt of the Committee of Merchants, deſiring a Meeting of the mercantile and landed Intereſt of the ſeveral Towns in this Colony, to be convened at New-Haven (by their Agents choſen for that Purpoſe) on the 13th Day of September next ——They proceeded to, and choſe Mr. Jonathan Root, and Fiſher Gay, Eſq; to repreſent the mercantile and landed Intereſt of ſaid Town, at the Time and Place aforeſaid, being informed and inſtructed the Sentiments of their Conſtituents, as followeth.

1ſt. It is our unanimous and earneſt Wiſh and Deſire, that the Gentlemen above appointed, uſe their beſt Endeavours to preſerve inviolate, the Non Importation Agreement entered into by the Merchants of the ſeveral Colonies in America

2d. That they ſtrive to perſwade every Inhabitant of this Colony to withdraw all Connections and Commerce from the Importers of this or any other Colony; and from all and ſingular the Inhabitants of the City of New York in particular; and that they be treated as Enemies to their Country's Cauſe——until they return to their Duty, and alſo countermand their Orders upon the Britiſh Merchants for Goods.

3d. That they encourage and promote, to the utmoſt of their Power, the Uſe of American Manufactures, in general, and of this Colony in particular.

4th That they labour to convince every Inhabitant of this Colony of the Inexpediency and Danger in purchaſing Goods of Hawkers, Pedlars, or Petty Chapmen; or any other Perſon or Perſons, that are imported contrary to Agreement, until the Revenue Acts, impoſing Duties on the Americans, be fully, compleatly and abſolutely repealed.

5th. That they uſe their Endeavours that every Inhabitant of this Colony who ſhall Purchaſe or bring into the ſame, any kind of Goods, Wares or Merchandize whatſoever; that are Imported contrary to the Articles of Agreement, be eſteemed and treated as Betrayers of their Country.

6th It was Reſolved by the Inhabitants of ſaid Town, that they would watchfully Inſpect, Apprehend and Convict if poſſible, all Pedlers, Hawkers or Petty Chapmen, that offer any kind of Goods for ſale, without being properly licenced therefor.

A true Copy of Record, Examined by SOLOMON WHITMAN, Town Clerk.

DIED.—At Tobago in the Weſt Indies, the 4th of May laſt, Jonathan Seymour jun. late of this Town.

☞ Sylvanus muſt be omitted for the preſent.

We the Subſcribers, being appointed Commiſſioners, by the Hon. Court of Probate for the Diſtrict of Hartford, to examine into all the Claims and all the Dues to and for the Eſtate of Capt. Francis Holliſter, late of Glaſtenbury, deceas'd (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby notify all Perſons to exhibit their Claims, and appear and pay their Dues, on the firſt Mondays in every Month from this Date to the firſt Monday in March next, at the Dwelling Houſe of David Hale, Inn holder in Glaſtenbury.

Elizur Talcott,
Jonathan Welles,
Eliſha Holliſter.

Auguſt 30 1770.

Dover, July 28, 1770.

RUN-AWAY

From Jeremiah French, of Dover, in Dutcheſs County, and Province of New York, A Swarthy Complexon Man, with large gray Eyes, his little finger upon his Right Hand ſmaller than Common, about twenty five Years of Age, had an old Beaver Hatt, with a hole in the Crown, as check'd woolen Shirt, a white flannel Jacket, with black ſpeck in it, ſhort, wide tow Trowſers and bare Legged.—Whoſoever ſhall take up ſaid Man, and ſecure him, or bring him home to me, ſhall have FIVE DOLLARS Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by me.

JEREMIAH FRENCH.

N. B. His Names is Jabez Herrenton.

Hartford, Auguſt 18, 1770.

THIS is to give notice, to all gentlemen, merchants & captains by ſea, who have agreed to the non importation, that William Brown, Weaver, lately from London, underſtands weaving all ſorts of linnen of the fineſt ſorts, ſuch as Hollands, Lawns, Cambricks, Stuffs, Cover lids of various ſorts; likewiſe Sale Cloaths of all ſorts, as made in England from No. 1 to 8—Likewiſe Dogg, Bedticks, Bagging, and many more ſorts too tedious to mention.—He likewiſe weaves Diapers of moſt ſorts and figures. Any gentlemen that will ſet up and encourage the ſame, may depend upon an experienced workman.

WILLIAM BROWN.

P. S. The ſaid William Brown was foreman and clerk to Iriſh & Johnſon, in the London manufactory, and Spittlefields. Pleaſe to direct a few lines to William Brown, at Capt. Phelps's Queen-Street.

Stray'd from a Paſture in

Hartford, about five weeks ſince, a dark ſorrel HORSE, about 9 years old, about 14 hands high, natural trotter, a ſtar in his forehead, branded on the near hip with R I. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Stray, and return him to the Printing-Office in Hartford, ſhall have ONE DOLLAR reward, and all neceſſary charges paid.

Hartford, Auguſt 20, 1770.

THE Subſcriber engaging in other buſineſs, purpoſes to drop that of riding in about ſix weeks, and deſires his cuſtomers would ſettle with him by that time——The accounts will all be made up to Number 300.

WILLIAM STANTON.

Wallingford, Aug. 10, 1770.

LAST night Stolen from the Subſcriber 4 White Holland Shirts, 2 Womens ditto, 4 Lawn Handkerchiefs, 2 Holland Aprons——Whoever will ſecure the Thief & things, or either of them, and give notice, ſhall be well rewarded for their trouble and coſt.

SAMUEL TYLER.

THESE are to notify all perſons whom it may concern that the meeting of the company of Military Adventurers held May 24, 1770, ſtands adjourned to the 6th day of Sept. next, to be attended at the houſe of Mr. David Bull, innholder in Hartford, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon.—And any gentlemen who have in their cuſtody any writings or books, which concern ſaid company, are deſired and expected they will return the ſame to the clerk of ſaid compano without fail before ſaid meeting.

By Order of ſaid Meeting.

DANIEL SHELDON, Clerk for ſaid Company.

Auguſt 17, 1770.

WHEREAS we the ſubſcribers being appointed a committee, by the Military Adventurers to ſettle with the receivers of all monies due to the company, give notice to all ſuch receivers that they immediately bring in all the names of the adventurers that ſubſcribed with them, and an account of the monies they have received, and account for ſuch monies with, and pay the ſame to Captain Hugh Ledlie of Hartford, treaſurer to ſaid company. And it is expected that all the receivers, do come in and ſettle at or before the adjourned meeting in Sept. next, as we cannot go on with the buſineſs, nor ſettle the companies accounts in any regular manner, until they bring in their accounts as above.

HUGH LEDLIE,
DANIEL BULL,
DANIEL PITKIN. } Committee.

Dated at Hartford, Auguſt 17, 1770.

Stolen out of the Paſture

the Evening of the 7th Inſtant, a large ſorrel MARE, about 15 Hands high, natural to her Pace, white in her Face, ſix years old, no Brand. Whoever will take up ſaid Mare, ſo that the Owner may have her, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and all neceſſary Charges paid——And whoever will take up ſaid Thief, and ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's Goals, ſo that he may be brought to Puniſhment, ſhall have Four Dollars Reward, paid by me.

WILLIAM KING, jun.

Suffield, Auguſt 9 1770.

Juſt publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Printing-Office in Harford, a Pamphlet, entitled,

The Viſible Church, in Covenant with GOD.

FURTHER ILLUSTRATED.

Containing alſo, a brief Repreſentation of ſome other Goſpel Doctrines, which affect the Controverſy.

Interſperſed with Remarks upon ſome Things advanced by Dr. Bellamy, and Mr. Hopkins, in thoſe important Points.

By MOSES MATHER, A. M.

We the ſubſcribers, being appointed agents by the General aſſembly, held at Hartford in May laſt, to enquire after all debts, dues and demands owing and payable to the governor and company &c. did, according to the direction of ſaid aſſembly, notify all concern'd, to meet us at the State Houſe in Hartford, on the 2d tueſday of July inſtant, to ſettle and adjuſt their accounts, &c. And many perſons concern'd not appearing according to notice given as aforeſaid, we adjourn'd our ſaid meeting until the laſt tueſday of Auguſt next, to be held at the ſame place, when and where we deſire and further notify all concerned to come & ſettle their accounts, that we may not be obliged to commence actions againſt them for their neglect.

JOHN CHESTER,
JABEZ HAMLIN,
WM. WILLIAMS. } Committee.

Dated at Hartford, the 20th day of July, A.D. 1770.

INNOCULATION.

Doct. Tappen,

BEGS leave to acquaint the Public, that for ſome Time paſt, he has been, and ſtill is Carrying on that Branch of his Profeſſion, at Kingſton, alias Sopus in Ulſter County, and Province of New York; where thoſe Gentlemen and Ladies that will favour him with their Cuſtom, may depend on the moſt ſtrict and careful Attendance, and the genteeleſt Lodgings, at the moderate Price of One Dollar and an Half per Week for Board, and Three Dollars for his Medicine, Attendance, &c. ſo that in an Ordinary way, they may be carried Through the Opperation for TEN DOLLARS. This Method has proved ſo very Succeſsful, that out of 500 and more, that have had it here, not one has Died. The ſituation of the Place is very Pleaſant and Wholeſome, and I flatter Myſelf every one may find Company that will not be diſagreeable.

PETER TAPPEN.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

The Connecticut COURANT.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1770. [NUMB. 298.]

Dr Board

HARTFORD, September 8.

Concutiuntur Fundamina Cæli, horrificis reſonat Clangoribus Æther, procul reboant Montes, horreſcunt Segetes; humana Corda Occupat Pavor, Pallor Ora, et Tremor Artus; et omnibus ante Oculos, plurima verſatur Mortis Imago.

SUCH has been the Notoriety of the amazing and terrible Effects of Thunder and Lightning upon Trees, Buildings and Animals, both human and brutal in ſo many Inſtances; that the Approach of a Thunder Storm furniſhes the Spectators with no unreaſonable Occaſion of Concern, and often Times of unavoidable Dread and Terror at the diſmal forebodings and Apprehenſions of what may be the Event—Hence it often happens that the pleaſing and grateful Senſations of the divine Benignity, in the liberal Effuſions of Rain upon the parch'd Earth, after diſtreſſing drought, which otherwiſe might be felt in every Breaſt, are by this Means in a great Meaſure loſt; a gelid Horror runs through every Vein and the whole Face of Nature being Array'd in frowns, brings on a diſmal Scene of anxious Fear and Conſternation, at the tremendous Blaze of Lightning and hideous Roar of Thunder; and what greatly aggravates the Horror of the Scene, is this, that even our Houſes, which Ordinarily prove a ſecure Retreat from the injuries of the Weather, Winds and Tempeſts, are not the leaſt Security againſt the Violent Inroads and mercileſs Attacks of this powerful Meteor, ſo but that in its natural Operations, 'tis as likely to prove miſchievous and hurtful to perſons when under the Covers of their Houſes, and even more ſo, than if they were abroad in the open Storm.

'TIS not to the Purpoſe now in Hand, to enlarge here upon the Phyſical Cauſe, or the Nature of Thunder and Lightning, it may ſuffice to underſtand that 'tis ſuppoſed to be no other than an electrical Fluid; and being ſo, is ſubjected to the general Laws of Electricity; This appears from the ſimilarity which the one bears to the other in their reſpective Phænomena, Operations and Effects, which are amply proved by ſuch a Variety of Electrical Experiments as are ſufficient to put the matter beyond all Doubt; be this as it may, 'tis well known by Experience and well atteſted Facts, that it has ſome very ſurprizing Properties, and often attended with very amazing Effects; Witneſs the frequent Devaſtations it makes upon Trees, Edifices, &c. ſplitting and rending them in ſunder, and inſtantly reducing them to Shivers; diſſolving Metals; and ſtriking with inſtantaneous Death whatever Animals come in its way——But notwithſtanding theſe and ſuch like terrible Effects (incredible as it may ſeem to vulgar Minds) 'tis no leſs certain than wonderful, that theſe terrible Effects, may in a good Meaſure be prevented; and that by innocent Methods, and even by human Art and Contrivance. For, though 'tis not in the Power of Man, to oppoſe, reſiſt or withſtand the natural Impetuoſity and Force of Lightning, yet from well atteſted Facts and Experiments it appears to be an undoubted Truth, that its common Rapidity and Violence may in a good Meaſure be prevented, and the Direction of its Courſe ſo diverted, as to render its Effects innocent and harmleſs, both to Houſes and their Inhabitants——In ſultry Weather the Clouds are often fraught with this electrical Fluid and by natural Cauſes Violently diſcharge themſelves in copious Streams of Lightning with tremendous Peals of Thunder. But notwithſtanding the amazing Velocity and Rapidity of Lightning, it is (like other Subſtances) reſtricted by certain Laws of Nature ſui Generis or peculiar to itſelf; hence 'tis very Obſervable that the Summits of lofty Buildings, Steeples, Towers, Trees and Mountains are much more ſubject to Shocks by Lightning, than plain and level Surfaces are; and of all Subſtances it appears that thoſe of the metalic kind have the greateſt attractive Influence on this Fluid; that it will much more readily take to Iron than Wood; that when theſe two are contiguous it will often over run the latter to get Poſſeſſion of of the former——Hence Iron Rods pointed and ſet in an erect Poſition, nearly contiguous to a Building, have proved very excellent Conductors to this electrical Fluid, giving it a Courſe along down the Rod, thence into the Earth; and it has been obſerved that during the Seaſon of a Thunder Storm thoſe Conductors maintain a Conſtant Stream of this Effluvia collected from the Clouds and paſſing as forementioned——Hence 'tis eaſy and natural to conceive, how by this Means, thoſe large Quantities of this Fire which otherwiſe might on a ſudden and with tremendous Violence be diſcharged from the Clouds upon a Building, rending it in Pieces, are by gentle Degrees, in ſmall Quantities moderately detach'd from the Clouds, diverted from the Edifice, and inoffenſively conducted into the Ground; and ſo the Noiſe and Terror of Thunder prevented, the Edifice ſecured, and Lives preſerved—And it ſeems a great Pity that a Method ſo innocent in its Nature, ſo beneficial in its Conſequences, ſo cheap and eaſy in its Performance ſhould fail of being generally improv'd for the ſalutary Purpoſes forementioned, and the preventing thoſe Shocking Effects of Lightning which may otherwiſe be frequently expoſed; and which are equally dreaded by all. By this means (under the Conduct of a good Providence) many valuable and coſtly Buildings might be ſaved from Ruin, and thouſands of precious Lives from untimely Deſtruction.

I AM not indeed inſenſible that one principal Objection which Obtains againſt this Practice, is an imaginary Apprehenſion of its carrying with it the Appearance of an Attempt to fruſtrate the Deſigns, and to counteract and oppoſe the Purpoſes of Heaven; And hence many fancy that an Implication of ſomething ſimilar to bidding a kind of Defiance to the Powers above, is inſeparable from ſuch a Practice; And thence conclude that all Attempts of this kind, would be ſuch an impious tempting of Providence, as would not fail to bring down, inſtead of diverting, the Judgments of Heaven.——But I conceive theſe Scruples are altogether groundleſs, and without all Foundation; except what is laid in a giddy and whimſical Imagination; which if indulged, would as effectually, and with equal Reaſon Obtain againſt all Attempts of Preſervation from every kind of Danger whatever; for all the Hazzards into which it is ſuppoſable men ſhould be brought, are no leſs the Effects of Providence than the Dangers of Lightning are; nor is it eaſy to conceive how endeavouring to ſecure ourſelves, or our Subſtances, from the Miſchiefs of Lightning falling from Heaven, ſhould be a Counteracting the Purpoſes of Heaven, more than an attempt to ſcreen ourſelves from the Injuries of the Rain or Hail that falls from thence would be: for the latter is no leſs under the Direction of Providence than the former.——Should a Perſon under the Operation of ſuch Scruples reſolve upon abiding the Severity of the moſt extreme Cold, or to endure the Miſchiefs of the ſevereſt Storms of Snow or Hail, leſt if he ſhould provide for himſelf any Cloathing, Shelter or Defence he ſhould be guilty of counteracting the Deſigns of Heaven, and of bidding Defiance to the Powers above; he might doubtleſs ſoon meet with matter of ſufficient Proof that it is truly enough the Deſign of Heaven he ſhould periſh in his preſent condition; Yet, but few, I truſt, will readily admit this as a Proof that the ſame Man would have Counteracted the will of Heaven, had he Prudently endeavoured his own Preſervation by ſeaſonably retiring from the Tempeſt, and by taking Shelter under the covers of his own Roof, which by the Will of Heaven was provided for a Security from ſuch Diſaſters.

Upon the whole, where iron Rods are ſuitably adjuſted to an Edifice, we may generally depend that 'tis the Will of Heaven, that the Lightning ſhould take to, and run down upon the Rods, and not fall upon the Edifice——That where there are no ſuch Rods, it may for ought we know be the Will of Heaven that with amazing Violence it ſhould by falling upon the Edifice, at once prove the Deſtruction both of that, and the perſons in it. After all, ſhou'd there be any of ſuch a Make, as that they can't proceed to ſuch a Practice, without feeling the Operation of a principle to counteract the Purpoſes of heaven, or of bidding Defiance to the Powers above; I wou'd undertake to warrant their Safety in the Uſe of ſuch Experiments. They have at once my free Conſent that they follow their own Inclinations in omitting the Experiment (at leaſt till a better temper poſſeſſes them) and without ſuch means humbly to truſt their Protection to the Care of Providence——But then wou'd beg leave to remind ſuch, that the Fault here does not ariſe from any thing bad in the Nature of the Experiment, but in the Manner of the Performance, and the iniquitous Temper of their own Hearts, which renders it unfitting they ſhou'd even attempt a Compliance with a Duty ſo plainly dictated by Nature, and enjoin'd by the Sixth Command, leaſt by ſuch an Attempt they ſhou'd be guilty of a much greater evil. BENEVOLUS

Meſſ. Green & Watſon,

WHEN this Continent are in the laſt Agonies and ſtruggles for Liberty, and when they are ſo univerſally agreed in one plan to get rid of ſome unconſtitutional arbitrary acts of parliament, 'tis aſtoniſhing and to the laſt degree intollerable, to ſee ſome few, weak, ſelfiſh, traiterous Jacobites and Tories.—(who for a ſingle groat would ſell their country) plead for breaking the non importation agreement. Upon pretence that it is debarring men of their liberty to conſtrain them not to import——pray what do theſe ſelfiſh creatures mean by liberty? Do they know what it imports? Is it a liberty to break over all Laws and rules human and divine? Is not the univerſal voice of the people the beſt humane law that can be made?——But ſome are very virulent, and with their poiſonous doctrines, would aſſiſt to overthrow a wholſome conſtitution;—by influencing weak minds where they can have any influence, that 'tis a trick of the merchants to get off their old goods. But, bleſſed be GOD, there is virtue enough left in this government, to ſee and withſtand them; there happens not to be above three or four in a town, and I wou'd have ſuch as do not immediately retract there curſed erroneous doctrines, but perſiſt in them, branded with infamy, and held up to view to the lateſt poſterity. Let them know by woful experience what an evil thing and bitter it is to ſet up againſt the univerſal judgment of the people, better one man die (a political death) than the whole people periſh. I wou'd have them hooted by the riſing generations, in whoſe cauſe the continent are ſtruggling: and if that won't do, I would uſe what has proved effectual, viz. tarr and feather in every town where ſuch are to be found, and perſiſt in it. I am, the public's moſt humble ſervant,

A Trader that will not Import.

P. S. I hope if any remain after the foregoing hints, to perſiſt in ſuch principles to encourage an importation or to plead for New York in their baſe and treacherous conduct, that the ſeveral towns to which they belong will adopt the plan of Boſton and ſend their names to be printed as baſe perſiſting wretches in all the news papers in this colony.

Lebanon, Auguſt 23 1770.

I have now the ſatiſfaction to inform all who deſire the increaſe of uſeful knowledge among their fellow men, and eſpecially ſuch as have, by their generous ſubſcriptions in favour of my Indian charity ſchool, ſhewn their pious zeal to promote religion and learning among the ſavages of our wilderneſs that ſaid ſchool is now become a body corporate and politic under the name of Dartmouth College, by a moſt generous and royal charter, granted, and amply endowed with immunities, powers and privileges (in the opinion of good judges, not inferior to any univerſity on the continent) by his Excellency John Wentworth, Eſq; governor of New Hampſhire, whom GOD has raiſed up and commiſſioned for this purpoſe.

And in order to determine the particular town in ſaid province I have, with one of the truſtees of ſaid College, and another gentleman of known ability in ſuch affairs, whom we deſired to accompany and aſſiſt us therein ſpent ſeveral weeks in viewing the ſeveral places propoſed, in order to enable the truſtees underſtandingly to fix, not only upon the particular town, but on the particular part or ſpot in the town, on which it might be moſt convenient to erect the buildings for ſaid College; in conſequence of which have, with the greateſt unanimity, given the preference to the ſouth weſtern corner of Hanover adjoining upon Lebanon, on a choiſe tract of land, conveniently ſituate, containing more than 3300 acres, the whole of which is freely given for the uſe of the College, by the hon. Benning Wentworth, Eſq; late governor of ſaid province, and by the ſaid towns of Hanover and Lebanon. Where I hope ſoon to be able to ſupport by charity a large number not only of Indian youths in Moors charity ſchool which is connected and incorporated with the College, but alſo of Engliſh youth's in the College, in order to their being fitted for Miſſions among the Indians, &c.

And I would take this opportunity to adviſe thoſe who have ſo generouſly ſubſcribed for the uſe and ſupport of this inſtitution, that the ſeveral ſums by them ſubſcribed, are in conſequence of this incorporation of ſaid ſchool, become payable; and that their ſaid charities never were, and perhaps never will be more needed, than at this preſent juncture; nor can they likely ever be applyed more agreeable to the pious deſigns of the donors, or more for the benefit and furtherance of the ſame, than now by improving them to prepare thoſe lands for cultivation, which are given for the only uſe and benefit of ſaid inſtitution.

And as the ſubſcribers are ſcattered through this and the neighbouring governments, and many have not had opportunity for ſeveral years to pay the intereſt thereon, I propoſe that ſuch as ſhall not have an opportunity to ſettle the account with me, or my book keeper before, may have opportunity to do it at Mr. Beers's of New Haven, on the day of the enſuing Commencement, or the day after either with me, or one impowered by me for that purpoſe. And it gives me no ſmall ſatiſfaction that the proſpects which through the divine goodneſs are at preſent exhibited, give theſe and other generous benefactors, reaſon to hope that they will have no occaſion for painful reflections that theſe charities have been beſtowed in vain; or any occaſion of regret that they have not been applyed to ſo good purpoſe as they might have been. by

Their ſincere Friend, and Servant in the Lord,
ELEAZER WHEELOCK.

P. S. The Printers at New-Haven and New London, are deſired to inſert the foregoing in their reſpective papers, as ſoon as may be.

Naples, April 4. The Greeks have made a horrible Maſſacre of the Turks in the Morea, ſparing neither Age nor Sex in Revenge for the Behaviour of the Turks when they ſeized on that country.

Venice, May 19. The Face of affairs ſeems entirely changed in the Morea. Coron is again in the hands of the Turks, who are recovered of the conſternation into which they were thrown on the firſt Deſcent of the Ruſſians. While they were buſied with the Epirotes in retaking Patras, advice was brought them that 4000 Mainotes were marching towards Achaia. The Ottomans directly advanced to meet them, and killed 2000 of them on the Spot, the reſt being totally diſperſed. By this Victory the whole Dutchy of Claren of which Patras is the Capital, is again ſubject to the Ottomans. All the Letters likewiſe received from that Peninſula, as well as from Zante bring, that an army of 60 000 Men headed by a Seraſkier, is already arrived at Corinth.

Warſow, May 16. We hear the following Intelligence from the grand Ruſſian Army, and alſo by Letters from Kulinieck, viz a Corps of 20 000 Turks ventured to croſs the Danube, with a view to attack Lieut Gen. Stoffeln, who was in the Environs of Bucharest, but he was apprized of their coming by his light troops, and took his Meaſures ſo well, that he attacked the Turks at a time when they had the leaſt Thoughts of it, which lucky event put them to flight; 3000 were killed on the Spot & many taken priſoners: The Ruſſians took likewiſe all their Baggag and Artillery. This Battle happened the 5th Inſtant not far from Brahilow.

NEW-YORK, September 6.

Sunday Morning the Harriot Packet, Capt. Oake arrived here in 7 Weeks from Falmouth; by her we have received London Papers of the 7th of July, from which are extracted the following Articles, viz

LONDON.

June 16. Laſt night ſome important diſpatches, it is ſaid, arrived in town from A. Cambell Frazer, Eſq; the Britiſh Conſul at Algiers, relative to the treatment of an Engliſh veſſel in the Mediterranean, by an Algerine xebeque, contrary to expreſs treaty.

Yeſterday an expreſs arrived in town, from Sir James Grey, his Britannic Majeſty's Ambaſſador at the Court of Madrid, which was immediately carried to the Earl of Weymouth's office, and occaſioned a holding a Cabinet Council this morning at the Queen's Palace.

Yeſterday an expreſs arrived from Mecklenburgh Strelitz, ſaid to contain ſome diſagreeable advices from that court.

They write from Breſt, that advice had lately been received of an epidemical diſtemper having carried off two thirds of the French garriſon at the Mauritius.

It was laſt Night reported, that our M——y have received Advice, that eight Men of War, with the like Number of Frigates, and ſeveral Bomb ketches, are now ready to ſail from Carthagena; but their deſtination is unknown.

Letters from Poland aſſure, that another Ruſſian ſquadron is ready to ſail from Cronſtradt: It is compoſed of ſix ſhips of the line, eight frigates and a number of tranſports, and has on board 8000 ſoldiers and a conſiderable number of volunteers.

The ſame letters add, that it was whiſpered a rupture would ſpeedily break out between the Empreſs and a certain European power, in which it is imagined Great Britain will be obliged to take part.

July 7. It is ſaid that an army of 40 000 men is now ſtationed on the frontiers of Portugal. What this fineſſe means, time will probably ſoon ſhew.

It is ſaid a naval officers of high rank has informed a Great Perſonage, that the naval eſtabliſhment of this kingdom requires to be put on a reſpectable footing; which is to be laid ſhortly before a board of admiralty.

Letters in Town from Liſbon, mention, that the warlike preparations of the Spaniards ſtrike a general alarm throughout Portugal, and that the miniſtry there were taking all proper precautions to ſecure themſelves.

The thoughts of the intelligent are now upon an approaching war; and we are aſſured the commencing hoſtilities with a neighbouring power has been ſeriouſly debated in the privy council.

It is reported that in the journals of the Tamer ſloop of war ſome proceedings of the Spaniſh Commander are mentioned, which the miniſtry have thought proper to conceal at preſent.

It has been reſolved by the privy council, to put the Britiſh navy on ſo formidable a footing, as will intimidate our neighbours from offering any future inſults to the Britiſh nation.

They write from Leghorn, that the Italian States are extremely alarmed at the Preparations making by the Court of Turin.

A Holland Trader brings advice of a Dutch Frigate having ſailed laſt Friday from the Texel, with private Inſtructions to the Dutch Admiral in the Mediterranean.

Letters from Genoa and Leghorn mention that the Merchants of North America have eſtabliſhed ſome valuable Connections in moſt of the trading ports in the Mediterranean, and that their ſhips ſent them thither for Sale, are eagerly bought up by the Italian States.

HARTFORD, September 10.

At a Town Meeting held here on Monday laſt, John Ledyard, Eſq; Col. John Pitkin, Capt. John Lawrence, and Mr. Eliſha Pitkin, were choſen to repreſent the mercantile and landed Intereſt of this Town, at the General Meeting of the Merchants and Landholders of this Colony, to be held at New-Haven, the 13th Inſtant.

Laſt Friday Night one George Warren, a Traveller, getting intoxicated with Liquor at a public Houſe in Eaſt-Hartford, ſuffer'd himſelf to be directed in his Way by a tranſient Fellow who was preſent, who, taking Advantage of his Circumſtances, robb'd him on the Road of a large Gold Ring, a black Barcelona Handkerchief, and about £.6 in Caſh, and made his Eſcape.

Uriah Rogers, junr.

Of NORWALK, in the County of FAIRFIELD, takes this Method to inform the PUBLIC.

THAT he ſtill continues to INOCULATE for the SMALL-POX that he has repaired his Hoſpital, and made it both convenient and warm; that he has followed that Branch of Buſineſs for ten Years paſt; that he has inoculated Six Hundred or upwards, without the Loſs of a ſingle patient, or even had any one confined to the Houſe. He receives the patient as ſoon as come to Town, innoculates him immediately, carries him ſafe through in three Weeks, keeps him until entirely clean and well, at the moderate Expence of Four Pounds, Lawful Money.

Norwalk, Auguſt 22 1770.

N. B. The public may depend on being ſerved, by ſaid Rogers at any time, in this Way, as he inoculates when he has only a ſingle perſon, and at any ſeaſon of the Year, and intends to keep his Hoſpital open, and ready to ſerve the Public at any time.

To be Sold at Public Vendue,

(by Order of the Hon. Court of Probate) on the firſt Tueſday of November next, at 9 o'Clock in the Morning. All the moveable Eſtate of Noah Ruſt, late of Eaſt-Hartford Deceas'd——Said Vendue will be attended at the Houſe of the ſaid Deceas'd. per AMAZIAH RUST, of me the Subſcriber, hath for ſome Time paſt, behaved Herſelf in a very Diſorderly Manner, by endeavouring to run me in Debt. THESE are Therefore to warn all Perſons not to Truſt or Credit her on my Account, as I will pay no Debt ſhe may Contract after this Date.

---

Whereas Martha the Wife

BENONI GRIFFEN, jun.

Turkey Hills, September 5. 1770.

Choice Claret Wine,

by the Caſk or in Bottles, to be ſold by ELEZER POMEROY in Hartford.

We the Subſcribers, being appointed Commiſſioners, by the Hon. Court of Probate for the Diſtrict of Hartford, to examine into all the Claims and all the Dues to and for the Eſtate of Capt. Francis Holliſter, late of Glaſtenbury, deceas'd (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby notify all Perſons to exhibit their Claims and appear and pay their Dues, on the firſt Mondays in every Month from this Date to the firſt Monday in March next, at the Dwelling Houſe of David Hale Inn-holder in Glaſtenbury.

Elizur Talcott,
Jonathan Welles,
Eliſha Holliſter.

Auguſt 30 1770.

Stolen out of the Paſture of

Robert Barrit of Kenſington in Farmington, on the Night next after the 28th Day of Auguſt laſt, a black HORSE, about 13 and half Hands high, natural Pacer, paces ſquare, thick ſet, ſhod all round, branded on the left Thigh with the Letters TB about 12 years old. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Horſe, and return him to the Owner, and ſecure the Thief, ſo that he may be brought to Juſtice, ſhall have a reaſonable Reward, and all neceſſary Charges paid by

Robert Barret,

Kenſington, Sept. 1, 1770.

From the New-London Gazette, Aug. 17.

Sir, If the following is worth a Place in your uſeful Paper, pleaſe to inſert it in your next.

To the Freemen of the Colony of Connecticut.

FOR many years paſt, I have looked on it with concern, that the little attention which is paid to our commercial intereſt in this colony, by thoſe whoſe proper buſineſs it was, has been (amongſt other things) the great Cauſe of our preſent poverty, and want of caſh amongſt us. Our general Aſſembly has never made it their ſpecial care nor concern, as a government affair; tho' it has been the ſpecial care of almoſt all nations (whoſe ſituation would admit of it) to make their trade and commerce, a national conſideration of the greateſt moment, and many broils has happened and even bloody wars commenced between nation and nation, where the one enfringed on the trade and commercial intereſts of the other; and we ſee how much pains is taken to keep the balance of trade in their own favour, by all wiſe nations in the world, that are concerned with it. But has this been the caſe with his government? No, but far otherwiſe; as our commerce has never been encouraged, as a public good. We have no metropolis in the government, where our ſtrength is collected together: And as our ſea coaſt is of great extent, every little harbour is a trading place; and our traders ſettled in all parts and corners of this colony, where ever they pleaſed to ſit down on their own bottom: And thus our ſtrength for trade is ſcattered and ſo diſjointed that every little trader has no further views than his own private intereſt. And at his firſt ſetting up, he either goes to Boſton or York, to be truſted a few goods; and wherever he begins firſt, there he is tied. It is with him as it was with the Indians that come to our trading places, if they are truſted by any of our traders they become their mates (as they call it) and muſt never trade with any other, as long as they are in debt, which is generally as long as they can be truſted.—— From the earlieſt times, Boſton had almoſt the whole of our trade, till the injurious act that altered the currency of that province, in the year 1750; but much more ſo, when they found that the merchants in Boſton compelled them to pay according to their new regulation; which the traders here looked on as unjuſt, as a few of them would go to Boſton, but ſtayed at home and ſuffered themſelves to be ſued in their own government. This much incenſed them againſt Boſton for the injudicious treatment they met with; they turned their trade generally to New-York. The Yorkers ſeized this favourable opportunity of ingroſſing the trade of this colony, when it was (I may ſay) rejected by Boſton, as the trade of Ireland was by Philadelphia on the like occaſion. Thus the old ſaying was verified, that trade is like a coy maid, ſhe will be courted, but not forced. — Since that time the traders of this colony have been mates to the merchants of New York, (and that they know to their coſt). But as there has not been many goods brought into this government for two or three years paſt, the traders have got nearer being their own maſters than they ever have been ſince they got rid of Boſton. A favourable opportunity this, to break the yoke with thoſe perfidious people, that had all our trade, and on whom we depended, as our barrier, reſpecting the non importation agreement, which they have baſely broke Now is the moſt favorable opportunity that perhaps they will ever again ſee — Now is the time for our Traders to meet together, conſult and petition our general aſſembly, on this important ſubject——the importance of which will eaſily appear, if we conſider—— that it is generally allow'd that New York imports yearly on an average, about £ 5000,000 ſterling. Now it was allow'd in the time of the war, one half of their imports from Britain, went to Connecticut. But ſuppoſe we had but a third of them New Jerſey a third, and the importers the other third, it amounts to £ 166 666 13s. 4d Now allowing them a profit of 25 per cent. which is the loweſt on an average that the Connecticut Men buy goods, and from that to 33 and a 3d So that for want of encouragement to import our own goods, we yearly pay to New York, the ſum of £ 41 666. 13s 4d. ſterling above what the ſame goods would coſt if we imported them ourſelves which in proc. amounts to £ 55 555 11. 1 A pretty penny indeed !! But add to this the profit of our beef, pork, flax ſeed, pot-aſh, wheat, Indian corn, &c. all which they ſend in their own veſſels to foreign markets, and take the advantage of them, as well as of our fat cattle, which they take of our drovers (or rather of our merchants) at their own price, nearly for the ſame in their money, as they coſt here in proc. as indeed they do our beef, pork, rum, &c The balance being ſtill againſt us; we cannot help ourſelves.— Surely nothing but inſenſibility, and power of cuſtom could ever have led us into this ſituation! for I am well perſuaded, that if this colony, by fatality, or force were obliged to pay New-York a tax of but one thouſand a year, they would look on it as they did the ſtamp act, and venture their lives and fortunes to free themſelves from it.—Rouſe then my friends, free yourſelves from thoſe that have long enſlaved you, (tho' inſenſibly) and now have done their endeavours to enſlave the whole continent.——Now is our time to pitch on a metropolis, to unite our ſtrength and to import our own goods; and eſpecially as the New Jerſies, who are in our ſituation, are beginning to be rouſed, and promiſed aid by the non-importers of New-York. Who knows but that if we take proper ſteps for our own relief; pitch on New-London, or New Haven, for our metropolis, our aſſembly encourage the importing of goods directly from Europe; and lay a duty on all goods brought from New-York, but that many of the merchants non importers of New York, may move to our metropolis, if we be ſpirited and take proper meaſures, and the Jerſies does the ſame: In this caſe the plumes of that domineering city may yet feather the neaſts of thoſe whom they have long plucked. It is well known that it is in the power of a few merchants to ruin the trade of that city, in her preſent circumſtances and ſituation, and eſpecially with the aid of her neighbouring colonies. If our aſſembly would only lay a duty of 20s. a cord on wood, and 40s. on every yoke of oxen, that went over Byram-river, they would go with hungry bellies and cold fingers the enſuing winter. A good method thus to ſhew them their Ingratitude.—— The Grievances I complain of, are very obvious; and the proper methods to redreſs them no miſtery; and I hope thoſe concerned will look into it immediately.—— What a ſhame it is for the colony of Connecticut, voluntarily and inſenſibly to be tributes to any other government, while they have the ſtaple trade within themſelves. We have beef, pork, wheat, rye Indian-corn, oats, flax-ſeed, pot-aſh, and plenty of timber for ſhip building, good harbours, & all the conveniencies to carry on the fiſhery. Let us then throw off our dependancy; then ſhall we make a figure amongſt our ſiſter colonies in Great Britain, where at preſent we are either diſpiſed or unknown —— It is ſaid the reaſon trade has never been encouraged in this colony is, that whenever any thing of the kind has been propoſed in our aſſembly, it has been oppoſed by the farmers, as a ſcheme of the merchants, and conſequently incompatible with their intereſt. A great miſtake this; no, it is the conſumers of the goods that pay this heavy tax to the Yorkers——the farmer that has daughters to marry—and it is for their ſakes that I have thrown out the above hints; which I hope will be largely diſcuſſed by abler hands than

A Connecticut Farmer.

Cornelius Atherton,
Of Dutcheſs County, & Province of New York, now living in the Great Nine Partners.

BEGS leave to inform the Public, and Clothiers in particular, that he follows making repairing, & grinding Clothiers SHEARS in the very beſt manner, and as he has taken the utmoſt pains to conſtruct them after the beſt manner, ſo that they can be taken a part to be ground, without putting them out of their proper order. He hopes that ſo valuable improvement may be a mean of incouraging thoſe gentlemen that want Shears to apply to the ſubſcriber, who will warrant them to be equal to any that can be brought from Europe any perſon in want, can be ſupplied on ſhort notice, by applying to the ſubſcriber where he now lives.

CORNELIUS ATHERTON.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

Printed by GREEN & WATSON.

The Connecticut COURANT.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1770. [NUMB. 299.]

☞ WHEREAS by Reaſon that foreign Intelligences don't come to Hand till the Sunday Evening or Monday Morning preceeding the Publication of this Paper, but a ſmall Portion of ſuch Intelligences can be inſerted till a Week after they are received—to remedy this Inconveniency, and the better to accommodate and oblige our Cuſtomers with the neweſt and freſheſt Advices, we have determined that henceforth the Date of the Emiſſion of the Connecticut Courant ſhall commence on the TUESDAY of every Week.

The PRINTERS.

A Political Dialogue,

Between

SYLVESTER and PHILARCHIAS.

SYLVESTER. PRAY Sir what are we to underſtand by a free and civil Community?

PHILARCHIAS. I take it to be a political Body made up of Individuals properly endowed with Immunities and a Power of making ſuch Laws for their own Regulation as they Shall think moſt proper, thus bringing themſelves under a Civil Conſtitution.

Syl. What is the ſpecial End and Deſign of ſuch a Conſtitution?

Phi 'Tis to ſubſerve the general Good and to promote the Mutual Peace and Temporal Felicity of the Community in general and of the Individuals in particular.

Syl. And how or in what way is it deſign'd to Effect this End?

Ph. By ſecuring to each one in the beſt Manner that which is his Own, or by Vindicating and aſſerting to them their natural Rights, Liberties, Privileges and Properties, againſt the Iniquitous Demands, Invaſions, Encroachments, Injuries, Ravages and Violences of fraudulent, oppreſſive and unreaſonable Men, to which they might otherwiſe be expoſed.

Syl. You ſpeak of aſſerting Liberty pray what are we to underſtand by Liberty? Is it not a Power to do as one liſts?

Ph. No truly: that would not be Liberty but Licentiouſneſs: but there is a Wide Difference between theſe Two, though the Diſtinction is not always kept up, ſo but that they are often Confounded together.

Sy. Pray wherein do they differ?

Ph. Why, the Idea of civil Liberty implies no more than a free and unmoleſted Exerciſe of a Power to do as we have a Natural and reaſonable Right to do, and to poſſeſs and enjoy, uſe and improve, whatever we have a juſt and equitable Right to Poſſeſs, Enjoy, &c. ſo as to be under no Controul, or reſtraints but what ariſe from, or are founded upon Rules of Equity, and the Laws of Reaſon and Righteouſneſs——Whereas Licentiouſneſs conſiſts in Arrogating a Power of Acting as one liſts; whether right or wrong, reaſonable or unreaſonable, decent or indecent, without being under any Reſtraints, by any Power, Law or Rule whatſoever.

Sy. Then Liberty according to you don't at all conſiſt in being diſbanded from Subjection to Law, and civil Power or Government?

Ph Quite the Reverſe; for the Laws of a free Community are but the free Voice of the Body declaring by what Rules the State is determined to be Regulated, ſo as that Equity and Juſtice may in the beſt Manner be adminiſtred between Man and Man, and the Rights and Liberties of the Individuals protected and ſecured. So that the Laws of a Community are the very Baſis on which the Liberties of the Individuals are founded, and their properties protected from ſuch Ravages, and Invaſions which might Otherwiſe prove fatal to them.

Sy. It ſhould ſeem then that whoever breaks over, or would ſet themſelves above Law, or even encourage or inſtigate others ſo to do, can't properly eſcape the Character of being Unfriendly to the Cauſe of Liberty, rather than Promoters of it?

Ph. Why it ſeems you draw the Conſequence; though many who appear zealous in what may appear to them the Cauſe of Liberty, may not be apt to view it in that light: But what can be a greater difference to the Cauſe of Liberty upon the whole, than overſetting or undermining the great Bulwark by which it is ſecured and defended? And by that means lay themſelves and their Properties open to Anarchy and the Invaſions and Infractions of ſuch evil and Miſchievous Oppreſſors and Uſurpers as would not fail to reduce them into a State of Vaſſalage and Slavery?

Sy. But may it not be ſuppoſable that the Exigencies of a State may be ſuch as to warrant, and even make Neceſſary the breaking over the Laws of the State, in order for its greater ſafety and Preſervation?

Ph. Why really a State muſt be under very peculiar and pitiful Circumſtances, and of a very impotent, feeble and imperfect Conſtitution indeed, the Exigencies of which are of ſuch a Nature as to demand that Violence be offered to its very Conſtitution in order for its Reſtoration or Safety: and a very great Solecism in Policy this, to ſuppoſe that 'tis for the good of the Community that the very Laws and Regulations by which it ſubſiſts ſhould be Violated and ſet at nought.——Is it not the peculiar Prerogative of a free State to ſuperintend its own Preſervation and ex Officio to look out for its own Protection, by clearing out of the way whatever Obſtructs it, and by dictating, decreeing and enjoining upon its Members whatever may be of Poſitive Advantage or Neceſſary to its ſafety? If therefore the Exigencies of the State are ſuch, as to carry the Appearance of a Neceſſity of breaking over ſome of its preſent Laws, it can at beſt amount to no more than this, viz. a Neceſſity of ſome new Regulations, or that the now illegal meaſures Neceſſary for the Health of the State ſhould be adopted by the Community, by being paſſed into a Law, that ſo the Practice may be Warranted. And 'tis reaſonably preſumed that when any meaſures are not paſs'd into a Law, the Same are by the Body of the Community eſteemed either Unwarrantable or Unneceſſary; elſe what hinders their being Adopted? Can it be ſuppoſed that any meaſures can be known to be ſalutary to the State; and yet be of Dangerous Conſequence to the State to have the ſame paſs'd into a Law? Need the Community be afraid to decree for their own ſafety? Are Individuals to dictate Laws to the Body? or the Body to them?

Sy. Why what you ſay is indeed convincing; and gives me ſome different Views of Things, and I fancy different from what many have.

Ph. Why Mankind are apt to err even in matters where errors are of moſt dangerous Conſequence, becauſe they won't give themſelves Time to conſider; but 'tis not difficult to ſee that whoever treats with contempt the Laws of the State, is guilty of Injury to the Community in general, and as it may be, of Injury and Oppreſſion to ſome Individuals in particular, we ourſelves are fond enough (and well we may) of complaining when by unconſtitutional Meaſures we are oppreſs'd & depriv'd of our natural Rights and Liberties, and without our Conſent, rob'd of what is our own, by an unreaſonable and unequitable Demand, by miniſterial Power; and this we may well look upon as a Breach made upon our conſtitutional Rights, and the Privileges of the State: And is it ſo that we have no Way of repairing the Breach, and obtaining Redreſs, that is more generous than that of acting unconſtitutionally ourſelves in bringing others into the ſame Calamity we ſo reaſonably complain of, by forcibly abridging them of their natural and conſtitutional Rights and Priviledges?—What can this be but Tyranny in Miniature! The ſame hideous Monſter, only in another ſhape, ſhrouding himſelf under the ſpecious Garb of Liberty! When, from a pretended Concern for the Exigencies of the State, we are free to throw out Menaces of lawleſs Violence, and hold them up to public View as Objects of Terror, to enforce a Compliance to propoſed Meaſures, is it poſſible that a free and ſenſible People ſhould be ſo infatuated as not to ſee this Monſter peep out his excerable head? Or ſo faſcinated as to fancy themſelves charmed with the Voice of Liberty in ſuch Comminations?—Meaſures may indeed be good and eligible in themſelves, ſalutary to the State, by all proper Means to be recommended, encouraged and adopted; and yet the Modus for enforcing them be no ways eligible, or even ſufferable or warrantable: Nor would a State of Oppreſſion be likely to ſet more eaſy upon a People for their being brought under the Yoke by thoſe who are upon a Level with themſelves, than if this was done by the ſupreme Authority of the State.—Ought not the ſame Laws of Conſcience, Reaſon and Equity, by which the ſupreme Power ought to be regulated equally to obtain in every ſubordinate Department? Or ſhall we think it to be the blackeſt Vilany in the ſupreme Power to oppreſs us, and yet we at the ſame Time claim it as an eſſential Part of our Prerogative as Sons of Liberty, to make it criminal in others not to obey our arbitrary Demands of ſuch Reſignations of Right, as are ſubjected to the Dictates of our capricious Fancies?——Will any one ſay the Exigencies of the State require it!——Why don't they eſtabliſh it then to be lawful? May not Parliamentarians alledge alſo that the Exigencies of the ſupreme Power, the Support of which is neceſſary to the good of the State will alſo apologize for their Conduct? But who would mind them if they ſhould? Pray where is the great Difference?

Quare rides? – Fabula de te narratur mutato Nomine.

For what? is thy Servant a Dog, that he ſhould do this great Thing? was the Say of One in common Circumſtances; to whoſe mercileſs Rapine, when promoted to Place of Dominion, nothing was too ſacred to fall a Victim.

Sy. Sir I thank you for this entertaining Interview——You have, I think, thus far ſet Matters in a juſt Light. Adieu for the preſent.

BOSTON, September 13.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor having received his Majeſty's Orders to withdraw from His Majeſty's Caſtle William the Garriſon in the pay of the province, and his Majeſty having been pleaſed further to order that the ſaid Caſtle ſhould be garriſoned by His Majeſty's Regular Troops, on Monday the 10th Inſtant the Garriſon in the pay of the Province were by His Honor's Orders withdrawn, and the cuſtody and Government of the ſaid caſtle were, by His Honor committed to Lieutenant Colonel Dalrymple, and garriſoned by a Detachment of the regular Forces under his Command accordingly.

Laſt Friday Capt Preſton, with the ſoldiers and others who were indicted for the murders committed in Kingſtreet on the evening of the 5th of March laſt, were arraigned at the bar of the Superior Court and Court of Aſſize, &c. now ſitting here, and ſeverally pleaded not guilty: but their trial, we hear is put off till the 23d day of October next.

HARTFORD, September 17.

At the Superior Court of Aſſize and General Goal Delivery, in their late Seſſions in this Town, the Jurors for our Sovereign Lord the King, by Billa vera, did make Preſentment of one Thomas Alderman of the Town of Simsbury, indicted for the fowl and unnatural Crime of Beaſtality; and after a very full and lengthy Hearing of Evidences and Pleadings both on the Part of the King and the Criminal, after a Deliberation of ſeveral Days, the Jury return'd a Verdict in Favour of the Criminal, whereupon he was acquitted——'Tis ſaid the Jury were divided in their Opinions, that but 3 out of 12 were in his Favor.

At the ſame Seſſion one Charles Livingſton, a tranſient Perſon was alſo preſented and try'd on an Indictment for a Rape committed on the Body of a certain Woman belonging to ſaid Simsbury, (as has been mention'd) but there not appearing ſufficient Evidence to the Jury of his being guilty of the Crime charged, he was acquitted.

Alſo, Richard Steele and John Galloway, both tranſient Perſons, were convicted of Burglary, and ſentenced to be whip'd 15 Stripes each, and to be crop'd and branded with the Letter B on their Forehead, which Puniſhment they accordingly received on Friday laſt.

A Letter from Boſton, to a Gentleman in New-London dated on Monday laſt, ſays, "Great News has this Inſtant "tranſpired, by the laſt packet,—Our Caſtle which mounts "upwards of 100 Pieces of Cannon is to be given up to "the King's Troops; and this is to be the Rendezvous "for all the men of War. This is all the News yet tranſpired, tho' believe there is a great deal more of the ſame "Complection."

Another Letter of the ſame Date ſays——"The Caſtle "was delivered this day to the King's Troops——It is "ſaid, the General Court is never again to ſit in Boſton, "and that vigorous Meaſures are to be taken every where. "A ſhip was ſeen within the Light Houſe which is ſuppoſed to be Capt. Scott; if ſo it is probable we have "News that is intereſting."

On Thurſday laſt at 12 o'clock, Capt Scott arrived at Boſton from London who brings Advice, that Seven Men of War were ſoon to ſail from England, under Commodore Gambier, to relieve the ſhips in theſe parts, and that Boſton was to be the place of their Rendezvous.

AT a Meeting of the Mercantile and Landed Intereſt of the Colony of Connecticut, by their Repreſentatives, appointed by a great Majority of the Towns in ſaid Colony, held at New Haven, on the 13th, of Sept. 1770.

GURDON SALTONSTALL, Eſq; in the Chair.

THE preſent ſituation of the colony being very largely and particularly conſidered, both with reſpect to Great Britain, their neighbouring colonies; and their internal circumſtances; after a full and large diſcuſſion of the important ſubjects laid before them, particularly that of importation of Britiſh goods from Great Britain or elſewhere——It was fully and unanimouſly reſolv'd,

That the non-importation agreement come into by the colonies in general, and by this in particular by their ſeveral agreements, and the more general one entered into at Middletown, on the 20th of February laſt, were founded on free, virtuous peaceable, manly and patriotic principles, and if perſevered in, muſt (under God) be the moſt certain means of obtaining, not only the removal of thoſe unconſtitutional taxes and oppreſſions under which we labour, but as tending to introduce the moſt permanent and univerſal advantages to the preſent and future age.

That we find at preſent, neither reaſon nor neceſſity for receeding from, or relaxing ſaid agreement laſt mentioned, agreable to which we do agree and reſolve,

That until the act of Parliament impoſing a duty on tea imported into America, be repealed, or until a general importation be agreed to, and take place, we will not, by ourſelves or others, directly or indirectly import, or cauſe to be imported, any goods or merchandize from Great-Britain, except the articles mentioned in ſaid laſt mentioned agreement, viz. Powder and Shot, German Steel, Hemp and Duck, Wool Cards, Card Wire and Tacks, impliments for Cloathiers Trade, Fiſh-hooks & Lines, Tin-plates, Hatters Trimmings, Salt petre, Sickles, Bar-lead, Pins and Needles, Copperas & Allum, Brimſtone and Sea coal, Sheep ſhears, Shoemakers Awls and Tacks, Sheet copper, Apothecary Drugs, Paper moulds, Books, Chalk and Salt.

Nor will we purchaſe any goods for ourſelves or others, of any in this colony, or elſewhere, who ſhall violate or break through the general agreement.

The late defection of New-York, was by the meeting conſidered, on which it was fully agreed, that this colony is juſtly offended, and highly reſents their late precipitate deſertion of the common cauſe of American liberty, by violating their reiterated ſolemn engagements with the other colonies; not only without their conſent, but in direct contradiction to their advice and intreaties;—by which the union of the colonies, in this moſt important, ſalutary and conſtitutional meaſure, for obtaining a redreſs of our grievances, is greatly weakened, our enemies abroad rather animated againſt us, and our friends in a degree diſcouraged, for which reaſons we judge it highly neceſſary, and do reſolve to break off, all commercial intercourſe with the inhabitants of New York, ſo far as not to purchaſe of them any goods or merchandize imported from Great Britain directly or indirectly. Publiſhed by order of the meeting.

Teſt SILAS DEANE Clerk.

⁂ As the Doings of the Merchants, &c. at their late Meeting at New Haven, came to Hand after the Paper was nearly compleated, we are obliged to omit the News by Capt. Scot, together with the Piece ſign'd Amator Veritatis, with a Number of new Advertiſements which were compoſed for this Day (for Want of Room) till our next. ☞ An Account of the late Commencement at New Haven is not yet come to Hand.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Lanbier Leſcoiet,

INtending for London in about three weeks deſires all perſons who have any demands againſt him to come and receive their pay and all indebted to him are deſired to make payment by that time——all who have watches in his hands are deſired to come and receive them by the above time.

TO BE SOLD, by the Subſcriber,

A Farm of land lying in Great Barrington, containing Two Hundred and Sixteen Acres under very good improvements, well proportion'd for plow land and Meadow, a good Farm for graſs, well watered, feaſible plow land not heavy timber'd, good faſhionable buildings almoſt new, the houſe 36 feet by 35, five lower rooms very convenient, four fire places below, a large good barn, two young, thrifty, bearing orchards, the beſt of fruit, one mile from a griſtmill, and ſaw mill, three miles from the meeting houſe, court houſe and church of England, on a public road, and a good ſituation. Alſo a farm of 100 acres, of good land, with a ſmall houſe upon it, 18 acres new, under improvements, well watered, a brook running through the farm by the door, on which there is good meadow land. Alſo twelve acres of the beſt of meadow at ſome diſtance, will be ſold with the 100 acres, now good mowing. All will be ſold at a reaſonable price, a reaſonable time of payment will be given——all is free from all incumbrances, and an indiſputable title will be given by me

Daniel Morris, living on the premiſes.

N.B. Thoſe farms join together, and will be ſold together or ſeperate, as may beſt ſuit the buyer.

Sept. 10 1770.

Colony of Connecticut ſſ. Litchfield, Sept 17, A.D. 1770.

NOTICE is hereby given to all the creditors of Capt. Abner Balding of Litchfield, an Inſolvent debtor to meet at the dwelling houſe of the Widow Mary Welles Innholder in ſaid Litchfield on the 16th day of ſeptember next then and their to exhibit their claims againſt ſaid Baldwin's eſtate well authenticated and to determine whether they will apportion the credits and eſtate of the ſaid Baldwin, among themſelves, or adviſe the truſtees to ſell diſpoſe of and collect the ſame for their benefit: and to adviſe and aſſiſt the truſtees in any other matters proper and neceſſary to be done at ſaid meeting.

Joſeph Picket,
Andrew Adams, } Truſtees.
Jedediah Strong.

To be ſold at public vendue on the third Monday of November next, at one o'clock afternoon, at the houſe of Capt. Solomon Cowles, in Farmington.

A Lot of land in ſaid Farmington, about half a mile from the meeting houſe, containing about two acres, with a ſmall orchard, and a houſe and barn, and a good well, very convenient for a tradeſman.

By ASAHEL WADSWORTH.

N.B. Any perſon inclining to purchaſe the above before the day of ſale, may know the terms by applying to Farmington, 13th Sept 1770. A. Wadſworth.

Strayed or Stolen from the ſubſcriber in Saliſbury, in the evening of the ſixth inſtant, a horſe ſaddle and Bridle the horſe brown or light cheſtnut coloured, with a white ſtreak in the face which is parted a little below his eyes with dark hair a croſs the white, both no brand, paces and trots, carries himſelf well, a ſmall head and ears, eight years old plain hunting ſaddle with blue german ſerge houſen, with a fringe round it, the off ſide of the fringe partly wore off, the off ſtirrup leather has been broke and is tied in a knot. Whoſoever ſhall take up ſaid Horſe and bring him to me or ſecure him ſo that I may have him and the theif if to be had ſhall have FIVE DOLLARS reward and all charges paid by JAMES BIRD.

PHILADELPHIA, September 6.

Extract of a letter from London July 5.

"Stocks have fallen much within theſe ten days; ſome of the monied Courtiers having ſold out, leads many People to apprehend the nation will be ingaged in a War e'er long.

"I ſhall be ſorry to hear that Boſton, New York, and Philadelphia, have concluded to abide by their old Agreement of Non-importation, without admitting a Number of neceſſary Articles,——It is not only injuring many worthy People, who ſubſiſt by their Buſineſs in each of thoſe cities at preſent, but it is turning the Trade to Montreal Rhode Iſland, Maryland, and Virginia.——The Quantities of Goods gone to thoſe Places, are very great——Orders now in London from Maryland ſay, If Philadelphia adheres to their old Reſolutions, then ſend four times the Quantity that you are to do otherwiſe."

NEW-YORK, September 13.

We have authority to aſſure the public, that Meſſrs. Franklin and Foxcroft, Deputy Poſt Maſters General of North America, now in London, have, by a proper Repreſentation to the Miniſtry, obtain'd the Appointment of a Fifth Packet-Boat between New-York and Falmouth, in order to render the Correſpondence more regular between Great-Britain and America;——And that the latter of theſe Gentlemen intended to leave England about the Middle of Auguſt, in a Veſſel bound for Philadelphia.

RUN-away from the Subſcriber the night following the 28th Inſtant a Molatto Servant named SAMPSON, about 28 Years of age, about 5 Feet 8 Inches high, had a Squaw and a Child of about 3 Years old with him. He ſtole and rode away a large black Mare, 17 Years old, paces & trots well, hath a large Bunch on each ſide of her Noſe, had but one Shoe on when ſtole to gether with a ruſſet breaſted Saddle, made in Imitation of a quilted Saddle. He carried or wore away with him a brown Coat and Jacket, and an old Felt Hat. Whoever will take up ſaid Servant and convey him to his maſter, at Canterbury, or ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's Goals, and do me word ſhall have FIVE DOLLARS Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by DANIEL TYLER.

Canterbury, Auguſt 29 1770.

We the Subſcribers, being appointed Commiſſioners, by the Hon. Court of Probate for the Diſtrict of Hartford, to examine into all the Claims and all the Dues to and for the Eſtate of Capt. Francis Holliſter, late of Glaſtenbury, deceas'd (repreſented inſolvent) do hereby notify all Perſons to exhibit their Claims and appear and pay their Dues, on the firſt Mondays in every Month from this Date to the firſt Monday in March next, at the Dwelling Houſe of David Hale Inn holder in Glaſtenbury.

Elizur Talcott,
Jonathan Welles,
Eliſha Holliſter.

Auguſt 30, 1770.

THE Subſcriber engaging in other buſineſs, purpoſes to drop that of riding in about ſix weeks, and deſires his cuſtomers would ſettle with him by that time——The accounts will be made up to Number 300

WILLIAM STANTON.

Printed by GREEN & WATSON.

Freſh Advices by the Packet.

LONDON.

June 12. It is ſaid the Reaſon why a certain great perſon has been refuſed his requeſt to ſpend two or three months this Summer with a Fleet in the Mediterranean, is, that no Umbrage may be given to any Foreign Power, while Things remain in their preſent State between the Ruſſians and the Turks.

It is reported that the extraordinary Step, intended to be taken by the Middleſex Freeholders, of refuſing to pay the Land Tax, has already occaſioned divers Councils to be reſolved on in caſe they ſhould put their Menaces in Execution.

The M——y's ſtriking a certain Duke and his Friends off the Privy Council Liſt in Ireland, is conſidered there as a great ſtretch of prerogative; and tho' the power of doing it is not diſputed, yet the arbitrarineſs and Impropriety of the Thing is both much wondered at and reviled.

The Duke of Grafton and Lord North have certainly differed very much within theſe few Days about diſpoſing of a Place in the Cuſtom-houſe.

It is now certain that L—d M——d is the principal adviſer of a Great Perſonage.

It is ſaid the Difference ſubſiſting between the D—— of G—— and L—— N—— is reconciled, and the Place in Queſtion given to the Perſon the former recommended.

By the Death of the late Right Hon. the Earl of Cholmondely, the Kingdom of Ireland is eaſed of 3700 per Annum.

June 15. Private letters from Paris mention, that the neutrality of the French King entirely depends upon what ſteps the Court of Berlin may take in the preſent war between the Turks and Ruſſians.

Saturday laſt as Lady Gage, in company with another Lady and two Gentlemen, was paſſing along the Strand in her Coach, the Traces broke, and the Horſe, run with great Violence down Surry Street, where they were ſtopped with much Difficulty; the Coachman being flung from the Box, had his Leg broke, and was taken up ſpeechleſs and without Hopes of Recovery, her Ladyſhip alſo was terribly bruiſed.

June 16. Letters from ſeveral Parts of Ireland ſay, that the popular Party is ſo ſtrong, and Matters are come to ſuch a Height, that nothing but a large Standing Army could long prevent an Inſurrection in that Kingdom.

The ſtates general are not a little alarmed at the preparations making by the court of Verſailles in the Eaſt-Indies, being very juſtly jealous for their ſettlement in that Quarter.

Thurſday morning a meſſenger arrived at the Right Hon. the Earl of Hillſborough's, in Hanover Square, with Diſpatches from the Hon. Thomas Hutchinſon, Eſq; governor of Maſſachuſett's Bay.

June 19. We hear there is a great Coolneſs between the D— of G—— and the D— of B——.

We hear that a Right Hon. A——— is exerting his greateſt Influence to promote a G—l Nomination of Sheriffs on Monday next.

Extract of a Letter from an Engliſh Gentleman at Paris, dated June 3.

"By the late diſaſter in this City one hundred and thirty-three Perſons periſhed on the Spot. The number of the wounded is incomparably greater, and they die in multitudes every Day. No age, nor ſex, nor rank, met with the ſmalleſt Diſtinction. The Duc de Richlieu eſcaped by a Miracle. The Duc de Biron, Colonel of the French Guards, has given a Penſion to two of his Soldiers for ſaving his Life. The prince of Clermont, ignorant of the calamity, deſired his coachman to drive forward; but in an Inſtant an hundred ſwords were drawn, to prevent him from moving a ſtep. Having told them he was the Prince of Clermont, he was anſwered only by Cries of horror, which ſaid we know not the Prince of Clermont.——A Lady of Diſtinction, offering a Penſion of a hundred Louis to any one who ſhould ſave her life, periſhed without an Attempt to aſſiſt her. There are among the dead many Knights of St. Louis and others of high Rank. The number of women and prieſts is much greater than that of others. Theſe are extremely fond of public ſpectacles, and little able to defend themſelves in a Crowd——The ſcene next day was truly mournful; many of the dead bodies lay all Night on the Ground. Theſe the next day, were reclaimed, under the inſpection of the Commiſſaries, by their Relations. I have not Room to deſcribe ſome ſtriking Incidents which happened on this Occaſion. To give an Idea of the reſt: A woman who miſſed her huſband, came to ſeek for him in the Heap of dead; at length his body was unveiled, all in blood and Deformity; thrice ſhe attempted to approach and claim him, and thrice her ſtrength failed her; then all at once, like one frantic, ſhe ruſhed forward, and without ſaying a word, threw herſelf on the dead body, which by her behaviour ſhe ſufficiently diſcovered to the ſpectators to be that of her huſband.

"On Saturday fifty ſeven perſons had been found who were drowned in the Seine.

"The accounts of this calamity are given differently by different perſons: The dead are ſaid to amount to five hundred, and the wounded to above two thouſand; but from the circumſtances of the caſe, it is impoſſible to be exact in theſe Particulars.

"The Parliament is to enquire into the Conduct of the Lieutenant of Police, &c. who are allowed to the 30th current to provide for their Defence."

LONDON, June 13.

PRIVATE letters from Conſtantinople mention, that the Divan had received authentic advices, that the treaty, negociating between the courts of St. Peterſburgh, and Iſpahan, is finally concluded, in conſequence of which, war it is ſaid, has been publickly declared by the latter againſt the Turks.

Yeſterday Sir Edward Hawke had a long conference with his M—y, and the Duke of Cumberland, at St James's in which it is ſaid, the neceſſity of ſending a ſquadron to Falkland's Iſland was ſtrongly enforced.

Lord Chatham has within theſe few days had a very preſſing invitation ſent him by a very great perſonage; by which it is imagined ſome extraordinary meaſures are in agitation.

Yeſterday the Right Hon. William Henry Littleton, Eſq; his Majeſty's ambaſſador at the court of Liſbon, went to court for the firſt time ſince his arrival in England, and had a long conference with his Majeſty.

Yeſterday a ſhip arrived in the river commanded by Capt. Scot, with returned goods from Boſton. Upon the above ſhip's arrival off Boſton, the greater part of the merchants, to whom the goods were conſigned, refuſed to have them ſtored, becauſe their right of taxation was not removed; but ſome conſented to take in their goods, which it is ſuppoſed will be their ruin, as few will deal with them. After the above goods were houſed: An importer of Engliſh goods was wrote on the doors of ſuch as had taken them in, as a mark of contempt.

Paris June 13. His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty has ordered 100 000 livres to be expended towards the relief of the unfortunate perſons who were hurt, or have loſt their relations in the confuſion on the night of the city fireworks. The Dauphineſs and the Meſdames have alſo contributed.

The number of dead, on that occaſion, is ſaid to be in all 712. Among which were four monks, two abbies, and 22 perſons of condition. It does not appear that there are any Engliſh among the number.

This week a memorial, couched in very ſtrong terms, was ſent off to the Hon. Mr. Murray, our ambaſſador at Conſtantinople, to be preſented by that Miniſter to the Ottoman Porte, complaining of the late inſults committed by the Turks upon Britiſh ſubjects in the Grand Signior's dominions, and to demand ſatiſfaction.

We hear that in conſequence of the daily accounts which arrive of the obſtinacy of the Americans, it has been reſolved by a great majority of C——l, to purſue the moſt active meaſures againſt them, to reduce them to their former obedience.

The reſolutions of the town of Abbingdon in America, relative to the preſent ſtate of affairs, have been repreſented, we hear, by a noble Lord to a Great Perſonage, as approaching very nearly the verge of declared rebellion.

It is whiſpered at the Court end of the town, that the preſent ſtate of our commerce with Portugal, the armaments of the houſe of Bourbon, and the part Britain is likely to take in the troubles between a Northern and an Eaſtern Empire, will require the two houſes of parliament to make a much ſhorter receſs than was at firſt propoſed.

The Connecticut COURANT.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1770. [NUMB. 300.]

HARTFORD, September 25.

ON the Sunday Night of 16 Inſtant ſome Time after 10 o'Clock, The AURORA BOREALIS or Phænomenon of Northern Light was for ſeveral Hours very extraordinary: both on Account of its extenſive Spread over the greater Part of the Hemiſphere, and alſo its remarkable Luſtre. It ſeem'd moſtly to proceed from three principal Sources, one in the North Eaſt another in the Weſt, and the third in the Eaſt; from each of which Gleams of a pallid purple Light of pyramidical Form would ſeem to be darted forth in quick Succeſſions, meeting together nearly in our Zenith; ſo that the whole Face of the Atmoſphere Northerly of the Prime Vertical, ſeem'd to be overcaſt with a Purple or rather a Crimſon Hue, though not of ſo bright a Luſtre as the Sources fore mentioned. The whole exhibiting a Proſpect no leſs ſolemn than Conſpicuous——The Works of the LORD are great, ſought out of all them that have Pleaſure therein.

VARIOUS have been the Conjectures that people have made as to what ſhou'd be the Cauſe of this wonderful Appearance called the Aurora Borealis, of which ſome are as improbable as they are unphiloſophical. Many have imagined it to be occaſioned by Subterraneous Eruptions of Fire from Vulcanos in the Northern Regions, ſhining upon the Atmoſphere, and thence reflected to us.—For the Refutation of which Opinion nothing further needs to be ſaid than, that the Phænomenon don't in any meaſure Agree, or Anſwer to ſuch a Cauſe, and therefore this can't by any Means be admitted as the true one, upon any Rule of philoſophiſing whatſoever; it would be ſtrange indeed that any ſubterraneous Eruption ſhould produce ſuch Shootings and Gleams of Light in conical Forms darted forth in perpendicular directions from almoſt every Point of the Horizon, to the height of our Zenith almoſt in an Inſtant; or any otherwiſe than as Radii from a Center.

Others have ſuppoſed it to be occaſioned by an infinite Variety or Combination of Reflections and Refractions of the Sun's Rays in our Atmoſphere——But as theſe Appearances often happen at Times when the Sun is ſo far below the Horizon, as that its Rays can have no immediate Acceſs to any Part of the Atmoſphere within the Bounds of our Hemiſphere, ſo neither can this, upon any philoſophical Principles, be admitted as the proper Solution.

Others have attempted a Solution of this Phænomenon by ſuppoſing it to be but a Reflection of Light from the Surface of ſome large Collection of Water in the northern Climes.——To this it may be ſaid that no ſuch Surfaces can reflect Light without firſt receiving it from ſome Luminary or luminous Body; but theſe northern Lights often happen when no ſuch Luminaries are above the Plain of the Horizon, conſequently can't ſhine upon any Surfaces that are above ſaid Plain, therefore no ſuch Reflections can be expected as would cauſe ſuch Appearances. Hence inaſmuch as this Light is not borrowed, or reflected from any luminous Body that we know of, it ſeems to follow of conſequence (for ought we can determine to the contrary) that it muſt proceed immediately from Bodies, or Particles which are Luminous per ſe, or ſuch at leaſt as have a Power, under certain Circumſtances, of emitting Light from themſelves. Therefore.

The laſt Opinion I ſhall mention is this, viz. That this Light is occaſioned by an electrical Effluvia, produced in the Atmoſphere by the Congreſs of theſe Aqueous Particles which are evaporated from the Ocean and thoſe from the Earth; the former being ſaline are Electrics per ſe, and the latter non electrics coming together in Contact occaſion ſuch a Conſtant Diſcharge † of this fire from Particle to Particle, in ſuch numberleſs Coruſcations, dartings or Emications as to give the Appearance now under Conſideration;——How far this Theory can be ſupported upon Principles of Philoſophy ſo as to Anſwer this Phænomenon, is humbly ſubmitted to the Speculative Diſquiſitions of the Philoſophical Virtuoſi.

Hartford, September 24, 1770.

---

† As Lightning is a Copious and plentiful Diſcharge of electrical Fire from the Clouds, which are but a Congeries or Collection of theſe Watery Particles that are evaporated from the Surface of the Sea, Lakes, Rivers, &c. ſo perhaps from Analogy it may not be unreaſonable to ſuppoſe that the Aurora Borealis is no other than an Effulgency of Light reſulting from thoſe promiſcuous, infinitely minute and Numberleſs Diſcharges of this Effluvia from Such ſeparated Particles, while unform'd, or before they are Condenſated into Clouds.

Meſſ. Printers, By inſerting the following, you will oblige your's, Sylvanus.

Parva leves capiunt animos. OVID.

I Have obſerved with regret that men of the fineſt endowments both natural and acquired, are frequently erroneous in their judgments, and ridiculous in their taſtes. They admire and eſteem thoſe things which are frivolous and unbecoming. As a friend to my country, I would in a candid manner, and with a benevolent deſign, mention ſome of the reigning vices, and ſuperfluous cuſtoms of the preſent age; and whether handled in a humourous or grave ſtile, I hope it will not fail of the deſired end. mankind are extremely apt to ſhoot out into ſweeping trains, buſhy head dreſſes or full bottomed wiggs, with many other incumbrances of dreſs, that they ſtand in need of being often pruned, leſt they ſhould be oppreſſed with ornaments, and over run with the luxuriance of their habits. And for this reaſon I have a deſire to obtain an operator to act under me, with the ſame regard as a ſurgeon to a phyſician; the one might be employed in healing thoſe blotches and humours which break out in the body, while the other is ſweetning the blood, and rectifying the conſtitution. My intention is to correct thoſe depraved ſentiments that give birth to all thoſe little extravagancies which appear in the outward dreſs and behaviour. Foppiſh and fantaſtic ornaments, are only indications of vice, not criminal in themſelves. Extinguiſh vanity from the mind, and you naturally retrench the little ſuperfluities of garniture and equipage. The bloſſoms will fall themſelves, when the root that nouriſhes them is deſtroyed; but is not the propoſal of any ſuch ſcheme attended with many difficulties? cuſtom grows into nature, and a habit trifling in itſelf, if long continued in, will be very hard to remove. Now the uſual converſation of the polite world very much cheriſhes this natural weakneſs of being taken with outſide and appearance. Talk of a new married couple, and you immediately hear whether they keep a curricle and attendants, or eat in plate; Mention the name of an abſent lady or gentleman, and it is ten to one, but you learn ſomething of her gown and petticoat, or of his new ſuit. A ball is of great help to diſcourſe, and a birth day or wedding, furniſhes converſation for a twelve month after. A ſtomacher of gold, an hat buttoned with a diamond, a brocade waiſtcoat are ſtanding topics; in ſhort, they conſider only the drapery of the ſpecies, and never caſt away a thought on thoſe ornaments of the mind, that make perſons illuſtrious in themſelves, uſeful to others, and an honour to ſociety.

(The Remainder muſt be left till next Week.)

BOSTON, September 20

Tueſday arrived here the Ship Britannia Capt Daverſon, from London; He had almoſt loaded his Veſſel in London when Capt. Scott arrived there with returned Goods from this Place, but immediately took out all ſuch Articles he had on board which were not allowed of by the Non-importation Agreement here, excepting a few which were at the Bottom, his owners at the ſame Time advertiſed in the following Manner:

WHEREAS there may probably be on board the BRITANNIA, WILLIAM DAVERSON Maſter, bound for BOSTON in NEW ENGLAND, ſundry Articles prohibited by the Committee of Merchants at that Port to be imported. It is therefore thought neceſſary to give this public Information, that any Gentlemen who may have ſhipped ſuch Goods on board the abovenamed Veſſel, may have them taken out again upon their immediately applying to CHAMPION and DICKASON, No. 117, Biſhopſgate Street Within.

LONDON, June 10.

His Excellency the Earl of Dunmore Governor of New-York, who has been for ſome time ſo indiſpoſed, as to prevent his ſetting out for his ſaid Government ſo ſoon as he intended, is now ſo well recovered, that it is expected his Excellency will in a few days embark for the ſame.

July 16. Lord Mansfield had a long conference with his Majeſty on Thurſday laſt. Lord Groſvenor was at the levee on Friday.

Friday the Earl of Northington viſited the Earl of Chatham.

Saturday morning Lord North had a long conference with his Majeſty at Richmond Palace.

July 20. It is reported, that Major Rogers has obtained the command of a regiment in the ſervice of the Honorable Eaſt India company.

Yeſterday Capt. Gambier ſet out for Portſmouth, in order to ſail for his ſtation on the coaſt of New England, &c. to which command he was lately appointed.

July 23. According to letters from the frontiers of Wallachia, the grand Turkiſh army, conſiſting of 130 000 men, commanded by the Grand Vizir in perſon, having under him the famous Moldavangi Pacha, is in full march to Bender; and Ibraham Pacha, at the head of 27 000 men, is directing his march towards Chocxim and the Nieſter; whilſt a large corps of European militia, reinforced by 20 000 Tarters, is to act on the ſide of the Ukraine.

July 24 Lord Hillſborough is preparing to ſet out for Ireland upon his private affairs. His Lordſhip's ſtay in that Kingdom, it is expected will be two months at leaſt; during which time the American affairs will, of courſe continue at a ſtand.

It is ſaid, that the Right Hon. the Earl of Northington has recommended a mode of Adminiſtration that will entirely conciliate the preſent diſſentions between all parties, and that it is now under the conſideration of a great Perſonage.

By letters from Conſtantinople, of the 2d paſt, it is acknowledged, that Navarino had ſurrendered to the Ruſſians, and that the garriſon have ſince been tranſproted, in Engliſh ſhips, to the Iſland of Candia, to which iſland likewiſe 400 Turkiſh families had taken the opportunity to retire for their ſafety.

July 25. It is ſaid Sir Fracis Bernard will ſoon embark in order to return to his government of Maſſachuſetts-Bay.

It is currently reported, that ſome regiments of infantry will ſpeedily be embarked, to reinforce General Gage in North-America.

The accounts in ſome of the papers, that two regiments of troops are ordered from New-York to Boſton, and that the King's ſhips are commanded to block up the harbour of Boſton, is not confirmed by the laſt prints from Boſton.

Advices juſt received by the packet from America ſay, that the Committee of Non importing Merchants was diſſolved for the preſent, with the general concurrence of the members.

By letters from New York received on Monday we hear, that "the inhabitants of that place, are now come to reſolution of receiving all imports from England, that are not liable to taxation, provided the Boſtonians will concur in the ſame meaſure."

LONDON, July 28 1770.

It is now ſaid, that the entire abolition of of the B—d and G—n party in the Cabinet, and the diſſolution of the preſent ——, were the actual ſine qua non preliminaries of the Earl of Northington's propoſals to the K— for the public good.

There is one circumſtance which reflects no little honour on the Earl of Northington, in his late negotiation with the Adminiſtration; and that is, his Lordſhip failed of ſucceſs, not as ſome others had done before him, for aſking too much for himſelf, (for he aſked nothing at all) but for aſking too much for his country—the greateſt crime a man can be guilty of in the preſent miniſterial ſituation of affairs!

We hear, what is ſomewhat extraordinary, that notwithſtanding in the late negotiations between ſome in power and a certain great man, for his re-aſſumption of miniſterial authority, much ſtreſs was laid on the appointment to be aſſigned Mr. G G yet the great man refuſed then to ſee that gentleman, as he had for ſome time before.

An evening paper of laſt night ſays, however improbable it may ſeem, there are letters now in town, which inform, that the Dutch are actually concerting a ſcheme that will ſurprize all Europe; which is no leſs than the making their preſent Stadtholder King of the United Provinces, and ſettlements belonging to the Republic, both in the Eaſt and Weſt Indies, &c.

CHARLES-TOWN, (South-Carolina) Auguſt 9.

It is very remarkable, and ſome very odd Conjectures are formed, from the Arrival of a Number of Spaniſh Veſſels, all at once, in the SEVERAL Ports of this and the neighbouring Provinces, viz. one at Sunbury and one at Savannah, the only Ports in GEORGIA; one at Beaufort, Port Royal, two here, and one at George Town, Winyah, ALL the Ports in this Province; and perhaps ſome may be alſo arrived in every Port Northward of us. They are all from Campeachy, and the Number ſailed from thence for this Continent, at one Time is, by ſome, ſaid to be 17, by others no leſs than 30. A Famine dreaded throughout the Spaniſh Provinces in and near the Gulph of Mexico, where 15 Months Drought is ſaid to have prevailed is the Pretence for their Viſiting theſe Parts, in Queſt of Proviſions: but does not their entering every Port look ſuſpicious? We know not, what is doing at the Havannah,—we know, that the Spaniards have tampered lately with the Creek and other Indians——we know the State of all the Fortifications in this Province—and we know, that the Spaniards do not allow theirs to be viewed, and the Navigation of their Rivers to be explored by Foreigners.

BOSTON, September 17.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, to his Friend in this Town, dated July 23. 1770.

THE voluntary receſs of your virtuous and brave anceſtors from the ſcenes of tyranny and corruption which the reign of the Stuarts had ſpread over this kingdom, and the colonies of churches which they eſtabliſhed on your continent, upon the more glorious principles of catholic Chriſtianity, I cannot but conſider as a moſt important event, by which very happy fruits, which are now (though amidſt heavy ſtorms) ripening for the ſignal benefit of the whole chriſtian church: For that noble ſtand you have made in the cauſe both of civil and religious Liberty, the whole chriſtian world owe you much thanks: The Star riſing out of your wilderneſs will, I truſt and pray, become a great Luminary, and enlighten the whole earth. May your patience and fidelity continue ſtedfaſt to the end. You have many ten thouſands here who ſincerely ſympathize with you, and unite their cry with yours—How long, O Lord holy and true, doſt thou not judge—But the councils of Heaven, however dark they may appear to us, are all infinitely wiſe, and perfectly right: and ſuch as we ourſelves ſhould undoubtedly chuſe, could we look into the event and connection of things, as the comprehenſive eye of the Supreme Diſpoſer doth.

All wiſe and candid men among us lament the unhappy conteſts betwixt Britain and its Colonies; we ſee and feel the malignant effects of their continuance —May he who hath the hearts of Kings in his hand deliver you from the iron hand and rod of tyranny which lies grievouſly upon you!

The many raſh and unconſtitutional meaſures which the men in Power have of late purſued, have ſo embarraſſed and diſtreſs'd them, that they muſt ſoon either ſtrike ſome deſperate blow, or quit the field of conteſt. It is a happy event, that the City of London appears to think ſo juſtly and to act ſo firmly in the preſent criſis; two notable inſtances of which have juſt now happen'd, viz. in the choice of a moſt worthy member to repreſent them in Parliament, without any oppoſing candidate, a thing which is ſaid not to have happened for more than a century paſt and the verdict of the Juries acquitting the Sellers of Junius's Letter.

Theſe convulſions in the world are to open and prepare the way for thoſe times of refreſhing for which, according to the divine promiſe, we ſtedfaſtly look: The whole creation groans, and will continue to groan under the tyranny of that proud ſpirit, who is called the Prince of this world, and of the little Tyrants in whom he works, till the Times are accompliſhed, and the Myſtery of God is finiſhed. That happy period, we hope, is haſtening; and Satan now rages, as knowing his time is but ſhort:—But here is the proper trial of the patience, the faith, and fortitude of the ſaints ——That your's, dear Sir, and that of our afflicted brethren in the American Colonies, eſpecially in your city, may continue firm, and abound, and have great recompence of reward, is the earneſt prayer of Sir, Your's, &c.

BOSTON, September 20.

We are informed from good authority, that Commodore Hood at Halifax, has expreſſed great Diſpleaſure at the late attempt to impreſs a man from a coaſting veſſel coming into this harbour: From the ſame authority we can aſſure the public that the coaſting trade ſhall not be moleſted, but encouraged and protected to the utmoſt, while the Commodore has the command of his Majeſty's ſquadron in theſe ſeas.

We hear Capt. Scott brought no goods but what are agreeable to the Non importation Agreement; he has alſo brought with him a large Quantity of Caſh for ſome of the Merchants here.

In Capt. Scott came Paſſengers a number of Weavers and other Manufacturers.

Capt. Coombes who is arrived at Marblehead from Falmouth, which he left the third of Auguſt, ſays, the Day he ſailed an Account was brought of a terrible Fire which happened at Portſmouth in England, that it had conſumed Half the Place with the King's Stores, Arſenals, &c. but could learn no particulars.

Capt. Brace ſailed for this Place two days before Captain Coombes.

A State of the Caſe of the Maſſacre in this town on the 5th of March laſt, has been publiſhed in London: Other Depoſitions than what was in the Account publiſhed by the Town, are inſerted in this State of the Caſe.

NEW-HAVEN, September 21.

ON Wedneſday the 12th inſtant was held in New Haven, the public Commencement, with great Order and Decency. The uſual Exerciſes of Orations and Diſputations, were performed to good Acceptance; attended by as large and reſpectable an Aſſembly as was ever known on ſuch an Occaſion: When the following young Gentlemen received the Degree of Batchelor of Arts, viz.

Joſeph Buckminſter, Gerſhom Bulkley, William Conant, Iſaac Cowles, John Davenport, Ichabod E. Fiſk, Alexander Gillet, Andrew Hillyer, Joſhua Knap, John Lewis, Samuel Lyman, Daniel Lyman, Achilles Mansfield, Seth Padelford, Joſiah Pomeroy, John Potter, William Sherman, Iſaac Sherman, Solomon Williams, Jonathan G. Graham New York College.

The following Gentlemen were admitted to the Degree of Maſters of Arts, viz.

Salmon Hulburt, Jedediah Huntington, (of Harvard College) Nathaniel Hazard (of New-Jerſey College) Apollos Leonard, Solomon Kellogg, James Ward, Noah Bulkley, Aaron Bliſs, Iſaac Foſter, Samuel Wales, John Trumbull, Bela Elderkin, Samuel Huntington, John Treadwell, Joſeph Lyman, Elias Jones, John Minor, Daniel Moſs, Iſaiah Potter, Jonathan Kingſbury, Edward Carrington, Amos Butler.

HARTFORD. September 25.

We hear from Hatfield, that ſometime about the beginning of laſt week, Mrs. WILLIAMS, conſort to the hon. RAEL WILLIAMS Eſq; of that town, died very ſuddenly, 'tis ſuppoſed in a fit, as ſhe went to bed in the Evening in a ſtate of ordinary health but was found dead in the morning, as ſhe was lying in bed.

We alſo hear from Springfield, that ſome time laſt week a difference ariſing between ſome of the priſoners in goal, one of them received ſuch a hurt from the others, that he died the next day.

We hear from Canaan, that on the 13th inſt. as Cynthia Dunham, daughter of James Dunham of that place was drawing water at a deep well, when ſhe had got the bucket down to the water, the poll broke off from the ſweep, which flew back with ſuch force, that it ſprung out of the crotch, and fell on her head and wounded her to that degree that ſhe died in about 7 Hours.

Juſt Publiſhed, and to be ſold by the Printers hereof, and by William Stanton of Litchfield.

A BRIEF View of the Diſtreſſes, Hardſhips, and Dangers our Anceſtors encounter'd, in ſettling New England—the Privileges we enjoy, and our Obligations thence ariſing; with moral Reflections thereupon. In two Sermons, delivered at Litchfield, on the General Faſt, April 18 1770.

By JUDAH CHAMPION, A. M.

Paſtor, of the firſt Church in Litchfield.

Whereas my Huſband has attempted by an Advertiſement ſhamefully to ruin my Character! to defend Myſelf, I inform the Public that I can produce the fulleſt Proof that my Conduct has been prudent and blameleſs, eſpecially with Reſpect of running my Huſband in Debt, and as fully Prove that his Temper and Conduct and Diſpoſition has been extremely Ill: particularly by more than once running Away without the leaſt viſible Cauſe, leaving Me and a Family of ſmall Children in bad Circumſtances. And the laſt time he Abſconded, he tarried almoſt two Years, and returned a bound Servant, and almoſt naked. For information of ſtrangers I inſert this, for where he and I are known, 'tis beyond his Power to injure my Character. I deſire no one would Credit him with a view that my Father or I ſhou'd pay the Debt as we have often done—But my Father is releas'd of that Trouble & myſelf of Paying any more Debts: for the Selectmen have put a Prohibition on my kind Huſband, for his good Conduct, as by their act will more fully appear

MARTHA GRIFFEN.

Turkey Hills, September 19 1770

James Morton,

INTENDING for Europe very ſoon, deſires all thoſe that are indebted to him, to come and ſettle immediately, if not, he will be under the diſagreeable neceſſity of putting their accounts into the hands of an Attorney Likewiſe all thoſe that have any demands on ſaid Morton, are deſired to exhibit their accounts for immediate ſettlement.

N. B. Said Morton has Salt to change for Flax Seed.

Hartford Sept. 21 1770. 300

In my laſt Advertiſement I gave Notice that I ſhou'd ſtop the Papers at No 300. But at the Importunity of a great Number of Friends have Agreed to continue the Buſineſs ſometime Longer, and for Accompliſhing the ſame, have engaged two Riders, who will deliver the Papers in the uſual Manner once a fortnight the price of the Paper 8 / as before Particular care will be taken to have the Buſineſs performed Punctually and at ſtated Seaſons.——Muſt deſire all my Cuſtomers to ſettle by the Time ſet in the other Advertiſement, that being ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY, to prevent miſtakes in the Accounts, as they will be upon a different footing afterwards.

WILLIAM STANTON.

CASH given for clean Cotten and Linen RAGGS of any Kind, by the Printers hereof.

Lanbier Leſcoiet,

INtending for London in about three weeks deſires all perſons who have any demands againſt him to come and receive their pay and all Indebted to him are deſired to make payment by that time.——All who have watches in his hands are deſired to come and receive them by the above time.

RUN-away from the Subſcriber the night following the 28th Inſtant a Molatto Servant named SAMPSON, about 28 Years of age, about 5 Feet 8 Inches high, had a Squaw and a Child of about 3 Years old with him. He ſtole and rode away a large black Mare, 17 Years old, paces & trots well, hath a large Bunch on each ſide of her Noſe, had but one Shoe on when ſtole together with a ruſſet breaſted Saddle, made in Imitation of a quilted Saddle. He carried or wore away with him a brown Coat and Jacket, and an old Felt Hat. Whoever will take up ſaid Servant and convey him to his maſter, at Canterbury, or ſecure him in any of his Majeſty's Goals, and do me word ſhall have FIVE DOLLARS Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid by DANIEL TYLER.

Canterbury, Auguſt 29 1770.

Strayed or Stolen from the ſubſcriber in Saliſbury, in the evening of the ſixth inſtant, a horſe ſaddle and Bridle the horſe brown or light cheſtnut coloured, with a white ſtreak in the face which is parted a little below his eyes with dark hair a croſs the white. hath no brand, paces and trots, carries himſelf well. a ſmall head and ears, eight years old. plain hunting ſaddle with blue german ſerge houſen, with a fringe round it, the off ſide of the fringe partly wore of. the off ſtirrup leather has been broke and is tied in a knot. Whoſoever ſhall take up ſaid Horſe and bring him to me or ſecure him ſo that I may have him and the theif if to be had ſhall have FIVE DOLLARS reward and all charges paid by JAMES BIRD.

Colony of Connecticut ſſ. Litchfield, Sept 17, A.D. 1770.

NOTICE is hereby given to all the creditors of Capt. Abner Balding of Litchfield, an Inſolvent debtor to meet at the dwelling houſe of the Widow Mary Welles Innholder in ſaid Litchfield on the 16th day of ſeptember next then and their to exhibit their claims againſt ſaid Baldwin's eſtate well authenticated and to determine whether they will apportion the credits and eſtate of the ſaid Baldwin, among themſelves, or adviſe the truſtees to ſell diſpoſe of and collect the ſame for their benefit: and to adviſe and aſſiſt the truſtees in any other matters proper and neceſſary to be done at ſaid meeting.

Joſeph Picket,
Andrew Adams, } Truſtees.
Jedediah Strong,

TO BE SOLD, by the Subſcriber,

A Farm of land lying in Great Barrington, containing Two Hundred and Sixteen Acres, under very good improvements, well proportion'd for plow land and Meadow, a good Farm for graſs, well watered, feaſible plow land not heavy timber'd, good faſhionable buildings almoſt new, the houſe 36 feet by 35, five lower rooms very convenient, four fire places below, a large good barn, two young, thrifty, bearing orchards, the beſt of fruit, one mile from a griſtmill, and ſaw mill, three miles from the meeting houſe, court houſe and church of England, on a public road, and a good ſituation. Alſo a farm of 100 acres, of good land, with a ſmall houſe upon it, 18 acres new, under improvements, well watered, a brook running through the farm by the door, on which there is good meadow land. Alſo twelve acres of the beſt of meadow at ſome diſtance, will be ſold with the 100 acres, now good mowing. All will be ſold at a reaſonable price, a reaſonable time of payment will be given——all is free from all incumbrances, and an indiſputable title will be given by me Daniel Morris, living on the premiſes.

N.B. Thoſe farms join together, and will be ſold together or ſeperate, as may beſt ſuit the buyer.

Sept, 10, 1770.

To be ſold at public vendue on the third Monday of November next, at one o'clock afternoon, at the houſe of Capt. Solomon Cowles, in Farmington,

A Lot of land in ſaid Farmington, about half a mile from the meeting houſe, containing about two acres, with a ſmall orchard, and a houſe and barn, and a good well, very convenient for a tradeſman.

By ASAHEL WADSWORTH.

N B. Any perſon inclining to purchaſe the above before the day of ſale, may know the terms by applying to Farmington, 13th Sept. 1770. A. Wadſworth.

Stolen out of the Paſture of

Robert Barrit of Kenſington in Farmington, on the Night next after the 28th Day of Auguſt laſt, a black HORSE, about 13 and half Hands high, natural Pacer, paces ſquare, thick ſet, ſhod all round, branded on the left Thigh with the Letters TB about 12 years old. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid Horſe, and return him to the Owner, and ſecure the Thief, ſo that he may be brought to Juſtice, ſhall have a reaſonable Reward, and all neceſſary Charges paid by Robert Barret.

Kenſington, Sept. 1, 1770.

Whereas Martha the Wife

of me the Subſcriber, hath for ſome Time paſt, behaved Herſelf in a very Diſorderly Manner, by endeavouring to run me in Debt. THESE are Therefore to warn all Perſons not to Truſt or Credit her on my Account, as I will pay no Debt ſhe may Contract after this Date.

BENONI GRIFFEN, jun.

Turkey-Hills, September 5 1770.

Choice Claret Wine, by the Caſk or in Bottles, to be ſold by ELEAZER POMEROY in Hartford.

To be Sold at Public Vendue,

(by Order of the Hon. Court of Probate) on the firſt Tueſday of Nobember next, at 9 o'Clock in the Morning. All the movable Eſtate of Noah Ruſt, late of Eaſt-Hartford Deceas'd——Said Vendue will be attended at the Houſe of the ſaid Deceas'd. per AMAZIAH RUST.

Uriah Rogers, junr.

Of NORWALK in the County of FAIRFIELD, takes this Method to inform the PUBLIC.

THAT he ſtill continues to INOCULATE for the SMALL-POX that he has repaired his Hoſpital, and made it both convenient and warm; that he has followed hat Branch of Buſineſs for ten Years paſt; that he has inoculated Six Hundred or upwards, without the Loſs of a ſingle patient, or even had any one confined to the Houſe. He receives the patient as ſoon as come to Town, innoculates him immediately, carries him ſafe through in three Weeks, keeps him until entirely clean and well, at the moderate Expence of Four Pounds, Lawful Money.

Norwalk, Auguſt 22 1770

N B. The public may depend on being ſerved, by ſaid Rogers at any time, in this Way, as he inoculates when he has only a ſingle perſon, and at any ſeaſon of the Year, and intends to keep his Hoſpital open, and ready to ſerve the Puplic at any time.

Juſt publiſhed, and to be ſold at the Printing-Office in Harford, a Pamphlet, entitled,

The Viſible Church, in Covenant with GOD.
FURTHER ILLUSTRATED.
Containing alſo, a brief Repreſentation of ſome other Goſpel Doctrines, which affect the Controverſy.
Interſperſed with Remarks upon ſome Things advanced by Dr. Bellamy, and Mr. Hopkins, in thoſe important Points.

By MOSES MATHER, A. M.

The Connecticut COURANT.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1770. [NUMB. 301.]

J Pinnell

DIALOGUE, II.

BETWEEN
SYLVESTER and PHILARCHIAS.

SYLVESTER. IN our former Interview you may remember that Converſation turn'd upon the Subject of civil LIBERTY, and you was pleas'd to ſay, that this is ſo far from being inconſiſtent with Subjection to civil Law, Government and Authority, that theſe are the very Baſis and Bulwark by which it is defended and ſupported; but pray, Sir, may we not ſuppoſe there may be ſome Laws which are Tyrannical and oppreſſive, tending in their Nature to abridge the Individuals of ſome of their valuable Rights and Privileges?

PHILARCHIAS. Not in a free State; for of Such a State I was ſpeaking where Laws are made conſtitutionally by the free conſent of the Community. For 'tis impoſſible they ſhould by their own free Acts bring themſelves into a State of Oppreſſion and Tyranny—Freedom and Tyranny don't conſiſt together.—And though it be indeed true that there may be ſome Laws even in a free State, which in their Tendency and Operation may very much incommode and prejudice the private, or ſeparate Intereſts of ſome Individuals, ſo as to bring them under much worſe Circumſtances than if no ſuch particular Laws were in Force, yet ſuch Individuals are by no means Injured hereby, provided ſuch Laws are in their Deſign, Nature and Tendency ſubſervient to the greater Good of the Community in General. And in this Caſe they, as Members of the Community, are reaſonably Obliged to ſubmit to ſuch Laws, even though they may thereby be conſtrained to part with ſome Valuable Intereſt they might otherwiſe Rightfully have claimed and retained, and in this Caſe alſo, the Community have a Rightful Claim and Demand from them of ſuch Compliances and Reſignations—An Individual conſidered meerly as ſuch, might have a natural and reaſonable Right and Claim to ſome Things, to which he has no Right or Claim in the Quality of a Member of the Community; for in this character there is a Debt which he oweth to the Community in Conſequence of an implicit Conſent or virtual Compact, that is mutually binding on both Sides—The Community on their Part has a Claim from the Individuals of Subjection to its Laws, as the Condition of its Affording to them its Aid Protection and Defence; On the Other hand the Individuals have a Claim of Protection and Defence from the Laws of the Community in Caſe of their due Obedience to thoſe Laws. The Claim that an Individual has upon the Community for the Protection of his Life, Liberties and Properties, and of every Valuable Intereſt, from the Invaſions of Others, is Conditioned upon the footing of his own Conduct as a Worthy Member or ſubject of Such a Community, which he can't be, without ſubjection to its Laws and Government.——So that there can be no Oppreſſion in all This where eſpecially Individuals have a Voice in the Election of the Legiſlature.

Sy. This ſeems to be reaſonable: but pray how comes it to paſs then that there is ſo much fault found with Law? Many ſeem to be as much prejudiced againſt Law and Courts, as if they were meer-Engines of Tyranny, Invented to Oppreſs, deſtroy and Impoveriſh the State; and as a very principal Source of Quarrelling and Contention; nay ſome have gone ſo far as to ſay, that the Law does more hurt than Good——Pray whence does this ariſe?

Ph. Why, you know Mankind are won't many Times to pronounce raſhly upon things from but a very ſlight and partial View, under the ſtrong Prejudice and Byaſs of their own particular Fancies, Paſſions and Humours: not forming their Opinions from Reaſon or the true State and Nature of Things——Many things though of Abſolute Neceſſity may yet be the Accidental Occaſion of much hurt and Miſchief, yet by no means to be diſcarded and ſet at Nought. We are not to think that our Common Food and Water are to be rejected as hurtful and pernicious upon the whole, meerly becauſe that the former has in ſome Inſtances been the Occaſion of Choaking and the Latter of Drowning Men——Nor will any man ſay we had better be without the Element of Air than with it, meerly becauſe it ſometimes Contains ſuch Noxious Qualities as have proved fatal to ſome.—The beſt Things have their Diſadvantages——Thus the Law, tho' good in its Nature, may yet be abuſed and thus become the Occaſion of Miſchief, 'tis like an edge Tool that does good or hurt according as it is uſed—hence ſome are prone to condemn it in the Lump; as the Farmer did the Rain, becauſe it came in an unlucky Time for him, he was very ſure it did more hurt than good one Time with another. The Law is deſigned for the unruly and lawleſs, and when ſuch fall under the Laſh of it, 'tis no wonder if they Mutter, though at the ſame time 'tis (under Providence) the Protection and Security even of their Lives and Fortunes, and of every Thing they have a reaſonable Right to Enjoy.—Though the Law be in itſelf an impartial Arbiter, yet it is frequently converſant in partial & Party Matters, and in ſuch Caſes 'tis difficult to ſuit all Parties.—In a word, it may rather be ſaid 'tis a Pity there ſhould be any Occaſion for Law Suits, or any Neceſſity of Invoking its Aid, or flying to its Protection; than that it is in itſelf Bad, or of any ill Tendency—here lies the Miſtake.

Sy. But pray, Sir, of whom does the legiſlative Body of a People Conſiſt?

Ph. They are the General Aſſembly conſiſting of the Governor and Council, and Houſe of Repreſentatives.

Sy. So I receiv'd it; but you ſpeak of Repreſentatives: pray let me know what is the Duty of a Repreſentative; or what part he is to act at the General Aſſembly; and I will offer you no more trouble at preſent——muſt he act his own Judgment and Opinion? Or is he only to do as the Town who Chooſe him tell him to do?

Ph. 'Tis doubtleſs true, that as a Repreſentative is choſen to repreſent, or to perſonate the Town who Send him, ſo they have a right to expect he will act a true, honeſt and Faithful Part for them in the Diſcharge of whatever Truſt he Undertakes; And they have an undoubted Right to give, and he to receive particular Inſtructions from his Conſtituents, as to his Conduct before the Aſſembly—This may be ſaid in general—But if you would go into a more particular Conſideration of this Matter, perhaps the Deciſion of your Queſtion may pretty much depend upon the profeſs'd View the Town had in his Election and Miſſion; if from his being recommended by Superior good Senſe, and diſtinguiſhing Abilities and Qualifications of Wiſdom, Skill, Sagacity and Penetration into State Affairs, as well as by probity and Integrity, he is Pitch'd upon Choſen and Confided in as one who will to the beſt of his Skill improve theſe his ſuperior Talents for the good of the State; he may in this Caſe doubtleſs be juſtified in acting his own Judgment when he comes to the Aſſembly——But if the profeſs'd Notion and View a people Entertain of their Deputy is this, that 'tis ſufficient if he be only Compos of taking their Inſtructions as they ſhall deal them out to him, and to ſerve only as their DAPPLE-GRAY by whom to tranſmit their Package to the Aſſembly and chooſe him as ſuch, he may doubtleſs be excuſed, as having acquitted himſelf from Blame & as having acted a faithful Part to his Conſtituents, to his Country, and to the Cauſe of Liberty, if he ſuſpends his own Judgment, and confines his Atchievements within the Limits of his Tether, when he comes to the Aſſembly.

Sy. Sir I thank you for your Instructive Communications—you will excuſe a haſty Viſit. At the preſent farewell.

Saturday laſt arrived at New York the Ship Dutcheſs of Gordon Capt. Winn, from London but laſt from Portſmouth, in 7 Weeks; by whom there is the following Advices, viz.

LONDON, Auguſt 2

Extract of a Letter from Portſmouth dated July 31, to a Merchant in London.

"I HAVE now the pleaſure to acquaint you, that the fire in the dock yard is quite extinguiſhed to the great joy of the inhabitants: Thank God there are no lives loſt, but a gentlewomans, who fell into fits by the fright, and expired ſoon after; and thoſe that had their limbs broke, wilfully ruſhed into the danger, without any poſſibility of being ſerviceable at that time towards extinguiſhing the flames; the damage done is much greater than what I mentioned in my former letter." It is no longer a doubt with us, but that it was wilfully ſet on fire, and by foreigners; ſeveral were obſerved to be very buſy about the yard the day preceeding the fire; but as there were no thoughts of their wicked deſign, they were not watched ſo narrowly as they ought to have been; beſides, there were cartridges, and other combuſtible matters found, placed about the buildings in ſuch a manner, as if it took fire in one place, it muſt ſoon communicate to another part.

"Since the fatal accident happened, it has by many been recollected, that ſeveral ſmall French veſſels had been hovering off our harbour for ſeveral days; and on Friday morning, when we were all in confuſion, they diſappeared; it is therefore upon the above circumſtances we ground our ſuſpicions."

Orders are iſſued from the Admiralty office, to the ſeveral dock yards at Deptford, Chatham, Plymouth, &c to get in readineſs all manner of ſtores, for the equipment of a number of ſhips, not only to ſupply thoſe lately deſtroyed by the fire at Portſmouth, but alſo to furniſh a much greater demand in caſe of need, as this ſtroke of the enemy is looked upon to be only the prelude to an interpriſe of much greater conſequence.

Yeſterday a meſſenger was diſpatched from the Admiralty and Navy boards to Portſmouth, with directions to the ſuperintendant of that dock yard, to engage all the artificers and labourers that can be found, to forward the repairs ſuſtained by the late dreadful fire. They are to have double wages, and the guards who are to be trebled, are to have an additional pay.

We hear that for the future, no perſon, whether native or foreigner, will be permitted to enter any of his Majeſty's dock yards or magazines without having previouſly obtained an expreſs order from the Commiſſioner.

We hear from Portſmouth that ſeven perſons have been apprehended and are now in cuſtody on ſuſpicion of being concerned in the late fire there.

A great reward, it is ſaid, will be offered by government, for the diſcovery of the perſons concerned in firing the dock yards at Portſmouth.

Extract of a Letter from Portſmouth, Auguſt 1.

"The fire in the Dock-yard is at laſt happily extinguiſhed by the help of three chain pumps which have diſcharged upwards of 1200 tons of water ſince Sunday morning. The Commiſſioners of the Navy have ſurveyed the damage ſuſtained, and we hear they have eſtimated the loſs at 500 000l and upwards. Some temporary ſtorehouſes will be erected with all expedition to receive ſtores until new ones ſhall be built; and we hear an additional number of artificers of all kinds will be immediately entered, in order the more ſpeedily to repair the late loſſes.

"Yeſterday evening three Frenchmen were taken up in the dock yard and conducted to the guard houſe blindfolded. It is ſaid they offered bribes to the centinels to let them paſs unnoticed."

A Gentleman late arrived at Toulon, aſſures us, that the French are at this time indefatigable in repairing and augmenting their Navy and that they are particularly careful thoſe preparations ſhall be ſeen as little as poſſible by foreigners.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24

At a Meeting of the Subſcribers to the Non importation Agreement (entered into on the 6th of February and 10th of March 1769) at Joſiah Davenport's Tavern, Sept the 20th 1770. Thomas Willing, Eſq being unanimouſly choſen chairman it was determined by a Vote, that the following Queſtions be put.

First ARE you of opinion that the non-importation agreement, as it now ſtands, ſhould be altered? Which was determined by a great majority in the affirmative.

Second Are you of opinion that the alteration propoſed ſhould be to open the importation of goods from G. Britain, and other parts of Europe, except teas, and ſuch other articles as are, or may be ſubject to duties for the purpoſe of raiſing a revenue in America? Which was determined by a great majority in the affirmative.

Third. Whether it will be for the reputation of this city, to conſult the other colonies, before any breach is made in the preſent agreement? Which was determined in the negative.

Fourth. Whether the agreement is deemed to be broke or altered? Agreed that it is altered only.

Fifth. Whether any goods ſhall be admitted to be landed and ſold here, which ſhall ſail in any veſſel from Great Britain, before the 15th of January next, until the ſpring veſſels generally arrive, that all may be on a footing? Reſolved in the negative.

Mr. Thomſon acquainted the ſubſcribers met, that Meſſrs. William Fiſher, John Gibſon, John Maxwell Niſbet, George Roberts, Thomas Mifflin, Daniel Benezet, John Cox, jun Samuel Howell, Alexander Huſton, James Meaſe, and himſelf conſidering the non-importation agreement to be broke by the reſolves now paſſed, no longer deem themſelves of the committee.

